On Monday afternoon, in the quiet cemetery at Yazoo City, in the presence of a family united in sorrow, we laid to rest Mrs. Ann Broyles Howell, who died in their Lintonia home early Sunday morning. Sister Howell came to Mississippi from Tennessee in 1861, then a young woman of eighteen years, and with her father, Jacob Broyles, lived in Monroe county, Miss., near Aberdeen. There, Oct. 30, 1867, she was married to Mr. J. R. Gilleylan, then chancery clerk of that county. Mr. Gilleylan died Jan. 30, 1872, leaving to his young wife the rearing of three boys—Jacob, Ernest, and Robert Gilleylan. It is an expressive tribute to her character that these boys have grown into splendid young manhood; Jacob being a physician at Bentonia, Miss; Robert a salesman, traveling out of Denver, Colo., and Ernest also a traveling man, just now on a trip to the far West. In 1876 on June 20, Sister Gilleylan was married again, to Mr. A. D. Howell, they making their home for the first ten years near Athens, Miss. Here to them were born four daughters, three of whom survive her—Misses Lydia, Fannie, and Sallie—who are living with their father at Yazoo City, the character of each paying a beautiful tribute to the memory of a Christian mother. Here, in their home at Athens, at the age of ninety years, died her father, Jacob Broyles. Her tender care for him forms one of the best pages in her useful life. After several years spent at Amory and several at Dover, Miss., Sister and Brother Howell moved to Yazoo City, Miss., where, after the short residence of one year, she was called to her heavenly home. I have spoken of her devotion as a daughter. The character of her sons and daughters speak eloquently of her as wife and mother. A many a Methodist itinerant will remember her home, where the welcome of a Methodist sister always waited him. But better than all, the record of a whole life bears testimony that the name Christian was beautified by her character. While we weep with those who weep for her, still we do also rejoice, and say, "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them." H. B. WATKINS.

ELLA JANE SPEARS, youngest child of L. D. and M. E. Spears, was born June 18, 1898, and died July 24, 1902. After five days' hard struggle with croup the little one ceased to suffer, and calmly fell asleep on Jesus, who took it to himself, to await the coming of mother, father, and eleven brothers and sisters. We sorrow not as those who have no hope, but bow our hearts in sympathy with the loved ones for little Ella, and say to the Father, "Thy will be done."

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result; and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Kind words produce their own image in men's souls; and a beautiful image it is. They soothe and quiet and comfort the hearer. They shame him out of his sour, morose, unkind feelings. We have not yet begun to use kind words in such abundance as they ought to be used.—Pascal.

MISS MAY MARKELL,

A Society Belle of London, Canada.

Miss May Markell.

MISS MAY MARKELL of London, Ontario, Canada, is a beautiful girl who knows what suffering is and Wine of Cardui has brought her back to health. She is one of the social favorites of her home and her recovery to health has permitted her to enjoy the company of her many friends instead of lying on a bed of sickness and suffering. For the health she now enjoys she gives credit to Wine of Cardui. She writes:

"I have found Wine of Cardui an excellent remedy for female trouble. I suffered for three years with terrible bearing-down pains at the menstrual period. I could hardly stand on my feet and was never real well. Wine of Cardui was the only medicine that I could depend on to do me any good, as I tried several with no success. Wine of Cardui cured me and I have now enjoyed perfect health for two years, and give you all the credit for I know you deserve it."

For a young girl Wine of Cardui is the best remedy to guide her through womanhood by starting the menstrual flow in a healthy and natural manner. Menstruation started right is very easy to keep regular through the years of mature womanhood. Then the "change of life" need not be feared. Thus Wine of Cardui is woman's best relief from youth to old age. A million women have secured blessed relief from their sufferings by taking this treatment. It relieves menstrual troubles in an incredibly short time. In a simple case of deranged menses Wine of Cardui never fails. To relieve disordered menses is to remove the cause of other female troubles. Any physician will tell you that to remove the cause of a disease renders the cure easy, in fact seldom fails to complete the cure. If you would have the same relief which Miss Markell secured try Wine of Cardui. You can take it without an examination and without any publicity whatever. You can take it in the privacy of your home and secure just as much benefit as if a doctor had prescribed it for you. Thousands of women are feeling the vigor of returning health by taking Wine of Cardui.

By many years of constant study and experiments, I have perfected a simple, harmless vegetable remedy that will quickly cure all female diseases, as well as the piles. It is nature's own remedy, and will not only relieve, but will absolutely thoroughly and permanently cure the ailments peculiar to women, such as falling of the womb, leucorrhea (whites), displacements, ulceration, granulation, painful or scanty periods, irregular menstruation and all the pelvic ills of women. It positively cures rectal ulcers, piles, hemorrhoids, tumors, itching, blind or bleeding piles in either sex. It cures promptly, privately, and permanently without the repugnant methods in general use by physicians. You can escape embarrassing examinations, avoid humiliating exposures, cheat the surgeon's knife and of baptism in your blood.

The treatment is so simple, mild and effectual that it will not interfere with your work or occupation. Thousands and thousands of letters are being received from grateful persons from all parts of the world who have been cured by the use of this remedy. The first package is free, send for it—send to-day. I know that a fair trial of it will result in your becoming its enthusiastic advocate and friend. With it I will send literature of interest and value. Do not neglect this opportunity to get cured yourself and be in a position to advise ailing friends.

Consider well the above offer and act upon it at once. It is made in the sincere hope of aiding you and spreading the knowledge of a beneficent boon to sufferers. Earnestly, hopefully, faithfully, Mrs. CORA B. MILLER, 46 Comstock Bldg., Kokomo, Ind

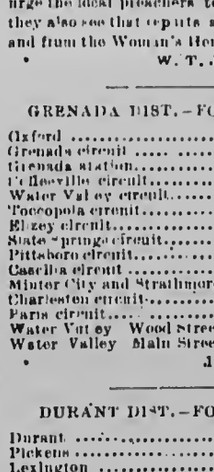
Artistic Monuments



Cost no more than plain ones in White Bronze. Marble is entirely out of date. Granite eventually crumbles back to Mother Earth. Besides it is very expensive.

White Bronze is strictly everlasting. It can not crumble with the action of frost. Moss growth is an impossibility. It is more artistic than any stone. It has been adopted for nearly one hundred public monuments and by thousands of delighted customers in all parts of the country. We have designs from $1,00 to $1,000. The company ship them to any address. Send me a postal card, and I will call at your home with my designs.

Glances at the World.

Under the head of "Staggering Figures" we called attention, last week, to the value of farms and a few of the farm products of the country. Since then we have seen in the Times-Democrat, of this city, a fuller statement, especially of the South. In the whole country there are 5,730,657 farms. Of this number 41 per cent., or 2,362,777, are in the South. These Southern farms number 321,018,807 acres, of which 112,271,961 acres are classed as improved, or under cultivation. The value of Southern farms amounts to $3,531,583,500. The value of the chief products is as follows: Cotton, $361,926,978; corn, $218,276,341; vegetables, including sweet and Irish potatoes, $96,444,910; tobacco, $51,952,200; hay and forage, $44,297,867; wheat, $37,907,979; sugar cane, $18,551,173; fruit, $18,236,019; other ground products, $24,404,116; total value, $872,001,153. These figures represent the value of the annual product of our Southern farms. To these we must add the value of live stock and poultry, which amounts to $806,630,417. Thus, according to the census of 1900, we find the value of farms, ground products, and live stock, etc., amounts to the enormous sum of $5,210,215,070. But these figures by no means represent present values, for since 1900 new industrial enterprises have developed, and the value of those then paying dividends have largely increased. The Southern oil fields alone has increased the wealth of the land millions of dollars, and the semi-tropical fruits have, perhaps, doubled in value. We have a country of wonderful possibilities. No doubt is entertained by leading commercial and manufacturing men that the whole country is entering an era of the greatest prosperity ever known.

The strike of the coal miners in the anthracite regions, which has been on for four months, is causing no little anxiety, both in commercial and political circles. Effort after effort has been made to bring about a settlement, but to no avail. The strikers will not give in, and the operators will neither accede to the demands of the miners, nor submit to arbitration. Attorney-General Knox looked into the matter to see if there was any way by which President Roosevelt could interpose, but he found none. Senator Hanna did his best, and gave up without accomplishing anything. Election day is near at hand in Pennsylvania, and the controlling Republicans have notified the operators that the strike must end. The party is in danger of defeat. Their nominee is opposed by the strongest Democrat in the State, Ex-Gov. Robt. Pattison, who has once been governor of the State. Senator Quay, whose word is law, has threatened to settle the matter if the operators do not settle it among themselves. He proposes to work through the Legislature. To his demands, which the press dispatches call his "ultimatum," President Baer, who seems to be the leading man among the mine owners, has given a plain, positive, and unequivocal answer. He declares his cause to be just, and that there is nothing to arbitrate. In the meantime the miners are being supported at the expense of the labor organizations of the country, anthracite coal consumers are running short, and the Winter will soon be here. Unless it is settled soon, there will be great suffering. And women and children, thousands of them, will be the greatest sufferers.

On Wednesday, of last week, President Roosevelt came very near losing his life. At Pittsfield, Mass., the carriage in which he was riding was run into and demolished by an electric car. He was accompanied by his private secretary, Mr. Cortelyou, Gov. Crane, and Secret Service Agent Wm. Craig. The President and his secretary were slightly hurt about the head and face, the governor escaped injury entirely, but the secret service agent was instantly killed, as was also one of the horses attached to the carriage. The accident, as we read the account, could have been avoided. Hundreds of people were on the line of march along the car track, and within a few feet of the President's carriage. The car track is in the middle of the street, and at a certain point it became necessary to cross from one side of the street to the other. As the lead horses (there were four hitched to the carriage) were turned on to the track the car was discovered to be close at hand. The occupants of the carriage signalled the motorman to stop, and the motorman was sounding his gong, but before the carriage had time to cross the track, the car was upon it, striking the rear left wheel, and plowing through to the front wheel, upsetting the carriage and killing one of the horses. Agent Craig was thrown directly in front of the car, which passed completely over his body. The driver was severely, though not fatally, injured. Thus a day of joy was turned into a day of mourning. This accident ended the President's tour in New England.

The farmers of to-day in many sections of the country enjoy advantages never dreamed of by our fathers. For instance, the telephone. Through this he can call the doctor, talk with the station agent, order his groceries, and get the market prices for what he has to sell. These are advantages, to say nothing of the privilege his wife and daughters have of conversing with their neighbors. The electric car lines penetrate far into the country, and in all directions. He can go and come as he pleases without the trouble and expense of an extra horse, or of taking one from the plow when work is pushing. He also enjoys the benefits of free mail delivery, and is thus relieved of the trouble of going to town two or three times a week. His mail is brought to his door. This free delivery has another advantage—it keeps many farmers from making frequent visits to the liquor shops. It has decreased the consumption of drink where it is in operation. This is something not contemplated by the government. So the free delivery not only encourages the use of the mails, but adds to the morals of the country. We ought to be a happy people.

A prize fight is scheduled at Louisville, Ky., for the twenty-second of this month. The evangelical pulpits of the city have spoken out against it, and Governor Beckham approves the preachers for the stand they have taken, having written a letter to that effect to one of the leading ministers. The mayor of the city, though, approves the fight, calling it a "glove contest," and declaring that Kentucky has no law to prevent it. If a license is needed, he will, of course, issue it, and be on hand to see the bruisers knock each other's cherks and nose. The mayor gives expression to the hope that through such training as prize-fights the young men of the country will one day settle their difficulties in fist fights rather than with guns and knives. The mayor of Louisville ought to be accorded a seat by the side of the mayor of San Francisco, and both ought to be in the rear out of sight.

A School That Never Closes.

I have been teaching school for many long years, and have seen the rise and fall of many teachers of different kinds—in fact, I have been the means of the downfall of a great many of them; yet I am still in the business, and expect to continue on, as I never give a vacation. I teach both red, white and black, young and old, male and female. At present I am teaching in every civilized nation on the globe, and while several of the governments entered into a contract together to keep me out of Africa on account of my debauching the negro race, they all license me, not only to debauch the black race at home, but the white race also. I never pay one cent for license, as my students pay all bills for me. I have many public schools in nearly (or quite) every large city in the United States. I also have many private schools that are taught in nearly all private houses. I have different departments in my schools. The primary department is taught by Professor Light-wine and Professor Lemonade, flavored with myself. Those two professors, assisted by Professor Eggnog, teach most altogether in private houses. Professor Wine gives some very important lessons at marriage suppers, card parties, balls; it's he teaches his students to be giddy and foolish. Most of the students taught by the above professors are young, and they have to get into a higher grade before it is noticed that they have made any advancement in their studies; nevertheless, they make good headway in that department. Fathers and mothers drum for me among their precious children. The next grade is taught by Professor Beer and Professor Sweet Toddy. These two professors teach in public and private houses, and their students can be numbered by the million, and can be found in all circles of society. The rich and the poor, the high and the low, can be found in this class, and there are but few crimes that can be mentioned that are not taught by them. The graduating class is taught by Professor Beasthead, Rifle Whisky, Old Rye, Cognac Brandy—in fact, he has so many names that it is hard to name them. You must not think that I turn over the different departments of my school to the different professors. You can always find me present. In fact, if I was not present, they would not be able to teach at all in any of the departments of my school. My schools are run night and day, week-day and Sunday. I have more students at night than any other time. Night is my best time to teach. They take lessons in lying, gambling, stealing, robbing, murder, and every other crime known to mankind. My students drum for me, and if anyone ever starts to my school, it is very seldom that they ever quit. I also make wife beaters and wife murderers. I never elevate, as other schools do, but I always drag down. I fill all of the insane asylums, penitentiaries, and every prison in the world, and were it not for my school, there would not be a hungry person on the globe. There was one billion one hundred and seventy-two million dollars paid for tuition last year, besides the incidental expenses, which amount would have paid the debt of the United States and left a handsome sum in the treasury. Men will pay their tuition if their families starve. They have been known to sell their baby's shoes, that the mother worked to buy, to pay me. My school is the strongest institution on the globe. It is certain defeat for any politician to oppose me. I have had many long haired men and short-haired women to declare war against me, but I have been victorious in nearly every battle. Some ministers of the gospel are my students, and drum for me, and yet the gospel of Christ says that the final end of my students is an eternal hell.

This is my report to date, and I hope that all of the brethren will send in all reports before Conference, so I can make my report to the Board the first day of Conference.

Your brother,

J. A. LEECH, Treas.

Sept. 2, 1902.

Whitworth College.

The numerous friends of Whitworth will be gratified to know that the prospects for a large attendance of boarders and local pupils for the approaching session have not been more flattering for many years.

Presidents Cooper and Hawkins have been actively engaged all Summer in canvassing, and making improvements about the buildings and campus. The canvass will not be without fruits. A friend, who is posted, predicts that 150 boarders will be enrolled. It is earnestly hoped that this prediction will be fulfilled. Many improvements have been made during the vacation, and the grounds have put on quite a fresh and new appearance. Through the generosity of a friend of the college, whose name is not to be given to the public yet, the "Institute" and "Margaret Hall" are being newly painted. The front of "Johnson Home" and the "Brown House" will be repainted and otherwise improved. The faculty is complete, and each teacher will be in her place on the seventeenth—the opening day. Arrangements are made by which a few scholarships are offered to worthy young ladies who desire a little assistance in securing their education. Let such girls write to Dr. Cooper immediately, and secure one of these scholarships before they are all taken up.

The next session opens on the seventeenth. Let every student be present at that time.

Indian Missions and Bro. Tubby.

It does us much good to learn from Bro. Tubby that Bros. Mellen and Donnell are doing such good work in the Indian Mission. It is just as we expected, and we are thankful for and proud of their good work, but we are sorry that Bro. Tubby is so uneasy over the probability of their efforts being turned wholly to other fields, and the mission turned over to others. He seems to think it is settled that no one has any interest in the mission like Bros. Mellen and Donnell. Has he forgotten Bro. A. D. Miller and Bro. W. W. Cammack? Has he forgotten that it was by a long and persistent struggle that Bro. A. D. Miller founded the Indian Mission? "Honor to whom honor," declares the Word of God (Rom. xiii, 7), and, therefore, why not include the founder of the Indian Mission, Bro. A. D. Miller especially, among the worthies in the Indian Mission work? Why should Bro. W. W. Cammack be left out? Why should his self-sacrificing wife be forgotten? How could he possibly forget her? All of Bro. Tubby's fears may be quelled, and his highest expectations met as respecting the presiding elder, by the appointing powers giving Bro. A. D. Miller charge of the Forest district. He is the man for it, and, therefore, I shall rejoice to see him presiding elder of it. He is not only one of the Indian's best friends and readiest helpers, but he is one of our strongest and best-posted doctrinal preachers. Let the appointing power give him a trial for one year, anyhow, and see if every interest of that district is not enhanced to that degree justifiable of continuing him on the same for four years. The preachers will love him, and the Indians will not only love him, but they will wonder how it is that there is another Mellen number one for Indians. Indeed, we shall not be surprised, after he has served them one year, if they conclude that they just can not get along so well without him.

ISAAC L. PEEBLES.

The Fourth Quarterly Conference.

The Quarterly Conference has always been an important factor in Methodism, and none is of quite so great importance as the fourth. At this Conference we not only meet to consider the possibilities of a satisfactory closing of the business of the old year, but to plan for the greatest success of the incoming. In view of these facts, no member of the official roll of any charge should allow anything to prevent his presence at this Conference. As to the closing year, every member should feel it a duty to give an account of the work committed to him by the church. In view of the welfare of the church, time should be taken for a free and full discussion of all matters looking to this end. Plans for the greatest success should be adopted, and only those considered for official positions who are best capacitated to fill the places. No man who has failed to perform the duties committed to him should be re-elected. The argument of long service, or fear of offending, should play no part in these selections. What is wanted is men of good business habits, who love the Methodist Church, and who are willing to make some sacrifice for her prosperity. Where they can be had Sunday-school superintendents should be selected with qualities of head as well as heart, willing to give time to the interests of the schools, from the selection of teachers suitable for the work to a careful study and preparation of the lesson himself.

To the brethren of the Jackson district: Let me appeal to you for the above reasons to give thought to these matters, and everyone make an effort to be present at the fourth Quarterly Conference of his circuit, station, or mission.

T. B. HOLLOMAN.

Miscellaneous Notes.

Bishop Hoss is giving satisfaction, both in the pulpit and in his presidency, wherever he goes. Did anybody expect it to be otherwise?

The Carolinians say Bishop Smith makes strong talks at the District Conferences, and that he is as witty as Bishop Duncan or Bishop Fitzgerald.

Rev. Stonewall Anderson, of Hendrix College—possibly the youngest college president in our church—is doing a fine work for the college in Arkansas. He is a fine preacher, and wields a wide influence.

The Conferences are now at hand. Bishop Galloway is in Japan, Bishop Duncan in Oregon, Bishop Morrison in Kentucky, and Bishop Wilson in Missouri. Bishop Hoss' round of Conferences has not commenced, but he is in Arkansas prospecting.

It is stated in one of our exchanges that Rev. J. A. Burrow has resigned the editorship of the Midland Methodist. No reason for his action was assigned. Brother Burrow has been working in double harness, being editor and presiding elder.

Dr. J. J. Ransom, of the Tennessee Conference, delivered a series of lectures at Emory and Henry College in the Spring of 1902. Subject, Biblical Theology and Literature. They were highly entertaining and profitable. Dr. Ransom will make a limited number of engagements to repeat this course before schools, colleges, Epworth Leagues, Lecture Lyceums, etc. In a letter to Dr. Ransom, Bishop Wilson says: "Dear Bro. Ransom: I have so much faith in your ability and scholarship that I wish I could hear your lectures, and am disposed to envy the men who will have the opportunity." No better endorsement is needed. Address, Rev. J. J. Ransom, D. D., New Providence, Tenn.

BY AN ITINERANT.

SECTION IX.

The last passage cited in the history of infants baptism was A. D. 860.

A. D. 797. "All infants must be baptized within a year of their birth." ("Capitulary of Charlemagne," Cramp, "His. of Bap.," p. 88, Riggin.)

A. D. 754. "If the infant being very sick, the water be poured from a shell or by the hand, and the proper words used, that baptism is valid." ("Pope Stephen II.," Cramp, p. 87, Riggin.)

A. D. 692. "Ina, king of the West Saxons, enacted a law by which it was enjoined that all infants should be baptized within thirty days after birth, under penalty of thirty shillings." (Cramp, "History of Baptism," Riggin.)

A. D. 565. "That such parents as were yet unbaptized should present themselves with their wives and children, and all that appertained to them, in the church, and there they should cause their little ones to be baptized, and the rest as soon as they are taught the Scripture according to the canons." ("Edict of Justinian," Cramp, p. 53, Riggin.)

A. D. 523. "It is true that we believe none but infants are saved by the faith of those that bring them, but this man had his senses when he professed, and he had yet life when he was baptized." ("Fulgentius," Wall, Vol. I., p. 276.)

A. D. 450 (about). "The apostle says, 'Now are your children holy.' It is plain that the children of believers do, if they be baptized, go as spotless and faithful into the kingdom." ("Questiones ad Antiochum," Wall, Vol. I., p. 282.)

A. D. 418. "We confess that infants ought to be baptized for the remission of sins according to the rule of the church universal." (Cœlestus, quoted in "Augustine on Original Sin," Book II., Chap. 5.)

A. D. 417. "Men slander me as if I denied the sacrament of baptism to infants, or did promise the kingdom of heaven to some person without the redemption of Christ, which is a thing I never heard, no, not even any wicked heretic say." ("Pelagius," Wall, Vol. I., p. 239.)

A. D. 412. "In what class, then, do we place baptized infants but amongst believers, as the authority of the Catholic Church everywhere asserts." (Augustine, "Forgiveness of Sins and Baptism," Book I., Chap. 62.)

A. D. 412. "There is indeed not a man among the faithful who would hesitate to call such infants believers." ("Ibid.," Chap. 38.)

A. D. 410. "You would maintain that infants are baptized; not for the forgiveness of sins, but for the kingdom of heaven. . . . If you acknowledge one baptism for infants and for grown persons, you must own that infants are to be baptized for the forgiveness of sins." ("Jerome," Wall, Vol. I., pp. 222, 223.)

A. D. 397. "In reference to the Donatist, it is resolved that we do ask the advice of our brethren and fellow-bishops concerning those only who are in infancy baptized among them." ("Third Council of Carthage," Wall, Vol. I., p. 162.)

A. D. 380. "For this cause we baptize infants also, though they are not defiled with sin, that there may be superadded to them saintship, righteousness, adoption, inheritance, a brotherhood with Christ, and to be made members of him." ("Chrysostom," Wall, Vol. I., p. 120.)

A. D. 374. "For unless anyone be born again of water and of the Holy Spirit, he can not enter into the kingdom of God. You see he excepts no persons, not an infant, not one who is hindered by an unavoidable accident." ("Ambrose," Wall, Vol. I., p. 115.)

A. D. —. "As many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. O what a garment is this that is always one and never renewed, that decently fits all ages and all shapes. It is neither too big for infants nor too little for men, and without any alteration fits women." ("Optatus Milevitanus," Wall, Vol. I., p. 81.)

A. D. 305. "If any go over from the Catholic Church to any heresy, and do return again to the church, it is resolved that penance be not denied to such a one, because he acknowledges his fault. . . . But if they were infants when they were carried over, inasmuch as it was not their own fault that they sinned, they ought to be admitted presently." ("Canons Council of Eliberis," Wall, Vol. I., p. 73.)

A. D. 253. "Cyprian and others of his colleagues who were present in council, in number sixty-six, to Fidus, their brother, greeting. We have read your letter, dearest brother. . . . But in respect of the case of infants which you say ought not to be baptized within the second or third day after their birth, and that the law of ancient circumcision should be regarded, so that you think that one who is just born should not be baptized and sanctified within the eighth day, we all thought very differently. . . . For in respect of the observance of the eighth day in the Jewish circumcision of the flesh, a sacrament was given beforehand in shadow and usage; but when Christ came, it was fulfilled in truth. For because the eighth day—that is, the first day after the Sabbath—was to be that on which the Lord should rise again, and should quicken us, and give us the circumcision of the spirit, the eighth day—that is, the first day after the Sabbath—and the Lord's day went before in the figure, which figure ceased when by and by the truth came and spiritual circumcision was given to us. For which reason we think that no one is to be hindered from obtaining grace by that law which was already ordained, and that spiritual circumcision ought not to be hindered by carnal circumcision, but that absolutely every man is to be admitted to the grace of Christ. . . . How much rather ought we to shrink from hindering an infant who, being lately born, has not sinned, except that in being born after the flesh, according to Adam, he has contracted the contagion of the ancient death." (Cyprian "Letters," Ep. 58.)

This letter of Cyprian was a resolution of a council of sixty-six Bishops, held in Carthage in the year 253. This council was called upon by one Fidus, a country Bishop, who, doubtless, was not present, to decide whether or not infants might be baptized before they were eight days old. The sentence of the council was communicated to Fidus by Cyprian. It was unanimous in opinion that infants ought to be baptized before they were eight days old. Not even Fidus questioned their right to baptism, but only whether it ought to be given so early. It seems that the "quasi" Anti-Pedobaptism of Tertullian had but little influence with the council. This occurred about 150 years after the death of the Apostle John, and if the Baptist was the only church in existence then, as they claim, we can't, for the life of us, understand this transaction. The truth is, the Baptist Church, with her heresy of eschewing infant baptism, was not dreamed of at that time, to say nothing of being heard of.

This pretention of the Baptists reminds me of the gentleman's frogs. A certain gentleman contracted with a large hotel firm to ship them a car-load of choice frogs. A few days later he wrote to them cancelling his contract, because of his inability to get the frogs. Said he: "I made the contract purely upon the croaking of the frogs, by which I supposed there must be a car-load of the largest and choicest in the pond, but when I drained off the 'water,' I found only seventy-two, seventy-one of which were dead, and the other one in a dying condition. I have learned not to estimate frogs by their croaking."

Building Church and School in Cuba.

BY REV. B. F. GILBERT.

Thus far I have succeeded to a degree far beyond my expectation when I first viewed the situation after my arrival on the ground. The grace of God alone could have made possible, however, this measure of success. We have here people gathered from England, France, Canada, and almost every part of the United States, and, as a consequence, scarcely any two of them think or believe alike. To bring harmony out of such chaos has not been and is not yet an easy task. But I have my church-building up, and more than half covered. When it is finished it will be the nicest and best building in the colony. The house and lot will be worth at least $600 when finished. I expect to preach in it Sunday week. When the outside is finished I will have a photo taken, and send it to you, with more particulars of my efforts in its construction.

I have also enterprised, and feel sure that I can complete a school-building here, of three rooms and two stories high, by the first of October. I will open school, I think, about the first of September. The people seem to be almost unanimous in their desire for me to do so. It is barely possible that I will get some public money also for the lower grades. I have been told that quite a number of boys from Puerto Principe and Nuevitas want to come here to school, if we will arrange to take them. I am exceedingly anxious to arrange for them. They seem to want a business education. So, to attract as many as possible, I will, I think, make arrangements to get some one to help me in the work, and we will make our announcement in the beginning to include in our course history, mathematics, English, book-keeping, shorthand, and typewriting. All I hope to do this year is to lay the foundation for a good school in the future. I have been told by the Alcaldo here that we could have three hundred pupils here in twelve months if we would prepare for them. I think this is an exaggeration. I will call the school a great success if we get twenty-five the first year. If I succeed in starting the school, I shall want to turn it over to some one else as soon as advisable—at any rate, at the end of the first year.

The Seashore Camp Ground.

The Tri-State Epworth Conference met at the Seashore Camp Ground on the night of the twenty-third of July, and continued eleven days. It was the occasion of a delightful social, religious, and literary festival.

Yielding to a long-cherished desire to visit the camp ground, on the morning of July 23 I arrived at the railway station near the encampment. The hour was early, and there was no gate-keeper nor guide in sight; so, with a little group of ladies and children who came on the same train, I directed my steps towards the grounds. Things were strangely quiet. "It looks as if the campers had struck their tents and gone away." Such a thought passed through my mind, or "perhaps they are all asleep." This latter surmise was nearer in accordance with the facts. The people on the ground were there for rest and recreation, and although it was broad daylight, they wanted "a little more sleep and a little more slumber."

After a time the quiet began to be broken. There were evidences of life about the encampment. Now I saw a familiar group approaching, consisting of my daughter, Miss Gertrude, from the Indian Territory, and son, Frank, and wife from Starkville, Miss. They had been on the ground several days, and were on the lookout for me. They constituted themselves a bureau of information. With their advice and the kindness of Prof. Thos. Carter, president of the Epworth Conference, I was soon domiciled for a stay of a few days.

The Epworth Conference was not as large as I thought it should be. Remarking this, I was told that the attendance was larger than at the camp meeting which had closed several days before. The exercises opened, according to programme, on the night of July 23, and continued from day to day according to plan pre-arranged. There were platform addresses, sermons, lectures, Bible readings, and devotional meetings—all of a high order, and tending to helpfulness and edification. Much of the work was done by elect women, who talked well, and demonstrated their right to be heard. Prof. Carter, as president of the Conference, proved himself a "master of assemblies."

Among the earnest Leaguers present were Prof. Carre, president-elect of Centenary College, and Dr. H. W. Featherstun, who was made president of the Conference for the ensuing year. Quite a number of preachers were present, coming and going; some on and some off the programme. It was a time favorable for the renewal of old and the forming of new friendships.

It was a great pleasure to meet my old friend and itineraut class-mate, Dr. J. W. Rush, of the Alabama Confereuce. More than thirty years ago he helped to organize the Seashore Camp Meeting. At Talladega, Ala., in 1854, we entered the "traveling connection" together, with a class of twenty-three. Through the great mercy of God five or six remain to answer the Conference roll-call: Rev. A. Hood, of Alabama memories, and Bro. Hocutt, who went to Louisiana from North Mississippi soon after the organization of our Conference, were on the ground. Our meeting and association with these brethren after so many years, and with other workers in the Master's vineyard, was fraternal and cordial.

Dr. J. W. Boswell, editor of the ADVOCATE, was at home on the ground for the Summer. I had the pleasure of sitting at his table and forming the acquaintance of his excellent family.

I was indebted also for social courtesies to Mrs. Lyons, an elect lady of our church from New Orleans, who, with her son-in-law, Mr. Hale, and several daughters, had been on the ground since early in May.

Aside from the Epworth work, fishing was one of the attractions. I had come with a desire to profit in every possible way, hoping also to get some helpful suggestion as to League work. Not being on the programme, I could direct my own movements, and have a free and easy time. I might be called on to fill some vacant place as chink wood, or I might be asked to say grace at some table where it was the custom to ask a blessing. Having always been an enthusiastic disciple of Isaak Walton, I had a mind to try my hand

> Where all sorts of fishes swarm."

I did not like to miss any of the tabernacle exercises. But I thought of Peter's words, "I go a-fishing," and went out a time or so. I found other preachers who were as fond of the sport as some of the early disciples. They did as Peter said went a-fishing. On my 'first trip' out Bro. Lewis, of Meridian, was one of our most successful fishermen.

Bro. H. W. Rickey has written pleasantly and suggestively of the camp ground. He favors expansion. "It should be the Chautauqua of the South." "The thing is too big for primitive methods." He would not do away, by any means, with the camp meeting, as Sister Fannie Minor Montgomery seems to fear, but would add thereto other good things—"a Sunday-school of Methods," the Epworth Assembly, and a Preachers' Institute.

We heartily endorse the suggestions of Brother Rickey. Let us expand the camp meeting into a Southern Chautauqua—a Summer School for the training of workers and leaders along every possible line of Christian service. Let us have a feast of tabernacles, where with joy we may draw water from the wells of salvation; a feast, continuing not for a few days only, but for two or three months. What say the camp ground fathers? T. C. WEEB.

To Our Patrons and Friends.

It is with great pleasure we state that Whitworth College is in a better material condition than ever in its history. We now have a most beautiful campus fronting east. The workmen are very busy painting the two brick buildings known as Margaret Hall and The Institute; also the other buildings are having some painting put upon them. The greater part of the money for doing this work has been contributed by one friend. He has the sincere thanks of the administration.

It is gratifying to state that we expect to be able soon to make other announcements which will show that Whitworth's friends have not forgotten her.

We have closed the public walk which has heretofore been open through the grounds. We open Sept. 17, at 10 A. M. Hon. J. S. Sexton, of Crystal Springs, one of our influential trustees, has been invited to deliver an address upon the day of our opening; and upon the following Sabbath our special friend, Dr. F. N. Parker, of New Orleans, will preach the opening sermon.

One of our teachers will be in New Orleans, Sept. 16, and will leave on the 9:40 A. M. train, having charge of pupils. Another teacher will be in Jackson, Miss., the same day to take charge of pupils leaving on the 3:50 P. M. train.

We ask an interest in the prayers of our friends, that we may give our people a religious and worthy school. Every teacher employed is a Christian, and we anticipate a spiritual session.

The prospects for a fine opening are very encouraging. The former presidents and vice-presidents have made possible the present success.

I. W. COOPER,
H. G. HAWKINS.

Brookhaven, Miss.

Grenada College.

The Committee on Faculty, the Building Committee, the president and the business manager held an important meeting Aug. 27. A full report was made of the canvass for students, and thorough review of all the work was had. Friends of Christian and denominational education will be gratified to know that the future of this institution grows brighter all the time. A rally of its friends and well-wishers now will put large success beyond peradventure. Now is the time to manifest interest and loyalty. The new building will be ready, and will surpass expectation of the most sanguine.

On account of ill-health Mrs. Ed. G. Payne, so long the successful teacher of the Primary Department, resigned her position. Suitable resolutions were adopted, and will be published. The vacancy was filled by the election of Miss Mary Etta Turner, of Winona. Miss Turner is a young woman of superior Christian character. She has had several years' experience in teaching, and has special qualifications for work in the Primary Department. She is a valuable acquisition, and will prove a splendid addition to a faculty of superior excellence.

J. R. BINGHAM,
Pres't Board of Trustees.

Rally Day Programmes.

The new missionary Rally Day programmes are now ready for distribution. The third Sunday in October is the appointed day, and it will be well for the superintendents to order at once, that the Sunday-schools may rehearse and be thoroughly familiar with the exercises. Programmes are to be obtained free of charge from Mr. G. W. Cain, Nashville, Tenn.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

Conducted by N. A. MOTT Yazoo City Miss

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

The Study Circle.

Prof. Hamill announces in the Magazine, for September, that the questions for the examination on the first course of the Study Circle are now ready to be sent out. In fact, the examinations have already begun, and the Study Circle has entered upon a crucial test of its stability and permanent value. Not for a moment do we doubt what the result will be. The plan was conceived in prayer and consecrated thought, and the work has been carried on in a prayerful spirit, and under wise leadership. Under such conditions success is certain.

A great many circles have already sent in their request for the questions, and among some of the stronger circles there is a spirit of rivalry as to which shall be first to take the examination. This is a healthy sign, but all can not be first. Let there rather be a greater rivalry as to which circle will do the most thorough work and graduate the larger number of trained teachers. But do not get discouraged. Whether the time be long or short in getting ready for the first one, be thorough, be persistent, be patient with the weaker ones, but be none the less certain to take the examination.

Right here lies the strength and the weakness of the Study Circle movement. Those circles which patiently pursue the studies in the course, keep their organization intact, and finally graduate a corps of competent and trained teachers, will be a tower of strength to the school and to the connected movement. Those circles which allow their organization to go to pieces, that hold no meetings, and whose members do not even take the examination, will be weak links in the chain. For it is a chain; Methodism is connectional, and the Study Circle is connectional also. In union there is strength, and there is strength and inspiration in having membership in a course of study that will number its graduates by thousands.

To be an Alumnus of such a course will be an honor of itself. But to have the consciousness of being prepared for the teacher's work, a "workman that needeth not to be ashamed," will be a greater reward, and should be a greater incentive to teachers to take the course, and to persist until final graduation. Of course, spiritual qualifications are most essential, and without a converted heart, the teacher will fail. But a converted heart and a trained head make a powerful combination. Then "one shall chase a thousand, and two put ten thousand to flight." The teacher's weapon is the Word of God; his citadel is his faith, and his training should be such as will strengthen his fortress, and enable him to use with better effect the arrows in his quiver.

The Study Circle should be perpetual, or continuous. That is, the teachers and prospective teachers in a school should be induced, if possible, to take the prescribed course until all have graduated. They can be arranged in different classes within the circle, if necessary, according to ability and time of entering the circle. We know that this is easier said than done, but we believe a system of rewards and honors can be arranged and adopted, and appeals made to the self-respect of the teachers, until practically all will take the course. Certainly all self-respecting teachers desire to make the most of their services as teachers.

Prof. Hamill says: "The questions will not frighten our circle students, either by reason of their number or severity. They are plain, brief, comprehensive. . . . The questions, in the main, will be found to be milder than some have been expecting; but no one who has 'skimmed over' the books, or played at study, will be able to answer them. The aim was not at the stronger students, but rather at those who are handicapped in study, and who must take the course under difficulties. . . . Take the examination by all means, take time to write as fully and accurately as you can, and do not worry over the outcome."

Speaking of rewards and honors, several Sunday-school Boards are planning to honor all within their borders who have successfully passed the first examination by the time their Conferences meet. We wish all the Conferences would do this, as it would be an added incentive to teachers and others to take the course. The Mississippi Conference Board is planning to hold an anniversary at the meeting of their Conference at Yazoo, at which Prof. Hamill will be the principal speaker; and one of the features of the occasion will probably be the honoring, in some suitable manner, those within the Conference boundary who have successfully passed the first examination.

Difficult Digestion

That is dyspepsia.

It makes life miserable.

Its sufferers eat not because they want to, —but simply because they must.

They know they are irritable and fretful; but they cannot be otherwise.

They complain of a bad taste in the mouth, a tenderness at the pit of the stomach, an uneasy feeling of puffy fulness, headache, heartburn and what not.

Indian Bayou Circuit.

Dear Doctor Boswell: The Lord has wonderfully blessed us in our work on the Indian Bayou circuit this year. We have held four meetings since my last report, with good results.

On the fourth Sunday in June, at Indian Bayou, I announced that we would meet every night till the following Wednesday night, for the purpose of getting the Christians properly organized for our meeting in August, and there was such interest manifested that we continued the meeting till the fifth Sunday night, with the following results: 29 additions to the church and 15 conversions. Rev. Abel Hoffpauir rendered efficient help in this meeting, and we were favored with two good sermons by Rev. J. I. Hoffpauir.

On Saturday before the first Sunday in July, I began at Bethel, and on Monday, Rev. R. W. Vaughan, of New Iberia, came to me, and remained till the following Friday night. The meeting grew in interest, and all regretted so much to close the meeting when we did, but Bro. Vaughan could not stay any longer. Results: 15 conversions and one addition.

On Friday night, the first of August, we began at Indian Bayou, with Rev. E. E. Riggs. We rented a tent for this meeting, the church being entirely too small to seat the people. At least 1,500 people attended this meeting, and it was considered the greatest meeting ever held in this country. Bro. Riggs preached with great power. The Holy Ghost accompanied the Word, and deep conviction seized upon the people. It was remarkable to see so many old people saved. Mothers and grandmothers, fathers and grandfathers, came to the altar pleading for mercy. Quite a number of our young men and women were saved. As many as 26 were converted at one altar service. And they were no dry-eyed conversions, either. As a rule, when they came to the altar, they came to stay till they were converted, and that was, in some cases, as long as two hours; but they would rise shouting and praising God. The last night of the meeting there was no sermon preached. Bro. Riggs called for testimonies, and there were 152 that testified to the saving power of the gospel. I received 52 in the church: a contribution for missions amounting to $113.50 in cash and subscription; $51.50 for Bro. Riggs, $25 for the pastor, and $8 for use of tent. I want to add here that with all this vast congregation, there was perfect order; had no use of police.

On Monday night following we began at Hebron, in our new church-building, with Rev. A. C. Smith, of Lafayette. Large congregations attended this meeting. Bro. Smith had to leave me on Saturday, but I continued till Monday night, with the following results: 14 additions and 8 conversions, and the membership greatly revived.

I have had, all told, this year 101 additions, 185 conversions, and baptized 70 children. We have live prayer meetings and good Sunday-schools at all three appointments.

Brethren, pray for me, that the Lord may give me strength and wisdom to guide these souls on in the path of duty and righteousness. We have now a membership of over 700. My heart is melted with gratitude to our kind Heavenly Father for what he has done for me.

Vernon, La.

Dear Dr. Boswell: I have just closed a meeting with good results. Bro. Dennis Foredon was with us, and preached three times, and had to leave us on account of sickness. His preaching was in the Spirit, and reached the hearts of the people, and did much good. On reaching the church Tuesday for service, we found that Bro. Foredon had gone home, and left the writer alone to continue the meeting, and we went to work with all our heart, mind, and soul, and the Lord was with us, and he got into the people, and they went to work with the preacher, and, regardless of the two big rains every day, we had a good revival of the old time religion. We praise God for a good meeting, and may he continue to bless the people of Oak Ridge Church.

Yours in the work for the Master,
J. E. Methvien, P. C.

Montgomery Circuit.

Dear Dr. Boswell: We have held four very successful meetings, which resulted in fifty or sixty conversions, and forty-seven additions to our church. We had no ministerial help, except four sermons preached by Rev. W. T. Woodward, of Pineville, La., who came to our relief at Winfield, La., and did us faithful work. The Lord has blessed us spiritually, and we have made advancement on all lines, in the face of great embarrassment; but, financially, we will fall behind our calculation.

Crops were almost a failure here last year, and they are altogether a failure this year. How some people are to live the next nine or ten months is yet to be seen. We shall do our best.

N. J. Roberts, P. C.

Ponchatoula Circuit.

Mr. Editor: I closed a good meeting at Breckenridge Mill night before last. The day services had been at James' Chapel. We had a number of earnest penitents, two conversions, and seven accessions to the church. I started another meeting last night nineteen miles east of James' Chapel, at Wesley's Chapel. Bro. J. W. Harper, recently licensed to preach, was with me four days at the former meeting, and I am expecting Bro. R. A. Davis next Monday. Have our assessment for missions, and expect to report all collections in full.

W. J. Porter, P. C.

Bonita Charge.

Have just closed two very fine meetings. Bro. S. L. Riggs assisted me in the one at Bonidee Church. Bro. Henry, our efficient and popular presiding elder, and Rev. P. O. Lowry, of Bastrop, were with me at New Hope Church. Results: Four babies baptized, eleven accessions, several conversions, a number of family altars established.

Doctor, the Lord is with us. I am pressing the claims of the Advocate.

Dear Brother: I send report of my work since my last report. I have held two of my meetings, and had very good success at each one. Had thirteen accessions, and will have some others that I am certain of. I think that this will be a better year with me than either of the two preceding ones. And the preachers of the district all seem hopeful of a large measure of success this year. Fraternally,

Mississippi Conference.

Poplarville, Miss.

Dear Brother Boswell: We have just closed one of the greatest revivals I ever witnessed in the town of Purvis, Miss. The place was moved from center to circumference. The Holy Spirit was with us in convicting and saving power. Sixteen conversions, twelve additions to the church; backsliders reclaimed, and the whole church moved up to a higher plane of Christian living. All the assessments on the Poplarville and Purvis charge are provided for in full. It is one of the best pastoral charges in the Mississippi Annual Conference. Rev. D. Scarborough assisted me with earnest and faithful preaching.

J. S. Parker, P. C.

Chunky, Miss.

Dear Doctor: We have just closed a meeting at Concord, which lasted nine days. We had Rev. P. H. Howse with us from the beginning to the close of the meeting. Bro. Howse did the preaching. I think there were thirty conversions, fifteen reclaimed, twenty-three claimed perfect love, eighteen joined the church. The Spirit got such hold on the people that every hour's service some one was converted, and shouts of praise were heard going up to God for the success of God's Word. Rev. C. H. Ellis was with us part of the time; rendered good help in prayer services.

L. J. Jones.

Binnsville, Miss.

Mr. Editor: We have just closed our second protracted meeting at Binnsville; said to be the best meeting held in Binnsville for years. We had several conversions, five accessions to the church, and our membership greatly revived. We are grateful for the good accomplished. Bros. B. W. Lewis and G. A. Guice did most of the preaching, which was indeed good—in demonstration of the Spirit and with power. Bro. W. W. Moore also did us fine work.

W. G. Backus, P. C.

Durant District.

Dear Dr. Boswell: The work of the Durant district is progressing fairly well. The preachers are in the midst of their meetings, and the Lord is graciously blessing their work in many places. A number have been converted and added to the church.

Rev. L. C. Penny, a student of Vanderbilt University, is making an itinerary in the district in the interest of missions. He has done a good work, preaching and circulating missionary literature, securing quite a list of subscribers to Go Forward. We are glad to have had him with us.

Fourteen appointments in the district have made report to treasurer of missions. We hope to make a good report at Conference.

Yours respectfully,
W. S. Laorone.

Water Valley, Miss.

Dear Brother Boswell: We have just closed a great meeting at Main Street Church, Water Valley; the best for years, so the members say. Rev. W. D. Bass, of Corinth, Miss., did the preaching. His preaching was "in demonstration of the Spirit and of power." For many nights our church would not hold the congregation. Backsliders were reclaimed, about fifty professed faith in Christ, nineteen joined our church (sixteen of them on profession of faith), and nine joined other churches; many family altars erected. Our people will long remember Bro. Bass for his earnest work and gospel sermons. We are expecting to make a good report at Conference.

Married Life

"The true pathos and sublime
Of human life."
"The only bliss
Of Paradise that has survived the fall."

This worthy goal of right-minded people often brings disappointment and misery to the bride whose womanly organs and functions are weak, defective or diseased. At this important time the judicious use of G. F. P.—Gerstle's Female Panacea, will do much to render her in all ways equal to the new functions and duties she has assumed.

"For ten years I was irregular and found no relief in the various remedies I used. Two bottles of G. F. P. cured me entirely."—Mrs. D. A. McCloud, Micoosukie, Fla.

"I was sick for a year with female complaint. The doctors did me no good. I looked so bad that all thought I could not recover. Eight bottles of G. F. P. burn entirely cured me. I am doing all my housework and haven't a pain or ache. I wish every suffering woman could have G. F. P. for it is an ideal remedy for female ailments."—Mrs. Daisy Shaw, Lula, Miss.

G. F. P.—Gerstle's Female Panacea, cures irregular, scanty, too profuse and painful monthly periods; uterine and ovarian irritations; ulcers, displacements and falling of the womb; whites and all unnatural discharges; frigidity, barrenness and all impediments to maternity; also all associate ailments of the private organs of women. At all stages of menstrual life, from budding womanhood until after the change that end special womanly functions, it is the best friend of and remedy for womankind. Its use strengthens all womanly organs, regulates and renders natural all sexual functions. It is sold at drug stores for $1.00 a bottle. Buy it, try it, and you will find these statements are true, for it is reliable and will not disappoint.

All ladies who are not perfectly right and well in a womanly way should write to the Ladies Health Club, care of L. Gerstle & Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., for free medical advice and instruction.

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and New Orleans Christian Advocate together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check, ten cents extra will be charged.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1902.

Now and then we hear of the churches being criticised for giving countenance to rich men by putting them in the lead or otherwise elevating them to places of great honor. The force of the criticism depends on the character of the man. If he is good and true, a lover of Gbd and of the cause, and uses his influence and money for the advancement of the gospel, his riches should be no bar to places of honor or leadership. To keep such a man in the backgronnd, lest somebody should say the church is running after rich men, is evidence of littleness. Bnt to make use of rich men simply because they are rich, and for the sake of their riches, is a species of reprehensible mammon worship.

The members of the human frame are many, and have different offices. All are necessary and dependent upon one another. No member can say to another, "I have no need of you." So it is in the church. There is one body, but many members. Not one is to be cast aside and neglected as useless, but to be put to work and encouraged. No matter how weak and feeble a member may be, he is not useless, if modestly and in a Christ like spirit he performs his dnties. If he is able to be nothing more than a doorkeeper, or to do nothing more than to give a cnp of cold water to a suffering disciple, his service is not to be despised. God will reward him.

"The deep conviction" is forced on the mind of a brother "that a State Church and infant baptism are the two surest ways in the world to blot ont the religion of Jesus Christ." It is, doubtless, true that a Church fostered by the State is not always to be relied on as a thorough evangelical agency, notwithstanding some State Churches are evangelical and orthodox. But what effect infant baptism has as a destroying agency we fail to see. Several denominations of Christians, with a larger nnmber of adherents than those who oppose infant baptism, do not find that baptizing children is a drawback either to progress or evangelical piety.

Christ's ministers are not only specially called and set apart by the great Head of the church, but by solemn vow, voluntarily assumed, they commit themselves exclusively to the work of preaching. They are, therefore, doubly bound—by the Master and their own obligation. It is no wonder, therefore, that one who turns aside to serve tables, his own or some other man's, fails to carry with him the Master's assurance, "Lo, I am with you." Not every Jonah is caught by a great fish, and delivered at the right place.

EXPERIMENTAL RELIGION.

There is nothing clearer than the fact of superhuman influence over man. The gospel teaches that the power thus operating is the Holy Spirit. He is in the world for this purpose. Jesus said to the disciples, "It is expedient for you that I go away: for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you, but if I depart, I will send him unto you, and when he is come, he will reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment." But the Spirit does not stop with the work of conviction. He takes the things of God and shows them to men, and when men comply with the gospel conditions he regenerates them, gives them evidence of their sonship, and a conseiousness of their salvation. This is what we call experimental religion. "As many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God." "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit that we are the children of God."

Is there any mystery here? To undertake to define the process of reaching the soul and changing its relation and status would be rashness in the extreme. We know nothing of it, save that the work is wrought, "not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God." Jesus did not explain it even to Nicodemus. He simply said, "The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thon hearest the sonnd thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, or whither it goeth: so is every one that is born of the Spirit."

Certainly there is mystery—here, as in other dealings of God with men. The fact staggers our reason because it is above reason. This, however, offers no insurmountable obstacle to the acceptance of the gospel. It would be different if the gospel appealed solely to the intellect. There is, of course, an appeal to reason, but there is also an appeal to the spiritual nature, which is capable of discerning spiritual things. To appeal to the intellect only would be rationalism pure and simple, and faith, as an element in religion, would be excluded. But to eliminate faith would be equivalent to eliminating the gospel. And it must be understood that faith is neither blind nor unreasoning. It has a solid basis, and no matter what a man is required to do or to believe he may accept the one and the other without question, for underlying the requirement is the divine authority. This is not superstition; it is faith in God and his revelation.

The religion of the Bible is thus reduced, not to foolishness, but to simplicity. He that runneth may read. The wayfaring man, though a fool, shall not err therein. It is folly to suppose that much learning and a thorough course of training are essential to experience in grace. They are not essential to an advanced state in grace, let alone the principles of the doctrine of Christ. The most ignorant and unlettered can take hold of the promises of the gospel and be saved. The learned and the unlearned alike, the rich and the poor, the master and the servant, tell the same experience. A preacher once asked a learned judge to tell the congregation how he obtained religion. The story was short and simple. Said the judge: "I humbled myself before God in the straw, and believed with all my heart, and he saved me." The preacher was not surprised, and replied: "I have heard many a negro tell the same experience." It is the same always and everywhere. Learning is no hindrance to a thoroughly convicted and penitent soul, but it is a poor substitute for grace.

Occasionally Christians are advised to study psychology in connection with experience. But what do the great majority of people know about psychology? They have neither the time, nor the inclination, nor the ability to take up the study and master it. But they do know how to enter their closets and talk with God. They know when God responds to their earnest appeals, and lifts upon them the light of his countenance. They know how to cultivate the graces of the gospel, and to bring forth fruit unto holiness. There are millions of earth's poor who daily live in the secret place of the most high, and abide under the shadow of the Almighty. With one consent they testify that Christ has power on earth to forgive sins. Having a good Christian experience, why should they not be happy?

THE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Reports from the central office in Nashville, under the wise management of Dr. DuBose, the Secretary, give us to understand that the Epworth League is in a prosperous condition, and that the Epworth Era is not only paying the expense of its publication, but bids fair soon to pay also the editor's salary. All this is encouraging. Dr. DuBose generously attributes this success to the wise and liberal treatment of the League at the hands of the recent General Conference. This is in part true, and the wisest thing the Conference did for the League was to keep Dr. DuBose in the place he had occupied during the last four years. But the League is more indebted to his own management and active work in the office and in the field for its success than to anything else.

The League ought no longer to be looked upon either as a side-issue, or as an experiment. It is part of the economy of the church—an arm of the service. It has passed the experimental stage. No pastor or older persons in the church should any longer look upon it with suspicion. It is, without doubt, the best training-school we have, and brings into active service in the church many young members who otherwise would do nothing until they reach mature life, or possibly be lost to the active ranks altogether.

The purpose of the League alone ought to attract the attention of pastors and godly men and women. It will, if pastors and the spiritually-minded members are desirous of developing the young in the work and graces of the gospel. Nothing ought to hinder. Nothing but an absolute lack of material justifies a failure to make a vigorous effort to organize a League in every church. Where there is material, of course it is comparatively an easy matter to organize in town and city. It is said to be a hard thing to do in the country. As to the country churches, we have had neither experience nor observation. But we have heard a few brethren say that they have successful Leagues, even in the rural districts. At a recent District Conference one of the most enthusiastic reports made was of two Leagues in the country, and by a regular circuit preacher. We would be glad for that brother to tell us through the ADVOCATE how he succeeds. It would help.

We are in hearty sympathy with our Epworth League: with its aims and methods of work. We desire it to succeed even beyond the expectation of its most ardent supporters. It has in it vast possibilities. As editor of the ADVOCATE, we have given to it all the space that has ever been asked, and more, too, for, as a loyal Methodist, we have plead its cause, and to the best of our ability urged its claims. And we modestly think that what we have allowed Epworth Leaguers, as correspondents and officers, to say in the columns of the ADVOCATE, and what we have said ourselves, had somewhat to do in largely increasing the attendance this year at the Tri State Conference. The ADVOCATE is still at the service of the League.

There are nearly three months to the opening of the first Annual Conference of our patronizing territory. The time is sufficient, and we hope opportune, for organizing Leagues. Many young persons have been brought into the church. They ought to be put at once into harness and trained. "It is good for a man that he bear the yoke in his youth." Let our brethren who are serving churches in the country, and in small towns, take the matter of organizing Leagues in hand, and determine to make a good report at Conference.

A WARNING.

All preachers living east of the Mississippi river who are now casting eyes towards Texas, the "great Empire of the West," had better be sure of their standing and their ground before they break loose from their old homes. Editor Rankin, of the Texas Advocate, has given notice that no little men are needed. He says, "A promiscuous and mediocre class of men" "need not look in that direction for work and welcome." Brethren had better be careful; they might find themselves in the mediocre class. If not mistaken, we heard that same warning from both Texas and Arkansas a score of years ago. Notwithstanding, Brother Rankin went to Texas, and has done fairly well. Some other brother straitened for room, and with high aspiration, may do as well. He ought not to be held back. In Texas he would have "ample scope and verge enough." Texas is big. "No field is so promising or so inviting." Brother Rankin would not cut off all classes. He tells us that Texas "can stand a few accessions of men" of "decided talent"—men who have "made their work a decided success in their home Conferences, and who are in pressing demand." How many men in each accession will be received, he does not say. But the statement holds out a little hope of welcome. Of course, every one of the "scores" who casts his lot in Texas will feel that the great State will be glad to do him honor. The brother who goes to Texas after reading Editor Rankin's warning will not need any more gray matter in his head, nor any strengthening of his spinal column. He will succeed!

MISSING THE MARK.

Under the title of "A Startling Act of Injustice," Dr. C. W. Smith, of the Pittsburg Christian Advocate, charges Alabama with a crime against the colored people, which "has in it the seeds of retribution," that will some day "grow into a bitter, perhaps bloody, harvest." This charge is founded on the fact that by constitutional provision the illiterate colored men have been disfranchised. The disproportion between the white and the colored who have recently registered is enormous. Out of a total registration of 184,000, only 2,500 are negroes. The law which makes such a registration possible rouses the ire of Dr. Smith. He evidently thinks that a reversal of the proportion would be nearer correct. He says "the colored population of Alabama is five times greater than the white: and yet, openly, under the guise of law, the negro has been nearly eliminated." That would give Alabama a population of little more than six millions of souls—almost equal to New York: whereas, according to the census of 1900, the white and blacks together numbered less than two millions, the whites numbering 1,001,152, and the blacks only 827,307. Dr. Smith had in mind a few counties in the "black belt" where probably the negroes outnumber the whites five to one, but the "black belt" lacks a good deal of including the whole State. As a matter of fact, there are only two States containing a larger population of negroes than whites: these are South Carolina and Mississippi. Dr. Smith has missed the mark. He should revise his figures.

We have no disposition to argue the political question involved. We are not in politics. But we feel free to say that the law determining the qualification of voters has not hurt the negro any more than it has the white man, who, by the same law, has been deprived of his vote. If one negro can register, another can; if not, it is his own fault. The way is open: he can qualify himself if he will. We feel free also to say that if Dr. Smith knew the negroes of the South as we who live in the South know them, he would see without trouble that 2,500 negroes in Alabama are about as many as are fully qualified to vote. What is said of Alabama will apply to the negro population and all other illiterates in other States. It is not "because of their color they are discriminated against," but because they are not qualified to make laws and control the destiny of this great country.

GIVING.

There is tact in giving, but no art. "He that giveth, let him do it with simplicity," is the apostolic injunction. In any other spirit giving loses not only its charm, but its value. The giver loses the chief reward of the act expressed by our Lord when he said, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." We have seen it the case when there was no blessedness either to the receiver or the giver. We call to mind a painful experience in our own life. Seated in the elegant parlor of a rich host and hostess, who were entertaining several guests in a rather formal way, the conversation somehow, we do not remember exactly, turned on the necessities of the preacher and his family. It was shortly after the close of the war, when both preachers and people in many places were in great straits. The man and his wife were aware of our condition, for they knew that, with wife and three children, we were living in an abandoned log-house that had been used as a store-house for cotton seed, and that we were helping to secure a living by making boots and shoes. In the midst of the conversation the rich lady made her way across the room, waving a ten-dollar bill, and, in the most dramatic way possible, presented it to us, giving specific instructions as to how it should be used. We felt like stealing away to hide. Had there been a hole in the floor big enough, we could have fallen through. Silence reigned for a season, and there was meditation—on the pains of poverty and the proper way to relieve them. Had that good meaning sister waited and quietly slipped that ten-dollar note in our hand with her good wishes, we should have felt grateful and blessed. Her manner of giving openly humiliated us. "He that giveth, let him do it with simplicity."

THE NEW DISCIPLINE.

The Discipline for 1902 is out. A copy has been kindly forwarded to us by the Agents, Bigham & Smith, for which we extend our thanks. It is gotten up in the usual style, but has about twenty-four pages more than the edition of 1898. Every family in our church should have a copy of the Discipline. No official member can afford to be without it. He should keep in touch with his church. The price of the Discipline is thirty cents. Address: Bigham & Smith, Nashville, Tenn.

PERSONAL.

Rev. J. B. Randolph, of Guntown circuit, has been greatly blessed in his work. Up to date there has been an accession of ninety-seven members to his charge, with one more meeting to hold.

It is rumored that Rev. S. B. Myers, of Corinth station, will be transferred to the Indian Mission Conference. We hope the rumor is not well founded. We can ill afford to spare such as he.

Rev. J. A. Leech, of Okolona, is taking a month's rest helping the brethren in their meetings. Such resting is helpful. It helps the brother who rests, and the brethren who get the benefit of his help.

Rev. W. T. Woodward, of Pineville, La., is much encouraged with the progress of his work. He is now building the second church on his charge for this year, which, he says, "will be ready for use by the first Sunday in November."

Rev. M. F. Johnson, pastor of Carrollton Avenue Church, suffering from the effects of the extreme hot weather, was kindly furnished with means by his charge for a stay at Seashore Camp Ground. He has been resting there about two weeks.

Rev. J. H. Mitchell, presiding elder of the Winona district, reports prospects good in the bounds of his work. He hopes to close up the year's work with good reports. We venture to say that if Winona does not report well, it will not be his fault.

The many friends of Rev. T. Y. Ramsey in North Mississippi will be glad to learn of his success and great popularity in the Little Rock Conference. It is hinted that he may not be held at Monticello longer than the coming Conference, as it is possible he may be in demand elsewhere.

Revs. F. M. Keen and C. P. Smith, both of whom transferred to Arkansas Conference last year, the former from the Mississippi and the latter from the Louisiana, have recently visited their old homes. Both brethren, we learn, are well pleased with their work and reception in Arkansas.

Rev. G. W. Bachman has entered upon the Fall campaign with a good supply of books, and ready to fill all orders, either for books or papers. We hope he will meet with much encouragement. No man is sowing more or better seed than Brother Bachman. He is filling orders many and rapidly for the new Discipline.

Louisiana has furnished another candidate for deaconess in the person of Mrs. Ada Vandever, a widowed sister of Rev. A. C. Smith, of Lafayette, La. She will enter the Scarritt Bible and Training School, the beneficiary of the Kentucky Conference Woman's Home Mission Society, which had no candidate of its own.

We acknowledge an invitation to the marriage of Rev. T. B. Cottrell, of the Mississippi Conference, to Miss Mabel, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Barnette, of Ofahoma, Miss. This happy event will take place at 8:30 p. m., Sept. 16, at the home of the bride's parents. May the blessings of kind Providence be upon this union.

In a note from Dr. W. C. Black, pastor of First Church, Jackson, Miss., he says. "First Church has had sixty-four accessions during the year. There have been one or more accessions, either by certificate or on profession of faith, every Sabbath, with one exception, for nearly two years. During the last two years and a half 327 members have been received. A revival meeting is now in progress, conducted by Rev. J. B. Culpepper. Great results are hoped for."

We had the pleasure, last Monday, of renewing our acquaintance with an old Arkansas boy, Rev. K. S. Van Zandt, now of Harbin, Texas. He was accompanied by Rev. C. S. Cameron, of Troy, Texas. Both these brethren belong to the Northwest Texas Conference. They were en route home from Pearlington, Miss., where they had been helping the pastor, Rev. G. H. Galloway, in a meeting. A gracious and widespread revival followed their labors. More than one hundred persons were converted, and about seventy-five united with the church. These brethren cheered us much by their report of the great work.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

REV. C. B. ATKINSON, EDITOR.

Epworth League Notes.

A new League has been organized at Gouldsboro. The pastor, Rev. L. F. Alford, believes it will be a strong factor in his church at that point.

Miss Ada Parker, sister of Rev. G. D. Parker, missionary to Brazil, will enter the Scarritt Training-school this Fall. Miss Parker is the superintendent of the Junior League at Epworth Mission of this city.

At a recent council of a local League it was decided where there was a lack of interest in the League prayor meetings, it was due to the lack of preparation on the part of leaders.

From a report in the Era the young people of West Monroe, La., have a splendid Epworth League at that place. We would be glad to receive reports from the Leagues of the State as well as the Era.

League Editor, New Orleans, La.—

MY DEAR BROTHER: The publishers of the Epworth Era, at my request, are making two distinct offers to our Epworth Leagues and Leaguers in order to secure a larger circulation of the Epworth Era. We can never do our full work until we get the Era in the hands of all our young people. To stimulate the work of circulation the two following offers are made:

1. For the benefit of small Leagues in which it is difficult to secure as many as ten subscriptions, we now offer to take clubs of five at the rate of 75 cents per year to separate addresses. This ought to put an Era Club in every League, great or small.

2. We are offering to give a purse of twenty dollars in gold for the largest list of subscriptions over fifty, and ten dollars in gold for the next largest list over fifty. For the next three largest lists over twenty five, we will give to each a set of the new Reading Course for 1902–3. For the ten next largest lists, over ten, we will give each a copy of Doctor Featherstun's book, "The Christ of Our Poets." Faithfully,

H. M. DUBOSE.

Special Notice.

To the Pastors and Sunday-school Workers in the Meridian District, Mississippi Conference—

DEAR BRETHREN: At the District Sunday-school Conference, held at Poplar Springs in July last, certain steps were taken and plans formed for more effective district organization and work as regards the Sunday-school interests of this district. For your information and benefit, I give below an outline of the proposed plan of work for the future.

First—The Meridian district was divided into three sub-districts, as follows: Northern district embraces the following pastoral charges: Binnsville, North Kemper, DeKalb, Daleville, Portorville, Lauderdale. Central district is composed of the four charges in the city of Meridian, besides the following: Enterprise and Stonewall, Chunkey, Vimville. Southern district: The following charges constitute the Southern district: Pachuta, Shubuta, Middleton, Matherville, Waynesboro, Winchester, Wayne mission, and Leakesville. This plan gives six charges to the Northern, seven to the Central, and eight to the Southern.

Second—Each pastor, by vote of the Poplar Springs Conference, is chairman of a local committee for his pastoral charge. This local committee is to be composed of one representative from each church or regular appointment on each pastoral charge. These local committees will have charge of the Sunday-school interests in these pastoral charges.

Third—Each of three sub-districts is to have a chairman or president, whose duty it is to arrange for and hold a Sunday-school rally within the bounds of his sub-district, embracing, if practicable, each fifth Sunday and Saturday before, or hold at least three (four will be better) of these rallies within each twelve months.

Fourth—A general committee for the entire district was appointed, who, with the district vice-president, will have charge of the Sunday-school Conference of the district. This general committee will meet soon, and formulate plans for another year, and also appoint the presidents for the three sub-districts, which appointments will be announced through the ADVOCATE, and each appointee will be notified of his appointment by secretary of the general committee.

In conclusion, suffer a few words of exhortation:

All of this planning is for the good, in every way, of the young people of our district. Will the pastors take hold of this Sunday-school work and co-operate with our general committee?

Brother pastor, appoint your local committee at once, and notify the undersigned, giving him the name of each member, and what church each one represents.

Please observe, this local committee is composed of one from each church; not merely Sunday-school, but each church. You may have a church where there is no Sunday-school, and no prospect of any. The general committee wants to be in touch with that church; so select the livest man or woman you may have there, and put him, or her, on that local committee.

Just one other matter: Brother pastor, do not forget that you are already, by appointment of the recent District Conference, chairman of your local committee. We put this responsibility upon you because the responsibility of your charge is upon you. Will you, then, as the pastor or spiritual shepherd of the young lambs as well as the sheep of your fold, rally your very best men and women, appoint your committee, and get to work?

Your brother,
F. B. ORMOND,
Chairman General Committee.

RALLY DAY.

The third Sunday in October has been designated as Missionary Rally Day for the Sunday-schools. A suitable programme has been prepared, and it is important that all our schools should be supplied, and duly observe the day. Superintendents should order a supply at once, and put their schools in training. The Mission Rooms will furnish the programmes free of charge. Address Mr. G. W. Cain, Nashville, Tenn.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Quite a number of our subscribers have sent in their renewals and asked for a new Discipline. About one-third of the number will not receive the book for the reason they do not comply with the terms of our offer. If you are one of those who are disappointed, we ask that you turn to our offer and read it carefully. You will, doubtless, find that you failed to pay up to date and to send $2 for a year's subscription in advance from the date of your remittance.

Sunday-School Notice.

We are requested to give notice that Sunday-school Institutes will be held, by authority of the Sunday-school Board of the North Mississippi Conference, as follows: At West Point, Oct. 13–15; at Oxford, Oct. 15–17. The Institutes will be conducted by Dr. Hamill. Further information will be given in due time.

Another Good Thing.

The traveling public will be pleased to learn that the Mobile and Ohio railroad has equipped its trains with dining cars. These trains make direct connection with the trains of the New Orleans and Northeastern railroad. Through sleeping-cars between New Orleans and St. Louis are also operated.

The following copy of letter from the General Passenger Agent of the M. and O. R. R contains a description of the new dining-car service:

Mobile, Ala, Sept. 2, 1902.

Mr. Geo. H. Smith, G. P. A., N. O. and N. E. R. R., New Orleans, La.

DEAR SIR: I take pleasure in advising that our new dining-car service was inaugurated last Sunday, Aug. 31. The cars were built especially for the Mobile and Ohio, and are, without exception, the finest yet turned out, being rich and attractive in design, and embodying the most advanced art of the car builder. The wood finishings of the interior are of highly polished quartered oak, and the ceilings and panels are of a delicate shade of pale green, on which are traced artistic figures. The curtains and other draperies are of the same shade of green, and present a very rich appearance. There are ten tables in each car—five on each side. On one side four persons can be seated to a table, and on the other two. The cars are lighted by electricity, and fitted with electric fans. The lighting and fan fixtures are of polished brass. In the ceilings of the cars are clusters of electric lights, while others stud the arches of the roofs. The cars are manned by a chef, his assistant, a conductor, and three waiters. A pleasing feature of the service, which is a la carte—paying only for what you order—is the handsome and dainty imported cut glass, silver, china, and linens. The menu will at all times be of the highest order, and the tables will be supplied with all the delicacies that the markets of the North and South afford.

Trains Nos 3. and 4 will carry dining cars between Meridian and Corinth, and Nos. 1 and 2 between Corinth and Jackson, and Cairo and St Louis. This is for your information. Yours truly,

(Signed) C. M. SHEPARD,

THE
Shenandoah Normal College
Reliance, Virginia.

This Old and Well Established School enjoys an enviable reputation among its cotemporaries. The success of its many graduates and students in the different vocations of life bears practical testimony to the merits of its work.

Departments: Preparatory, consisting of the Common School branches, etc. Teachers' Normal; English; Scientific; Philosophic; Classic; Commercial; Shorthand; Typewriting; Telegraphy; Music, Instrumental and Vocal, including Voice Culture, etc. If you do not find what you want in the above list, write us and we shall promptly tell you just what we can do for you. We offer a wide range of subjects, and can usually satisfy every demand.

Expenses: Tuition, including all studies but Instrumental Music, $4.00 per week. Board, Furnished Room and Light, $2.00 per week. Steam Heat, Winter Term, $1.00; Spring Term, $2.00. Tuition, Instrumental Music, two lessons a week, $10.00 per term; one lesson a week, $5.00 per term. Absolutely no extras for any study in any department.

Location: Reliance is an ideal College community, with beautiful, as well as wholesome environments. No saloons, no doubtful attractions to entice the student away from his work, or to induce him to waste his money. It is a cultured Christian community, furnishing the very best of influences for rectitude and morality. We look after the morals as well as the intellects of our students.

Buildings and Improvements: The College building is a large three-story structure designed especially for the purpose. There are separate dormitories for young woman and young men. The ladies' rooms are carpeted. The dining-room, library, chapel, and recitation-rooms, on the first floor, have recently been papered, which adds very much to their beauty.

Business Education: Our Commercial Department is one of the best in the State. The fallacy of the claim made by some Commercial Colleges, that a Business Department in a literary school can not be made a success, is fully demonstrated by the results of our work. This success is secured by placing this department under a special supervising principal, who is peculiarly equipped for the work, and who gives his personal attention to it.

"Sit Still, My Daughter."

It was only a woman who spake these words to another woman in the beautiful old Scripture story; but since I read them again the other day they sound in my ears almost as if spoken by the one whose ancestor it was Ruth's glory to be. I imagine that Ruth was a little anxious and uneasy about her future, thinking that she ought, perhaps, to do something more to make it secure; but her wiser mother-in-law, who had already proved both her wisdom and her love, advised quiet waiting for further guidance.

And what good advice it was! How well things were working for Ruth and her welfare under the hand of the God whom she had chosen to serve, while she sat still and waited in faith and trust!

Over and over again in the Old Testament history are the children of God taught the same lesson. More than once are they directed to "stand still and see the salvation of God," while by such words as these, "Be still, and know that I am God," "Take heed, and be quiet," "Commune with your own heart and be still," "Rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for him," "Their strength is to sit still," "In quietness and confidence shall be your strength," they are recalled from the turmoil of anxious care to the calm repose of trust. Then our Lord, "great David's greater son," would have his disciples "abide" quietly in him; would have them "take no thought" for this or that; "seek not" anxiously after certain forms of good, for "your Father knoweth that ye have need of these things." And Mary of Bethany was blessed with sweetest words of commendation because she "sat at Jesus' feet and heard his word."

Would not we women of these days do well sometimes to listen to Naomi, and still more to our own Master in the matter of "sitting still"? How we fret and fidget over our household cares, our social obligations, our daily duties of whatever kind they be; yes, and even over our missionary and charitable work! So much of what we do is done with a rush. One engagement or undertaking treading on the heels of another, leaving barely time for a hasty morning prayer and a weary evening confession of shortcoming. Sometimes the hand of God is laid upon us, and we are obliged to "sit still" for a little while; but we fail to learn our lesson, and as soon as the pressure is removed off we go again into restless, anxious care and toil.

If we could, and would, oftener hear and heed the loving injunction, "Sit still, my daughter," even in the midst of our activities and our cares, we should find ourselves better able to do and bear what our daily lives bring to us. The "sitting-still" moments would compose and strengthen us more than we realize. But how can I sit still? From morning till night I am busy, mending or making, housekeeping or housecleaning, visiting or receiving, committee meeting or church-going, teaching or nursing; my "woman's work" is never done, and never will be while I live! How can I sit still while there is so much to do, as long as I can keep on my feet or use my hands?

Well, there is such a thing as sitting still spiritually when one can not physically; and this, after all, is the kind of quietness that we are recommending. Doctors, indeed, tell us that the busiest woman would find it a gain in the end if when they are tired they would just for half an hour lie down with eyes closed and hands idle, in absolute rest. But granted that all can not do this, or even snatch a few moments to sit down and rest the body, it is yet quite possible to give the spirit an actual, conscious repose even while busy with the duty of the hour. The "Comforter" can come unseen and undisturbing in his quiet working, and can summon the soul to a peaceful consciousness of his presence and his love, which shall cause it to "sit down under his shadow with great delight," and rise up to higher, stronger life; and this will be do if the door of the soul be left wide open for his entrance, with no persistent worldliness or sin to bar his way.

When the old worries and hurries gather about us, perhaps with some new ones added, suppose we keep our ears open for the voice that will whisper, "Sit still, my daughter;" and when we hear, suppose we try to heed it. In the quiet little moments of willing obedience to his loving command, there may come to us such calmness and such strength that when the conflict and the labor begin again we shall wonder at the new power that is ours. For if it is our Master's voice that we obey, it will surely be at his feet that we shall "sit still;" and that is the place of blessing always. — Dorcas Hicks, in "Through My Spectacles."

A Spider's Home.

"What ails our new clock?" said papa one day, as he came home from his work and found mama just putting on the potato kettle in order to get dinner. "It is 12 o'clock now and our clock lacks a whole half-hour of the right time."

"I don't know," said mama, "it has always kept very good time until now."

Just then Elsa came running in from school, saying, "Oh, mama, I was late at school this morning, and Miss Prentiss was so sorry, because she had been teaching the children a new song that I missed."

Papa moved both hands of the clock around until both pointed straight up. Now Elsa knew what time it was and guessed why she had been late that morning. "Now, Elsa," said papa, "run over to Aunt Jane's to see if we can borrow her watch for a day. If our clock keeps on telling the wrong time, we might be late again to-morrow without the watch."

Elsa skipped away, pleased to help papa, and pleased to think that Aunt Jennie might slip the watch-chain around her neck and the pretty watch into her apron pocket, so that she could wear it all the way home. When she came back the watch was hung upon a nail beside the clock. The next morning, when papa looked, he found that the clock was slower than ever; but he again set it right with the watch. It could not keep up, but grew slower and slower, until it finally stopped altogether.

"Now," said papa, "I will open the door that has always been tightly closed, to see if I can find out the trouble with our new clock." Elsa and mama peeped over his shoulder, and what do you suppose they saw? Why, somebody's little home, all fixed up there among the pretty wheels, with curtains, draperies and other silken things. The one who made all this was scampering away as fast as his six little legs could carry him.

"That's right," said papa, "hurry away, for you have just tied our clock up with so much spinning that it can not go at all. You and the clock are both such busy workers; but you can not work together, so you had better fix up a home somewhere else."

Papa brushed the spider's work all away, when the wheels commenced turning and the pendulum said its soft "tick-tock" again. Baby waved his tiny hand to show how the clock goes, for he had been watching, too. Papa set the hands again with Aunt Jennie's watch, and the next morning both were together telling the right time. The watch was now carried home to Aunt Jennie, and after this the clock told papa just when to get up, mama just when to get breakfast, Elsa just when to get ready for school, and nobody need be late any more on account of not knowing the right time.—The Child's Garden.

Tangled Threads.

Tangled Threads had golden hair, soft and fine, eyes as blue as the sky, rose-bud lips, a dear little nose (if Brother Ben did call it "a pug"), and her name, her real name, was Lilian; but, dearie, she was always in trouble; everything about her seemed in a snarl from the early morning, when Jane tried to fix the tangled curls, until late at night, when the Sandman at last succeeded in smoothing out almost all the pucker in her fair forehead, and the grown-up people in the house would sigh and say, "She'll sleep now and we will not have to bear with her naughty ways—until to-morrow."

"Oh, auntie! that is an awful beginning to a story! Was Lilian never a good girl?" and Aline looked really troubled.

"She was always just this way," auntie continued, "until one day, when a very wonderful thing happened — at least she said it happened, and I stayed with her a whole week and never knew her to say anything that was not true. I'll tell it in her own words, as nearly as I can remember them.

"Jane was tugging at my curls, hurting me dreadfully, and I was calling her 'a horrid mean thing,' when a little tap on the looking-glass made me look up, and I saw in it a grown-up fairy (she looked like Mama when she isn't bothered). She had on a flowing white gown like an angel and was pointing into another glass way, way off, and whispering, 'Look.' I saw a little girl just like me—she had a pug nose and yellow eyes (oh! I mean she had blue eyes and yellow curls), but they were smooth and glossy. She beckoned me, and when I took her hand, said: 'I'm your other self; I'm going to stay with you all day.' Just then Jane gave an extra hard pull, I started to say something naughty, but I thought of that sweet little face, and said 'Thank you, Jane — I'm glad that was the last curl.' Brother Ben teased me that day, too, but somehow I didn't mind. I missed a lesson at school. I told Miss Ames I was sorry and asked her please to 'splain it to me. She looked 'sprised, but took me in her lap and made it so easy. At recess the girls began to bother me; then I said, 'Girls, I've got my other self with me to-day, and she brought you all some cookies;' and, and—I can't remember all — the best was when Mama leaned over my bed at night and kissed me twice. She said: 'Mama is so pleased with your other self. I hope she will stay with you and every day help you to straighten out the tangled threads.'"

"Is that all?" asked Aline.

"Yes," answered auntie. "I expect a good many little children to read this story and puzzle out its meaning for themselves." N. N. S.

Don't Look at It.

I once learned a lesson from a dog we had. My father used to put a bit of meat or biscuit on the floor near the dog, and say, "No," and the dog knew he must not touch it. But he never looked at the meat. He seemed to feel that if he looked at it the temptation would be too strong; so he always looked steadily at my father's face.

A gentleman was dining with us one day, and he said: "There is a lesson for us all. Never look at temptation. Always look away to the Master's face."

Yes, this is the old way; do not look at temptation. "Avoid it, pass away." When the thought of doing wrong in any way comes into your heart, however a small thing it is, you may be sure it comes from Satan; so do not look at it, but look up at Jesus and ask him to keep you and make you more than conqueror over every temptation, through him that loves you.—Selected.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

ANOTHER NOTICE.

Requests for special copies of the ADVOCATE come to us so often that they are burdensome, and we again remind our friends that in making such requests they must send FOUR CENTS for each copy. We can not afford to "send bill," as we are sometimes asked to do. Please, friends, bear these things in mind.

From this date no attention will be paid to manuscripts that come to this office rolled. Let them be folded and put in an envelope. And please, brethren and sisters, use ink. Pencil writing, after passing through the mail, is often hard to read. We speak both for the printer and the editor.

By many years of constant study and experiments, I have perfected a simple, harmless vegetable remedy that will quickly cure all female diseases, as well as the piles. It is nature's own remedy, and will not only relieve, but will absolutely, thoroughly and permanently cure the ailments peculiar to women, such as falling of the womb, leucorrhea (whites), displacements, ulceration, granulation, painful or scanty periods, irregular menstruation and all the pelvic ills of women. It positively cures rectal ulcers, piles, hemorrhoids, tumors, itching, blind or bleeding piles in either sex. It cures promptly, privately, and permanently without the repugnant methods in general use by physicians. You can escape embarrassing examinations, avoid humiliating exposures, cheat the surgeon's knife out of baptism in your blood.

The treatment is so simple, mild and effectual that it will not interfere with your work or occupation. Thousands and thousands of letters are being received from grateful persons from all parts of the world who have been cured by the use of this remedy. The first package is free, send for it—send to-day. I know that a fair trial of it will result in your becoming its enthusiastic advocate and friend. With it I will send literature of interest and value. Do not neglect this opportunity to get cured yourself and be in a position to advise ailing friends.

Captain ALONZO HACKET was born at Baton Rouge, La., Feb. 13 1841, and died at his home near Woodville, Miss., Aug. 1, 1902. He was married by the writer to Miss Mary E. Ford at the home of her father, Oct. 6, 1869. His earliest manhood was devoted to his country's service as a soldier. It can be safely said that in war or peace he never flinched in a single instance from duty. He took a lively and deeply sincere interest in the politics of his country, State, and county, but was never an office seeker. His position was never dubious on any issue, and it was always where he thought it conscientiously right to be. He was counted as a man of unswerving moral character, with much of such stuff as makes heroes of men. Associated with this, there was conspicuous a wise conservatism, which made him a safe counselor in more than one instance in the days of reconstruction which tried men's souls. At Sam Jones Camp Ground, in 1887, he united himself to the M. E. Church, South. He owned at his death a tent on that, to him, consecrated spot, and always took a lively interest in supporting the meetings. For fifteen years he was an exceptionally consistent Christian. The noble traits of character so patent in his military and civil career, when consecrated to God, shone conspicuously in his religious life. Many deeds of kindness to neighbors and customers are known, and, doubtless, many more, unknown here, are credited to him in the Book of Life. He was faithful as steward in the church, and a zealous Sunday-school superintendent. His domestic life was happy, and an unbounded and delightful hospitality always greeted the guest of the home. He was always genial and interesting in conversation, and one never grew weary of his presence. It is impossible not to appear fulsome in describing the virtues of this long-time noble friend now ascended to God. A very large concourse of neighbors of both races was at the funeral, conducted by Dr. Hunnicutt, who paid tribute to the many excellencies of our friend. We mourn, but with the comforting assurance of meeting him in heaven. THOS W. BROWN.

Mrs. HARRIET JANE DUNTON SHIRLEY was the daughter of William and Harriet Whiting Danton, the former of New York, the latter of Boston. She was born Sept. 17, 1826 at Tuscaloosa, Ala. When quite a small child, with her parents she came to Clinton, Miss, which was always afterward her home. She was married May 22, 1845, to James Jay Shirley, attorney-at-law, of Vicksburg, who lived but a few years afterward, dying March 18, 1852 Her own life was extended for more than fifty years beyond this date. She became a member of the Methodist Church in her girlhood, and lived always afterward a devout and faithful Christian. In an uncommon degree she displayed the virtues of a meek and quiet spirit, and attracted to herself the affection of all who knew her. Perhaps no one ever lived in the community who was more deeply loved. A marked feature in her character was the invariable charity exhibited in her speech and conduct. Her naturally beautiful disposition was refined by the graces of a regenerated spirit, and those who knew her best could see scarcely a flaw or defect in the perfect luster of her character. She was unselfish in her life, gentle in her speech and manner, and inspired always with love. She bore without murmur the sorrows of life when they came, and felt in the midst of them all a ready submission to the divine will. In the providence of God she was detained for weeks just outside the heavenly gates, and day by day she seemed to grow into the likeness of Christ. She looked into the future with faith and hope, and rejoiced in the assurance of a blessed home and a reunion with those who had gone before. After a life well rounded, simple, and beautiful, she fell asleep in Jesus, June 13, 1902 at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Carrie C. FOX, and the loved form now rests with kindred dust in the cemetery at Clinton.

E. H. MOUNGER.

Sister HETTIE NOEL, wife of M. Taylor Noel, of Caddo parish, La., was born in the State of Texas, Jan. 4, 1852, and departed this life at the home of her daughter, Mrs Sam Pittman, Mira, La., April 19, 1902. She was married Oct. 2, 1872 Her husband preceded her to the glory-world eight years. They leave three children to mourn their loss. Sister Noel was a devoted mother, a loving wife, and a good neighbor. She was a soul of candor, honest in her expressions; had many dear friends. "To know her was to love her." Best of all, she was a Christian. The writer first met her in 1886 and were friends until her death. We visited her last at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. S. Noel, of Shreveport, where she was very ill. We talked freely to her of death, of the end being so near, and with unwavering faith she expressed the "blessed assurance," and had no fears of the end. In a few days she gained strength enough, and went to her daughter's, where, in a few weeks, she quietly passed away. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." "Glory to Him who hath washed us from our sins in His own blood" Let us look up beyond the grave to the eternal resting-place of our departed loved ones.

J. S. SANDERS.

Mrs. MAY CAWTHON (nee Hoskins) was born Nov. 16, 1875, and died June 5, 1902. Sister Cawthon was converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, at New Providence Church, in Rankin county, Miss., in August, 1890, under the pastorate of the writer. She was married to S. J. Cawthon, Nov. 8, 1893. She leaves her husband and three children, and a large host of relatives and friends, to mourn their loss. Her health failed her, and her husband spent about all that he had trying to regain it, but to no purpose. She suffered for eighteen months, and passed away to her reward. She died trusting in Him who promises to never leave nor forsake. She was laid to rest in the cemetery at Pelahatchie, Miss., June 11 1902, amidst a large host of weeping friends and relatives, the writer officiating.

C. C. GRIFFIN.

WILLIAM HENRY CROOM was born Nov. 30, 1893, and died in Moorings-port, La., at the home of his father, Hon. W. H B. Croom, Aug. 28, 1902. His sickness was of short duration, so that his death was a sudden shock to his family. He was a bright, cheerful youth, and, in consequence, a great favorite with all that knew him. From infancy he had learned to lisp the name of Jesus in prayer. The parents are heart-broken, but find comfort in the thought that their little boy is safe in the arms of Jesus.

Deafness Can Not Be Cured

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result; and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

BISHOP HENDRIX'S BOOK:

12mo. Pp. 326. Cloth. Gilt top. Price $1.25.

"This is a timely and thought-provoking book, written with a holy purpose, and sure of a wide and beneficent mission. . . . The title is suggestive, and every page instructive. . . . One cannot escape the impression that some fervent paragraphs were penned when the devout author was sitting very close to the feet of his Lord."—Bishop Galloway.

Mozley's LEMON ELIXIR.

A Pleasant Lemon Tonic.

Cures indigestion, headache, malaria, kidney disease, fever, chills, loss of appetite, debility, nervous prostration, heart failure, and appendicitis, by regulating the Liver, Stomach, Bowels and Kidneys.

50 cents and $1.00 a bottle at druggists.

Rev. John P. Sanders Writes--

Dr. H. Mozley, Atlanta, Ga.: I have been relieved of a trouble which greatly endangered my life, by using Mozley's Lemon Elixir. My doctor declared my only relief to be the knife, my trouble being appendicitis. I have been permanently cured, and am now a well man. I am a preacher of the M. E. Church, South, located in the town of Verbena, Ala. My brother, Rev. E. E. Cowan, recommended the Lemon Elixir to me. Ship me a half-dozen large bottles C. O. D.

HAPPY HENS MEAN PROFIT!

"BOSWELL'S 20th CENTURY POULTRY HOUSE" is a little book which describes the most convenient, practical, and well-appointed hen-house ever devised—gives plans, with precise instructions for building. Cheap to build, but so planned as to revolutionize poultry-keeping. Thousands cared for with ease. The author has the house in practical operation. Lice and mites cannot exist in this house. Doubles winter egg yield, by making hens happy. Book tells how to handle hens in winter, gives positive ration for winter eggs, and other things you ought to know about hens. Order at once, or you will surely wish you had when cold weather comes to nip your egg yield. PRICE, FIFTY CENTS.

THE SON OF MAN:

STUDIES IN HIS LIFE AND TEACHINGS

BY GROSS ALEXANDER, S.T.D.,

Professor of New Testament Exegesis in Vanderbilt University.

The Chapter titles of this book are suggestive of its scope. Some of these are as follows:

THE SUPERNATURAL BIRTH OF JESUS.	CONDITIONS OF ENTERING THE KINGDOM.
THE BAPTISM AND ITS MEANING.	THE KING, THE LAW, AND THE KINGDOM.
THE TEST IN THE DESERT.	JESUS'S DOCTRINE OF GOD AS FATHER.
THE KINGDOM OF GOD.	THE TRANSFIGURATION.

THE RESURRECTION OF JESUS.

General News.

Attorney General Knox has arrived in Paris, where he will investigate the title of the Panama Canal Company.

Emperor William entertained a large party at dinner at Berlin. His majesty expressed the hope that he would soon be able to visit the United States.

There is a movement to induce the Pennsylvania coal operators to grant an increase in wages without recognizing the miner's union, and thus end the strike.

The Democratic congressional committee has issued a statement showing the large increase in the prices of food stuffs in the past few years as a result of the operations of the trusts.

DOES IT STAND TO REASON that Perry Davis' Painkiller could have held public confidence for 60 years unless it really did cure diarrhœa, cholera morbus and all similar troubles so common and so dangerous in hot weather?

A Strong Recommendation.

The proof is here. "I have been using Hughes' Tonic for chills and fever, and unhesitatingly say it is the best remedy I have ever used. I could name a number of others who have been benefited." Sold by Druggists—50c. and $1.00 bottles.

You Can Make Money at Home.

I never made less than $9 a day selling Martha Baird's Flavoring Creams, used to flavor and color Ice Creams, Custards, Pies, Desserts, Cakes, Icings, Candies, etc. The Coloring is strictly Vegetable. They are made from purest Concentrates, and are true to the Fruits they represent. I sell from one to ten flavors at every House, Hotel, Boarding-House, Drug-Store, etc. With a little Cake Icing, I demonstrate the mixing in less than a minute. Whenever introduced you gain a permanent customer. Bakers claim one pound of the Flavoring Creams goes as far as a gallon of Liquid Extract. Keeps perfectly pure for years. This is not a powder, but is in the form of a very thick cream. Any reader of this paper, out of employment, can make a little fortune selling these Creams. Send for particulars to Mrs. Martha Baird, Dept. 47, No. 107 Beatty street, Pittsburg, Pa. She started me in business, and will do the same for you. E. A. C.

How a Woman Paid Her Debts.

I am out of debt, thanks to the Dish washer business. In the past three months I have made $600 selling Dish-washers. I never saw anything sell so easily. Every family needs a Dish-washer, and will buy one when shown how beautifully it will wash and dry the family dishes in two minutes. I sell from my own house. Each Dish-washer sold brings me many orders. The dishes are washed without wetting the hands. That is why ladies want the Dish-washer. I give my experience for the benefit of anyone who may wish to make money easily. I buy my Dish-washers from the Mound City Dish-Washer Co., St Louis Mo. Write them for particulars. They will start you in business in your own home. L. A. C.

The Renewal a Strain.

Vacation is over. Again the school bell rings at morning and at noon, again with tens of thousands the hardest kind of work has begun, the renewal of which is a mental and physical strain to all except the most rugged. The little girl that a few days ago had roses in her cheeks, and the little boy whose lips were then so red you would have insisted that they had been "kissed by strawberries," have already lost something of the appearance of health. Now is a time when many children should be given a tonic, which may avert much serious trouble, and we know of no other so highly to be recommended as Hood's Sarsaparilla, which strengthens the nerves, perfects digestion and assimilation, and aids mental development by building up the whole system.

A Pitiful Sight

Is to see the little ones so dear to us gradually sinking day by day by the drainage upon its system from the effects of teething. The wise mother gives Dr. Biggers' Huckleberry Cordial. It never fails to cure Cholera Morbus and Dysentery, Flux, etc.

Sold by all Druggists, 25 and 50c. bottle.

Situation Wanted.

R·I·P·A·N·S

I suffered terribly for years with heartburn and sick headache. My husband had used Ripans Tabules for indigestion with great success. I used two of the 5 cent cartons and have not had an attack of heartburn since. Whenever I feel the headache coming on I take one Tabule, and if taken in time it always has the best results. I consider R.I.P.A.N.S a blessing to the rich and poor alike.

Glances at the World.

Gambling is on the increase. It is getting to be a mania, and is backed and encouraged by men who stand high in the world. The price of the staple commodities—cotton, grain, etc.—is largely controlled by a system that can be denominated by no other name than gambling. The horse-racing of the country has entirely lost the character of sport, and patrons no longer visit the track to witness speed and endurance, but to gamble on the results. Men once high in the councils of the nation own stables, and attract thousands for no other purpose than to bet. Millionaires who rule in the stock exchange are devotees of the race track, and stake their thousands. Not long since book-makers were kept busy on race days entering and keeping accounts of bets from five to ten dollars; now some of them are just as busy entering bets of hundreds and thousands. It is not uncommon for book-makers and pool-rooms to realize from ten to twenty-five thousand dollars a day. Base-ball is a profession, and fosters betting. Even the amateur athletics of our colleges help to minister to the same evil. The sports run wild over a big prize-fight, and hundreds of thousands of dollars change hands. Is it any wonder that our young men are being corrupted by the thousand?

When electric cars were introduced several years ago, and were shortly followed by horseless carriages driven by steam or oil or electricity, it was predicted that the day of the horse would soon pass away. But the horse still holds his place, and is likely to increase in popular favor. The electric car will also maintain its popularity, and grow more and more in favor as it links the cities and towns together, but the automobile is too dangerous, and will be largely discarded. Too many people are losing their lives through accidents. They are constantly occurring, not as the result of carelessness, but because the machines become unmanageable. Three millionaires inside the last four weeks have been killed. How many other people just as good we do not know. Already those who have taken the lead in the use of the machines are abandoning them. Others, of course, will follow their example, and return to the use of the horse for their pleasure riding, and the finest of the race will be in demand.

Race prejudice has again shown itself in the North. This time it is at Northwestern University, at Evanston, in the suburbs of Chicago. A young colored girl from San Antonio, Texas, entered the university, and was assigned to a room in Chapin Hall, the woman's dormitory, but feeling among the white girls ran so high against her presence that she was removed and told to find a boarding-house outside the university. The report further says, "The trustees have been compelled to bar negro girls from Chapin Hall." Thus, after all these years of effort to bring about the education of the negroes and whites, giving each race equal privileges in boarding-houses and class-rooms, the people of the North find themselves frustrated. The theory is very fine, and commends itself to those who know little or nothing of the difference between the races, but the theory will not work. There is a revolt every time it is undertaken. We do not wonder that good men who are looking forward to a better understanding between the churches, if not to organic union, are getting restless. Their hopes will never be realized as long as the effort to mix the races is kept up. The only way to effect that good understanding is to keep the races apart.

A shameful confession comes from St. Louis. It is a confirmation of suspicion long entertained that something was wrong in a former municipal assembly called the House of Delegates. It was believed that there was bribery in connection with the passage of a bill granting a franchise to a certain railway corporation. The disclosures made in the confession of one of the suspected delegates created a sensation. The confession revealed the fact of a regular combine in the House of Delegates, composed of nineteen men. These nineteen controlled legislation, and in important matters they combined to sell their votes, and divide the spoils between them. The man who made the confession states that the price agreed on for the passage of the railway bill was $75,000, which amount was deposited in a box of a trust company, and that he held the key. In another matter the combine received $48,000. There were other like transactions, and this man says these things had gone on so long without interruption that they were not regarded by those who engaged in them as morally wrong. Nineteen men in a city council—a majority—corrupt, and ready any time to barter their votes! What a shame! But how much better are the bribers than the bribed?

A new tack has been taken by the drink-producing class in France. It was published widely some time since by a society that had investigated the effects of the drinks in common use, that the French people were suffering. Drunkenness was on the increase; insanity and sudden death were frequent. The prospect for the future, as pictured, was anything but pleasing. The actual, as well as the prospective, condition of things alarmed many people, and as a result, the consumption of drink greatly diminished. The drink-producers were the losers. Trade fell off, and the persons who gave the alarm, and occasioned the falling off of the trade, are being sued for damages. The outcome of the suit, it is said, is being looked for with much interest. According to reports, the drink traffic is being much interfered with in Texas. County after county is wheeling into line with the prohibitionists. The brewers and distillers are alarmed, and are up in arms against the agitators. Would it not be a funny thing to see them bring suit in a Texas court against the Anti Saloon League and the churches? We may live to see it.

Letter from Canada.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: I am here attending the session of the General Conference of the Methodist Church in the Dominion of Canada. Rarely in life have I enjoyed an occasion more. Their manner of conducting business is very much like our way of doing things. Several times I have found it hard to realize that I was not in our own General Conference; but when, under the call of the Annual Conferences for memorials and resolutions, the secretary recites, "New Brunswick, British Columbia, Nova Scotia, Montreal, Newfoundland," and so on, I am reminded that I am in a strange land.

As the representative of our church, the courtesies accorded me leave nothing more to be desired. The Conference is a wonderful body. Some of the members are among the most remarkable men known to Methodism throughout the world. Many of them are veritable giants in debate.

I have had the good fortune to be fellow-guest with Dr. Carman in a magnificent Winnipeg home. I have never seen more princely hospitality dispensed. Before the union of the five Methodist bodies in Canada, Dr. Carman was a Bishop in the M. E. Church of the Dominion. Since they did away with the episcopacy, he has been the General Superintendent. He presides at the General Conferences, and travels extensively throughout the connection, but has nothing to do with the appointment of the preachers. Dr. Carman is a man of extraordinary gifts. He is now very old, but is full of vigor, and his wealth of experience makes him invaluable as a counselor. It seems to me he could write an accurate history of universal Methodism without resorting to books of reference. He is an impassioned orator, and sweeps things before him like a tornado. His address at the opening of the Conference was a wonderful exhibition of ecclesiastical statesmanship.

Some things have surprised me greatly. It seems strange that a legislative body of so great importance should conduct business without a daily organ to report its proceedings. They have nothing of the kind, however. The Guardian, their official paper, is a weekly, and is published twelve hundred miles from the seat of the Conference. The debts on their church property are simply enormous. Think of a single pastorate carrying a debt of more than six hundred thousand dollars! Yet this is true of St. James Church, Montreal. One of the most enthusiastic demonstrations I have witnessed since coming here occurred when a brother of great faith told the Conference how they proposed to manage this debt. It sounded like wild talk to me, but it seemed to be positively exhilarating to the Canadians. What would have paralyzed us appeared to be only a healthful stimulus to them. In talking to my host of the state of their affairs in this regard, he told me that his own church had a debt of one hundred thousand dollars, but he seemed not to be disturbed in the slightest degree about it, and as he is reputed to be very rich, and there are other members of the same church as wealthy as he, I concluded not to lose any sleep over the matter.

Winnipeg is known as the metropolis of the Canadian West. Beautiful homes abound, and the Conference is royally entertained. Mr. Aikens, a distinguished lawyer of the city, and a member of Grace Church, in which the Conference is held, entertained the Conference and visitors at his elegant home last Saturday evening. It was an elaborate affair, and gave us an opportunity to meet some very distinguished and interesting people from England as well as from the Dominion.

The most widely known citizen of Winnipeg is the Rev. C. W. Gordon, a Presbyterian minister who has become celebrated as an author under the name, "Ralph Connor." He was kind enough to invite me to preach for him last Sunday, and I very gladly availed myself of the privilege, as it gave me an opportunity to see something of him, and also to meet some very attractive members of his cultured congregation.

The Rev. Dr. Green, of London; Rev. Dr. Crawford, of Dublin, and Rev. Dr. Wilson, of Washington City, are here representing, respectively, the British Wesleyan, the Irish Methodist, and the M. E. Churches. They are all ministers of great distinction, and I have found them very accomplished and brotherly gentlemen.

I delivered my message last night to a large audience, and the Canadians sustained their reputation for unfailing courtesy. After the address a generous resolution of appreciation was proposed and adopted. In speaking to the resolution many kind things were said of our church. I shall always remember with special pleasure the sentiments expressed by Mr. Aikens and Dr. Briggs, who were at Richmond in 1886 as their fraternal messengers to our church.

In a few hours I shall turn my face homeward. The time for the opening of our college session is near, and I look forward with eager interest to the coming of the boys. I trust I shall have the pleasure of greeting a large number at our opening ceremonies on the twenty-fourth.

W. B. MURRAH.

Winnipeg, Sept. 10 1902.

The Endowment Fund.

To the Bishop and Members of the —— Annual Conference, M. E. Church, South—

DEAR FATHERS AND BRETHREN: As you are well aware, the General Conference of the M. E. Church, South, at its recent session in Dallas, Texas, enacted a law providing for the raising of an endowment fund for the more adequate support of our superannuated preachers and the widows and orphans of our deceased preachers. They showed their appreciation of the importance of the measure by raising more than twenty thousand dollars as the beginning of a fund of five million dollars to be raised and set apart for this sacred purpose. This amount in cash and notes the Conference ordered put into the hands of the trustees of the church, and instructed that Board to undertake at once the raising of the fund.

In accordance with this action the Board of Trustees, on the twenty-seventh of August, 1902, elected the Rev. A. F. Watkins, D. D., of the Mississippi Conference, General Agent for the Superannuate Endowment Fund, and instructed him to represent them throughout the church in the work of raising this amount. We hope Dr. Watkins will be able to visit your Conference during the present session, and we bespeak for him your cordial co-operation in the work committed to him.

In order that you may aid us in carrying out the instructions of the General Conference, we respectfully solicit your favorable consideration of the following requests:

1. That you will, by formal action, give the enterprise the endorsement of your body.

2. That you will, if possible, provide for a mass meeting to be held during the session of the Conference, at which addresses shall be delivered in the interest of this cause and a collection taken for this fund.

3. That you will, by resolution, instruct your presiding elders and pastors to promote the success of the campaign in every possible way, making it the duty of the former to make special mention of the work at their Quarterly Conferences, and of the latter to present this cause and take a public collection for its benefit in every congregation of their pastoral charges, this collection to be taken up at an early date (say within sixty days) after the adjournment of the Conference session.

Realizing that this is your work, and we your servants for Christ's sake, and feeling our helplessness without your active and prayerful co-operation, we are,

Yours fraternally,

ANSON WEST, Pres't,
D. C. SCALES,
Sec. and Treas.,
Board of Trustees M. E. Church South.

Report of Visiting Committee to Centenary College.

The Visiting Committee esteem Dr. I. W. Cooper a providential man, who met the depressed feeling concerning Centenary with optimistic enthusiasm, prudent enterprise, and a zeal for poor boys. To him belongs the honor of restoring confidence in the future of the college, breaking down prejudices concerning its location, and attaching new friends to its interests. While the endowment suffered decrease, much was done under his presidency toward ornamental and useful improvement. A stranger in our midst, he resigned after a quadrennium of service, leaving behind a host of friends. He did much valuable service in addresses, speeches, sermons, and revival meetings. Louisiana has delighted in honoring Mississippi men, having drawn from that State editors, college presidents, presiding elders, and pastors of leading stations.

The curriculum at Centenary will compare favorably with that of other Louisiana institutions. The spiritual tone is pure and wholesome. The people of Jackson exhibit a sympathy and personal interest in the college boys which, to them, becomes a life-long memory. The faculty work in harmony, and display an unselfish devotion to the church and Christian education, which is rarely surpassed, remaining at their posts at a personal sacrifice. The recent commencement attracted the largest attendance for years past. The commercial department not only paid expenses, but left a surplus—contrary to the expectations of the Board of Trustees. For the equipment of this department credit is due to Mr. Frank Herr's liberality and insight into the possibilities of a commercial education in connection with a church college. To Dr. Cooper is due the honor of guaranteeing the financial support of the department, and securing its able principal, Prof. Reaser. The uniqueness of this department as a vital part of ordinary college life in Louisiana is worthy of special attention. The literary societies have been somewhat cut down by the Greek letter fraternities. The Y. M. C. A. maintained its creditable work during the last session.

The committee finds improved buildings and class-rooms, better class-room work, thorough teaching, a more unified college spirit, enlarged scope of the work of the college, and a higher curriculum. The adverse side is a decreased endowment and a consequent cramping of effort.

We would suggest that a department of pedagogy and a department of pharmacy might be added, with small draft on present funds and a certainty of increased patronage.

The election of President Henry Beach Carre, the former vice-president—a scholar, a Christian gentleman, a preacher, and an administrator—leads the committee to believe that Centenary has not only a past which is a crown of glory, but a future which is bright with hope.

HARRY W. RICKEY,
W. W. DRAKE,
Committee.

An Hour at Millsaps.

Being frequently asked about the accommodations and surroundings of Millsaps College, I spent an hour on the grounds this week, that I might answer the more intelligently.

THE CAMPUS.

The first figure I saw was "Professor" Aclin, the landscape gardener, busy trimming walks and grading the drives. None of the faculty could be more interested in his department than he, and under his hand the campus has become a thing of beauty. The very surroundings bear an air of refinement, and are an inspiration to study.

FOUNDERS HALL.

This is the name given to the new brick dormitory. Here I found Professor Shannon looking after future comfort of the boys. His experience in this work elsewhere serves the college well. Cleaning, sweeping, airing—this department will be in thorough readiness. Every room will be furnished with heavy furniture free of expense to the student. Two boys to the room is the calculation. Every room is heated by steam, and in each room a register by which the occupants may gauge the temperature. On the basement floor is the large dining-room fitted up to accommodate the goodly number who are applying for rooms in the building. According to his faith the professor has planted a large Fall garden. In conuection with this hall a room has been set apart for young men who may need especial attention in case of sickness. This feature should meet with the heartiest endorsement by every friend of the college—a roomy, quiet retreat for the sick. The house formerly occupied by the president of these grounds will be occupied by Professor Sullivan, with whom will board two other professors, thus locating five professors, in addition to President Murrah, on the grounds.

The main building presents quite an air of freshness with its new trimmings of paint.

The student body will be pleased with the new walk passing from car line, through the new grounds, to the chapel.

The outlook for a fine attendance is excellent.

Dr. Murrah has arranged a very attractive programme in connection with the opening services on the twenty-fourth instant, and hopes for a good attendance by the neighboring pastors and friends. The day could not be better spent, and we trust that many of our preachers will be with us.

T. B. HOLLOMAN.

The Christian Advocate (Nashville) says: "Dr. Julien C. Brown, the eloquent pastor of Central Avenue, Hot Springs, is closing his fourth year as pastor of that important charge. He has drawn large crowds to hear his Ciceronian discourses, and is very popular with his people. The church has also grown rapidly in numbers and influence under his pastorate." There are but few equals of Dr. Brown in our church.

It is easier to be the pastor of a thousand workers than of ten drones. The sight of a dying church, or even a dull one, wears harder on a pastor than the most arduous toil for a living and growing church. It is not what we do, but what we fail to do, that wears us out.—Rev. T. L. Cuyler.

Christian Advocate.

PETER, THE ROCK.

(MATT. VI, 13-20.)

The prominence of this passage makes us anxious about its meaning. The Roman Catholic Church, since a very early period in the history of the Christian church, has made a literal interpretation, and affirmed that Peter, frail and fickle, was the rock; and on this foundation, be it ever so frail, Christ built his church. From this it taught that Peter became the vicegerent of Christ; that he and his successors in office are the head of the church, with full power to bind or loose for all kinds of offenses. Papal infallibility, and priestly absolution from sin, are the offspring of such an interpretation. So repugnant was this view to common sense that another school denied that Peter was the rock, and declared that the declaration of Christ was not of Peter, but of the confession which he made, viz., "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." This is the view generally held by Protestants. I have never been able to accept this interpretation. To my mind it does as much violence to the plain language of the text as the other view does to ordinary intelligence. The shifting of gender does not afford relief. Besides, the Christian church is not built on a creed. I am not a Christian because I am orthodox, or because I believe that Christ is the Son of God. Others have the same belief, and are not Christians. "He that hath the Son hath life." Nicodemus was told that he must be born again.

To my mind the following meaning is rational and scriptural. The disciples had been asked their opinion of Christ, and Peter, true to his impulsive nature, answered, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." Christ replied, "Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-Jona; for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee!" Simon's condition was declared to be a very desirable one; and this happy condition came through the possession of something here spoken of as "it." The "it" is the point of inquiry. One says it is Peter, a man of flesh; another says it is Peter's creed; while I set up a contention that it is Peter, the child of the Spirit, or, as we now say, Peter the converted man.

First. Christ made the prophecy, when he first saw Peter, that he should be called Cephas, a stone. This was to be a future event, and the inference is that it was predicated on a change of character.

Second. He was called "Simon, son of Jonas." Beede says that, interpreted, means, "Simon, son of the dove." Jonah means a dove, and the Oxford Bible, evidently following this idea, spells the name with a small letter. The idea is that the Spirit, in the form of a dove, attested Christ's Messiahship; so he further bears record to him by a revelation to the consciousness of Peter.

Third. "Flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven." This is to say, you did not get this through beholding the miracles which I have wrought, or through any process of reasoning, or in any way through which man learns, but my Father, through the Spirit, hath revealed it unto you. A kindred passage is I. Cor. ii, 9, 10: "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit."

Fourth. Surely no man will controvert when I say that the church is not built on a creed. The rich young ruler was of orthodox faith and blameless life, yet he went away from the Master sorrowful. The inference from the position which Nicodemus occupied is that he not only knew the law, but that he illustrated it in his life. In Acts we learn that the Lord added daily unto the church such as were being saved. So we believe and teach that Christ's church is built up of the people who are born of the Spirit. They are spoken of as "lively stones" which go into the great spiritual house, of which Christ has become the chief corner-stone. Christ nowhere taught that the church was founded on himself. He declared that the doctrine which he taught was not his own: that it was the Father's. "The gates of hell shall not prevail against it." This can not mean that the powers of darkness shall never hinder the church; fifteen hundred years of history contradicts this view. The Jewish idea of Hades located the place in the center of the earth, and allowed doors or gates for entrance, but none for exit. It was a figure representing death. Christ's pledge was that the church should never die; that the dispensation of the Spirit should never be superseded by any other. All hereafter who enter this earthly kingdom of heaven shall enter through the initiation of the Spirit.

GEO. H. THOMPSON.

ONCE A MAN AND TWICE A CHILD.

More than fifty years ago, on the first circuit I ever traveled, I was not in charge, but I was anxious to do all the work of a Methodist preacher, and tried to visit every family of the charge. One family, some of whom were members of the church, I made some sacrifice to visit, and asked the privilege of praying in the family. The man answered that he had no prayers in that way in his house. I felt hurt, and went to some of my friends for sympathy. I was young to be called a man, and looked decidedly younger than I was. My friends suggested that it was because of my youthful appearance that I was so repelled. So that was being "once a child."

More than fifty years after the above incident I thought I had become fully a man in age, and something of a man in appearance. I was rather incidentally thrown to spend the night with a Methodist preacher and his family. I was early shown to my room, with the apology that they did not have time for prayers. The next morning I expressed a desire to pray with the family. The same excuse was rendered, "We have not the time." When alone, strangly these two incidents came together forcibly in my mind. More than fifty years ago I was too youthful to lead the devotions in the home of a prayerless man. Now, when approaching my seventy-fifth year, I am not desired to lead in the devotions of a Methodist preacher's family. The conclusion was forced upon me that if it was not really so, I was considered in my childhood the second time.

I have been led to associate the following with these two incidents: Quite a number of years ago, where our Annual Conference was to be held in a certain little city in the State of Mississippi, the Bishop made his arrival on Tuesday evening, and was assigned to a home with a family with some pretentions to wealth. When it was proposed to show him his room, the Bishop asked the privilege of praying with the family, and was answered with decision in language like this, "We want no prayers in this house." The Bishop, valise in hand, walked at once to the hotel, and took lodging for the night. The Bishop had once been a child, but was then a man, and eminently so. The fact was, prayer was not wanted. There was neither non age nor dotage to relieve the case.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

Conducted by N. A. MOTT, Yazoo City, Miss.

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

Two Institutes.

We learn with pleasure from Bro. Bachman that the Sunday-school Board of the North Mississippi Conference will hold two Institutes in October. One will be held at West Point, Miss., Monday night to Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 13-15, and the other will be held at Oxford, Miss., Wednesday night to Friday afternoon, Oct. 15-17. Prof. Hamill and his excellent wife will be the principal speakers. We have not yet seen the programmes, but understand that they will be similar to the one used at Utica.

Mrs. Hamill is a specialist in primary work—one of the best in the country—and will have charge of the primary subjects at both Institutes. The primary teacher holds a most important position, because it falls to her lot to lay the foundation upon which Christian character is built. Often the child receives its first and only religious impressions from her lips. We trust, therefore, that every primary teacher in the North Mississippi Conference will attend one of these Institutes, and receive instruction about their work.

We can not too strongly urge the presiding elders, pastors, and Sunday-school workers of that Conference to talk up and attend these Institutes. Of course, all can not attend them, but all can talk them up and see that their Sunday-school has a delegation at one or the other. What is not worth talking about is not worth having. So, speak a good word for these Institutes, and see that your Methodist neighbors know all about them.

The influence of a presiding elder is more far-reaching than many of them think. Whenever they can do so, we think they ought to attend the Sunday-school Institute or Convention of their Conference. But a word spoken in season, as they go on their rounds, will tend to popularize these Institutes. The presiding elders are the representatives of the Bishop in their districts, and are honored accordingly by all loyal Methodists. So they, in turn, should be loyal to every Methodist institution. They may be prevented by other duties from attending, but we trust those of the North Mississippi Conference will give these Institutes the benefit of their full influence.

And the pastors of that Conference, nearly 150 strong, are as consecrated a set of men as can be found in Methodism. There is hardly need of reminding them of their duty. They stand in the same relation to the Institute that the parents do to the Sunday-school. If the parents are indifferent, the children will be indifferent also. And if the pastors are indifferent regarding these Institutes, the Sunday-school workers will be indifferent also. The pastors need trained teachers to assist them in building up and stablishing their own work. Let them, therefore, be instant in season and out of season in pressing the claims of these Institutes upon their Sunday-schools. Wherever practicable, let them set a good example by attending one of them.

Last year there were 485 Sunday-schools reported within the bounds of the North Mississippi Conference, with 2,665 officers and teachers. Is there one among the number who does not need the training and inspiration to renewed endeavor which the Institute gives? There were also 21,727 pupils enrolled. Surely among all that number there are 2,500 adult scholars and prospective officers and teachers, who might learn something useful at these Institutes. So there are more than 5,000 members of Methodist Sunday-schools in that Conference who will be directly benefited by attending them.

Prof. Hamill's work as a trainer of teachers is too well known to require comment. His name upon the programme is a guarantee that it will be instructive and interesting. Southern Methodism will be blessed by his services more than it now appreciates. Mrs. Hamill also, is a queen among women and among primary teachers. Her labors at West Point and Oxford will be fruitful of great good. If we mistake not, she was present at the Louisiana Convention, and we serve notice now that the Mississippi Conference will feel badly if she does not grace their next convention.

We do not desire to be officious, but we would respectfully suggest to the North Mississippi Sunday-school Board that they name a day for prayer for these two Institutes, and that the workers be much in prayer before the time of meeting. How would it do to name the Sunday before the Institutes—Oct. 12? We believe that the success of the convention at Utica last Spring was due to prayer. Methodists are a praying people. Let us honor God by praying for his blessing upon these two Institutes.

Religion is nothing if it be not the vital act by which the entire mind seeks to save itself by clinging to the principle from which it draws its life. This act is prayer, by which term I understand no vain exercise of words, no mere repetition of certain sacred formulæ, but the very movement itself of the soul, putting itself in a personal relation of contact with the mysterious power of which it feels the presence—it may be even before it has a name by which to call it. Wherever this interior prayer is lacking there is no religion; wherever, on the other hand, this prayer rises and stirs the soul, even in the absence of forms or of doctrines, we have living religion. —Varieties of Religious Experience.

The Indians say that when a man kills a foe the strength of the slain enemy passes into the victor's arm. In the weird fancy lies the truth. Each defeat leaves us weaker for the next battle, but each conquest makes us stronger. Nothing makes a prison to a human life but a defeated broken spirit. The bird in its cage that sings all the while is not a captive. God puts his children in no position in which he does not mean them to live victoriously. So in any circumstances we may be "more than conquerors through him that loved us."—J. R. Miller.

God will be ever doing new things. He is forever active. He has purposes concerning me which he has not unfolded. Therefore, each year grows sacred with wondering expectation. Therefore, I and the world may go forth from each old year into the new which follows it, certain that in that new year God will have for us some new treatment which will open for us some novel life.—Phillips Brooks.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

VIMVILLE CHARGE.

DEAR BRO. BOSWELL AND BRETHREN: My third Quarterly Conference, which convened the twenty-sixth of July, was the beginning of my protracted work. Notwithstanding the absence of our beloved presiding elder, which was caused by declining health, the Quarterly Conference was a success. We had the largest congregation, I believe, that I have seen at Quarterly Conference for a number of years. The report for the quarter was equal to any in the history of the charge, so far as I know.

Rev. R. H. Barr had promised to help me in my meeting at Why Not, but was not able to get there; so we were left alone to hold the meeting. We entered the work bravely, with the help of Bro. Moore, who is an earnest and faithful local preacher, and continued until the next Wednesday night, when we closed with very little visible results. We feel, though, that good was accomplished.

We began our second meeting at Coker Chapel the first Sunday in August. Rev. D. Scarborough came to us on Monday, and did all the preaching the remainder of the meeting. Bro. Scarborough is an able, earnest, and sweet-spirited preacher; one who stands firm and true to the doctrines of Methodism as taught by Mr. Wesley and the inspired writers. The Holy Spirit was present in great power from the first service. The sermons were all able, pointed, and full of clear-cut doctrine. I make special mention of one sermon—a sermon on baptism. Text: Acts xix, 2. You see, it was not on water baptism, but the baptism of the Holy Ghost. As the results of the earnest efforts, the church was greatly revived, twenty-two conversions, thirteen accessions to the church. We closed Friday night with all of four hundred people present. We give the Lord all the glory.

Our next place was Pleasant Hill, where we began the second Sunday in August. Rev. G. A. Guice came to our help Monday night, and did all the preaching to the close of the meeting. Bro. Guice is well known as an able and earnest preacher. He preaches a very high standard of religion, but no second blessing. Our Baptist friends entered heartily into the meeting. Congregations were not so large, but the meeting was very good. The church was revived, and two accessions.

Our next place was at Marion. Began there the third Sunday in August, and continued until the Sunday night following. Bro. Scarborough helped me there. We had a hard fight there; gained only a partial victory. The church was revived, new interest aroused in the Sunday-school and prayer meeting, and five accessions to the church.

Our next place was at Curtis Chapel. Bro. Moore, a dear, good man, began my meeting the fourth Sunday in August. I got to him on Monday. The membership is very small there, and the church is not in an accessible place. Congregations very small. With all these things against us, we closed Tuesday night with no visible results.

We praise God for what he has done for us this year. We feel like the work is in much better condition than when we came here. I hope to have a good report at Conference. Brethren, pray for us.

May God bless the dear old ADVOCATE, its editor, and all its readers! is the prayer of Yours in Christ, J. L. RED.

HARRISTON CIRCUIT.

DEAR BRO. BOSWELL: We have just held two very successful meetings—one at Harriston, beginning Aug. 14, and closing Aug. 25. Bro. W. D. Bass, of Corinth, did the most of the preaching in this meeting, and he did it faithfully and well. He is a fine and safe worker and preacher. His methods and doctrines are all right. I unhesitatingly indorse him as far as my knowledge and experience goes. God owns and blesses his work. My people were perfectly delighted with him, and want him again. We had seventeen accessions, and the church much revived. I believe great good was done. And last, but not least, the people showed their appreciation of the pastor by giving him a nice pounding, which was highly appreciated. God bless Bro. Bass and the good people of Harriston. Come again, Bro. Bass.

The next meeting was held at Cane Ridge Church, Lorman, and continued seven days, closing yesterday evening, Sept. 2. Rev. I. L. Peebles, of Wesson, did most of the preaching, and it was faithfully done. He is one of our strongest and best preachers and men. You can not get a stronger or better preacher for a revival meeting. My people certainly were delighted with him, and want him again next year. The church was very much revived and built up, and sinners convicted and converted. We had two accessions, and, with three from the Harriston meeting, gives us five. God bless Bro. Peebles, and his family and work, and also the good people of Cane Ridge Church. God bless our editor and paper.

A. D. MILLER.

FANNIN, MISS.

We have held two protracted meetings with some good results. At Providence, Bro. C. C. Griffin did most of the preaching. Fourteen applied for membership. At Fannin, Bro. B. W. Lewis, of DeKalb, did most of the preaching. Three applied for membership. We had good preaching at both places.

There are difficulties in the way of the success of the gospel here. In some places the old people, with few exceptions, encourage revelry; the young people participate in it.

Another evil is in a false doctrine that is being preached all over this country, viz.: "No man can keep the commandments." Preachers (not Methodist) tell their people they can't keep the commandments, and they need not try. The masses like that kind of preaching. Of course, wide-awake, intelligent Christian people do not believe such stuff. The trouble is, we have too many of the other sort among us. We need a revival of intelligence and Christian education all over this country. Pray for us.

The crop prospect is extremely gloomy all over this country. Three comparative failures in crops make it hard on preachers and people, farmers and merchants. God evidently is having a controversy with the people of this country. When, oh, when will our people stop and think?

H. P. LEWIS.

MT. CARMEL CIRCUIT.

MR. EDITOR: I send you some items from this charge for the benefit of any of your readers who may be interested in the Master's work within the bounds of Mt. Carmel circuit. I closed my fourth and last protracted meeting, last Friday, at Blountville Church. The second and third weeks in August we held meetings in Santee and Bethel Churches. At Santee we had a good meeting; some conversions and four accessions on profession of faith. Next we held at Bethel, with three accessions on profession of faith, but the meeting here was not satisfactory. At both of these churches the pastor did the preaching, as promised help failed to reach us. At Blountville we were assisted by Rev. C. M. Crossly. We had a fine meeting; fourteen accessions on profession of faith, some happy conversions among the young people, and the meeting was a blessing to many people. Mrs. Dr. McGee, a Baptist lady, rendered efficient help conducting the singing. We feel very thankful to the Lord for his mercy and love manifested to us in the conversion of sinners and answering of prayer. We give all the glory to him. We hope to have a good report at Conference.

H. B. VANDENBURG, P. C.

WESSON STATION.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Our protracted meeting and third Quarterly Conference have been held. Bro. L. S. Jones did all the preaching during the meeting. He is an earnest, strong preacher. The time our meeting was held was not as propitious as we desired, and hence, excepting the good done to the saints, the results were poor. We have not baptized but forty-nine infants. We are hopeful of greater things before Conference. I have recently seen 239 of a membership of 480, and committed all to fast quarterly except eleven, and all to pray in secret twice daily except twelve. Out of the 249, including those already holding family prayer, we got thirty-nine to promise to begin this duty at once. We shall endeavor to see the rest of our members as soon as we are through helping in meetings.

Bro. B. F. Jones, our presiding elder, is true to every interest of our church. He is spiritual and a good preacher. His great desire and effort is that the cause of God shall prosper in his hands. May it prosper more and more in his hands!

ISAAC L. PEEBLES.

TRANQUIL CIRCUIT.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: The Lord has been graciously blessing us in our protracted meetings. A goodly number has been added to our church rolls by baptism and on profession of faith, and while we rejoice to report additions, yet we rejoice more to report the genuine conversion of those who were added unto us. In some parts of our work the church itself has been wonderfully stirred, and many who were only nominal Christians have awakened from indifference and unto activity. Though sadly behind in finances, we are hopeful of being able to make a favorable report at our next Annual Conference. The crops in this immediate section are distressingly short, and this is the main reason why the laborer is not receiving his hire, and the institutions of the church their support.

We have two more meetings to hold, and we ask the prayers of the brethren, that we may be able to glorify God.

What are Humors?

They are vitiated or morbid fluids coursing the veins and affecting the tissues. They are commonly due to defective digestion but are sometimes inherited.

How do they manifest themselves?

In many forms of cutaneous eruption, salt rheum or eczema, pimples and boils, and in weakness, languor, general debility.

How are they expelled? By

which also builds up the system that has suffered from them.

It is the best medicine for all humors.

EDINBURG, MISS.

DEAR DOCTOR BOSWELL: I have just closed my third protracted meeting, ending with my third Quarterly Conference. Bro. T. L. Mellen was at his post, and the two sermons he preached for us were accompanied with the power of the Holy Spirit. As a result of these meetings, there were twelve accessions to the church, some fifteen or twenty conversions, the churches being greatly revived. Our work has had a great uplift, spiritually; yet there is a broad field to work up, and only one poor workman in the field. We have one new church about ready for use, and the timber for another, and $100 subscribed for the same. Will soon be ready to commence work. I think the prospect to build still another one on this work is very good. I feel that the lines have fallen to me in pleasant places. Thanks to Bros. M. L. White and J. E. Williams, itinerants, and my father, F. A. Lane, L. P., for their service in my meetings. To God be all the praise. Pray for us, that the good work may continue. Yours in Christ,

W. H. LANE, P. C.

EASTABUCHIE, MISS.

DEAR BRO. BOSWELL: We have just closed a very fine meeting at Tuscanola, on the Eastabuchie circuit, with very gratifying results. We had thirty applications for membership. I had Bro. B. S. Rayner with me four days, preaching six times. He came to us Monday and left Friday. The meeting ran eight days. We had also Bro. C. W. Campbell, L. E., of Eastabuchie, who preached us four good sermons that were soul-stirring and uplifting. We have added to the membership of Tuscanola this year fifty-two, and I think there will be more that will join yet. I have four meetings to hold yet. I hope that I will be able to soon make another good report. Pray for us. Yours fraternally,

C. C. GAFFIN.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

RINGGOLD CIRCUIT.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: I send you a few items of interest. We have held four protracted meetings. In June, at Ringgold, Bro. H. J. Boltz did most of the preaching; seven accessions. At Yellow Pine Mills, embracing second Sunday in July and week following, Rev. H. R. Singleton did most of the preaching; some six or seven accessions, and some others promised to join our church, and four pledged themselves to join other churches. The meeting resulted in the organization of a church with ten members, and hope that others will join our organization.

I held a meeting at Rocky Mount Church the last week in July, which was a success, all things considered. The church was on the background; had not had an accession since 1899. We had ten accessions on profession of faith, revived the church and organized a prayer meeting as a result. Rev. Philip Burkett preached twice for me.

Our meeting at Andrew Chapel commenced on Saturday night before the second Sunday in August. We had an outpouring of the Holy Ghost and quite a number converted, nineteen accessions; baptized ten adults. The church was stirred as it has not been for years; seven accessions the last service. We organized a prayer meeting which promises much good.

We have put the meeting off at Grand Bayou until October, but have organized a prayer meeting that was badly needed.

Our congregations have doubled since we came on the work. It will take all the year to get the circuit in working trim as it should be. This is our aim and purpose. There have been fifty-one accessions during the year. We expect to still increase the number. My health has not been as good as usual this Summer, but I am still on my feet. My wife has had fever for the last five days, and was quite sick, but is clear of fever this morning. Publish this, or any part of it, as it suits, or throw in the waste-basket. Fraternally,

THOS. J. MARTIN, P. C.

ARCADIA DISTRICT.

DEAR DOCTOR: I have just returned from a trip of over 300 miles, having held four revival meetings and seven quarterly meetings, and want to report the work on the Arcadia district in better condition, in most respects, than it was a year ago. The brethren have not all been heard from since holding all their meetings—in fact, many of them are still at it; but there is every indication that there will be a larger increase in membership than last year, and the connectional collections have generally been better. We have not reached the place yet where we have time to stop and shout, but if we take every advantage of our present position and push the battle, we will be on shouting ground by Conference time. The presiding elder is trying to keep in the lead, and is working harder than ever before; but with such aggressive men in the ranks, he sometimes feels as if he would have to say, "Go on," instead of, "Come on."

God bless you, brethren, and may he surprise your faith with the victory. Yours to serve,

ANDREW J. NOTESTINE.

SLIDELL, LA.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Will you allow me a space in your paper to pen a line or two in regard to our field of labor? We are getting along very nicely so far. Have held three protracted meetings on our work; had some accessions—some were revived. Have taken in another appointment known as the Old Oak Grove Church; was once in the work, but was thrown out; so we have gotten out among those good people, and now have regular services out there (four miles east of Slidell). On last Sunday (Aug. 31) we had the old-time basket meeting; two services and dinner on ground. Everybody seemed to enjoy the services; the house was full. We expect to organize a Sunday school there soon. You should have been with us, Doctor. When we get some new steps to the house, we will invite you out to preach for us. May God bless you!

Respectfully,

WEST LAKE.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: This is our second year on the West Lake and Vinton circuit. Since we have been here we have remodeled the second M. E. Church, South, in Lake Charles, by strengthening the building, adding two front windows, painting and paperiug. Now we have a pretty church there. Have built a belfry, and secured a good bell for the Sulphur Church. Have put in gas lights in the West Lake Church, and at this time we are planning to build a church at Vinton. In our stay here we can give the same answer the apostles did to our Savior's question to them in Luke xxii, 35. There have been a number of conversions on the work this year, and twenty-two accessions to the church—fifteen on profession of faith and seven by letter. All praise to the Lord our God. May the Lord bless you, Doctor, and all the brethren! is my prayer.

R. C. GRACE.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

BLUE SPRINGS, MISS.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: We have had some good meetings on the Blue Springs circuit. Our meeting at Bethel resulted in nine professions and several accessions to the church. Our third quarterly meeting, which was held at the close of this revival, was a very happy occasion. Bro. Young, who is much loved by these good people, did some powerful preaching, which was crowned with gracious results.

Our meeting at Liberty resulted in thirty, or more, professions, and thirty-three accessions to the church. We have had about fifty additions to the church since Conference.

This is our third year on this circuit, and we think that the work is in better condition than ever before since we have known it. We have good Sunday-schools, prayer meetings, and one Woman's Foreign Missionary Society. The material interests of the charge, also, are receiving attention. We have painted one church, and the work of repairing another has been begun. The Lord be praised for his blessings.

W. G. BURKS.

TOCCOPOLA CIRCUIT.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: We have finished our round of protracted meetings for Toccopolu circuit, except we may hold another one at Toccopola. We had no ministerial help, except at Lafayette Springs, where we were ably assisted by Rev. W. D. Bass, of Corinth, Miss. We had a fine meeting at that place, and the whole church put on new life, with fifteen added to its membership. We had a fine meeting at Thaxton and Salem, and the Lord has blessed us all over the charge. We have had fifty-five additions during the year, with twelve more to be received. Our Conference collections are well in hand. We have in cash and good subscriptions three times the amount the work paid last year, with the pastor's salary about $75 or $80 paid above what it was last year at this time. We are going to present the best report to Conference that this work has had for years.

J. H. BASS.

NETTLETON, MISS.

DEAR BROTHER: I have just closed my revival meetings. The Lord has been with us in power; the church has been revived; have had about fifty, or more, conversions, about sixty accessions, and many new family altars erected. The charge is in better condition now than for years.

Yours fraternally,

JOHN W. RAMSEY.

MARIETTA CIRCUIT.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: We are moving on nicely on the Marietta charge. We are having some fine revivals. Have just closed a meeting with twelve or fifteen conversions in the old-time way at the altar. The Lord is doing great things for us, for which we are thankful. Pray for us.

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 109,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check, ten cents extra will be charged.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1902.

If your children are to meet your expectations, and the demands of God and society in coming years, you must begin and continue their training under your own instruction. Especially must the foundation of character be laid in the home. To neglect the duty while the children are small, and trust the future for their development, is to run a risk no Christian parent can afford. The schools may instruct and polish, but in many cases, by the time the children are large enough to go to school, it is too late to begin laying the foundation of a good character. Begin with them in their infancy.

If you know any young converts that have not united with the church, do not rest until you have warned them of their danger in neglecting such an important duty. You should plead with them. It is not necessary to insist that they join your church—that might be highly improper. There are other churches, and they would be safe in any one of them, but they are not safe on the outside. The Lord calls his people to separate themselves from the world, and has provided his church as a refuge. No Christian has a right to be on the outside.

Speaking the mind freely, which a few people delight in doing, is as often inspired by conceit as it is of a desire to be candid. Nor is it always an evidence of friendship or thoughtfulness; on the contrary, it is a habit indulged without due consideration. It subjects the speaker to adverse criticism, and unnecessarily hurts feelings. A man ought to be sure of his ground, and of a thorough knowledge of his victim, before he undertakes to show his strong point. There is danger.

There is nothing better than for a man to know his duty, and always to be in his place ready to perform it. Much of the trouble of the church grows out of the fact that the members do not know what to do. But much more is to be laid at the door of those who know their duty, and fail to do it. The most successful preacher is the one who has at his command the greatest number of intelligent, consecrated, and willing workers. O! for an army of such Christians.

We have known good Christians who could neither sing, nor lead in prayer, and were too poor to pay much, but they were regular attendants on public worship, and by their earnest and patient hearing greatly encouraged the preacher. It was often a weariness to the flesh, but they gladly endured the suffering, because it came in the line of duty. None but a faithful pastor knows the worth of such souls.

THE WORTH OF A REVIVAL: HOW DETERMINED.

The term "revival" signifies "recovery to life from death," "renewed and more active attention to the importance of religion." Strictly speaking, a revival of religion is confined to the church, to the recovery of its waning life, or from an indifferent and backslidden life to one of activity. But we generally use the term to designate any kind of religions exercises, provided they are accompanied by the awakening and conversion of sinners. This is allowable, since, as a rule, sinners are not aroused and moved to action until the church shows some signs of interest in their welfare. Not often have we witnessed a work of grace among the unconverted without the co operation of the church. It frequently happens, though, that great revivals in the church do not result in the conversion of the unsaved. Occasionally we have seen the two come simultaneously.

In the present state of things revivals, such as we are accustomed to promote among us, are necessary. Without them the experience of religion would die out, and our churches, if they survived at all, would be transformed into temples of formalism, if not into "cages of unclean birds." Happily, there is much religious experience in the pulpit and in the pew, and the revival fires are kept burning. There is life in the church. But all revivals, so called, are not worthy of the name. Some have only the semblance—nothing more. There is preaching and singing, and other exercises, sometimes a vast amount of excitement, but very little genuine feeling. We have known revivals of this character to leave the church and community in a worse condition than before they were held. The worth of a revival depends on the nature and amount of good fruit it produces. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

We would not wholly discount a revival, if it should fail to result in the conversion of sinners. If it does nothing more, it might save a dying church. But if sinners professed to be converted, we would first ascertain whether or not the converts united with the church before we put an estimate on the value of the work. If it fails to add "the saved," or those who profess to be saved, to the church, we may safely discount very largely the worth of such a meeting, no matter how widespread the interest, how great the excitement, or how many professed conversion. Profession is spurious, or the work of grace too shallow, to do any good, if the subjects deliberately refuse to enter into the fellowship of the saints. We would not say that all, or any, who thus refuse are "playing a part," but we are obliged to think that they are deceived, or poorly instructed, or care nothing for the church. In either case, the revival that produced such converts was worth but little.

A revival is worth nothing to Christians unless it makes them better. We mean by this that personal piety must be increased. If such is the result, it will show itself. Feuds, if they exist, will be buried. Hard feelings will cease, backbiting and bickerings will be known no more. Brotherly love will prevail, and charity that thinketh no evil will fill the heart. A desire to help one another, and to build one another up in the faith of the gospel, will animate the heart of each. And if one is overtaken in a fault, those who remain spiritual will restore such an one in the spirit of meekness, considering themselves, lest they also fall under the power of temptation. The revival power will show itself in increased attendance on the services of the church. They will be glad to go, and will hasten with joyful steps to the house of God. We have known revivals to result in decreasing the number of attendance on public worship. Far better it would have been had such meetings never been held.

A revival, to exceed in value, must increase the liberality of the membership. It would be too much to expect this in case of every individual. Religion somehow does not expand the soul of some who live in its enjoyment. They seem to be happy, yet are selfish. Let those explain it who can. But for a whole community to pass through a series of meetings, and claim to have been blessed, yet content themselves with the meagre gifts which heretofore they have laid on the Lord's altar, leads to the conclusion that, though happy, they are strangers to gratitude. A revival that does not open the heart, and induce a Christian to contribute to the work of carrying on the gospel, does not bring the man much nearer to God. More and more is the divine promise to the soul. More and more should be the outpouring of a man's gifts to the Lord in return. The doors of opportunity are constantly opening. Responsibilities are constantly increasing, and unless the liberality of the church keeps pace, the cause will suffer. A revival that does not enlarge the church's gifts is scarcely worth recording.

From what is said above it will be seen that a preacher's duty is not complete when he has held a revival and succeeded in converting sinners. He must work to add the converts to the church. They are sometimes amiss at this point through fear of being charged with bigotry, or the desire to proselyte. This ought not to deter anyone, for there are other churches, and if young converts do not care to unite with us, they should be persuaded to join some other fold. When gathered into the fold, they are to be watched over and cared for. This a good pastor will always do, and to do it well, in connection with other duties, will leave him little time for any outside work. Other duties growing out of a general revival will be recognized by a watchful pastor, and, if faithful, he will eat no idle bread.

LOYALTY TO THE CHURCH.

As a rule, loyalty to the doctrines, polity and institutions of the church to which a man belongs is to be commended. But loyalty may sometimes be expressed in such a way as to arouse the suspicion that a man may, under certain circumstances, allow his loyalty to the church to draw him in opposition to the government under which he lives. This would not be right, and so far as we know, would not be possible, under the vows required by any denomination of Protestants. But it is possible among Romanists, else we wholly miss the meaning of words which sometimes meet our eyes. For example, at a social function of the alumni association of a certain Roman Catholic institution one of the speakers was Bishop Kelley, who, among other things, as reported, said: "I am a Catholic first, an American after—and a long way after. I am not an American Catholic, but a Roman Catholic."

The words of Bishop Kelley are significant. They can be fully understood only in the light of the fact that he has vowed allegiance to the Pope of Rome, which allegiance, if it bound him to abide only the edicts of the Pope in matters spiritual and ecclesiastical, would be nothing amiss. But when it is understood that the Pope claims universal dominion, including temporal as well as spiritual power, his declaration indicates that he proposes to maintain his allegiance to the Pope as both the head of the Church and ruler of the State. Thus we discover in our midst a representative of a church which enjoys all the privileges and protection that our government can bestow, openly declaring that he is "a Catholic first, an American after—and a long way after."

It is true that Bishop Kelley said nothing about the temporal power of the Pope—at least, nothing was reported; but he did repudiate the idea of nationalizing the church. He scorned the term "American Catholic." English Catholic, Irish Catholic, Italian Catholic, all would be equally as objectionable. Rome is the source and seat of authority, and Catholics everywhere must be Roman Catholics. This is a clear intimation by one high in authority that no modification of Romanism in any sense is to be tolerated, no matter where, or under what conditions the church exists. And if the temporal power of the Pope is to be maintained along with his infallibility and ecclesiastical supremacy, we do not see how Bishop Kelley can be a good American citizen.

We do not believe in the expression quoted, if we have fairly interpreted the words, that Bishop Kelley represents the sentiments of the masses of the intelligent Roman Catholics in the United States. They are willing enough to receive and obey instructions in spiritual things from Rome, and, doubtless, they are entirely loyal, but, as citizens, they are true to the country. Such speeches as Bishop Kelley's, we trust, will have no bad influence on our native Roman Catholic population. The harm will come, if harm comes at all, in influencing the sentiments of foreigners, nearly all of whom acknowledge the authority of the Holy Father. This is what we have to fear. And Protestants can not be too vigilant if any great number of Roman Catholic Bishops entertain the sentiments expressed by Bishop Kelley.

UNION IN THE FOREIGN FIELDS.

"The manifest destiny of the various Methodist missions founded in the same foreign field is to unite into one body. We need not perpetuate abroad the divisions that have come about at home. Centrifugal forces will operate there soon enough. Such steps as this [The establishment of a Joint Publishing House in China] are not union, but they prepare the way for union. Whenever the native churches are able to stand alone, then their organic union should be seriously undertaken. . . . We need concern ourselves but little whether the future Methodism of Chiua or Korea is episcopal or congregational, so long as it is true to its mission of spreading scriptural holiness over the land."

In the above sentences, which we take from the Christian Advocate (Nashville) of August 28, 1902, there is food for reflection. If the "manifest destiny" is what Dr. Winton says it is, why wait until the churches in the foreign field are able to stand alone? Why retard their growth by perpetuating divisions? If divisions are hurtful in China or Japan, they are hurtful in America; and if organic union of the churches in the foreign fields should be seriously undertaken as soon as they are able to stand alone, then we are naturally led to the conclusion that those already standing alone elsewhere should hasten to set the example. Are not the home churches sinning by keeping apart? These questions are elicited by looking at one side of the matter.

Looking on another side, we are led to inquire, if in America and elsewhere we are divided on principle, and carrying on our work in the way we believe best adapted to spread the gospel, is there any reason why our principles and methods of government should not be planted and maintained in the foreign fields? In other words, if any form of Methodism is justified in maintaining a separate jurisdiction, is it not justified in maintaining its identity anywhere and everywhere? Divisions in America have not retarded our growth. Why assume they hurt us abroad?

The Methodisms of Japan have agreed to unite. This was brought about by the two strong churches giving in to the demands of smaller bodies of Methodists, some of whom maintain a kind of hybrid episcopacy, and others a so-called democratic form of government. Thus our own missionaries, and those of the M. E. Church, have sacrificed the chief glory of Methodism for the sake of a union which, if Dr. Winton is correct, will "soon enough" be disrupted. We can not agree with Dr. Winton when he says, "We need concern ourselves but little whether the future Methodism of China or Korea is episcopal or congregational." We are much concerned. We do not desire to see the foundation weakened. If episcopacy is worth anything to us at home, it is worth something abroad. We do not propose to agree to its surrender there until it is abandoned here.

A GREAT UNDERTAKING.

Our church has put on foot a movement second only to the work of raising money to convert the world. We refer to the action of the last General Conference in authorizing an endowment fund for the support of our superannuated preachers and the widows and orphans of deceased preachers. The undertaking commends itself to the consideration of every thoughtful and grateful soul in our church. The very thought of raising such a fund ought to burn itself into the brain and heart of every active itinerant preacher. These preachers some day will die, and leave helpless his wife and little ones, else he will grow old and decrepit, and need assistance. Let us keep this sacred fund in mind. Read the statement of the Trustees found in another column. This statement will be read before every Annual Conference in the church. We hope our lay brethren will not overlook the matter. The Agent, Dr. A. F. Watkins, will soon enter upon his work. Let us give him all necessary encouragement.

BOOK NOTICES.

MAN AN ETERNAL PROBATIONER. By Rev. Green P. Jackson, of the Tennessee Conference, M. E. Church, South. Price, $1. Address the author, 1722 Joe Johnston avenue, Nashville, Tenn.

The design of this book is to show that "the destinies of men are not unchangeably fixed at death." According to the author's view, men "retain in undiminished measure and strength all the possibilities, privileges, and responsibilities for changing their character and condition" in the future world that they have in this. Those who die impenitent may, by repentance and faith, turn to God through Christ, and be saved from hell; those who die in the faith may apostatize and lose their place in heaven. This possibility of change may continue indefinitely. Hence man is an eternal probationer. It is but justice to say that the author, though he believes the views set forth are true, does not assert them "in a dogmatic spirit," or with arrogance, "the chances for mistake and failure being always too many and too great."

Taking the author's view of the nature of man, his environments in this life, his fondness for "the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life," and his proneness to procrastinate, we are bound to believe that, if his doctrine as to future probation should be generally accepted, it would prove the death-blow to gospel work as now carried on by the church. Men would follow the sight of their eyes and the ways of their heart in this life, and take their chances for redemption in the next.

We have read the book with more than ordinary care. The author is highly esteemed as a Christian minister and scholar, but we are constrained to say that he has failed to establish his position. We are sorry the book was written.

UNANSWERABLE OBJECTIONS TO VACCINATION. By Rev. Isaac L. Peebles, of the Mississippi Conference, M. E. Church, South. Seventy two pages. Price, —. Address the author, Wesson, Miss.

The purpose of this little book is to prove that vaccination is a curse rather than a blessing; that instead of preventing small-pox, persons who have been vaccinated are just as liable to take the disease as those who have never submitted to it; and, further, that one who is attacked by the disease, having been vaccinated, suffers more, and is more liable to die from its effects than victims who have never been vaccinated. Besides, the author holds that vaccination itself not only causes useless pain, but often proves fatal. We have never considered the matter in the light presented, and having never read a treatise on the subject, save the booklet before us, we are wholly unprepared to judge of the merits of the controversy. Brother Peebles, whom we esteem very highly, presents strong objections, backed by many incidents. The author strongly insists that "the secret of preventing the small-pox is rigid cleanliness of person and surroundings, healthfulness of the body, pure air, and plenty of it, and to rigidly let vaccination alone."

PERSONAL.

Rev. J. H. McCoy, the newly elected editor of the Alabama Christian Advocate, is doing excellent work on the paper. The Publishing Committee made no mistake in electing him to succeed the lamented Dr. Urquhart.

Misses Minnie and Elizabeth Cowan, of Oxford, Miss., members of the faculty of the North Texas Female College, after a pleasant vacation, have resumed their duties. They returned to Sherman in time to take part in the opening exercises of the school.

Rev. W. M. Young, presiding elder of the Corinth district, is closing the third round of quarterly meetings. He has spent much time helping the brethren in their protracted services. He says, "We have had great meetings." He will shortly give us a full report.

A note from Rev. R. L. Webb, of Red Bluff, Cal., formerly of the Mississippi Conference, informs us that his beloved wife "fell on sleep" on Sunday, Sept. 7, after a brief illness of pneumonia. We extend our sympathies to Brother Webb in his great affliction. Some friend will give us a memoir.

Rev. Clarence B. Strouse, after a Summer campaign in the East, including a time at Ocean Grove Camp Meeting, where he was successful, expects to labor with a number of Louisiana pastors during the coming Winter. He is well known in Louisiana, where his work has been blessed in the past.

Rev. W. H. Hill, who was located at the last session of the Louisiana Conference, has joined the Baptist Church. He was immersed, and preached his first sermon as a Baptist at Alexandria on Sunday evening, the seventh of September. We wish Brother Hill much happiness and success in his new home.

Mrs. M. E. Hawkins, of Hattiesburg, Miss., announces the marriage of her daughter, Lula Travis Hawkins, to Mr. William B. Jones, at high noon, Thursday, the eighteenth instant. We acknowledge receipt of an invitation to the nuptials. Not being able to attend, we send our good wishes. May the union be a happy one!

Mrs. Browning, wife of Rev. W. T. Browning, of the North Mississippi Conference, died in Memphis, at eight o'clock in the evening of Sept. 11, and was buried the Saturday following at Lauderdale, Miss. We have no further particulars. Brother Browning's many friends will mingle their tears with his in this sad bereavement. A memoir, we hope, will be furnished us in due time.

Mississippi Orphans' Home.

The annex to the Mississippi Orphans' Home has been completed, and it adds much to the convenience and comfort of the Home, making the work much lighter and more satisfactory. It has one hundred and fifty-one feet of gallery; hall, 12x36; kitchen, 20x22; ironing-room, bath and press-rooms. The building is neatly done, and as cheaply as could be done anywhere. The range is on a solid brick foundation, with good flue in chimney, thus lessening the danger of fire to the minimum. The building is paid for. And now we begin the work of lighting, and equipping these rooms with sinks, bath-tubs, etc.

The Executive Committee have decided to put in apparatus for heating the Home with hot water. Part of the rooms are not heated, and the others have grates and stoves. The hot water will be less dangerous, more comfortable in the large dormitories, and much less expensive after it is once in. We will need help to do this. We have worked and trusted God for what has been done, and will continue on this sure foundation. We have over one hundred little ones, and must prepare for their care during the Winter. The crop is being gathered. Our boys are hauling hay. Have just made two barrels of sorghum. Our school will open the fifteenth with over eighty scholars and two teachers. Bro. Alexander continues as principal.

We trust our brethren and friends will not fail to remember our Home by giving a Sunday for a collection. Help us heat the building. Send us a few barrels of molasses, or anything else valuable in such a work. These little ones look up to you three times daily for food, and for raiment and training. The Lord has blessed us, and will continue to lead us. W. T. GRIFFIN.

Mississippi Conference.

To All Presiding Elders, Preachers-in-Charge and Sunday school Superintendents in the Bounds of the Mississippi Conference—

DEAR BRETHREN: Dr. Walter R. Lambuth, Missionary Secretary, calls attention of all parties who ought to be interested to "the third Sunday in October, which has been set aside by the Board of Missions and the Sunday school Board as a Rally Day for foreign missions in the Sunday-school." Dr. Lambuth has "had a very carefully prepared sixteen-page programme printed, with songs and recitations, and containing much late missionary information. These programmes are sent out free of cost." A request on a postal card from pastor or superintendent addressed to Dr. Lambuth, 346 Public Square, Nashville, Tenn., will bring all the programmes needed by any Sunday-school or pastoral charge.

Yours faithfully,

T. L. MELLEN,

Miss'y Sec'y for Miss Conf.

GRIM FIGURES PROVE the death-rate among children in Summer, an anxious time for mothers because bowel troubles are rampant. What a mercy it is that we have Perry Davis' Painkiller to save our little ones.

Forest District, Mississippi Conference.

DEAR DOCTOR: I send the following items from the Forest district:

The Rev. W. H. Lane, L. P., supplying Edinburg circuit, reports house of worship at Alice ready for use, but not completed. He began a meeting there last Sunday.

The Rev. M. L. White reports a gracious meeting at Conway Church, Carthage circuit; eleven accessions, eight by baptism and three by vows.

The Rev. D. C. Langford reports a great revival at Garque Chapel, Trenton circuit, where he was assisted by the Rev. R. A. Breland—the best meeting Bro. Langford was ever in. 'Eight accessions, ten children baptized, quite a number converted, a good number reclaimed, and over thirty-five of the best people professed entire sanctification, and the collections raised."

The Rev. J. H. Foreman writes: "Our revival at Rose Hill continues. . . . So far my meetings have been the best I have held on this charge." This is his fourth year.

The Rev. Dr. Irvin Miller, L. E., supplying Harperville circuit, reports a revival at Oak Ridge School-house, where he was assisted by Murdoch McDonald, L. E., and F. A. Lane, L. P. Many conversions, etc., and ten accessions.

Jno. D. Ellis, P. C., Forest circuit, reports many conversions, reclamations, etc., but only two accessions at Pulaski Church. He was assisted by Jno. W. Crieler, P. C., Newton and Hickory. Fruits meet for repentance were brought forth.

Yours faithfully,

T. L. MELLEN, P. E.

Indian Mission.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Allow me, as agent of Indian Mission, to report the following amounts since my last report:

Mrs. N P. McPherson, Jackson, Miss	$5 00
A Friend	5 00
Mrs. W. W. Cammack	5 00
Dr. E. P. Partin	5 00
Ladies' Home Mission Society, Jackson, Miss	7 55

Many thanks for above amounts, and may God graciously bless the givers!

Now, let others please send, as we need means very much to successfully carry on the work. Let all the friends of the mission that have not already contributed send something at once. Let's push the good work until all the Indians are saved. Bros. Mellen and Donnell are earnestly laboring for their salvation. Why not hold up their hands? God will bless us if we do, and then the saved Indians will rise up at the judgment and call you blessed. Send by registered letter or money order on Lorman, Miss. Send to me at Lorman, Miss.

A. D. MILLER.

Forest District.

For good and sufficient reasons, but in no wise reflecting on his moral or Christian character, the Rev. R. L. Phillips has been by me removed from the pastoral charge of the Raleigh circuit, Forest district, Mississippi Annual Conference, M. E. Church, South, and the Rev. N. B. Young put in charge thereof until the approaching session of the Annual Conference.

To the Pastors of the Meridian District.

DEAR BRETHREN: The Sunday-school Committee met at Enterprise, Wednesday, Sept. 10, and appointed the leaders, or managers, of the three sub districts as per notice in ADVOCATE, of Sept. 11. Those leaders are:

For the Northern district—Prof. F. R. Peterson, Daleville. For the Central district—J. B. Holland, Meridian. For the Southern district—Prof. J. M. Watkins, Quitman.

Brother pastor, please get in touch with the leader, or manager, of your sub-district; correspond with him; assist him in arranging for Sunday-school rallies.

Let the preachers, superintendents, and all interested in Sunday-school work, labor and pray that a greater enthusiasm in this branch of the church's work be created, and the next annual Sunday-school Conference in the Meridian district be the most profitable in its history.

Yours in the work,

F. B. ORMOND.

East Mississippi Female College.

This college has by far the brightest prospect it has had at any opening in its history. We have students from nearly every Southern State, and some Northern and Western States. We have been compelled to enlarge the dining-room in order to seat them all at one time. We have spent several hundred dollars overhauling buildings, repainting, papering, calcimining, adding new blackboards, new desks and new apparatus.

A new and important feature has been added which means much to the young ladies entrusted to us. I refer to the lady physician, Dr. Sara A. Castle, whom we have just employed as resident physician. Dr. Castle is a native of Mississippi, a graduate of Cornell Medical College, New York; studied in the Baltimore Medical College, and has taken post-graduate work in Johns Hopkins University. She has also been hospital physician in Baltimore for quite awhile, is a woman of great learning and experience in her profession. She is a Methodist, and gave Bishop Galloway as her strongest reference. She will live in the college day and night, and always be ready to look after the health of the girls, and help to prevent sickness rather than cure it. "A stitch in time saves nine," says the old adage. Dr. Castle, being a woman, can make plain talks to the girls and give them advice that a man could not well give to timid girls, which will be of untold value to those entrusted to us. We also have a regular nurse, besides the matron, in case of sickness, and it would be difficult to find a college in our church, or in any other, that is better equipped to look after the health of the girls.

Our out-of-door drill, besides being unique, adds much to the health of the college, as well as giving grace to the carriage of the girls.

We are better equipped than ever before to do good college work of a high order.

We thank our friends for their past favors, and ask them to continue to pray and work for us. We are in the Lord's hand to do his will in all things. J. W. BERSON, President.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Quite a number of our subscribers have sent in their renewals and asked for a new Discipline. About one-third of the number will not receive the book for the reason they do not comply with the terms of our offer. If you are one of those who are disappointed, we ask that you turn to our offer and read it carefully. You will, doubtless, find that you failed to pay up to date and to send $2 for a year's subscription in advance from the date of your remittance.

Personal to Subscribers.

WE WILL SEND to every subscriber or reader of the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE a full sized ONE DOLLAR package of VITE-ORE, by mail, POSTPAID, sufficient for one month's treatment, to be paid for within one month's time after receipt, if the receiver can truthfully say that its use has done him or her more good than all the drugs and doses of quacks or good doctors or patent medicines he or she has ever used. READ the cover again carefully, and understand that we ask our pay only when it has done you good, and not before. We take all the risk; you have nothing to lose. If it does not benefit you, you pay us nothing. VITE-ORE is a natural, hard, adamantine rock like substance—mineral—ORE—mined from the ground like gold and silver, and requires about twenty years for oxidization. It contains free iron, free sulphur and magnesium and one package will equal in medicinal strength and curative value 800 gallons of the most powerful, celebrated mineral water, drunk fresh at the springs. It is a geological discovery, to which there is nothing added or taken from. It is the marvel of the century for curing such diseases as Rheumatism, Bright's Disease, Blood Poisoning, Heart Trouble, Diphtheria, Catarrh and Throat Affections, Liver, Kidney and Bladder Ailments, Stomach and Female Disorders, La Grippe, Malarial Fever, Nervous Prostration and General Debility, as thousands testify, and as no one, answering this, writing for a package, will deny after using. Give age, ills and sex.

This offer will challenge the attention and consideration, and afterward the gratitude, of every living person who desires better health, or who suffers pains, ills and diseases which have defied the medical world and grown worse with age. We care not for your skepticism, but ask only your investigation, and at our expense, regardless of what ills you have, by sending to us for a package. You must not write on a postal card.

THE

Reliance, Virginia.

This Old and Well Established School enjoys an enviable reputation among its cotemporaries. The success of its many graduates and students in the different vocations of life bears practical testimony to the merits of its work.

Departments: Preparatory, consisting of the Common School branches, etc. Teachers' Normal; English; Scientific; Philosophic; Classic; Commercial; Shorthand; Typewriting; Telegraphy; Music, Instrumental and Vocal, including Voice Culture, etc. If you do not find what you want in the above list, write us and we shall promptly tell you just what we can do for you. We offer a wide range of subjects, and can usually satisfy every demand.

Expenses: Tuition, including all studies but Instrumental Music, $1.00 per week. Board, Furnished Room and Light, $2.00 per week. Steam Heat, Winter Term, $4.00; Spring Term, $2.00. Tuition, Instrumental Music, two lessons a week, $10.00 per term; one lesson a week, $5.00 per term. Absolutely no extras for any study in any department.

Location: Reliance is an ideal College community, with beautiful, as well as wholesome environments. No saloons, no doubtful attractions to entice the student away from his work, or to induce him to waste his money. It is a cultured Christian community, furnishing the very best of influences for rectitude and morality. We look after the morals as well as the intellects of our students.

Buildings and Improvements: The College building is a large three-story structure designed especially for the purpose. There are separate dormitories for young woman and young men. The ladies' rooms are carpeted. The dining-room, library, chapel, and recitation-rooms, on the first floor, have recently been papered, which adds very much to their beauty.

Business Education: Our Commercial Department is one of the best in the State. The fallacy of the claim made by some Commercial Colleges, that a Business Department in a literary school can not be made a success, is fully demonstrated by the results of our work. This success is secured by placing this department under a special supervising principal, who is peculiarly equipped for the work, and who gives his personal attention to it.

EMORY COLLEGE, Oxford, Ga. 1836. 1902.

Oxford is situated on a high ridge in the healthiest section of Middle Georgia, where there are no local causes to breed sickness. The college will continue to make every possible effort now, as in the past, to send forth young men well furnished in physical strength, in mental training, and in zealous Christian character. Courses leading to the three degrees, A. B., Ph. B., and S. B., are designed to lay broad foundations for any walk in life. After the Sophomore year opportunity is given for the election of studies in the direction of the student's special aptitudes. The central dining hall will offer good food at actual cost, not to exceed eight dollars per month. Furnished rooms are let at one dollar per month for each lodger. This system is under the immediate supervision of a member of the faculty, who is assisted by a competent matron. Necessary expenses for the entire college course, per annum, within $175. Artistic Monuments

Cost no more than plain ones in White Bronze. Marble is entirely out of date. Granite eventually crumbles back to Mother Earth. Besides it is very expensive.

White Bronze is strictly everlasting. It can not crumble with the action of frost. Moss growth is an impossibility. It is more artistic than any stone. It has been adopted for nearly one hundred public monuments and by thousands of delighted customers in all parts of the country. We have designs from $4.00 to $4,000. The company ship them to any address. Send me a postal card, and I will call at your home with my designs.

Leisure.

It is not forgotten that the denial of leisure to themselves, on the part of the greater number of men, is obedience to that force which is the foundation of all social order, the parental instinct. Look anywhere and you shall see the hardest workers to be seen with gray in their beards. It is certainly the first duty of every man and woman who brings a family of children into the world to devote themselves to that family's maintenance and welfare. But, after the preservation of health, in what does the welfare of a family of children chiefly consist? Its right instruction, that is to say, the fitting of them to use their faculties for the best advantage when they shall have become men and women. In this matter of instruction it is insisted that the most important part is that which is received at home. Herein American parents are greatly at fault. They have no time, if happily they have the capacity, to direct their children's perceptions and tastes, or to regard that unconscious education contained in their own example. Home practice is not made the standard. In short, education is esteemed a thing to be provided by the State, or to be bought when the time comes, an idea which is turning us into a nation of vulgarians. A man contending against poverty and ignorance must perforce leave to others the education of his children, if they are to be educated at all. He generally has all he can do to keep their mouths filled and their backs covered. If, by persistent toil, he succeeds in raising them out of his own hard condition, he deserves well of society; he has done what he could. But a man intelligent and well-to-do, whose life is made a perpetual grind in order that a family of children may be provided with luxuries or fashionable diversions, or great estates, though in obedience to the same instinct as in the other case, does not deserve well of society, and his sacrifice is to his offspring more often a curse than a benefit. He would have deserved better the regard of everybody concerned had he made himself his children's guide, companion and friend, though he left them no legacy but the trade or profession to which they were best adapted by nature, and the knowledge of how to see and to feel and to think. On the minds and bodies of the existing race, more than on their pockets, depends the excellence of the race to come.

A family which gives more care to social and intellectual employments than its neighbors is an educating and refining force in the community to which it belongs. The possession of leisure does not, to be sure, always make certain of such care being thus bestowed, but it removes what is too often the excuse for its neglect—the absence from the social atmosphere of anything to encourage it.

Education and refinement distract a man's power from the getting of gain, so often to the ignorant and the unrefined the only resource. They teach men how much there is in the world which can not be bought, and that too little causes no more unhappiness than too much. Choose whichever you will—the struggle to have or the struggle to do without; there is escape from neither, and both are pain. They are but acute and chronic forms of the same disease. But the man who strives to do without has this inestimable advantage over the man who strives to have—the gods fight upon his side. If he is defeatdd, it is always his own fault, and if he wins, nothing can deprive him of his winnings. "He that lives according to reason shall never be poor and he that governs his life by opinion shall never be rich; nature is limited, but fancy is boundless."—The Forum.

Be Tidy.

"Yes, it pays to be particular in little things," said Mrs. James to Elsie, who had just finished dusting the parlor. "See, dear, you forgot the piano entirely, and I do not think the music cabinet has been touched.

"You see, dear, I want you to grow to be a useful and tidy woman. To some it is a natural habit, with others it is acquired, earned after years of perseverance."

Elsie laughed and replied: "I do not think you will have much trouble training our little Elizabeth. Everything must be in its proper place, and the child is really not happy until it is there. You remember when she was sick last Spring she had places for everything and would follow us with her eyes, protesting if we did not place them there. One day I placed her napkin-ring on the bureau. 'Put it on the stand, Elsie; it belongs there,' she said."

"Do you know the chief charm about that young friend of yours, Anna Jarrett, who calls here so often? Even Tom has noticed it, and father speaks of her always as 'that nice little girl.'"

"You know Anna is very pretty," said Elsie.

"Yes, dear, I know, but that is not where her principal charm lies. The girl is always so faultlessly neat that, meet her where you may, you are always sure to look after her again. Take that dress she had on to day; it was of ordinary material, but it was neatly made and there was not a spot or speck of dust on it. Her hands were gloved, and when she uncovered them I noticed her nails were faultlessly kept. The neat little tie about her neck did not wrinkle or slip from its proper place. There had been a high wind, but her soft brown hair was in perfect keeping with her attire. My eyes fell upon her shoes; they were like the rest of her attire."

"I wonder what there is about Anna Jarrett," said Tom; "there are never any rough or loose ends about her."

"That is just it," I said, "and is the secret reason of her looks. One button off, one untidy glove, one spot on the dress, and the pleasing effect would be lost.

"It is easy enough to cultivate the habit now, dear, but by and by, if you neglect, it, it may become one of the lost arts. You must not begin by wearing your hair in a loose and tumble-down fashion, your gloves out at the fingers, your shoes with buttons lacking or improperly laced, your collar fastened with ordinary pins, visible to every eye, and your veil with a hole over the nose and chin.

"You see, dear, I want to teach my daughter the good old-fashioned rules of tidiness, so that she may never blush or be ashamed to meet the most critical observer."—Sarah V. DuBois, in Christian Intelligencer.

A Little Woman of the People.

She was a sweet-faced, gray-haired little woman of rather more than seventy, with some foreign tinge in her words of inquiry which attracted the young woman in the next seat.

"Not stop at Shelby? Too bad! I must have taken the wrong train. Not that I am lost, though," she laughed. "I have never been lost yet."

"Yet!" echoed the girl. "Perhaps you have traveled far?"

"I have just come from Ireland," was her smiling reply. "When I am really old I think I shall go back there."

Further conversation revealed the fact that the little lady had traveled all over Europe, Asia, Africa and America. She did not go as most travelers think necessary, with guides and friends. She could not afford that. Everywhere she had lived with the common people. Where they slept on the ground she slept on the ground. She washed her clothes with them in the streams and cooked with them over desert fires. For a year and a half at a time she had not seen her trunk. She learned the language wherever she went.

"May I give you a little picture?" she asked, as the young woman reluctantly prepared to leave the train. "I painted this twin flower, as I found it, far up in the Arctic circle of Norway. Linnæus selected it to bear his name, and the Norse love it as the New Englanders love the arbutus. It is the harbinger of Spring. May it bring you good luck, dear! Good-bye."

Some months afterward, in a university town, the girl learned the history of her chance acquaintance. The lady had been a factory girl in a New England town. One day some painted screens were brought in, and she laughed at their art. The overseer of the room said there were two hundred still unpainted; she might try her hand at them. With no further experience than a box of childhood paints had given her, she did some flower panels which secured her instant promotion.

Browning has told us of Pippa, a little mill girl of Italy, going forth to enjoy her sole holiday of the year. She envies the great, although reflecting that "all service ranks the same with God." How can she possibly affect the world? As she passes certain great personages, her songs come upon their hearing at critical moments, changing, by suggestions of goodness and courage, their whole lives.

To this New England factory girl a painted flower was the entering wedge of a new life. Through country after country this other Pippa passed, seeking the native flowers. So accurately did she paint them that botanists used them for analysis and classification. Their sale enabled her to continue her studies and travels. Kings and queens received her and heard her story. Everywhere she tried to bring a touch of sweetness and light to the lives she transiently touched. In the waste places of the earth she dropped, like Pippa, accidental seeds of courage and strength. She differs from Pippa, however, in that her story is quite true and some readers of The Companion may, like the present narrator, meet the sweet-faced, gray-haired little lady as she travels through the world. — Youth's Companion.

Why I Attend Church in Warm Weather.

I attend church in warm weather because:

The Lord has said we should not neglect the assembling of ourselves together. (Heb. x, 25)

The Lord has promised "where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them." (Matt. xviii, 20.)

I expect my pastor to be there, and should be surprised if he were to stay away on account of warm weather.

My presence is more needed in the services when there are but few than when the house is crowded.

No matter what station I hold, my example will influence others. If I stay away from the services, others may be influenced to do so.

If I have important business, warm weather does not keep me from attending to it, and church attendance is, in God's sight, very important.

If warm weather does not stop the pleasure seekers, it should not stop me in seeking the glory of God and the highest good of my soul.

If I attend in warm weather, I show my loyalty to Christ and the church.

If it is not too warm for the pastor to preach, it is not too warm for me to sit still and listen.

I hope to receive good and do good.—Rev. J. W. Neyman, in Standard.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

ANOTHER NOTICE.

Requests for special copies of the ADVOCATE come to us so often that they are burdensome, and we again remind our friends that in making such requests they must send FOUR CENTS for each copy. We can not afford to "send bill," as we are sometimes asked to do. Please, friends, bear these things in mind.

By many years of constant study and experiments, I have perfected a simple, harmless vegetable remedy that will quickly cure all female diseases, as well as the piles. It is nature's own remedy, and will not only relieve, but will absolutely thoroughly and permanently cure the ailments peculiar to women, such as falling of the womb, leucorrhea (whites), displacements, ulceration, granulation, painful or scanty periods, irregular menstruation and all the pelvic ills of women. It positively cures rectal ulcers, piles, hemorrhoids, tumors, itching, blind or bleeding piles in either sex. It cures promptly, privately, and permanently without the repugnant methods in general use by physicians. You can escape embarrassing examinations, avoid humiliating exposures, cheat the surgeon's knife out of baptism in your blood.

The treatment is so simple, mild and effectual that it will not interfere with your work or occupation. Thousands and thousands of letters are being received from rateful persons from all parts of the world who have been cured by the use of this remedy. The first package is free, send for it—send to-day. I know that a fair trial of it will result in your becoming its enthusiastic advocate and friend. With it I will send literature of interest and value. Do not neglect this opportunity to get cured yourself and be in a position to advise ailing friends.

Dissatisfied with the above offer and not upon it at once. It is me e in the sincere hope of aiding you and spreading the knowledge of a beneficent boon to sufferers. Earnestly, hopefully, faithfully, Mrs. CORA B. MICHEL, 46 Comstock Bldg., Kokomo, Ind

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

Great Mistake

Many women are "down" on washing powders. They tried some, were dissatisfied, and claim that all powders are poor. This is wrong. PEARLINE is not like other powders. Test it for washing. Compare the soap paste made from PEARLINE with that made from any other soap powder or washing powder. 672

OBITUARIES.

Obituaries of 200 words published free. For all words in excess of that number send one cent per word.

Mrs. SALLIE P. MOORE was born in Oglethorpe county, Ga., Feb 19, 1840, and died Aug. 11, 1902, at 3:40 A. M. With firmness and courage her pure spirit passed through the trying ordeal of death, and took its flight heavenward. Her last words, when told that she was dying, were, "I leave it all in the hands of the good Lord." Soon she was calmly and peacefully "asleep in Jesus." She joined the Methodist Church at the age of fifteen, and led a pure consecrated Christian life always. In contemplating her past life from girlhood to womanhood, as sister, daughter, wife, mother and friend, we are impressed with the thought that a truer, more courageous and constant woman in all the relations of life never made an impress or wielded an influence on the human heart. As sister, she was affectionate and helpful; as daughter, reverential and dutiful; as wife, constant and true; as a mother, tender, devotional, and self-sacrificing. The Good Samaritan spirit pervaded her whole nature. She was ever ready to lend a helping hand to the poor and needy, and administer to the sick and suffering. A life well spent is a crowning jewel in the kingdom of God. Those who miss her loving ministrations, and long for the touch of a vanished hand and for the sound of a voice that is still, need not be sad and despondent, but may rejoice that the beautiful hands are at rest, and know that on the early morn of Aug. 11, when the great King of heaven was preparing to flood the earth with the glorious light of another day, that hers was a glad and glorified spirit wending its way to "a home not made with hands," a home eternal in the heavens, prepared for those who die in the Lord. L. M.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from our midst and transplant into the heavenly kingdom our beloved friend and pupil, ANNIE B. HAND; therefore, be it

Resolved, 1. That while we are deeply grieved at our loss, and our hearts are sad and aching at this mysterious dispensation of Providence, we humbly bow in submission to God's will, knowing that some day we will understand its wisdom.

2. That we commend to the pupils of this school and the young people of the community the life of this pure Christian girl as one worthy of imitation. Prompt in her attendance on the services of the sanctuary, lessons carefully prepared, always ready to respond cheerfully to any call made upon her by her church or Sabbath-school, upright in walk and conversation, true to her church vows, her example is one to be emulated by all.

3 That we extend to the bereaved family our sincere and deep sympathy, assuring them that this school greatly deplores the loss of one so faithful and true.

4. That these resolutions be spread upon the Minutes of the Sunday-school, a copy furnished the family of the deceased, and a copy sent to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

HER TEACHER.

Unanimously adopted by Shuhuta, Miss., Sunday-school, M. E. Church, South. THOS. A. LEDYARD, Superintendent.

Mrs. BEULAH BALL LEWIS, daughter of Bro. and Sister B. B. Lewis, was born in Marion county, Miss., Nov. 15, 1869. She was converted at China Grove Camp Ground in 1879, and joined the M. E. Church, South, at Water Holes Church. She, with her husband, moved her membership to Columbia early this year. She was married to Charlie C. Barnes in October, 1887, and died at the home of her parents in Columbia, Aug. 19, 1902, of Bright's disease. Sister Barnes leaves two boys and two girls, husband, parents, three brothers and one sister to mourn their loss. Converted at ten years old, and having lived a consecrated Christian life, she was ready to go. She had no fear of death, but rather welcomed it. She suffered long, but patiently. She was faithful in all her house. She served the Lord Christ through her family and others "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." W. M. WILLIAMS.

Miss MARY J. NASH, the subject of this notice, was born in 1834. She joined the Methodist Church in Patterson, La., Nov 27, 1854, and died of heart trouble, July 18, 1902, aged sixty-eight years. She lived and died under the old parental roof, where I knew the whole family before the Civil War, living a peaceful, happy life. It was a Christian home—parents and children consecrated to God; but death has made sad inroads in the family since those sunny days. One by one they are being removed to the other home in the kingdom of our Father. What a joyous reunion in the "house of many mansions!" Miss Mollie was a thorough Methodist, in theory and practice. She was a consistent, devoted Christian, faithful to church service, a substantial friend to the preacher's family. The family, the church and the community have sustained a great loss. We weep not as those without hope. We look to a happy meeting "in the sweet by-and-by."

JNO. A. MILLER.

MYRTIS LOUISA, of John's, Miss., died May 25 1902, aged twenty-three months and six days. She was the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Gates, the joy and light of a loving household. After a brief earthly sojourn her gentle spirit was borne by ministering angels to the paradise of God. It is not the will of him who doet all things for the best that one of these little ones should perish. They are lambs of the upper fold, faultless before the throne, and jewels on the Savior's diadem. May God, in his infinite mercy, comfort the heart-broken father and mother, brother and sisters! Farewell, dear Myrtis, till we meet again. We shall think of you in heaven's fair courts, with the light in your eyes of love eternal. NANNIE MURRAY.

Mrs. C. C. YOUNG (nee Monroe) was born Nov. 30, 1850 She was married to N. B Young in 1868. From this happy union there are six boys and five girls—all living to mourn the loss of a loving mother, but not as those who have no hope, for Sister Young became a Christian when she was a girl, and lived a consistent life all the time. In her death we see a loss to the church in an empty pew, to the neighborhood a vacant chair at the sick-bed, to husband an affectionate and loving companion gone, and to the children a mighty counselor. Oh, for more such faithful living! May the God of mercy comfort the sorrowing ones!

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result; and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Mrs. Fred Unrath.

"I am pleased to give my experience with Wine of Cardui as I am very grateful for its help. After my first baby was born I could not seem to regain my strength, although the doctor gave me a tonic which he considered very superior, but instead of getting better I grew weaker every day. My husband came home one evening with some Wine of Cardui and insisted that I take it for a week and see what it would do for me. As he seemed to have so much faith in it I did take the imedicine and was very grateful to find my strength slowly returning. In two weeks I was out of bed and in a month I was able to take up my usual duties. I am very enthusiastic in its praise."

MOTHERHOOD is the noblest duty and highest privilege women can achieve or aspire to. Without this privilege women do not get all there is in life—too often they go through the world discontented, wrapped up in their own selfish cares and troubles. How different is the happy mother, watching her children grow into manhood and womanhood. A mother lives as many lives as she has children—their joys and sorrows are hers, as are their ambitions, triumphs and defeats. Healthy women do not suffer miscarriage nor does a woman who is healthy suffer tortures at childbirth. It is the woman who is ailing who has female weakness—who fears the ordeal of becoming a mother. Wine of Cardui builds up the womanly in a woman. It stops all unnatural drains and strains—irregularities which are responsible for barrenness and miscarriage. It makes a woman strong and healthy and able to pass through pregnancy and childbirth with little suffering. After the ordeal is passed the Wine prepares a woman for a speedy recovery to health and activity.

Wine of Cardui, in re-inforcing the organs of generation, has made mothers of women who had given up hope of ever becoming mothers. Wine of Cardui will cure almost any case of barrenness except cases of organic trouble. How can you refuse to take such a remedy that promises such relief from suffering? Wine of Cardui simply makes you a strong woman, and strong, healthy women do not suffer. They look forward to motherhood with joy.

A Chance to Make Money.

I have been selling Perfumes for the past six months. I make them myself at home and sell to friends and neighbors. Have made $710. Everybody buys a bottle. For 50 cts. worth of material I make Perfume that would cost $2 in drug stores. I also sold 125 formulas for making perfume at $1 each.

I first made it for my own use only, but the curiosity of friends as to where I procured such exquisite odors, prompted me to sell it. I clear from $25 to $35 per week. I do not canvass; people come and send to me for the perfumes. Any intelligent person can do as well as I do. For 42 cts. in stamps I will send you the formula for making all kinds of perfumes and sample bottle prepaid. I will also help you get started in the business. MARTHA FRANCIS.

How Some of Our Readers Can Make Money.

Having read of the success of some of your readers selling Dish-washers, I have tried the work with wonderful success. I have not made less than $9.00 any day for the last six months. The Mound City Dish-washer gives good satisfaction and every family wants one. A lady can wash and dry the dishes without removing her gloves and can do the work in two minutes. I get my sample machine from the Mound City Dish-Washer Co., of St. Louis, Mo. I used it to take orders and sold 12 Dish-washers the first day. The Mound City Dish-Washer Co. will start you. Write them for particulars. Ladies can do as well as men. JOHN F. M.

RALLY DAY.

The third Sunday in October has been designated as Missionary Rally Day for the Sunday-schools. A suitable programme has been prepared, and it is important that all our schools should be supplied, and duly observe the day. Superintendents should order a supply at once, and put their schools in training. The Mission Rooms will furnish the programmes free of charge. Address Mr. G. W. Cain, Nashville, Tenn.

R·I·P·A·N·S

I suffered terribly for years with heartburn and sick headache. My husband had used Ripans Tabules for indigestion with great success. I used two of the 5 cent cartons and have not had an attack of heartburn since. Whenever I feel the headache coming on I take one Tabule, and if taken in time it always has the best results. I consider R.I.P.A.N.S a blessing to the rich and poor alike.

HAPPY HENS MEAN PROFIT!

"BOSWELL'S 20th CENTURY POULTRY HOUSE" is a little book which describes the most convenient, practical, and well-appointed hen-house ever devised—gives plans, with precise instructions for building. Cheap to build, but so planned as to revolutionize poultry-keeping. Thousands cared for with ease. The author has the house in practical operation. Lice and mites cannot exist in this house. Doubles winter egg yield, by making hens happy. Book tells how to handle hens in winter, gives positive ration for winter eggs, and other things you ought to know about hens. Order at once, or you will surely wish you had when cold weather comes to nip your egg yield. PRICE, FIFTY CENTS.

Glances at the World.

Another trust! Why not? This is the day of trusts, and one class has as much right to enter into a combination as another. The trust just born is the farmers' trust, and is incorporated in South Dakota as the Farmers' Co-operative Association, with a capital of $50,000,000. The stock is being placed, as far as possible, in the hands of farmers, and a sufficient amount has already been subscribed to assure the success of the enterprise. "That the concern was in process of formation has been known for some time, but all details were kept secret. Now that the organization is finished, this secrecy has been abandoned." The organizer says: "The farmer will be benefited in two ways. In the first place, we shall control the output. The entire crop will not be thrown on the market at once. We shall hold it in reserve whenever prices are such that it can not be profitably sold. It will be distributed along, month by month, so that the supply will at no time exceed the demand. In the second place, we shall eliminate the middle man. As the farmers will own the stock and manage the company's affairs themselves, all the profits will go back to them. Within a year we shall be in control of the entire agricultural output of the United States. There is even a prospect that the enterprise will assume an international character." Arrangements are now being made to appoint agents among the farmers at important points in the West where the crops will be handled. This trust will be watched quite as closely as any other combine, and if it succeeds in benefiting the farmers, it will give other trusts a firmer hold on the country.

The Hon. D. B. Henderson, Speaker of the House of Representatives, has set the tongues of politicians to wagging, and greatly disturbed his party friends in Iowa, by suddenly withdrawing from the race for re-election. The announcement was wholly unexpected. The cause of his withdrawal is disagreement between himself and his party on the tariff question—the question mainly involving the manner of dealing with the trusts. Speaker Henderson's view is, that the tariff ought to be left undisturbed, and power be invested in Congress to deal with and control the trusts. His party in Iowa, it seems, stands for such a revision of the tariff as will decrease the profits of the trusts, and thus tend to check the trust evil. Mr. Henderson's view is expressed in these words: "I am not in harmony with a great many of the Republican voters, who believe that free trade, in whole or in part, will remedy the trust evil. I believe that it will not, but that such a remedy is likely to involve the nation in dangerous results. . . . You can not kill the trusts by applying free trade without killing our own industries. The foreign trusts are fighting the American trusts, and I don't believe that, for the purpose of controlling American trusts, we should make a market for foreign trusts, thereby crushing out the industries of this country." The sentiment which Speaker Henderson opposes is evidently spreading in the Republican ranks—a view midway between the extreme doctrine of protection on the one hand, and free trade on the other. It may have something to do in deciding the elections in November.

There were two great surprises recently. One was the surprise of President Roosevelt on Sunday, the fourteenth instant, when in his presence Rev. Dr. Washburn, an Episcopal clergyman, in a sermon said that Mr. Roosevelt had come providentially to the presidency, comparing him to David, who reached the throne of Israel "through the judgment of God." The Reverend Doctor said much else in reference to the President, especially in regard to his attitude towards the trusts, all of which the President regarded as out of place. He was both surprised and displeased. But Mr. Roosevelt was not more surprised nor displeased than millions of Christian people were at the President's conduct on Sunday, the seventh, when he reviewed the troops at Chickamauga Park, and did what looked very much like "a race to see who could get there first." The Sabbath-loving and Sabbath-keeping people of our country were greatly shocked that the President, who belongs to one of the strictest of the sects, thus did violence to the holy day. He set an example that will not be soon forgotten. The influence will be hard to overcome. The example will be put in rebuttal whenever we undertake to interfere with Sunday base-ball and other so-called innocent amusements on the Sabbath.

Secretary Hay, last week, addressed a note to the European powers in behalf of the Roumanian Jews, who have been subjected to many forms of persecution, not the least of which has been the denial to them of the privilege of making an honest living. They have endured much, but no voice in all the East has been raised in their behalf. Secretary Hay's letter of protest is a credit both to his head and heart, and reflects the sentiment of the people of the United States, who are always on the side of the down-trodden and oppressed. The letter was in no sense a threat, not being addressed to Roumania, but to the heads of governments who signed the treaty of 1878. It will have a moral effect, in that it will direct attention of the civilized world to the abuses complained of. Public sentiment goes a long way towards correcting public abuses. The letter has attracted wide attention, and the British Government has already communicated with the signatory powers of the Berlin treaty. The Jews everywhere have hailed the letter with joy, reminding the Bible reader of the rejoicings of the Jews when the plot of wicked Haman was discovered and frustrated. Without disturbing the peace of Europe, we devoutly hope Mr. Hay's note will have its well-meant effect.

Westward Bound.

BY DR. WALTER R. LAMBUTH.

To the Montana Conference, at Butte, by way of Chicago. Bishop Duncan has gone on to dedicate a church. The Illinois Central carries one from Cairo through an agricultural region noted for its corn, but suffering, though not so much, from the same drouth which has literally scorched and burnt Kentucky and Tennessee in spots. Were it not that our country is so vast in territory and resources, and so thoroughly gridironed with railroads, we must suffer as India and China have during the last ten years. But, thanks to a Providence which has secured us ample space for expansion, almost every food product on the globe, and facilities for transportation, we need not, with reasonable care, see famine stalking abroad in the land.

If the dispatch in the Chicago Inter-Ocean, of Aug. 24, from Jackson, Miss., is correct, both the Mobile and Ohio and the Illinois Central are putting forth effort to establish colonies of Northern home-seekers. I met some of these farmers who have been prospecting in the South. They represent a sturdy class, full of energy and thrift, and will bring their skill and strength to the development of the "fifty per cent. of land" in Mississippi not under cultivation. It seems that seventy-eight families have been induced by one agent to move into the State this year. These are largely families of clerks in wholesale houses in Chicago "who have saved up a little money and desired to go into the truck-farming business;" a class without experience and a species of farming which is overdone, but they are good people, and should be looked closely after, especially by our pastors and members of Conference Boards of Missions. Some are already Methodists; others will become so if cordially welcomed in the outset. The Illinois Central is trying to secure a large body of land in Claiborne county for such people, and the Mobile and Ohio proposes to purchase a tract of 50,000 acres of prairie land in the northeastern part of the State.

Lake Michigan is refreshing to the eye after miles upon miles of dried cornstalks. How wise to arrange for parks and lawns along the lake front! Chicago, in her mad-cap race for wealth, has not altogether forgotten the debt she owes to her segregated thousands. In several drug stores I saw collection boxes, in which pennies, nickels and dimes could be deposited for outings by land and water for weary mothers and sick children.

It was pleasant to have Dr. J. D. Hammond and President Murrah meet me at the station. I am fortunate in having the company of the former to the Conferences in Montana, Washington, and possibly on the Pacific coast. Long may Millsaps College flourish under the administration of the genial, but vigorous personality of its president.

The morning paper has a column on the percentage of attendants upon religious services last Sunday, under the caption, "One in Six at Church." Over 200,000 people went to the 666 churches. Of these 80,844 were men and 123,723 women. This in a population of 1,868,433, including children. The reporter closes with the statement that "the large attendance at the Roman Catholic Churches is somewhat surprising at first thought, but this is accounted for by the fact that all the different masses during the day are counted in, and also by the fact that the attendance of Roman Catholics at church is compulsory in a large degree. Some of the churches counted had as many as six masses." It is customary with this church to give itself credit for everything in sight, but it is very unusual for so honest a statement to appear in a Chicago paper. The Windy City is on the up-grade. Bishop Galloway would do well to continue his ministrations.

Letter from California.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: We left Mississippi for California one month ago yesterday. We came on the Knights of Pythias excursion rates. Our first day out was from Okolona, Miss., to St. Louis. Cotton fields ceased to be in evidence after we had gotten well up into Tennessee. Wheat stacks and threshing machines then appeared, with increase of corn acreage as we went further North. Mrs. A. was reminded of the fact at Cairo that we were in Illinois by the coming in of some negro women to take seats in the ladies' car.

We spent Sunday pleasantly in St. Louis, the boys and I attending service at Centenary Church, where we heard Dr. Young, the pastor, preach. I met here also Bro. Cunningham, who claims to be the oldest Southern Methodist in the world. He came to see us in the afternoon, and kindly helped us to find the Baptist Infirmary, where we found Mississippi friends.

We came via Kansas City and St. Joe to Denver over the Burlington Route. The great corn fields of the Missouri prairies, and river bottoms, and vast stretches of cultivated land and stock range in Nebraska, were the principal sights of one day.

We took the Denver and Rio Grande train at Denver, and got to Colorado Springs about noon, where we stopped off two days. I found here Dr. Wesson and family, whose pastor I was on Olive Branch circuit when they left Mississippi for Colorado, four years ago. I also found another DeSoto county friend, Mr. Alexander, with whom I journeyed up Pike's Peak afoot. I was not strong enough to get to the top, but made it above the timber line. The walk blistered both my feet. One of them is not well yet, after four weeks. Am laying up now trying to cure it.

We came on by Salt Lake and Ogden to Sacramento, where we spent a Sunday. Here Mrs. A. and the children saw on the capitol grounds their first ripe oranges on the tree, and were strongly tempted to break the eighth commandment. I attended service at our church at eleven o'clock, hearing a good sermon from Rev. P. T. Ramsey, the pastor. I tried to preach for him at night. Here the fruit stands appeared on the streets, tempting the hungry pilgrim to buy the "first ripe grapes," any many other fruits.

We spent three days in San Francisco. Found that climate too cool for comfort. Rev. E. J. Harper, an old-time friend (our pastor there), showed us no little kindness, giving us a day as escort to points of interest about the city. He is genial, courteous, hopeful, as of yore. Our Centenary Church there is a gem of its kind. I have never seen anything just like it in the way of church architecture. God give it gracious increase. Bro. Vaughan, editor of the Pacific Methodist Advocate, was out of the city at first, but I found him on our third and last day there. He has his hands full, and is making a good paper.

Our next stop was in San Jose, where we spent a week. Rev. H. C. Meredith is our pastor there—antiquarian as well as preacher. I was greatly interested in his curios, relics, and books. He gave us a drive to Alum Rock Park, seven or eight miles distant from San José, and kept up by the city. It is in a deep canyon, and with its springs of soda and sulphur water, its rippling stream and abundant live oak trees, makes an ideal retreat from busy toil and care. Our church is in the heart of the city here, up-stairs, with business-houses beneath, and seems to be doing well.

We came on then to Lompoc, where they felt the earthquake's heavy shock a month before. Here I served as pastor nearly fifteen years ago. Many of the friends remain. Some have gone on, and some are far away. The children then are men and women now. Our church is being beautified without and within; so I missed worshiping in the house, but not with the congregation, which occupied the Christian Church that day. Bros. Rucker and Gragg were our hosts, and we greatly enjoyed our stay.

We made a stay of two days in Los Angeles, the guests of that loyal layman, Ulrich Knoch, who claims that I was the first man who ever called on him to pray in public. That was sixteen years ago. I met all the Los Angeles preachers except my old friend, C. W. Harris; Bro. Thrower, P. E.; Bro. Stellar, pastor of Bellevue: Bro. Fisher, pastor of West End, and Dr. Chapman, pastor of Trinity. Our forces seem progressive and hopeful about this city.

Our next and last stop was Long Beach, down by the "sounding sea"—the great Pacific Ocean. We hear the roaring of the waves through all the waking hours of the night. Here we rest in a little two-room cottage, until our tickets expire, Sept. 25, when we may turn our faces toward Mississippi again. Our people here have a brand-new church, with Rev. T. H. Wilson, a Vanderbilt man, but California-reared, as pastor.

To the People Called Methodists.

It is with every desire to "rise up before the hoary head and honor the face of the old man" that I beg to call Bro. Wier's attention to his misreading of my reply to Bro. Rickey. My article was a protest against changing Seashore Camp Ground from its spiritual mission to a Chautauqua, with its worldly amusements and recreations. That plea remains.

There is also a legal aspect to the matter, which it may not be amiss to consider. Seashore Camp Ground is the property of the M. E. Church, South; Chautauquas, aside from their worldliness, are undenominational associations, under Boards of Managers chosen from various churches. Whether it is lawful to surrender the property of the Methodist Church into the hands of "a joint stock company" (as Bro. Rickey suggests), which will not be subject to her discipline, or under her jurisdiction or control, is a question to be settled, not by individuals, but by the law of the Church, and possibly by that of the State.

FANNIE MINOR MONTGOMERY.

Corinth District.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Since my last report for the Corinth district there have been several very fine meetings. There will be more than four hundred accessions to the church. Both the Guntown and Kossuth charges will reach the hundred mark; and the Booneville circuit, also the Mantachie circuit, under the leadership of Bros. Carlisle and Sargent, will push one hundred close each. Several other charges have had great revivals, but not so many accessions. One specially gratifying fact is, most of the accessions are on profession of faith. The financial condition is encouraging at this time as compared with other years. Two or three charges are not in first-class condition. Five new church-houses have been built, and plans are being set forth to build others. The brethren are pushing the collections; most of them are hopeful.

L. W. Cain, at Kossuth, has had a sweeping revival in every church on his charge. He has four of the most prosperous Epworth Leagues I have seen. It is generally conceded that the assessments made against the church will be paid in full on the Kossuth circuit. This will be marvelous, since the wealth of the church at Kossuth has been decreasing for years by removals and death; and since the charge has not paid these assessments, this shows what real revivals and good generalship will do.

The Culture of Missionary Workers.

It is felt more and more by missionary leaders that the Study Class in the Epworth League is the most important missionary education in the church. Here an abiding missionary conviction is produced in the hearts of the young who are soon to become the leaders of the next generation. As yet the great masses of our members have scarcely touched with the tip of their fingers the supreme question of missions. No one can overestimate the importance of having at least a few of our young people in each congregation study this subject thoroughly, so they may become missionary educators and leaders. If this is not done, how will it ever be possible for the next generation to keep up the work that the Mission Board is so largely planning for the future?

At present the Missionary and Epworth League Departments are making an earnest effort throughout the church to organize mission classes. If as many as even three or four persons in a League can be induced to study missions, let a class be organized by all means. The missionary text-book in the League Reading Course is, "Great Missionaries of the Church." The classes will begin about the first of October, and outline studies will appear in the Era weekly till the course is completed. Special arrangements have been made in the Mission Rooms to mail letters from missionaries direct to classes each week with other helps for class work. When classes are organized, the name and address of the teacher should be sent to me at once, that there may be no delay in mailing letters and helps for studies.

Encouraging!

I have been wanting an excuse to say something about the Twentieth Century Fund. Bro. F. P. Jinkins, Aberdeen, Miss., has furnished it by sending me his check for one hundred dollars. The money is already at work. Let many like amounts come from others. Some large subscribers have delayed paying, saying they did not want the money to be lying up in bank. Let all such subscribers pay at once; the money will be put to immediate use. The need is urgent, and the good to be accomplished beyond calculation.

Protestantism is making such headway in Rome—right under the shadow of the Vatican—that the Pope is becoming alarmed, and, it is said, is giving the matter his personal attention. He intimates that the Methodists are too aggressive. But, happily for Methodists and other evangelical Christians, the Pope has no jurisdiction outside of his own grounds, and can do nothing more than object. And what is better, the people of Rome are not at all alarmed. They patronize the church and the schools, leading citizens lending their aid in the work. The King himself, who is a Roman Catholic, interposes no obstacles. All this is encouraging.

INFANT BAPTISM—No. 17.

BY AN ITINERANT.

SECTION IX.

The last quoted extract was dated A. D. 253.

A. D. 210. "For this also it was that the church had from the apostles an order to give baptism even to infants." (Origen, "Com. on Rom.")

A. D. 210. "Besides all this, let it be considered what is the reason that whereas the baptism of the church is given for the forgiveness of sins, infants also are by the usage of the church baptized." (Origen, "Homily on Levit.")

"Origen was born at Alexandria about eighty-five years after the death of St. John. His father, grandfather, and great-grandfather were Christians. It is likely the Origen family were brought into the church by St. Mark, and the elder branches were for many years contemporary with the 'faithful men' whom that evangelist placed over the Alexandrian church. Origen himself was a very learned man, and he had lived in Greece, Rome, Cappadocia, and Arabia, and for a long time in Syria and Palestine. Surely, if anyone knew what was apostolic doctrine on the subject, Origen must have known." (Summers.) He says, "The church had from the apostles an order to give baptism even to infants."

A. D. 193. "But they whose duty it is to administer baptism, are to know that it must not be given rashly. . . . Therefore, according to everyone's condition and disposition, and also their age, the delaying of baptism is more profitable, especially in the case of little children. For what need is there (if there is need) that the godfathers should be brought into danger? Because they may either fail of their promises by death, or they may be mistaken by a child's proving of a wicked disposition. . . . For no less reason unmarried persons ought to be kept off, who are likely to come into temptation, as well as those that never were married, upon account of their coming to ripeness, as those in widowhood, for the miss of their partner: until they either marry or be confirmed in continence." ("Tertullian on Baptism," chap. xvii.)

Tertullian took it into his head that sins committed after baptism can not be forgiven. So he advises a delay of baptism for infants, the unmarried young, and the widowed, and, in fact, all who are likely to be greatly tempted, until they are old, unless they are securely established in virtuous habits, or are in danger of speedy death. This is all he intended. He did not, in any sense, deny the right of children to baptism, as the opposers of infant baptism try to make appear. Let the reader study the passage and see for himself. However, had his object been to renounce infant baptism, his very language shows that it was then the practice. The Apostle John had been dead about forty-five years when Tertullian was born.

A. D. 180. "Giving to his disciples the power of 'regenerating unto God,' he said unto them, 'Go and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit.' For he came to save all persons by himself: all, I mean, who by him are regenerated (or baptized) unto God; infants, and little ones, and children, and youths, and elder persons." (Irenæus adv. "Heresies," Wall, Vol. I., p. 38.)

Irenæus was a disciple of Polycarp, who was intimately acquainted with St. John. Irenæus was born about the time of the death of that apostle.

A. D. 140. "For in the name of God the Father and Lord of the universe, and of our Savior Jesus Christ, and of the Holy Spirit, they then receive the washing with water." "And many, both men and women who have been Christ's disciples from childhood, remain pure at the age of sixty or seventy years." (Justin Martyr, "Apology," Wall, Vol. I., pp. 35, 36.) "In 'Questions and Answers to the Orthodox,' ascribed to Justin, occurs this passage, in keeping with the foregoing: 'The children — infants—of the good are deemed worthy of baptism, through the faith of those who bring them to be baptized.'" ("Summers on Baptism," p. 34.)

These persons mentioned by Justin were made disciples twenty or thirty years before the death of St. John—in the time of the apostles. It was then in infancy they received baptism.

A. D. 59. "And I baptized also the house ('oikos,' family) of Stephanas, besides which I know not that I baptized any other." (Paul, I. Cor. i, 16.)

A. D. 53. "And they said, Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house ('oikos,' family). . . . And he took them the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes, and was baptized, he and all his straightway." (Luke, Acts, chapter xvi.)

A. D. 53. "And a certain woman named Lydia, a seller of purple, of the city Thyatira, which worshiped God, heard us: whose heart the Lord opened, that she attended unto the things which were spoken of Paul. And when she was baptized, and her household ('oikos,' family), she brought us, saying, If ye have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come into my house, and abide there." (Luke, Acts, chapter xvi.

A. D. 33. "Repent, and be baptized, 'everyone of you,' in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. For the promise is unto you, and 'to your children,'" etc. (Peter, Acts, chapter ii.)

A. D. 33. "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of God. Verily I say unto you, Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein. And he took them up in his arms, put his hands upon them, and blessed them." (Jesus, Mark x.)

A. D. 33. "Go ye, therefore, and teach 'all nations,' 'baptizing them' in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." (Jesus, Matt. xxviii, 19.)

We have now traced infant baptism, century by century, back through the past up to the giving of the commission by Christ; nor do we find one break in the chain of evidence, nor a single link missing. Nowhere this side of Christ do we find a period when it was not known or practiced by the church. And no one, for more than 1,500 years of the Christian era, ever intimated that it was an innovation thrust upon the church by designing and scheming men. Had the Anti-Pedobaptists one-tenth part as much evidence to authenticate their pretensions to church succession from John the Baptist and Pentecost, we should never have seen for the first time in history the names of the "Baptist" Church in 1641, and the "Campbellite" Church in 1827. No fact of history is better authenticated, or more fully verified, than is the divine origin of infant baptism.

Apostasy Viewed from the Strongholds of Calvinism.

BY REV. J. M. DEAVENPORT.

"I am the vine, ye are the branches." (St. John xv, 5.)

The basis of this statement is, that the church is an organism; Jesus the vine, his people the branches. In the vine, from which this analogy is taken, the same life that animates the vine permeates the branches; so the central truth here is, that the "Christ life" alone identifies us with him and makes us one. The object of all life is fruitfulness. "First the blade, then the ear, then the full corn in the ear," is the divine order. The branch with life, and no fruit, is but the "fig tree" awaiting the timely curse. Life the branch must first have, and then growth; but life without fruitfulness is purposeless perpetuity, a travesty on existence. A living contact with a living Christ gives life, and life thus given, if retained, must result in fruitfulness. Life everywhere is essential to, but does not always result in fruitage. In nature the life of the branch does not depend upon the fruitfulness of the branch. The fruitless branch thrives along with the fruitful branch; its safety depends entirely upon the vigilance and wisdom of him by whom it is dressed. This is not the case, however, in the divine life. The "Christ-life" is given "for" and retained "by" fruitfulness. In the church of God fruitfulness insures the life, and not the life fruitfulness. That the fruit sustains the life of the branch, and not the life of the branch the fruit, is another eternal paradox, like unto, "He that loseth his life shall find it." So a man can not say, I have "the life," and hence the "fruit," but, I have "the fruit," therefore, the "life." "Ye shall know them by their fruits." Fruitfulness, then, guarantees life to the branch, and not life fruitfulness in the branch.

The "seed" (Mark iv) that fell into good ground "did yield fruit that sprang up and increased." Life here resulted in fruitage that perpetuated itself; produced more of the same kind, in ratio proportioned to capacity. The "seed" that fell by the "wayside," upon "stony ground" and "among thorns," which was three-fourths of all that was sown, was wasted. That by the "wayside" never came to life; that on "stony ground" and "among thorns" sprang up; had life, but, for reasons given, no fruit. The same kind of seed was sown—the environments of a nature conducive to life and fruitage. In one instance the "seed" were taken away before they had time to sprout; in two other instances the "seed" sprang up and withered, or became unfruitful, not for want of "soil" sufficient to insure germination, but for want of "depth" of soil to sustain life—produced by the "seed" in contact with environments essential to propagation.

The depravity and diversity of human character is under the symbols, "wayside," "stony," "thorny" and "good" ground. Character (soil) was plentiful, but "strength" to tower above enemies, and "root in themselves" depth of character (soil) to sustain life, when possessed, is required to bring forth "fruit unto perfection." Fruit not brought to perfection is worthless, in that it does not contain the element of propagation.

These parables, the "vine" and the "sower"—the two in which our Lord lays down the inexorable law of life in Christ—focus on the same truth—i. e., that usury on the life imparted is demanded if the life is retained. The quantity of fruit insures the safety of the branch; abundant fruitage results in the "abundant life." The branch that had no fruit was deprived even of that which it had—i. e., life. The "soil," for whatever reason, that failed to sustain the life of the "seed" to fruitage "is rejected, and is nigh unto cursing; whose end is to be burned." (Heb. vi, 7-10.)

The "unfruitful branch" did not "die," or "rot off," in the vine—there can be no death or putrefaction in the body of Christ—but expended its life—vital force—upon itself in foliage, fibre, etc.—misleading evidences of fruitfulness. The luxuriant appearance of the "fig tree" caused our Lord to expect fruit thereon. The fruitless branch was "taken away," not on account of any evidence of decay, blight, etc., but because of life, wasted life. Life failed in the purpose intended. "If a man abide not in me (fruitfulness the condition of abiding), he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered." The "withering" occurred after the branch was "cast forth." This is proof positive that the branch was alive when taken away, for a dead branch can not "wither." And men gather them—the cast-off branches once in the vine, but now withered and dead, because the living contact has been severed; they have nothing to draw life from—and cast them into the fire, and they are burned. Observe, the fruitless branches are twice "cast off"—cast forth from the vine, and men "cast them into the fire."

Now, let the basic truth set forth in these parables be held firmly in mind: that fruitfulness in the branch insures life to the branch: for upon this our Lord bases a statement that unlocks all, and clears the situation. It is this, "My Father is the husbandman." The Father alone, then, has divine oversight over the vine and branches. Paul (Rom. xi, 17) says God, the husbandman, cut off the natural branches and grafted others in. Jesus and Paul, then, agree that the prerogative of "grafting in" and "taking away" belongs exclusively to the Father. "Every branch in me that beareth not fruit, my Father taketh away." "The kingdom of God shall be taken from you and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof."

"Once in Christ, always in Christ," is the impassable gulf that divides Calvinism and Arminianism. Calvinists assert that life in Christ is all that is necessary to insure salvation. Arminians go farther, and contend that we must not only have life in Christ, but fruitfulness also. Barrenness, we claim, forfeits, and fruitfulness insures the life. The bulwark of Calvinism is found in St. John x, 27-29, and reads thus: "My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me: and I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any pluck them out of my hand. My Father, which gave them me, is greater than all; and none is able to pluck them out of my Father's hand."

Now, with our Lord's statement before us, "My Father is the husbandman," I submit that by no law of language or correct exegesis can the above Scripture be twisted so as to support, "Once in Christ, always in Christ." It does not intimate it, but exactly the reverse. The twenty-seventh and twenty-eighth verses say, those that "hear my voice" and "follow me" are "my sheep," "and I give unto them—my sheep—eternal life, and they shall never perish." "Following Jesus" is "fruit-bearing," and as has been shown, fruit-bearing insures "eternal life," "and they"—so long as they bear fruit—"shall never perish, neither shall any pluck them out of my hand." "My Father" (the husbandman), "which gave them me" (grafted the branches into the vine), "is greater" (more powerful) "than all; and none is able to pluck them out of my Father's hand." There is no occasion for "any" to pluck them out of Jesus' hand, since he gives them into the Father's hand. Note, Jesus concludes by leaving them (the branches) in the Father's (husbandman's) hand. This clinches his statement that the Father alone is the husbandman, exercising unchallenged supervision over the vine and branches, whose divine prerogative it is to "graft in" and take away.

All that is stated here is, that the husbandman "grafts in" and "takes away" the branches, and Jesus tells us that the "Father is the husbandman," and that he does and will take away "every" unfruitful branch. He does not intimate that the Father can not take them away, but that none other can. This is exactly what we claim.

Rom. viii, 35, is another stronghold: "Who shall separate us from the love of Christ?" Nothing is really said here about separation "from Christ," but from the "love of Christ." God is love. Love is essential to his being. God loves because he can not help loving. Separation "from Christ," and separation from the "love of Christ," are entirely different and distinct. "God so loved the world," and yet the world was separated from him. The apostle does not ask, Who shall separate us "from Christ"? but inquires if tribulation, famine, distress, etc., suffered for the sake of Christ, cause him to love us less. "Nay," he says, "all these things tend to endear us to him," and then contends that death nor life, angels nor principalities, etc., nor "any other creature, shall be able to separate us (not from Christ) from the love of God in Christ Jesus." Nothing separates us from the love of God. God's love follows the lost into the "depth" of eternal despair. If it is contended that separation "from Christ" is meant by the apostle, we add, then, it is positively against the doctrine of, "Once in Christ, always in Christ;" for the apostle says, after reaching the climax, "Nor any other creature shall be able to separate us." He does not say that God (the husbandman) can not separate us, but that none other can. This is exactly what Jesus says, and Paul elsewhere, and for what we contend.

Apart from these two passages of Scripture, which at first glance, and from a casual rendering, seem to support, "Once in Christ, always in Christ," there is not another full, complete and explicit statement in the Word of God that in any way countenances the position. I say full and complete statement. There is a questionable method—relied upon solely by those who espouse this fallacy of wresting Scripture out of its connection, using detached portions, putting part of a statement for the whole statement (a method not allowable by any law of language known to me)—that does violence to the Scriptures, and which the apostle says is "handling the Word of God deceitfully" (i. e., so as to deceive), by which we can prove anything. For instance, "There is, therefore, now no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus," is an example of detached Scripture. There is absolutely no such statement in the Word of God; yet who has not heard Calvinists preach, striving to prove, "Once in Christ, always in Christ," from this detached phrase? The above words are in the Bible, but they are only a part—a small part—of a statement made by the apostle. To take part of a man's statement, and put it for the whole of his statement, touching any question, is unjust. But when it comes to eternal issues, upon which immortal destinies hinge, incalculable ruin is wrought. It places both the author of the statement, and those for whom it is intended, in a false light.

Woman's Home Mission, North Mississippi Conference.

[Conducted by Mrs. W. M. McIntosh.]

The annual meeting of the Woman's Foreign and Home Mission Societies of Sardis district was held at Senatobia on the fourth and fifth of September. The first night was given to the Home Mission department, and quite an attractive programme had been arranged. Devotional exercises were conducted by Brother Shumaker, of Como. He read for a lesson the fifteenth chapter of John, and compared the different branches of the vine to the missionary societies. The address of welcome was given by Miss Laura Raiford. Miss Julia Jones being absent on account of the illness of her father, her response was read by Mrs. Thames, of Cold Water. Little Miss Ruth Coleman, of Como, gave a beautiful and touching recitation, after which we had the pleasure of listening to a very interesting and instructive address by Mrs. Clemmie Short, district secretary of the Home Mission Society. She spoke of the wonderful work this organization was doing—caring for the needy preachers, educating the poor and ignorant classes, sending the gospel to the Chinese, Japanese and Cubans in our own country; aiding parsonages, etc. A collection was taken for incidental expenses.

Friday morning, at nine o'clock, the business session of the Foreign Missionary Society was held. Dr. Sullivan led in prayer. Mrs. Thames conducted an informal experience meeting, and asked each one present to tell what the work in the missionary societies had done for them, spiritually. There were many bright and touching testimonies given. Next, the societies of the district were called by Mrs. Varner, district secretary, and the delegates enrolled. Reports were called for, and read, which showed some progress on all lines, though there is much room for improvement. The question as to whether or not it is best to hold the district meeting in connection with the District Conference, was discussed, and it was finally decided by vote to let it remain as formerly. A paper was then read by Mrs. Lee Lipscomb on, "Why Should a Woman Be Interested in Missions?" It was moved and seconded that this paper should be sent to the New Orleans Advocate for publication. After various discussions about the work, how to increase interest, etc., the meeting adjourned until 2 P. M.

The afternoon was devoted to the business of the Home Mission Society. After devotional exercises, reports from the societies were called for. An excellent paper on the supply work was read by Mrs. Wall, superintendent of that department. She spoke of the great work that was being done by this branch of the society in sending boxes to the needy preachers out West, etc. Mrs. Thames and Mrs. Short next organized a Home Mission Society, with ten members and four subscribers to Our Homes. Miss Maggie Gann, who has the Myra Smith scholarship, read a good paper expressing her appreciation of the scholarship, and telling about the work done by the training-school. It was decided to have this paper published in the New Orleans Advocate, and also in the county papers. Resolutions were read by Mrs. Wall thanking the people of Senatobia for their kindness and hospitality. These were adopted by a rising vote, and the district missionary meeting adjourned until next year.

Mrs. N. D. Lipscomb.

Missionary Meeting, Mississippi Conference.

The district meetings of the Home Mission and Foreign Missionary Societies of the Mississippi Conference, Brookhaven district, will be held at the same time at Wesson, Oct. 11 and 12, 1902. Let each auxiliary send a delegate, and every pastor in the district is very earnestly requested to have his charge represented.

Let us pray that our coming together may result in much good. Send in the names of your delegates at once to Mrs. I. L. Peebles, Wesson, Miss.

Daleville Circuit.

The battle of 1902 is not yet ended. We have had some glorious victories. Our last report included the closing scenes of the protracted struggle at Linwood. On the second Sunday in August we opened fire and set siege on the emissary at Concord, the results of which were reported by Bro. Jones. We next planted our batteries at Andrews Chapel. Rev. W. W. Simmons, P. E., fired the first gun on Saturday, Aug. 16, at 11 o'clock. Rev. W. W. Moore engaged the enemy at 3 P. M. the same day. Sunday, Aug. 17, Rev. W. W. Simmons led our host at 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M. On Monday morning Rev. F. B. Ormond came to us and faithfully battled until Thursday night, when we closed with two accessions by certificate. The preaching by those brethren was good, and was earnestly done.

On Sunday, Aug. 24, with Bro. Ormond to direct our forces, we laid siege to the enemy at Soule Chapel. The Lord manifested his presence and power; so that the church was greatly revived, and we captured five souls for the Lord. Bro. Ormoud is a promising young preacher.

We were then called to assist Rev. L. J. Jones at Suqualena, where we fought sin, two battles a day, for four days; but with little visible results. The enemy is very strongly intrenched at this point. Almost everyone is in the two churches, Baptist and Methodist, but religion seems to be an unknown quantity with the majority of them.

On Sept. 7 your scribe opened fire on the enemy at Big Oak. Rev. B. W. Lewis came to us Monday morning, and stayed until Tuesday evening; preached us four good sermons. Then the preacher-in-charge had to lead the forces again, and closed Thursday evening, with the membership graciously revived and nineteen additions to the church at this point. We set out for fifty accessions and collections in full. We have had fifty-eight accessions to date. Now for the collections, and as many more souls as possible. We give God all the glory for victory. We ask the prayers of our brethren. P. H. Howse, P. C.

To combat the enemies of truth show them the example of humility, patience, religion and all the virtues.—St. Dominic.

An Ancient Foe

To health and happiness is Scrofula—as ugly as ever since time immemorial.

It causes bunches in the neck, disfigures the skin, inflames the mucous membrane, wastes the muscles, weakens the bones, reduces the power of resistance to disease and the capacity for recovery, and develops into consumption.

"A bunch appeared on the left side of my neck. It caused great pain, was lanced, and became a running sore. I went into a general decline. I was persuaded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and when I had taken six bottles my neck was healed, and I have never had any trouble of the kind since." MRS. K. T. SNYDER, Troy, Ohio.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

will rid you of it, radically and permanently, as they have rid thousands.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

Conducted by N. A. MOTT, Yazoo City, Miss.

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

North Mississippi Institutes.

We were glad of the opportunity, last week, of filling our column with notices of the two Institutes to be held in the North Mississippi Conference—one at West Point, from Monday night, Oct. 13, to Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 15, and the other at Oxford, from Wednesday night, Oct. 15, to Friday afternoon, Oct. 18. We take pleasure again in calling attention to them, and pressing their claims upon all the Sunday-school workers in that Conference. Our people are wide-awake and intelligent, but their enthusiasm has never broken over bounds along Sunday-school lines. If we can stir them up to good works and arouse their enthusiasm, we will be content.

And there is no reason why these Institutes should not be largely attended. They will be conducted by competent instructors—the best our Southern Methodist Church affords, and the equal of any in the world. They will have something to offer everyone who attends; they will give food for thought; they will teach and illustrate the best methods of work; they will arouse enthusiasm and stimulate to action. To hear Professor Hamill on his favorite themes will amply repay you for a long and expensive journey.

Not the least among the advantages of the Institute is contact with other workers. Wit will sharpen wit, and social intercourse during the sessions will widen our horizon and give us a vision of the larger world. We learn from the experience of others, and give them in fair exchange our own. Possibly some may have no experience to give, but all can have interest and enthusiasm, and impart them to others.

Select your delegates early, and encourage them to attend, or get a substitute. We don't know the basis of representation in the North Mississippi Conference conventions, but we venture the assertion that as many as go will be made welcome. We have never yet known of a crowd being poured in upon any Southern community, on a religious occasion, but what they were properly housed and fed. West Point and Oxford will not be exceptions to the rule, and we hope to hear of their entertaining capacity being taxed to the utmost.

And we earnestly appeal to every Sunday-school worker and scholar in the North Mississippi Sunday-schools, and every well-wisher of the cause in that Conference and elsewhere, to pray earnestly for God's blessing upon these two Institutes. "Without Me ye can do nothing," is as applicable to Sunday-school work as it is in the pulpit. Unless the Spirit is in these Institutes, they will be dull and lifeless. Let us open our hearts in prayer, that the Spirit may come in. We can confidently count upon his presence there, because he has promised it. The only question is, Will the workers there place themselves in the right attitude, so that the Spirit can work in them and through them?

"More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of," and the Sunday-school teachers who fail to avail themselves of the power of prayer will not be successful. And certainly in the larger field covered by the Conference, prayer is also necessary. The Institute stands for training in consecrated paths, and without prayer will accomplish nothing. Would to God we could arouse all our brethren to a day of special consecration and prayer for this work.

MANTACHIE.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: As this is my fourth and, of course, my last year on Mantachie circuit, will give you a short report of the work to date. I am indeed glad and thankful to say this has been the best and most successful year of the four. For three years we have had many disadvantages to contend with, and have some yet; but, thank God! he has moved many of them out of the way, and the work of the Lord has prospered greatly this year. Our congregations have been good most of the time. We are working, praying, and trusting to be able to make a good report at Conference.

May God bless you and the dear old ADVOCATE! As ever,

Yours in Christ,
L. T. SARGENT, P. C.

COLUMBIA CIRCUIT.

DEAR ADVOCATE: We have had a fine revival at Hopewell, ten miles south of Columbia. Bro. M. H. Moore, of Madison Station, Miss., assisted me. God's presence was with us from the first service till the last. Many were saved; a large number of the members reconsecrated themselves to Christ, and began family and public prayer; fourteen family altars were erected; fifteen joined the church on profession of faith. This meeting has been a blessing to the whole community. We praise God, and continue the work with renewed faith and zeal. We have had an accession of ninety-two members, and more applications pending. W. M. WILLIAMS.

FOREST DISTRICT.

DEAR BROTHER: About this time last year the Rev. M. L. White held a week's meeting in the neighborhood of Alice P. O., Neshoba county, Miss., in that section which had been abandoned by the Mississippi and never accepted by the North Mississippi Conference, and organized a church of sixteen converts, including some of the most prominent men in the neighborhood. Rev. W. H. Lane, L. P., has had charge of that congregation as part of the Edinburg circuit this year. He helped the brethren cut the timber for the saw-mill; helped them frame and cover and sent a very neat house of worship built after one of our neatest Church Extension Plans.

Bro. White writes me, Sept. 15: "Am just back from Alice, 12:30 to-day. . . . We had a great victory. Have a beautiful church-house. Sunday seated 175 people; 50 turned away. . . . I preached twelve times. Sunday evening I received sixteen into the church: all grown people; one Baptist preacher. Baptized ten of the sixteen. Administered the Lord's Supper, and all the members, old and new, partook.'

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

PELICAN CIRCUIT.

DEAR BRETHREN: I have recently held revival meetings at four points on my work; results very good.

The first one was held at Bethel. My father and brother did the preaching. It was a sweet meeting; some converted, backsliders reclaimed, and membership greatly revived.

The second meeting was held at Williams' Chapel. My father did most of the preaching, resulting in great good. The Holy Ghost was with us in convicting, converting, sanctifying and reclaiming power. The church was greatly revived. We give God all the praise.

The third meeting was held at Benson. Rev. Wilson Moore, of Many, La., did the most of the preaching, which was greatly appreciated by many. His preaching was clear, practical, and with the power and demonstration of the Holy Ghost. The membership was revived to a great extent, some reclaimed, and four accessions to the church. We are greatly encouraged at this point as well as others.

The fourth meeting was held at Mt. Pleasant. The writer did the preaching, as we failed to get any ministerial help, except Rev. J. F. Patterson, who was with us one day. He preached two sermons, which were appreciated by many. This was a real good meeting. The Lord was with us in great power. Several conversions, believers sanctified, backsliders reclaimed, and the membership greatly revived, and ten accessions to the church. We closed this meeting with a Conference collection, which secured the whole of the Conference collection for this point.

All of the above meetings closed with real good interest. We are greatly encouraged with the outlook, and expect to carry up a very good report to Conference.

Yours under the blood,

CHICOT CIRCUIT.

I have just closed a protracted meeting at Bethel Church, which was greatly revived. I heartily recommend Bro. J. G. Sloane, of Glenmora, to anyone needing efficient work. He is pulpit fire. Brethren, pray for us.

W. G. ROBERTS.

PITTSBORO CIRCUIT.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: We have held five of our meetings, with good results. We were ably assisted in two of these meetings (Big Creek and Pine Ridge) by Rev. H. H. Estes, of Greenwood, Miss., who preached to the delight and edification of all who heard him. Bro. Estes is a good preacher, and full of faith and the Holy Ghost.

Rev. H. P. Crowe, of Friar's Point, assisted us at Pittsboro. We commenced in this town the fourth Sunday in August, and continued for eight days and nights, with increasing interest at every service. The fire spread more and more until the whole town was reached; sinners convicted and mourners converted, and the church built up in the most holy faith. The Lord was with us in great power. Bro. Crowe is an able preacher and a good revivalist. He is one of our strongest men; competent to fill any station in our Conference.

Our meetings resulted in sixty conversions, and fifty-six accessions on profession of faith and by certificate. The Lord be praised for his great power and wonderful works.

Yours in fellowship,
JNO. H. ROGERS.

The Wife's Health

Has much to do with the attractiveness and happiness of home. If she is physically harassed and distressed she would be more than human to never complain, never get peevish and cross. Men do not want angels, but wives who are

"Not too bright or good
For human nature's daily food,
Homely pleasures, simple wiles,

To keep husbands loyal, affectionate and home-loving, wives must be companionable, must have part in the pursuits and pleasures of their mates. Any woman can be simply a wife—the marriage ceremony settles that—but to secure loyal and enduring affection she must be more than mere wife, she must be friend, partner, comrade, chum. To do this she must be healthy, strong and able to "keep the pace" with him. Her greatest danger lies in her liability to special derangements from which he is exempt. To guard against this the judicious use of G. F. P. is advisable and it would be prudent and wise to keep it in the house.

G. F. P.—Gerstle's Female Panacea, cures irregular, scanty, too profuse and painful monthly periods; uterine and ovarian irritations; ulcers, displacements and falling of the womb; whites and all unnatural discharges, frigidity, barrenness and all impediments to maternity; also all associate ailments of the private organs of women. At all stages of menstrual life, from budding womanhood until after the changes that end special womanly functions, it is the best friend of and remedy for womankind. Its use strengthens all womanly organs, regulates and renders natural all sexual functions. It is sold at drug stores for $1.00 a bottle. Buy it, try it, and you will find these statements are true, for it is reliable and will not disappoint.

All ladies who are not perfectly right and well in a womanly way should write to the Ladies' Health Club, care of L. Gerstle & Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., for free medical advice and instruction.

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check, ten cents extra will be charged.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1902.

The Christian Intelligencer, one of the best papers in the land, heartily commends the action of the two great Methodisms in uniting their publishing interests in China, and regards the act "as pointing to the time in the near future when the old breach caused in the forties by the slavery question shall have disappeared." But the editor of the Intelligencer misstates the fact of history in saying that the breach was the result of "secession" on the part of the South. The Methodists of the South did not secede. There were irreconcilable differences between the Northern and Southern delegates in the General Conference of 1844, and, by deliberate vote, after long discussion, a peaceable separation was effected, a very different thing from secession. Some leading men ought to read history.

We will not be hard on the college president who said one-half of the white people of the South never hear the gospel until we know exactly what he had in mind. Perhaps he did not say exactly what he meant. He may have been of the "same faith and ardor" as an old gentleman we once met in an Arkansas town, who, after visiting several churches, none of which pleased him, said: "The people about here get a great deal of preaching, but mighty little of the gospel." Perhaps the college president had that distinction in his mind. Nothing is gospel with some men except what they say themselves.

One of our ardent brethren, who believes that the principles of his church are linked by unbroken chains to a certain day beyond Pentecost, says: "The jingling of the Baptist chains sounds like the melodies of angels' songs, and fixes a solid Baptist foundation for our Baptist feet to stand upon." The idea of such chains jingling! If they are strong enough to hold up, or hold down, or to make a solid foundation, they might clank, never jingle. But there is a jingle in the brother's words. If he aimed to produce a jingling, he succeeded. No matter about the rhetoric.

Good wishes never yet fed the hungry or clothed the naked. Religion that goes no further than to offer a suffering brother the will for the deed is as worthless as savorless salt. It is good for nothing. "If a brother or sister be naked, and destitute of daily food, and one of you say unto them, Depart in peace, be ye warmed and filled; notwithstanding ye give them not those things which are needful to the body: what doth it profit?" St. James believed that a Christian's sentiments should be backed by a life of good deeds.

PREACH THE WORD.

A Presbyterian Church as reported by one of the papers, being in need of a pastor, selected a certain applicant "because he possessed a thorough knowledge of the Holy Scriptures." This was told as a compliment to the preacher, as though it is something remarkable for a preacher to know the Word of God. We think the action was quite as much to the credit of the congregation as it was complimentary to the minister. Not every congregation would allow their votes to be turned in favor of a man by such a consideration, if he had other qualifications demanded by so-called up-to-date churches. The probability is, many would prefer a man with more knowledge of worldly things and less of the Scriptures. Indeed, we have heard of one preacher being wholly discounted because he "did not know a thing about ping-pong." This, of course, is not real history, but serves to show that some people hold peculiar views as to the qualifications of pastors.

Now, we take it for granted that the preacher alluded to, who captured a congregation because he knew the Scriptures, also preached the gospel according to the Scriptures, and that the people liked it so. Not every preacher who has an extensive acquaintance with the Scriptures preaches a scriptural gospel. Not every congregation will tolerate it. Congregations sometimes allow their religion to degenerate into formalism; they lose the life and power of the gospel, and become offended at the plain truths of the Word of God, and set about to find teachers after their hearts. We are sorry to say they can always be accommodated. This is nothing new in the church, nor was it unforeseen. St. Paul saw it, and warned the ministry against it. "The time will come when they (the people) will not endure sound doctrine: but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears; and they shall turn away their ears from the truth and shall be turned unto fables."

It is a preacher's business to resist the people whenever they make demands on him to compromise the gospel. He can not compromise without sin. In doing so, he endangers his own soul and the souls of his flock. The preacher is commanded to "preach the Word," to be "instant in season, out of season;" to "reprove, rebuke, and to exhort with all long-suffering and doctrine." Our Lord knew what the world needed when he sent out the apostles to preach—not only what men needed then, but what they would need all along through the ages, and hence he made the obligation to preach the gospel as he delivered it perpetual. We have no intimation that the gospel would change with times and seasons, or that the needs of humanity would ever become other than what they were when he preached to the wicked Jews. In fact, we are told that the attitude of men toward the gospel will be exactly the same at the time of the judgment as it was in the days of Noah. That faithful prophet preached and warned the people, but they "ate and drank, and married and gave in marriage, to the very day he entered the ark." "So," says Jesus, "shall the coming of the Son of man be." A very clear intimation is this that human nature is the same in all ages, and that the gospel, as preached by Christ and his apostles, is to save through all time.

Any inteligent individual, preacher or layman, can see that any departure from the simple gospel is a useless expenditure of time and strength, so far as the conversion of sinners is concerned. Learned essays on scientific subjects may impress a crowd with the preacher's ability; a talk on ethical culture or the importance of elevating the race through the education of the masses may appeal to the few who believe education is a panacea for all human ills; or a sensational harangue, destitute of every element of gospel preaching, may attract a crowd and raise a hurrah, but such preaching does not convict sinners, nor edify believers. A preacher is untrue to his Lord who gives way to pressure, and undertakes to regale his people with "enticing words of man's wisdom."

Preach the Word, is the divine command. It is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. Jesus, the same yesterday, to-day and forever, is the central figure, and "him crucified" the rallying cry to be sounded through all the ages. Nothing else will attract men to the gospel. A Christless gospel is no gospel. A young preacher, after a pulpit performance, in the presence of an old and wise one, asked his opinion of the sermon. The answer was, "It was a very poor one." "Why," said the young man, "that sermon cost me much time and thought. Why do you pronounce it a poor one?" "Because there was no Christ in it," said the old preacher. The young man, to justify himself, replied, "There is no Christ in the text." "All texts in the Bible lead to Christ," was the rejoinder. If all preachers would keep that thought in mind, and preach nothing but Christ, the cry of barrenness of the pulpit, which is now being sounded, especially with reference to many city charges, would cease.

If leading preachers depart from the simplicity of the gospel, and none hold on to "the old-time religion," except those who are classed as "the rank and file," it will not be long until public sentiment, even in the country places, will brand them as out of date and useless. But we do not believe such a calamity will overtake the church. There will be a sufficient number left, good and true, whom the church can trust to counteract the evil influence of those who would lead us astray. And these will be followed to victory. Amen!

THE CRAFT IN DANGER.

The widespread uneasiness of the brewers and distillers, and the active measures they are taking to counteract the work of prohibition, brings vividly to mind the great scare of Demetrius, and his frantic efforts to kill out the effect of St. Paul's preaching at Ephesus. The apostle was long making headway in the idolatrous city, but when the tide set in, it looked as if the whole town would accept the new doctrine. "Fear fell on them all, and the name of the Lord Jesus was magnified." The Word of God grew mightily and prevailed. No small stir was created, and this man Demetrius, a silversmith, who had accumulated wealth by making silver idols for the worshipers of Diana, was in great dread, lest his business should be destroyed. In his great anxiety he called together his fellow craftsmen, and said "Sirs, ye know that by this craft we have our wealth. Moreover, ye see and hear, that not alone at Ephesus, but almost throughout all Asia, this Paul hath persuaded and turned away much people, saying that they be no gods, which are made with hands: so that not only this our craft is in danger to be set at naught, but also that the temple of the great goddess Diana should be despised, and her magnificence should be destroyed, whom all Asia and the world worshipeth." This speech stirred the wrath of the craftsmen, and there was a great uproar, which was not quieted until the town-clerk warned the people of their danger. St. Paul escaped unhurt.

The liquor craft, by which the makers and vendors get no small gain, is in danger. The craftsmen are to-day more than ordinarily concerned. A sentiment against the whole business is being worked up throughout the country, and under the operation of local-option laws the traffic is being driven out of county after county, until well nigh whole States are free from the curse. Especially is this true of Arkansas, Georgia, Mississippi, and Tennessee. And the big State of Texas is moving—moving with rapidity that is perfectly alarming to the liquor dealers: and the apparent ease with which the counties are wheeling into the prohibition ranks is attracting general attention. Local optionists are happy. The Texas liquor dealers propose a novel method of curing this "prohibition craze." They feel obliged to do something to check it, as they have lost fifty per cent. of their trade. They suppose the opposition to their business arises principally from the fact that the retail dealers persistently violate the law in selling to minors and on the Sabbath. If they can stop this, they thereby hope to arrest the prohibition current. Their plan is to hire the saloon men to obey the law by giving them a rebate on all the liquors which they furnish. This will, it is supposed, recompense them for the loss they would sustain by keeping their houses closed on Sunday. In other words, they propose to pay the saloon-keepers to be good. This plan seems to strike some of our brethren of the secular press as a very nice thing. And they, like the brewers and distillers, are of the opinion that opposition to the liquor traffic is founded largely on the fact that saloonists are law breakers. And their idea likewise is, if the business can be properly regulated, and those who conduct it can be made law-abiding, all effective opposition will cease.

But all these gentlemen are mistaken. Doubtless, there are some who would give themselves no concern about closing the saloons if all restrictive measures were properly enforced. But the great majority of prohibitionists are opposed to the liquor traffic, not because dealers violate the law, but because the business itself is wrong and hurtful to the community. They look upon the open saloon as a menace to morals, a temptation to idleness, and a way to poverty.

In addition, a very large class of persons look beyond the secular side of the liquor business, and even beyond its general effect on morals, to its final consequences. They read in the Holy Scriptures a woe pronounced against the man that puts the bottle to his neighbor's mouth, and that no drunkard shall inherit eternal life. The Christian prohibitionist, therefore, has the interest of the souls of the people at heart as well as their moral and temporal welfare. This neither the liquor makers nor the secular press is expected to do, and both overlook the fact, if they ever had knowledge of it, that in Texas, where the liquor dealers are making their grand fight, there are nearly 400,000 Baptists and Southern Methodists, to say nothing of the hundreds of thousands of other Christians. Liquor dealers should expect nothing else of these Christians than that they stand squarely against their business.

We bid God speed to the Texans in their fight against the rum power, and especially to the Texas Christian Advocate, which is so nobly contending for "God, and Home, and Native Land."

REFRESHING REPORTS.

The brethren from many sections of our patronizing territory are sending in refreshing accounts of the work. Everywhere peace and good-will prevail: revivals are numerous and remarkably successful. Hundreds are being converted and added to the church. And almost with one consent the financial outlook is declared to be encouraging, notwithstanding in some localities the crops are short. The like news comes from other parts of our Zion. For years past we have taken pains now and then to look into the Texas Advocate revival news and count the number of conversions and members added to the church. The reports are always encouraging. We looked through this department of the Texas last week. Twenty-three pastoral charges report 835 conversions and an accession of 822 members—an average of nearly thirty-six members to the charge. If one or two brethren had reported the number added to the church, as well as the number of conversions, the whole report would have showed to much better advantage. If the average reported from these twenty-three charges is maintained throughout the Texas Conferences, Southern Methodism in the State will receive an addition this year of nearly twenty-five thousand members. We thank God and take conrage!

PERSONAL.

Rev. W. A. Terry has moved to Jackson, Miss., Millsaps Addition, and will enter the college for the purpose of completing his education. He will keep up his pastoral work until Conference.

Rev. A. P. Sage, of the North Mississippi Conference, was married at Winona, Sept. 21, to Mrs. Mary Shell, of Houston. Rev. J. B. Stone officiated. We congratulate our old friend and fellow-laborer.

Rev. P. L. Cobb, well known to many of our readers, a member of the Holston Conference, has been appointed to missionary work in Mexico. He will have charge of the American congregation at Monterey.

The Raleigh Christian Advocate, of last week, says that Bishop Smith has decided to accept conditionally the invitation to make Charlotte, N. C., his home. He will move to that city about the first of October.

The papers reported Bishop Hoss as quite sick at his old home in Jonesboro, Tenn. He has rallied, and is now with his family at Montteagle, but has canceled all his engagements up to the beginning of his round of Conferences.

Mr. Conrad H. Peairs died at his residence in East Feliciana parish, La., Sunday morning, Aug. 31, in the sixty-second year of his age. This sad news is furnished for the ADVOCATE by his friend, Mr. J. A. Stott, of Olive Branch, La.

Rev. Richard Wilkinson, of Aberdeen, after a rest-spell with relatives and friends in Ohio, has returned to his charge happy and "in good shape for the wind-up." Brother Wilkinson is in great favor with his people, and is doing a fine work.

Rev. S. A. Neblett, president of the Holston Conference Epworth League—a local preacher, we suppose, as we do not find his name in the Minutes—has been accepted for the work in Cuba, and will have charge of the native church in Cienfuegos.

Rev. T. J. Norsworthy has just closed a glorious meeting with Rev. R. T. Nolen, pastor, at Atlanta, Miss. He says, "Brother Nolen is in great favor with his people." Brother Norsworthy himself finds favor, and achieves success wherever he goes.

A note from Rev. T. W. Adams, presiding elder of the Natchez district, says: "The work in the district is moving along nicely. We have had some fine revivals. No district in the Conference has a finer body of preachers. They are all doing well."

Rev. E. J. Coker, pastor, Wilkinson, Miss., announces the death of Capt. A. Hackett, a prominent citizen of Wilkinson county, Miss., and a leading member of our church. He died at his home near Woodville, Miss., Aug. 1, 1902. An obituary will appear later.

Rev. B. S. Rayner, of the North Mississippi Conference, a constant worker, though in feeble health, passed through the city a few days since on his way to Mexico, where he will engage in the distribution of Bibles—a work in which he was very successful several years ago in Japan. His ambition is to do good.

Rev. G. W. Bachman is in the northeastern portion of the North Mississippi Conference selling books, helping the brethren, and working hard in the interest of the Sunday-school Institutes soon to be held at West Point and Oxford. Brother Bachman is also working in the interest of our church papers. We hope the brethren will bear in mind that he represents the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. We thank him for the good work he has done.

Dr. W. C. Black, pastor of First Church, Jackson, Miss., has kindly furnished the following information in reference to the great revival in his church. Under date of Sept. 19, he says: "The Culpepper meeting closed on Monday night, Sept. 15. On Wednesday night following I received thirty-seven members on profession of faith. Several more will be received next Sabbath, they having been prevented from attending on Wednesday night by inclement weather. Capitol Street Church will receive several, and other Protestant Churches will receive twenty-one. The church received a great spiritual uplift."

Rev. A. L. Scarborough, pastor of our church at Victoria, Texas, sends us an appreciative note of Mrs. Fannie Rayne Russ, late a member of our Rayne Memorial Church in this city. She had not been long in Victoria until she identified herself with the church there, and soon won the love and confidence of the membership. Brother Scarborough says: "Since the very first Sabbath in our midst she had, as a loyal Methodist, identified herself with us frankly and freely; and from that first day she has held her place among us and grown in esteem and Christian love of us all as a genuine and truly Christian lady of the highest type." Mrs. Russ had been ill for several days, but rallied, and it was thought, in a fair way to get well. A change came suddenly and without a warning she was gone. She was ready. The funeral was held in New Orleans, where she was buried. May the breaved ones find comfort in their sorrow!

North Mississippi Conference Notes.

Let all concerned bear in mind the two Sunday-school Institutes to be held as follows: At West Point, Oct. 13-15—Monday night to Wednesday afternoon; at Oxford, Oct. 15-17—Wednesday night to Friday night. Both will be conducted by Dr. H. M. Hamill, Superintendent of our Sunday-school Training Work. Further notice will be given, and programmes will be sent out in due time.

We thank Bro. Mott very much for his earnest and timely words concerning these meetings in the ADVOCATE this week, and hope that our presiding elders, pastors, superintendents, and others, will give earnest heed to the things spoken by him. Let there be much talking, planning, and praying for these meetings, that the attendance may be large, the interest great, and the results far-reaching.

Ample arrangements are being made at each place for the entertainment of all who attend, provided their names are sent in due time to Rev. R. A. Meek, West Point, or Rev. R. G. Porter, Oxford, whichever place may be selected for attendance.

The whole Conference sympathizes with Rev. W. T. Browning and his little son in their great bereavement. May the divine promises to the afflicted and sorrowing ones of earth be fulfilled unto them!

The opening of Grenada College, last week, was good and encouraging. The new annex building is about finished, and ready for occupancy. This adds greatly to the value of the property and comfort of the school. The new president, Prof. Clifton, and Business Manager Wyatt, with their fine corps of teachers, have matters well in hand, and the outlook is altogether propitious for satisfactory management and work.

The 1902 Discipline is selling rapidly. This is as it should be. Every preacher and official member ought to procure, as early as possible, an up-to-date copy of the Discipline of his church; so, also, should most of the membership in general. Price, thirty cents by mail.

The 1902 Year-Book of the M. E. Church, South, is ready for distribution. Price, ten cents, postpaid.

Pastors will bear in mind that they will have to use this year the newly revised "Pastors' Reports to Annual Conference." Price, five cents. The blanks used formerly can not be used longer. I am ready to fill orders for any of these, and whatever else you want, for "cash or its equivalent."

District Parsonage.

In obedience to a resolution of the last Shreveport District Conference, instructing me to do so, I have chosen the following brethren to compose the Committee on District Parsonage: Judge Cal D. Hicks, Shreveport, chairman; A. F. Jackson, Mansfield; A. J. Scott, Greenwood; Dr. H. E. Atkins, Atkins; Dr. J. M. Middleton, Many.

Epworth League Conference.

The sixth annual session of the Meridian District Epworth League Conference was held in the Methodist Church of Enterprise, Miss., Sept. 9 to 11. The opening service on the evening of the ninth was conducted by Rev. H. G. Hawkins, vice-president of Whitworth Female College, whose presence and addresses during the Conference were helpful and inspiring. The address of welcome was delivered by C. E. Estis, and the response by W. D. Hawkins, of Meridian. There were about twenty delegates in attendance besides the members of the Enterprise Leagues. There were many excellent papers and addresses, and these, with the free interchange of thought and experience in the work, were much enjoyed by all. The interest was greatly heightened by the presence of the General Secretary and Editor of the Era, Dr. H. M. DuBose. His genial smile, wise counsels, hearty enthusiasm and eloquent address will cause him to be remembered with pleasure by all who were in attendance.

A committee was appointed to select a suitable place and make the necessary arrangements for holding annually an Institute combining the interests of the Sunday-school and Epworth Leagues, where, under capable leaders and instructors, the workers in these causes on the Meridian district may be the better developed and prepared.

The district officers elected for the coming year are: Dr. H. F. Tatum, president; Miss Cora Harrington, first vice-president; Miss Carrie Curtis, second vice-president; W. M. Estis, third vice-president; Miss Mabel Kendall, superintendent of Junior Leagues, and C. S. Carlton, secretary and treasurer.

Dr. D. M. Bye Co., Dallas, Texas:

KIND FRIENDS—Words will not express my gratitude for the cure I received from your Oil Cure for the cancer on my lip. It is healed up all right, and I take great pleasure in recommending your wonderful Oil Cure to any that may be suffering from the loathsome disease of cancer. You can use this letter in any way you see fit. Hoping it will be a blessing to some one, I beg to remain, your true friend.

Grenada College.

Judged by proper standards, the recent opening of Grenada College was the best in her history. The number of students is equal to that of any former year, with possibly one exception. New arrivals have already increased the roll by one-half, and the Christmas holidays will probably see it doubled. The personnel of the student body is as good as can be found in the South. Evidently the girls have come from refined Christian homes. There was but little grumbling over the raising of the curriculum, and the students soon settled down to strive for the mastery.

A goodly number of worthy pastors and stanneh laymen were in attendance to witness the opening ceremonies and bid the work God-speed. With such support from her noble Methodist constituency, the college is bound to succeed.

The new building is modern in all its appointments. It is heated throughout with hot air; has sewage, water, baths, electric lights, steel fire-escape, etc. Every room has outside exposure, and is thoroughly comfortable in every way. The three stories of this building are exactly as tall as the four of the old building. It is now in use, and is a credit to our North Mississippi Methodism.

To the Preachers of the Natchez District—

DEAR BRETHREN: At the District Conference at Centerville we ordered an assessment of $200 levied on the district to pay on the debt now on the district parsonage at Gloster, or to be used in building a new parsonage at this place in the event the old one should not be sold at a reasonable price. The old one is not yet sold, and we surely need the money to pay on the debt, and some will be needed to make some repairs on the house this Fall. You all appointed me an agent to raise this $200, and if you all will help me, we can soon have the money. Some ten or fifteen days ago I sent to each pastor of the district an assessment based on the pastor's salary of his charge, which assessment is small.

We should not lay this matter aside, and consider it not worthy of our present and earnest attention. The interest on these parsonage debts will soon equal the principal, and it is useless and a squandering of means to delay. We have this debt to pay, and the sooner we pay it, the cheaper it will be. I have not the time to visit each charge in the district at this season of the year, and I feel sure that if each pastor will put this matter before his people, that they will respond, and soon pay the assessment for this year.

The people at this place are anxious to have the parsonage moved, as was ordered at the District Conference, and if the old can be disposed of, we will soon do our part towards the building of a new one in Fayette. We will give the lot and $200 to start on.

Brethren, please raise your assessments for this year, and send to Bro. E. A. Enochs, of Natchez

More about That Poultry House.

"We have read a copy of 'Boswell's Twentieth Century Poultry House,' the advertisement of which appears in this issue, with a dawning sense of the great possibilities which lie before one entering the poultry business with proper equipment. It describes a poultry house of remarkable ingenuity, and so successful in operation that the author felt like giving the plan to the public. The book contains beautifully drawn plans, precise instructions for building, and bill of materials required to put it up. With such a house, which is cheap to build, one can see how thousands of hens may be cared for with ease. The author states that his five-year-old son renovates his house, holding fifty hens, in one minute each morning, and raises strenuous objection if he is not allowed the task. Every farmer ought to fix up such a hen-house for his wife, and enable her to care for hundreds of hens, with no loss of time from her other duties worth considering. Another feature of the house is that lice and mites can not exist in it. We feel sure no one will regret sending the price, fifty cents, for a copy of this book. Send all orders to Jno. W. Boswell, Jr., East Nashville, Tenn."

The Way Out of Malarial Sickness.

Reliance, Virginia.

This Old and Well Established School enjoys an enviable reputation among its cotemporaries. The success of its many graduates and students in the different vocations of life bears practical testimony to the merits of its work.

Departments: Preparatory, consisting of the Common School branches, etc. Teachers' Normal; English; Scientific; Philosophic; Classic; Commercial: Shorthand; Typewriting; Telegraphy; Music, Instrumental and Vocal, including Voice Culture, etc. If you do not find what you want in the above list, write us and we shall promptly tell you just what we can do for you. We offer a wide range of subjects, and can usually satisfy every demand.

Expenses: Tuition, including all studies but Instrumental Music, $1.00 per week. Board, Furnished Room and Light, $2.00 per week. Steam Heat, Winter Term, $4.00; Spring Term, $2.00. Tuition, Instrumental Music, two lessons a week, $10.00 per term; one lesson a week, $5.00 per term. Absolutely no extras for any study in any department.

Location: Reliance is an ideal College community, with beautiful, as well as wholesome environments. No saloons, no doubtful attractions to entice the student away from his work, or to induce him to waste his money. It is a cultured Christian community, furnishing the very best of influences for rectitude and morality. We look after the morals as well as the intellects of our students.

Buildings and Improvements: The College building is a large three-story structure designed especially for the purpose. There are separate dormitories for young woman and young men. The ladies' rooms are carpeted. The dining-room, library, chapel, and recitation-rooms, on the first floor, have recently been papered, which adds very much to their beauty.

Business Education: Our Commercial Department is one of the best in the State. The fallacy of the claim made by some Commercial Colleges, that a Business Department in a literary school can not be made a success, is fully demonstrated by the results of our work. This success is secured by placing this department under a special supervising principal, who is peculiarly equipped for the work, and who gives his personal attention to it.

Poetic Justice—A Dog Story.

"Bless the boy! What put that into his head?" said the mother.

"Why, there was something about it in our reading lesson to-day, and, when I asked Miss Thompson what it meant, she said we should see how many of us could find out for ourselves, and give her an illustration of it to-morrow; but I don't know how to find out unless you tell me, father."

Mr. Stanley looked thoughtful for a moment, and then smiled as if struck by some amusing recollection.

"Poetic justice," he said, "is a kind of justice which reaches us through the unforeseen consequences of our unjust acts. I will tell you a little story, Fred, which I think will furnish the illustration you are after.

"I recall a Summer afternoon, a good many years ago, when I was not so large as I am now. Two other boys and I went blackberrying in a big meadow several miles from home. On our way to the meadow, as we paddled along the dusty highway, we met a stray dog. He was a friendless, forlorn-looking creature, and seemed to be delighted to make up with us; and when we gave him some scraps of meat and bread from our lunch-basket he capered for joy, and trotted along at our side, as if to say, 'Now, boys, I'm one of you.' We named him Rover, and, boy-like, tried to find out how much he knew, and what he could do in the way of tricks. We soon discovered that he would 'fetch and carry' beautifully. No matter how big the stick or stone, nor how far away we threw it, he would reach it, and draw it back to us. Fences, ditches and brambles he seemed to regard only as so many obstacles thrown in his way to try his pluck and endurance, and he overcame them all.

"At length we reached the meadow, and scattered out in quest of blackberries. In my wandering I discovered a hornet's nest, the largest I ever saw, and I have seen a good many. It was built in a cluster of blackberry vines, and hung low, touching the ground. Moreover, it was at the foot of a little hill; and as I scampered up the latter I was met at the summit by Rover, frisking about with a stick in his mouth. I don't see why the dog and the hornet's nest should have connected themselves in my mind; but they did, and a wicked thought was born of the union.

"'Rob! Will!' I called to the boys: 'come here. We'll have some fun.'

"They came promptly, and I explained my villainous project. I pointed out the hornet's nest, and proposed that we roll a stone down upon it, and send Rover after the stone. 'And, oh, won't it be fun to see how astonished he'll be when the hornets come out?' They agreed that it would be funny. We selected a good-sized round stone, called Rover's special attention to it, and started it down hill. When it had a fair start, we turned the dog loose; and the poor fellow, never suspecting our treachery, darted after the stone with a joyous bark. We had taken good aim; and as the ground was smooth, the stone went true to its mark, and crashed into the hornet's nest just as Rover sprang upon it. In a moment the furious insects swarmed out, and settled upon the poor animal. His surprise and dismay filled our anticipation; and we had just begun to double ourselves in paroxysms of laughter when with frenzied yelps of agony he came tearing up the hill toward us, followed closely by all the hornets.

"'Run!' I shouted—and we did run: but the maddened dog ran faster, and dashed into our midst with piteous appeals for help. The hornets settled like a black, avenging cloud over us, and the scene which followed baffles my power of description. We ran, we scattered, we rolled on the ground, and we howled with agony.

"I have never known just how long the torture lasted: but I remember it was poor Rover who rose to the emergency, and with superior instinct showed us a way to rid ourselves of our vindictive assailants. As soon as he realized that we, too, were in distress and could give no assistance, he ran blindly to a stream which flowed through the meadow not far away, and, plunging in, dived clear beneath the surface. We followed him, and only ventured to crawl out from the friendly element when we were assured that the enemy had withdrawn. Then we sat on the bank of the stream, and looked at one another dolefully through our swollen, purple eyelids, while the water dripped from our clothing and a hundred stinging wounds reminded us what excessively funny fun we had been having with Rover.

"The poor dog, innocent and free from guile himself, judged us accordingly, and, creeping up to me, licked my hand in silent sympathy. Then some dormant sense of justice asserted itself within me.

"'Boys,' I said, 'we've had an awful time; but, I tell you what, it served us right.'

"Neither of them contradicted me, and, rising stiffly, we went slowly homeward, with Rover at our heels.

"That, my boy," said Mr. Stanley, in conclusion, "is a good instance of poetic justice."—Our Dumb Animals.

The House That McGovern Built.

Recently I attended an auction sale of real estate, and, while viewing a piece of property that was under the auctioneer's hammer, was impressed by the effect of a simple statement that the auctioneer made when he was about to let his hammer fall for the third time. He had succeeded in raising the bids until the five-thousand-dollar mark was reached, but that seemed to be the limit.

"Gentlemen," said the auctioneer, raising his hammer for the third time, "I am offered but five thousand dollars for this house—a house built by Henry McGovern; who will give me fifty-five hundred?"

A gentleman nodded in the affirmative.

"Fifty-five hundred I have; give me six thousand."

Another gentleman motioned to the auctioneer.

"Six thousand I have; give me sixty-five hundred."

The former bidder nodded again.

"Sixty-five hundred I have; give me seven thousand."

"It was strange what a jump the bidding took when the auctioneer mentioned the builder," I remarked to a bystander, as the crowd broke up.

"You must be a stranger about here," said a gentleman. "McGovern has a great reputation as a builder, and justly so. If he builds a house, you can be sure that honest work has been put into it from the cellar to the ridgepole."

Seventeen hundred dollars for conscientious work! McGovern, were he to learn of it, might well feel proud of his reputation.

A few days later I learned more of McGovern, the contractor. A carpenter had come to him well recommended as an efficient workman. The first day that he worked for McGovern the latter stepped up behind him and arrested his arm as he was about to drive home a nail.

"What are you using that split piece of joist for?" he asked.

"The boarding will cover it up," said the carpenter.

McGovern took out his note book and wrote a few words. "Take this to the office and get a week's pay," he said. "I can't afford to keep you any longer."—Frederick E. Burnham, in Wellspring.

Questions.

If you are good at guessing or answering, here are a few questions you can wrestle with: You can see any day a white horse, but did you ever see a white colt? How many different kinds of trees grow in your neighborhood, and what are they good for? Why does a horse eat grass backwards and a cow forward? Why does a hop vine wind one way and a bean vine the other? Where should a chimney be the larger, at the top or bottom, and why? Can you tell why a horse when tethered with a rope always unravels it, while a cow always twists it into a kinky knot? How old must a grape vine be before it begins to bear? Can you tell why leaves turn upside down just before a rain? What wood will bear the greatest weight before breaking? Why are all cowpaths crooked and none straight?—Ex.

Use What You Have.

"What is in thine hand, Abel?"

"Nothing but one wee lamb, O God, taken from the flock. I purpose offering it to thee, a willing sacrifice."

And so he did. And the sweet smell of the burning has been filling the air ever since, and continually going up to God as a perpetual sacrifice of praise.

"What is it thou hast in thine hand, Moses?"

"Nothing but a staff, O God, with which I tend my flocks."

"Mary, what is that thou hast in thine hand?"

"Nothing but a pot of sweet-smelling ointment, O God, wherewith I would anoint thine only one called Jesus."

And so she did: and not only did the perfume fill the house in which they were, but the Bible-reading world has been fragrant with the memory of this blessed act of love, which has ever since been spoken of "for a memorial of her."

"Poor woman, what is it that thou hast in thine hand?"

"Only two mites, Lord. It is very little; but then it is all I have, and I would put it into thy treasury."

And so she did; and the story of her generous giving has ever since wrought like a charm, prompting others to give to the Lord.

"What is it that thou hast in thine hand, Dorcas?"

"Only a needle, Lord."

And so she did; and not only were the suffering poor of Joppa warmly clad, but, inspired by her loving life, "Dorcas societies" even now continue their benign mission to the poor throughout the earth.—Christian Budget.

"He Believes in Me."

There is nothing which quite takes the place, in a boy's life, of the consciousness that somebody—his teacher, brother, sister, father, mother or friend—believes in him.

One of the most discouraging things to a youth who is apparently dull, yet is conscious of real power and ability to succeed, is to be depreciated by those around him, to feel that his parents and teachers do not understand him, that they look upon him as a probable failure.

When into the life of such a boy there comes the loving assurance that somebody has discovered him, has seen in him possibilities undreamed of by others, that moment there is born within him a new hope, a light that will never cease to be an inspiration and encouragement.

If you believe in a boy, if you see any real ability in him (and every human being is born with ability to do some one thing well), tell him so; tell him that you believe he has the making of a man in him. Such assurance has often proved of greater advantage to a youth than cash capital.

There is inspiration in "he believes in me."—Success.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

By many years of constant study and experiments, I have perfected a simple, harmless vegetable remedy that will quickly cure all female diseases, as well as the piles. It is nature's own remedy, and will not only relieve, but will absolutely thoroughly and permanently cure the ailments peculiar to women, such as falling of the womb, leucorrhea (whites), displacements, ulceration, granulation, painful or scanty periods, irregular menstruation and all the pelvic ills of women. It positively cures rectal ulcers, piles, hemorrhoids, tumors, itching, blind or bleeding piles in either sex. It cures promptly, privately, and permanently without the repugnant methods in general use by physicians. You can escape embarrassing examinations avoid humiliating exposures, cheat the surgeon's knife out of hundreds in your blood.

The treatment is so simple, mild and effectual that it will not interfere with your work or occupation. Thousands and thousands of letters are being received from grateful persons from all parts of the world who have been cured by the use of this remedy. The first package is free, send for it—send today. I know that a fair trial of it will result in your becoming its enthusiastic advocate and friend. With it I will send literature of interest and value. Do not neglect this opportunity to get cured yourself and be in a position to advise ailing friends.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

JNO. W. BOSWELL, 512 Camp St., New Orleans.

Requests for special copies of the ADVOCATE come to us so often that they are burdensome, and we again remind our friends that in making such requests they must send FOUR CENTS for each copy. We can not afford to "send bill," as we are sometimes asked to do. Please, friends, bear these things in mind.

SAMUEL N. MILTON was born in South Carolina in 1828, and passed to his eternal reward from his home near Camden, Miss., July 20 1902 While in his thirteenth year, accompanied by his parents, brothers, and sisters, he came to this State in 1840. He was the only surviving member of a family of five brothers and one sister. Early in youth he went into business as a clerk for Jesse Heard in Canton, Miss. When the Civil War came on he joined Company M, of Wirt Adams Regiment of Cavalry, and served with honor in that company until October, 1862. After this he served the Confederacy in various capacities. After the war he began clerking for S. Purviance in Camden, whose daughter, Ann Purviance, he married. She died within one year. He then wedded Cebelie Colline. Seven sons and two daughters were born of this union, all of whom survive him. He last married Mrs. Ann Hollingsworth. This saintly woman and worthy helpmate, with the children, are left to mourn their loss. For thirty years preceding his death he was justice of the peace, and "Squire Sam" was loved and honored throughout his jurisdiction. With sound judgment and stately step he administered justice, so as to satisfy all concerned. He joined the Methodist Church in 1875, in which he was consistent and faithful to the end. He was steward, recording steward and trustee in the church for many years preceding his death. In him the church at Camden lost one of its best men, for he was indeed a peacemaker on earth. After the funeral service at the church, conducted by his pastor, his remains were interred in the Camden cemetery to await the general resurrection. May God comfort the bereaved loved ones! J. J. GOLDEN, Pastor.

WILLIAM FLOYD ALFORD, son of C. and L. C. Alford, was born Jan. 13, 1872, near Fannin, Rankin county, Miss., and died at home in Fannin, Aug. 17, 1902 He joined the Methodist Church when he was about fifteen years old. He was married to Mary Ella Bradford, daughter of our brother, D. P. Bradford, in 1890. His was a happy childhood. He was of an affectionate nature, kind, and fond of home; a boy you could trust. He had many friends. If he had an enemy, I never heard of it. He was admired and loved by all that knew him, as the anxious and paternal care manifested by many watchful friends throughout the latter part of his illness would clearly indicate. He suffered much and long, but bore it with patience and Christian fortitude. He seemed to realize it took all this suffering to fit him for a home in heaven. He leaves a devoted wife and five little children. Now, while he rests, sweetly rests in the arms of our Savior, may the angel of mercy ever watch over and take care of his loved ones left behind. Weeping ones, mourn not for your departed idol. He is gone forever from earth, but he is at home in heaven with loved ones, where pains and tortures will nevermore be felt. Dry your tearful eyes, and let the remembrance that our Heavenly Father does all things for the best be your consolation. He that afflicts will heal your sorrows, though your loved in death is sleeping.

H. P. LEWIS.

MRS. MINNIE CARDER RICHARDSON was born in Canton, Ill., May 20, 1870, and entered into rest from her home in Ennis, Texas, Aug. 7, 1902. She was the daughter of the late Rev. H. G. Carder, of the Texas Conference. On Aug. 2, 1893 she was happily married in Mexia, Texas, to Mr. C D. Richardson, who, with her mother, Mrs. M. I. Nobie, and Mrs. T. P. Scott, her only sister, both of Brookhaven, Miss., mourn the departure of a self-sacrificing Christian wife, a devoted daughter, and a loving sister. Sister Richardson joined the Methodist Church in Port Gibson, Miss., at fourteen years of age. She was a sweet-spirited, intelligent Christian, showing a beautiful resignation to the divine will in her last hours of great suffering Although an invalid for several years before her death, she continued a leader in W. C. T. U. work and all church enterprises. Her unselfish devotion to her Lord, carrying the Spirit of Christ into all the duties of life, and all its pleasures as well, made her helpful to an unusual degree. Her death was triumphant. She passed quietly away without fear, full of loving trust in her Savior, who had so graciously sustained her through years of suffering and faithful service. Her life was a benediction, and now becomes an inspiration. May the comfort and grace of her Lord and Savior sustain her loved ones!

CHAS. W. CRISLER

The subject of this sketch, Dr. EDGAR V. BONNETTE, was born on the sixteenth day of April, 1870. His father was a fine Christian character, and, living on the farm, Edgar grew to manhood under the beneficent influences of a Christian home and the free-air life on a farm. He united with the M. E. Church, South, in his seventeenth year, and all his life he continued to love the church of his choice. He chose the medical profession as his life-work, and after preparing himself for his chosen profession, he threw himself into it with all of his energy, and won a good reputation. He was of an open-hearted, generous nature, and his patients were always won by his sympathy and devotion to their interests. I was his pastor one year, and his home was a pleasant resting place for the weary itinerant, and I treasure the memories of our association together. He practiced medicine in Pollock for several years, but had removed to Monroe, La., and was building up a practice there when he was called away. His last sickness was short, only three days of suffering, and he was gone into the great beyond. May God bless his sorrowing loved ones! W E. AKIN.

Died at the residence on Northwest street, Jackson, Miss, in her fifty-first year, Mrs. C. L. JOHNSON, after several weeks of patient, but untold suffering. God, in his infinite wisdom, loves a shining mark, and it was fully illustrated when he sent the death angel and wafted on high the precious soul of a true and loving Christian. It is with a heart-stricken grief that the writer pens this simple tribute of love to her memory. For several years she has lived a true Christian. Her church has lost a worker. She leaves a husband and five children. V. B, CLARK.

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result; and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Mozley's LEMON ELIXIR.

Cures indigestion, headache, malaria, kidney disease, fever, chills, loss of appetite, debility, nervous prostration, heart failure, and appendicitis, by regulating the Liver, Stomach, Bowels and Kidneys.
50 cents and $1.00 a bottle at druggists.

Rev. John P. Sanders Writes--

Dr. H. Mozley, Atlanta, Ga.: I have been relieved of a trouble which greatly endangered my life, by using Mozley's Lemon Elixir. My doctor declared my only relief to be the knife, my trouble being appendicitis. I have been permanently cured, and am now a well man. I am a preacher of the M. E Church, South, located in the town of Verbena, Ala. My brother, Rev. E. E. Cowen, recommended the Lemon Elixir to me. Ship me a half-dozen large bottles C. O. D.

WESLEYAN FEMALE COLLEGE, MACON, GA.

Oldest College for Women in the World. One of the few high-grade institutions of the South. A quarter of a million dollars invested in buildings. All modern conveniences. Ideal climate. Proverbially healthful. All Literary Courses of a high order, and advantages in Music, Art, and Elocution. Excellent Academy for pupils not prepared to enter college classes. HAPPY HENS MEAN PROFIT!

"BOSWELL'S 20th CENTURY POULTRY HOUSE" is a little book which describes the most convenient, practical, and well-appointed hen-house ever devised—gives plans, with precise instructions for building. Cheap to build, but so planned as to revolutionize poultry-keeping. Thousands cared for with ease. The author has the house in practical operation. Lice and mites cannot exist in this house. Doubles winter egg yield, by making hens happy. Book tells how to handle hens in winter, gives positive ration for winter eggs, and other things you ought to know about hens. Order at once, or you will surely wish you had when cold weather comes to nip your egg yield. PRICE, FIFTY CENTS.

General News.

The War Department has received advices that cholera is still raging in the various provinces of the Philippine Islands.

Thirty thousand white voters have failed to pay their poll taxes, and can not vote at the coming elections in Mississippi.

At a negro convention, held in Birmingham, Ala., last week, a cry of fire caused a stampede. Over one hundred negroes were killed in a rush for the doors.

Politicians who favor reciprocity with Cuba are urging President Roosevelt to call an extra session of Congress next March for the purpose of passing a reciprocity bill

An Easy Way to Make Money.

I have made $360 in 30 days selling Dish-washers. I did my housework at the same time. I don't canvass. People come or send for the Dish-washers. I handle the Mound City Dish-washer. It is the best on the market. It is lovely to sell. It washes and dries the dishes perfectly in two minutes. Every lady who sees it wants one. I will devote all my future time to the business, and expect to clear $4,000 this year. Any intelligent person can do as well as I have done. Write for particulars to the Mound City Dish-Washer Co., St. Louis, Mo.

MRS W. B.

Situation Wanted.

A lady of experience desires to secure a private school. One in New Orleans preferred, but will accept one outside the city if terms are agreeable. Address, Miss S. B., care of CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, 512 Camp street, New Orleans.

RALLY DAY.

The third Sunday in October has been designated as Missionary Rally Day for the Sunday-schools. A suitable programme has been prepared, and it is important that all our schools should be supplied, and duly observe the day. Superintendents should order a supply at once, and put their schools in training. The Mission Rooms will furnish the programmes free of charge. Address Mr. G. W. Cain, Nashville, Tenn.

A Handsome Menu Card.

"The menu card gotten up by the Mobile and Ohio railroad for their dining car service is a very chaste and handsome card. The frontispiece is a pretty maiden walking along a country lane with dress full of Spring blossoms, and in the upper left-hand corner is embossed in black and white the well-known insignia of the Mobile and Ohio railroad. The back of the card is embellished with a view of the Union Station at St. Louis, with a map of the route from New Orleans, Mobile and Montgomery. Within is given a list of the good things to eat that can be found on these cars."—From The Daily Register, Mobile, Ala., Saturday, Sept. 6, 1902.

A Chance to Make Money.

I have been selling Perfumes for the past six months. I make them myself at home and sell to friends and neighbors. Have made $710. Everybody buys a bottle. For 50 cts. worth of material I make Perfume that would cost $2 in drug stores. I also sold 125 formulas for making perfume at $1 each.

I first made it for my own use only, but the curiosity of friends as to where I procured such exquisite odors, prompted me to sell it. I clear from $25 to $35 per week. I do not canvass; people come and send to me for the perfumes. Any intelligent person can do as well as I do. For 25 cts. in stamps I will send you the formula for making all kinds of perfumes and sample bottle prepaid. I will also help you get started in the business. MARTHA FRANCIS,
11 South Vandeventer Avenue, St. Louis, Mo.

From this date no attention will be paid to manuscripts that come to this office rolled. Let them be folded and put in an envelope. And please, brethren and sisters, use ink. Pencil writing, after passing through the mail, is often hard to read. We speak both for the printer and the editor.

R·I·P·A·N·S

I suffered terribly for years with heartburn and sick headache. My husband had used Ripans Tabules for indigestion with great success. I used two of the 5 cent cartons and have not had an attack of heartburn since. Whenever I feel the headache coming on I take one Tabule, and if taken in time it always has the best results. I consider R.I.P.A.N.S a blessing to the rich and poor alike.

But little is being said about the Boxer uprising in China, for the reason that the insurgents are not doing as much damage as was done in 1900. The situation now is different from what it was then. The facts are briefly set forth by the Chicago Inter-Ocean. "The rebellion of 1900 began with the Chinese authorities sympathetic, and the foreign Ministers indifferent or skeptical. It had swept over two provinces, and the rebels were at the gates of Pekin, before the civilized world realized the danger, or could be roused to action. The Chinese rebellion of 1902 opens with the reform party in power, with the foreign Ministers alert and suspicious, with the civilized nations watchful and exacting, and yet the uprising is as formidable in its preliminary stages as was the Boxer uprising of two years ago. The latter, however, originated in a province south of Pekin, and was distinctively an anti foreign crusade, involving the official and educated classes as well as the ignorant and fanatical, and was covertly encouraged by the government. The rebellion of this year started in a remote province made memorable by the Tai-Ping rebellion of forty years ago." Those now in authority will exert themselves to put down the rebellion. There is no disposition to encourage anything of the kind. This, it is said, is shown by the fact that one of the ablest of modern Chinese statesmen has been appointed viceroy of the disturbed province. However, rebellions in China, with her multiplied millions of fanatics, are hard to control, and the administration, with the best intentions, may fail.

The Boer generals now traveling in Europe have made an appeal to the people of Europe and America in behalf of their country. They do this, they say, because of failure to induce Great Britain to grant them the assistance needed. The terms offered by England in order to bring the war to a close were liberal beyond anything ever offered by a victorious nation to a conquered foe. The Boers accepted the terms, and gladly laid down their arms. The civilized world applauded the English for their generous concessions. Of course, what was done was not sufficient to put the Boers again fully on their feet, nor was this expected. But it was sufficient to put them in the way of self-help. But the Boer generals make a strong appeal. They say: "Our people are completely ruined. It has been impossible to make a complete inventory, but we are convinced that at least 30,000 houses on Boer farms and many villages were burned or destroyed by the British during the war. Everything was destroyed, and the country was completely laid waste. The war demanded many victims, the land was bathed in tears, and orphans and widows were abandoned. We are appealing to the world for contributions to assist the destitute and help in the education of our children." This appeal is signed by Gens. DeWet, Botha, and Delarey.

It has been known for a long time that many animals, both wild and domestic, are fond of sweets. Horses, particularly, love to be petted with sugar. They are fond of sugar cane, and take pleasure in licking the refuse from the molasses vats. Occasionally we have heard of farmers feeding sorghum, and now comes a report from New York to the effect that "instead of oats, 100 horses owned by the Arbuckle Brothers of Brooklyn, coffee and sugar refiners, are fed with molasses. The animals are sleek and fat, and seem to thrive on the diet. Dr. George H. Berns, a veterinarian, first suggested the use of molasses, and after six weeks' experiment on two of the horses, it was decided to use it as food for all. Dr. Berns said he first got the idea from a veterinarian in the United States artillery service, who told him that from ten to fifteen pounds of the dark mixture was sufficient daily rations for a horse weighing 1,000 pounds. The cost of feeding each animal on molasses is fifteen cents a day." Our farmers might take a hint, and plant sufficient sorghum, or sugar cane, and make hundreds of gallons of molasses that, in case of a short corn crop, would help tide them through the Winter season. An experiment on a small scale would do no harm.

One of the saddest tales of the season comes from France. It concerns the chief officer of one of the greatest corporations of our country—a corporation great in capital and enterprise—Mr. Chas. M. Schwab. Some time since he was reported as having played and lost heavily at Monte Carlo. But this was afterward denied. Now it is given out that he "went on a lark" at a small town in the suburbs of Paris. He spent "the night in the town. With his party—all feeling rather gay—he entered a small local cafe, where he paralyzed the singing girls and the waiters by his lavish tips. Afterward Schwab forbade the owner to accept money from anybody in the place but himself, and forbade everybody in the audience to drink anything but champagne. The result was that the town never saw such an amount of red paint since the Romans founded the place. Before leaving the next day Schwab left $500 at the local hospital as an atonement for his mischievous lark of the previous night." We call this a sad tale. The pernicious influence of such an example will be far-reaching. If rich men must control our country, they should, at least, be examples of good morals.

The spirit of Jesuitism, or something quite as bad, is at work in Russia, the purpose being to get rid of the Czarina. All accounts agree that she is a model wife, and much loved by the Czar. But both the Czar and his people have been much disappointed, because, though she has given birth to several children, she has never borne a boy, and they much desire an heir to the throne. The Greek Church, however, does not allow divorce, and the Holy Synod, in the absence of a sovereign pontiff, it is said, should find some way to set her aside. This, it appears, is an easy thing to do. The chief man of the Holy Synod has suggested that the Czarina, who is a German, brought up in the Protestant faith, has never conscientiously conformed to the Orthodox Greek religion, and, therefore, has never been legally the Czar's wife. If this is made clear to the Czar, and his desire for a son is overmastering, as is reported, no divorce proceedings will be necessary. He can simply dismiss her, and thus save the church from scandal. The very idea is scandalous. And should the Czar, for reasons of State, at the instance of a scheming ecclesiastic, turn from his wife, who is true and loving, he would be worthy of the scorn of the whole civilized world.

Millsaps College Opening.

On Sept. 24 Millsaps College began auspiciously the second decade of its existence. A special service in honor of the tenth anniversary was held on this day, in the presence of many friends and alumni of the college, as well as an unusually large body of incoming students. Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. W. B. Lewis, of Yazoo City.

The decennial exercises were chiefly in the nature of a review of the history of the institution. President Murrah's address upon this subject was exhaustive, giving statements of the beginnings and growth of the school during the various periods. He spoke appreciatively of the generosity of the benefactors of Millsaps College, of the timely services of its friends throughout the State, of the enthusiasm of its large and growing body of alumni.

Dr. Murrah was followed by the founder, Major R. W. Millsaps, who was greeted with an enthusiasm that indicated the general appreciation for his benefactions and services. Major Millsaps made an interesting talk upon the conditions which brought forth the institution, and upon various aspects of its development. In a spirit of the broadest culture, Major Millsaps spoke of the hopes and purposes of the projectors of the college, both during its genesis and during the various stages of its development. While speaking hopefully of its future, he yet pointed out that the institution stood badly in need of a large endowment, to meet the insistent demand for expansion of its facilities. He made clear the need of a great and growing college, under the direction of the church, to meet the demand in the mind of the people for religious instruction of the broadest character.

Major Millsaps' speech was, throughout, pointed, thoughtful and stimulating, and evinced the interest that he has always felt in the affairs of the college.

Aside from the financial assistance which Major Millsaps has rendered to the cause of education in this State, which is generally known and recognized, it is in order to speak here of what is not so well known, viz.: the unusual good fortune that this college has enjoyed through the voluntary services of Major Millsaps as treasurer of the institution throughout its history. Founded just before the financial crisis of 1893, the school passed through the period of stress without any losses, although its funds were invested at a rather high rate of interest. It has required no little careful management to steer the institution safely through the period of readjustment of values. All this work, as well as the routine work of receiving and disbursing the funds, has been done voluntarily by Major Millsaps for ten years. If we consider the saving in clerical expenses alone, this latter has been a great saving to the treasury.

Following Major Millsaps' address came speeches by Rev. T. B. Holloman and Rev. J. A. Bowen, which were filled with enthusiastic references to the history of the college.

Up to the present writing the enrollment amounts to two hundred and twenty-five. If the usual number of additions come during the year, the total enrollment for the session should not fall below three hundred. We are gratified to notice the presence of six young ladies among the student body.

New faces among our faculty are those of Prof. J. M. Sullivan, Ph.D., who comes to us from Centenary College to take charge of the work in science, and Prof. A. H. Shannon (Millsaps, '98), who comes from Hendrix College. Professor Shannon is "one of our own men," who has had three years' postgraduate work at Vanderbilt University, and who occupied the chair of Latin and Greek at Hendrix College.

Our new possessions, embraced in the Jackson College property, are being occupied by the incoming students. About sixty young men are at present domiciled in the handsome and commodious dormitory, which was built especially for this purpose. The residence formerly occupied by the president of Jackson College has been taken by Dr. Sullivan.

All of the faculty return refreshed and eager for work after the long Summer's rest. Several members were engaged in postgraduate studies in the various universities. We may mention here the signal distinction won by Prof. George Crawford Swearingen, upon whom the University of Chicago conferred the doctorate. "Magna cum laude."

Dr. R. M. Standefer has been with us for several days, his young son entering the college this year.

Palmer Camp Meeting.

The twentieth annual camp meeting of Palmer Camp Ground, fourteen miles north of Gulfport, Miss., was held Sept. 12-21, 1902. A number of the tents had been repaired and various improvements made, the grounds presenting a beautiful and attractive appearance. The meeting was well supported, a number of the best families tenting on the grounds. Bro. Geo. Smith, one of the old stand-bys, was at home sick. We greatly missed him. The following preachers were present: J. M. Morse, P. E.; G. W. Huff, P. C.; W. M. Sullivan, J. G. Galloway, H. W. Van Hook, W. D. Dominick, W. L. Hightower, W. T. Griffin, agent Orphans' Home; — — Williams, L. P., and the undersigned. Nothing more need be said about the preaching. The above, minus the last, could do the preaching well for any camp meeting. Some three or four exhorters were dillgent in labors. Laymen and laywomen, old and young, not a few, were willing and zealous workers. The singing was excellent. Here we have the "old-time religion"—old-time simplicity of worship, old-time gospel, old-time hearers, old-time power, old-time shouting, the Holy Ghost throughout having right of way. What a flow of spirit and feast of soul! Surely nothing modern can improve it. Those who wish to enjoy old-time worship should attend this meeting. Congregations were large and, as is always the case in that part of the vineyard, highly appreciative. A careful estimate gave a thousand, or more, present on the closing Sunday. Law and order prevailed. True, the lawless were there, but knowing that the law would be rigidly enforced, how careful they were! There were some genuine conversions and a few accessions. Nearly all, including children, were in the church. Collections were cheerful and liberal. Enough was collected for all expenses of the meeting, $100 for the Orphans' Home, and a sufficiency to insure full collections in Bro. Huff's charge.

Bro. Huff is closing his fourth year on this circuit. He is the astonishment and admiration of the people. He scathes, blisters, scalps, and then, immediately changing his tone, he uses the most effective mollifiers, leaving the people feeling good. He is fierce, fearless, and thunder-toned. The people never tire of hearing him talk. For four years he has been riding revival waves, having received more than four hundred into the church in his charge. His people want him back four years more.

A year seems a long time to wait for another great feast of tabernacles on old Palmer Camp Ground.

B. S. RAYNER.

Flora, Miss.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: On last Sunday night we closed another splendid revival at Flora, Miss., with the pastor, Rev. Jno. R. Jones, and his people. The meeting continued eight days. Great good was accomplished in the church. There was not much material out of the church; consequently, we only had fourteen additions. The Baptists are largely in the majority in that town, but they are fine people. They worked in harmony with us during our meeting. Their pastor, Bro. Nutt, is one of the most intelligent, broad-minded, and unselfish young Baptist preachers I ever met.

Bro. Jones is one of the most promising young preachers of the Mississippi Conference. He has the essential qualities that make men acceptable anywhere. He can fill any station now acceptably to which he may be appointed. "Honor to whom honor."

Sister Jones is great help to her husband in his work. She seems to possess every quality necessary to make a suitable companion for an itinerant Methodist preacher. The people of all denominations love Bro. Jones and his wife.

My next meeting will be held with the pastor at Adamsville, Tenn. After that I go to conduct the Shiloh Camp Meeting with Bro. Morse, the pastor, beginning Friday before the second Sunday in October. It may be that I can help a few more pastors the last of October and in November. Those needing help may write me. W. D. BASS.

Waynesboro, Miss.

I have held all of my meetings, beginning the first Sunday in July at Cochran, assisted by Rev. J. L. Red, who did some good preaching. There were several conversions and the church much revived.

At Mt. Pleasant, I had a fine meeting. Sinners were as much under conviction as I ever saw. Several came running, and fell down at the altar, and remained there until converted. Had not less than seventeen conversions and quite a number of reclamations.

Next, I went to Goldwood, and had a splendid meeting, with six accessions. Rev. R. H. Barr preached two good sermons. Then I went to Liberty Hill, but had no visible results. At Spring Hill we had some conversions and two accessions.

I wound up at New Hope, assisted by Rev. P. D. Hurdin, who did all the preaching, which was strong and earnest. Had a fine meeting. There were several conversions, the church much revived, and it put on renewed activity by reorganizing the Sunday-school, which had gone into Summer-quarters. It now bids fair to stand the chilling blasts of Winter.

I have received twenty-two members into the church this year, and baptized seven children. Most of the people around here belong to some church.

Ruleville Circuit.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: We have recently closed a good revival at Sandy Bayou Church, on the Ruleville circuit. Rev. W. L. Anderson, of the McNutt circuit, was with us after Sunday night, and did nearly all the preaching, and did it well. Also Rev. D. M. Miller, L. P., was with us, and rendered valuable service. The Lord was with us in saving power. Nine members received; seven on profession of faith. The church was greatly strengthened, and we rejoiced in the Lord.

We are moving along very nicely, and expect to have a good report at Conference.

Ruleville circuit is in the midst of a fine, fertile country, and is growing; has a good home for the preacher, and a good people to serve. To God be all the glory.

Yours fraternally,

J. J. GARNER.

Sept. 19 1902.

Dr. Murrah in Canada.

Dr. Murrah, our fraternal delegate to the General Conference of the Methodist Church in Canada, delivered his address before the Conference on Sept. 9, 1902. After the delivery of the address the following action was taken:

On motion of Mr. J. A. M. Aikins, K. C., seconded by Rev. Dr. Briggs, and with vigorous speeches from them, it was resolved: "That this Conference most heartily welcomes Rev. W. B. Murrah, D. D., the distinguished fraternal delegate of the M. E. Church, South; welcomes him because of the kindly sympathy and encouragement to us of that church, so eloquently and warmly expressed by Dr. Murrah; and this Conference requests the good services of Dr. Murrah in conveying to the church he so worthily represents our loving greetings in return, and the assurance of our sympathy and prayers for her in the excellent work she is doing for our one Master."

This is a new and very important question which the late General Conference has put into the list of questions to be asked and answered at the Quarterly Conference. It reads thus: "How many copies of the Conference organ and of the general organ are taken, and what has been done to increase their circulation?" The presiding elders of Mississippi and Louisiana are now on their fourth round, and the preachers in charge should be prepared to give accurate answers to this question. The circulation of our Conference and general organs is lamentably small, considering that there are largely over 100,000 Southern Methodists in the two States.

JOHN T. SAWYER.

Twentieth Century Fund.

MY DEAR BROTHER: You will be pleased to know that our two schools—Millsaps College and Grenada College—have had the best openings, and are doing the best work in their history. The money due on subscriptions to the Twentieth Century Fund will enable these important institutions to go forward with accelerated speed to yet greater usefulness. At least five thousand dollars should speedily flow into the treasury. The money will be put to immediate use. Let our urgent need be our most effective plea.

Yours truly, J. R. BINGHAM.

Christian Advocate.

"FORGIVE US OUR TRESPASSES."

BY A CIRCUIT RIDER.

This prayer, which Christ taught "his disciples," should, at the close of each day, be uttered by every Christian, notwithstanding he has the consciousness of sincerity. Not that he is guilty of any presumptuous wrong-doing, but such praying is right, and much the safer plan. Neither is there anything inconsistent in praying each day, "Forgive us our trespasses," though we have the consciousness of pure hearts, and no knowledge of transgressing God's law at any point.

There are a few people in the world who have gotten above this prayer our Lord tanght his disciples, and they have not asked absolntion in many years. The man who has gotten above such praying is both a crank and a fanatic. He is also ignorant of the infinitude of divine law. The writer has heard preachers and others severely criticised for praying, "Forgive us onr trespasses." The objector regarded such a prayer as inconsistent with the profession of entire sanctification or perfect love. The Lord forbid that snch a tribe should increase, or that any man should become so holy as to sklp that part of onr Lord's prayer, "Forgive us onr trespasses."

A Christian may lay himself down at night with the witness of the Spirit, or the consciousness of perfect love; yet it may be expedient for him to say, "Forgive me my trespasses." He may even profess and have and live the experience of entire sanctification, and still, without any inconsistency or contradiction of the doctrine, have occasion each day of praying, "Forgive me my trespasses." In other words, he may have a pure and perfect heart before God, and at the end of each day need the atoning blood of Jesus Christ. Those who think to the contrary have a wrong understanding of Christian perfection as taught either by the Bible or the Standards of Methodism.

The Christian never will get to the point in this life where he will be free from ignorance or error. He never will reach that stage of grace which will deliver him from mistakes. With all the sanctification possible, he will still have his bodily infirmities, and will be liable to mistakes. As Mr. Wesley says, "A mistake in opinion may lead to a mistake in practice." He says, where every word and action spring from love, such a mistake is not "properly" a sin; yet it can not bear the rigor of God's justice, and needs Christ's atoning blood. Every such mistake is a transgression of the perfect law of God.

Mr. Wesley was the greatest apostle of Christian perfection since St. Paul: yet he said, "The most perfect have continued need of the merit of Christ, . . . and may say for themselves, as well as for their brethren, 'Forgive us our trespasses.'" As long as it is possible for men to involuntarily sin (and that will be as long as the world stands), they will need the atoning blood of their Lord. I am thoroughly Methodistic when I say that there is no such perfection in this life as to exclude the involuntary transgression of divine law. To say otherwise is both unscriptural and un Methodistic. These involuntary transgressions which arise from ignorance, mistakes—from bodily infirmities — may occur each day, forever disproving that there is such a thing attainable in this life as "sinless perfection."

Mr. Wesley said that he never once used such a phrase, but that he believed that a person might be filled with the love of God, and still be liable to the involuntary transgression of God's law. While such transgressions are "not properly sins," yet they come short of the perfect law, and every Christian who is not infallible should pray, "Forgive us our trespasses."

"Circuit Rider" hopes that every pastor who has members who will not pray this prayer for themselves, will pray it for them. Not that they can not keep the commandments, or that they willfully break them, but it is possible to be entirely sanctified and faithfully keep the commandments, yet need Christ's atoning blood, because of mistakes or involuntary transgressions.

I have been at the camp meeting, and aronnd among the preachers and people in the country, and everywhere I go the women and the preachers are nrging me and pleading with me to do something to get rid of the blind-tigers and the unlawful sale of whisky in Oxford. The circuit preachers make a lick at Oxford and her blind-tigers in every sermon. There has been so much of this that it has become very painful to me. I wish I could deny the facts as stated by the preachers and by the women. Comparatively few of the country laymen have said a word to me on this snbject. I live in Oxford, and this is my pastoral charge, and when they make a lick at Oxford, I somehow feel that part of it is meant for me. They have rnbbed this spot till it has become chafed and very sore. These blind-tigers (six of them, they tell me) are a great shame and disgrace to Oxford, and a menace to the morals of the country for twenty-five miles in every direction, and to the morals of yonng men from all over the State of Mississippi. It should not be possible for them to exist here. I am sorry of it, ashamed of it, and grieved over it. It pains my soul to know that snch vile dens exist in the town where I live. Everybody in town and in the conntry seems to know where the blind-tigers are, and the names of the men who run them. These things are kept secret from no one bnt the officers of the law in town, and from the members of the grand jury from the country. The very men who ought to know these facts can not find them out. The blind-tigers are not nearly so blind as our officers and the jnry-men from the country. Everyone can find the tiger except those who ought to find him. Now, Oxford is wicked enongh, bnt is not wicked above all the towns in Mississippi. There are several hundred good people here—men and women—who are as much opposed to blind-tigers as the preachers and women out in the conntry; some here who are hnrt as badly by the tigers as anyone in the country. I have never heard one single soul in town or in the country say one word in favor of the tiger. I believe the tiger is universally condemned. Blind-tiger keeping is generally regarded as a low-down, dirty business, and the keeper is held in public contempt.

The preachers and the people out at the camp meeting said so much, and poked so much fun at me about the tigers in Oxford, that I lost my patience, and rose up in my wrath, and said: "I have heard enough of this, and I want you to let me alone. There are more of you country people than there are in Oxford, and you country people are corrupting and ruining the people in town. You are perpetuating a curse in town. You come there and buy whisky; you are the best and most numerous patrons of our blind-tigers. You keep them up, you support them, you make them possible. But for you and your support, there would not be a blind tiger in Oxford. There is no use blaming the town, for the town keeps only such things as there is a demand for in the country. You country people form the body of our juries, and you send men to town who will not find true bills, nor convict after they are found. You come to town, and go into our blind-tigers, buy whisky and drink, and then you go before the grand jury and swear that you do not know of any violations of the law. You are a pretty set to stand off and curse Oxford for having blind-tigers. They are in town, but they are supported and kept up, and they are kept in town, by you country people. There are not drinking people enough in Oxford to support one tiger. Five of them are the tigers of you country people. You need not lay all the blame on Oxford, and then congratulate yourselves on a pnre country people around the town. If you circuit preachers, who hammer on Oxford in every sermon and poke fun at me abont the tigers in town, would keep your country people from patronizing the town tigers, I would not have any trouble in getting the tigers out of town. Now, this is a part of the truth on this subject, and if you do not let me alone, I will tell you more of it."

When the preachers and some of the better laymen saw how mad I was, they hung their heads, and said, "You are right; town and country are alike to blame for this thing." The country women, to a man, approved what I had said, for many of them were short of skirts and shoes, because their husbands and sons were supporting the tiger men and their wives in town.

GILDEROY.

Some Strange Teaching.

BY REV. J. A. JARRATT.

Rev. Mr. Carroll, of the Baptist Church, in a sermon at Mt. Olivet Church, in DeSoto parish, La., said that "it is a sin to teach children the Lord's Prayer, or to teach them that God is their Father." Dr. M. O. Stribling, another Baptist minister, told me that he agreed with Mr. Carroll. In a letter that I received from Dr. Stribling, he says, "Children are not Christians, and, therefore, have no right to call God their Father," and cites me to Webster's definition of "Christian" to prove his assertion. I am willing to be guided by Mr. Webster's definition. He says: "One born in a Christian country, or of Christian parents;" so, according to Mr. Webster, all the children born in the United States are Christians, and that is all we wish in regard to Christian. Mr. Webster's definition of "father" is, "One who, or that which, gives origin; an originator; a producer, author, or contriver." Now, God is the author and originator of the human family, all of which we will prove by the Bible; and yet Messrs. Carroll and Stribling try to make us believe that God is not the Father of the children. In the account given us in Gen. ii, 7, it is said, "The Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul." But as our friends are good at dodging and twisting, I have no doubt they will say, "It says man; therefore it can not mean children, and that God produced man, and not children." Well, turn to Mal. ii, 10, "Have we not all one Father? hath not one God created us?" But here they come again, and say, "Those were men speaking, and not children." Will they please tell me when God created them? Was it after they had grown to manhood, or was it when they came into the world? As they say that none but believers should be taught to call God their Father, they must have been created after they had grown to manhood. How absurd! Paul says, in I. Cor. viii, 6, "But to us there is but one God, the Father, of whom are all things." Now, surely the children come under the head of "all things." Again, Paul says to the Hebrews (xii, 9), "Furthermore, we have had fathers of our flesh which corrected us, and we gave them reverence: shall we not much rather be in subjection to the Father of spirits, and live?" Now, if it is said that the children are without a soul, then we have no right to teach them that they have: but I dare say they will not go quite that far to sustain their theory: and if they say that they have no spirits until they arrive at manhood, it will throw that into line also. But hear what Paul says to the Ephesians (iv, 6), "One God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all." Here Paul takes in all—"Father of all." And these men try to make us believe that they know more than Paul, and as they say there were no children in the households of the jailer and Lydia, they will, no doubt, say that there were none among the Ephesians. But we can not take their word: we want a "Thus saith the Lord." We want proof, not surmises. In Num. xxvii, 16, it is written, "Let the God of the spirits of all flesh set a man over the congregation." Here we find that God is the God of the spirits of all flesh. If he is the God, he is the Father of all spirits; but if the children have no spirits, then God is not their Creator, and is not their Father. I will leave it to these Baptists to declare that they have not, and that it is a sin to teach them that they have. In Zech. xii, 1, God says, "Saith the Lord, which stretcheth forth the heavens, and layeth the foundation of the earth, and formeth the spirit of man within him." Now, if the children have no spirit or soul until they are capable of believing, then God is not their Father; and if he is not their Father, they can not go to heaven, and would have no right to the kingdom of God: and as their doctrine proves too much, I have no doubt but they will try to twist out of it. But as it is in line with other things they teach, I do not see how they can do otherwise than to stand to it. They teach that a child can not believe, and, therefore, it is not a fit subject for water baptism; consequently, it is a sin to teach it that God is its Father. Then, with a great blowing of trumpets, they cite us to Mark xvi, 16, "He that believeth, and is baptized, shall be saved." This, they say, means that none but believers are entitled to baptism, which is equivalent to saying that none but those who are immersed (for that is the only baptism according to Baptist doctrine) shall be saved; and as the children can not believe and be baptized, therefore, they have no right to be taught to call God their Father. But quote the whole verse, and see where they have placed the children. "But he that believeth not, shall be damned." Any reader can see where the children have been placed. Suppose we look at the text in its true light. "He that believeth, and is baptized," has been baptized; not is to be, but has already been baptized. When? Why, in infancy. And as our Savior did not mention baptism in the latter clause of the verse, it is reasonable to suppose that they all had been baptized. Now, if you take the above verse (Mark xvi, 16), and construe the first part of it as Baptists construe it, we will have to take the whole verse and send the children to hell. No man dares to do that, for there are not many mothers who have lost children that would belong to a church that teaches such doctrine. Dr. Stribling told me that he believed that "the children are saved, but he did not know how it was done." Neither can anyone tell how they are saved from a Baptist standpoint. But as we take, "Thus saith the Lord," and not, "Thus saith man," we can tell how it is done. God tells us in Isa. xl, 11, "He shall feed his flock like a shepherd: he shall gather the lambs into his arms, and carry them in his bosom."

The above is a prophecy as to how our blessed Savior would act towards the children when he should come into the world, and we know Jesus fulfilled the Word. One account is given in Mark x, 13-14: "And they brought young children to him" (St. Luke calls them infants), "that he should touch them; and his disciples rebuked them. But when Jesus saw it, he was much displeased, and said unto them, Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God." Surely, if of such is the kingdom of God, the little children have a right to the kingdom, and have a right to call God their Father, and it is not a sin to teach them to do so. And if they have a right to enter the kingdom of God in heaven, they have a right to his kingdom on earth: and if they have a right to be in his kingdom in heaven, and have no right in the Baptist Church, that is placing the Baptist Church a little the other side of heaven: and if I should be so fortunate as to get to heaven, I shall stop with Christ and the children.

Belzona Circuit.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: We have held six meetings so far, resulting in about seventy accessions to our church: two-thirds of this number joined on profession of faith. Rev. W. S. Lagrone, P. E., rendered efficient and effectual service. His preaching is in power, and convincing. During our meeting at Inverness, six married couples joined at one service, beside others. The remarkable feature of our work so far is, that of the seventy accessions, most of them are men and women, heads of families. Bro. Lagrone is a stirring presiding elder, and fills his office well: but if turned loose in the evangelistic work, would be powerfully used of God in turning many to righteousness. The charge is in fine shape. We have made material and spiritual progress, and hope to break all financial records at Conference. To God be all the glory! The Lord bless and prosper you in your labors for him.

Waterford Circuit.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: We have held four meetings, and one more to hold. We have had something near a hundred conversions, with forty-six additions to the charge. Three churches have been repaired; one new Epworth organ bought and paid for. We are ready to tear down, move, and rebuild Asbury Church. Eighty-five dollars in hand to spend in repairing Waterford Church. Some work has been done on the parsonage. The Lord has been with us, and blessed us this year every way. This is a kind people that I serve, as you know from your association with them. You are often spoken of all over the charge in words of esteem and kindness. Pray for us always.

MRS. E. T. PHILLIPS,
Conf. Treas.

Mrs. Sallie Luse Swayze.

Mrs. Sallie Luse Swayze was born in Yazoo county, Miss., in the year 1835, and departed this life in her native county on July 24 of the present year. In 1855 she was happily married to Mr. J. A. Swayze, with whom she lived most happily for forty-seven years. In early life she gave her heart to God and became a member of the M. E. Church, South, in which she ever endeavored to faithfully live. Being of a modest, retired disposition, she made no great demonstrations of her religious experiences, but was, nevertheless, a true and devoted follower of Christ. She loved the church, and ever felt and manifested a deep interest in its welfare. She loved her pastor, and was always solicitous concerning his success, and jealous of his good name. During a long and intimate association with her the writer heard never a criticism upon a minister of the gospel fall from her lips, nor would she tolerate it in others. Her life, though unconspicuous, was one of great fidelity in all its relations. She has left an influence pure and wholesome, and she, like Abel, "being dead, yet speaketh." Her patience in suffering and resignation to the divine will was sublimely beautiful; no chafing "under the rod." Her end was a fitting one for such a life as hers. As the sun, on a beautiful Autumn day, gradually sinks behind the western hills, sending back its slanting rays to bid the world good-night, filling the western sky with a halo of golden beauty, so her end came—no cloud of doubt or fear appeared to mar the beauty of this sunset scene. She was conscious to the end. Just before the end came she summoned all of the family present to her bedside, and after assuring them of her comfort in Christ, and her willingness and readiness to die, besought them all to meet her in heaven. Then, folding her hands across her peaceful breast, she sweetly fell on sleep to await the glorious morning of the resurrection. Of her future no doubt exists. She is with her God. She had lived well: she died well. We shall meet again in that realm where no sickness is and where partings are not known. To the devoted husband and companion of nearly half a century, to brothers and children left behind, this word of exhortation: Let us exemplify her virtues, accept of and serve her Lord, that we may live with her in that beautiful country to which she hath gone.

T. J. NORSWORTHY.

Rev. G. W. Alexander.

Rev. George W. Alexander was born in Rhea county, Tenn., July 2, 1813, and departed this life June 27, 1902. He joined the M. E. Church in September, 1827; embraced religion June 21, 1829; was licensed to preach in August, 1836, and was admitted into the Holston Annual Conference in October, 1836, in which Conference he labored continuously for twenty seven years. From thence he transferred to the Mississippi Annual Conference, and was stationed at Bayou Pierre. From Bayou Pierre he was sent to Scotland circuit, and from thence to Mt. Olivet circuit. After a pastorate of one year on Mt. Olivet circuit he located, and resided in Yazoo county, Miss., until his death. During his itinerancy Brother Alexander served as circuit rider nineteen years, as station preacher four years, as presiding elder seven years, and as agent for Emory and Henry College one year. His activity and usefulness as a minister of the gospel continued, after his location, until within a few months of his departure. In the local ranks he was eminently useful; his labors were abundant. Preaching, baptizing, marrying the living and burying the dead, ministering to the distressed and afflicted—thus aiding his pastors till the end came. He was one of the most consecrated men of God that I ever knew. The appointments he served in his Conference speak for his ability in the pulpit. His long and useful life closed on earth in great peace. His mortal remains were laid to rest in Wesley Chapel Cemetery, Phœnix, Miss., to await the general resurrection.

H. L. NOAKS.

A Glorious Home Going.

In the early morning of Aug. 27, last, Dr. Charles Rufus Rencher, one of the most loyal and trusted members of our church at Enterprise, Miss., and for years president of the Board of Stewards, laid off the burdens and feebleness of mortality for the glory and power of immortality and the "Well done!" of the Father's welcome home. His was one of those complete lives, finished and furnished for heaven, that makes one feel it a desecration to wish him back to earth.

"His was the best-ordered home I was ever in—a model home, with a model father at its head. And I don't believe a better husband than he ever lived," said one who lived in his home two years.

"If he don't get to heaven, the rest of us had just as well quit trying." (A near neighbor of many years.)

"It was no uncommon thing, when opening the door of some closed room, to find father on his knees." (A daughter.)

"It is impossible to believe that such as he and his wife ever die. They are just transferred to a better place and larger sphere." (Family physician.)

A close friend, writing of him, said: "Memory furnishes no regrettable incidents from its review of his conduct."

That life is certainly worth the living that compels such heart-tributes as these. Methodism is to be congratulated that it assisted in the development, as well as received a large share of service, of such a life. God make them ten thousand times as many as they are!

Get the Most Out of Your Food

You don't and can't if your stomach is weak. A weak stomach does not digest all that is ordinarily taken into it. It gets tired easily, and what it fails to digest is wasted.

Among the signs of a weak stomach are uneasiness after eating, fits of nervous headache, and disagreeable belching.

"I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla at different times for stomach troubles, and a run down condition of the system, and have been greatly benefited by its use. I would not be without it in my family. I am troubled especially in summer with weak stomach and nausea and find Hood's Sarsaparilla invaluable." E. B. HICKMAN, W. Chester, Pa.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

West Point and Oxford.

As the time approaches for holding these two Institutes, we are more and more impressed with their importance, not only to the North Mississippi Conference, but to the entire State of Mississippi. Whatever benefits one section of the State necessarily benefits the other, and whatever increases the interest in the Sunday-school cause in one section will also arouse the other to action. To overcome inertia is one of the great problems for Sunday-school workers to solve. The time is short. Less than two weeks remains in which to make preparations, and what yet remains to be done must be done quickly. If there is a school that has not yet selected its delegates, we trust it will do so at once. Let every school be represented.

We trust the brethren are praying for these two Institutes. Be in earnest, be persistent, and God will pour out his blessing upon both of them. Then a hallowed influence will go out from them that will be felt all over the Conference. There is a power in prayer which but few have tested. God grant that there may be no lack of prayer in this instance.

Do not forget the dates: From Monday night to Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 13 15, at West Point, and from Wednesday night to Friday afternoon, Oct. 15 17, at Oxford. Let that be a red-letter week in the history of the Sunday-schools in the North Mississippi Conference.

We will take it as a special favor if leaders of Study Circles will give us the names of all who pass the examination on the first course as soon as the result is known. There are but few circles in Louisiana and Mississippi. We wish there were many more of them. But let us honor the faithful ones who carry this work to completion. We would like to have suggestions from any one as to how best to honor them.

There seems to be a lull, in Louisiana and Mississippi, in pushing the Study Circle. The movement has but just begun. It has passed the experimental stage in organizing circles, and has now entered upon a test of its stability and efficiency in the examination. We are satisfied that it will stand the test. Let there be no cessation of activity until every school has its circle.

"Using a suggestion is usually better than using a scheme of another," says the Sunday-School Times. In a Sunday-school in the city of Washington, a star system of their own was begun in January, and has met with great success. The superintendent announced in December that class books would be discarded, and cards substituted. The pupil's absence would be noted by a hole punched against the Sunday he was away. Fifty points would gain for the pupil a silver star, seventy-five points a gold-plated star, and one hundred points a gold star. Every time the pupil is present he gains one point, and a new pupil brought counts six points, provided he attends six Sundays. Thus the hundred points are secured by being present fifty-two Sundays, and bringing in eight new pupils who remain six weeks. The result has been beyond the expectations of the superintendent, who says that some of the scholars bid fair to get two or three gold stars at the close of the year, when the returns will be made up.

Carthage Circuit.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: I have just closed my last protracted meeting. Eight weeks I have been constantly engaged. At Carthage, Bro. R. A. Breland assisted me; eight accessions to church. At Bethel, Rev. W. H. Lane assisted me. There was much rain; we were hindered. One joined the church. At Singleton, Rev. W. M. Commander helped; four joined the church. At Pleasant Hill, I held the meeting. Thirty-eight joined the church; thirty-five joined the Methodist, and three the Presbyterian. At Conway, Rev. J. J. Golden assisted. Eleven joined the church. I am closing up my fourth year on this circuit. These four years have been full of labors and joys, so I shall leave this circuit with a conscience void of offense towards God and man. To God I give all the praise.

M. L. WHITE, P. C.

Marion Circuit.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: As this is a new charge, and very little said about it, I desire to say something through the ADVOCATE about what the Lord is doing for us at Oloh. I know that our pastor feels desirous himself to say something for this place with his other work, but his time is filled up, and even pushes him. He has eight churches in charge, with the other work of an itinerant preacher. Thus you see his field is large, and he has been in a "bad row for stumps;" but as the Lord's work always grows better and sweeter, he is beginning now to see some of the good fruit of several months' toil and anxiety. We had no house here at first, but will soon have a very nice, good house completed. We have gotten very little contribution on it yet, but we remember the old adage, "Where there's a will there's a way."

Our revival meeting closed Aug. 29. Bro. W. L. Hightower, of McHenry, did all the preaching, for whom we can not say enough, as time and space will not allow; but he and Bro. Ferguson (our pastor) and Bro. Baggett, and just a few others, went to work, and the whole community and church were revived. It was the most glorious meeting ever known here. There were fifteen accessions to the church, seven infants baptized, and several conversions.

Our third Quarterly Conference was held during the week of our meeting by our presiding elder, Bro. J. M. Morse. One brother was granted license to exhort, and a very good report, generally, was made.

We have no Woman's Home or Foreign Mission Society, nor Epworth League, etc., but have a very good Sabbath-school, which we have organized into a missionary society. We have prayer meeting once a week, which proves to be strengthening to the young converts. We kindly ask all the readers to pray for us, that we may have much progress in the glorious work of the gospel. Yours in the work,

MRS. W. N. COLLINS.

Rosedale, Miss.

MR. EDITOR: Rosedale is growing rapidly. About one fourth of a million dollars have been invested in buildings and improvements here this Summer. We are trying to advance in church matters, so as to keep pace with this material progress.

We are doing some needed repairs, and making additions to our church and parsonage. All financial claims are well in hand, and will be full at Conference. Our Sunday-school is growing, and congregations are said to be the largest ever had in Rosedale, except when our beloved brother, W. M. McIntosh, drew neighboring towns to a meeting he held here. Our church roll has grown nearly every month this year.

About twice a month we have in our home our neighbor, Rev. L. A. McKeown. He is an excellent pastor to this parsonage home. He is a genius in many things. He was given, this year, four disconnected places to preach. He now has a well-organized circuit of four appointments, a neat, comfortable new parsonage, and has had three great revivals. Nor is his record this year new or unexpected. Those who know him would have been disappointed at less. He develops everything he touches. He is in great favor wherever he goes as preacher and pastor. He is safe, sound, genial and gracious, full of works and of the Holy Ghost. He has the gifts and graces of a true minister of Christ—one that needeth not to be ashamed. After more than fifteen years' service as pastor in an itinerant's place, he will, at the coming session of our Conference, ask to be admitted to an itinerant's privileges. Those who have known him and his work closely for a decade, say that no mere technicality should be permitted to hinder him.

Our presiding elder, Bro. Dye, maintains the dignity of a Bishop and the sweet fellowship of a co-laborer. His visits and letters are truly inspiring. He magnifies his office. He never meddles when not needed, but conserves his power, and, when needed, is as full of help as an egg is of meat. He is in high esteem with the preachers and the people.

Our district is made sad by the death of Sister Browning.

Very truly, C. H. PITTMAN.

Louisiana Conference.

Mooringsport, La.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: We have just closed our fourth protracted meeting. The Lord gave us a measure of success in them all, and we feel greatly encouraged. Our meeting at Blanchard was greatly hindered by the continued rains, but, when weather would permit, we had a crowded house. There were three accessions and the church revived.

Bro. Lutz rendered us efficient service at Mooringsport. There were some conversions and three accessions.

Bro. Lutz was also with us at Greenwood, where we had several bright conversions and twelve accessions to the church. We took up Conference collections at Greenwood, and raised $100.

Among the best services of the year was with a family at which the father was converted. After reading our church rules and vows there at the family altar, I baptized and took him and his three boys into the church.

We have had thirty-two accessions to the church, with more to follow.

The Commoner
(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check, ten cents extra will be charged.

Sometimes a man's boy goes astray. He wonders why. He says to himself: "I have tried to bring my boy up properly. I have given him all necessary advantages, and always set before him a good example." Bnt that father overlooked the fact that he allowed his boy to read all sorts of books, and bronght daily into his house a paper that sneered at religion, and contained all sorts of caricatures of the church and good men. What could he expect bnt the poison and ruin of his boy? It is as easy to poison a boy's mind and heart as it is to poison his blood. One is as fatal to his sonl as the other is to his body.

We have no objection to our Baptist brethren doing their best to take this country for Christ. It is their privilege and their duty. Bnt we have no notion of letting them do the work "all by themselves." We Methodists propose to help them. We are going to work right along either behind them or in front, on their right flank or their left. And when the blessed day arrives the two armies will be in shouting distance of each other. The brother who thinks that only his company will live to see the final triumph lives in a little world.

To widen the way of entrance into the kingdom of heaven for the sake of accommodating the worldly-minded is to do violence to the gospel and a great wrong to the individual whose salvation we are seeking. No man has a right to make the way any wider than did our Lord. He said, "Strait (crushed in) is the gate, and narrow is the way." The way is provided for the sinner, not for his sins, nor for anything he possesses. Men must forsake all and follow Christ.

The Son of man came not to be ministered unto, bnt to minister. His disciples should be like-minded, and stand ready always to do good. Possibly the majority are willing to do so, but are too particular as to when and how. They serve if it suits their inclination and convenience. They will not enter an open door unless it swings on golden hinges, nor perform the dnty that is nearest to them unless it is agreeable. They forget there are crosses to be borne.

It is said "there are Methodists who have begnn to be afraid of their Methodism"—afraid to say, Amen! afraid to shed tears, afraid to show any degree of emotion. They forget the wormwood and the gall they drank in the hour of repentance. Their new-found joy and shonts of praise when born into the kingdom they remember no more except to blush. Such Methodists are next akin to men and women who are ashamed of their parents.

PERSONAL RELIGION.

Religion is to be enjoyed as well as practiced. It is, therefore, a matter of experience as well as something to be manifested in the daily life. Both are essential. One is utterly useless without the other. Faith brings the soul into right relation with God, and into experience, but neither can be maintained without works, for "faith if it hath not works is dead, being alone." There is no need for doubt or confnsion on this subject.

Experience is necessary. This our Lord taught in his interview with Nicodemus. It is trne he said nothing in that conversation about experience, or any of the joys of the Christian life, but he said, "ye must be born again." And, "except a man be born again, he can not see the kingdom of God." This new birth, through the agency of the Holy Ghost, makes us sons of God. We can not conceive of a change of snch a nature and magnitnde being wrought without conscious experience. Too much is involved to leave one in doubt. The blessings that accompany give assnrance that is satisfactory. The sons of God have peace. "Therefore being justified by faith we have peace with God through our Lord Jesns Christ." They have the love of God shed abroad in their hearts by the Holy Ghost, and are enabled to love the brethren, and know thereby that they "have passed from death nnto life." Added to all is the testimony of the Spirit who "beareth witness with onr spirit that we are the children of God." "There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesns, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit, for the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesns hath made me free from the law of sin and death."

There is nothing strange or incredible in the testimony of good men to the transforming and renewing power of the grace of God. The gospel is not a cunningly devised fable, intended to deceive and delude. It is vital, and the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth: It brings into light and liberty, and changes from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God. The change is as sensible as the restoration of sight to the blind man, and, like the blind man, every Christian can say, "Whereas I was blind, now I see."

Religion must be exemplified. To rest in conscious experience will not do. The vital principle must be kept alive. There are two ways to do this. One is to manifest the Spirit of Christ, and the other is to follow his example. It is well to say, I believe in Christ, and know that I am saved, bnt what avail is all that if Christ's commandments are ignored or willfully disobeyed! In many things there are no specific directions. General principles are laid down, and men are left free to apply them as circumstances may demand. Any intelligent man with the Spirit of Christ and an open Bible can determine for himself how to practice his religion. "There are diversities of gifts, bnt the same Spirit, and there are differences of administrations, but the same Lord."

Some are liable to be deceived. No doubt many are deceived. They sing and shout and praise God, and work themselves into an ecstatic frame of mind, and feel that the world is under their feet. At the same time there is not a touch of human sympathy in their souls sufficient to help a brother or sister who is in need, to say nothing of an utter lack of disposition to send the gospel into the regions beyond. Such souls may enjoy religion, and possibly some of them may get to heaven, but their reward will be so small as scarcely to amount to a reward at all. Some will never see heaven. Jesus will profess unto them, I never knew you.

Every Christian who is thoroughly conscientious, and desires to do the will of God, as well as to enjoy the experience of religion, will seek occasion to do good. He will never lack opportunity. To fail is to sin, and to belie the profession of godliness. "What doth it profit, my brethren, though a man say he hath faith, and have not works? Faith can not save him." To say to the poor that are naked and destitute, Depart in peace, be ye warmed and filled, and fail to give them the things needful to the body, what doth it profit? "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this: To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world."

Doing good brings a blessing to the doer, yet good is not to be done for the sake of the blessing to be received, bnt for the sake of the individual to whom the good is done. To do good in order to receive a personal benefit will destroy the good moral quality of the deed, and tnrn it into selfishness. "It is more blessed to give than to receive" when the giving is done for the Master's sake. One who thus obeys the Lord lays up in store for himself a good fonndation against the time to come, and takes hold of eternal life.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Each new subscription received at this office during the remainder of 1902, if accompanied by $2.00, will be entered to expire January 1st, 1904.

All subscribers who pay up their subscriptions in full to date, and who send us $2.00 additional, will receive the ADVOCATE until January 1st, 1904.

Look at the label on your paper and see if your subscription has expired. If it has, then why not take advantage of our offer and get the ADVOCATE free of charge during the remainder of 1902? This proposition will appeal to the man of business. Does it appeal to you?

THE BUNG AND SPILE.

Some of our brethren of the M. E. Church need to be taught the spirit of fraternity and federation. They know all about organic union, and are ever ready to practice it—it is so much easier than to be fraternal or to federate, especially when Southern Methodists are willing to be swallowed. On one side we have a beautiful exhibition of brotherly love, and the spirit of co-operation. For instance: Bishop Moore took up his episcopal residence, by order of the General Conference, in Shanghai, China, hundreds of miles, if we have been properly informed, from the nearest mission station of the M. E. Church; and, behold, in less than three years we have a union of Publishing Houses. We have also arranged for a common hymnal and a common order of service.

But while these happy things are transpiring in the East, it is different in parts of the West. A Southern Methodist, whose name we do not now recall, notes that in a certain town, destitute of the gospel, he arranged for preaching, gathered a congregation, organized a society, and begun to build a house of worship, and that, after all these steps had been taken, though the community was small, and not over strong financially, a Northern Methodist came in, and proceeded to organize and build, and thus divided the forces between two churches, where there was strength scarcely sufficient to sustain one. Here let our readers put a big interrogation mark, and answer the question themselves.

Again, Dr. Winton, editor of our general organ, who attended the Denver Conference of our church at Pueblo, calls attention to the fact that while "Baptists, Presbyterians, and others, showed our brethren every courtesy," the pulpits of the M. E. Church in the city of Pueblo were not open to the members of the Conference. And Dr. Winton significantly asks: "Why should our people who go West be openly persnaded, even urged, to leave their own church?" To ask the question is to answer it.

Fraternity and federation can not be advanced so long as our way is blocked, and we are otherwise snubbed, in the West, no matter how "courteously entreated" we may be in the East. Nothing is gained. What is poured in at the bung goes ont at the spile.

ECCLESIASTICS NONPLUSED.

The young King of Spain, about seventeen years of age, is giving his loyal Roman Catholic snbjects some serious concern. They really think that he is losing his mind. This is simply because he is different in his ways from other "kings of the earth." He is in full sympathy with the present, and with none too much respect for certain things connected with the past, especially with certain superstitions. Spain, it is said, is inclined to be democratic, and a king to be popular with the people must mix with them. The king loves to go everywhere, to talk to the people, and to hear what they say. And though he "loves to mix with the people, and to make friends, he never for one moment loses sight of his position, and what is due to himself." He is much disposed to have his own way. This fact, perhaps, gave rise to the rnmor that he treats his mother with great disrespect. Bnt this is not all. Not long since one of the chief dignitaries was showing him some venerated relics, among them one of St. Peter's great-toe nails. Turning to the dignified prelate, he said: "Do you believe snch stuff as that?" "Yes," said the Bishop. "Well, I do not," replied the king, and turned about, sayiug, "I'm going to dinner." These are the things on which is based the charge of craziness. The king is rather young to stand against an old and learned churchman on relics and saints, etc., but instead of being an evidence of dementia, to us his non-faith in such things indicate an uncommonly bright mind for one who never had any religious environments except Spanish Roman Catholicism. And he seems to have "the courage of his convictions." It somewhat nonpluses old, ecclesiastics to be told by a boy, notwithstanding he is a king, that he does not believe the church has preserved one of the Apostle Peter's toe nails for nearly nineteen hundred years.

PRAYING FOR THE DEAD.

Praying for the dead is not a practice peculiar to Roman Catholics. The clergymen of at least one other communion also make a practice of it. We had no idea, though, until very recently, that thoroughly evangelical Christians entertained a thought that such a thing was at all admissible. But we have come to the day of strange things, not the least of which is the advocacy in an authorized Methodist paper of the propriety of interceding for departed friends. The idea was set forth in a recent issue of the Western Christian Advocate, an official organ of the M. E. Church, published at Cincinnati. We judge from an editorial note in last week's issue that the editor has received letters of censure for admitting such correspondence into the columns of his paper.

But why should we not pray for the dead? Is there no ground for faith in the necessity and efficacy of such praying? We do not believe there is. Others do. At least, they hold to opinions that necessarily lead in that direction. It is urged that, though there is a hell for the punishment of the wicked, the punishment is not eternal. The latest phase of this doctrine is an improvement over the old doctrine of purgatory and hell-redemptionism. It is set forth as a "second probation." That is to say, those who leave this world without having availed themselves of the benefits of the atonement, have another chance, and may, by "repentance toward God and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ," escape punishment, and be saved in heaven. If this be true, it is reasonable to pray that God may, by his Holy Spirit, turn the thoughts of the unhappy dead, and incline them to seek salvation. But if the doom or fortune of those who die is unalterably fixed—as we believe the Scriptures teach—then praying for the dead is a useless practice. Communications which plead for anything of the kind should have no place in Methodist literature.

TO ABOLISH OR TO BE ABOLISHED.

An erratic orator not long since, in uttering some wild notions concerning the church, declared among other things that "the church must abolish poverty or be abolished." This is a burden laid on the church never contemplated by our Lord, and one which in the very nature of the case the church can not be called on to bear. Our Lord distinctly recognized the existence of poverty, and required his disciples to relieve it as far as possible. Never once did he intimate that the church must undertake to abolish it. On the contrary, he gave the apostles to understand that they would always have the poor among them, and that whenever they would, they might do them good. And men who rail at the church, blaming it for the world's poverty, and all other ills that afflict humanity, are in reality blaming the Lord. There is no doubt a vast deal more poverty than should be, for much of it would not exist but for the dissipation and shiftlessness of the people. For this they alone are to blame. But much poverty is due to misfortune, and, speaking as a believer in divine providence, we venture to say, that some cases are according to the will of God. That the church is not always as prompt and liberal as it should be in the relief of distress, we are all ready to admit. But to abolish poverty, and as far as possible put all the people on an equal footing in temporal things, is not the church's business. But there is a class of idealists—visionary men—who try to make believe the "good time coming" is to consist of great temporal prosperity as well as great spiritual blessing. These so-called reformers are agitators, and instead of helping to harmony they spread discontent, and create more poverty.

DEATH OF REV. A. J. FOSTER.

A note from Rev. E. S. Lewis, of Durant, informs us that Rev. A. J. Foster, preacher in charge of Ethel circuit, North Mississippi Conference, entered into rest after long and painful illness of typhoid fever on September 24, 1902. He was buried at Durant, the funeral services being conducted by Rev. W. S. Lagrone, assisted by Dr. T. C. Wier and Rev. H. T. Gaines.

In the death of Brother Foster our Conference has lost one of the best and truest members. He was a plain, unassuming gospel preacher, a man who loved God and his fellow-men, and one who lived always in the enjoyment of religion. He was a hard worker, faithful in the discharge of his duties, and a strong and edifying preacher. He preached nothing but the gospel. We hope soon to have a sketch of his life and character. May the bereaved family find comfort in the promises of the Word of God.

The Pittsburg Christian Advocate makes a good point in protesting against what are called "Moody meetings." Mr. Moody was a great and successful evangelist, with some methods peculiar to himself, and while he, doubtless, impressed many with his views, and left many would-be imitators, he bequeathed no patent rights, and outside of Northfield there can be no such thing as Moody meetings, and even in Northfield the personality of Moody is lacking, however much his methods may be imitated. There would be just as much propriety in talking about holding a Wesley meeting.

Magazines.

The Century Magazine, for October, is equal, if not superior, to any of its previous issues. This is true in its literary, pictorial, and mechanical make-up. The majority of the articles are entertaining; some of them both entertaining and highly instructive. There are several happy hits, especially "John Henry's Lobster Trust." There are two articles on Dowie. One, "Dowie, Analyzed and Classified," by Dr. Buckley; the other, "John Alexander Dowie, the Prophet, and His Profits," by John Swain. They are both worth reading. We have nothing better in the way of monthly periodicals than the Century.

Ainslee's, for October, is a "magazine of clever fiction." There are one hundred and sixty pages of reading matter for fifteen cents. The magaziue is true to its name, and those who delight in this class of literature could not spend the price asked to a better advantage. It is well printed on good, heavy paper, and, unlike most magazines, it is neatly trimmed—quite an advantage, we think.

PERSONAL.

Bishop Keener has returned from Ocean Springs, where he spent the Summer, to his home in the city. He has held up remarkably well during the long, hot season just passed, and is in good health and spirits. Mrs. Keener's stay on the coast benefited her very much.

Rev. J. T. Leggett, of the Mississippi Conference, has been transferred to the Denver Conference, and stationed at St. Paul's, Denver. Brother Leggett is a young man of ability, and highly esteemed in his old home. He has left Jackson, Miss., for his new field of labor, where we hope he may meet with a cordial reception, and have great success.

Prof. B. E. Young, of Millsaps College, who spent the past Summer in Europe preparing himself for more thorough work as Professor of Modern Languages, reached home in time for the opening session of the college, and is now fully engaged in his work. A cheering letter from him in reference to the opening, and other items of interest, will be found in another column.

Annual Convention.

The Annual Convention of the Mississippi Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held at Oxford, Oct. 8–12, opening services at 7:30 P. M. on the eighth. Mrs. Helen M. Stoddard, president of Texas W. C. T. U., and Mrs. Mary Telford Jewett, ex-president of Colorado Union, will be distinguished speakers of the occasion. Prof. B. G. Lowrey, the president of Blue Mountain College, will speak evening of eighth, on "The Saloon, the Citizen and the State." Rev. W. G. Harbin, of Holly Springs, will deliver the Convention sermon on Sunday, Oct. 12, at 11 A. M. This Convention will be one of the most important and interesting temperance meetings ever held in the State.

At 2.30 P. M., on Oct. 11, in conjunction with the Convention, there will be a Conference of leading prohibitionists from over the State, at which plans vital to the future of Mississippi will be matured.

Lanesville Circuit, Louisiana Conference.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: We are moving on very well on the Lanesville charge. We have had some most excellent meetings this year. We have had some very profitable services at our regular monthly appointments.

Our first protracted meeting began at Brushwood on Saturday before the third Sunday in July. The meeting continued eight days, and resulted in thirteen accessions to the church and fully as many conversions, and the church most wonderfully blessed. Rev. T. J. Martin, of the Ringgold circuit, ably assisted us in this meeting.

Our second meeting began at Pine Grove the third Sunday in August, which resulted in a good and profitable meeting. We had only one accession to the church, but we had some conversions among the church members, and the church was greatly stirred and stimulated. Several family altars were erected. Rev. T. M. Finley, of Texas, assisted us in this meeting, and preached to the delight and satisfaction of all who were present. Rev. C. P. Smith, of Fort Smith, Ark., preached two most excellent sermons, which were greatly enjoyed by the people of Pine Grove community.

Our third meeting was held at Lanesville, beginning the fourth Sunday in August, and continued eight days, and the result of this meeting was as follows: Ten accessions to the church and several conversions, and the church greatly revived. Rev. W. A. Clark, of the Vienna circuit, rendered valuable assistance in this meeting.

We have had twenty-six accessions to the church since Conference, and fully as many, or more, conversions. Our congregations have been larger than they were last year. I think that we can truthfully say that the Lanesville circuit is on the up-grade, and is gradually coming to the front, and will, in the near future, develop into a strong circuit. As to our financial report, we feel encouraged to say that we have no fears but what we will have a good report at Conference.

Forest District.

DEAR BRETHREN: The indications are now that the following charges will pay all Conference assessments in full and be in "Class A:" Morton and Pelahatchie, Shiloh, Lake, Newton and Hickory, Rose Hill, Indian Mission, Montrose, Enoutta, Vossburg and Heidelberg, Laurel—Main Street, Laurel—Fifth Avenue and Kingston, Ellisville station, Ellisville circuit; and there is strong probability that Forest will do so the same, and possibly Walnut Grove and Trenton. Earnest, faithful, intelligent and persistent efforts would accomplish like results in Harperville, Carthage, Edinburg, Neshoba, Decatur, Scott, and even in Raleigh (under present discouraging conditions) and Taylorsville. Even with drouth and successive crop failures, every pastoral charge in the district is abundantly able to meet every assessment in full, even where churches and parsonages have been built. Our district now leads all others, with the Seashore close after us.

Yours faithfully,

T. L. MELLEN.

East Mississippi Female College.

We have the largest number of students we ever opened with in any previous year. We had thirty more boarders than we had the first day of last session. We also have the finest student body we ever had. More of them are settled young ladies, and more are prepared for real college work.

We have overhauled the college buildings from top to bottom, calcimined the rooms in main building, put electric lights in all dormitories, enlarged the dining-room, put in new desks and blackboards, and made many other improvements to add to the comforts and equipments of the college.

Perhaps the most important feature we have added is a woman physician, who will live in the college and supervise the health of the girls entrusted to us. She is a Southern woman who graduated at Cornell Medical College, New York, and also studied in the Baltimore Medical College, and took post-graduate work in the Johns Hopkins University. She is a woman of experience and learning, a Christian, and well equipped to instruct young women in matters pertaining to health. A woman can give plain talks and advice to young women and timid girls that a man could not give. It is, therefore, a great blessing to have a woman physician to give the girls these lessons about health that will go with them through life. It is the ounce of prevention that is worth a pound of cure. We also have a matron and a regular nurse who look after the health of the girls. Few colleges are so well equipped in this line as we are.

The opening of Meridian Male College far exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine of its promoters. It already has a fine attendance, a noble set of young men and boys. Many of them are young preachers preparing for the pastorate, evangelistic or mission fields. Bro. L. P. Brown will give a Bible study once a week to this college, as well as the Female College. Bro. Brown is president of the Board of Trustees of both colleges, and devotes much of his time to this work. It is a labor of love with him. He will not receive pay, but is laying up treasures in heaven, also upon earth, in the way of helping to send out noble young men and women on fire for God.

These two colleges mean much toward the spread of full salvation over our land, and the advancement of the Master's kingdom. The Lord is in the work in a wonderful manner. Nearly every Southern State is represented, and young men and women by the hundreds are going out from these colleges full of fire and zeal for the Master's cause. Let everybody pray for these colleges. Our responsibility is great. Help us by your prayers and by sending us students. Write for a catalogue and illustrated bulletin whether you have students to send or not. Read about our work and show it to your neighbors, and don't forget to pray for us.

Fifteen professions of salvation the first Sunday.

Vanderbilt University.

EDITOR OF THE ADVOCATE: All the departments of Vanderbilt University opened on Wednesday, Sept. 17, except the Dental and Medical Departments. The flattering prospects foreshadowed by the Spring examinations and the Summer correspondence have been more than fulfilled by the attendance during the first week. The number of students now present is larger by ten per cent. than the enrollment on the same date a year ago, and about seven per cent. in advance of the corresponding date of any previous year.

The most notable event of this first week was the annual address to the students in the chapel on Sunday morning by Rev. E. B. Chappell, the pastor of the West End Church in this city. It has been the custom for Chancellor Kirkland to address the students on the first Sunday of each session, but as an expression of the good will and esteem in which Dr. Chappell is held by faculty and students, and as a tribute to his ability, he was invited this year to deliver the address. Dr. Chappell is a graduate of Vanderbilt B. A. class of '79, and was a full member of the first Freshman class. He has always taken a great interest in the university, and during his four years' pastorate at West End Church he has made many talks to the students.

Free Scholarships.

We have room for a few more students in our dormitories, and until these places are filled we will give free tuition to all who apply; board, washing included, fuel, electric lights and excellent table fare, only $135, for the entire session in main building, and $95 in Club Home.

We have the largest opening we have had in thirty years' history of the college; had thirty more boarders than last opening, and are better equipped than ever to do excellent work. The Lord is with us in great power. Send your daughter at once. No preparation is needed. Wire us when to meet her. Write for catalogue.

J. W. BEESON, President.

"If you could speak commandingly to the young men of your city, what would you say to them?" This question was once propounded to Theodore Roosevelt. His reply was: "I'd order them to work. I have tried to do it by example, and it is what I have preached; first and foremost to be American, heart and soul, and to go in with any person, heedless of anything but that person's qualifications."

New Use for Refined Paraffine Wax.

A new and important use for Refined Paraffine Wax seems to have been discovered by a prominent resident of Ohio, living near Lancaster, who had two trees badly damaged by storm, one being a maple and the other an apple. In each case a large limb was broken down from the trunk, but still attached to it. The limbs were propped up and fastened securely with straps, very much as a broken leg might be fastened with splints, and then melted refined wax poured into and over all the cracks. The "surgical operation" was entirely successful. The Paraffine prevented the escape of the sap, kept out the rain and moisture which would have rotted the trees, prevented the depredations of insects, and the limbs seem thus far to be perfectly re attached to the trees

Reliance, Virginia.

This Old and Well Established School enjoys an enviable reputation among its cotemporaries. The success of its many graduates and students in the different vocations of life bears practical testimony to the merits of its work.

Departments: Preparatory, consisting of the Common School branches, etc. Teachers' Normal; English; Scientific; Philosophic; Classic; Commercial; Shorthand; Typewriting; Telegraphy; Music, Instrumental and Vocal, including Voice Culture, etc. If you do not find what you want in the above list, write us and we shall promptly tell you just what we can do for you. We offer a wide range of subjects, and can usually satisfy every demand.

Expenses: Tuition, including all studies but Instrumental Music, $1.00 per week. Board, Furnished Room and Light, $2.00 per week. Steam Heat, Winter Term, $4.00; Spring Term, $2.00. Tuition, Instrumental Music, two lessons a week, $10.00 per term; one lesson a week, $5.00 per term. Absolutely no extras for any study in any department.

Location: Reliance is an ideal College community, with beautiful, as well as wholesome environments. No saloons, no doubtful attractions to entice the student away from his work, or to induce him to waste his money. It is a cultured Christian community, furnishing the very best of influences for rectitude and morality. We look after the morals as well as the intellects of our students.

Buildings and Improvements: The College building is a large three-story structure designed especially for the purpose. There are separate dormitories for young woman and young men. The ladies' rooms are carpeted. The dining-room, library, chapel, and recitation-rooms, on the first floor, have recently been papered, which adds very much to their beauty.

Business Education: Our Commercial Department is one of the best in the State. The fallacy of the claim made by some Commercial Colleges, that a Business Department in a literary school can not be made a success, is fully demonstrated by the results of our work. This success is secured by placing this department under a special supervising principal, who is peculiarly equipped for the work, and who gives his personal attention to it.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know it.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours, a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most disiressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

The Snake among the Books.

"I want that copy of 'Dacre's Memoirs,'" muttered Captain Meredith, as he rose from his lounging chair on the veranda and sauntered in. "Whew! how hot it is!"

The punkahs, or fans, were plying busily, but still the hot Indian atmosphere remained oppressive beyond words. Captain Meredith entered his library and glanced across one book shelf and another.

"Ah, here it is," he said to himself, as he reached up and attempted to remove a volume. But it was too tightly wedged between two big books to be easily dislodged. Captain Meredith gave a harder jerk, and, that failing, grasped one of the big books and pulled it out first, to make room for removing the one he wanted.

As he moved this larger volume he felt a sudden, though slight pain in his finger, like the sharp prick of a pin.

"Some careless person has stuck a pin in this cover," he muttered, turning the book round and examining it. Just between the cloth cover and the back he detected a slight movement, and, dashing the book to the ground, a small, but dangerous snake became dislodged from its hiding-place and reared its deadly head. With one stamp of his military boot Captain Meredith crushed the life out of the venomous reptile, and returned to the veranda to tell the incident to his "chum" and brother officer, Major Greely, of the Seventh ——, just as "tiffin" was announced.

"What can be the matter with my hand?" he said. Then he remembered his experience with the books. "I'd forgotten that prick!" he exclaimed, turning rather pale. "Can it be possible that the reptile bit me?"

It was too terribly true. By the evening his arm had swollen greatly, and, later on, his whole body, and, in spite of every medical skill and care, in a couple of days he was dead.

How terrible the story sounds! And how little he had suspected the danger that lurked among the books.

Yet among books there lurks another venom. It is the mental or moral poison that is concealed under an attractive story or a specious argument. It is sometimes a suggestion of distrust in God, or sometimes of infidel science, or sometimes, alas! of immorality in thought. Its sting is at the moment almost imperceptible, but it is oftentimes deadly.—Exchange.

A Queen of Society.

In the life of Madame Mohl, a woman who, without rank, fortune or beauty, held a controlling position in French society for the great part of a century, there are useful hints for American women who wish to gain influence in the world.

Her dinners were famous. The most learned, wise and witty men of every country were her guests, and she gave much anxious thought to assorting them, to placing them, and to the suggesting of subjects which would draw from each the best he could give. The food was plentiful, but plain and simply cooked, and only a white-capped maid served it. There was no display of any kind.

Queen Sophia of Holland, when visiting Napoleon III., expressed a wish to dine with Madame Mohl, who asked a brilliant company to meet her.

"And what will be your menu?" asked an anxious friend.

"Oh, Marie must cook us a lobster," said the old lady; "she cooks lobster nicely."

The usual simple dinner was served, with its sauce of rare wit and wisdom, and the Queen was enchanted.

The next day, with her suite, she came to call upon her hostess, Madame Mohl, her gray hair in curl papers, attired in a short jacket and skirt, was busy dusting the chairs, while the linen from the laundry was spread upon the table. When the royal party suddenly entered, the old lady laid down her brush, and, after welcoming the Queen, chatted away as gaily as usual.

"Were you not mortified at being caught in such a dress?" a friend asked the next day.

"Not a bit, my dear. I didn't mind it. Neither did Her Majesty. I suppose it was important to her maid and the flunkey who waited behind her, and they were mortified."

Madame Mohl turned. "She is my friend. What do I care who she was?"

She once said: "It is well-born souls, not bodies, that we need in our friends," a maxim as profoundly true in America as in France.—Exchange.

Bray's Enemy.

"Please, Mr. Joynes, there's a little boy at the back gate to see you."

"At the back gate? Bring him in, Peter."

"He won't come in, sir; says he's awful busy, and hasn't got time."

"How big is he?"

"About as big as my fist, sir," said Peter.

The good-natured gentleman went out to the back gate. "Well, countryman," he said, pleasantly, "what can I do for you?"

The small boy—he was a very small boy—took off a soft dirty hat and held it behind him. "I've come to tell you, sir, that Bray's got to be killed."

"Bray, my big Newfoundland dog? And who sent you with that information?" asked the gentleman, losing all his pleasant looks.

"Nobody sent me," answered the boy, stoutly, "I've come by myself. Bray has runned my sheep free days. He's got to be killed."

"Where did you get any sheep?" asked Mr. Joynes.

"My sheep are Mr. Ransom's. He gives me fifteen cents a week for watching 'em."

"Did you tell Mr. Ransom that Bray has been running them?"

"No, sir, I telled you."

"Ah, that is well. I don't want to kill Bray. Suppose I give you fifteen cents a week for not telling Mr. Ransom when Bray runs his sheep. How would that do?"

As soon as the little shepherd got the idea into his head he scornfully rejected it. "That 'ud be paying me for a lie," he said, indignantly. "I wouldn't tell lies for all the money in the world."

When he said this Mr. Joynes took off his own hat, and reached down and took the small dirty hand in his. "Hurrah, herdsman!" said he. "I beg your pardon for offering you a bribe. Now I know that the keeper of Mr. Ransom's sheep is not afraid of a man four times his size, but that he is afraid of a lie. Hurrah for you! I am going to tell Mr. Ransom that if he doesn't raise your wages, I shall offer you twice fifteen cents and take you into my service. Meanwhile, Bray shall be shut up while your sheep are on my side of the hill. Will that do? All right, then. Good morning, countryman."—English Magazine.

REV. WALKER'S
FAMOUS DYSPEPSIA CURE.

Famous for Glorious Achievements.

The recognized unfailing scientific Cure for Dyspepsia, Nervous Indigestion, Constipation, Acidity, and Bilious Colic. Relief in one minute, with first dose; quickly effects a permanent Cure. Never fails. Neutralizes and eradicates dyspepsia poison. An absolute specific. Very palatable, perfectly harmless, as gentle as nature in effect. Neglected Dyspepsia and Indigestion produce "Bright's Disease," undermines the vital organs, overthrows the mental faculties, producing insanity and death.

Mr. J. G. Thompson, Anclote, Fla., voluntarily writes: "I suffered agonies from Dyspepsia. Walker's Famous Dyspepsia Cure quickly cured me. I gained 14 pounds in one month. My friends are astonished at my quick recovery. A wonderful medicine."

Mr. Leroy Turner, Sparta, Ga., "I could scarcely eat anything; two doses completely relieved me."

Stones or Candy?

"Well, my little fellow, what are you going to do with those?" asked old Mr. Crossley, after watching a small boy pick up three or four of the largest stones that he could find on the road.

"I'm going to throw them at Bill Reilly when he comes back this way," answered the boy, readily. "He threw a whole lot at me."

"But don't you think it would be better to throw him some of the candy which you have in your hand?" was the old man's next question. "That would do him more good, and you, too, my son."

Then Mr. Crossley passed on, leaving Ned to ponder over the question, "Which should he throw—stones or candy?" The little fellow looked wistfully at both. At the stones, because he longed to show his skill in striking the enemy; and at the candy, because he longed to eat it all himself. He cared not to use even one bit for making peace with a boy who had wronged him.

But Ned was a reasonable lad, and, after thinking over the matter carefully, he could not help seeing that Mr. Crossley was right. But it was very hard for him to let go of the stones and make a determination to share his candy with rough Bill Reilly. But he did this very thing, and thereby gained a greater victory than he who conquers a vast army. By and by Bill Reilly came skulking around the corner, looking this way and that, to discover what had become of Ned. Suddenly, from a place of concealment, out popped the little fellow, "Have some candy, Bill?" he asked. But Bill appeared incredulous, and, after assuring himself that Ned's other hand contained no stones, he walked up closer to him, and said, "Jokin', ain't yer?"

"No, indeed; I want you to have some." And Ned put half of the precious candy into his companion's dirty hand.

For a moment both were silent. Then, as great tears streamed down Bill's face, he said: "Scuse me, Ned, but poor Bill Reilly ain't used ter sech. Why didn't yer chuck stuns back at me? Never mind, I'll never do it again, and I'll pity him as does—that is, if Bill Reilly knows it."—Young People's Paper.

An Eastern king was once in need of a faithful servant and a friend. He gave notice that he wanted a man to do a day's work, and two men came and asked to be employed. He engaged them both for certain fixed wages, and set them to work to fill a basket with water from a neighboring well, saying he would come in the evening and see their work. He then left them to themselves and went away.

After putting in one or two bucketfuls, one of the men said: "What is the use of doing this useless work? As soon as we put the water in on one side it runs out on the other."

The other man answered: "But we have our day's wages, haven't we? The use of the work is the master's business, not ours."

"I am not going to do such fool's work," replied the other, and, throwing down his bucket, he went away.

The other man continued his work till, about sunset, he exhausted the well. Looking down into it, he saw something shining at the bottom. He let down his bucket once more and drew up a precious diamond ring.

"Now I see the use of pouring water into a basket!" he exclaimed to himself. "If the water had brought up the ring before the well was dry, it would have been found in the basket. The labor was not useless after all."

But he had yet to learn why the king had ordered this apparently useless task. It was to test their capacity for perfect obedience, without which no servant is reliable.

At this moment the king came up to him, and, as he bade the man keep the ring, he said:

"Thou hast been faithful in a little thing; now I see I can trust thee in great things. Henceforward thou shalt stand at my right hand."

Is not this a good lesson to teach us to be faithful in the small duties of each day as well as the large ones; to do everything, no matter how small, as unto our heavenly Master? Little acts of duty or kindness go a great way when done for Jesus' sake.—Selected.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

By many years of constant study and experiments, I have perfected a simple, harmless vegetable remedy that will quickly cure all female diseases, as well as the piles. It is nature's own remedy, and will not only relieve, but will absolutely thoroughly and permanently cure the ailments peculiar to women, such as falling of the womb, leucorrhea (whites), displacements, ulceration, granulation, painful or scanty periods, irregular menstruation and all the prickly ills of women. It positively cures rectal ulcers, piles, hemorrhoids, tumors, itching, blind or bleeding piles in either sex. It cures promptly, privately, and permanently without the repugnant methods in general use by physicians. You can escape embarrassing examinations, avoid humiliating exposures, cheat the surgeon's knife out of hopeless in your blood.

The treatment is so simple, mild and effectual that it will not interfere with your work or occupation. Thousands and thousands of letters are being received from grateful persons from all parts of the world who have been cured by the use of this remedy. The first package is free, send for it—send to-day. I know that a fair trial of it will result in your becoming its enthusiastic advocate and friend. With it I will send literature of interest and value. Do not neglect this opportunity to get cured yourself and be in a position to advise ailing friends.

Consider well the above offer and act upon it at once. It is made in the sincere hope of aiding you and spreading the knowledge of a beneficent boon to sufferers. Earnestly, hopefully, faithfully, MRS. CORA B. MILLER, 46 Comstock Bldg., Kokomo, Ind.

Artistic Monuments

Cost no more than plain ones in White Bronze. Marble is entirely out of date. Granite eventually crumbles back to Mother Earth. Besides it is very expensive.

White Bronze is strictly everlasting. It can not crumble with the action of frost. Moss growth is an impossibility. It is more artistic than any stone. It has been adopted for nearly one hundred public monuments and by thousands of delighted customers in all parts of the country. We have designs from $4.00 to $1,000. The company ships them to any address. Send me a postal card, and I will call at your home with my designs.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

JNO. W. BOSWELL,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

ANOTHER NOTICE.

Requests for special copies of the ADVOCATE come to us so often that they are burdensome, and we again remind our friends that in making such requests they must send FOUR CENTS for each copy. We can not afford to "send bill," as we are sometimes asked to do. Please, friends, bear these things in mind.

Died at Hattiesburg, Miss., at the home of his parents, Dr. and Mrs E J. Mitchell, Friday, June 26, 1902, LEE SARTIN, aged eighteen years. There is always deep interest in the development of the boys of a community. Where capacity begins favorably, showing outline and growth of excellent character, the neighborhood feels pride in the youth—proper pride which springs from hope and faith in the good to unfold with the years, to bless the world. Such interest grew around Lee Sartin. Honest, earnest, industrious, true to trust, his eighteen years were valued by those knowing and loving him, forecasting, as they did, the greater value to come with maturer years. Long sickness—more than six months—taxed his endurance and fortitude. Puzzling in its nature, the disorder caused constant attention from sympathetic physicians; but it will not appear how severe was the suffering to the patient youth under the serious derangement and decay of his life-forces. Disease slowly reduced the strong young body until scarcely more than the frame remained; but clear eyes shone, patiently through pain, affectionately to his friends, never losing the expression of the brave spirit within to the last day he lived. He had joined the Methodist Church several years ago, and his last days were the more endurable, his resignation the more perfect through faith in the Savior, whom his heart, as a child, had lovingly found and cleaved to. There is lasting sympathy in our hearts for the parents of such a young man. Building, as parents do, from the surer knowledge they have of a son's character, the extinguishing of the happy prospect of his future by death leaves heavy desolation. It takes time to relieve the grief which curtains the doors and shadows all the house. We are grateful to heaven in the fact that God knows our distress, understands our sorrow in all its gloom, and keeps open the way for our feet to relief and submission. After a while his love removes the sting of grief, brightens the view of the home where our loved one, glorified, abides and waits, and perfects the invitation to those waiting here to come steadfastly on. W. H. H.

DAVID FRANCIS MARROW was born in South Carolina, Dec 5, 1818, and died in Calcasieu parish, La., Aug. 3, 1902. He was four times married: first to Margaret Michael in 1843, by whom there were four children; then to Sarah McWilliams, who died childless; then to Ephemy Bryan, who was the mother of five children; and, lastly, to Marty Belvin, the mother of two children. Also he has resided in four different States: from South Carolina to Mississippi, thence to Arkansas, thence to Louisiana, where he lived to glorify God a number of years. He joined the church in his young days, and his home was a house of prayer. Even his oldest child has no remembrance of when father took up family prayer. His last years must have been his happiest, for often he would say, "Though I forget everything else, I'll remember to give God glory." He had been present at many quarterly meetings, but he slipped away from us at such a time and went to his reward. The presiding elder whom he lavished love upon, and one who had known him a score of years, or more, knew just how to console the sorrowing at the grave, though the clouds seemed to drip in sympathy that evening May the God of love comfort the sorrowing! J. S. RUTLEDGE.

Mrs. MARTHA ELIZABETH SCHEXNAYDER (nee Keiso) was born Oct. 25, 1871, and died at her home in Jeanerette, La., July 15, 1902 She was married to B. A. Schexnayder, Jan. 26, 1891. She joined the Methodist Church when she was about ten years old, and during a greater part of her girlhood was organist for the Sunday-school and church. She was a regular attendant upon the services of the sanctuary until failing health prevented, being an invalid the past seven years of her life. Few persons outside of her immediate family knew what great sufferings she endured. She was accomplished in French, English, music, and artistic needlework. Her Bible was her guide and comfort, and in the last few painful days of her life was often in her hand. When the dark curtain of death was folding around her, she feared no evil, for the Savior was with her. Now she stands among the blood-washed throng, beckoning to the husband, son, mother, brothers and sisters to the heavenly land. May the memory of her Christian example keep their faith steadfastly fixed upon heaven until Christ shall call them home!

C. T. MUNHOLLAND.

Mrs. CORNELIA ELIZABETH LOVELADY (nee Fleming) was born in Greene county, Ala, Dec. 29, 1828. On July 31, 1862, she was married to Rev. W. M. Lovelady, M. D., and on June 12, 1902, she died at Bon Secour, Ala. These dates mark the principal events in a Christian life lived quietly in a happy home. To say this is to say much. Sister Lovelady believed that to everyone there fell an heritage of duty. She strove always to know what that duty was, and did it, and though this incurred responsibility, she bore it always with womanly fortitude. For eight or nine long, weary years she was an invalid. Indeed, she tasted the sacrament of suffering. For about three years it seemed that she had returned to the days of her childhood, and was almost as an infant in the hands of her family. Oh, how much patience must it have required to suffer so much! But God gave to her a patient soul. Dr. Lovelady had just preceded her to the better land, and stood ready at the "gates of pearl" to welcome her who, to him, had been a consolation during part of an earthly sojourn. God will bless those who wait on this side of the river, for so he has promised. O. V. C.

Mrs. ADELIA BEAUPRE was born in Norfolk, Ontario, Dominion of Canada, June 9, 1812, and passed to her reward from the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. J. Procter, at Fordoche, La., Aug. 26, 1902. Sister Beaupre was of French descent, and a member of the Baptist Church from early womanhood. She was married to Edward Beaupre in 1829, and became the mother of ten children, three of whom preceded her to the kingdom. The father went to rest fifteen years before the mother. They leave seven children to wait the coming of the Master. Sister Beaupre loved her Bible, the church of God, and her children, all of whom were members of the church. We laid her to rest in the Cottonwood graveyard, Aug. 27, 1902 To the grief-stricken home, and bereaved relatives and friends, we would say, Weep not as those who have no hope, but strive to meet the loved one in heaven.

MRS. HELENA BLAU,

Young Milwaukee Society Woman.

Mrs. Helena Blau.

TEN thousand cured women have written to tell how Wine of Cardui bestows the blessing of health on every woman who takes it, rich and poor alike. Mrs. Helena Blau, No. 123 Seventh Street, Milwaukee, Wis., is one of the young women whom Wine of Cardui has rescued from a life of suffering. She writes:

"Wine of Cardui is certainly 'worn out' women's best friend and I am pleased to give my experience with it. A few months ago I caught a severe cold, having been out in inclement weather, which settled all over me, particularly in the abdomen. I was in almost constant pain. I consulted a physician and took his medicine for a month and without any relief. I then decided I would try your medicine and it was a lucky day for me when I did so. I noticed a change in a few days and felt encouraged to continue taking Wine of Cardui, and my patience was rewarded, for in two weeks my pains had left me and I felt like a new woman."

The woman who has suffered from female weakness should do anything within reason to secure health. Wine of Cardui is the medicine that appeals to reasonable women—women who hold operations and cutting in horror—women who know that Nature is the best physician. Wine of Cardui gives women back their health by giving Nature a chance to build up the wasted and diseased tissue. Wine of Cardui regulates the menstrual flow and Nature, when relieved of the drains or of the poisons in the system, makes the functional organs strong and healthy again.

Any woman who is silently suffering untold pains because she is too sensitive to undergo a physician's examination and treatment can find no excuse for not securing relief when Wine of Cardui is offered to her. There is no publicity to deter her. She can take Wine of Cardui in the privacy of her home, with as much assurance of a final cure as though a dozen doctors recommended it. Many physicians do recommend Wine of Cardui to their patients.

Mozley's LEMON ELIXIR.

A Pleasant Lemon Tonic.

Cures indigestion, headache, malaria, kidney disease, fever, chills, loss of appetite, debility, nervous prostration, heart failure, and appendicitis, by regulating the Liver, Stomach, Bowels and Kidneys.

50 cents and $1 00 a bottle at druggists.

Rev. John P. Sanders Writes--

Dr. H. Mozeley, Atlanta, Ga: I have been relieved of a trouble which greatly endangered my life, by using Mozley's Lemon Elixir. My doctor declared my only relief to be the knife, my trouble being appendicitis. I have been permanently cured, and am now a well man. I am a preacher of the M. E. Church, South, located in the town of Verbena, Ala. My brother, Rev. E. E. Cowen, recommended the Lemon Elixir to me. Ship me a half-dozen large bottles C. O. D.

WESLEYAN FEMALE COLLEGE, MACON, GA.

Oldest College for Women in the World. One of the few high-grade institutions of the South. A quarter of a million dollars invested in buildings. All modern conveniences. Ideal climate. Proverbially healthful. All Literary Courses of a high order, and advantages in Music, Art, and Elocution. Excellent Academy for pupils not prepared to enter college classes. Students who wish to board in the college should apply early, as we have room for only two hundred and fifty in the boarding department. Expenses low. Fall term begins September 17th, 1902. For catalogue and full information, address

J. W. ROBERTS, A. M., D.D., President.

HAPPY HENS MEAN PROFIT!

"BOSWELL'S 20th CENTURY POULTRY HOUSE" is a little book which describes the most convenient, practical, and well-appointed hen-house ever devised—gives plans, with precise instructions for building. Cheap to build, but so planned as to revolutionize poultry-keeping. Thousands cared for with ease. The author has the house in practical operation. Lice and colds cannot exist in this house. Doubles winter egg yield, by making hens happy. Book tells how to handle hens in winter, gives positive ration for winter eggs, and other things you ought to know about hens. Order at once, or you will surely wish you had when cold weather comes to nip your egg yield. PRICE, FIFTY CENTS.

General News.

All conferences have failed, and practically no progress has been made toward a settlement of the local street car strike. Only three mail cars were run on Monday, and they were brought from the barn under great stress of police protection. Not a passenger was carried on Monday—the second day of the strike—establishing a record. Six teen officers and members of the Union were brought into the Federal Courts, charged with interfering with the United States mail cars. All the linemen in the employ of the New Orleans Railways Company were ordered out. They struck, but later the linemen in the lighting department returned to work, thereby assuring light for the city.

The bituminous coal supply of New York is about exhausted, and the famine has begun.

President Palma says Cuba will prosper whether the United States aids or not.

SURELY AS NIGHT follows day sickness follows the eating of unripe fruit or stale vegetables. Every housekeeper should keep Perry Davis' Painkiller in the house in Summer. It gives instant relief and speedy cure.

How a Woman Paid Her Debts.

I am out of debt, thanks to the Dish-washer business. In the past three months I have made $600 selling Dish-washers. I never saw anything sell so easily. Every family needs a Dish washer, and will buy one when shown how beautiful y it will wash and dry the family dishes in two minutes. I sell from my own house. Each Dish-washer sold brings many orders. The dishes are washed without wetting the hands. Those who ladies want the Dish-washer. I give my experience for the benefit of anyone who may wish to make money easily. I buy my Dish-washers from the Mound City Dish-Washer Co., St. Louis, Mo. Write them for particulars. They will start you in business in your own home. L. A. C.

Situation Wanted.

A lady of experience desires to secure a private school. One in New Orleans preferred, but will accept one outside the city if terms are agreeable. Address, Miss S. B., care of CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, 512 Camp street, New Orleans.

RALLY DAY.

The third Sunday in October has been designated as Missionary Rally Day for the Sunday-schools. A suitable programme has been prepared, and it is important that all our schools should be supplied, and duly observe the day. Superintendents should order a supply at once, and put their schools in training. The Mission Rooms will furnish the programmes free of charge. Address Mr. G. W. Cain, Nashville, Tenn.

From this date no attention will be paid to manuscripts that come to this office rolled. Let them be folded and put in an envelope. And please, brethren and sisters, use ink. Pencil writing, after passing through the mail, is often hard to read. We speak both for the printer and the editor.

For a long time the people have been wanting and expecting the establishment of such a parcels-post system in connection with our postoffice as is maintained in other civilized nations. But the way has always been blocked, and, perhaps, we are as far from it to-day as ever. We do not have to seek far to find the reason. The express companies stand in the way. The president of one of the largest and wealthiest companies of the country is a United States Senator. That explains the matter in one sentence. In commenting on this the October Pilgrim says: "Every attempt to make the postoffice of the United States as useful to our people as the postoffice of Great Britain is to the British, is suddenly discovered to be a costly failure wherever it happens to infringe upon the profitable business of the express or telegraph companies. It is a matter of political history that when John Wanamaker was postmaster-general he told some of his associates that he was going to establish a parcels-post system, and that he was going to talk with the President about it. After visiting the White House for the purpose of that conference, he returned and informed the same individual that he would say nothing about the subject in his report and recommendations. Now, the English postoffice, apparently recognizing that the express companies, and not our postoffice, are the real thing in this country, have concluded an arrangement with the American Express Company by which a mail parcel weighing not more than three pounds will be carried from England to any part of the United States for two shillings, parcels weighing from three to seven pounds costing three shillings, and from seven to eleven pounds, four shillings. This will give the English shipper a better service in the United States by aid of the English postoffice than the American can get. Still we must not expect that the aged Senator Platt, of New York and the United States Express Company, keeps his seat in the Senate, and adds to his weight of years the burden of constant political activity, for nothing."

The strike in the anthracite coal region is still on. It has been on now more than twenty weeks. Much suffering has already been endured, and much more is in store for the people, unless it is stopped very soon. The people have appealed to President Roosevelt to interpose, and he has determined to see what can be done. The press dispatches say that: "To this end he summoned the coal mine owners and the president of the United Mine Workers to meet him in conference, and to this end he will employ all the great authority invested in him as President of the United States, and his personal influence as well. He will try, first, the power of persuasion. If they fail, he will threaten them with Federal interference. The President will have with him at the conference Attorney-General Knox. He will begin the proceedings by making an informal, but very straightforward statement of the reasons which compelled him to ask the coal presidents and the president of the United Mine Workers to come to Washington. He will say that, without regard to the merits of the controversy, it is time that something should be done to relieve the coal famine which now threatens universal distress, and, perhaps, industrial paralysis and social upheaval. He will appeal to them in the name of humanity to use all the power and influence which they may possess toward opening up the mines and letting loose upon the market a flood of coal."

Since writing the above, the press dispatches indicate that the President's effort came to naught.

Now and then there is a gleam of sunshine in politics that is truly delightful. Something of the kind was seen in New York last week. The State Democratic Convention met to nominate a candidate for governor and other State officers. The Committee on Credentials promptly ruled against the two contesting delegations from the Ninth Assembly District, on the ground that there was so much corruption in the primary election that it was impossible to determine who was elected. It was notorious that the man who presented a certificate of election as leader had "exercised his money" in his own interest. He made no secret of it. Equally as well known was the fact that the man was wholly unfit to represent the people, or to make choice of men for high office. The report of the Credentials Committee was adopted overwhelmingly, and the man who had bought his way was promptly denied a seat in the convention. The body then proceeded to nominate candidates, and put at the head of the ticket one of the cleanest men in the State—a man who, as comptroller of New York City, stood out stoutly against the influence of Tammany Hall and the wiley Senator Platt, who rules, or did rule, the destinies of the Republican party in New York. It is evident that both parties are of opinion that none but a decent man can carry New York this year.

Why Should a Woman Be Interested In Missions?

BY MRS. L. M. LIPSCOMB.

This is a fertile subject, and covers a broad field. As an answer to this question, I might think of a hundred reasons why a woman ought to be interested in missions; but I will only give a few of the most important ones.

I think the first and greatest reason is because the gospel has done so much for woman. It has reached down and lifted her out of the depths of slavery and degradation, and has placed her upon a shrine of purity and love, and crowned her queen. As a proof of this, look at the heathen woman who has never heard the gospel's glad tidings, and compare her lot with that of consecrated Christian womanhood. It is like comparing the brightness of the noonday sun with the black darkness that settled upon Egypt. The heathen woman is simply man's slave, and the football of his whims and caprices. She has no will of her own, and her world is bounded by the narrow horizon of superstition and ignorance. From the time she opened her eyes until they are closed in death, not a ray of hope lightened the gloom, either in this world or beyond the grave. Look at the heathen mothers sacrificing their innocent babies to appease the wrath of the gods, and then think of your own little ones born in a land of Bibles and Christian influence, and nurtured in the cradle of tenderness and love. Might not that same awful lot have been yours if the glad tidings of Christ's crucifixion and resurrection had not come to you? So we see that mere gratitude, if no other incentive, should stir our hearts to spread this kingdom, and when we can not go ourselves, we should contribute our means to send the gospel to those who grope their way in heathen darkness. By so doing, we not only do good to them, but it has a reflex influence on our own lives, develops an unselfish, Christ-like spirit, and deepens our own spiritual life. The Savior says, "He that soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly, and he that soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully."

Another very important reason is because of woman's prevailing influence. Ever since Eve ate the forbidden fruit, and persuaded her husband to partake of it, woman's influence over man has been unbounded. They rise and fall together, and not only is this true with regard to him, but it also applies to her children and home. In the divine economy, mothers and home determine the character and condition of any people; so the most important problem of the present day is to reach the great central power of society, the mother and home, with "the life that is in Christ Jesus."

Then, woman fills a place that no one else can. The largeness of her place and power in God's plan of redemption is being revealed as never before. She alone possesses the mystic key that will unlock the prison doors of her secluded heathen sisters, and she alone is permitted to enter and tell them of the wonderful story of a Savior's love. A woman, by reason of her tender sympathy, her patience, gentleness, and wonderful tact, is peculiarly fitted for this great work; and while man, with all his intellectual powers and consecrated talents, can do and is doing a wonderful work, yet he can not do woman's work in the missionary field.

Another reason why she should be interested in missions is because, as a Christian, she must have the spirit of Christ, which is a missionary spirit. He said, "Go into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." It was to a woman that Christ first said, "Go quickly, and tell the disciples that he is risen from the dead;" and to-day he is speaking to every woman's heart, whether she heeds his voice or not, and says, "Go quickly, and tell the heathen nations that Christ is risen," and this glorious news is being wafted from sea to sea, and from the islands to the uttermost parts of the earth.

The world is being brought to Christ, and his name shall be exalted above every other name; but, oh, ye indifferent, careless women, who spend all of your time and God-given talents on the poor, perishing things of earth, and who can not even spare one hour every month to attend the missionary society, how will you feel when you stand empty-handed before a crucified Savior, bearing no precious sheaves with which to greet him! Wake up from your slumbers and help us in this great work. The old gospel ship stands with her banners floating to the breeze, ready to take on board every soul that will enlist in the service of its great Commander.

"Spiritual Growth."

BY E. H. DEXTER.

Of course, it is understood that all life requires environment, the spiritual no less than the physical; and, further, the source and nature of this spiritual environment are more or less understood, but the manner or method of assimilation is the point. Aside from environment, there can be no life. The organism presents the principles of life; the environment, the conditions. Food is essential to sustain physical life, that growth and energy may be forthcoming; but how is this transformation brought about? Food is not taken into the system and instantly transformed into flesh and blood, and active or latent energy, but is brought about by the operation of certain laws. This is all true of the organism, and a failure to understand this principle is one cause of so many having so little faith in the efficacy of prayer. They pray earnestly for spiritual blessings, and expect an instant manifestation in answer to the prayer, while the soul has been so dwarfed by the neglect of spiritual food that really there is no capacity for the reception of the blessings till time is given for assimilation and growth.

"Environment is ourselves unassimilated," both physical and spiritual, and to assimilate requires time. To finish filling a half-full bucket of water is not to make the amount of water grow, in the strict sense, but to increase. To pray for a flood of spiritual blessings without the capacity of reception, or giving time for assimilation, is absurd, and no great good need be expected.

Now, what is the remedy? The study of God and his attributes through the medium of our spiritual natures, and a constant effort to appreciate the already abundant supply which flows so freely from the great Fountain-head.

To the Pastors of the Louisiana Conference.

I have lately received a copy of the new statistical blanks ordered by the last General Conference for pastors' reports to the Annual Conference, and as there are a number of very radical changes in them, I think it may not be amiss to call the attention of the brethren to them, that our statistical tables may be thoroughly reliable in every detail. The new statistical secretaries' record book corresponds with the new pastors' report blanks, and as we have to use the former, it is reasonable that all the reports of pastors should be made out on the new blanks; so those of us who are to serve sincerely hope no brother will file his reports on the old blank, even if "all he has to report can be gotten on the old blank." The changes noted below will emphasize the necessity for using the new form.

On Table No. 1 the item, "Total members last year," has been dropped, and we now have simply the items, "Local preachers, members, total;" the last to include the two preceding items. We have on this page the added items of "Value of district parsonage" and "Indebtedness on district parsonage." Will those pastors on whose works these properties are situated take notice and obtain the figures? The item, "Value of other church property," is intended to cover every item owned by the church and not reported in the value of churches and parsonages, such as church and parsonage furnishing of every description, cemeteries, vacant lots, camp grounds (when the title is in the M. E. Church, South), school property, etc.

Table No. 2 is almost entirely new, and provides full reports on Epworth Leagues and women's societies. Note these items, and let us have the best League report in the history of the work: "Number Senior Leagues, members; Junior Leagues, members; total League members; raised for missions; raised for other objects by Leagues;" this last to include every item (not missions) for which the League has raised money. The only change in the Sunday-school report is in the report of "Scholars enrolled during the Conference year," in the place of "Number of scholars." This item caused more discussion in the General Conference than all the rest of the items in the report. As to whether it is right or wrong, it matters nothing to us; we have but one thing to do: set down and count the total number of persons that have at any time during the year been connected with our Sunday schools, and put that figure in the report. The last section of this table provides for reports on the work of both W. F. M. Society and W. H. M. Society, showing the number of societies, members, and the total amount of money raised by each society, and the total money raised by both societies. The last item on this page is intended to be a help to the secretaries in proving the total on the finance table; it is: "Total amount reported in this table, and not elsewhere reported." This is simply the total of all money raised by Leagues, Sunday-schools, and women's societies, less money raised by them for missions (or other funds), and applied to the regular assessment, or raised for church or parsonage repairs or furnishing, etc., which items are reported again in Tables 1 and 3. In other words, this total winnows out items that are twice reported.

Table No. 3 is practically unchanged. Two blanks are left for any special collection the Conference may order. Fill the first one with the collection for Minutes; leave the other one blank, and report all other money for which there is no blank provided under the head of "Other objects." This will include such items as poor fund, ministerial help, incidentals, special missions, etc. Bring into the total on this page every item reported in Tables 1, 2, and 3.

Lastly: Order your report blank from the Publishing House, paste this on the inside cover, have the report filled out when you get to Alexandria, and be sure to file it with the Auditing Board the day before Conference convenes. Respectfully,

WM. G. EVANS.

W. F. M. S., Louisiana Conference.

The following reports are gratifying. The promptness of our Conference officers is highly commendable. We anticipate good results from the proposed tour of Miss Hughes through Louisiana in the interest of missions, and we cordially second our corresponding secretary's wish that the home workers give Miss Hughes a hearty welcome.

Again we urge the auxiliaries to send us postal-card reports from the monthly meetings. They will thereby add much interest to this column and "provoke to emulation."

Sincerely,

MRS. T. P. FULLILOVE.

Shreveport, La.

Districts	7
Adult societies	26
Adult members	607
Adult members added during quarter	14
Juvenile societies	6
Juvenile members	222
Total number of members	829
Life members	34
Scholarships supported	12
Bible women supported	5
Subscribers to W. M. Advocate	224
Subscribers to Little Worker	60
Letters written during quarter	40

Reports for the second quarter came in slowly; eleven auxiliaries did not report at all; therefore, my report is not complete. If the figures are correct, however, there has been a small gain in membership, in spite of the fact that the quarter ending Sept. 1 is always the dullest in the year. One juvenile society is reported merged into the adult society; consequently, there is a decrease in that department.

Dear sisters, we must make a more strenuous effort to get the children interested in missions.

Owing to a mistake, which I regret exceedingly, the literature for the third quarter and the "Report of the Woman's Board" have not been distributed yet; but I hope soon to have the material in the hands of the district secretaries.

Miss Elizabeth Hughes, of the China Mission, will travel through the Louisiana Conference in the interest of the Woman's Foreign Missionary work, beginning her itinerary the latter part of October. We ask for her a cordial welcome and an earnest hearing.

MRS. J. J. HOLMES,

Minden, La., Sept. 27, 1902.

From Water Valley.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: The writer left Birmingham, his home, the twenty-ninth ultimo, and reached Water Valley the same day. We are here assisting Bro. J. M. Bradley, pastor of First Methodist Church, in his revival services. The series of services began on last Sunday under the most favorable auspices. As short as our stay has been, it is apparent that Bro. Bradley is accomplishing a good work at this place. His parishioners say of him that he is an effective preacher and a splendid pastor. He is loved not only by the people of his charge, but the entire city. There are some faithful good men and women in this charge. The present outlook is that we will have a great outpouring of the Spirit of God upon this community, and we are confidently expecting a great harvest of souls. The church, its pastor and the writer solicit your prayers to the end that through the grace of God our efforts here may not be unavailing.

Rev. J. W. Bell, presiding elder of the district, is with us, and he informs us that he will make a good report for his district. His work is well in hand. The preachers and the people hold him in the highest esteem and regard.

Most gratifying reports come to us concerning the several fields of labor, and it is to be expected that when the Conference convenes, one of the best general reports in the history of the Conference will be heard. All the brethren are glad that Bishop Jos. S. Key is to preside over the coming Conference.

Doctor, you are giving your readers a good paper. It seems to us that each issue is an improvement and better than the preceding one. It is a great moral force, and veritably its power is felt throughout the borders of our great country. May the blessings of God abide with you in all your labors!

Fraternally yours,

THEO. COPELAND.

BY AN ITINERANT.

SECTION X.

Infant baptism exists in the church, and is interwoven with the history of the church from the earliest days. It had a beginning. Some one must have baptized the first infant. But neither the fact, nor the occasion of its origin, can be found this side the days of the apostles. For the first four hundred years after Christ, the general account of all the writers of that period is that they speak of infant baptism as a thing uncontroverted. Nor does authentic history furnish an instance of defection from the apostolic usage until the Anabaptists arose in the sixteenth century, except such as set aside the use of water baptism altogether. We may challenge any man to show a church, party, schism, sect, or respectable heresy, in any part of the world, that diverged from the apostolic usage, until the rise of the Anabaptist.

From 1272 to 1523, a period of 251 years, there was not only no church, party, schism, sect, or heresy that opposed or questioned the rightfulness of the ordinance except such as opposed water baptism altogether, but not a single individual. Neither can there be produced a line written in that period which even hints that there were any such. Can any person tell where the Anti-Pedobaptists were during that time, and what they were doing?

At the present time, all the great branches of the church baptize infants—Greek, Coptic, Roman Catholic, and Protestant—except those denominations which have, in modern times, fallen into the notion that immersion is the only baptism; and all these have practiced it from the beginning of their history.

Then, if it was an innovation, brought into the church without authority from the apostles, there ought to be at least some record, somewhere, that would indicate the existence of agitation or debate, or that would show some reason for its acceptance. But there is not to be found the slightest trace of any agitation, surprise, defense, apology, or debate, to show that anyone questioned the apostolical authorization of the practice. Innovations were introduced in those times, but not without question and opposition. The use and worship of pictures may be taken as an example. This innovation gained a footing, and made rapid progress in the church; but it excited warm debate, and the agitation continued for about eight hundred years. Then it seems reasonable to suppose that, if the baptism of infants started up as a novelty, and spread throughout the Christian world, just at the time other novelties were being so hotly debated, there ought to be detected somewhere an allusion to the fact. But we search in vain for such an allusion.

When, then, did the opposition to infant baptism first take its rise? If history is to be credited, this "modern movement" had its origin in Zurich, Switzerland, or its vicinity, somewhere about 1523, three hundred and eighty years ago.

Mr. Armitage, in his "History of Baptage" (page 331), says: "The Baptist of Zurich 'began' to assail infant baptism in 1523."

"The first re-baptism by the Anabaptist of this period did not take place in Germany, but in Switzerland in 1524. Conrad Grebel, in an assembly in Zurich, baptized George Blaurock in the Spring of 1524. The original account runs substantially thus: 'Blaurock arose in the assembly, and in an ecstatic state threw himself prostrate upon the floor. When he came out of that state he said it was the will of God (as revealed to him) that they should, without delay, be re-baptized, whereupon he fell upon his knees and was baptized by Grebel. Then he in turn baptized the rest.' This is the 'first' definite account we have of re-baptism by this sect." ("Graves-Ditzler Debate," p. 892.)

"Blaurock exclaimed: 'I am the door, by me if any man enter he shall find pasture. I am the beginning of the baptism, and the bread of the Lord.'" (D'Aubigne, "History of the Reformation," Book XI.)

"Before that time no author ever lived from whom a line can be cited insisting or suggesting that infant baptism is un-Christian, unscriptural, unapostolic, or without most ancient authority." ("Origin of Infant Baptism," page 18.)

A THUNDERBOLT.

A gentleman with his wife and seven children, one of whom was an infant, desired to sail for Liverpool. He took his family aboard a large ship lying at the wharf of New York, and enquired of the proper officer if the ship was going to Liverpool, and when she would sail?

"Yes," replied the officer, "and we sail in two days."

"Have you accommodations for more passengers?" asked the gentleman.

"Certainly," said the officer, "but I must inform you that we do not take infants. Only those that are old enough to understand the nature of the trip are permitted aboard this ship. Yourself, wife, and six older children can have passage, but you will have to leave the infant behind until it is old enough to understand what it is doing."

"Then," said the mother, "this is not the ship I am looking for, if it will not allow me to take my precious, helpless babe with me. I am as helpless as my babe on this journey. I do not know the way, neither could I go unless the ship and crew take me; they are as able to take my babe as myself."

So they went to another ship with the same inquiry, and received this answer:

"We sail in two days for Liverpool, and will take your entire family."

"And you will take our infant babe, too?"

"Why, certainly; do you think that our master and we are so cruel and heartless as not to take the infant with its parents?"

This last was the good old Methodist ship of Zion, but we will leave you to guess the name of the ship that wouldn't take the infant.

A SHORT HISTORY OF THE ANTI-PEDOBAPTIST.

Did you ever watch the antics of a didapper, how it will dive under the water in order to dodge a rock or other missile, then will pop up again at some other point only to repeat the dive if necessary? The Anti-Pedobaptist Churches are like the didapper. When the Israelites were going out of Egypt "to serve the Lord," Pharaoh asked Moses: "Who are they that shall go? And Moses said, We will go with our young and with our old, with our sons and with our daughters." (Ex. x, 8, 9.) But Pharaoh said: "Not so; go now ye that are men, and serve the Lord." (Ex. x, 11.) He thought evil would come of letting the children go out "to serve the Lord," so he said to Moses: "Look to it: for evil is before you." (Ex. x, 10.) But Moses, the true servant of God, would not let the devil, through Pharaoh, influence him to do evil, for he took "six hundred thousand on foot that were men, besides children." (Ex. xii, 37.) This was the beginning of the Anti-Pedobaptist Churches; but Pharaoh got such a rebuke of the Lord, by being "immersed" in the Red Sea, that nothing more was heard of his doctrine until the Savior's time. "And they brought young children to him, that he should touch them; and his disciples rebuked those that brought them. But when Jesus saw it, he was much displeased, and said unto them, Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of heaven." (Mark x, 13, 14.) The Lord again shied such a rock of displeasure at this doctrine, that it went under a second time and so deep that nothing but a little mud and sizzling of agitation was seen or heard of it for nearly 1500 years afterwards. In 1523 the Anabaptist popped up, the only real organization between that time and Christ to eschew infant baptism. Since then, the Baptists in 1641, Campbellites in 1827, and Mormons in 1830, all immerse and eschew infant baptism. Though 1491 years elapsed during their dive from the Anabaptist to their appearance before Christ, and 1524 years elapsed between that time and their beginning with Pharaoh, the chain of succession is abundantly made out. The facts are proved, both as to immersion and denying infant baptism. Their history runs back to Pharaoh, and a better chain of title the Anti-Pedobaptists have never been able to establish.

The Sunday-School.

BY REV. J. O. BENNETT.

The Sunday-school is one of the most important religious institutions of the age, and in its most essential features the contemporary of every age. As a means of religious instruction and education to a very large portion of the rising generation, of cultivating habits of ardor and of obedience by uniting together the different classes of society and calling forth a larger amount of self-denial, perseverance, and Christian principle, it is entitled to a very high place. It is one of the most efficient means of extending the kingdom of Christ into all parts of the community. "Pure and undefiled religion," and the godly upbringing of the young, have ever gone hand in hand, and all who have ever come under the power and influence of the Sunday-school have, in a very large measure, attributed whatever success they have had in the divine life to the influences and impressions which they received while in attendance upon its holy ministries.

As to the exact time, where, and by whom, the Sunday-school was first organized, it might not be so easy, as some have supposed, for us to give an exact answer to this question, the idea having gained extensive currency that the Sunday-school is the product of the wisdom and sagacity of modern times. This idea, however, is not true. The Sunday-school idea dates much farther back than many of us are accustomed to allow. The Lord's day meetings of the apostolic church seem to favor very much the modern Sunday-school. These were not simply the gathering together of the men and women, but the young, as well as the very young, were present in these meetings, and were not forgotten in the ministries of the holy day, but all alike were instructed in the Word of Life. Much has been said about national and international series of topics for the use of Sunday-schools—uniformity of Bible readings, etc.: and this, too, has been called a new idea. It is not new, but is as old as the Jewish religion, and to this day, notwithstanding the many changes which the centuries have witnessed in things once dear to that people, in all of their synagogues the same passage of Scripture is read and made the subject of study upon Sabbath days.

But it is the modern Sunday-school, that we all are most interested in. As a modern institution, its history is fully open to our perusal, and it is to this part of the subject that I now invite attention. In the year 1781 an individual of no great prominence in society went one morning to hire a gardener in the suburbs of the town in which he lived. The man whom he went to hire was away from home, and while waiting for him to return, he was greatly disturbed by a crowd of wretched boys, who continually interrupted his conversation. This led him to ask the lady with whom he was talking if these boys belonged to that part of the town. He was told that they did. "Ah, sir," continued the lady, "if you could only be here of Sundays and take a view of this part of town, you would be shocked indeed, for then the streets are filled with multitudes of these wretches, who, being released from labor, spend their time in noise and riot, playing at chuck, cursing and swearing in a manner so horrid as to convey an idea of hell rather than of any other place." This conversation suggested to the mind of Robert Raikes the idea of organized effort, which has since developed and extended until it has well-nigh filled the whole earth. The entire movement of the Sunday-school from that day until this has been crowned with success. Others before Raikes had conceived a similar idea, but he put it into shape. The system of Raikes had mostly to do with the poor children of his own city, he hiring the teachers and paying them out of his own pocket for these Sunday services. From the year 1786 to 1800 the Sunday-school societies of England, of which Raikes was the acknowledged founder, paid for these Sunday services alone more than twenty thousand dollars. That was then, but now teachers who engage in the Sunday-school work are working without money remuneration. It is a grand work, and none but the brave sons and daughters of God engage in it successfully. This idea of conducting the Sunday-school with unpaid teachers is said to have originated among a set of zealous Wesleyans, one of whom, while the others were lamenting that they had no money with which to pay their teachers, said, "Let us do it ourselves."

Now, in this we have what is known as the beginning of Sunday-schools in Europe and America; but be this as it may, its origin is lowly enough, but low origin is no disgrace.

As to the growth and development of the Sunday-school, it, like all other growths, has been gradual. The present system of Sunday-schools is not the outgrowth of a single hour. More than a century has passed since Raikes labored in Gloucester, England. The Sunday-school in the beginning was certainly feeble enough, the efforts of Raikes attracting but little or no attention, except in very limited circles. No church would take it under its control or patronage. Individual men and women fostered what little strength it had. It was unenvied by the organized religious bodies of England, but still Raikes was not discouraged. He labored on, and succeeded in giving to it shape and influence, and by the year 1788 he was enabled to write to a friend in these words. "The ladies of fashion spend their time of Sundays teaching the poor children." This was a great victory for Raikes and his Sunday-schools. In the year 1785 Wm. Fox, an earnest Baptist deacon, became a valuable co-worker with him, and the influence of the Baptist bodies began to be felt as the Sunday-school work prospered in their hands. In the year 1784 the Methodists saw its power, and began to press its interest. In that year their school in Stockport numbered 425 teachers and 3,700 scholars. In the year 1786 the Quakers caught its spirit, and began to organize under the leadership of Joseph Lancaster, of whom it was said, "He was enthusiastic in his calling," and of his school, that it multiplied with great rapidity, and before he was eighteen years old his school numbered ninety, and afterwards scholars came pouring in upon him like sheep, and in the year 1798 his school numbered one thousand, and in order to provide teachers for them, he devised the plan of teaching the younger by the older. In the year 1808 his school became the basis of what was afterwards known as the British and Foreign Bible Society.

We now come to notice something of the origin of Sunday-schools in America. It has been said that Bishop Asbury organized the first Sunday-school in America in the year 1784, but, upon closer examination of the subject, we find that John Wesley, some years previous to this, had organized a school in Savannah, Ga., but this school was of short duration; so, when we come to look for anything like permanency in the Sunday-school work in America, it is to Bishop Asbury and his faithful co-laborers that our eyes turn, as the ones who wrought so mightily in planting the gospel upon these American shores.

We shall not stop to consider the progress of the Sunday-school in America. It will be sufficient for us to say that the good work has gone on until almost all religious bodies in America have been imbued with its spirit, and one by one, like so many battalions of warriors, have wheeled into line as portions of the grandest army that ever shook this old continent with its marching tread, until no town, city, or scarcely any country place, can be found where the banners of purest love are not carried by children's hands, while joyful hosannas are shouted to David's Son by infant tongues.

Whitworth College Opening.

It was my privilege to be at Whitworth College on Sunday, Sept. 27, and preach the opening sermon. Rev. F. N. Parker, of New Orleans, was to have been there, but could not come from some cause, and so I received an invitation to be present on that pleasant occasion. It is always a real pleasure to the loyal Mississippi Methodist to visit this school—the alma mater of so many noble women of our State. There are but few of us who have not had some one—dear friend or relative—to attend this great institution; and we feel different when walking through those halls from what we do when walking through almost any other of our splendid female schools. The very spirit of the immortal H. F. Johnson seems to be present still in those classic grounds, and the souls of the sweet-spirited alumni who have passed over the river seem still to inspire the minds of the girls who sit in their places. The very atmosphere of the place seems to be such as to develop the heroic and noble in a girl's nature.

On the way down on Saturday we saw in the Times-Democrat that it was the best opening in twenty-five years. This was gratifying, no doubt, to all of the numerous friends of the institution. When we reached the college, late in the evening, we were assured by Dr. Cooper that this was a fact. The next morning we were shown around over the campus, and it was delightful to note the wonderful improvement in the appearance of everything. The buildings had been renovated and painted. The grounds were cleaned, and the fence fixed and painted. It is a very beautiful as well as historic place, with its new dress on. We were told that great honor is due the town of Brookhaven for the way they are rallying to the support of this, their home school. When the long line of young ladies was formed, and marched to the church for Sunday-school, it was indeed an impressive sight. Here were the girls from some of the best homes of the State being trained by the church for God.

On Sunday evening, at five o'clock, those noble Christian women, Mrs. Lipscomb and Mrs. Hawkins, assembled the girls in the parlor to organize a League. It was our privilege to address them again on the duties of the college girls on the Sabbath. Almost all of them were members of the church. We stressed their vows at the altar of the church to support the church and its institutions, and all seemed ready to stand by the God of their fathers and mothers while away from home.

Surely no one looking for a school for their girls need be afraid to place them under the watch-care of Dr. Cooper and Bro. Hawkins and their noble faculty. It is very gratifying to note the confidence of the people, generally, in the administration. It is also pleasing to see the confidence of the administration in the signs of success. It occurred to me that if the friends and graduates of the college would now give their influence and some money, that they might now make a more useful school out of Whitworth than ever, although she has a very honorable record in the past. There has been a move in this direction begun; do not let it stop. Who will be the next to make a liberal donation to this grand old school?

While we were in the town we had the pleasure of being in the home of Bro. Crisler, the popular pastor of our church at that place. He began a series of meetings on Sunday night, and we preached for him at night. He is soon to have a new church that will be a great honor to the church and the town. He is doing a fine work there, as is his custom wherever his lot falls.

GEO. M. HULL.

In addition to the above, Rev. B. F. Jones kindly informs us that up to the twenty-sixth of September 130 pupils had been enrolled, 95 of whom are boarding pupils. The enrollment is expected to reach 150, and the boarding pupils to be increased to 110 or 115.

The current issue of the Brookhaven Leader contains an appreciative article of the opening, from which we make the following extract:

On last Thursday night the forty-fourth session of Whitworth College was formally opened in the chapel of the institution. The audience was so large that standing room only was left, and the administration must have felt gratified at the interest thus displayed on the part of our citizens.

A musical programme was given by Misses Weston and Rena Jones, teachers of piano, and by Mrs. Julian H. Willoughby, teacher of voice. The piano renditions were all that could have been desired, but the vocal solos of Mrs. Willoughby, in whose beautiful gift of song Brookhaven takes especial pride, met with unusually cordial appreciation. This gifted daughter of Whitworth never sung to better advantage than upon this occasion. We congratulate the college upon securing her services.

The musical programme was followed by brief addresses from Rev. B. F. Jones and Hon. J. S. Sexton, both of which were replete with splendid thought and practical suggestions, and were significantly apropos the occasion which called them forth.

Whitworth College has had an auspicious opening for 1902-'03, and everything points to a successful and prosperous term.

Louisville Circuit.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: We have held revival meetings at four churches on our charge: Rocky Hill, Mt. Pleasant, Noxapater, and Flower Ridge. We had a good meeting at each place. God's people were revived, and they reconsecrated themselves to his service.

Rev. W. S. Lagrone did the preaching at Noxapater. In that plain, practical, and earnest style of his, he spoke with power and effect. Every service was a spiritual feast. The membership was revived, backsliders were reclaimed, and sinners were convicted and converted; quite a number of accessions.

Rev. J. W. McGee rendered us very valuable help at Flower Ridge. His preaching was practical, spiritual, and appreciated by all. We had a precious meeting. The church was revived, sinners were converted, and four noble young men were added to the church.

J. A. HALL.

Vernon, La.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: This will inform you that the Lord has greatly blessed us on the Vernon charge this year. I have held four successful meetings, and have one more to hold. Recently I closed a fine meeting at Wesley Chapel, said to be the best they have had there in several years. The result was: 35 conversions and 7 accessions to the church. Bro. Finley, of Texas, was with us, and did some good preaching. We expect to come up in full with our Conference collections. We would ask the prayers of the brethren in the various fields, that the good Lord may continue to bless us on the Vernon work; that we may be able, by the help of the Holy One of Israel, to press forward in a full discharge of our every duty.

Yours in the work for the Master,

J. E. METHVIEN, P. C.

You find yourself refreshed by the presence of cheerful people; why not make earnest efforts to confer that pleasure on others? You will find half the battle is gained if you will never allow yourself to say anything gloomy.—Lydia M. Child.

All Stuffed Up

That's the condition of many sufferers from catarrh, especially in the morning. Great difficulty is experienced in clearing the head and throat.

No wonder catarrh causes headache, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, pollutes the breath, deranges the stomach and affects the appetite.

To cure catarrh, treatment must be constitutional—alterative and tonic.

"I was afflicted with catarrh. I took medicines of different kinds, giving each a fair trial; but gradually grew worse until I could hardly hear, taste or smell. I then concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after taking five bottles I was cured and have not had any return of the disease since." EUGENE FORBES, Lebanon, Kan.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

Conducted by N. A. MOTT, Yazoo City, Miss.

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

The Two Institutes.

We desire to make a last appeal to the pastors and Sunday-school workers of the North Mississippi Conference in behalf of their two Institutes, to be held next week—one at West Point, from Monday night to Wednesday afternoon, and the other at Oxford, from Wednesday night to Friday afternoon. We trust that every school in that Conference has already selected its delegates. The smaller schools need the impetus these Institutes will give them, and the new ideas which their delegates will there receive. The larger schools also not only need the new impetus, but they need trained workers to handle the children they already have.

One of the saddest sights there is to us, is to see children gathered in a Sunday-school, whose teachers know nothing of their spiritual needs; nor do they know how to teach them the Word of Life. Such teachers may be earnest and faithful, and we would not discourage them in the least, but without knowlege of the Book or of methods, their efforts will be of little value. Our greatest desire is to see such teachers step up on a higher plane. To meet their wants and needs, these Institutes will be held. If there are any such teachers in the North Mississippi Conference, we trust they will attend one of them.

We can not understand why teachers who love their work, and who feel their lack of training, often will make no effort to train and fit themselves for it. There is another class of teachers who run well for a season, but on the slightest provocation, or whenever it puts them to the smallest inconvenience, they quit their classes, and are seen in the Sunday-school room no more. We are at a loss to understand either of these two classes of teachers. If this life is but transitory, if it is a place for character-building and of preparation for the world to come, and if our position in the future life will depend on our faithfulness in service for others here, it seems to us that the teacher's office ought to be looked upon as a great privilege. Next to the pastor, there is no position in life with larger opportunities for winning souls to Christ. If such is the case, then no sacrifice is too great to enable us to fill the position, and no effort or expense should be spared to get the training necessary for efficient service.

We know a Sunday-school teacher who is now nearing the close of her earthly career. For nearly half a century she has been a teacher in the Sunday-school, and is still active, efficient, and enthusiastic. She has studied her Bible, and knows what to teach, and to the present day she neglects no means of getting a knowledge of improved methods of work. Timid and retiring, she is but little known as a Sunday-school teacher beyond the confines of her own school. But through her long service she has led pupil after pupil to Christ, and has seen many others, upon whom she has left her impress, brought to a knowledge of the Savior. Some day what a glad reunion she will have! Will she then regret any of her toil and sacrifice? "He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bearing his sheaves with him."

In the October Magazine it is announced that the Sunday-school Board has cut off one of the courses of study in the Study Circle, so that there will be only two examinations instead of three, as at first proposed. We believe this to be a wise move, because the length of the course possibly frightened some and kept them from taking it. Let us begin with the shorter course and easier examination, and then gradually educate our people up to a higher standard.

PORTERVILLE CIRCUIT.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL AND BRETHREN: The end of the Conference year is drawing nigh, and the conflict against sin for the year 1902 will soon be over and numbered with the past, and every slighted opportunity to do good is past over the precipice of time, never to return. And when I think of the golden opportunities which present themselves day after day to work for the Master, and to improve our talents, that we may better prepare ourselves for the grand and glorious work which lies out before us, and that to which the Lord has intrusted to our care, my heart grows sad. And often I reproach myself when I think of the sad condition of so many young people, who are careless and unconcerned about their souls, who are liable to plunge into eternity (at any time) without a moment's warning. And when the sad news comes that some of my congregation have passed over the river of time, and have plunged out into the unknown world of spirits unprepared, then I ask myself: Have I done my duty? Have I been faithful to every command of my Lord? Do I realize that poor souls are suspended over the awful gulf of eternal despair by the brittle thread of life? Do I value one soul above ten thousand such worlds as this? Have I been faithful to every duty intrusted to me? Have I cried against sin in all its forms? Have I faithfully and earnestly presented Jesus Christ to sinners as the only fountain for sin and uncleanliness, and the only safeguard against eternal despair? I may have left things undone that I should have done; I may have said and done things that I ought not to have done; and I pray that God will show me my duty, and give me wisdom, knowledge, and health to perform all that he requires of me, and forgive me of all that I ignorantly neglect.

I feel that the Lord has wonderfully blessed me during the year. He has permitted me to see his work prosper in my hands. For this I can only say, Glory, honor and praise be to him that giveth the victory! Many souls have been born unto God; many have been reclaimed who were in a backslidden condition. Homes have been saved which were on the verge of ruin on account of strong drink. Fathers no longer drink nor swear, but read the Word of God, and talk to their children of the love of God, and of his mercy through Jesus Christ his Son, and what wonderful things he has done for him.

I have received during the year five by certificate, six by profession of faith, twenty-seven by baptism. I have also baptized sixteen children; and the good work is still going on.

Brethren, pray for us, that God may continue to pour out his Holy Spirit upon us; that much good may be accomplished between now and the close of the Conference year.

The drouth struck us early in the Spring, and the crops throughout my entire charge is almost an absolute failure. Some people on my work have already abandoned their farms, resorting to public work for support, and others are likely to follow soon. Although everything in the future looks gloomy, yet I feel confident that I will be able to make a fair report to the Annual Conference. E. C. GRICE.

POPE, MISS.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: I have finished my revival meetings. We had some good meetings. A great many conversions and several accessions to our church, while a goodly number went to other churches.

I was ably assisted at Pope by Rev. J. H. Shumaker, who did as fine preaching as anyone needs to hear. He is evangelist enough for me.

Our last meeting was at Forest Hill, and will be long remembered on account of such an outpouring of the Holy Ghost. Eighteen conversions.

Now our meetings are over, and we are pushing things for Conference. We hope to make a good report.

Quite a number of my people are passing through a scourge of slow fever. In some families there has been as many as five cases at one time, and some homes have been visited by the angel of death. We ask the prayers of the church, that God may bless and sanctify these afflictions to the good of all concerned. Pray for us.

Your brother in Christ,
J. A. GOAD, P. C.

TOCCOPOLA CIRCUIT.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Last Sunday was a good day for us. I preached twice, baptized ten persons, and received nineteen into the church—all adults. This makes us seventy-six additions during the year, and only five of them by certificate. We are happy in the work.

J. H. BASS.

WALKER, LA.

We have just closed a successful six days' meeting at Palmetto Church, on Saturday, Sept. 13. The meeting began with Church Conference. We had dinner on the ground. Our beloved brothers, A. J. Coburn and Will Carroll, were with us. Bro. Coburn preached Saturday and Sunday. His presence and preaching added greatly to our good. Bro. Robert Randle, from Baker, La., came in on Monday, and preached two sermons a day, accompanied with the power of the Holy Spirit. The whole church revived, and put on new life; the community spiritually revived; backsliders reclaimed, and ten added to the church—two by letter. I baptized three adults and two infants. We had a great victory for the Lord at this place. We can truly say this was the best meeting ever held at this place. The Lord was with us in power to own and to bless. We had successful singing by the choir; Bro. Willie Peak, organist and leader.

Brethren, remember this church in your devotion. We give God the praise. M. E. PEAK.

THE Daughter's Health.

"All honor to woman! to her it is given To garden the earth with the roses of Heaven."

Your daughter is the brightest ornament of your home; see to it that she is kept in the best possible health, that she may attain the highest development and perfection of womanhood. Bear in mind that a weak and frail girl-life, if continued, leads to an incomplete and unsatisfactory woman-life. So much of woman's happiness and usefulness depends upon womanly health—structural and functional perfection of the parts especially concerned to maternity, that it is a mistake, a sin that may even curse generations yet unborn, to neglect any departure from womanly perfection. Small ills should be righted before they become big ones; do not allow little ills to develop into real diseases.

"My daughter suffered with nervous spells, bearing down pains and backache during her monthly periods. G. F. P. cured her. It is the best remedy I ever saw for young girls."—Mrs. Mary E. Hones, Beulah, Ala.

G. F. P.—Gerstle's Female Panacea, cures irregular, scanty, too profuse and painful monthly periods; uterine and ovarian irritations; ulcers, displacements and falling of the womb; whites and all unnatural discharges; frigidity, barreness and all impediments to maternity; also all associate ailments of the private organs of women. At all stages of menstrual life, from budding womanhood until after the changes that end special womanly functions, it is the best friend of and remedy for womankind. It is use strengthens all womanly organs, regulates and renders natural all sexual functions. It is sold at drug stores for $1.00 a bottle. Buy it, try it, and you will find these statements are true, for it is reliable and will not disappoint.

All ladies who are not perfectly right and well in a womanly way should write to the Ladies' Health Club, care of L. Gerstle & Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., for free medical advice and instruction.

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check, ten cents extra will be charged.

THE SERMON—PLACE AND PURPOSE.

The sermon justly holds first place in public worship. Those who exalt the ritual, or put forward the music at the expense of the preaching, either forget or ignore the purpose for which our Lord called and set apart men for the ministry. In ritualistic churches the service is all—the sermon is nothing. The preacher is lost sight of in the priest—an officer unknown in the New Testament. Let those who accept this form of ecclesiastical attorneyship have it so, but every effort to degrade evangelical preachers by forcing them to sandwich their sermons between musical performances, instrumental and vocal, and to cut them down to the shortest possible time, should be resisted to the end.

St. Paul informs us that the business of preaching was committed to him as his chief work. Christ sent him to preach, and he made everything else secondary in importance. He was not commissioned to conduct service—to read lessons and prayers, and to hear the responses of the people. He was not sent to preside over sacred concerts, or to arrange musical programmes with the soloist and quartet for the entertainment of esthetic sentimentalists. He exhorted the people to sing and to make melody in their hearts, but neither the singing nor other exercises were allowed to monopolize the time, and crowd out the sermon. Any preacher assists in defeating the purpose of his mission when he suffers the sermon to be discounted in the estimation of his congregation.

The purpose of the sermon sets forth its pre-eminence. The preacher is God's messenger to declare his will to men. As such, he is sent into the world to teach. "Go ye and teach all nations," said Jesus to his apostles. "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." "And they went forth and preached everywhere." The preacher is commissioned to warn men of the deceitfulness of sin, of the devices of the wicked one, of the final and awful consequences of their evil ways. Of the dangers to which men are exposed in their natural state, though they may know them, they are often forgetful, and sometimes utterly indifferent. The dangers must be pressed upon their attention. The preacher must persuade men. His heart must be thrown into his message, and by the love of God in Christ Jesus he must seek to turn men from sin. These are the chief duties of the preacher—to instruct, to warn, to persuade. How is he to perform these duties except through the sermon?

The information given in the New Testament leads us to believe that our Lord, when he commissioned his apostles, intended them to go out and gather the people together, and to stand before them, and face to face preach the gospel. What is called personal work — that is, taking men one at a time, and privately instructing them—may accomplish some good, but it is a slow process, and if wholly depended on, the church would never succeed in bringing the world to Christ. Among a people destitute of Christian knowledge such a plan might, in the incipient stages of mission work, succeed in winning a few souls; but let that plan be adopted among us, and the sermon abolished, our churches would soon die. Congregating the people, and by the living voice proclaiming the gospel, is the God-ordained method. This is the method of men when they undertake to thoroughly instruct and arouse their fellow-men to action. "How shall men call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher?"

If the sermon, by divine arrangement, has pre-eminence in the gospel, the preacher can not lightly esteem it, nor allow the congregation to set it aside. Too much is involved—his own salvation and the salvation of his people. God will call him to account, and hold him responsible both for the matter and the manner of his discourse. He dare not give it a secondary place, nor preach anything save the simple gospel. He has no authority to reject or amend the holy oracles, but to preach them as he finds them. Nothing is to be added to them; nothing taken from them. St. Paul's highest ambition was to preach the gospel as the Lord delivered it to him, and having preached it, he conscientiously declared that he was "free from the blood of all men," for he had "not shunned to declare the whole counsel of God."

The mighty issues involved demand thorough preparation on the part of the preacher for his life-work, and that he exert himself to the best of his ability every time he undertakes to preach. Of all places, the pulpit is the last, either for the display of one's learning and ability, or for trifling with the souls of men. How a preacher called of God can undertake to instruct the people without preparation, or conclude that if he opens his mouth, the Lord will fill it, we do not understand. One is inexcusable carelessness; the other is presumption.

In these days, without any thought of disobedience to the call of God, or desire to sidetrack the sermon, there is danger of losing sight of the importance of preaching in the effort to answer the demand for good pastors. This is the result of wrong conceptions, for which, perhaps, high officers in the church are chargeable. And this, doubtless, accounts—at least, in part—for the fact that we have so few real great preachers among our young men. It accounts also, in part, for the effort to discount the sermon, and dwarf it almost to nothing. The people are always eager to hear great preaching. Every preacher ought to strive to preach great sermons. The ambition is laudable, if prompted by the desire to do good.

ONE VOW OF A PREACHER.

Every Methodist preacher who is presented for ordination to the ministry is believed to be sound in the faith. A committee appointed to ascertain the fact has so reported. Otherwise an Annual Conference could not authorize his ordination, nor put the seal of the church upon his parchments. And to further test his soundness, he is required, in the presence of the Bishop and the congregation, to give satisfactory answers to certain questions, which are final. The questions are asked in view of the fact that the church has standards of belief which all candidates are required to accept. Such a requirement is necessary to save the church from confusion. These standards men can accept or reject, as they may see proper; only one who rejects them has no place in our ministry.

Methodism affirms faith in the Holy Scriptures—in their infallibility, because they are given by inspiration of God, and in their sufficiency, because they contain all things necessary to salvation. The faith of the church is set forth specifically in our fifth Article of Religion. And that there may be no mistake or misunderstanding, it is distinctly affirmed that "in the name of the Holy Scripture we do understand those canonical books of the Old and New Testaments, of whose authority was never any doubt in the church." Then follows the names of the canonical books as we have them in the Authorized, or King James' translation, and in other versions.

At the time of ordination, when the candidate is undergoing the examination in the presence of the people, he is asked this question, "Do you unfeignedly believe all the canonial Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments?" His answer is, "I do believe them." No other answer would suffice. It must be without reserve, and with no doubtful signification. Those who are appointed to examine candidates, and those who administer the vows, have no authority to make any compromise; and they will not, if faithful, and understand their own responsibilities. And we undertake to say that it is next to impossible for one who is unsound in the faith to get into the ministry—his soundness being determined from a Methodist standpoint.

Observe, the candidate for orders is not told that the Bible is made up of inspired and uninspired parts, and that it is his duty to separate the genuine from the spurious. Nor is he informed that much of what is set forth as history is mythical or allegorical. The doctrines of grace, around which controversy has raged for ages, are not mentioned and expounded. The presumption is, that he has made a study of these things, and he is simply called on to declare his faith as a Methodist. Every ordained preacher in Methodism has done this, as also has every licentiate who is on trial. And it comes to pass that every man sent out to preach is endorsed as sound in the faith. If he is not, he practices an imposition on the church.

But it happens now and then that a preacher's views undergo a change. He comes to the conclusion that the Scriptures are not infallible. Moses has been upset, Job discovered to be only the leading character of a beautiful fiction, and the Lord Jesus himself to be but a man highly endowed, spiritually and intellectually, and worthy as an example of virtue and correct living — nothing more. As to the doctrines of the Bible, he finds that Methodism is wholly wrong. Of course, every man has a right to investigate and to accept conclusions as they are reached, and it is both his privilege and his duty to be governed by them. The church gladly releases every man from his vows as a Methodist, and bids him God-speed when he can no longer agree with its teachings or polity. But so long as he remains in the church, he is expected to conform to its doctrines and practices. Whenever he ceases to be in accord with his church, he should, by all means, say so, and quit. He can not do otherwise and be consistent.

PRESBYTERIAN REVISION.

The revision of the creed, or Brief Statement, adopted by the General Assembly of the Northern Presbyterian Church last May, is now before the Presbyteries, and is being adopted with less opposition than was expected. Here and there are presented strong protests. These protests are made because if the Brief Statement is accepted and enters into the constitution of the church, the peculiarities of Presbyterianism as set forth in the articles on foreordination, and elect infants, will disappear. It is true, the original articles stand, and the revision is to be understood as explanatory. But if the explanation is authoritative, and worth anything, the original articles will cease to be considered.

Methodist writers generally look upon the Brief Statement as an abandonment of ultra-Calvinism. So do Cumberland Presbyterians, who split off from the Old School Presbyterians, partly because of their position on foreordination. The Cumberlands are so clearly persuaded that the Mother Church has abandoned the "horrible decrees," many of them are ready to make necessary concessions on other points, and reunite. Overtures to that end have already been made. The Presbyterian, of Philadelphia, quotes without dissent from a ministerial correspondent, as follows:

"The more I examine both the New Statement and the Overtures, the more fully am I convinced that it would be unwise and misleading —as to future action of the church looking to union with other Presbyterian bodies in the country—if we should adopt these Overtures. Their significance has been properly estimated by Methodist and Cumberland people. Instead of . . . . the New Statement and the proposed Overtures giving a satisfactory explanation of Calvinistic views, the very contrary has occurred. We need to explain the explanation with more pains than we have been obliged to use in setting forth the meaning of the Confession itself. Historically, how foolish it is to attempt to satisfy doctrinal adversaries in the church or outside of it by trimming explanation. This sort of procedure has always failed."

Evidently the writer of the above paragraph is of the opinion that it is impossible to reconcile the New Statement with the Calvinistic views as set forth in the Confession of Faith. We are of the same opinion. One is Calvinistic, the other is Arminian, and Calvinism and Arminianism can not be made to harmonize on the questions at issue. The leaven of free grace and an unlimited atonement has done its work. Our Presbyterian brethren have put into their book what they have had in their pulpits for a long time. The action will not hinder them in their work.

ANOTHER ORDER CALLED FOR.

The number of orders in Methodism is not sufficient to meet the demands of the times. We have Bishops, elders, deacons, and deaconesses, and a self-constituted order called evangelists. Now it is given out in a high place that we have no order among our laymen answerable to the order of deaconess among the sisters. Of course, this discrimination is not right. The sisters must not monopolize the work of mercy among the poor and needy, and the brethren must be organized and trained. We must institute an order—a brotherhood, not to accompany the sisters, but to work on similar lines in places where the sisters can not go. This last suggestion our sisters will be quick to resent, for it was distinctly argued that if they were organized and trained, and allowed to wear a distinctive dress, they could go anywhere.

We do not know whether the brother who makes the suggestion is in downright earnest or not. Possibly he has put forth his views tentatively, just to see how they would be received by the Methodist public. But whether he is serious or in jest, he is accorded a place in our Methodist Review —a periodical that is supposed to stand at the heard of Southern Methodist journalism. That gives his paper respectability, and there are ecclesiastical experimenters among us who would be willing, if encouraged, to authorize just such a brotherhood.

We thought, at the close of our recent General Conference, that the Old Church was sufficiently patched up, and furnished with new machinery in the way of Boards, Orders, etc., to meet any contingency during the ensuing four years. We were mistaken. We were guilty of a serious oversight. We took one step in imitation of Rome when we should have taken two. We authorized deaconesses and deaconess homes. We should have authorized a brotherhood, bought a farm, and made it part of the duty of the brothers, when not at work in the slums, to cultivate vineyards and manufacture communion wine. Not until something of the kind is put in operation will Southern Methodists be an up-to-date people. O for some dumb ass to open his mouth and rebuke the madness of the Lord's prophets!

MAKING A MOCK AT SIN.

"It is as sport to a fool to do mischief." This is the equivalent of another proverb of Solomon, "Fools make a mock at sin." The saying was exemplified a short time since at Fulton, Ky., when "the lewd fellows of the baser sort," defeated in their efforts to carry an election in favor of liquor, got together, and gave expression to the murder that was in their hearts, by hanging in effigy the Rev. E. B. Ramsey, who had taken the leading part in their overthrow. There was no suffering in this form of lynching. It did not create even a twinge of conscience in Brother Ramsey's heart. Whether he witnessed the execution or not we are not advised, but we have no doubt that he felt thankful that he was counted worthy to suffer such a death in the cause of God and humanity. For years he has been foremost in the fight against the liquor traffic, and has won too many battles to be intimidated by anything the whisky ring may do. He has the approval of God and good men, and can well afford to let his enemies mock. Are we mistaken in thus making an application of the wise man's words, "Fools make a mock at sin"!

Three or four times recently anxious inquirers have asked the editors of their church papers concerning the propriety of "union meetings," and whether or not their preachers "ought to exchange pulpits with preachers of other denominations." The answers were sometimes rather timidly given, but invariably indicated opposition. One or two replies were direct and unequivocal, and breathed anything but a brotherly or Christian spirit, showing that prejudice and bigotry still remain in some hearts. The wonder is, that men who cherish such sentiments can afford to exchange papers with their brother editors.

The editor of the Baptist Chronicle of Louisiana says, "Some over-loving Baptist preachers need to take note of the fact that it is as much a sin to act a hypocrite with Pedo-baptists as it is to act the hypocrite with anybody else." The truth conveyed in the saying is self-evident, but we hope our brother does not mean to insinuate that every Baptist preacher who assists Methodists and other Christians in meetings, or preaches in their pulpits by invitation, is acting the part of a hypocrite. It is quite enough to charge such brethren with being over-loving; to call them hypocrites in uncharitable.

CHANGE OF DATE.

MY DEAR BROTHER: Please publish in ADVOCATE that the Louisiana Conference will meet Dec. 18 (Thursday), instead of Dec. 17, as heretofore announced, and oblige,

Yours, JOSEPH S. KEY.

Sherman, Texas, Oct. 2, 1902.

PERSONAL.

Rev. W. S. Lagrone, presiding elder of the Durant district, asks us to give notice that he has secured Rev. J. D. McWhorter to close up the work on Ethel circuit, made vacant by the death of Rev. A. J. Foster.

Rev. J. J. Garner says: "We are getting along very well up here at Ruleville (North Mississippi), doing the best we well can." That means Brother Garner is giving his whole soul and time to the work of the Master.

Our church at Gueydan, La., is bereaved by the death of Brother H. E. Richards, a good, spiritually-minded man, who was a blessing to the community. He died in triumph. May the Lord care for the widow and fatherless baby girl!

Rev. A. A. Bernard is doing well in his charge—Gueydan, La. He reports a good meeting at Estherwood. There were five conversions and three applications for membership; the church much benefited. Rev. Martin Hebert did most of the preaching.

Rev. B. S. Rayner, of the North Mississippi Conference, is located for the present at Laredo, Texas, which place, we take for granted, will be his headquarters while distributing Bibles among the Mexicans. We pray that he may meet with great success.

Dr. T. B. Hollomon, presiding elder of the Jackson district, authorizes us to say that, "Rev. J. T. Leggett having transferred to the Denver Conference, Dr. Jas. A. Moore has been put in charge of Capitol Street Church for the remainder of the Conference year."

In a note on business Rev. E. L. Alford includes a good word about his charge. He says: "I have had a splendid year on Topisaw circuit; fifty, or more, conversions, and an addition to the church of thirty-five members. Have also built for the circuit a most excellent parsonage."

Rev. Theo. Copeland, of Birmingham, is at present in Water Valley, assisting Rev. J. M. Bradley in a meeting. As our Baptist brethren have just been through a great revival, we trust the fire has been transferred to Wood Street, and that the church may be greatly blessed.

Rev. J. A. Bowen is closing another successful year at Tupelo. All departments of his work are prosperous. One hundred and thirty-eight members have been received during the past twenty-one months, and more to follow. The finances will be in full. Happy preacher! Happy people!

A note from Rev. O. L. Savage, of Courtland, Miss., informs us that he has received seventy members into the church this year. In two of his meetings he had the efficient services of Revs. R. H. B. Gladney, W. L. Graves, and D. W. Babb. Two meetings he held without assistance. The outlook is bright.

The following letter from Rev. and Mrs. E. E. Langford, dated Cedar Bluff, Miss., Oct. 6, has just reached us: "DEAR DOCTOR: Our baby boy, Cecil Watts, left us, for the home above, to-day at 1:50 P. M., at the age of nine months and nineteen days. Our hearts are very heavy. Pray for us." We extend our deepest sympathy to the bereaved ones.

Miss Jennie Sebastian writes us concerning the strong efforts put forth by the good Methodists of Benson, La., to build a church. The house is about complete, ready for painting, but all the furnishings are yet lacking, and the money exhausted. The people of the church have done their best, and now need help from others. Who will lend a helping hand?

Do You Know?

That when your bowels are disordered, and irregularities caused by change of diet or location exist,

New Orleans Preachers' Meeting.

Notwithstanding the street-car strike, every pastor was present except one. At the opening of the meeting the presiding elder, Dr. LaPrade, was not present, but Dr. F. N. Parker called the meeting together, and after devotional service the pastors reported the work done during the past month. Additions: Felicity, 2; Parker Memorial, 2; Werlein Mission, 1; Carondelet, 4.

Several pastors reported the financial condition of their churches in fine condition.

The pastor of Algiers, Rev. Dodson, announced that Bro. Joe Ramsey, of Viola, Tenn., will assist him in a revival in November.

Dr. LaPrade reported an increase of men in attendance on the evening services.

The strike seems to have affected the attendance of Carondelet Street Church more than any other church.

Dr. D. M. Bye Co., Dallas, Texas:

Dear Sirs—I feel so grateful to you for curing a cancer on my face, that I wish to make a statement of the case, and hope to induce other sufferers to give your remedy a trial and be cured.

My face has been cancerous for twenty years, I suppose. At the first it would break out in a sore and I would burn the place with a hot tobacco-pipe, and it would heal up, but would break out anew on a different part of my face, but it could not be controlled in this way, and about ten or twelve years ago it broke out again on my left cheek. I could get no relief by using the old application and I then submitted the case to a cancer doctor, who said that he knew he could cure me. He applied one fiercy plaster after another, which almost threw me into convulsions, until he pronounced it cured. It did not heal over, but left a red, ugly scar. It remained so only a short time and broke out again. Again I returned to him and went through the same fiercy ordeal. This I did three times and got no cure. The time of his treatment extended over thirteen months. I had resolved not to submit to the treatment any more, but to let it take its course, when I happened to see your card in the Home and Farm Magazine. By this time, October, 1901, the case was a stubborn one, but I did not put myself under your treatment until December 1, of the same year, four months ago. I followed your directions implicitly, and have no doubt but that I am permanently cured, because the place has healed over, leaving but a small scar, and the new skin is of a natural color and grows tougher every day.

I am in the 72d year of my age, and have been a member of the Primitive Baptist Church for nearly 53 years. I pray for God's blessings on you, that your life may be a long one, and that you may live to relieve the sufferings of others, as you have done for me.

Gratefully yours,

MRS. MARTHA GIBSON,

Notes from W. H. M. S. of North Mississippi Conference.

Much good work has been done during the Summer. Since June 1 five new societies have been organized. Three in Sardis district, at Pope, Senatobia, and Pleasant Grove. Lamar has shown gratitude for the help extended by organizing a society. A society has been organized at Lexington. The order has been sent for the payment of the balance due to Lamar.

The Conference treasurer reports:

Dues for second quarter	$116 84
Pledge and specials	49 90
Value of supplies sent	102 75
Raised for local work	532 31

The corresponding secretary's report shows:

Visits to the sick and strangers	532
Needy relieved	27
Garments distributed	125

Mrs. Rowan Thayer, of Greenwood, has accepted the office of district secretary of Winona district, in place of Mrs. Buckley, who felt compelled to resign. Many promises have been made for better work during the Fall and Winter.

Mrs. Robert Somerville.

To the Members of the Louisiana Annual Conference—

Dear Brethren: At the next session of the Louisiana Annual Conference, I expect to introduce a resolution asking you to establish and maintain a Louisiana Orphanage. I have thought over it a long time, and I believe it to be our duty. Be prepared to discuss this matter at our coming meeting. Pray over it. Speak to your congregations about it, and see if some one will offer a suitable plot of land for a site in a healthful place. Fraternally,

Chas. C. Wier.

The Royal Month and the Royal Disease.

Sudden changes of weather are especially trying, and probably to none more so than to the scrofulous and consumptive. The progress of scrofula during a normal October is commonly great. We never think of scrofula—its bunches, cutaneous eruptions, and wasting of the bodily substance—without thinking of the great good many sufferers from it have derived from Hood's Sarsaparilla, whose radical and permanent cures of this one disease are enough to make it the most famous medicine in the world. There is probably not a city or town where Hood's Sarsaparilla has not proved its merit in more homes than one, in arresting and completely eradicating scrofula, which is almost as serious and as much to be feared as its near relative—consumption.

Again Offered.

To New Orleans Christian Advocate Readers.

The Theo. Noel Company are again making their offer to send a package of Vitæ Ore on trial to every subscriber of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, or friend recommended by readers, and every person in need of medicinal treatment of any kind should be certain to accept the same. Their offer occupies a large part of page 5, and all can profit by reading it through carefully. This medicine was discovered many years ago by Theo. Noel, the president of the company, at that time a prospecting geologist, and since its introduction has been instrumental in curing thousands upon thousands of ailing people throughout the country of all manner of diseases, a number of which are enumerated in the advertisement. The company desires no one's money whom Vitæ-Ore can not positively benefit, and for this reason do not offer the medicine for cash, but desires each person to test it before paying for it, and none need pay unless benefited and satisfied. The company is regarded as reliable, is well known to the reading public, have what they claim, and will do as they agree. A large number of our readers have already accepted this offer, and can consequently testify concerning the merits of the medicine, but those who have not should not hesitate to give V. O. a trial according to the liberal offer made by the Theo. Noel Company.

From this date no attention will be paid to manuscripts that come to this office rolled. Let them be folded and put in an envelope. And please, brethren and sisters, use ink. Pencil writing, after passing through the mail, is often hard to read. We speak both for the printer and the editor.

First Church, Shreveport.

For four weeks I have been the victim of malaria in general, and of carbuncles in particular; so that, while I have managed to fill my pulpit every Sunday, I have only been able to visit the sick and distressed.

I am closing out my fourth year pleasantly and, I hope, profitably, both to myself and the church. We have moved forward some, and I am glad that my successor may find a clear field, a united and working church, and a splendid new home for the preacher. Our membership has increased in numbers, and the increase is in the shape of a fine class of people. Indeed, I know of no more pleasant charge than this, and in advance congratulate the brother who follows me, for he will serve a noble people, who are loyal to their pastor and the church. Our collections are all secured, and we are in this sense ready for Conference, and besides the regular will be able to report some special collections.

I am to help Brother Lutz next week, and he is to help me in the latter part of the month in a meeting. Lutz is a fine man, and I only wish we had more like him, for he has grit, grace, and gumption.

Dr. LaPrade lives in the affection of many here, and I only hope I may follow another pastor so generally beloved as was he.

We have suffered a severe loss in the death of Judge John W. Holbert, one of our official members, who died suddenly last Sunday evening. He died as he lived—in the fullness of Christian faith; and we still rejoice that "our people die well."

Come up and spend a Sunday with me, and we will make a special canvass for the Advocate.

W. T. Bolling.

Notice, Louisiana Conference.

Will the presiding elders please send me immediately the assessments on their districts, including the assessments for presiding elder and preacher-in-charge? Also please give me the names of your lay delegates to the Annual Conference, with their occupations and postoffice addresses, and the place where the next District Conference will be held. I also want the names of the district Epworth League officers, and the names of all Boards of Trustees holding Annual Conference property in the district. Respectfully,

Grand Cane, La., Oct. 1, 1902.

Conference Notice.

To Presiding Elders of North Mississippi Conference—

Brethren: Please send me names of lay delegates, and those for admission on trial and for readmission, and those local preachers for ordination.

I believe that all the members of the Conference will join us in prayer for the baptism of the Holy Ghost upon the Conference session.

Tupelo, Miss., Oct. 2, 1902.

Free Scholarships.

We have room for a few more students in our dormitories, and until these places are filled we will give free tuition to all who apply; board, washing included, fuel, electric lights and excellent table fare, only $135, for the entire session in main building, and $95 in Club Home.

We have the largest opening we have had in thirty years' history of the college; had thirty more boarders than last opening, and are better equipped than ever to do excellent work. The Lord is with us in great power. Send your daughter at once. No preparation is needed. Wire us when to meet her. Write for catalogue.

J. W. Beeson, President.

RALLY DAY.

The third Sunday in October has been designated as Missionary Rally Day for the Sunday-schools. A suitable programme has been prepared, and it is important that all our schools should be supplied, and duly observe the day. Superintendents should order a supply at once, and put their schools in training. The Mission Rooms will furnish the programmes free of charge. Address Mr. G. W. Cain, Nashville, Tenn.

Personal to Subscribers

We will send to every subscriber or reader of the

a full-sized ONE-DOLLAR package of VITÆ-ORE, by mail, POSTPAID, sufficient for one month's treatment, to be paid for within one month's time after receipt, if the receiver can truthfully say that its use has done him or her more good than all the drugs and doses of quacks or good doctors or patent medicines he or she has ever used. Read this over again carefully, and understand that we ask our pay only when it has done you good, and not before. We take all the risk; you have nothing to lose. If it does not benefit you, you pay us nothing. VITÆ-ORE is a natural, hard, adamantine, rock-like substance—mineral—ORE—mined from the ground like gold and silver, and requires about 20 years for oxidization. It contains free iron, free sulphur and magnesium, and one package will equal in medicinal strength and curative value 800 gallons of the most powerful, efficacious mineral water drunk fresh at the springs. It is a geological discovery, to which there is nothing added or taken from. It is the marvel of the century for curing such diseases as Rheumatism, Bright's Disease, Blood Poisoning, Heart Trouble, Diphtheria, Catarrh and Throat Affections, Liver, Kidney and Bladder Ailments, Stomach and Female Disorders, La Grippe, Malarial Fever, Nervous Prostration and General Debility, as thousands testify, and as no one, answering this, writing for a package, will deny after using. Vitæ-Ore will do the same for you as it has done for hundreds of New Orleans Christian Advocate readers if you will give it a trial, which none should hesitate to do on this liberal offer. SEND FOR A $1.00 PACKAGE AT OUR RISK. You have nothing to lose if the medicine does not benefit you. WE WANT NO ONE'S MONEY WHOM VITÆ-ORE CAN NOT BENEFIT. Can anything be more fair? One package is usually sufficient to cure ordinary cases; two to four for chronic, obstinate cases. Investigation will bear out that we MEAN JUST WHAT WE SAY in this announcement and will do just as we agree. Write to-day for a package at our risk and expense, giving your age and ailments, so that we may give you special directions for treatment if same be necessary, and mention this paper, so we may know that you are entitled to this liberal offer. This offer will challenge the attention and consideration, and afterward the gratitude, of every living person who desires better health, or who suffers pains, ills and diseases, which have defied the medical world and grown worse with age. We care not for your skepticism, but ask only your investigation, and at our expense, regardless of what ills you have, by sending to us for a package. Address, THEO. NOEL CO., New Orleans Advocate Department, Vitæ-Ore Building, Chicago, Ill.

HAVE YOU URIC ACID, RHEUMATISM OR BLADDER TROUBLE?

Pain or dull ache in the back is unmistakable evidence of kidney trouble. It is Nature's timely warning to show you that the track of health is not clear.

If these danger signals are unheeded, more serious results are sure to follow; Bright's disease which is the worst form of kidney trouble may steal upon you.

The mild and the extraordinary effect of the world-famous kidney and bladder remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. A trial will convince anyone—and you may have a sample bottle free, by mail.

Among the many famous cures of Swamp Root investigated by "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE," the one we publish this week for the benefit of our readers, speaks in the highest terms of the wonderful curative properties of this great kidney remedy.

DR. KILMER & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

GENTLEMEN:—When I wrote you last March for a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, my wife was a great sufferer from backache, rheumatism and urinary trouble, also excess of uric acid. After trying the sample bottle, she bought a large bottle here at the drug store. That did her so much good she bought more. The effect of Swamp-Root was wonderful and almost immediate. She has felt no return of the old trouble since. F. THOMAS.

Lame back is only one symptom of kidney trouble—one of many. Other symptoms showing that you need Swamp-Root are, obliged to pass water often during the day and to get up many times at night, inability to hold your urine, smarting or irritation in passing, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, catarrh of the bladder, uric acid, constant headache, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, irregular heart-beating, rheumatism, bloating, irritability, wornout feeling, lack of ambition, loss of flesh, sallow complexion.

If your water when allowed to remain undisturbed in a glass or bottle for twenty-four hours, forms a sediment or settling, or has a cloudy appearance, it is evidence that your kidneys and bladder need immediate attention.

In taking Swamp-Root you afford natural help to Nature, for Swamp-Root is the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that is known to medical science.

Swamp-Root is the great discovery of Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist. Hospitals use it with wonderful success in both slight and severe cases. Doctors recommend it to their patients and use it in their own families, because they recognize in Swamp-Root the greatest and most successful remedy.

To Prove What SWAMP-ROOT, the Great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy, Will do for YOU, Every Reader of "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" May Have a Sample Bottle Absolutely Free by Mail.

If you have the slightest symptoms of kidney or bladder trouble, or if there is a trace of it in your family history, send at once to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., who will gladly send you free by mail, immediately, without cost to you, a sample bottle of Swamp-Root and a book of wonderful Swamp Root testimonials. Be sure to say that you read this generous offer in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

If you are already convinced that Swamp Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Home Circle.

Uncle 'Lij on Horse-Sense.

Uncle 'Lijah stuffed the Chicago paper into his pocket, and left it there. Carroll Corners had no need of Chicago news that day, and Uncle 'Lijah knew it. Horace Griffin's barn had burned down, and two valuable horses had been added to the loss.

The grocery man was all alert.

"Was you to the fire, Uncle 'Lij?" was the salutation which reached the latter before he was fairly inside the door.

"No," responded the Illinois philosopher; "no, I wasn't at it; but I heard about it. So you couldn't git the horses out?"

The grocer was a member of the fire-brigade.

"Well, sir, that was the queerest thing y' ever see. There was lots uv time—fire in other end of barn—we must 'a' ben twenty minutes workin' with the horses before the smoke choked us off—and yit we cudden git 'em out."

"We done everything. Pulled 'em by the halter, hollered at 'em, whipped 'em, took axes and cut down stalls at last; but there they stood by the mangers, and nothin' 'ud budge 'em, till they went plumb crazy and danced about like mad!"

"An' wa'n't there nobody there to tell you fellers what to do?"

"No more'n what we done."

"Well, they's one thing you ought to done; I don't say it would 'a' saved 'em, but I never see it fail. You ought to blindfolded 'em with their blankets, and then backed 'em out."

"That's right, Uncle 'Lij," said Doc Bier, the liveryman and practicing veterinary surgeon, who had just come in.

Then tales of burning stables, east and west, were related to illustrate the truth, as one lounger after another brought his experience to bear.

Finally the flow of conversation came to a full stop at a question mark. The question was, Why should an animal as intelligent as the horse have no more sense than to stay in a burning barn and die there? The grocery man went so far as to doubt the supposed intelligence of the horse, and said that, after what he had seen the night before, as a knowing brute the horse was not what he had "been cracked up to be."

"Well, now, Reube, it strikes me yon aint got the horse down very fine. 'Taint because he's stupid. Jest the opposite. It's because he's got what a good many men think they have, and are mighty proud of, an' that's horse-sense. A horse stays in the barn because he can figger out things, an' argee. Says he, when he smells the smoke, 'Suthin's up.' Then he uses his horse-sense. Says he: 'I'm glad I'm in the barn. It's the safest place in the world. When it rains, an' I get wet an' shivery, I always find the barn dry and comfortable. Same thing when it's cold. An' when it's hot, so I wish I had one of these here new straw bonnets between my ears, soon's I strike the barn I find it cool. When I get home from a long drive, hungry an', as the feller said, with nuthin' in my stomach but a wrinkle, I find corn and hay in the barn. When I sprained my foreleg last Summer, soon's they got me in the barn an' rubbed me they fixed me up quick,' said he.

"Now," coutinued Uncle 'Lijah, warming up to his subject, his expression becoming less humorous and more intense as he realized that he was striking very close to some of his auditors, "a good many men agree the same way; only they put 'money' where the horse puts 'barn.' Money warms 'em in Winter, with wood at four dollars a cord; an' it keeps 'em cool in Summer, with ice at thirty-five cents a hundred; it honses 'em, clothes 'em, feeds 'em, doctors 'em, and does so many things, purty soon they get to thinkin' that money'll do everything.

"It never occurred to the horse that the barn could get afire, and burn him up. An' these fellers never 'low themselves to think that there's a time comin' when money is about as much good as wood, hay and stubble, burnin' round their ears.

"It's horse-sense for a horse to go in the barn, an' it's horse-sense for a man to depend on money and the things money'll buy; bnt the time comes for men, an' may come for horses, when they need suthin' more than their own horse-sense."

"What's that?" asked Doc Bier, who had been so interested that he had let his cigar go out.

"Well, Doc," said the old man, lowering his voice, "it's what the horse has to exercise before you can get him out of the burnin' barn—it's faith. S'long as the horse can see, he depends on his own horse-sense; but, when he's blindfolded, he says: 'Now I don't know where I am. All I know is, my master's hand is on my neck, an' my master's voice is in my ear, an' the smell of smoke is in my nose. I don't know what's wrong, but my master does.' Says he: 'I'll jest quit argeein' an' relyin' on horse-sense, an' I'll obey my master's command, an' go where he leads.'

"Now, Doc, that's my idee of religion. I didn't calc'late to get onto that subjec' when I come here; bnt sense the talk has nacherly led up to it, I might as well say what I think. I think religion, biled down, amounts to this—havin' more faith in the Master than in your own horse-sense, an' showin' that faith by obeyin' the Master's voice, whether he says, 'Whoa,' 'Back,' er 'Git up.'"

When Uncle 'Lijah had gone out, and they had watched him catch a team which was "going his way," Doc Bier looked at his cigar; and though it was only half burnt out, he threw it into the stove, and then remarked: "Well, boys, that's the first sermon I've heard for three years, and the best one I've heard for ten."—Christian Endeavor World.

By many years of constant study and experiments, I have perfected a simple, harmless vegetable remedy that will quickly cure all female diseases, as well as the piles. It is nature's own remedy, and will not only relieve, but will absolutely thoroughly and permanently cure the ailments peculiar to women, such as falling of the womb, leucorrhea [whites], displacements, ulceration, granulation, painful or scanty periods, irregular menstruation and all the pelvic ills of women. It positively cures rectal ulcers, piles, hemorrhoids, tumors, itching, blind or bleeding piles in either sex. It cures promptly, privately, and permanently without the repugnant methods in general use by physicians. You can escape embarrassing examinations, avoid humiliating exposures, cheat the surgeon's knife out of baptism in your blood.

The treatment is so simple, mild and effectual that it will not interfere with your work or occupation. Thousands and thousands of letters are being received from grateful persons from all parts of the world who have been cured by the use of this remedy. The first package is free, send for it—send to-day. I know that a fair trial of it will result in your becoming its enthusiastic advocate and friend. With it I will send literature of interest and value. Do not neglect this opportunity to get cured yourself and be in a position to advise ailing friends.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

The Firm of Grumble Brothers.

"Postscript edition!" shouted the newsboy at the door, as the street car stopped for a moment. "Paper, sir?"

"Yes," said Alan's father, and was soon deeply engaged, reading the latest news from China. Alan, thrown on his own resources, amused himself by looking out of the window. He was not familiar with that part of the city, and found much to interest him. Presently he broke into a low laugh. "What is it?" asked Mr. Peterson.

"Such a funny sign, father—'Grumble Brothers!' I wonder if they live up to their name?"

"I think not," said his father, smilingly, "or they would not be the successful men of business that they are. But there are some 'Grumble Brothers' who, unhappily, do live up to their name. I hope you will not enter into partnership."

The next morning was rainy. Alan came down to breakfast decidedly out of humor. "Why should it rain on Saturday? I do not care if it pours on school days. We were going to play ball in the park this afternoon. It doesn't seem fair for it to rain. Mother, what is the matter with this oatmeal? It is not a bit good."

"When did they take you in, Alan?" asked Mr. Peterson.

"Take me in?" asked the boy in surprise. "What do you mean?"

"Beg pardon, father," said Alan, greatly mystified; "I do not see what you are aiming at."

"Oh, I thought by the tone of your remarks that you had been taken into the firm of 'Grumble Brothers;' that is all."

Alan blushed and looked undecided for a moment, and then gave a good-humored laugh. "You have the best of me, father. Well, the next time I find fault with anything just remind me, please, of those 'Brothers,' and I will try to pick up a little pleasantness."—Unidentified.

An Appeal to Our Friends.

We make a special appeal to our friends who owe us on subscription to send us the amount due. We need the money. The amount each one owes is small, but the aggregate amounts to hundreds of dollars. Our friends must see that it is embarrassing to us to withhold the money. Please look at the label on your paper, and if you are behind, send us the amount due. We will greatly appreciate it.

OBITUARIES.

Mrs. Susan Ann Holloway (nee Tabor) was born in Wilkinson county, Miss., in 1816 She was married to Jas. W. Holloway in 1836, and died in New Iberia, La., Aug. 21, 1902. Sister Holloway joined the Methodist Church under the ministry of Dr. Wm. Winans in 1828, at the early age of twelve years, and lived a happy, consistent Christian life for over seventy years. Hers was a life of much sorrow and patient suffering. She has been an invalid for the past ten years, confined most of the time to her bed. With great Christian fortitude and patience she bore her great suffering. It was a benediction to be in her presence and see how close she lived to her Lord. She lived in constant danger of death for the last several months, and she often expressed herself as ready, and even anxious, for her final departure, but she never murmured or seemed impatient. Her mental faculties were remarkably strong for her age and afflictions. She was a constant and intelligent reader. Her Bible was ever by her side, and the Advocates (New Orleans and Nashville) were sources of great delight and comfort to her. A "mother in Israel" has passed to her reward, having "done what she could." While she hath passed beyond the bounds of time, her life and influence abideth, and may the three children left, and those who knew her most intimately, ever live to emulate her noble faith and devotion to her Lord and church that was ever the stay and comfort of her long and beautiful life.

Robt. W. Vaughan.

Bro. J. W. Dawson was born in Heard county, Ga., April 13, 1842; came with his parents to Claiborne parish, La., in 1854, and died July 9, 1902. When the Civil War came, and a call was made for volunteers, he answered the call, and went out at the age of seventeen and served the four years under General Lee in Virginia. At a meeting held by the writer at Lisbon, La., in 1866 he was happily converted, and united with the M. E. Church, South, in which he remained until his death. In 1870 he was married to Miss Matilda O. Willis, by whom he had ten children. She died July 2, 1890. He then married Miss Alice A. Thompson, by whom he had four children. He was superintendent of the Sunday-school at Lisbon for thirty years. For three years before his death he suffered with slow paralysis, but never murmured nor complained. A good and useful man has gone home; we miss him. May his loved ones follow in his footsteps, and make an unbroken family in heaven!

J. L. Williams.

John Wesley Lovitt was born Dec. 1, 1848, and died Aug 25, 1902. In 1892, in company with his wife and children, he moved from Jasper to Jones county, where he lived till death. He joined the M. E. Church, South, when but a boy, and was a loyal member of the church of his choice until death severed their relations. He left no one in doubt as to his acceptance with God. He was ready to do the Master's will in the hour of death as well as in the hour of life. His wife had gone to her reward, and he was anxiously awaiting their reunion. He leaves one brother, two sisters, and four children, with a host of friends, to mourn their loss. His body was laid to rest in the cemetery at Ellisville, Rev. R. D Norsworthy officiating. We will all mourn the loss of our friend and brother, but "we sorrow not as those who have no hope."

G. W. Shearer.

Mary Elizabeth, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will R Havens, was born Nov. 5, 1900, and died July 25, 1902. Her stay on earth, though it was short, yet her sweet smiles and loving disposition won the love of all who knew her; and the prattling tongue and sweet face will forever linger in fond remembrance in the hearts of father and mother and many loved ones. But while she is so sadly missed, we know she has only gone on to her home in heaven to live with Christ, for he said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of heaven." And little Lizzie is there waiting for you, papa and mama, little sister and brothers; and while she can not come to you, you can go to her. God comfort the bereaved ones, and may they at last, when life is done, go to live with their little girl forever. J. H. H.

Mrs. Muerte E. Woodard, wife of R. L. Woodard, was born in Lavacca county, Texas, Sept. 26, 1873. She married R. L. Woodard, June 16, 1896, and departed this life June 11, 1902. Sister Woodard joined the M. E. Church South, in 1888, and graduated at Huntsville Female College in 1891. She was a devoted Christian, and died in the triumph of faith, and has gone to her reward to meet her loved ones. To the bereaved husband, child, mother, and family, we extend our sympathies. May the Lord comfort their hearts until they meet again!

J. W. Treadwell.

Robt. C. Woodard, son of R. L. and Mrs. Musette Woodard was born March 21, 1899, and died in Orange, Texas, Oct. 19, 1901. May God bless the bereaved ones!

J W. Treadwell.

Musette Eloise Woodard, daughter of R. L. and Mrs. Musette Woodard, was born in McCool, Miss., April 18, 1902, and departed this life Sept. 8, 1902. To the bereaved family we extend our sympathies. May the Lord bless them!

J W. Treadwell.

Sister Julia E. Hardy (nee Pou) was born Jan. 28, 1847, and died at her home in Courtland, Miss., Aug. 30, 1902. She was married to W. K. Hardy, Jan. 30, 1867. She has gone from our midst, but we cherish her memory, and expect to see her again in our "Father's house on high." Touchingly beautiful was her constant devotion to her family and friends. She was a modest, humble, sweet-spirited Christian. Truly, we can never estimate the value or measure the influence of such a mother. A devoted husband, three daughters, many relatives and friends are left on the shores of time to mourn their irreparable loss. May the God of all love and comfort keep the sorrowing ones, and so guide them that they may be enabled to join her after awhile, and form an unbroken family around the throne of God! O. L Savage

HAPPY HENS MEAN PROFIT!

"BOSWELL'S 20th CENTURY POULTRY HOUSE" is a little book which describes the most convenient, practical, and well-appointed hen-house ever devised—gives plans, with precise instructions for building. Cheap to build, but so planned as to revolutionize poultry-keeping. Thousands cared for with ease. The author has the house in practical operation. Lice and mites cannot exist in this house. Doubles winter egg yield, by making hens happy. Book tells how to handle hens in winter, gives positive ration for winter eggs, and other things you ought to know about hens. Order at once, or you will surely wish you had when cold weather comes to nip your egg yield. PRICE, FIFTY CENTS.

MARSH Reading Stand and Revolving Book-Case.

No. 5. Price, $7.00.

ADJUSTABLE TOP.—Is 14x18 inches; large and strong enough to hold your Dictionary, Directory, Dun, Bradstreet, Bible, Atlas, or any heavy volume, at any desired angle. It can be revolved and adjusted when reading so as to always throw the strongest light on the pages. You can thus avoid the strain on your eyes inevitable when holding a book in your hand or on a level table. It is made of Oak, and has on one edge a Rest to keep books from sliding off.

REVOLVING CASE.—This case is 15x15x12 inches. The shelves are Oak or Ash, finished on both sides and on all edges, and have 9 inches of book space on four sides, or 3 feet in all, and room enough for reference books of daily use. Many books may also be placed on the upper shelf. In all twenty to thirty volumes, law size, can be put in it. The eight oak slats are attached by four nails each, making the Case very substantial as well as ornamental.

CASTINGS connecting the Top and Case are finished in black enamel, and of sufficient strength to last a lifetime.

PIPE, POST and LEGS.—The three legs are attached by round-headed screws to the turned post. Into this post is forced an iron pipe, which runs up through the Case, and to which the castings at the top are attached. Around this pipe the Case revolves

As a Home, Office or Library article, it is said, its equal does not exist. The accuracy of this statement can be confirmed by unsolicited letters of the highest commendation from thousands of Ministers, Attorneys, Physicians, Government, State and County Officials, Bankers and Business Men. Over 50,000 have been sold in the United States, and orders now come for large lots from England and other foreign countries.

HOW FINISHED.—It is handsomely finished in Antique Oak, and an ornament to any Office, Library or Parlor.

AS A GIFT.—Nothing made is more suitable to present to a friend, or as a Wedding or Birthday Gift, than this Stand.

HOW SHIPPED.—This Stand is sent knocked down, wrapped in heavy paper, making a package of 20 pounds. By Freight it goes as second class, and at about half what it would cost if sent set up. Plain directions for putting together accompany each Stand.

We will furnish the above Revolving Book Case and seven yearly subscriptions to the ADVOCATE (new or renewal) to anyone for $14, or we will sell you the case alone for $7 cash.

General News.

The conviction by a St. Louis jury of R. M. Snyder, a banker and financial-agent of a railway traction company, on a charge of bribery, has been reported. The crime charged against the defendant, who was formerly a Kansas City banker, was bribing members of the St. Louis municipal assembly to pass an ordinance granting the Central Traction Company a valuable franchise.

On Tuesday morning, the tenth day of the street car strike, the railways company made its first attempt to run cars for passengers. This movement was resisted by strikers and their sympathizers. Riot and bloodshed, but no deaths ensued. The cars were then taken back into the barn.

It is believed Commissioner of Immigration Sargent has been commissioned by the President to induce the anthracite coal miners to end the strike.

America has bought 200,000 tons of Welsh coal since the famine began.

How Some of Our Readers Can Make Money.

Having read of the success of some of your readers selling Dish-washers, I have tried the work with wonderful success. I have not made less than $9.00 any day for the last six months. The Mound City Dish-washer gives good satisfaction and every family wants one. A lady can wash and dry the dishes without removing her gloves and can do the work in two minutes. I got my sample machine from the Mound City Dish-Washer Co., of St. Louis, Mo. I used it to take orders and sold 13 Dish-washers the first day. The Mound City Dish-Washer Co. will start you. Write them for particulars. Ladies can do as well as men. JOHN F. M.

Glances at the World.

For fifteen days, beginning Sunday, Sept. 28, the employees of the street railways of New Orleans went out on a strike, and not a car on the whole system was moved during the time, save the few necessary to carry the mail. The company tried several times to operate the cars, but were hindered by the striking car-men. The whole police force of the city was called out to preserve order and insure the running of the cars, but it proved insufficient. Two or three serious riots occurred near two of the car barns, several men were shot and seriously hurt, but not mortally, and others were beaten and bruised with clubs. Nobody was killed. It became evident, after ten days, that there was no chance to adjust the differences between the car-men and the railway managers, and that the city authorities were inadequate to cope with the strikers. A call was made on Governor Heard, who promptly responded. He came down to the city, looked over the situation, and called out the State National Guard. In the meantime he was earnestly engaged in efforts to effect a reconciliation. He made a proposition to the railway authorities, which was accepted. It was then submitted to the employees, and by them accepted after long delay. This proposition was in the nature of a compromise. Pending the consideration of the governor's proposition, he issued an order to the effect that the cars should be started on Monday morning, the thirteenth. The guards were held in readiness to meet any emergency. Fortunately, they were not needed for active service. The contending parties came to terms, and the cars resumed running. The calling off of the strike was hailed with joy by all the people of the city, for not only had the strike paralyzed business, and put the people of all classes to great inconvenience in getting to and fro, but trouble that threatened the destruction of life and property was at an end. The people breathe freer, and, no doubt, many of them are thankful that order and quiet have been restored. May the trouble soon pass out of memory.

Some of the papers are trying to make much ado over the report of Brigadier-General Funston, recently transmitted to the War Department, in which he covertly censures Congress for abolishing the army canteen. He declares that the act has resulted in damage to the army, in that it has been detrimental to good order. We understand by this that in the absence of liquor the soldiers are more disorderly and harder to manage than if they had free access to drink. Such a statement is wholly unreasonable, but it is exactly on a par with the statement of regular whisky men who are always asserting that "prohibition does not prohibit;" that "men drink more whisky in blind-tigers than they do in open saloons"—a statement everybody knows to be false. General Funston is too late in making his censure. The whisky advocates ceased long since to make such a charge. Were it founded on fact, the country would never have heard the last of it until the repeal of the anti-canteen law. A knowledge of the personal habits of General Funston might help the public to determine the value of his testimony. Possibly his habits bias him in favor of the canteen. But the confession of inability to maintain order in the army by a general officer is a shame. It argues indifference or incompetency.

Notwithstanding the boasted unity and freedom from schism among Roman Catholics, they have their troubles. A movement is on foot in the Philippines to organize a Catholic Church independent of Rome. This has grown out of the extreme reluctance of the Pope to remove the friars who have caused so much discontent in the islands. And it is said, as we gather from an English correspondent of one of our leading periodicals, that "there is a movement in the Roman Catholic Church in England against the ever-growing despotism of the Papacy." This correspondent says: "The Rev. A. Galton, formerly a Roman Catholic priest, now an Anglican, has been commissioned by the leaders of the new movement to give a brief preliminary description of it. From this it appears that about a hundred and fifty of the parochial clergy of the Roman Catholic Church have pledged themselves to one another to work together as a corporate body, by constitutional means and through canonical methods, to resist the papal claims, which, it is said, are rapidly destroying the Catholic element in the Roman Catholic Church. We are told that the details of the movement are all arranged." The papal delegate to the Philippines, of course, will strangle the movement there; but whether efforts will be successful in England, is a matter of some uncertainty.

In a case before the United States Circuit Court in New York, involving the civil status of the natives of Porto Rico, it was decided by the presiding judge, Lacombe, that they are not citizens of the United States, but aliens. The case was that of a young woman who landed at New York and was detained, and after investigation was ordered deported as an "undesirable citizen." Suit was brought by relatives of the young woman, and the Commissioner of Immigration was sustained. To a layman on the outside this looks like a strange decision. Porto Rico, to all intents and purposes, belongs to the United States. The people there are subject to the United States' laws, and pay taxes, and have the protection of the government. We suppose the decision was based on the fact that Congress has not yet determined the civil relations of the citizens of our new possessions.

Baptist Pedigree Punctured.

BY REV. G. S. HARMON.

The following editorial was clipped from a recent issue of The Baptist, published at Jackson, Miss.; Rev. T. J. Bailey, editor:

The Episcopal Diocesan Council of Mississippi has just been in annual session in Jackson. In the course of his very bombastic address Bishop Thompson said:

"The church has the right to be here; the right to say and assert herself. She is neither Methodist, Presbyterian, nor Baptist, else those respectable sects would not have left her to Methodize, Presbyterianize, or Baptistize. We have our own life and methods, and our own grey eighteen hundred years of reasons, for being just what we are and saying it."

Here is ignorance of the first degree, pure and simple, dwelling in the high places of "the church." We know the day and the cause that the Episcopal Church came out of the Roman Catholic Church. Baptist Churches had been in existence for eight hundred years before the Episcopal Church had been conceived.

Just when the Episcopal Church was "conceived" we can not say, but history declares that the Church of England, of which the Protestant Episcopal is a branch, was born A. D. 1532; sired by Henry VIII. and mothered by the Church of Rome. So her "grey eighteen hundred years" are a myth.

But what of the (ancient?) Baptist Church? What of her birth in Jordan? Here is a positive assertion that "Baptist Churches had been in existence for eight hundred years before the Episcopal Church." Subtract 800 from 1532, and, according to this Baptist editor (and he ought to know), the Baptist Church was born A. D. 732. Where and how it originated in 732 we are not informed.

Here is a new statement of the origin of the Baptist Church. It must be correct, for it came from a "high place" in "the church." That it does not agree with the many other theories of the beginning of this church is small matter. Few, if any, of them agree. This one happily agrees with itself. It is a positive statement, unencumbered with argument, and, therefore, difficult to disprove. Would it not be wise for the Baptists to agree on 732 as the year of their birth, and thereby reconcile all conflicting opinions? A few instances are given of the difficulties and dilemmas from which the 732 theory would extricate them.

1. Mr. Orchard, a Baptist historian, says the Baptist Church began in Jordan, and pretends to trace it from the "Jewish Jordan to the British Thames." Elder Haynes, one of their prominent writers, admits that there are "fifty years unprovided for" in the succession. Fatal break, fatal admission. Now comes the editor of The Baptist, and settles this dilemma by naming 732 as the time of their birth—just 702 years this side of Jordan.

2. Mr. Benedict, another Baptist historian, traces his church back to the Montanists—A. D. 171. He calls them "Dissenters." To be dissenters, they had to dissent from some other body; hence, they had a beginning right then, according to Mr. Benedict. Mr. Orchard says, "Montanus, the founder of the sect" (a sect, mind you), "declared himself a mortal enemy of philosophy and religion." Rev. Dr. Brown, a Baptist, writer of a religious encyclopedia, says, "The Montanists were a sect" (a sect, mind you) "which sprung up about the year 171." He goes on to say that "Montanus claimed inspiration;" that "the sect denied the Trinity, and baptized in the name of the Father, Son, and Montanus" (what blasphemy!); "suffered women to preach and to baptize" (oh, horrors!), "and baptized infants" (horror of horrors!). And this the Simon-pure Baptist Church, for Benedict, Orchard and Brown, Baptist historians, declare it to be. From all this the 732 theory will relieve them. And what a relief! Think of the women preachers and the baptized babies.

3. Mr. Backus, a Baptist historian, tells of the English birth thus: "A number of people in England were so much convinced of the corruptions of the Church of England that they withdrew from her in 1602 and formed another church." Dr. Wall dates the origin of the English Baptist Church about 1635. Their Elder Haynes says, "The oldest Baptist Church in Britain bears date 1633." Mr. Benedict states that it was formed about 1633, with John Smyth, an ex-clergyman of the Church of England, as its founder. He and a few others wanted to be rebaptized; they refused the offices of the Dutch Mennonites as not being proper administrators, and "first formed themselves into a church, and then appointed two of their number to baptize each other, and then to baptize the rest." A Mr. Helwisse baptized Mr. Smyth, who promptly returned the compliment. Upon the authority of prominent Baptist historians we are assured that the English Baptist Church was founded in 1633 by unimmersed laymen baptizing each other. Where is the Jordan? Where the vaunted apostolic succession? It would seem to be an unfortunate predicament, but our new Richmond brushes history and historians aside, and saves the day with his battle cry 732.

4. We regret, however, that the 732 theory will spoil so good a story as the one now extant concerning the origin of the Baptist Church in America. Here it is: Goodrich, in his Church History, says, "The first Baptist Church in America was formed about the year 1639, at Providence, Rhode Island, by the famous Roger Williams." Elder Haynes, the oft-quoted Baptist historian, says: "Roger Williams studied law, but finally received orders in the Episcopal Church. In March, 1639, he was baptized, and was honored with being the apostle of the Baptists in America."

Mr. Benedict agrees that Roger Williams had orders in the Church of England; then says: "In 1639 he was baptized by Ezekiel Holliman, a layman, who was appointed by the little company for the purpose. Then he baptized the rest of the company, and thus laid the foundation for the first Baptist Church on the American continent. As the whole company (twelve), in their own estimation, were unbaptized, and they knew of no administrator in any of the infant settlements to whom they could apply, they, with much propriety, hit on the following expedient: Ezekiel Holliman, a man of gifts and piety, by the suffrages of the little company, was appointed to baptize Mr. Williams, who, in return, baptized Holliman and the other ten. Some of our writers have taken no little pains to apologize for this unusual transaction, but, in my opinion, it was just such a course as all companies of believers who wish to form a church in such extraordinary circumstances should pursue. Any company of Christians may commence a church in gospel order by their mutual agreement, without any reference to any other body, and this church has all power to appoint any one of their number, whether minister or layman, to commence anew the administration of gospel institutions." Then he says she was a "prolific mother," many churches springing from her. Jordan indeed! Apostolic succession indeed! An unbaptized layman baptizing a minister of the Church of England.

And now comes Dr. Whitsitt, one of the brightest minds in the Baptist Church, and proves conclusively, from unquestioned historical documents in possession of the British Museum, that the English Baptists did not practice immersion prior to 1641, and that Holliman and Williams did not immerse each other, but baptized by the biblical mode of sprinkling.

Mr. Benedict is correct about a company of believers having a right to form a church at their pleasure; but they must not arrogate to themselves superiority over all others, as the Baptists who originated in this country in 1639 are prone to do. But the 732 theory knocks the Williams-Holliman episode into pi, though some curious person will be sure to want to know when and how they crossed the ocean and got started here.

A few years ago, during a political campaign in a certain county in this State, one of the candidates for the Legislature, thinking to gain votes thereby, kept referring to the fact that he had been born in that county. In every speech he would mention it, no matter what part of the county: "Why, I was born just over there, friends. You can almost see the smoke rising from the chimney of the old house." Finally an opponent called him down thus: "My distinguished opponent has mentioned in every speech that he was born in this county. In every part of the county he has said: 'Right over there, friends; right over there. You can almost see the place.' Fellow-citizens, he is the most ubiquitous-born man I ever knew. He was born all over the county."

The Baptist Church is "the most ubiquitous-born" church I ever heard of. She was born all over the world, with different parentage every time. For facility in puncturing their own pedigree, commend me to Baptist historians and editors. May the Lord lead these brethren to quit boasting, and to make the preaching of holiness unto the Lord the paramount issue!

Memorial Service at Old Salem Church.

On Sunday, Oct. 5, it was my privilege to conduct a memorial service at Old Salem Church, on the Ebenezer circuit, some fifteen miles southeast of Lexington. The service was in memory of Mrs. Sarah E. Treadwell, familiarly known as "Aunt Sallie Treadwell," an elect lady of the Methodist Church.

In company with Mrs. Lavinia Johnston, a daughter of the deceased, at whose request the service was to be held, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Margaret Simmons, I started out on Sunday morning for the church. The roads were fine. We were in a good surrey, behind a spirited team, with a careful driver. The roadsides were decorated with the golden-rod, now in its full glory, and other Autumn flowers. The pleasant conversation of the two excellent ladies beguiled the way, and notwithstanding the chilly atmosphere and a bleak sky overhead, we enjoyed the drive, making the distance in about two hours. Mrs. Kelley, of Oxford, Miss., a sister of Mrs. Johnston, was already on the ground. Dr. Henry Christmas, and most of his family from Tchula and Lexington, attended the service. The doctor formerly lived in the neighborhood, and worshiped at Salem Church. A number of people from the community were also present.

Sister Treadwell was a fine subject for a memorial discourse, and her life furnished a good illustration for the text, "The righteous shall be in everlasting remembrance." She was born in Edgefield district, S. C., Sept. 22, 1822; married to Dr. Benjamin W. Treadwell; died in Tchula, Miss., Oct. 26, 1900. Reared in the Episcopal Church, she became a Methodist after her marriage. She moved to the neighborhood of Old Salem in 1852. Here were passed the years of her strength and active service in the cause of God and humanity. Among her neighbors she was as an angel of mercy, visiting the homes of the distressed, ministering to the sick and the dying, and bringing consolation to the sorrowing.

Sister Treadwell was an earnest Christian, a shining example of piety, a living witness for Jesus, and of the sufficiency of grace to sustain and comfort amid all the checkered experiences of life. She loved the congregation and fellowship of God's people on earth, and would permit no trifling obstacle to keep her from the house of worship. At times her heart overflowed with love to God, and with joyful lips she would shout aloud his praise.

After the close of service friends visited the cemetery, where nearly two years ago she was laid to rest by the side of her husband. With tearful eyes and gentle hands her daughters placed a tribute of flowers upon the graves of their sleeping loved ones. Is not her name written in heaven, and will it not be long remembered on earth as ointment poured forth?

I reached home in the dusk of the evening, and looked back upon a day pleasant, impressive and profitable, as I trust, to all who attended the memorial service.

What Is the Matter?

About a year ago there was a very notable meeting held at Raleigh, Miss. The report, to sum it up, had the town turned upside down and inside out, and had a large number of sanctifications, the assessments all secured, and paid the evangelist a hundred dollars. Such a flourish of trumpets about a meeting has seldom been heard. This year the preacher has been dismissed, and another appointed, and now the presiding elder reports "discouraging conditions" as to the collections. It is sometimes the case when a number of persons make a very high profession of religion, that it is the beginning of confusion and a blight on the church, as at Raleigh and other places. Whenever I read of a number of persons coming out with a "sky-blue" experience, I expect to hear of trouble.

Miscellaneous Notes.

The Methodists of Atlanta have determined on the building of a Central Church, as provided for by the Atlanta District Conference. A committee headed by Bishop Candler has been appointed to consider and report on the details of a plan of operation. Bishop Candler's idea is to build a church large enough to seat several thousand people, besides rooms for night schools, reading-rooms, medical dispensaries, etc.

Our First Church, of Jackson, Miss., of which Dr. W. C. Black is pastor, is now entitled to the distinction of being the largest Protestant congregation in Mississippi. During the past year it has received 131 additions, bringing the total number of members up to 745. Columbus is not far behind, having at last Conference 712 members.

Last Sunday (the twelfth instant) was "Advocate Day" with the brethren in Alabama. We would be glad to know that observance of the day resulted in the addition of many names to the subscription list. Bro. McCoy is doing excellent work for the church in Alabama.

Dr. M. B. Chapman, who went to the Los Angeles Conference a year or two since, has returned to the St. Louis Conference, and is now stationed at Fredericktown. His health has been completely restored.

A MOMENT OF SUPREME DUTY AND OPPORTUNITY.

BY BISHOP WARREN A. CANDLER.

The following strong words we take from the October number of the Review of Missions. Will our brethren and sisters read and ponder and heed?

Our Cuban Mission prospers, despite all the difficulties of the situation. Conversions numerous and clear follow the preaching of the Word by our faithful missionaries. The most obstinate difficulty which confronts and hinders them is the want of suitable houses of worship. Wherever we have been able to shelter our work and house our workers properly we have had the greatest success. But expensive rents—and all rents in Cuba are expensive—consume our resources. Much of the appropriations made to the missions is consumed in rentals. If we had properties of our own, the same money could be devoted to the increase of the force of workers. Moreover, the full value of our men is diminished by the inadequate and inconvenient quarters in which they are forced to labor. The attendance on their ministry is limited to the comparatively small numbers such quarters will hold. The attention of those who do attend is distracted by the noise and discomfort inevitable in such places. The confidence of the people in the persistence of our efforts and the permanence of our work is impaired when they see us continuing long in incommodious, rented houses. The contrast of such buildings with the imposing structures occupied by the Romanists also ill affects our work.

When all these things are taken in account, it is, perhaps, true that the money expended on salaries accomplishes scarcely more than fifty per cent. of what it would achieve if our men were properly housed. As an illustration, let us take the case of our Santiago station. We pay $1,200 a year there for rent. With $11,000 we could buy a lot and build upon it far better quarters than we are able to rent for $1,200. The interest on $11,000 at six per cent. is only $660. When we pay $1,200 rent we in effect pay nearly twelve per cent. on $11,000, and we do not then secure what we need. Brother Penny's and Brother Fletcher's labors do not accomplish nearly so much as they would if we had a property of our own. It is evident, therefore, that here is a loss in both property and salary account that ought not to be allowed to continue, but which must continue unless we build in Santiago or abandon our work there. Of course, we can not abandon the work there. We must, therefore, build.

It occurs to me in this connection to say that the Church Missionary Society and other Boards have been helped to meet similar conditions in their work by wealthy laymen advancing without interest the funds required to build, and depending for repayment upon the annual appropriations of their Boards for rents. O that some good man or woman would thus help me with the Santiago case! In ten years, or less time, we could pay back the entire $11,000, and meanwhile we could accomplish immeasurable good, and all without increasing the appropriation to Santiago one cent.

That noble man, T. T. Fishburne, of Roanoke, Va., has begun a most excellent fund. He has given $5,000 as a permanent chapel building fund for Cuba. With the income of the first year we have already secured a chapel at La Gloria, the people giving money to build on condition that this much help were given to them. I believe that fund will secure at least one chapel a year perpetually. Is there no other person in the church who will add to this Cuban Building Fund? Such a building fund amounting to $100,000 would change the history of Cuba in twenty-five years, and would favorably affect all the West Indies and Central America. There is no power in mere figures to compute its immeasurable influence for good. Cuba is bound to influence religious and political conditions in the Western world out of all proportion to the size of the island.

Some months ago I said in an article upon our Cuban Mission some things which I now wish to repeat with added emphasis and increased confidence in the correctness of the views then expressed. My words were as follows:

"Whatever may be the outcome of the struggle now just begun, Cuba, the 'Pearl of the Antilles,' is going to be a strategic point of vast advantage in the contest. Lying between the two continents, stretching from a point no farther than ninety miles from Florida to a cape seven hundred miles farther southward, it makes a natural bridge across which the forces may pass and repass from continent to continent. Or, to change the figure, it is a natural fortress from which the forces can advance in either direction. Moreover, with the cutting of the Isthmian canal, which is inevitable, and which can not be postponed much longer, the strategic value of this island, politically, commercially, and religiously, will be immeasurably enhanced.

"If Protestantism occupies the Western world and holds it for Christ, Protestantism must speedily occupy and hold Cuba. And if Protestantism holds Cuba, Methodism must have much to do with the work; and the part that Methodism is to bear in this far-reaching crisis has been left to Southern Methodism.

"No other branch of Methodism has undertaken work in Cuba, or is likely to do so. By a sort of tacit understanding this field has been left to our branch of the great Wesleyan family. We must so meet the responsibility of the position as not to disappoint the trust reposed in us. Otherwise we must stand discredited before the Methodist world.

"The expansion of these simple statements will make plain the tremendous weight of responsibility which rests upon us in this hour. We must do a great work in Cuba, and do it quickly, or we must incur a great and conspicuous disgrace. We must do our part there well, or disappoint the expectations of the Christian world of Protestantism."

All this I steadfastly believe, more intensely even than when I first wrote the words. To do this great work, we must have suitable buildings and have them soon. Now of all times is the moment to build. Land in Cuba is cheaper than it ever will be again. Laborers are out of work because of the depressed conditions in the island. They will work cheaply and be grateful for employment whereby they may make a living. The church which now furnishes work for laborers at living wages, and builds churches and schools for the redemption of themselves and their children from irreligion and ignorance, will win a large and lasting hold upon the people. It is a moment of supreme duty and opportunity. Our church is well able to meet the demands of such a momentous hour. Will we meet it?

From the Mexican Border.

DEAR DR. BOWELL: Though my coming was delayed on account of health and financial conditions, I am now among a people who speak another language, and who need the light. And "as much as in me is, I am ready" not only to preach the gospel, but to give in printed form the great sermon of the greatest Preacher that ever taught among men. His wise and gracious words are recorded, and should be given to all people, to every man in his own tongue. What a great work it will be to give a hundred million copies of "The Sermon on the Mount" to the nations and tribes of earth in all languages! There is nothing else like it. To everyone who heareth His commandments, and doeth them, they are truth from Him who is Himself "the Truth;" they are light from Him who is "the Light of the world;" they are life from Him who is "the source of all life." This sermon grows on me. I would that every disciple of Christ Jesus, the God-anointed Savior of men, had a copy of it, would study it till he knows it perfectly, then teach it to all persons around him, illustrating it by actually living it till the Light should shine in them and through them, lighting every man that cometh into the world; then would darkness be shined away, and the earth would rejoice, echoing the song of the angels, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, goodwill toward men."

By the help of God, through the agency of those persons who voluntarily and gladly contributed to "The Special Bible Work in Japan" in 1893, I have given nineteen thousand copies of "The Sermon"—ten thousand in Japanese and nine thousand in English—and am now giving it in Spanish and in English, and intend to continue to give it while life lasts, "if the Lord will."

Some who will read this letter gave to the work in Japan; for others, their mothers or fathers or friends gave. There were 931 names entered on the register on this side the sea; three individual names, and the names of two institutions, on the other side—all voluntary. The contributors were asked to pray God's blessings on the books and on the receivers. Twenty-six thousand copies of the blessed Bible, and portions of it, were, during the years 1893 and 1894, placed in the hands of Japanese people. They are great readers. No doubt a hundred thousand persons read from these books some portion of the Word of God, and some of them for the first time in life. I trust that the sweet light shined into the hearts of thousands, and that many of the books are carefully kept as sacred treasures; as being, in some cases, the first Christian book that ever came into the family. May they continue to bless the homes for many generations, and the influences brought into the lives of the readers widen and deepen to the end of time!

Oh, you wise contributors, the work of putting the Bible into the hands of the needy is no shoddy work; it is no shallow work; it is no temporary work. The Psalmist saith, "The entrance of thy Word giveth light." Again, "The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul." And God saith, "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away." And again, "My word shall not return unto me void, but shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it." You invested most wisely. May your hearts have a feast to-day thinking of the good that has come from the money you gave, and the good which yet shall follow! Oh, that the constraining fire of the love of Christ might burn in our hearts, and be enkindled in the hearts of a hundred thousand disciples of our Lord, awakening a zeal that shall be active in the good work till all mankind shall have the offer of light and life!

I have in English, and expect to have made in Spanish, electrotype plates on which to print the "Sermon." We need an office, a printing press, and a helper with the spirit of love and work. The first I hope to be able to secure at my own expense. (Though I have not much money, it is used gladly in the service of Him who has done so much for me.) Some reader of the ADVOCATE, or a friend of some one who reads this, perhaps, has a good press which he or some friend of his can give to this good cause, and be richer after giving it. Then another can be easily found who will pay the freight. By no means the least important is a consecrated helper. Who will come at his own charges, or supported by some friend? Happier and richer would be the life of many a young person if he would enter heartily and unreservedly into the service of our loving Master.

I was advised before coming, and since my arrival, by experienced and good men, that it would be best to work along the border. The American Bible Society's chief colporter for Mexico is now on a three months' tour in Texas, selling Bibles to Mexican cotton pickers. I have, therefore—for the present, at least—stopped at Laredo, on the Texas bank of the Rio Grande. It has a population of twelve thousand, nine-tenths of whom are Mexicans. Nuevo Laredo, just across the river, on the Mexico bank, has eight thousand Mexicans. These two towns are made practically one, being connected by a large iron bridge, over which one may pass for five cents. Some men living on either side conduct business on the other. The public interests, as I have been informed, are not only controlled by Mexican influence, but the offices are largely held by Mexicans. So here are more than eighteen thousand people of a foreign language and different customs who need the Bible. We shall do what we can to give it to them. After I shall have acquired a traveling knowledge of their language, I trust the Holy Spirit will permit me to go into the highways and byways of Mexico to seek the lost and hungry ones, and put into their hands a lantern to give them light, and lead them to the Fountain, where they may wash "their robes and make them white," and to the well whose waters shall be in them "a well of water, springing up into everlasting life." And then they may eat of that "true bread from heaven" to make them strong to work among their fellowmen.

Could you, dear reader, see the grey-haired men and women, with hollow cheeks and sad countenances, sitting on the edge of the sidewalks, it would move you to pity. Could you see the poor little burros hitched to large, clumsy carts—one between the shafts, and another by a singletree to the corner of the cart—drawing loads of bones of stock that died of starvation, you would be impressed with the fact that the drouth is severe. There has not been a good rain in two or three years.

As I walked into a store the other day the proprietor said: "We all enjoyed very much that tract you gave my little boy. I suppose you gave it to him; he brought it home in the evening. . . . Even the baby was attentive, and seemed interested." Next day he said: "Can you let me have two or three dozen copies of that tract?" And the next time I saw him after Sunday he said: "Yesterday I read 'The Drummer Boy' to some ladies visiting at my house, and when I looked up there were tears in their eyes."

And now, dear doctor, when you meet the brethren in annual session at Tupelo, please tell them that, not being able for effective service in that climate, I am here doing what I can by the grace of God, learning a little Spanish, experimenting with la sopa (the soup), pimienta (pepper), judias (beans), and other articles at the Mexican restaurant too difficult to mention; distributing a few pamphlets, and getting ready for a more extensive work. Pray for us and the work here.

Yours in the love of Christ,

B. S. RAYNER.

Letter from Rev. B. Kishi.

DEAR BRETHREN: After having returned safely from my Summer trip, I take the liberty of addressing you through the pages of the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

In the first place, I want to thank you for the fraternal reception you extended toward me, not only in opening up the way for me, but also in opening your homes to the poor wayfarer. I assure you that the lessons I have learned from your daily, pious and consecrated life, your bright and happy homes, are no less impressive and important than the lessons learned in the workings of the great church to which we belong.

Secondly, I wish to say that I am debtor both to pastors and churches for co-operation, as well as for generous and liberal assistance your members have extended toward me.

I spent last Sunday in the city of Atlanta, and Monday evening found me strolling beneath the shades of classic oaks receiving the warm and hearty grasp of welcome and greeting from old and new students. The college opened its session under auspicious circumstances, with a new president at the head. About 115 new boys are enrolled at the opening, and nearly as many old boys have returned. The new Science Hall, which is fast approaching completion, is one of the most imposing structures, and it comes near outshining Seney Hall. It is an invaluable addition to the college.

I am exceedingly grateful to you all who have manifested personal interest in me and my preparation, and gave me substantial help to return to finish my education. May I assure you, brethren—and sisters, too—that your investment, I trust, like the bread that is cast upon the waters, will return unto you after many days. As long as there is strength left in me, and until the feeble tongue loses its power, I mean to preach the gospel of my Savior, and carry him with me wherever I go, and if his blessed sunshine smiles approvingly upon seeds I shall have sown, they will surely produce a harvest.

Especially do I remember the thoughtful college girls of Meridian, Miss. Bless the girls! The money they sent me with the note admirably portrays their character so fully consecrated to divine service. The impressions that were made upon my mind shall ineffaceably remain with me, even though I shall be far away in the field of Island Empire. "Blessed be the tie that bind our hearts in Christian love."

I desire to close this communication with special mention of Bro. Bradley and his excellent wife, and Bro. Linfield, of Laurel.

Yours and His, B. KISHI.

A Word to the Woman's Missionary Society of the Mississippi Conference.

By the vote of your Executive Committee, I have been chosen to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of your honored president, Miss Addie V. Marshall, and while I feel myself utterly insufficient to fill the place so worthily filled by my predecessor, yet I must express to you my appreciation of the honor, and pledge my most earnest efforts, as far as in me lies, for the promotion of this cause, while I bespeak for myself and the work your prayers and heartiest co-operation.

The most interested and best informed among us have scarcely begun to realize the magnitude and importance of the cause for which we labor. It has been well said that modern missions was the miracle of the nineteenth century, and we may safely prophesy great triumphs for our Lord's cause as the twentieth century advances. It is not extravagant to say that above all the achievements in the arts and sciences which one, not a prophet, may forecast for the coming century, will be the growth of the kingdom of Christ, if the children of light will be as wise in their plans and as zealous in their work as are the children of this world. How great is our privilege of participating in this glorious movement, and with what pleasure and what loving zeal should we enter upon it.

My sisters, you have done some valiant service for the Master, but the past must not concern us now. "Speak to the children of Israel, that they go forward," is our Lord's command to us. As we survey the work, and are tempted to be faint-hearted because of the difficulties in the way, let us be animated by the spirit of the drummer-boy of Napoleon, who, when told to beat a retreat, said, "I know no retreat, but I can sound a charge that will wake the dead."

The women of the Mississippi Conference have at present the additional inspiration of a missionary of their own—Miss Janie Watkins, of Jackson, Miss.—who has offered her life to foreign mission work, and has gone for two years of preparation to the Scarritt Bible and Training-school in Kansas City, Mo. Shall we be listless and indifferent while God is choosing one from our very midst, and saying to her, "Go"? The voice that fell upon the ear of her soul has spoken to us, saying "Send." Shall we not arise, as she has done, and speedily do our Lord's bidding?

"Dear sisters," let us give of our means to this cause so liberally that He who sitteth over against the treasury shall say, "She hath cast in more than they all," and work for it so earnestly that Christ shall say of us, "She hath done what she could," and pray so fervently that the response may be, "O woman, great is thy faith; be it unto thee even as thou wilt."

DEAR SISTERS: Please read carefully our last quarter's report. Note how little has been paid on specials. Our regular pledge, Bible women, day-schools, and the new work we propose—the Tallu Hargrove Memorial School at Soug Do, Korea. And specially note our Contingent Fund is overdrawn $76.50. This should be put before each society at once, and special effort made to raise the Contingent Fund, because our last quarters are usually given to pledges and specials; and don't forget the one dollar Loan Fund from each auxiliary for our Kansas City Training-school. Aching Joints

In the fingers, toes, arms, and other parts of the body, are joints that are inflamed and swollen by rheumatism—that acid condition of the blood which affects the muscles also.

Sufferers dread to move, especially after sitting or lying long, and their condition is commonly worse in wet weather.

"It has been a long time since we have been without Hood's Sarsaparilla. My father thinks he could not do without it. He has been troubled with rheumatism since he was a boy, and Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine he can take that will enable him to take his place in the field." MISS ADA DOTY, Sidney, Iowa.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

Conducted by N. A. MOTT, Yazoo City, Miss

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

The Study Circle.

In the Magazine, for October, Dr. Hamill reviews the year's work of the Training Department. It was just one year ago that he took charge of the work, and the results for the first year are indeed gratifying. They promise much for the future.

More than five hundred circles are reported as at work, with about six thousand students enrolled. This is a great record, and of which every member of our church should be proud. It means much to our church, and its growth and piety in the future. It means the difference between working with a trained army or an undisciplined mob.

We believe the work is destined to grow, though it will take care and patient effort to make it a continued success. Not the least of the patient work required will be among the circles already established. Unfortunately, we still have among us some of the same kind of people described as receiving the seed "by the wayside," "in stony places," and "among the thorns." Yet, thank God, we still have rich soil "which also beareth fruit, and bringeth forth, some an hundredfold, some sixty, some thirty." The strong, therefore, must bear with the weak, and patient, persistent work must be done among those already enrolled, as well as among the nine-tenths who have not yet joined the movement. In the words of Dr. Hamill, "with thanks to God for the past year, let us all enter with courage and prayer upon a new campaign."

We have heard several teachers say that they were studying the books of the Study Circle, but they were not going to take the examination. When pressed for a reason, we find timidity and the fear that they will not pass at the bottom of it. Such teachers are making a mistake. The examination, as outlined in the Magazine, will not be difficult, and anyone who will study the books with any degree of faithfulness will have no difficulty in passing the examination. Our church proposes to honor all who graduate from the course, and recognize them as her trained workers. This first examination is but one of the steps, and already nearly every Conference is considering how best to honor at its first session those who pass it. But the thought that one is well equipped for the work of a teacher will be its highest and most enduring reward.

We learn that the Sunday-school of the First Methodist Church, Jackson, Miss., recently had a very successful Rally Day, and is doing a good work. We wish we could hear equally good news from all our schools.

TO THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL WORKERS OF MISSISSIPPI.

Whereas, the Golden Text for Sunday, Nov. 9, next, is, "Choose you this day whom ye will serve;" And, whereas, A conference of eminent Christian workers at Winona Lake Assembly has designated Nov. 9, next, as a day for special effort in winning souls to Christ;" therefore,

Resolved, That the Central Committee of the International Sunday-school Convention, in session in the city of Philadelphia, this ninth day of September, 1902, hereby unanimously adopts the suggestion above referred to, and earnestly recommends that special effort be made on the part of pastors, officers, teachers and parents during the week beginning with the first Sunday in November, next, to persuade our unconverted children and youths to accept Jesus Christ as a personal Savior, and we further recommend that Sunday, Nov. 9, be observed as "Decision Day" in all the Sunday-schools of America.

Resolved, That Geo. W. Bailey, Philadelphia; Rev. John Potts, Toronto, Canada, and N. B. Broughton, Raleigh, N. C., be and they are hereby constituted a committee to advise the various State secretaries and Publishing Houses of this action, and to urge their co-operation in this special effort to promote the interests of the kingdom of Jesus Christ.

The above circular was sent to me by the committee named, and I take great pleasure in publishing it, with the earnest request that all our Sunday-school workers, pastors and parents will unite in this great undertaking. JNO. T. BUCK,

Member International Ex. Com. for Mississippi.

COFFEEVILLE CIRCUIT.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: The revival campaign in the rural districts is about over. It has been a season of great spiritual increase. The glad refrains of harvest songs are coming from all parts of the vineyard. The golden grain has been gathered from the highways and hedges as well as from the well-tilled soil of the kingdom. In my own field, however, there has been no large numerical increase. It has been largely a season of soil-breaking, seed-sowing, and irrigation. Some sheaves have been gathered, but—changing the figure—the more important and lasting results have been the deepening and broadening of the channels of spiritual life in the church. Especially is this true of Coffeeville. Here we had the able and efficient services of Rev. Theo. Copeland, pastor of St. Paul Church, Birmingham, Ala. In some respects this was one of the best meetings I ever saw. There were no outbursts of rejoicing and no large ingatherings, but there was a mysterious, pervasive influence and power of the Spirit which declared every service a victory for Christ. It gave us more family altars, put men and women to praying in public who had never prayed before, increased the attendance of the prayer meeting and Sunday-school, and raised seven hundred dollars to build or buy a parsonage.

Fortunate is the preacher who secures the assistance of Bro. Copeland in revival work. He is an evangelist, not in name, but in deed and truth, of the Pauline type. He looks after every interest of the church and its pastor. He has none of the manipulations and tricks of the modern evangelist, nor the wit, humor, and sensationalism of the would-be orator. He has faith in the gospel of Jesus Christ; believes it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth, and surrenders himself a mouthpiece of the Holy Spirit to give utterance to the hearts of men of the great doctrines and ethics of inspired revelation. His work will abide. He deals not with the surface phases of church life, nor plays fantastic tricks with the imagination and emotions of men, but digs down deep into the conscious depths of the soul, and there, at the seat and fountain of human will, desire, and affection, erects out of the solid masonry of gospel grace the holy altars of repentance, faith, obedience, and self-sacrifice.

Fraternally, DANIEL M. GEDDIE.

HARPERVILLE CIRCUIT.

DEAR DOCTOR BOSWELL: I have completed my round on this work of protracted meetings, having held one at every church (seven in all).

We had quite a revival at Oak Grove Church, where I was assisted by Uncle Murdoc McDonald, and Bro. Lane, a local preacher from Smith county, both of whom rendered efficient service. There were ten accessions to our church, and some will join the Baptists. Our Baptist friends attended, and took part in the meeting, and rendered us valuable help, which we appreciate very much. "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

Bro. J. D. Ellis assisted me at Contrell Church, and did all the preaching after Sunday, to the delight and edification of the large congregations that attended throughout the meeting, which closed on Thursday night. Forest circuit certainly has a treasure in the person of Bro. Ellis for their pastor. The people were so delighted with him that they invited him to come back next year and help in their protracted meeting. There were no accessions here, but the church was wonderfully revived, and we had a good meeting.

To the joy of everyone the long and damaging drouth in this community was broken by a magnificent rain on Wednesday night and Thursday, which started the watercourses to running, and some of them overflowed their banks, greatly to the relief of stock which were suffering for want of water, it having been thirteen weeks since they had rain to amount to anything.

I failed to get expected help in my meetings at Hillsboro and Pleasant Ridge, but we had good meetings. While we have not had the number of accessions we had last year, yet the revival meetings have been very satisfactory, and I feel, under the blessing of God, great good has been accomplished. To him be all the praise and honor given. IRVIN MILLER, P. C.

HAYNESVILLE CHARGE.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Please allow me space to make the following report. We have had twenty-one accessions to the church this year by certificate and otherwise. We have built a beautiful church here at Haynesville, but we are in debt some on same. We have put lights in White Hall Church, and bought a new organ. We have three Sabbath-schools and three prayer meetings on the work. We have a Senior League and a Junior League here at Haynesville—both doing good work. Our collections are not quite in full, but will be by Conference. We have on this charge a small membership, but there is no more loyal people to be found anywhere. We are winding up the year's work and getting ready for Conference.

B. H. SHEPPARD, P. C.

Dr. Payson was asked, when enduring great bodily affliction, if he could see any particular reason for the dispensation. "No," he replied, "but I am as well satisfied as if I could see ten thousand; God's will is the very perfecting of all reason." —Selected.

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check, ten cents extra will be charged.

THE PUBLISHING COMMITTEE.

The annual meeting of the ADVOCATE Publishing Committee occurs this year on Wednesday, Oct. 29. The members of the committee are hereby notified to meet in the ADVOCATE office on that day, at 11 o'clock A. M.,

S. S. KEENER, Chairman.

Oct. 14, 1902.

The opportunities for growing in grace, and knowledge of God's Word, are countless. The Bible is an open book, and the Holy Spirit is ready always to help every inquiring and honest soul. Yet there are thousands of Christians who have been in the church twenty years, or more, who are but dwarfs, living on milk when they ought to be eating meat. They are yet discussing the character of Melchisedek, and trying to find whether or not Judas partook of the Lord's Supper—striving about questions to no profit.

One of our correspondents, in a notice of the work of a Quarterly Conference, said "a preacher was granted license to exhort." Of course, that was a slip of the pen. But we are not sure that the Quarterly Conference or some Conference having the oversight of preachers, would do wrong by inquiring why the preachers do not pay more attention to exhortation. A stirring exhortation will do more good in ten minutes than some sermons of ten times the length. John the Baptist was not ashamed to exhort.

When one enters a house supposed to be a house of worship and is compelled to ask "whether he is in a lyceum or in a church, in a hall of science or in a house of prayer," it is quite time for those who are set to feed the flock of Christ to ask whether they are true shepherds, or only hirelings. Some modern performances in the churches, together with the preaching that is "intellectual, with an occasional religious reference," is well adapted to inspire doubt as to the character of the place.

No matter how well educated or fluent a man may be, he must give himself to patient study, and acquire the art of properly arranging and concentrating his thoughts, if he would make a great preacher. And Bishop Andrew was wont to say: "A man who does not expect to make a great preacher will make no preacher at all."

The preacher who depends on a book of skeletons or sketches for the framework of his sermons will find himself so completely machine-bound, that, like an organ grinder who can not make music without turning a crank, he will be unable to produce a sermon without the help of his book.

LO, I AM WITH YOU ALWAY.

Nothing is more real to one who accepts the teachings of the Holy Scriptures than the sense of the divine presence. It is no less real to one who knows that he is a sinner than to one who knows that he is born of God. "Thou God seest me" is the expression of all alike. The difference between the two classes is in their relation and moral state. One is condemned, and lives continually with a knowledge of the wrath of God abiding on them. Others are justified and saved, and look up to God and call him Father. It is to these that the Lord says, "My presence shall go with you and I will give you rest." It was to his disciples that Jesus said, "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

The Lord is present with his people in Spirit. It is not necessary that he should be seen, or touched, or heard. The outward senses are not the mediums through which the knowledge of the divine presence is communicated. "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him; neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned." It was hard for the apostles to understand what our Lord meant by saying that he would abide with them, and at the same time that he would be compelled to leave them. It was manifest to them that he could not remain with them in the body, and yet take that body with him to the Father's house. Hence, said our Lord, when he knew the disciples were troubled because he had told them he was going away, "I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you forever, even the Spirit of truth; whom the world can not receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him, but ye know him; for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you." A short time after his resurrection Jesus met the disciples (Thomas alone being absent), and said: "Peace be unto you, as my Father hath sent me, even so send I you. And when he had said this, he breathed on them and said unto them, Receive ye the Holy Ghost." But this was not the complete fulfillment of the promise. That was not to be realized until his final departure from the earth. Then the Holy Ghost was to come upon them, and endue them with power. This promise was wonderfully fulfilled on the day of Pentecost, when all the disciples, men and women, were filled with the Holy Spirit. The Lord on that day redeemed his promise. There was no mistaking his presence.

But what evidence have we of the Lord's presence now? First, Jesus said: "I tell you the truth. It is expedient for you that I go away; for, if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you, but if I depart, I will send him unto you, and when he is come, he will reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment." Every man who has a sense of sin, whether he repents or not, is a witness of the truth of this promise. In no other way can he acquire a knowledge of his moral state, or become conscious of his guilt and condemnation. "It is the Spirit that quickeneth, the flesh profiteth nothing."

The regenerating power of the Holy Spirit is evidence of the divine presence. The Lord gives power to men to become the sons of God, for men are born into his family, "not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God." This work, which St. John attributes to God, St. Paul, in his Epistle to the Corinthians, attributes to the Holy Spirit. "But ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified, in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God." To this sonship the Spirit bears witness. Closely related is the enlightening and guiding influence of the Spirit, which is given to every man who seeks to know and to do the will of God. Human ignorance and inability to direct one's steps aright makes this necessary. "These things," said Jesus on one occasion, "have I spoken unto you, being yet present with you, but the Comforter which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you." Many things said and done by our Lord were not understood, for he often used parables, and uttered words wholly inconsistent with all the knowledge that men had of material things. And St. John assures us that things not understood by the disciples at the time they were spoken, or performed, were brought to the attention of the disciples after Jesus was glorified. Then they understood. Just a short while before our Lord's passion he said to the sorrowing disciples, "I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye can not bear them now; howbeit when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth; for he shall not speak of himself; but whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak, and he will show you things to come."

The strengthening and sustaining power of the Spirit is evidence of the divine presence. It was, perhaps, this our Lord had in mind as much as anything else when he said to the disciples, "Lo, I am with you," and commanded them to "tarry at Jerusalem until endued with power from on high." Jesus well knew that the endowment of power was necessary. He had told them what things should befall him, and warned them that a like fate, or even worse, would overtake them. How could they, with such trials in store, go out and preach in his name without assurance of strengthening and sustaining power? This assurance Jesus gave them, and never for a moment did they doubt the Lord's word. As they worked and suffered, the divine presence was manifest. How heroically they endured and conquered, St. Paul fully informs us. Millions all along have testified to the presence and power of God, and millions testify to the same today. God's presence is still with his people—not in the pillar of cloud by day, nor in the pillar of fire by night, but in their hearts. They know it, and the world knows it, for men take knowledge of them that they have been with Jesus.

BISHOP POTTER ON TEMPERANCE.

Bishop Potter has again put forth his views on the liquor question. This time they were given in his annual sermon before the Diocesan Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in New York. His utterances sound strange, coming, as they do, from one who is prominent as a leader in the church. His attitude is one of uncompromising opposition to prohibition. He expresses his enmity in language quite as strong as any liquor manufacturer or dealer is capable of doing. A few of his remarks, properly interpreted, mean that the saloon-keeper, whose place is comfortably furnished, including bar refreshments, is a greater friend to his poor fellowmen than the ardent prohibitionist. Indeed, he would persuade his hearers that the prohibitionist is not only fanatical and impractical, but wicked in comparison with the man who keeps an open saloon.

The Bishop justifies the expression of his views on the ground that there is "at present existing widespread misapprehension on this subject, and what is worse, widespread apathy." This, of course, does not refer to prohibitionists, for though they may misapprehend, they are anything but apathetic. He refers to that class of citizens who take no interest in the matter one way or another. He would have everybody interested, for he acknowledges that there is an evil in the traffic to be counteracted, but the interest must not be in the direction of prohibition. "The Christian Church," he says, "has undoubtedly wasted much energy, and well-intentioned Christian people are still wasting much activity, in the pursuit of methods and maxims concerning the drink habit, which have earned for them the ridicule, if not the resentment, of reasoning and reflecting minds."

Discarding the methods of prohibitionists as impracticable, and "tainted with falsehood, dishonored by essential unreality, and discredited by widespread and consistent failure," the Bishop declares "there is a drink evil" not to be ignored, and a "task for Christian men and women" not to be shirked. After acknowledging the existence of a drink evil, and the utterance of such an unequivocal denunciation of the only class of citizens who are making any headway in abating the evil, we naturally expect at least a suggestion as to how to deal with it in a rational and practical way. But the only advice we find in the published part of his discourse is to "begin by trying to recognize the facts, and then strive to deal with them in a way worthy of their portentous significance." That is wise counsel! Really, the leader of a great people, who has such an utter contempt for prohibitionists and their methods, and who would put an end to their efforts, ought to give the country something more than a glittering generality. There is not a man or woman in the land of any intelligence, and who in anywise recognizes the evils of the drink traffic, that would dissent from the Bishop's proposition. Prohibitionists have been acting on that advice ever since Neal Dow began the crusade in Maine. But that is what the Bishop characterizes as "taking refuge in legislation" that at one blow proposes to destroy a traffic which "an unreflecting public sentiment" can not control.

But what is the Bishop's attitude toward the open saloon? It is not one of hostility, whatever else it may be. What that attitude is, a few sentences from the discourse will give an idea. For example: he regards as superficial, utterly inhuman, inconsiderate and unreasonable, a great deal of that doubtless often well-intentioned zeal which seeks to make men and women virtuous and temperate by a law of indiscriminate repression. The basis of this remark is the fact that an "unreflecting public sentiment" would close the saloon, which is the resort of men, especially of the laboring man, after the strain of the day's labor. To the saloon, he says, "one man goes to get an intoxicant; . . . another goes there for any one of half a dozen purposes—refreshment, amusement, companionship, information, physical easement, business appointment, or mere change, for which" some men "go next door or to the club." "And how," asks the Bishop, "can I blame (the laboring man), whose task is so narrow, so confining, and so monotonous, if now and then he 'evens up,' as he says, and introduces a little variety into life by getting drunk?" Does not this seem as if the Bishop favors the open saloon?

We said above that Bishop Potter offered no suggestion for the cure of the drink evil, save a general one. He does tell us that the "public house of England deals with the matter in a really great way," but he does not tell how, and those of us who do not know are left to a guess, viz.: that the public house of England is a drinking-place, licensed and governed according to the laws of England. And what is a saloon in the United States? Nothing more than a drinking-place, licensed and governed (supposed to be) by the laws of the State in which it is located. Bishop Potter, apparently without a knowledge of the widespread ruin wrought by these saloons, and the utter disregard for the law on the part of their keepers, would keep them open. We infer that rather than have these saloons closed entirely, he would prefer to see them open every day of the week, for he declares that "our prohibitory laws," under present conditions, "whether we put them in operation on one day only, or on all days, are as stupid as they are ineffectual."

Our friends everywhere who are working so earnestly, and in many places so successfully, against the curse of drink, can form from Bishop Potter's sermon an idea of the moral sentiment against them. He, doubtless, voices the convictions of the majority of the Protestant Episcopal Church. We know how the Roman Catholics stand. Add the sentiment of these two bodies with that of the distillers and brewers, with their millions of money, and we see arrayed a host that will be hard to overcome. It is no easy task before us. But right will triumph, and the saloon will go. Amen!

WHAT A NORTHERN BROTHER THINKS.

A short time since, as some of our readers will recall, we made mention of the fact that Rev. R. H. Dolliver, father of Senator Dolliver, had proposed the separation of the colored people of the M. E. Church from the white (not into a separate jurisdiction, but into congregations and Conferences), as the only method of securing the union of the two Episcopal Methodist Churches. To make this concession, he thought, would so please the Methodists of the South that they could not decline union. The suggestion of the kind-hearted man, who really believes it would be to the interest of both races to adopt the plan, has aroused the wrath of a brother up North, and he gave expression to his feelings in a letter to Dr. Levi Gilbert, editor of the Western Christian Advocate, part of which Dr. Gilbert has made public. This brother does not favor the plan of Mr. Dolliver, even though it might lead to the union of the estranged churches. He asks: "Would the Church, South, carry itself as it does now, without the help of the North? Would not the M. E. Church be putting down one burden, simply to take up another and more great?" This is an insinuation that the Church, South, which is now carrying itself, and has been doing so willingly, and with remarkable success, since 1844, would, in the event of union, no longer do so, but would throw itself as a beggar on the North, and so force the North, in throwing off the negro burden, to take up the burden of the Southern white man. In other words, the union of the two churches would destroy the manhood of the Church, South, as is sometimes the case when a poor man marries a rich girl. This brother's suggestion is the most ridiculous thing we have ever seen in print in connection with the question of organic union. It shows one man's idea of the Southern spirit. We suppose there are others. We propose to remain on our own side of the line, eat our own bread, and preserve our manhood. We shall exhort our friends to do likewise.

A Word to Some Friends.

Some of our friends have favored us with articles in the shape of essays, addresses, etc., prepared for Sunday schools, Sunday-school Conferences, and Epworth League gatherings. We would be glad to print all, and would do so but for two reasons: 1. They are too long. 2. There are too many of them. This last reason would not stand so much in the way but for the length of the documents. Discerning friends will see the point, and not complain if their articles do not appear. We hope this explanation will be accepted in the spirit in which it is made.

PERSONAL.

Dr. Gross Alexander, who some time since resigned his position as professor of New Testament Greek in Vanderbilt University, has been appointed presiding elder of the Louisville (Ky.) district.

A note received from Rev. Richard Wilkinson, of Aberdeen, received too late to print in full, informs us that Rev. J. B. Culpepper is conducting a meeting in his charge, and is meeting with great success.

A note from Rev. G. W. Gordon, of Eupora, Miss., informs us that his wife, who has been sick ever since the fifth Sunday in August, has so far recovered as to give hope of permanent restoration to health.

Rev. J. J. Smylie is conducting revival services at Mary Werleiu M. E. Church, South, 1026 Tchoupitoulas street, which will continue until some time next week. All Christians are asked to pray for the success of the meeting.

Rev. C. A. Powell has been appointed to Centerville station, Mississippi Conference, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the election of Dr. A. F. Watkins to the Agency of the Endowment Fund for Superannuates. His friends and correspondents will please take notice.

We are glad to report that Rev. E. N. Evans, of Baton Rouge, who has suffered so severely for the past five weeks with a carbuncle, is recovering and hopes soon to resume his work. During the time of his illness, we learn, he was at Hot Springs, Ark. He has recovered sufficiently to return home.

Rev. N. G. Augustus has favored us with notice of the death of Brother Sam'l B. Bingham, of Pontotoc county, one of the old and faithful pillars of our church. Brother Augustus says, "No man ever did more for the church, according to ability, than he." A tribute to his memory will be printed in due time.

We learn with regret that Rev. S. B. Myers has been transferred to the Indian Mission Conference, and that he has already taken his departure for the Territory, ready for work. The Conference meets at Muskogee next week. The Indian Mission gets one of our very best young preachers. We wish Brother Myers the greatest success.

Mrs. M. I. Hoskins, for several years connected with Grenada College, and well known in Mississippi as an educator of great ability, is now connected with the Anniston, Alabama, College, where she is doing fine work in training both the minds and hearts of many young women of our land. We are glad to report that she is doing well, and is happy in her chosen field.

We deeply sympathize with our Brother, Rev. E. E. Laugford, pastor of Cedar Bluff, Miss., and his wife, in their great sorrow. Their infant son, about nine months of age, died on the sixth instant. The funeral of the little one was conducted by Rev. R. A. Meek, of West Point. Jesus said, "Of such is the kingdom of heaven." That is a comforting truth.

Dr. S. A. Steel, known throughout the length and breadth of our country as a lecturer as well as a great preacher, has been engaged to deliver one of his famous lectures in this city. It will be delivered at the Young Men's Christian Association Hall on the evening of Oct. 31. The proceeds will go to the benefit of Parker Memorial parsonage fund. We hope the Doctor will be greeted by a large audience. The subject has not yet been announced.

Millsaps College News.

BY B. E. YOUNG.

Dr. J. A. Moore, director of the James Observatory, has been observing the Perrine comit with the glass, and has exhibited it to a number of visitors from the city. Considerable interest in the observatory has been manifested by the citizens of Jackson, and Dr. Moore is always attentive to requests of inspection.

President Murrah is continuing his series of Wednesday talks to the students, as in former years. He meets the entire student body in the chapel every Wednesday at noon, and talks to them for an hour. We do not know any more spiritualizing, any more helpful influence in our life here, than these confidential, kindly talks from our president. Certainly nothing contributes more to the manly development of the students; certainly nothing contributes more to bind them closely to Dr. Murrah and the faculty.

The staff of the Millsaps Collegian, our monthly magazine, has been appointed, and is now at work upon the first number. The new officers are: Editor-in-chief, W. F. Cook, Hattiesburg; associate editor, Lamar Easterling, Jackson; literary editor, J. H. Penix, Aycock, La.; alumni editor, F. D. Mellen, of Forest; local editor, D. L. Bingham, Carrollton; business manegere: F. E. Gunter, of Enpora; W. C. Bowman, of Natchez, and M. S. Pittman, Rosedale. The number of copies of the magazine will be increased considerably this year, on account of the larger number of students this year in attendance. The young men in charge of the publication will send out a worthy representative of the literary life of Millsaps. Under the fostering care of our department of English we are developing many a worthy young writer who will be heard from in future.

On account of the wide range of electives provided under our new system, many "conflicts" in recitation periods have arisen, and much care has been necessary for their adjustment. Under this new system the student has a wide range of choice. While this imposes extra burdens upon an already overstrained faculty, it is a long step in the direction of modern methods.

The annual reception of the Y. M. C. A. was given last Friday evening from 8 to 11 o'clock in its hall. Here a cordial welcome was given the new and old students, and all were invited to join the association. The boys are greatly indebted to Mrs. T. B. Holloman and many other lady friends from the city and campus for the success of this entertainment. After the serving of refreshments, the singing of religious songs was participated in by all those present until the hour for dispersing. The association is doing an indispensable work in our institution.

Prof. J. M. Sullivan, of the Chair of Science, has just received a supply of important laboratory equipment from Germany. Dr. Sullivan has entered enthusiastically upon the work in his new field, and is doing much to perfect his department.

Prof. J. A. Moore has been elected secretary of the college, to fill the vacancy caused by the departure of Dr. A. M. Muckenfuss for Arkansas State University.

Of our former students we have with us Miss Mary L. Holloman, Mr. W. A. Williams and Mr. B. E. Eaton. Miss Holloman will take the M. A. course, while Messrs. Williams and Eaton will be in the Law School.

The Law Department has entered upon another good session. Under Dean Edward Mayes and his distinguished associates, the work in this school has taken high rank throughout the State, a rank just fied by the uniform success now being attained by all its graduates. A small proportion of each year's students live in Jackson, but most of them come from other sections of Mississippi, attracted by the reputation of the men who compose the faculty. Many of the students also avail themselves of the privileges of the Academic Department while pursuing their law studies.

Miss Linn Hemingway, sister of our mayor, has been appointed to take charge of the College Library, and is now engaged in cataloguing the new books which have been ordered for this session.

On last Sunday President W. B. Murrah occupied the pulpit of the First Church, of Jackson. Dr. J. A. Moore, of the Department of Mathematics, is occupying regularly the pulpit of the West Capitol Street Church.

Kossuth Circuit.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Our beloved and faithful pastor, Bro. L. W. Cain, closed his fourth meeting at Pleasant Hill, Aug. 24, with ten professions and eight additions to the church. His fifth and last meeting was held at Kossuth, beginning on the fourth Sunday in August, and continuing eight days, and resulted in fifty-nine conversions and fifty-one additions to the church, and a number of reclamations. Some personal differences were settled, and the church and community enjoyed a sweeping revival of religion. The house could not hold the great crowds much of the time, and the town and community was left in a flourishing condition.

Brother Cain has five appointments, and held his meetings himself most of the time. The five meetings resulted in 120 conversions, 78 additions to our church, 47 adults and 5 children baptized—all by effusion. When Brother Cain came on the work he found one Sunday-school. He now has five schools and five live Epworth Leagues, with about 150 members.

On the twentieth of August we held a Circuit League Rally, which was a success. Bro. B. P. Jaco, of Booneville, preached the Epworth League sermon, and it was one long to be remembered by those who heard it for the great effect it had on the hearers. It was one of those strong and characteristic sermons for which Brother Jaco is noted. Miss Willie A. Young, of Booneville, daughter of our beloved presiding elder, W. M. Young, read a most excellent paper on the subject of the relation of the League to missions, which was both interesting and edifying to her hearers.

The Kossuth circuit is in a better condition than I ever knew it, and I have known it for twenty-seven years. We expect to report collections in full at Conference. Brother Cain has labored earnestly and faithfully to bring the circuit to the top, and God is blessing his labors. God grant that the church and official members may do their part, and see that the assessments ordered by the Conference are paid, and the pastor's and presiding elder's salaries, which are small, are paid in full, and thus show our pastor that we appreciate his efforts, and that we have that true religion that enables us to do our duty. The people all love and esteem Brother Cain. May God continue to bless his labors!

TEARING DOWN SIGNALS does not delay storms. Opium laden "medicines" may check coughing, but the cold stays. Do not trifle; when you begin to cough take Allen's Lung Balsam, free from opium, full of healing power.

Two Revivals.

DEAR DOCTOR: On Sept. 12, last, I began a tent meeting with Rev. R. T. Nolen in Atlanta, Miss. The meeting continued with wonderful success for ten days, and resulted in a great victory for God and Methodism. There were, perhaps, not less than one hundred conversions. The church was greatly revived, there being indulged much old time shouting. A class of twenty five of the strongest men and women in the country was received into the church. Bro. Nolen is a faithful pastor, and is almost universally popular. During the meeting he was "pounded" to such an extent that a wagon and surrey were necessary to convey him and his pounds away from the tent. This pastor and people are well pleased with one another.

At this writing I am with Bro. C. C. Griffin at Eastabuchie in a most glorious meeting. This place has been given up to be one of the hardest of places. Quite a time has elapsed since there has been a revival of religion here. But to-day the town is active; for fourteen days eager congregations representing almost the entire population have hung on the Word of God as preached. The results have been most gratifying, going far beyond the hopes of the most sanguine. The church is awake to its obligation. Griffin is as happy as can be, and well may he be. For long months has he worked and planned and prayed for this very thing. Some of the visible results are: An awakened church, perhaps not less than fifty conversions, many backsliders reclaimed, with about twenty applications for church membership. Collections ordered by district stewards all provided for; preacher's salary paid up to date, with a big pounding thrown in "to boot." Bro. Griffin will present a full report at Conference, with a hundred and fifteen accessions.

The Lord has wonderfully blessed our labors this year.

Free Scholarships.

We have room for a few more students in our dormitories, and until these places are filled we will give free tuition to ___ who apply; board, washing included, fuel, electric lights and excellent table fare, only $135, for the entire session in main building, and $95 in Club Home.

We have the largest opening we have had in thirty years' history of the college; had thirty more boarders than last opening, and are better equipped than ever to do excellent work. The Lord is with us in great power. Send your daughter at once. No preparation is needed. Wire us when to meet her. Write for catalogue.

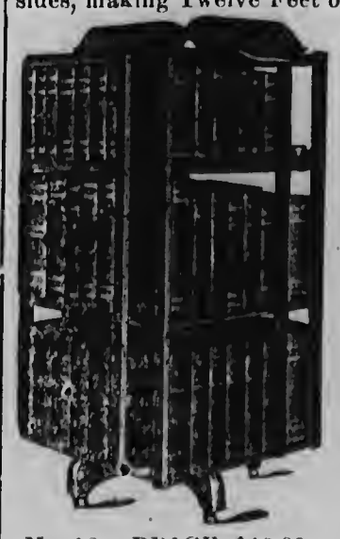
THE

Marsh Revolving Book-Case

DESCRIPTION.

DIMENSIONS.—This Case is 36x18x18. Height, 40 inches. Has three shelves; each has one foot of book space on each of four sides, making Twelve Feet of shelf room.



No. 18. PRICE, $10.00.

ITS CAPACITY.—This Case will admit the entire Encyclopedia Britannica on the lower shelf, and on all about one hundred volumes of Law, Medical or Miscellaneous Works.

TOP.—Can be used as a Dictionary, Bible, Atlas, Directory or Dun and Bradstreet Holder, or other heavy volume. Nothing made for these purposes can be more substantial or complete.

SLATS.—The side pieces or Slats are of Oak, embossed and corrugated, and present a handsome appearance. They are fastened to the Shelves, each by 8 nails, and are firm and rigid under any weight of books the Case contains.

MATERIAL AND FINISH.—This Case is made from selected, thoroughly seasoned Oak or Ash, sanded perfectly smooth on all sides, and finished in Antique Oak, rendering it an ornament to Office, Library or Parlor.

THE BASE is of a handsome design; is capable of sustaining a weight of from Five Hundred to One Thousand Pounds; is provided with Castors, and on which the Case revolves easily, and is practically everlasting.

It is the first time in the history of Revolving Book Cases one has been produced so well adapted to the wants of Home and Profession, so handsome and substantial, and at such a Low Price.

HOW SHIPPED.

As a Great Saving in Express or Freight Charges, this Case is shipped knocked down, or in pieces, and thus compressed to package size, and goes by Freight as Second Class, or by Express at Half what it would if set up. Wrapped in heavy paper, it makes a thirty-pound package, and thus can be safely sent anywhere.

Directions for putting together accompany each Case.

We will furnish the above Revolving Book-Case and ten yearly subscriptions to the ADVOCATE (new or renewal) to anyone for $20, or we will sell you the Case alone for $10 cash.

MARSH Reading Stand and Revolving Book-Case.

No. 5. Price, $7.00.

ADJUSTABLE TOP.—Is 14x18 inches; large and strong enough to hold your Dictionary, Directory, Dun, Bradstreet, Bible, Atlas, or any heavy volume, at any desired angle. It can be revolved and adjusted when reading so as to always throw the strongest light on the pages. You can thus avoid the strain on your eyes inevitable when holding a book in your hand or on a level table. It is made of Oak, and has on one edge a Rest to keep books from sliding off.

REVOLVING CASE.—This case is 15x15x12 inches. The shelves are Oak or Ash, finished on both sides and on all edges, and have 9 inches of book space on four sides, or 3 feet in all, and room enough for reference books of daily use. Many books may also be placed on the upper shelf. In all twenty to thirty volumes, law size, can be put in it. The eight oak slats are attached by four nails each, making the Case very substantial as well as ornamental.

CASTINGS connecting the Top and Case are finished in black enamel, and of sufficient strength to last a lifetime.

PIPE, POST and LEGS.—The three legs are attached by round-headed screws to the turned post. Into this post is forced an iron pipe, which runs up through the Case, and to which the castings at the top are attached. Around this pipe the Case revolves

As a Home, Office or Library article, it is said, its equal does not exist. The accuracy of this statement can be confirmed by unsolicited letters of the highest commendation from thousands of Ministers, Attorneys, Physicians, Government, State and County Officials, Bankers and Business Men. Over 50,000 have been sold in the United States, and orders now come for large lots from England and other foreign countries.

HOW FINISHED.—It is handsomely finished in Antique Oak, and an ornament to any Office, Library or Parlor.

AS A GIFT.—Nothing made is more suitable to present to a friend, or as a Wedding or Birthday Gift, than this Stand.

HOW SHIPPED.—This Stand is sent knocked down, wrapped in heavy paper, making a package of 20 pounds. By Freight it goes as second class, and at about half what it would cost if sent set up. Plain directions for putting together accompany each Stand.

We will furnish the above Revolving Book-Case and seven yearly subscriptions to the ADVOCATE (new or renewal) to anyone for $14, or we will sell you the case alone for $7 cash.

WHAT A SAMPLE BOTTLE OF SWAMP-ROOT DID.

To Prove what Swamp-Root, the Great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy, will do for YOU, Every Reader of "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Free by Mail.

Among the many famous cures of Swamp Root investigated by "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE," the ones we publish this week for the benefit of our readers, speak in the highest terms of the wonderful curative properties of this great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

Mrs. H. N. Wheeler, of 117 High Rock St., Lynn, Mass., writes on Nov. 2, 1901: "About 18 months ago I had a very severe spell of sickness. I was extremely sick for three weeks and when I finally was able to leave my bed I was left with excruciating pains in my back. My water at times looked very like coffee. I could pass but little at a time, and then only after suffering great pain. My physical condition was such that I had no strength and was all run down. The doctors said my kidneys were not affected, but I felt certain that they were the cause of my trouble. My sister, Mrs. U. E. Littlefield, of Lynn advised me to give Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root a trial. I procured a bottle and inside of three days commenced to get relief. I followed up that bottle with another, and at the completion of this one found I was completely cured. My strength returned, and to day I am as well as ever. My business is that of canvasser. I am on my feet a great deal of the time, and have to use much energy in getting around. My cure is therefore all the more remarkable, and is exceedingly gratifying to me."

Mrs. H. N. Wheeler

MRS. H. N. WHEELER.

The mild and extraordinary effect of the world famous kidney and bladder remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for more sickness and suffering than any other disease, therefore, when through neglect or other causes, kidney trouble is permitted to continue, fatal results are sure to follow.

We often see a friend, a relative, or an acquaintance apparently well, but in a few days we may be grieved to learn of their severe illness, or sudden death, caused by that fatal type of kidney trouble—Bright's Disease.

The Effect of the Sample Bottle of Swamp-Root.

"Having heard that you could procure a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, free by mail, I wrote to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle and it was promptly sent. I was so pleased after trying the sample bottle that I sent to the drug store and procured a supply. I have used Swamp Root regularly for some time and consider it unsurpassed as a remedy for torpid liver, loss of appetite and general derangement of the digestive functions. I think my trouble was due to too close confinement in my business. I can recommend it highly for all liver and kidney complaints. I am not in the habit of endorsing any medicine, but in this case I can not speak too much in praise of what Swamp-Root has done for me."

EDITORIAL NOTE—If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the wonderful discovery, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful remedy, Swamp-Root, sent absolutely free by mail, also a book telling all about Swamp Root, and containing many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact their very lives to the great curative properties of Swamp-Root. In writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say that you read this generous offer in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

If* you are already convinced that Swamp Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

Home Circle.

How It Paid.

BY SUE ELIZABETH STOEVER.

Edward Cole was ten years old and the man of the house. It was nearly a year since the father had died and left the mother alone with the two children. Mrs. Cole had taken in sewing and worked early and late to keep the little home, and the children at school, but it was too much for her strength, and she was obliged to go to bed and stay there for weeks.

Edward succeeded in getting a place with Mr. Carminy, the grocer, and soon learned to be very useful. True, he worked hard, but he was well pleased to be able to bring the wages home every week. Sometimes Mr. Carminy gave him a basket of groceries, and so the little family managed to live in the plaincst way, and pay the rent promptly every month.

One evening, just before leaving the store, Edward heard Mr. Carminy say to one of the clerks: "To morrow we will begin to sell whisky. All the other stores do, and we must, too. The first lot has been delivered this afternoon."

Edward's heart sank. He knew he ought not to handle any intoxicating liquor. How careful his father had always been to teach him to have nothing to do with strong drink. Edward could never forget the verse learned just before his father died: "Abhor that which is evil; cleave to that which is good." Nor could he forget how earnestly his father had talked to him about it.

"Never, my boy, have anything to do with those things that will not please God. Choose the good and be a loving child of the dear Heavenly Father. Then he will have you in his precious keeping, and you can safely trust him."

All the way home from the store Edward was considering what he should do the next day. His heart was heavy, but he tried to put away the anxious thoughts and greet his mother as usual. There was not much sleep for Edward that night, but the more he thought the matter over the more he felt he could not sell whisky.

The next morning he rose early, and with the help of his sister Bess, eight years old, got breakfast. Then he said good-bye to his mother and started off with his dinner basket, feeling it was hardly worth while to carry it. He swept the store front as usual, and attended to his early duties; then, seeing Mr. Carminy had come in, he went to him in his office. It was hard to begin, but the brave boy did not wait.

"Mr. Carminy," he said, "you have been kind to me, and I am sorry to tell you what I must. I heard you say that to-day we would begin to sell whisky. I do not think it right, and I can not do it, sir. I'm sorry, very sorry, to leave, but, sir, I am not able to do what you require."

"Tut, tut, boy! Why this objection? I myself don't want to sell whisky, but I must. All the other stores keep it. A merchant must look at things in a business-like way. Come, think it over. There's your mother to support. It won't do for you to give up a good place like this."

"I'm very sorry, sir," replied Edward, "but I can not do what you ask, and there is nothing but to go."

"Well, of course, if you will persist, but you are throwing away a good chance."

"I'm very sorry, sir," repeated Edward. "I thank you for all you have done for me." And the boy could say no more, but, going for his cap and basket, walked out of the store and gave up his weekly earnings that he might "cleave to that which is good."

On the way he met a neighbor.

"Why, Edward, you are going in the wrong direction. Nothing the matter, I hope."

Edward told him what had happened.

"I'm afraid you were a little too rash, my boy," was the answer. "You would better hold on at least till you had other work. You know you have to keep the family, and you can't live on air."

This was poor consolation, and Edward trudged on wearily.

Bess was tidying the kitchen.

"Home so soon, Eddie! Were you anxious about mother? The doctor says she is better this morning."

"Why, my son; is it you? Anything wrong?"

"No, mother, I hope not," answered Edward, with a smile. "I'll come and tell you all about it directly." Then he mounted to his little room. Taking up his Bible, he turned to the marked verse: "Abhor that which is evil; cleave to that which is good."

"Yes, that is what I am trying to do. I'm sure father would say it was right."

In another place were these words: "How much more shall your Father which is in heaven give good things to them that ask him?"

Edward knelt and asked God to help him in this hour of trial. Then he went down to his mother's room and told her all about it. She drew him to her, and said: "Thank God I have such a son. So like his father, too. Edward, we will trust God. He is our refuge and strength."

Just then there was a knock at the front door, and Bess came running in to say some man was asking for Edward. Edward went out immediately, and was greeted with these words:

"I need a boy in my store. Can you come at once? I was asking a man if he knew where I could find a boy, and he said he had met you this morning going home from your old place. Would you like to come with me? I am William Forbes of the house furnishing store. I'll give you a third more wages than you have been getting at Mr. Carminy's, and there's a chance for you to do still better if you prove the boy I want."

Edward joyfully replied: "O, sir, I'll come right away. Only let me just speak to my mother, sir, and tell her I have work again."

"That's all right, my boy. Get your dinner first and be at the store at one o'clock, sharp." And the new employer went off well satisfied with his contract.

Mrs. Cole was overjoyed, and, as she put her arms about her boy, said: "God be thanked. He always hears the cry of his children. It pays to trust and obey him."

That was not the end of the story. Edward proved as faithful to his new employer. He made himself necessary to the business. He rose from one position to another, until he became a member of the firm. In every position he held to his motto, the verse learned long ago: "Abhor that which is evil; cleave to that which is good."—The Christian Intelligencer.

Eliza's Conclusion

Little four-year-old Eliza was very observing, but often noticed people and things without speaking of them.

Eliza's married sister came home for a visit, and the little girl at once noticed the sister's hat which was covered with flowers.

These flowers were a wonder. They did not wither. They looked like garden flowers, and yet they did not smell sweet. What did it mean?

The sister one day left the puzzling hat upon her mother's bed—a great feather bed shaken up to the full on a high, old-fashioned bedstead. Eliza pushed a chair up to the side of it, and from there climbed upon it and took the hat in her tiny hands for examination. Carefully she handled the flowers, leaves and sprays, and when at length the owner of the hat came into the room she lifted up her dark eyes, and with great solemnity exclaimed, "Mally Anna, lour loses are made of lags!"

Eliza could not say R, and used L in its place. The interpretation of her exclamation is, "Mary Anna, your roses are made of rags."

The little girl had solved the problem, and gave forth the result of her investigation with all due seriousness. Eliza is an aged lady now, and tells this story of her childhood to her own amusement and that of her friends.—Anna D. Walker.

By many years of constant study and experiments, I have perfected a simple, harmless vegetable remedy that will quickly cure all female diseases, as well as the piles. It is nature's own remedy, and will not only relieve, but will absolutely thoroughly and permanently cure the ailments peculiar to women such as falling of the womb, leucorrhea (whites), displacements, ulceration, granulation, painful or scanty periods, irregular menstruation and all the pelvic ills of women. It positively cures rectal ulcers, piles, hemorrhoids, tumors, itching, blind or bleeding piles in either sex. It cures promptly, privately, and permanently without the repugnant methods in general use by physicians. You can escape embarrassing examinations, avoid humiliating exposures, cheat the surgeon's knife out of half-dollars in your blood.

The treatment is so simple, mild and effectual that it will not interfere with your work or occupation. Thousands and thousands of letters are being received from grateful persons from all parts of the world who have been cured by the use of this remedy. The first package is free—send for it—send to-day. I know that a fair trial of it will result in your becoming its enthusiastic advocate and friend. With it I will send literature of interest and value. Do not neglect this opportunity to get cured yourself and be in a position to advise ailing friends.

Consider well the above offer and act upon it at once. It is mine in the sincere hope of aiding you and spreading the knowledge of a beneficent boon to sufferers. Earnestly, hopefully, faithfully, MRS. DR. E. B. MILLER, 46 Comstock Bldg., Kokomo, Ind.

DROPSY CURED! Gives quick relief. It removes all swelling in 15 to 25 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given absolutely free to every sufferer. Write to Dr. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Specialists, Box G, Atlanta, Ga.

Artistic Monuments

Cost no more than plain ones in White Bronze. Marble is entirely out of date. Granite eventually crumbles back to Mother Earth. Besides it is very expensive.

White Bronze is strictly everlasting. It can not crumble with the action of frost. Moss growth is an impossibility. It is more artistic than any stone. It has been adopted for nearly one hundred public monuments and by thousands of delighted customers in all parts of the country. We have designs from $4.00 to $4,000. The company ship them to any address. Send me a postal card, and I will call at your home with my designs.

H. E. GRAHAM was born near Hillsboro, Scott county, Miss., March 3, 1867, and died May 22, 1902 He was married to Miss Daisey Darnell, daughter of W. P. Darnell, of Rankin county, June 30, 1901 Bro. Graham professed religion and joined the Methodist Church at a very early age. At the time of his death he was church secretary and superintendent of the Sunday-school at Hillsboro He was the son of Uncle Billy Graham, who was one of the pioneer members of the Methodist Church at Hillsboro; who raised a large family of boys and girls, all of whom became not only useful members of the church, but of society. There never was a better boy raised in Scott county than the subject of this obituary. This is the second year that I have been his pastor, and I never missed a member out of a church I was serving more than I have missed him. He was truly one of the pillars of Hillsboro Church, and was such an humble, faithful Christian that he was loved by everybody. His amiable disposition and noble Christian character made him a favorite in the large family in which he was reared. A sadder death has not occurred in that community in many years, and no member of Hillsboro Church could have died that will be more missed. A happier union of two hearts and lives rarely ever occurs than when he and Miss Daisey were married, for she is a noble Christian young woman, and their prospects in life were bright; but, alas! how soon after their marriage the grim messenger, Death, came and took him away! Truly, how mysterious are the ways of Providence! But our loss is his eternal gain. Having lived a faithful Christian life, he was ready when the messenger came, and peacefully passed away to rest. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord."

IRVIN MILLER, P. C.

JULIA TRANTHOM, daughter of Mrs. M. H. Tranthom, died at Baird, Miss. (her home), July 30, 1902, in her fifteenth year. She was born near Courtland, Miss., and moved to Baird when very small. No one was ever loved more by all who knew her than was Julia. By her shining, sweet face, modest and winsome ways, she impressed all who saw her, and won a place in every heart. She was attentive in the Sunday-school and on preaching. She was one of our brightest and most promising girls. I have never known one so young who was more loved by the entire community. There were sad hearts, not only in her happy home, but in every home. All who knew her ways made sad. Hers was a stainless life, and as we look through our tears, we weep not as those who have no hope, for we are confident that she is walking in the realms of light. Though we miss her so much, let us look forward to that time when we shall meet Julia where there shall be no more parting. Let us remember that God is too good to err, and let us be thankful that such a character was permitted to be with us this long. So, while little Julia's voice is forever hushed upon earth, think of her, free from all earthly restraints; see her arms outstretched, inviting mama, sisters and brothers home. Remember, Jesus is more able to care for her than anyone. And God grant that you may go to her.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

Whereas, Our Heavenly Father has thought best, in the exercise of his wisdom, to take unto himself our brother, E. B. CISCO, for fifty years a member and president of this Board; therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Board of Stewards of the Crawford Street M. E. Church, South, Vicksburg, Miss., that our church and our Board have lost one of their most useful members, whose interest in the upbuilding of the religion of Christ and the saving of souls in this city has never flagged during all the time which he has spent among us.

Resolved, That while we mourn the removal of a friend whose gentle disposition and never-ceasing kindness has caused him to be loved by all those who knew him, yet we rejoice with him in his translation to a heavenly habitation and to that rest which remaineth for the people of God.

Resolved, That we tender our sincere sympathy to his bereaved widow in her sorrow, with the full assurance that in the fullness of God's time she will be reunited with him in a better land, never again to be parted.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the Minutes of our proceedings, and that a copy be sent to the afflicted widow of our deceased brother.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God, in his mercy, to transfer our brother, A. G. CASSELL, from his earthly habitation to a heavenly mansion; therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Board of Stewards of the Crawford Street M. E. Church, South, Vicksburg, Miss, that in the departure of Brother Cassell our church has lost one of its most active members, whose zeal and energy in the upbuilding of the cause of God in this community during so many years will be greatly missed, and whose loss can never be repaired.

Resolved, That the Board of Stewards has been deprived of a president of rare ability, whose excellent judgment and unfailing interest has always been exerted to guide our deliberations towards the course best to be pursued in every matter which has come before us.

Resolved, That the members of the Board of Stewards have lost a friend and a brother whose constant courtesy and Christian character have endeared him to all who have come in contact with him.

Resolved, That we tender our heartfelt condolences to his bereaved family in their affliction, being fully assured, however, that when God so wills, we shall all meet with him again where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the Minutes of our proceedings, and that a copy be sent to the afflicted widow of our deceased brother.

MRS. IDA McDONALD,

Mrs. Ida McDonald.

MRS. McDONALD, No. 477 Beaubien Street, Detroit, Mich., is a prominent woman who was greatly benefited by the great woman's medicine, Wine of Cardui. Mrs. McDonald is the supreme deputy of the Maccabees of the World, and one of the most widely known women in the United States. Thousands of women gather to hear her lecture everywhere she goes. The great work she has done for the Maccabees is appreciated by every member of the order. She was so absorbed in her work that she neglected to give her health proper care—failed to take warning that the symptoms of approaching kidney trouble gave her, the sallow complexion and torpid liver. But Wine of Cardui cured her the same as it has cured thousands of others and Mrs. McDonald has written this letter in order that other suffering women may secure from Wine of Cardui the same relief she got from it.

"For four years I suffered with torpid liver until my skin looked yellow and dull. I then found my kidneys were affected and had severe pains across my back, and I felt that I must do something to regain my health. A friend advocated your Wine of Cardui treatment so strongly that I decided to try it, although I had little faith in patent medicines. I am now very thankful that I did so, for within ten days blessed relief came to me, and in less than three months I was cured, and have enjoyed fine health ever since. I know there is nothing better for a sick woman who wishes to enjoy perfect health and am very pleased to give my hearty endorsement."

No suffering woman can afford to ignore such a letter as Mrs. McDonald writes. Her plans and advice have proved valuable in building up one of the greatest women's organizations in the United States and she takes time to give advice which she knows will help you.

Do not delay in securing this medicine. There is nothing to gain and everything to lose by delay. The choice is before you. Will or will you not secure relief now by taking Wine of Cardui? All druggists sell $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui as well as 25c packages of Thedford's Black-Draught.

HAPPY HENS MEAN PROFIT!

"BOSWELL'S 20th CENTURY POULTRY HOUSE" is a little book which describes the most convenient, practical, and well-appointed hen-house ever devised—gives plans, with precise instructions for building. Cheap to build, but so planned as to revolutionize poultry-keeping. Thousands cared for with ease. The author has the house in practical operation. Lice and mites cannot exist in this house. Doubles winter egg yield, by making hens happy. Book tells how to handle hens in winter, gives positive ration for winter eggs, and other things you ought to know about hens. Order at once, or you will surely wish you had when cold weather comes to nip your egg yield. PRICE, FIFTY CENTS.

General News.

J. P. Morgan and Mr. Bacon, representing the coal operators, went to Washington and conferred with the President and Secretary Root on the coal strike. They read an offer to submit the whole matter to a commission to be appointed by President Roosevelt.

The British Government will ask Parliament to authorize a Transvaal loan of $150,000,000, guaranteed by the Imperial Government.

The revolt in Macedonia has spread to twenty-two villages, and some of the Turkish troops are reported to have been annihilated.

The local street car strike, which lasted over two weeks, was settled on Monday. The old employees have returned to work.

Supervising Architect Taylor will be in New Orleans the last of the month to confer with the Committee on Postoffice Site.

Sir Michael Herbert, the new British Ambassador, has been presented to the President.

TOBACCO HABIT.

I guarantee to cure anything that walks the earth of tobacco habit in all of its forms. Any reference you want. Dr. J. S. HILL, Greenville, Texas.

A Chance to Make Money.

I have been selling Perfumes for the past six months. I make them myself at home and sell to friends and neighbors. Have made $710. Everybody buys a bottle. For 50 cts worth of material I make Perfumes that would cost $1 in drug stores. I also sold 125 formulas for making perfumes at $1 each.

I first made it for my own use only, but the curiosity of friends as to where I procured such exquisite odors, prompted me to sell it. I clear from $25 to $35 per week. I do not canvass; people come and send to me for the perfumes. Any intelligent person can do as well as I do. For 42 cts. in stamps I will send you the formula for making all kinds of perfumes and sample bottle prepaid. I will also help you get started in the business. MARTHA FRANCIS

11 South Vandeventer Avenue, St. Louis, Mo.

An Easy Way to Make Money.

I have made $360 in 80 days selling Dishwashers. I did my housework at the same time. I don't canvass. People come or send for the Dish-washers. I handle the Mound City Dish washer. It is the best on the market. It is lovely to sell. It washes and dries the dishes perfectly in two minutes. Every lady who sees it wants one. I will devote all my future time to the business, and expect to clear $4,000 this year. Any intelligent person can do as well as I have done. Write for particulars to the Mound City Dish-Washer Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Glances at the World.

That the liquor men of the country are more than ordinarily aroused in consequence of the continued advance of the temperance sentiment and the cutting off of their revenue, admits of no donbt. The time was, and not very far back, they were inclined to be not only aggressive, but defiant, notwithstanding they were frequently warned by one of the leading organs of the whisky interest. Their attitude has changed somewhat. They recognize the strength of the moral sentiment of the country. Its full significance, however, they do not comprehend. They seem to think that enmity to the business is based solely on the fact that retailers are, as a rule, lawless, in that they pay so little regard to the Sabbath, and to the legal hours of opening and closing, and are so often, contrary to law, connected with gambling establishments. Having been awakened to a knowledge of the public wrath, they are endeavoring to make terms. At the recent meeting of the National Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association a committee was appointed to draft "a model uniform liquor license law." The bill, when drawn up, will be presented to every State Legislature. Of course, lobbyists will be on hand to work for its passage. The resolution under which the committee was appointed to formulate the law states "that its object was to eliminate from the traffic all such persons as do not conduct orderly places." These gentlemen are mistaken. The temperance people of the country are not going to assist them in weeding out bad saloon keepers, and put good men in their places to be demoralized. Temperance people propose to get rid of the saloon altogether. It is the business that needs to be suppressed, not the men who run it. An angel could not sell liquor and guarantee the community against the consequences of drunkenness. Down with the traffic!

According to the creed of atheists, the Bible is a sectarian book, and, as such, should be ruled out of our public schools. This contention was made by an infidel of Nebraska, and he sought an injunction to restrain a public school teacher from reading the book in the presence of his children. The court refused the order, and he took an appeal. The Supreme Court of the State reversed the ruling of the lower court, holding that "exercises by a teacher in a public school in a building in school hours, and in the presence of the pupils, consisting of the reading of passages from the Bible, and in the singing of songs and hymns, and offering prayer to the Deity in accordance with the doctrines, beliefs, customs, or usages of sectarian churches or religions organizations, is forbidden by the Constitution of the State." According to the Supreme judges of Nebraska, neither the Divine Being nor the Christian religion is to be recognized by the public institutions of Nebraska. We are led to ask: How are men qualified for office, for jurors, or for witnesses, in that State? If God is to be ruled out of the minds of the children, it will be only a question of time when he will have no place in the minds of fathers and mothers.

President Roosevelt made an earnest effort about three weeks ago to get the coal operators and miners together in order to end the strike. He utterly failed, and though the failure discouraged him, he did not give up, but tried again. He proposed a Commission of Arbitration, to be drawn from certain classes of men, and his proposition was accepted by both parties to the strife. At this writing the miners are in convention, and to-day (Tuesday, Oct. 21) have determined unanimously to arbitrate the matter in dispute on the basis presented by the President. Every question at issue will be arbitrated except that of the recognition of the Union. The terms having been accepted, the miners will resume work on Thursday, and the commission will proceed with the investigation. It will, perhaps, require several weeks to complete the work. It is a matter of great rejoicing that the miners have agreed to the arbitration. President Roosevelt did not undertake the settlement of the strike in his official capacity —this he had no authority to do —but as an individual interested in the welfare of the citizens. His success indicated the strength of the hold he has upon the people — their confidence in his judgment and patriotism.

Strikes are sometimes more injurious to employees who inaugurate them, and to the cities where they occur, than they are intended to be. This has been demonstrated recently in New Orleans. The Gulf Bag Factory is a big institution employing about three hundred hands. A branch of the same concern is located at Memphis. About four weeks ago the employees at New Orleans went on a strike; for what cause we do not know. The strikers would not allow others to take their places, even some of the women who were employed assaulting and beating other women who desired to work. As a result, the factory in this city will be closed permanently, and the machinery moved to Memphis. The owners claim that labor at Memphis is cheaper than in New Orleans, and the freight rates are not so high. But there can be no doubt that this strike is the immediate cause of the removal. The strike, whether justified or not, has thrown out of employment a small army of men and women, and to some extent injured the commerce of the city.

A legal trial and execution occurred in Texas last week, the like of which has no precedent. A negro had murdered a man and wife and daughter. He was caught, and with the utmost difficulty saved by the sheriff from mob violence. Immediate trial was ordered. He was indicted, pleaded guilty, waived all his rights, and inside of three hours was hanged. An immense crowd gathered to witness the execution. That the majesty of the law was vindicated is wholly due to the coolness and courage of the sheriff and his deputies, and the sober second thought of the people. A much larger crowd witnessed the execution than at first attempted to lynch the victim. Though much excited, the people were orderly. This one instance goes to show that speedy trial, and execution of the law, will go far to stop illegal hanging and other methods of disposing of criminals. And what the Texas sheriff did can be done by almost any sheriff anywhere if he will try. Good examples have been set by this Texas sheriff and Texas court.

Georgia Letter.

BY REV. GEO. G. SMITH.

Reports indicate that camp meetings, despite good preaching, good singing, and earnest work of the church, are not very successful in the way of conversions. It has been, and will continue to be more and more, the history of these gatherings that in the older settled communities, where they are held annually, that the old-time success which belonged to them years ago, when they were newer, has not marked these later years; but, despite all this, they are a great blessing. They ought not to be given up as a religious agency, and turned into Chautauquas or Sunday-school Institutes. The few days of the meeting should be entirely devoted to religious work. If the church which needs edification and advancement and comforting is the field to which the work is directed, there can but be great good wrought. I never attended one of these gatherings without great benefit personally. If we do this work, we will not be disappointed in results. They will be a kind of Northfield, Cheswick meeting; but if we expect the results in the way of conversions that marked these meetings even forty years ago, we will be disappointed. We will preach, exhort, sing, urge, and invite, but it will be largely in vain. For why? The material is not here to work on. There are many sinners, but they are not present at the stands. They are scattered, and are courting, bathing, boating, and having, as they say, a good time, and the ordinary services have no attraction for them. Lamentable as is the fact, it is a fact; but if the suggestion I now make is heeded, I am much mistaken if there will ever be a camp meeting at Seashore where there will not be scores of conversions as genuine as were ever at Kingswood or Moorefield, or on the eastern shore of Maryland, or in Virginia or Kentucky. That suggestion is: Have one service every day given to the children, and have the gospel preached to them. Don't change your subjects nor your methods, but your audience. Don't get a man or a woman with a bag of object-lessons, a blackboard, and use sundry other arts to keep the attention of the children. This religious trifling is worse than useless. Don't get a Sunday-school expert who has learned how to teach normally, and relies on the skill of a pedagogue; but get a preacher who believes children can be converted, and aims at bringing their conversion at once to pass.

I have given near twenty years of my life to this work. I am now laid aside, and will probably be in this field no more; and in saying what I do, I can have no personal aim. I am not asking for recognition nor invitation. I am simply giving a part of my experience.

Some ten years ago, or more, I went, at Bishop Keener's invitation, to the Seashore Camp Meeting. I held but one children's meeting under the stand, and preached one time; but every afternoon at five o'clock I gathered some children together in the prayer-room. I had no authority to open the door of the church, and did not do so, but I made a list of those who were there, who promised me to take Jesus as a Savior, and love, trust, and obey him. I have that list now. These little ones are nearly all grown now, many of them married, and, perhaps, most of them now members of some church. In their own handwriting I have many of their names. There were sixty five of all ages, from five to twelve, who were willing daily to give up the pleasure of boating, playing ball, and sauntering on the beach, to come to service, where there was no special attraction in music, no crowd, no blackboard, no object lessons, no pictures, only talks about personal religion. It would be too much to hope that all of these have become stable Christians, but I will guarantee that many more of them have than of any sixty-five adults who ever come into the church at a camp meeting revival. We must begin at the beginning if we wish to grow certainly. I would simply suggest to an anxious pastor this simple plan:

1. Poll the Sunday-school; go to each class, learn how many are in the church, how many are not.

2. Talk earnestly with the superintendent about the conversion of the children.

3. Address the teachers, and present the condition of things. Appoint a children's meeting in the afternoon of Sunday; preach a short, earnest revival sermon to the children; have an altar service. If the time suits, give a whole week, till the next Sunday, to this work, having meetings every evening at five o'clock in Summer, and three o'clock in Winter. Preach to the parents on the subject of childhood religion. Don't have any fancy methods of attraction. If the pastor can't preach to children, let him learn how, or get some one man who can. If there is a camp meeting, give the three o'clock service every day to the children, and then I will promise, of a surety, that we will have no longer a report such as we have had. Will the children be steadfast? That depends. If fed on the pabulum that brings to men great repute, as learned men and great thinkers, they will starve and die; if fed on the old-time gospel meat, they will grow and be strong.

I am amazed at the infatuation of many of those who have the real interests of the church at heart, and who shut their eyes to what is, and dream that if we will only do something we have not done in the way of educating ministers, improving architecture, popularizing Methodism, and securing a more gifted ministry, all will be well, until a young man anxious to succeed feels it is only necessary to get learning, and a church it is only necessary to get a gifted, drawing young man, and a handsome building, and make concessions to the world, and then we will have our churches crowded as of yore. We will never see again in the old States scenes like those of Wesley's day, nor camp meetings such as Asbury saw. We must find in our children the virgin soil of piety, and give our chief attention to cultivating in them its vigorous growth.

Men who ought to know that no clergy are so highly educated as the Romish and Lutheran, and no clergy have less power in securing conversions, and among Protestants the churches those which lay greatest stress on culture, and are the greatest sticklers for propriety, and have the most wealth, have the weakest hold on the masses. The man who is trying to save the people by a written and read sermon on Sunday morning, and the usual musical programme, and who is having more deaths among his members than accessions to them; who loses more boys and girls out of his Sunday-school every month than all the converts among his adults amount to in the year, is sadly mistaken. While he is deciding as to whether Moses wrote the Pentateuch, or whether there were two Isaiahs, or when Daniel wrote his prophecy, Tom Jones, his steward's twelve year old boy, has just about settled it that to be a base ball pitcher, and to go to the matinees, and play games of cards, and to stay out at nights, is the highest joy a boy can have; and as the church opposes him, he intends to break away from the church, and nobody is anxious about him. The pastor can prove philosophically that Tom was born without original sin, and has much of the God like in him, and only needs development; that his sins are not sins, mere effervescences; and Tom's mother fully agrees with her dear pastor, but Tom goes devil-ward, all the same. If the preacher would let poor Isaiah alone, and go after Tom, he would be a wiser man, but not so popular.

Letter from China.

BY DR. A. P. PARKER.

The following items will be interesting to those who are giving attention to the progress of mission work in China:

1. There have been two cases of conversion among the students of the Anglo-Chinese College recently that show how the Spirit of God is working upon the hearts of these boys. One of them was a Cantonese young man about eighteen years of age, who came into the college last year. He had been very pronounced in his opposition to Christianity, specially at the beginning of the Spring term. He expressed himself as altogether unwilling to accept the Bible as the Word of God and a revelation from heaven. Indeed, he seemed rather active in opposing other students in their tendency towards becoming Christians. One day, much to the surprise of the teacher in charge of the dining-room, he was seen to bow his head in prayer as he sat down to the table for dinner; and he has kept up that practice ever since. The teacher, on enquiry, found that he had been praying in his room and had been reading the New Testament, and it was not long after this first manifestation of his belief in God that he came forward one night after our Wednesday night prayer meeting and gave me his name as a probationer, and, on examination, he shows a most thorough change of heart and deep conviction of the truth of the Bible, and is now an out-and-out Christian. Those who are acquainted with the case have been very much surprised and gratified at the sudden change that has occurred; but when we know that prayer is being daily offered for God's blessing upon the college, and especially for his converting power among the students, we need not be surprised when we find that these prayers are being answered.

The other case was that of a boy who had been in the college two years ago, but whose father, having to go to Tien-tsin on business, took him with him. While in Tien-tsin the boy attended religious service regularly in one of the chapels there, and seems to have become thoroughly convinced of the truth of the Christian Scriptures. He entered here for the Spring term in March, and not long after the opening of the college, when I gave the invitation one Wednesday night for any who wished to become Christians to come forward and give me their names, he promptly came forward and expressed his desire to become a Christian. He is a bright young fellow about sixteen years of age, and I am very much interested in him. He tells me he prays daily and reads the New Testament, and I have every reason to believe that he is genuinely converted.

2. One of the students in the Anglo-Chinese College was married recently. Contrary to the usual custom, he did not spend a large amount of money on his wedding feast. He and his father decided to save the money that would have been spent that way, and give it to the "Door of Hope"—a rescue home for fallen women (Chinese) that was established in Shanghai last year by my wife, Mrs. Fitch, Mrs. Evans, and other ladies who formed a committee for the purpose. As the result of the saving of this expense, they handed me $20 to be given to the "Door of Hope." This young man is not a professing Christian, but he is a believer in the truth of Christianity, and he attends, voluntarily, my Bible class every Sunday afternoon. The gift of this money was especially gratifying to me as indicating how the truth of the gospel is working upon the hearts of the young men in the college, and leading them to think of others, and seek to do something for the help of those who are in need.

Raleigh and Raleigh Circuit.

DEAR DOCTOR: Please let me say to "Observer" that if he or you will give me his name and postoffice address, that I will answer his inquiries in the ADVOCATE of to-day (Oct. 16) in full. It is not always best or kind to publish some things. In the meantime, permit me to say that while the preacher-in-charge was removed from the circuit for causes which did not involve his moral or Christian character, yet neither the Raleigh circuit nor the Raleigh Church was to be blamed. Up to the third Quarterly Conference, Raleigh, Trinity, and Cedar Grove Churches had paid more quarterage than ever before in any year of their history up to the same time of year. Raleigh Church has paid about three-fourths of their assessment for ministerial support for the year, and their assessment for Conference collections in full. Cedar Grove Church has paid five-sevenths of ministerial assessment and Trinity about sixty per cent., and Conference claims fully subscribed. The members at Raleigh are holding fast their profession of faith without wavering—in spite of discouragements. T. L. MELLEN, P. E.

Miscellaneous Notes.

Dr. R. N. Price, of the Holston Conference, is of the opinion that the Standards of Methodism contain no specific deliverance on the subject of eternal punishment, and that a preacher who denies eternal punishment, or preaches a second probation, should not be called to account by the Conference to which he belongs. The Doctor is somewhat of a free lance himself, and believes that he should be let alone.

Plans have been adopted, and work will soon begin at Brookhaven, Miss., on the new church to be erected by our people in that important charge. It is the plan of friends to have several memorial windows: one each for Dr. H. F. Johnson, Rev. Milton Whitworth, and Miss Clara Chrisman.

The Publishing Committee of the Texas Christian Advocate is composed of fifteen members. They met in annual session last week, commended the editorial and business management of the paper, and unanimously re-elected Dr. G. C. Rankin as editor. That was quite a compliment to the Doctor.

BY AN ITINERANT.

APPENDIX.

Baptists pretend there must be a positive command, a "thus saith the Lord," before we have the right to baptize infants; and in the absence of this, the practice is a positive sin. It matters not how strong the evidence and how great the circumstances are in favor of it, they will not answer. Neither does it matter that infants were put in the Jewish Church by positive command of God; that they received the initiatory ordinance of the church by positive command; that Peter positively declares the same privileges are accorded to us and our children as were accorded to the Jews and their children; and that nowhere can be found a sentence, word, or syllable, repealing, abrogating, or nullifying this express law; yet it all amounts to naught. Undoubtedly, the greatest incentives to renouncing infant baptism are immersion, and baptismal regeneration after the teaching of Tertullian.

Now, we are willing to be tried by this rule, provided the Baptists will consent to be tried by it themselves. But we are not willing to be bound by a rule that they are not willing to be bound by. Let us see if they always have a positive command, or a "thus saith the Lord," for all their practices.

1. Baptists practice "believer's baptism." Where does the Bible say, "Believe, and be baptized"? But, they reply, "He that believeth, and is baptized." This, however, is not the same as, "Believe, and be baptized." Any simpleton knows there is a vast difference between commanding a thing to be done, and simply declaring that it is done. The first relates to the future, and the second to the past.

2. Baptists baptize females. This is right; but where is the command to do so? "He that believeth" is not, "She that believeth." "He is not she;" neither is "she, he." Besides, there is no command here. We have only the record that women were baptized, and were it not for this, we never should have known that they were entitled to the ordinance at all. There is no command to perpetuate it; so, the Baptists ought to turn Quakers, as those people teach that the ordinance died with the apostles. The commission, "Baptize all nations," is a command perpetuating baptism; but according to the Baptist rule, this does not mean women, for they are not mentioned. Infant baptism stands upon just as strong grounds as does female baptism. Male infants were members of the Jewish Church, but women were not. The latter have been added to the former. Paul says, "There is now neither male nor female, for ye are all one in Christ Jesus." And there are male and female infants as well as male and female adults. Such passages as these make the Baptists dizzy.

3. Baptists require experiences of grace before admission into church fellowship. Where is the "thus saith the Lord" requiring any body of men and women to sit in judgment on my faith and religious experience, and vote me in or out of the church of God? "Judgment is mine, saith the Lord." This is, assuredly, an usurpation of authority; and religious liberty and democratic government are exercised with a vengeance.

4. Baptists use organs in their churches. What right have they to do so? Where is the "thus saith the Lord" for this innovation of the past few decades? "But," say they, "there is no Scripture against it." Neither is there any against infant baptism. Their argument proves too much, and is "no good."

5. Baptists use rubber baptismal suits. Where is the positive institute to do so? Let somebody look it up while I tell you that the first immersionist always immersed the candidates stark naked, whether they were men, women, or children. (Wall.) Baptists don't do that way now. But, beg pardon, this was not the Baptist Church; it was not in existence at that time.

6. Baptists baptize with one "dip" backwards. Where is the command to do so? The first "dippers" always dipped three times (Wall), face forward. They also signed the forehead with the sign of the cross, and gave a mixture of milk and honey. (Wall.) Our modern Baptists have departed from the faith of their fathers, since they claim descent through these immersionists, who also baptized children. (Wall.)

7. Baptists pass the bread and wine to the members in the congregation. Where does God say this must be done? Jesus and his apostles were at a table, and it is called the "Lord's table," not the "Lord's benches." Paul tells the communicants to "examine themselves," whether they be in the faith. The Baptists say, "We will examine you." Very liberal and democratic!

8. Baptists keep the first day of the week as the Sabbath of the Lord. That is, most of them do. The Seventh-Day Adventist Baptists claim there is no "thus saith the Lord" to observe the first day of the week as the Christian Sabbath; hence, they observe the seventh day. This is just what all of them should do to be consistent with their own teachings. The observance of the first day is perfectly proper, and consistent with the general tenor of the Scriptures; but where does God say we must do so? Let the Baptists put their finger on the command.

9. Baptists have Sunday-schools, women's societies, etc. Where is the "thus saith the Lord" for this? If there is none, why, this is an innovation and anti-scriptural, according to their rule. But there must be a positive command for it, or else they would not have them. Baptists never do anything without a positive command of God, if it doesn't suit their notion. But we want the command, and not their notion.

10. Baptists immerse, and vow it is the only way to baptize. Where in the Bible does it say so? Where does Christ, Matthew, Mark, Luke, John, Paul, or Peter say so? I care not what the heathen Greeks say about it. Stick to your Bible, Mr. Baptist. Immerse is not in the Book, and the only instances of immersion recorded in the Bible proved fatal to the immersed, namely: the wicked world during the flood, and Pharaoh and his host in the Red Sea. Neither does it say we must "follow the Savior into the liquid grave," any more than it says we must follow Jonah into the whale's belly. "Buried with him by baptism" does not say "into water," but "into death;" nor does it say that "our physical man is dead, or crucified, and buried," but "our old man—sinful nature—is dead and buried." Neither is this spiritual death effected by "water baptism," but by the "Spirit baptism." (Rom. vi, 3, 4.) The Holy Ghost, through the inspired writers, has translated "baptizo" by words indicating "affusion," as "come upon," "pour out upon," "fell on," "shed forth," etc. (Compare Matt. iii, 2; Luke iii, 16; Acts i, 5, and Acts i, 8; ii, 18, 33; x, 44, 45.) About ninety-five per cent. of the Christian world differ from the Baptists in the meaning of "baptizo" in New Testament Greek. The scholarship of the world is also against them.

In 1865 the American Bible Union (Baptist) published a Revised English Version of the New Testament, in which "baptize" and its cognates were to be rendered "immerse" and its cognates. The Baptist scholars appointed to do the work made a signal failure. Wherever the word "Baptist" appears in apposition with "John," as "John the Baptist," these wise men were wise enough to leave it untranslated. They could not say, "John the Immersee," or "John the Dipper," as that is too euphonious and too rich English for Baptist blood. In Mark x, 38, 39, the word "baptized" in both places in both passages is translated "endure," and the word "baptism" in both passages is rendered "immerse." In Luke xii, 50, "baptism" is translated "immerse," and "baptized" by "undergo"—a complete flop.

In 1883 the Executive Board of the American Baptist Publishing Society appointed Drs. Alvah Hovey, J. A. Broadus, and H. G. Weston, to prepare an improved edition of this translation. These scholars let "Baptist" stand undisturbed, but changed "endure" in Mark to "undergo." They haven't yet succeeded in getting "immerse."

We have exploded a bomb in the Baptist camp, and overturned their "tables of the law." Here are ten—and the number could be greatly multiplied—different things observed and practiced by them, without a positive command from God. If they deny it, we challenge them for the proof. Were they to follow the rule that they lay down for others, they would "rule" themselves out of existence. There would be nothing left of them, not even a rubber suit nor a hole of water. "Oh, consistency, thou art a jewel!"

Pacific Conference.

BY REV. W. P. ANDREWS.

The Pacific Conference convened in Oakland, Wednesday, Oct. 1, and adjourned Sunday evening, the fifth instant. Bishop Duncan presided, this being his fourth year with us. Never have we enjoyed a more harmonious session. Our Missionary Secretary, Dr. Lambuth, who accompanied the Bishop, was a benediction to us. All fell in love with him, and we are persuaded that we will find in him a better friend than ever. He has some appreciation of the value of the Western work to the church. He promises us another visit in the near future, when he will more leisurely study the field. He travels with both eyes open, and pencil and note-book in hand.

Dr. Hammond was also with us a couple of days. He impressed us quite favorably, and expressed himself as pleased with California. We hope he will come again ere long, and stay longer.

We were also favored with the presence of three missionaries en route to the Orient. These were: J. W. Cram and wife, of the Kentucky Conference, and Orin Wannamaker, of South Carolina. Bro. and Sister Cram go to re-enforce the workers in Korea. He impressed us as being intellectual and consecrated, and his wife as a suitable helpmate. Bro. Wannamaker is a layman, and goes to take a professorship in an interdenominational college at Canton. He is a well-equipped young man. These brethren, together with Dr. Lambuth, spoke at a missionary meeting preceding the communion service and reading of the appointments on Sunday evening.

Never were the preachers in finer spirits and more hopeful for the future. The reports showed a gain of something over 200 members. The Epworth Leagues and Sunday-schools had also grown. For the first time in the history of the Conference the missionary assessments, both foreign and domestic, were paid in full. There was a shortage of $250, according to the pastors' reports, but nearly $290 was raised at the anniversary, paying out the domestic mission assessment, and giving a surplus of about $40 for foreign missions. The Bishops' collection was also in full, and all others in advance of last year.

C. W. Huff, who had served as a supply for two or three years, was admitted on trial. He had married an excellent young lady during the year. He is of the right kind of stuff, and will succeed—I believe.

Another Mississippian, R. L. Webb, who came to us by transfer after the last session of our Conference, was admitted into full connection, together with J. C. Robertson, M. D. Brother Webb also passed the examination before the Committee of the Third Year. He had been bereft of his wife only a few weeks ago.

A class of six were ordained elders. They were: J. C. Wooten, E. J. Page, O. L. Russell, J. B. Needham, T. G. Patterson, and C. T. Clark. A promising class.

We received several transfers. Besides some who had been with us during the year, H. M. McKnight, M. B. Chapman and J. L. Jones came from the Los Angeles Conference; C. W. Hoag, J. C. Thomas and L. P. Shearer, from the East Columbia, and J. A. Wailes, from the Missouri. McKnight and Hoag are simply coming back home.

J. R. Sawyer, R. F. Beasly, W. A. Whitmer and J. M. Parker located.

The name of J. C. Simmons was transferred to the roll of superannuates. One of the first missionaries to California, the only survivor of the first Pacific Conference, he retires full of honors, and greatly beloved by preachers and laymen. All regret the necessity for his superannuation, but he will not be inactive. It is not his nature to be. I expect him to yet do much service ere he is called hence.

The memorial service held on Sunday afternoon was a precious service. J. C. Pendergrast and F. M. Staton had left us, besides the wives of J. J. N. Kenney and R. L. Webb, memoirs of whom were prepared by the Committee on Memoirs. Speaking of our dead reminds me of Bro. J. H. Holland, who also fell on our soil. His widow was in attendance at the Conference. She is rather feeble, but rejoicing in the Lord.

One change was made in the Bishop's cabinet. J. J. N. Kenney, having completed four years on the San Joaquin district, J. A. Batchelor was substituted for him, while Bro. Kenney succeeds Bro. Batchelor at Fresno.

Salinas, Cal., Oct. 9, 1902.

An Ancient Document.

An old scrap-book has fallen into the hands of the undersigned, dating back as far as 1836, with the name of J. W. Monette, Washington, Adams county, Miss., appearing on the inside of the back. From all appearances Dr. J. W. Monette once owned the book, and selected the clippings with which it is filled. An article dated Oct. 25, 1839, entitled "Centenary Addresses," delivered at camp ground, near Whitestown, in the vicinity of Woodville, Wilkinson county, Miss., mention is made of the Rev. William Winans as one of the most eloquent and apostolic men in the Southern Church, and as the one selected to open the services. Rev. J. W. Burroughs is next mentioned as delivering a masterly address on the early history of the M. E. Church. Dr. J. W. Monette followed in a very able address on the same subject. Next of much interest in the book comes the celebrated Major Downing correspondence on "The Banks," all of which are "side-splitters" in the way of producing laughter. Then we have a description of the wonderful power of memory possessed by the celebrated Rabbi Hirsh Danemark, a professor of Hebrew, who could repeat the Talmud, and begin on any page named, and upon the call of the muster roll of over two hundred soldiers, he could repeat it forward and backward without an error. Another article, dated Oct. 11, 1843, tells of the terrible massacre of a number of the Nestorian Christians by the Pasha of Mogul. The tornado at Natchez, Miss., on May 7, 1840, is described by a lengthy article, giving details, and mentioning quite a number of the persons injured, and others making narrow escapes, etc. A famous letter of Gen. Andrew Jackson, addressed to F. P. Blair, editor of the Globe, defending himself about a charge and fine imposed upon him by Judge Hall in New Orleans, appears on another page. From the pen of the venerable John Adams is another clipping—a beautiful reminiscence of the first Congress in Philadelphia. A graphic and lengthy description of the funeral of Napoleon is quite interesting. A biographical sketch of Capt. John Smith takes up considerable space, and depicts his romantic career in glowing terms. There appears an account of a shower of flesh and blood that fell in Wilson county, near Lebanon, Tenn.; vouched for by many prominent people, occurring some time in August, 1841. Another clipping speaks of the finding of a petrified buffalo by trappers of Capt. Bentz's company, near the Rio Grande. There is a biographical sketch of the distinguished John Randolph, of Roanoke, giving some of his best points as well as eccentricities. An article relative to the last resting-place of the famous Hernando De-Soto, claiming that he was buried within fifty miles of the mouth of the Arkansas river, and afterwards his remains were deposited in the Mississippi river. On Oct. 1, 1841, is mention of a yellow fever epidemic; then follow quite a number of articles by the medical fraternity as to its origin and cure, there being several articles from the pen of Dr. J. W. Monette. A brief mention of the death of Gen. Andrew Jackson by Sam Houston follow, stating that he died in full hope of salvation, composed and resigned. Quite a number of articles appear from the pens of Dr. J. W. Monette and the Rev. William Winans. Anyone interested in this scrap-book may address me at Roxie, Miss., Box 63.

A. L. ROWLAND.

Calhoun, La.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: The Conference year is rapidly drawing to a close. It has been to me one of the most laborious of my thirty years in the traveling ministry. In addition to this, Mrs. Isbell's crippled condition, on account of rheumatism of three years' standing—having to use a crutch all the time—has rendered my frequent and long absence from home a source of much anxiety to me.

Notwithstanding adverse circumstances, the good Lord has blessed my labors, for which I am devoutly thankful. My health has been perfect. Have met every appointment over some of the roughest roads in the country, held three successful protracted meetings, and have witnessed the completion of a beautiful church at Lapine.

Four weeks ago, with the assistance of a few lay brethren, I commenced a meeting at Drew, comparatively a new appointment on this charge, running it six days, with the result: Thirty-seven conversions and accessions, nearly all adults. The membership was more than doubled by this meeting, and greatly encouraged. Another result: The people have resolved to build a fine, new church, after the plan of the Lapine Church, only larger. They have already planned, and are engaged in the work, hoping to complete it by the end of the year.

Have all the Conference collections in full in cash and subscriptions. Hope to make a good report at Conference.

Manual Labor School.

MR. EDITOR: We opened the Lumberton Manual Labor School on the ninth instant, with a small attendance. By the middle of November we will be prepared to take about twenty more boys. Our students study in the forenoon and work in the afternoon, and pay all their expenses with their work. The poorest boy may come here and prepare himself for college without going in debt, if he is willing to work. The school was established to help boys to help themselves. If you know a poor boy with grit enough to make sacrifice of personal ease in order to get an education, send him to us. We will rub him up, and send him on to Millsaps for further work. We are here to stay, and to give boys an opportunity.

W. F. M. S.

MY DEAR SISTERS: At the middle of our missionary year, and the beginning of a new quarter, I want to have a talk with you about our work. It became necessary during the quarter for our beloved president, Miss Marshall, to resign her office. We regretted much to give up one who so long and faithfully discharged her official duties. The office has been filled by the election of our vice-president, Mrs. Bessie Lipscomb, of Whitworth College, Brookhaven. Mrs. Lipscomb has for several years been connected with the missionary work in the North Mississippi Conference, having served as president for several years, and is recognized as a gifted, competent, and consecrated Christian woman, thoroughly identified with the missionary idea, and recognized as a leader in all Christian work.

Mrs. H. W. Featherstun, of Moss Point, has been elected vice-president. Mrs. Featherstun is known throughout our Conference, and it is useless for me to say anything about her in this connection, for we all know her excellent capabilities.

As these consecrated, gifted women come to us as the leaders of our work, let us, as members of the W. F. M. Society, rally to them in the work, and discharge our own duty in our auxiliaries. The officers of a Conference can plan wisely, but without the individual worker in the auxiliaries, their wise planning comes to naught.

It gives me pleasure to say to you that Miss Gibson writes that the money sent for our Mississippi Room at the training-school has enabled her to fit it up nicely and comfortably. And how grateful you will feel to know that the president of our Young People's Society, First Church, Jackson, Miss.—Janie Watkins, sister of our Conference president—has been called to the work in foreign fields, and will occupy that room for the next two years, preparing for her life-work. How thankful we should be for the honor of having one from our Conference go as our representative! Jackson, First Church, claims the high privilege of meeting her expenses at the training-school. Will not the gift of this young woman to the mission work inspire our women of the church, and especially of our auxiliaries, to greater work?

There is one thing I wish especially to call your attention to—that is the Students' Loan Fund. At the Board meeting in Charleston, last June, it was proposed that the Board establish a loan fund, so that young women preparing for mission work could borrow a scholarship until she was ready for work, or until she had worked, and return it to the Board. The pledge for our Mississippi Conference for this purpose was $75. As yet, very little has been paid. It is very necessary that the funds for this should be in the hands of our treasurer, Mrs. C. B. Drake, at Vicksburg, as early as possible. Let me urge that each society do their best to send this fund without delay to our treasurer.

God is honoring us in calling our young women into his service. Should we not honor him in giving of our substance?

We hope to have Miss Hughes visit some parts of our Conference. I feel sure she will be most cordially received and given a good hearing.

It is most earnestly wished that each auxiliary will observe the Week of Prayer, and contributions go to the general fund.

Itching Skin

Distress by day and night—

That's the complaint of those who are so unfortunate as to be afflicted with Eczema or Salt Rheum—and outward applications do not cure. They can't.

The source of the trouble is in the blood—make that pure and this scaling, burning, itching skin disease will disappear.

"I was taken with an itching on my arms which proved very disagreeable. I concluded it was salt rheum and bought a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. In two days after I began taking it I felt better and it was not long before I was cured. Have never had any skin disease since." MRS. IDA E. WARD, Cove Point, Md.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

Sunday-Schools and Missions.

The Methodist Church is essentially missionary; it was born with the spirit of "Go." In missionary zeal and enthusiasm it leads the van, and it entered upon the work of the twentieth century with an enlarged vision of its world-wide mission. It is wise and proper, therefore, to educate our children along missionary lines, and to stress the cause of missions in our Sunday-schools. It is not only wise and proper, but it is a duty we owe to our children and to the cause of Christ.

The Discipline provides that every Sunday-school shall be organized into a missionary society auxiliary to the Board of Missions. It is customary for schools so organized to observe one Sunday in each month as Missionary Day, in which missionary work is given prominence, and a collection taken for the cause. Thinking that the example of a successful school would be an encouragement to others, we recently wrote Bro. J. C. Cavett, superintendent of the Sunday-school of First Church, Jackson, Miss., for an outline of the manner in which he conducts the exercises of the day. He writes as follows:

"We use the first Sunday in every month as Missionary Sunday, and our school is organized into a Methodist Missionary Society, according to the Discipline. At the close of the school on that day we usually have all scholars present, and then have the officers of the Missionary Society, who have been previously elected by the school—a president, secretary, and treasurer—come forward and take charge of the meeting. Sometimes we have a little recitations, and try to have a programme, though we do not always have it. But I find that it is a good idea to have something said about our different missionaries and about their work—anything to increase interest in mission work. Then they take the collection, which goes to our church. To excite interest in payments, we have a banner, and the class contributing the largest amount has the banner set over them the following month, and it is known as the banner missionary class."

NOTICE.

The leaders of Study Circles in the Mississippi Conference are requested by the Sunday-school Board to have their examination on the first course as early as possible, or, at least, early enough to have their papers examined and a report made on them before the meeting of Conference at Natchez.

The Board wishes to emphasize the Study Circle work, and to encourage and stimulate it within their borders. A Sunday-school anniversary will be held during the session of Conference, at which steps will be taken to honor, in some suitable manner, all members of the Study Circles who have graduated from the first course. We hope and pray that their number will be large.

Faithfulness in small things, and using well the small means at our disposal, are often stepping-stones to higher things and a larger field of usefulness. A good lady in South Mississippi is superintendent of a small and struggling Sunday-school. With bare walls, poor material, and in the midst of great indifference to Sunday-school work, she has carried on for some time this work for God. She writes: "I thank you for your words of commendation. They are an inspiration to my lagging courage, and an incentive to larger faith and greater endurance in the Master's cause. I ask nothing higher in this life than to spend and be spent in his service." A spirit like that will conquor in his name.

We learn that applications for examination papers for the first course are going into the Nashville office very slowly. We trust that the circle in Louisiana and Mississippi will not delay theirs. Let us have as many examinations as possible before our three Conferences meet.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

EASTABUCHIE CIRCUIT.

DEAR DOCTOR: I have just closed my last protracted meeting. I began my meeting at Tuscanola the third Sunday in August, assisted by Revs. B. S. Rayner and C. W. Campbell. Results: Thirty-one members received, with twenty-two previously received, makes fifty-three, and quite a number of conversions.

The fifth Sunday in August, I began at Mt. Tabor, assisted by Rev. C. C. Gibson. Results: Two accessions, church greatly revived, and several conversions.

The first Sunday in September, I began at Rawls Springs, assisted by Revs. W. M. Sullivan and B. S. Rayner. Results: Two accessions and several conversions, and the church greatly built up.

On Friday night before the third Sunday in September, I began at Semiuary, assisted by Rev. P. D. Hardin, of Heidleberg. Results: Twelve accessions, several conversions, and the church greatly built up.

On Friday night before the fourth Sunday in September, I began at Eastabuchie, assisted by Rev. T. J. Norsworthy, with his big tent, and continued for twelve days. Results: About thirty presented themselves for church membership for the different churches (twenty-one for the Methodist Church), and between fifty and seventy-five claimed conversion and reclamation. Bro. Norsworthy works in perfect harmony with the pastor. His preaching is plain, pointed, practical and forceful, in the power and demonstration of the Holy Ghost. The meeting was the greatest ever held in this place; so said by those living here. Anyone needing help in revival work, I can recommend Bro. Norsworthy as a safe man to get.

Another evangelist refused to come to Eastabuchie, for fear he would not be paid for his services; but Bro. Norsworthy came without any promise of any pay at all, and we raised for him $118.65, and $15 in good subscriptions for the Conference claims, $21.27 for incidental expenses, $10 in cash and $10 in subscription for the Orphans' Home, and the pastor will be paid in full. The last night of the meeting the people gave the pastor and his family a pounding of about $20 worth, such as flour, ham, and many other groceries, and dry goods too numerous to mention. At the close we could but sing, "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow."

C. C. GRIFFIN, P. C.

CHARLESTON CIRCUIT.

DEAR BROTHER BOSWELL: Perhaps a few words from Charleston circuit would not be out of order. Our revival meetings have all been held, resulting in thirty-seven additions to the church on profession of faith. The spiritual state of the church is good; financial interest of church well in hand. We will report all collections in full at Annual Conference—a thing that has never been done in the history of the charge. We have organized one Woman's Missionary Society at Oakland; are trying to organize a League at Charleston. About $100 has been expended on the parsonage. The church at Tillatoba has been carpeted. The new church at Harrison will be dedicated in the near future.

The people of the charge have been kind and attentive to us. No pastor ever served a more pleasant, thoughtful charge. This is one of the very best circuits of the North Mississippi Conference. The salary is equal to any circuit except one, being $750—an increase in salary of preacher and presiding elder this year. We have done our best to inspire the people to pay in full the Conference collections (and have assurance of full payment). They seem to have never realized the importance of this obligation. We thank God for the success of our labors, though the work has been done under many difficulties. We earnestly pray the blessings of God on this people.

We enjoy the ADVOCATE very much, and extend to its editor our love and thanks for his kindness toward us. Fraternally,

J. W. RAPER.

FROM MCNUTT CHARGE.

We have held some good meetings during the past quarter. Revs. R. A. Clark and W. S. Shipman assisted at McNutt and Sunny Side, respectively. These faithful brethren ungloved their hands, and with open affections uncovered our sins, both in and out of the church, to the glory of our divine Lord.

We were assisted at Blue Lake, in the interior, by Rev. J. J. Garner. Here we organized a new church, thus pre-empting this fertile section. Bro. Garner was characteristically strong and spiritual, and the "common people heard him gladly."

BENSON, LA.

DEAR BRO. BOSWELL: Mama takes your paper, and we read and enjoy the good things it contains. There are only a very few Methodists here, and we have been working hard this year to get a church here in which to worship, and we now have the church finished, or, at least, ready to paint, and we have to buy a bell, organ, lamps, and all the furnishings. We have done just all we can do here, and must call on other church workers, and those who are able to help the churches that are too weak to do all alone.

Now, Bro. Boswell, I am doing all I can for this church, and have stated the circumstances to you, feeling that you will be glad to lend us a helping hand, and I assure you that any amount, be it ever so small, will be appreciated and thankfully received. Yes, indeed; mine will be a heart full of gratitude to you for any assistance you will give me, and I feel sure you can not only help me personally, but get me some help from others who are able and willing to help the cause of Christ. Please let me hear from you real soon.

Thanking you in advance for any kindness you may show me, I am,

Yours truly,

(MISS) JENNIE SEBASTIAN.

HABITUAL MISCARRIAGE

(The Bane of Weakly Wives)

Is often the result of some uterine disease, but may cause still other womb derangements and bring on many ills and miseries. It deprives the woman of personal health as well as of her rightful heritage—the blessings of maternity. This serious condition can be overcome and prevented by the judicious use of G. F. P., which will heal and tone the parts concerned in maternity so that they will properly perform their intended functions.

"I was subject to habitual miscarriage and its attendant flooding and danger to life and health. I took two bottles of G. F. P. and now have a fine, healthy baby boy."—Mrs. Emma Shorter, Prospect, Tenn.

"Four bottles of G. F. P. cured my wife and now we have a fine baby boy."—Orville Rice, Garfield, Mo.

"I can recommend G. F. P. in the highest terms, for I am now the mother of a fine fifteen pound boy, my health is improved and I am much stronger."—Mrs. Annie Hill, Prairie Point, Miss.

G. F. P.—Gaertle's Female Panacea, cures irregular, scanty, too profuse and painful monthly periods, uterine and ovarian irritations; ulcers, displacements and falling of the womb; whites and all unnatural discharges; infidility, barrenness and all impediments to maternity; also all associate ailments of the private organs of woman. At all stages of menstrual life, from budding womanhood until after the change that end special womanly functions, it is the best friend of and remedy for womankind. Its use strengthens all womanly organs, regulates and renders natural all sexual functions. It is sold at drug stores for $1.00 a bottle. Buy it, try it, and you will find these statements are true, for it is reliable and will not disappoint.

All ladies who are not perfectly right and well in a womanly way should write to the Ladies' Health Club, care of L. Gerstle & Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., for free medical advice and instruction.

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check, ten cents extra will be charged.

Oct. 14, 1902.

Voluntary endurance of suffering even unto death, for the sake of God and humanity, is neither stoicism nor indifference to personal interest, but heroism that would suffer nothing in comparison with that displayed by those of whom the apostle said, "The world was not worthy."

To live constantly in the indulgence of known sin, and expect to escape punishment at last through the mercy of God, is what the Psalmist called presumptuous sin—a sin of which any well-informed man should be ashamed.

If good fathers and mothers who live in the country would train their girls to love the farm, and to make the farm-home attractive, "the boys would hang around," as some body has said, a long time before leaving for the city.

Religion is designed to make men holy and happy, and when one says he has just enough religion to make him miserable, he does not know his privileges, else he is culpably indifferent to his moral state.

"Swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath," is St. James' injunction to the brethren—an exhortation which, if heeded, would save both the ministry and the church a vast amount of trouble.

The practice of religious duties is not an infallible sign of a converted heart, but it will be more generally accepted as such by the people than all talk and no work.

One who has sinned against his Heavenly Father, and asks forgiveness, must himself forgive all who have sinned against him; otherwise, his asking will be in vain.

After one has spent the haymaking season in idleness it is folly to charge empty barns at harvest time to the account of Providence.

The man who is clever only when he is visiting at your home can not be depended on to act the part of a neighbor.

Those who act in haste and repent at leisure shed their tears in vain unless they make amends for their misdoings.

CHRISTIAN HOSPITALITY.

Two gentlemen were conversing. One inquired of the other: "What kind of a man is Mr. B——?" The reply was, "He is the cleverest man at your house you ever saw." Perhaps all of us have met men of that order of hospitality. But that is not Christian hospitality.

St. Peter said to the brethren, "Use hospitality one to another without grudging." St. Paul urged the church to be "given to hospitality," and he declared to Titus that a bishop must be a "lover of hospitality." The author of the Epistle to the Hebrews exhorted to brotherly love, and said do "not forget to entertain strangers," adding as a reason that some had "thereby entertained angels unawares." The sacred historian, complimenting the early Christians for their fidelity, enumerated hospitality as one of their virtues. They continued steadfastly in the "breaking of bread," as well as in the apostles' doctrine and fellowship and prayer. Hospitality is a virtue not to be overlooked.

In this age of commercialism, when every man is bent on money making, determined to "make every edge cut," in the interest of his private revenue, there is danger of forgetting this Christian duty. Even in our Southland, once so famous for lavish hospitality, the duty is being neglected. It is painfully evident in city, town and country. Neighbors do not visit and feast each other as in former days. Strangers are not entertained according to apostolic injunction. And the preacher, for whom the prophet's chamber was once wont to be prepared, and was always ready, is not included in the list of special or expected guests. In many places it is not an easy thing to secure entertainment for a visiting minister. And who does not know that a pastor, as a rule, is unpopular only with that class of members who are lacking in the grace of hospitality—with whom he never "breaks bread!" It may be his fault, or the fault of the people—no matter, if he does not occasionally take a meal with the members of his charge, he is under par, and to some extent his usefulness among those families is impaired. Our experience is not sufficient to certify that this is true in our large cities, but we know it is true in our small towns and country charges.

Anybody can afford to make a show of hospitality when it costs nothing except to be polite and to give expression to good wishes. We may call that entertainment, but not hospitality. Much entertainment nowadays that passes for hospitality has not in it the semblance of the virtue. It costs the entertainer nothing. And it makes no difference how polite and attentive the host may be, if the guest pays for it, the element of hospitality is lacking. For example: Some of our Church Conferences are entertained in large cities, the delegates are assigned to hotels and boarding-houses, and either pay their own board, or it is paid out of a general fund. Yet the cities take credit to themselves, saying, "We extend to you the hospitalities of our homes, and give you the freedom of our towns." And the brethren in the wind-up pass resolutions, thanking the good citizens for their bountiful and generous hospitality. And men vote for these resolutions who never had the worth of a shoeblack, or a fifteen-cent lunch donated them. As for seeing inside of the hospitable homes, or dining at the heavy-laden tables, they never even so much as had an invitation. That these cities go to some trouble and expense to entertain the Conferences is true. And the whole city gets credit, whereas, the burden fell on the noble few. We are coming to this order of entertainment for all our gatherings. We know nothing that strikes closer to the root of Christian hospitality.

We are told that times and circumstances have changed. We admit the fact. But the great majority of our people, both in town and country, are in a better financial condition than they were years ago. The difference is, many families who then had few servants have none now, and those who had many then now have but few. These facts may excuse our people from going to as much trouble and expense as formerly, but are not sufficient to justify them in withholding all hospitality. It is a virtue too precious, and one that unites fellow-men too closely, to be destroyed on such flimsy pretexts.

Our people are as liberal as ever—fully as much inclined to relieve the poor and distressed, but this liberality does not take the place of a grace so clearly enjoined in the Scriptures. Money is not and can not always be accepted as a substitute for the fellowship of brethren. No amount of high feeding at a big hotel, and sleeping in a luxuriously furnished room without fire, at the expense of a rich member, can make a Methodist preacher feel that he has been hospitably cared for by the brethren, if he knows there are homes that would be opened but for the trouble of entertaining.

We have seen families poor in this world's goods, whose chief delight was to practice hospitality. Out of scanty stores they provided without grudging. The trouble to which they went was more than balanced by the pleasure they experienced in ministering to friends and neighbors. The blessing of the Lord rested upon them. Neighborly people are fond of breaking bread with each other occasionally. Where this is never done, we fear there is little disposition to manifest the grace of hospitality.

THE CHIEF MAN AMONG US.

The chief man in Methodism is the preacher-in-charge. In these last days he is called the pastor. He is not chief because of attainments or natural endowments, though in these respects he may excel. Nor is he chief because foremost in official position. Others are in advance of him. The higher offices he may never attain. There died a few days ago, as have thousands before him, a plain Methodist preacher, who, for upwards of thirty years, was nothing more than preacher-in-charge of poor missions and circuits. He never reached the dignity of station preacher, to say nothing of presiding elder or connectional officer. But he was a chief man among us. He was trusted in the rank and file, where he always stood unflinchingly with his face to the foe. He would have died rather than prove false to his colors, retreat or surrender.

Methodism would be powerless without the preacher-in-charge. Our Bishops can touch only fractional parts of the connection, and only the centers where they see the best side of the church. The presiding elders touch the charges only once a quarter, and very many churches in large circuits they seldom see. The preacher-in-charge is everywhere, every day looking after the interests of his people, and adding his mite to the extension of the Lord's kingdom. Under the question concerning the duties of a preacher-in-charge, nearly thirty things are named which he is expected to do, and the heaviest, most difficult and delicate parts of his work are not mentioned.

The business of the preacher-in-charge is to preach, hold prayer meetings, look after the Sunday-schools, encourage the Epworth Leagues, visit from house to house, instruct the children, minister to the poor and sick, and take a collection annually in every congregation of his charge for five separate objects, and if special collections are necessary, he is charged with the duty of raising them. Besides, if a house of worship or parsonage is to be built or repaired, he is expected to take the lead, and give the matter his personal attention until the work is complete. Above all, he is the chief soul-winner in the church. Into this work he puts his whole soul, and rests not day nor night. No enterprise of the church can succeed without the aid of the preacher-in-charge. We honor this chief man of Methodism, and pray for him a glorious reward in the skies.

AT HATTIESBURG.

Hattiesburg, on the Queen and Crescent route, about midway between New Orleans and Meridian, is the center of a big business and literally the home of industry. It has ample railroad facilities—better, perhaps, than any other town in Mississippi. It has now the advantage of the Queen and Crescent, the Gulf and Ship Island, the Mobile and Jackson, just now reaching the town from Mobile, and another road (if we mistake not) in contemplation. It has also all other advantages and comforts of modern city life—electric light, telephone, ice, and artesian wells that supply the whole town with the best and purest water. Like many other places, Hattiesburg owes its existence to saw-mills, and the lumber trade is still the main support. How extensive and valuable it is we could not undertake to say. But enterprising citizens are looking ahead, expecting the day to come when lumber can not be wholly depended upon to keep up the city. Agricultural resources will be developed. In anticipation of this, a large cotton compress and oil mill has been erected and is in operation. The evidences of prosperity are seen all over the place. Large and fine business houses are going up, and we dare say more than one hundred dwellings have just been completed, or are in process of erection, a few of them equal in dimensions and architectural beauty to some of the finest residences on St. Charles Avenue in New Orleans.

The church and education keep pace with the commercial enterprise of the place. There are four large and handsome public school-buildings, two for the white children and two for the black. There are about one thousand children of school age, and the majority of them are taking advantage of their opportunities. The various denominations of Christians are represented, and, judging by appearances, they are doing well. Of course, we had no opportunity during a short visit to obtain anything but an outside view, save of our own churches.

We are well represented in Hattiesburg, having two churches: Main Street, with Rev. W. H. Huntley as pastor, and Court Street, with Rev. W. M. Sullivan. Both churches are prospering, and pastors and people are in love with each other. Court Street is the outgrowth of Main Street, and, though very young, it is vigorous, and doing a fine work. The people worship in a nice, new and well-appointed house. It may be classed as elegant. The parent church, Main Street, itself is not old. It is strong, and growing stronger all the time. It would be hard to find a church anywhere made up of more substantial and enterprising citizens. Their house of worship was the best of its order when built, but they have outgrown it in every sense of the word. They are planning for a new one—investigating with a view to getting a house that will meet all requirements, for preaching, Epworth League, and Sunday-school purposes. Four of the brethren have pledged about half the money needed. The other half will be easily obtained, and within eighteen months we expect to see the handsomest church of any denomination in Southeast Mississippi. Under the leadership of Brother Huntley they will succeed.

It was our pleasure to preach, on Sunday last, to the Main Street congregation in the morning, and to Court Street in the evening. The weather was clear and pleasant, and at Main Street we met the largest congregation we have seen anywhere this year except at Seashore Camp Meeting. It rained just before preaching time in the evening, and the Court Street congregation was not large. We enjoyed much the hospitality of our brethren, the pastors, and we were "courteously entreated" by other brethren whose hospitality would have been accepted if our stay had been longer. Behind a span of lively chestnut sorrels with Brother Huntley, we had a ride all over the city and across the river. Our visit to Hattiesburg was pleasant indeed. We hope to go there again.

A BIT OF ENCOURAGEMENT.

It requires but little to make some people happy. A word or two is sufficient. A whole sentence puts them to shouting. A few weeks since Dr. R. S. McArthur, in a public address, characterized infant baptism as "heathenish." He used a few other words in denunciation of the practice, and the whole congregation, it is said, applauded. His words were reported to the public, and every paper that preaches "believers' baptism," to which we have access, has copied and commended the utterances. Some of the secular papers that knew no better really thought that something new had happened, and that the Doctor had verged nigh on to blasphemy. And Dr. McArthur's friends, not stopping to consider that he had misrepresented many Christians who practice the baptism of infants, were made very happy.

And now comes the Rev. F. B. Meyer with a prophecy, and some of our immersionist brethren are fairly dancing with joy. Dr. Meyer has said, "I believe all Christians will yet be Baptists." That is encouraging. The encouragement, however, found in this prophecy is not great as it seems, for the prophet added, "This may not mean a cessation of Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational Churches, but it will mean that those churches will be composed of immersed believers." This prophecy has not shaken the Pedo-Baptist foundation, nor even alarmed the believers in sprinkling and pouring. And we fail to see in Dr. Meyer's words any ground for rejoicing on the part of Baptists. They have believed what he said all the while, and his testimony adds no strength to their position, for he is not a convert to the doctrine of believers' baptism. He is, and always has been, an immersionist. He was educated in a Baptist College, and was a Baptist pastor for several years. For some time past he has labored outside of Baptist ranks, but has never surrendered his Baptist principles. So, his prediction is nothing more than a wish that is father to the thought, and is not a particle more valuable than the prophecies of thousands of Baptist brethren who have never been outside the Baptist Church. Dr. Meyer will scarcely succeed in stampeding the hosts of Christendom.

Rev. M. F. Johnson, of Carrollton Avenue, is not in good health. He has lately had an attack of dengue fever. On Sunday last he was unable to occupy his pulpit.

Mississippi Conference.

In accordance with resolution of the Mississippi Conference the next session will begin on Thursday, Dec. 11, at 9 A. M. JOSEPH S. KEY.

Sherman, Texas, Oct. 18, 1902.

Notice.

To All the Members of the North Mississippi Conference—

BRETHREN: Please observe the following notices and requests:

1. In due time each of you will receive on postal card the name of your Conference host.

2. Be sure to inform your host on what day and train you expect to arrive.

3. Please come to Tupelo on the day trains. It will be out of our power to meet night trains.

4. Immediately on arrival you will go directly to your homes.

5. Rooms will be provided for committees and Conference Boards, especially if we get notice of time of meetings.

The above is as much for lay delegates as preachers: Some other notices may be given in November.

The good people of Tupelo are glad to have the honor of entertaining the Conference. With pleasure we will serve you the best we can.

J. A. BOWEN.

Tupelo, Miss., Oct. 18, 1902.

PERSONAL.

We are sorry to learn that Rev. J. W. Bell, presiding elder of the Grenada district, is suffering from an attack of chills. We hope the attack will be of short duration.

Brother Joe Ramsey, so well known in Epworth League circles, is engaged to assist Rev. K. W. Dodson in a meeting at Algiers. The meeting will begin some time in November.

Dr. A. F. Watkins is visiting the Conferences in the interest of the Endowment Fund. At the Holston Conference he raised $2,730—the largest amount, so far as we have noticed, raised at any of the Conferences visited.

A communication from Rev. G. W. Bachman, in reference to the Sunday-school Institutes held at West Point and Oxford has been received, but too late for this week's issue. We thank Brother Bachman for his kindness.

Rev. G. M. Hull, of the Mississippi Conference, has taken a transfer to the Denver Conference, and will work for the coming year at Trinidad. We hope he may have great success. Rev. J. M. Cowan will supply his place on the Florence circuit until Conference.

A private word from Rev. J. W. Bell, presiding elder of the Grenada district, informs us that "the work of the district moves on nicely." Great success has attended the labors of the brethren in that field. They will "report six hundred additions to the church" at the ensuing Conference session.

Rev. H. T. Cunningham, of the North Mississippi Conference, has been transferred to the West Texas Conference, from which he went to North Mississippi six years ago. Notwithstanding he is going back to his old home, we regret very much to give him up. He is a Christian gentleman and an earnest, willing worker.

We had the pleasure, on Sunday last, at Hattiesburg, of meeting Rev. L. P. Meador, a veteran of the Mississippi Conference, now on the "roll of honor." He does not seem to be in robust health, but at the close of the sermon he led in prayer which indicated neither weakness of body, mind or faith. It had in it the old-time Methodist zeal.

Dr. John Mathews, well known in New Orleans as a former pastor, who has just completed his fourth year at McKendree, Nashville, will take a superannuated relation, and remove to St. Louis, where he proposes to spend the evening of his life. His career has been one of honor and great usefulness. Thousands rise up and call him blessed.

Dr. I. W. Cooper, president of Whitworth College, dedicated the beautiful, new church at Edwards, Miss., on the first Sunday of October. He also had an engagement to dedicate a church on the Thomasville charge—Rev. W. A. Terry, pastor—but was hindered by sickness. Rev. H. G. Hawkins, vice-president of the college, filled his place.

Forest District.

To the Preachers in Charge and Members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in the Bounds of the Forest District—

DEAR BRETHREN: One-half of the Quarterly Conferences on the fourth round have been held. In the main, the reports were encouraging. The best all-round reports were made by the Rev. J. M. Corley, for the Enontta charge. All his Conference collections were in full, except for foreign missions, and that was short only $6, with good subscriptions to cover more than the shortage, and "Rally Day" yet to be held in all the Sunday-schools. A very neat church-building has been completed, including outside painting and very comfortable seats, and all paid for—Boyds Chapel in Wayne county. There were 75 conversions during the quarter; 70 members pray in public; 30 family altars; every church has a Sunday-school, and every Sunday-school is a missionary society; 23 members were received by baptism, 20 by vows and 3 by certificate; and 7 infants baptized, including Annie Ruth, the bright baby daughter of the preacher-in-charge. (The presiding elder had the pleasure of baptizing that baby.)

The Rev. D. C. Langford, for the Trenton circuit, reports 27 infants baptized during the quarter, and 4 members received by baptism, 12 by vows and 1 by certificate. He is within $11 of having his foreign missionary money in full. Just a little more earnest, cheerful, persistent effort on his part and the cordial co-operation of the official brethren, and the membership will respond in the full payment of all assessments.

Of course, good reports were made by the Rev. P. D. Hardin, for Vossburg and Heidelberg; Rev. J. H. Foreman, for the Rose Hill circuit; Rev. J. N. Ware, for the Montrose circuit; and Bro. Nersworthy, for Ellisville, and Bro. Linfield, for Laurel, Main Street, are very hopeful, and expect nothing short of being in "Class A," and not far from the head. If Bro. Shearer and his helpful officials manifest just a little intelligent zeal, that new circuit will not be at the foot of the class. The Fifth Avenue and Kingston charge have about 60 members received by certificate this year, and they worship in two incomplete houses which ought to be finished by Conference, or at least be made more comfortable by completing the roofing and hanging the window sashes.

The new Heidelberg Church is a vast improvement on the old, but a debt of $300 is in the way of its dedication, and the brethren think they need help from the Board of Church Extension, even more than the two small, weak, struggling congregations at Fifth Avenue and Kingston.

Bro. W. M. Thornton, treasurer of the Joint Board, under date of Oct. 9, reports the following receipts from the district on Conference Claimants' Fund: Enontta, $24; Rose Hill, $40; Shiloh, $61; Walnut Grove, $5; Vossburg and Heidelberg, $70; Montrose, $45; Edinburg, $4.80; Lake, $40; Trenton, $25; Harperville, $33; Morton and Pelahatchie, $48; Carthage, $16.68; Ellisville circuit, $9.90; Newton and Hickory, $20; Neshoba $12; Forest, $12.50; Laurel: Main Street, $20; Decatur, $12; Scott, $12; but gives no credit to Ellisville station, Indian Mission, Laurel: Fifth Avenue and Kingston, Raleigh, or Taylorville. Total, $510.85.

Foreign Missions — Taylorville, $21; Rose Hill, $50; Carthage, $20; Trenton, $40; Enontta, $26; Vossburg and H., $50; Raleigh, $25; Lake, $33.35; Montrose, $25; Morton and P., $60; Shiloh, $50; Harperville, $18; Newton and Hickory, $30; Ellisville station, $16.35; Ellisville circuit, $9.75; Laurel: Main Street, $30; Forest, $12.50; Walnut Grove, $18; Scott, $18; Decatur, $15; but gives no credit to Laurel: Fifth Avenue and Kingston; Neshoba, Edinburg, or Indian Mission. Total, $565.95.

Domestic Missions — Taylorville, $4.75; Rose Hill, $30; Ellisville circuit, $7; Vossburg and H., $52; Lake, $13; Montrose, $10; Morton and P., $36; Shiloh, $25; Harperville, $8; Newton and H., $20; Forest, $12.50; Laurel: Fifth Ave. and K, $2.50; Enontta, $20; Laurel: Main Street, $20; Trenton, $8; Walnut Grove, $10; Scott, $10; Decatur, $9; Carthage, $2; but gives no credit to Raleigh, Ellisville station, Neshoba, Edinburg, or Indian Mission. Total, $299.75.

According to Bro. Thornton's figures, the payments by districts on the Conference Claimants' Fund have been as follows: Forest, $510.85; Seashore, $390; Brookhaven, $170; Jackson, $152.25; Meridian, $102.45; Natchez $90.70; Vicksburg, $37.

According to figures of T. A. Holloman, treasurer Conference Board of Extension, the following amounts have been received by him: Seashore district, M. A. Thurman, $16; W. L. Hightower, $15; T. J. O'Neil, $15. Forest district, G. S. Harmon, $21. Natchez district, A. D. Miller, $5.

We still lead all the other districts in our collections for missions, and need only to be patiently and intelligently persistent in our efforts to pay every assessment in full. Let us do it, brethren! Yours faithfully,

T. L. MELLEN.

Dr. D. M. Bye Co., Dallas, Texas:

DEAR SIRS—Father was doing as well as could be expected, applying your Oils daily according to directions. Every one who saw him when and before he commenced using the Oils were really astonished to see how fast the sore was healing. Even doctors could not but think and said it was going to be a cure, seeing how fast it was healing. The most of the "eat out part" was filled. The old man, 83 years old, was so glad; even got a looking glass to look at his lip. All of us, the family, felt so happy to see him getting well so fast, when, after eighteen days treatment, my father was death struck with pneumonia on both lungs. He lived but seven days. We all believe that had he not taken pneumonia, the one month's treatment of your Oils and Tonic would have cured him. We have delayed in writing on account of so many sick ones in the house, but we remain thankful for your advertisement in the Times-Democrat, and if I should see any one suffering from such a miserable affliction, I will surely let them know what you can do and what you have proved to us. I would consider it a sin not to let others know of it. I remain, your friend, Eloi Vidrine's son.

A Great Revival.

DEAR DOCTOR: We closed on Sunday night, last, a most remarkable meeting at McComb City, Miss I assisted the pastor, Rev. J. W. Chambers. The meeting ran two weeks and was of great power. The visible results were one hundred and twenty five professions of conversion, forty additions to the church and the church greatly revived In many respects, it was a remarkable meeting. The Lord was with us in great power. All praise and glory to him! We are indebted to Bro B. F. Lewis, of Magnolia, for valuable assistance rendered both in the pulpit and out. It is a great pleasure to work with such godly pastors as Bros. Chambers and Lewis. Brother Chambers certainly has made a most remarkable showing in the two years that he has been on the McComb charge. He has the work very well in hand. He has had 225 conversions and 133 accessions this year. He has built one new church, which has to be enlarged right away to accommodate the people. This church is located in South McComb, in a rapidly growing section of the city. He has in contemplation another church-building in the eastern section of the city. He also has plans for building a large $12,000 brick church in the central portion of the city, which is badly needed. Just think of it! A town of 6,000 people (and growing all the time), and not a brick church it it! Brother Chambers is in great favor among his people, and what he says and plans goes with them. Under such leadership McComb will become ere long a great center of religious activity.

It has been a long time since I have written anything for publication. I assure you that I have not been idle all this time. In the last nine years I have preached over a great many States and Territories. The good Lord has blessed my efforts beyond my most sanguine expectations. He has given me nearly seven thousand souls added to the church, and many thousand more converted to God; for which I most certainly praise him. I have had wonderful opportunities for work, which I have tried to improve. We have had many remarkable manifestations of divine power; direct answers to prayer innumerable. I can joyously say, 'One day in the service of the Lord is more than a thousand." I never was more in love with the work than I am at present.

May the Lord bless you, Doctor, and the ADVOCATE.

Your fellow-workman in God's vineyard, JAS. J. SMYLIE.

How a Woman Paid Her Debts.

I am out of debt, thanks to the Dish-washer business. In the past three months I have made $600 selling Dish-washers. I never saw anything sell so easily. Every family needs a Dish-washer, and will buy one when shown how beautifully it will wash and dry the family dishes in two minutes. I sell from my own house. Each Dish-washer sold brings me many orders. The dishes are washed without wetting the hands. That is why ladies want the Dish-washer. I give my experience for the benefit of anyone who may wish to make money easily. I buy my Dish-washers from the Mound City Dish-Washer Co., St. Louis, Mo. Write them for particulars. They will start you in business in your own home. L. A. C.

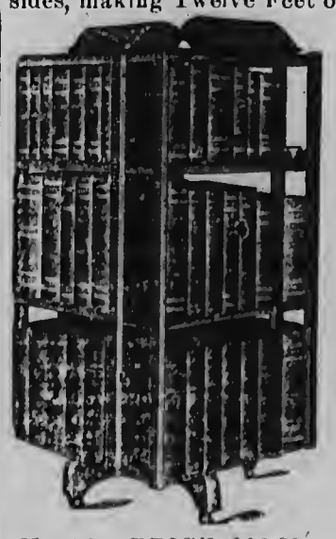
THE

Marsh Revolving Book-Case

DESCRIPTION.

DIMENSIONS.—This Case is 36x18x18. Height, 40 inches. Has three shelves; each has one foot of book space on each of four sides, making Twelve Feet of shelf room.



No. 18. PRICE $10.00.

ITS CAPACITY.—This Case will admit the entire Encyclopedia Britannica on the lower shelf, and on all about one hundred volumes of Law, Medical or Miscellaneous Works.

TOP.—Can be used as a Dictionary, Bible, Atlas, Directory, or Dun and Bradstreet Holder, or other heavy volume. Nothing made for these purposes can be more substantial or complete.

SLATS.—The side pieces or Slats are of Oak, embossed and corrugated, and present a handsome appearance. They are fastened to the Shelves, each by 8 nails, and are firm and rigid under any weight of books the Case contains.

MATERIAL AND FINISH.—This Case is made from selected, thoroughly seasoned Oak or Ash, sanded perfectly smooth on all sides, and finished in Antique Oak, rendering it an ornament to Office, Library or Parlor.

THE BASE is of a handsome design; is capable of sustaining a weight of from Five Hundred to One Thousand Pounds; is provided with Castors, and on which the Case revolves easily, and is practically everlasting.

It is the first time in the history of Revolving Book Cases one has been produced so well adapted to the wants of Home and Profession, so handsome and substantial, and at such a Low Price.

HOW SHIPPED.

As a Great Saving in Express or Freight Charges, this Case is shipped knocked down, or in pieces, and thus compressed to package size, and goes by Freight as Second Class, or by Express at Half what it would if set up. Wrapped in heavy paper, it makes a thirty-pound package, and thus can be safely sent anywhere.

Directions for putting together accompany each Case.

We will furnish the above Revolving Book-Case and ten yearly subscriptions to the ADVOCATE (new or renewal) to anyone for $20, or we will sell you the Case alone for $10 cash.

MARSH Reading Stand and Revolving Book-Case.

No. 5. Price, $7.00.

ADJUSTABLE TOP.—Is 14x18 inches; large and strong enough to hold your Dictionary, Directory, Dun, Bradstreet, Bible, Atlas, or any heavy volume, at any desired angle. It can be revolved and adjusted when reading so as to always throw the strongest light on the pages. You can thus avoid the strain on your eyes inevitable when holding a book in your hand or on a level table. It is made of Oak, and has on one edge a Rest to keep books from sliding off.

REVOLVING CASE.—This case is 15x15x12 inches. The shelves are Oak or Ash, finished on both sides and on all edges, and have 9 inches of book space on four sides, or 3 feet in all, and room enough for reference books of daily use. Many books may also be placed on the upper shelf. In all twenty to thirty volumes, law size, can be put in it. The eight oak slats are attached by four nails each, making the Case very substantial as well as ornamental.

CASTINGS connecting the Top and Case are finished in black enamel, and of sufficient strength to last a lifetime.

PIPE, POST and LEGS.—The three legs are attached by round-headed screws to the turned post. Into this post is forced an iron pipe, which runs up through the Case, and to which the castings at the top are attached. Around this pipe the Case revolves

As a Home, Office or Library article, it is said, its equal does not exist. The accuracy of this statement can be confirmed by unsolicited letters of the highest commendation from thousands of Ministers, Attorneys, Physicians, Government, State and County Officials, Bankers and Business Men. Over 50,000 have been sold in the United States, and orders now come for large lots from England and other foreign countries.

HOW FINISHED.—It is handsomely finished in Antique Oak, and an ornament to any Office, Library or Parlor.

AS A GIFT.—Nothing made is more suitable to present to a friend, or as a Wedding or Birthday Gift, than this Stand.

HOW SHIPPED.—This Stand is sent knocked down, wrapped in heavy paper, making a package of 20 pounds. By Freight it goes as second class, and at about half what it would cost if sent set up. Plain directions for putting together accompany each Stand.

We will furnish the above Revolving Book-Case and seven yearly subscriptions to the ADVOCATE (new or renewal) to anyone for $11, or we will sell you the case alone for $7 cash.

WHITWORTH COLLEGE.

In reference to the present prosperous condition of Whitworth College, Mrs. J. B. Catchings, of Georgetown, Miss., who has been entering a daughter or granddaughter every year, and attending the opening in person, has the following to say: "I have been coming here for twenty-seven years, and I hardly remember ever seeing so many girls at the college upon the day before the opening; and I am certainly highly pleased with the changes that have been made upon the grounds and the improvements upon the buildings. Formerly, when I came, it was necessary to walk all around the buildings in order to get into the grounds. There is nothing like beautifying a college campus."

Hon. A. C. McNair, a resident attorney of Brookhaven, and a trustee of the college, a few days ago visited the institution, and made the following authoritative statement: "This is the most successful session that the college has had since three years before the death of Dr. Johnson."

To Prove what SWAMP-ROOT, the Great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy, will do for YOU, Every Reader of "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" May Have a Sample Bottle FREE.

DR. KILMER & CO., Binghamton, N. Y.

GENTLEMEN :—In justice to yon, I feel it is my duty to send you an acknowledgement of the receipt of the sample bottle of Swamp-Root, you so kindly sent me. I had been out of health for the past five years with kidney and bladder trouble. Had our best physicians prescribe for me. They would relieve me for the time being, but the old complaint would in a short time return again. I sent for a sample bottle of Swamp-Root and I found it did me a world of good. Since then I have taken elght small bottles, bought at my drug store, and I consider myself perfectly cured. It seemed as though my back wonld breik in two after stooping. I do not have the smarting and irritation, nor do I have to get up during the night to urinate as I formerly did, three and four times a night, but now sleep the sleep of peace. My back is all right again, and in every way I am a new man. Two of my brother officers are still nsing Swamp-Root. They, like myself, can not say too much in praise of it. It is a boon to mankind. We recommend it to all who are snffering from kidney and bladder diseases.

My brother officers (whose signatnres accompany this letter) as well as myself, thank you for the blessing yon have brought to the human race in the compounding of Swamp-Root.

We remain, Yours very truly,

Police Officers of Greater New York. { JAMES COOK, 58th Precinct. HUGH E. BOYLE, 65th Precinct. JOHN J. BODKIN, 58th Precinct.

If yon are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the famous new discovery, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, becanse as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for many kinds of diseases, and if permitted to continue much suffering with fatal results are sure to follow. Kidney tronble irritates the nerves, makes you dizzy, restless, sleepless and irritable. Makes you pass water often during the day, and obliges you to get up many times during the night. Unhealthy kidneys cause rheumatism, gravel, catarrh of the bladder, pain or dull ache in the back, joints and muscles; makes your head ache and back ache, causes indigestion, stomach and liver trouble; you get a sallow, yellow complexion, makes you feel as though yon had heart trouble; you may have plenty of ambition, bnt no strength; get weak and wasie away.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is nsed in the leading hospitals, recommended by physicians in their private practice; and is taken by doctors themselves, because they recognize in it the greatest and most anccessful remedy that science has ever been able to compound.

If you are already convinced that Swamp Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

EDITORIAL NOTICE—Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, is so remarkably successful that a special arrangement has been made by which all of our readers who have not already tried it may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail. Also a book telling all about kidney and bladder troubles and containing many of the thonsands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women cnred by Swamp-Root. In writing be sure and mention reading this generous offer in NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE when sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Hungry for Kisses.

BY IDA T. THURSTON.

Two young girls had gone to the orphan asylum one Sabbath afternoon to teach in the Sabbath-school there as substitutes for regular teachers who were absent. One of them taught the infant class; and, when the lesson was over, a little blue-eyed tot caught hold of the girl's dress, and, looking up, whispered pleadingly, "Please, teacher, won't you kiss me?"

"To be sure I will; you dear baby!" the girl cried; and, dropping down on one of the low benches, she drew the child close and kissed her again and again. In an instant the others swarmed about, boys and girls alike holding up hungry faces for kisses. The girl's eyes filled with quick tears as she looked into the eager little faces.

Her friend, who had taught an older class, stood at the door of the infant room, looking on, half-laughing, half-impatient.

"Do come along, Helen," she called at last; and, as Helen gently put aside the little warm, clinging fingers and joined her, the other girl exclaimed with a touch of scorn: "I don't see how you could have all those mussy little things hugging and kissing you. See how they've tumbled your dress!"

Helen glanced down at her dress; it surely had suffered from the little loving hands, but her eyes were shining through a mist of tears as she answered gently, "You know they have no mothers to kiss them, Gertie."

Somehow Gertie could find no answer for that; and, as the two reached the street, Helen went on, "Did yon notice Sadie Burns, the little brown eyed thing with the blue veins on her forehead?"

"The one that clung to your dress to the last minute?"

"Yes, that was Sadie. The matron told me that one day when Sadie was sick a lady who is very fond of her, and who often visits at the asylum, came to see her, and brought a little puppy that she thonght would amuse her. Of course the child was delighted with the puppy, and at last the lady said to her, 'If you could have what you want most, all for yourself, Sadie, what would it be?'

"She thonght that the little thing wonld want the puppy, and she meant to give it to her if the matron was willing; bnt Sadie put the dog down at once, and, stepping close to the lady, leaned on her knee and, looking up at her with those big, solemn brown eyes, she said, 'I'd like most of anything to sit in your lap a few minutes, just as if I was your own little girl."

Gertie turned impulsively to her friend. "I never imagined that they felt so, Helen," she cried, remorsefully.

"They don't all, of course," Helen answered; "but I know that some do, and I can't bear to think of little children going hungry for kisses. I can't give them mother kisses, but I do the best I can, even if my dress does snffer a little."—Christian Endeavor World.

The Story of a Sun-Dial.

An interesting story is told by the Philadelphia Times of an old sun-dial in Pennsylvania. In the first part of the last century an Irish emigrant, named Porter, settled near Philadelphia. Among his sons was one named Andrew, whom he tried to make into a farmer, and then, like his brothers, into a carpenter. But Andrew would have nothing to do with the plow or the plane. He hid in corners, poring over some mathematical books that had come into his possession.

One day he found the design of a sun-dial in one of them, and resolved to make one. He walked eight miles to a soapstone quarry, found a slab, and carried it home on his back. Full of zeal, he went to his brothers' shop and used their saws and chisels in his work. When they came home in the evening, the dial was finished. Andrew was triumphant; but every tool in the shop was nearly or quite ruined. They drove him into the street in a fury of anger and contempt.

His father, now convinced that he was an idle, good-for-nothing, who would never fully earn his bread, bade him go and fit himself for school-teaching, which he called the "lazy-man's work."

Andrew gave himself to hard study for the Summer, and then went to the astronomer, David Rittenhouse, and asked him to lend him a book on conic sections.

"How long have you studied mathematics?" demanded the great man.

"Three months."

But, after asking the boy a few questions, he not only lent him the book, but advised him not to waste his time in the country, but go to Philadelphia and open a mathematical school.

This poor farm boy was afterward General Andrew Porter, an officer in the War of the Revolution, and an authority on mathematical science in the young republic.

"There are plenty of farm boys who now dislike farm work. It wouldn't be wise to infer that because of this indolent disposition they are Andrew Porters in embryo. An easy basis of judgment is to note the use they make of their idle time. Do they give it to conic sections or to base ball?—Selected.

"A Better Way" for Yeast.

Every time I take up this paper I think of the many women spending half a day or more boiling and mashing potatoes, stewing hops and having such a time making yeast. I want you to know a much better way. I have tried all ways, and distilled yeast is brought to my door every week, but my household thinks no bread is quite so nice as that made with potato yeast. It surely makes whiter bread and keeps it more moist. Here is my recipe: Four good-sized potatoes uncooked, pared and grated, two heaping tablespoons sugar, one heaping tablespoon salt. Have ready boiling water; wet the mixture first with cold water, then add two quarts boiling water. Put on the stove till thoroughly scalded, then remove and set away to cool. [I pour mine in the jar.] When lukewarm add two cents worth of yeast; it will rise as white as milk. Then set on ice or in a suitable place. When you have once made it, save a good sized cupful and it will raise your next new yeast. It will keep four weeks in winter.

I have a friend who on leaving home to keep house for herself took some yeast made like this, and each time she made yeast she kept a little of the old to raise the new with, so that she really had the identical yeast she commenced with for twenty years. Each time she would empty the jar thoroughly, clean it, and then return the yeast to its accustomed place. I make my bread of water. I do not care for milk for bread. I like a nice bread flour. Allow one pint potato yeast for four loaves or more. Make the bread up at night, kneading nearly all that bread requires. In the morning get it ready for the tins, working it mostly with the hands. Pulling makes lighter bread than kneading. I put two small loaves in each tin, as I find that the bread rises better this way.—Aunt Susan.

A Beautiful Thought.

Professor Drummond tells the story of a little girl who once said to her father:

"Papa, I want you to say something to God for me, something I want to tell him very much. I have such a little voice that I don't think he could hear it away up in heaven; but you have a big man's voice, and he will be sure to hear you."

The father took the little girl in his arms and told her that, even though God were at that moment surrounded by all his holy angels, sounding on their golden harps, and singing to him one of the grandest and sweetest songs of praise ever heard in heaven, he was sure he would say to them: "Hush, stop the singing for a little while. There's a little girl, away down on earth, who wants to whisper something in my ear."

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

A woman's discovery FREE

By many years of constant study and experiments, I have perfected a simple, harmless vegetable remedy that will quickly cure all female diseases, as well as the piles It is nature's own remedy, and will not only relieve, but will absolutely thoroughly and permanently cure the ailments peculiar to women, such as falling of the womb, leucorrhea [whites], displacements, ulceration, granulation, painful or scanty periods, irregular menstruation and all the pelvic ills of women. It positively cures rectal ulcers, piles, hemorrhoids, fistula, itching, blind or bleeding piles in either sex. It cures promptly, privately, and permanently without the repugnant methods in general use by physicians. You can escape embarrassing examinations, avoid humiliating exposures, cheat the surgeon's knife out of baptism in your blood.

The treatment is so simple, mild and effectual that it will not interfere with your work or occupation. Thousands and thousands of letters are being received from grateful persons from all parts of the world who have been cured by the use of this remedy. The first package is free. send for it—send to-day. I know that a fair trial of it will result in your becoming its enthusiastic advocate and friend. With it I will send literature of interest and value. Do not neglect this opportunity to get cured yourself and be in a position to advise ailing friends.

WM. J. SARTOR was born Jan. 27, 1881, near Randle Hill, Jasper county, Miss., and died Sept. 3, 1902, at Montrose. He was the eldest son of T. J. and Mrs. Elizabeth Sartor, who, together with two brothers and five sisters, survive to mourn their loss. Willie has always been known as a good boy, and all who knew him loved him. Cheerful and bright at all times, he was an inspiration and a blessing to his family and friends. Well does the writer remember the last words and final grasp of the hand on the morning of the first day of September, when leaving him seemingly on the road to rapid recovery; but in the providence of God he was called up higher. His last and final testimony, when told that he could live no longer, was, "I am ready." Thank God he is to-day a member of the great choir around the eternal throne in heaven. Willie joined the church in 1894 under the preaching of Rev. R. Bradley, and up to his death lived a consistent Christian life. Loyal to his church and pastor, his note-book shows that as early as January he paid all his assessments. While not a member of this church and Sunday-school at the time of his death, yet, owing to the fact that he was reared in our school and church, on motion, the superintendent of Montrose Methodist Sunday-school appointed the writer to draw up suitable resolutions of respect to our departed brother. They were presented as follows:

Resolved, That in his death we have lost one of our best young men—one who was always faithful and true to all the duties placed upon him by the church and Sunday-school, thus setting a fitting example to be followed by those of us who survive him.

Resolved, That, as a son, he was tender and thoughtful of a kind father, and his tender devotion to mother knew no bounds; that a better or more loyal and loving brother never lived.

Resolved, That though our loss, as a school, is great, we recognize the greater loss of the bereaved family and loved ones. We bow in humble submission to the will of God, and extend to the bereaved family our profound and deepest sympathy, and pray God to sustain them through this, their sore bereavement, and help them to realize that their loss is his eternal gain.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be furnished to the bereaved family, and that the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE be requested to publish same.

P. L. BLACKWELL,
For Sunday-school.

MRS. FANNIE MCCOMB RUSS was born in New Orleans, June 26, 1875. She was a daughter of B. O. L. Rayne and Georgiana Jones, both of whom had preceded her into the world beyond. She was married to Mr. John D. Russ, of New Orleans, June 24, 1899, and died in Victoria, Texas, on Sept. 17, 1902. Her life was remarkable in the fact that she attained unto a complete and well-rounded character in its short term of twenty-seven years. She possessed unusual poise of character and soundness of judgment. Her self-control enabled her to sustain burdens and meet responsibilities with greater success and fortitude than can usually be found in those of her years. Personally, she was very attractive in both appearance and manner. Her quiet dignity was radiant with her cheerful spirit. She was a nature to put heart into all about her. It was a pleasure to know her. Strangers soon felt the charm of her character, and appreciated the genuineness of her soul. Her religious life was symmetrical. Religion was the natural and inevitable atmosphere of the soul's higher life. There was steady growth in her Christian character. No sudden or wide oscillations marked her experience. She grew in knowledge, devoutness, and power. The Christian graces were all in evidence. No one aspect of the Christian life was magnified at the expense of others. She worked well. Her fidelity in any department of church work was conspicuous. Only a short time before her death she conducted a ladies' prayer meeting with unusual grace and power. Her life leaves the fragrance of genuine goodness and a memory rich with the freshness of consecrated youth. Her domestic life was beautiful and holy. Her short married life was joyous and supremely happy. As a wife, she made her home an example of the Christian ideal. Herself the center, around her gathered a devoted husband, the dear ones of her own blood, and her two children, making a circle happy and blessed in the holy influence of her life. She has gone, but her life has made its profound impression. Her character and work live after her. The Master's call was at an hour when every hope was raised that recovery was coming. In a few minutes the earthly house was vacant, and her pure spirit returned to God. She lived in Christ. For such there is no death.

F. N. PARKER.

LAWRENCE LEE BROWN was born in Tuscaloosa, Ala., April 23, 1825, and died at his home in Booneville, Miss., Sept 25, 1902. Of the three-fourths of a century which he lived he gave fifty years to God's service in the M. E. Church, South. He was converted in a revival meeting at Carolina Church, near which he then lived, and at the suggestion of Rev. P. R. Hoyle, who was his warm and personal friend, joined the church there. He accepted the conditions of membership heartily, and earnestly undertook to perform the duties expected of him. He would pray in public when asked. The writer only knew Bro. Brown for a few months, but found him faithful, a regular attendant upon the preaching of the Word, frequently out at night services, although old and afflicted. His last illness continued less than two days. When taken ill he remarked that this, doubtless, would close his earthly career, and that the Lord had been good to him to bless and spare him; hence he was ready to go at God's call. His remains were laid to rest in the cemetery at Booneville, Miss., with funeral service conducted by his pastor, assisted by Rev. P. R. Hoyle, and with Masonic honors.

BEN P. JACO, P. C.

LELAND STANFORD GARDNER was born near Booneville, Miss., Nov. 21, 1901, and departed this life on Sunday, Sept. 28, 1902. He was ill several days, and suffered a great deal. In spite of the best medical skill and the gentle ministrations of loving hands, the grim monster took him away. Thus the only child of devoted parents was torn from their embrace, and a home made sad and lonely. How bitter the grief as we laid the little one to rest in the Osborne Cemetery! How could parents thus leave their precious ones, unless they could expect to meet them again in a brighter world! In hope of the resurrection the writer committed the little body to the ground and his spirit to God in a suitable burial service, and now prays God's blessing upon the bereaved ones.

HAPPY HENS MEAN PROFIT!

"BOSWELL'S 20th CENTURY POULTRY HOUSE" is a little book which describes the most convenient, practical, and well-appointed hen-house ever devised—gives plans, with precise instructions for building. Cheap to build, but so planned as to revolutionize poultry-keeping. Thousands cared for with ease. The author has the house in practical operation. Lice and mites cannot exist in this house. Doubles winter egg yield, by making hens happy. Book tells how to handle hens in winter, gives positive ration for winter eggs, and other things you ought to know about hens. Order at once, or you will surely wish you had when cold weather comes to nip your egg yield. PRICE, FIFTY CENTS.

MATHUSHEK—WERLEIN.

"Mathushek and Werlein" make quite a musical combination. Mathushek needs no introdnotion in New Orleans or the surrounding country no more than does the name, "Werlein," to the readers of the ADVOCATE. What piano house was it your fathers saw so often advertised in the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE "away back yonder just after the close of the war?" Was it not the Werlein House? This house was established almost as far back as the old ADVOCATE—in the fifties—and carries a clear record of honorable business dealing. However, you might well take this for granted, since it has stood the test of time, for, you know, if a thing be not good, it can not stand. But, let's get back to the subject more closely. Werlein wants to sell you a Mathushek piano, and save you just about one hundred dollars in clear cash.

The Mathushek will make music for several generations, because of its fine construction; repairs are seldom needed. It has been the leader of all pianos in the South for thirty years. It is damp proof, especially built for this climate. There is something about the tone of the Mathushek Piano that defies description. That exquisite liquid purity of tone that is found in this piano is a thing of wonder to musicians and piano men alike. Unless your means are quite limited, it is well to look as high as possible in making a selection of a piano even as high as the Mathushek. Of course, the Mathushek costs more than most pianos, but it gives ever so much more—artistic satisfaction for a life-time, perfect tone, strength, power, beauty; all the real music lover enjoys and demands.

There are hundreds of families who have delayed the purchase of a piano until they can afford a Mathushek, being unwilling to be satisfied with other than the best.

The matter of cost has less to do now than formerly. The Werlein Mathushek Club plan makes it easy to buy. There is absolutely one price and the number is limited.

For the past six months the Werleins have continuously urged the Mathushek Piano Manufacturing Co. to furnish them one hundred styles 1 and 2's, to be used for a special purpose—to sell under their club plan at a price within the reach of all. They finally succeeded, and have received the first shipment.

Marketing one hundred high grade and expensive pianos at a popular price means that every dollar of unnecessary expense must be avoided.

This can be accomplished under their club plan, and especially as they have been favored with some little concession in price by giving the factory so large an order. Few houses would give a $30,000 order for pianos of so high a grade to be delivered before Jan. 1. But they know the piano and the people who want them, and the price, $343 to club members—the regular price being $430 to $460—would insure a quick disposal of the entire lot.

Terms to club members—$343 cash, or $25 cash and $2.25 a week, or $10 a month, with 6 per cent. interest.

Stool and scarf free with each piano

Warranted for seven years.

Carefully consider the unusual opportunity of securing a Mathushek Piano, and call or send in your order as early as possible to Philip Werlein, Ltd., 614-616 Canal street, New Orleans, and be sure you address your letter to the ADVOCATE office department.

A Chance to Make Money.

I have been selling Perfumes for the past six months. I make them myself at home and sell to friends and neighbors. Have made $710. Everybody buys a bottle. For 50 cts worth of material I make Perfumes that would cost $1 in drug stores I also sold 125 formulas for making perfumes at $1 each.

I first made it for my own use only, but the curiosity of friends as to where I procured such exquisite odors, prompted me to sell it. I clear from $25 to $35 per week. I do not canvass; people come and send to me for the perfumes. Any intelligent person can do as well as I do. For 42 cts. in stamps I will send you the formula for making all kinds of perfumes and sample bottle prepaid. I will also help you get started in the business. MARCHA FRANCIS

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union has just lately held its twenty-ninth annual session in Portland, Maine. This is one of the great organizations of the country, "sometimes called the Woman's Auxiliary to the United States Government." Whether an auxiliary or not, it keeps its eyes on the government, and, doubtless, makes its power felt. Mrs. Stevens, the president, in her annual address, had the following in reference to the army canteen: "At our last convention we rejoiced over the re-enactment of the Anti-Canteen Law, notwithstanding the empty threats and prophecies that it would be reversed, and we then resolved to urge upon Congress the necessity of appropriating a sufficient fund to provide for the soldier a comfortable amusement-room and an improved ration. The W. C. T. Unions of this country have faithfully lived up to this resolution, and we have great reason to be glad for the passage, last Spring, of the amendment to the Army Bill, appropriating $500,000 for this purpose for the first year. We believe this amount will be increased year after year as the plan develops and the wisdom of such a measure is proven. There is ample evidence that the law prohibiting liquor selling in the army canteen is accomplishing all that its advocates had hoped. Aside from the direct benefit to the soldier, public attention has been called to the desirability of the government encouraging or even requiring total abstinence of its employees, the same as many of the most successful corporations in the country now demand of their employees." Mrs. Stevens' testimony as to the value of the Anti-Canteen Law is worth more than the testimony of all the up-starts in the army.

A large amount of money, said to be due by the Mexican Government to the Roman Catholics of California, has been the subject of contention for many years. It was finally agreed to arbitrate the matter, and it was carried to the Arbitration Court at the Hague. This court unanimously decided against Mexico, condemning the government to pay the United States, in favor of the Roman Catholics of California, the full amount of the claim—$1,420,682.67—in Mexican currency. The money in question is called the "Pious Fund"—a fund established in 1697 for the support of Roman Catholic missions in California. The country then belonged to Spain. In 1767 the Jesuits, who held the fund in trust, were expelled by Spain from Mexico and California. Spain took the property and administered the fund through a commission. When Mexico achieved independence she succeeded to the trust and administered the fund, applying the proceeds to the missions. But when California was ceded to the United States, Mexico ceased to pay the Catholics of California their portion of the interest. The case was arbitrated, and Mexico paid the interest from 1848 to 1869, then ceased again. The amount due from 1869 to the present date is the sum in dispute. This Mexico will probably pay.

The press dispatches bring the news of the agreement to finally evacuate Shanghai. It was gladly received at the State Department. The United States Government some time ago, at the instance of the Chinese Government, began quietly, but persistently, to bring pressure to bear upon the powers concerned in the occupation of the place to evacuate it in conformity with the stipulations of the treaty of Peking. Not having participated directly in the occupation, it was necessary for the United States to move discreetly in approaching the other nations on this subject. But the advances were well received, and it soon appeared that the only difficulty in bringing about the desired evacuation was the indisposition of each of the occupying powers to take the initiative. The last to hold out was England, and as lately as last month it was stated she was objecting simply for the purpose of making sure of getting a fair share of trade advantages in the exploitation of the Yang Tse Valley. It is gathered from the advices received from Shanghai that this object has now been secured, and it is, of course, certain, notwithstanding the fact that the United States does not sign the treaty of evacuation, that we will participate in these advantages. Such is the news from Washington as we take it from the Times-Democrat.

The way now seems open for the construction of the Panama Canal. Attorney General Knox, who went to Paris for the purpose of investigating the title, which was thought to be clouded, has reported that it is clear. This removes a difficulty which was thought to be insuperable. The trouble now, if any, will be to make satisfactory terms with Colombia. Recent advices are to the effect that that government is dissatisfied with the present treaty, which proposes compensation to the amount of $7,000,000. Colombia wants $10,000,000. The government further contends that it has no constitutional authority to alienate any of its territory, but proposes to satisfy the United States by giving a hundred-year lease, with privilege of renewing at the end of the time. Whether the terms will be accepted remains to be seen.

A coal strike also exists in France, and serious disturbances have occurred. Soldiers were called into requisition, and they were compelled to charge the rioters, some of whom were killed and others wounded. One of the sympathizers, having in mind the action of President Roosevelt, and his success in bringing about the settlement of the coal strike in Pennsylvania, has asked the government of France to intervene and end the strike, urging as an argument that the companies could not resist if the government gave the Premier moral authority to arbitrate. The Premier replied: "The government will strive to bring about a favorable solution of the labor questions, and is willing to intervene in order to urge a more equitable solution of the strike, which is causing great misery." This was received with cheers. The government, by a vote of 375 to 161, invited the president of the council to "use all his influence to cause both parties to accept arbitration."

Notes from the District.

BY REV. T. B. HOLLOMAN, D. D.

With the third round closed the season of protracted meetings, which resulted in gracious revivals in some instances, and in every case quickened the pulse of the local church. Rev. J. B. Culpepper's meeting, under the auspices of First Church, Jackson, resulted in the addition of many to the church, and a general revival of the membership.

The good people of Yazoo City not only granted their pastor a month's vacation, but generously supplied the means for a trip to the mountains of Virginia, from whence he returns with new blood in his veins, or, rather, an increase of iron in his blood, and ready for any work the Bishop may see fit to put upon him. Happy, indeed, is that man who shall take up the work which he lays down!

During the quarter Bro. W. W. Graves, of the Westville charge, has suffered greatly in the flesh, having been down with typhoid fever for over forty days. At one time he lingered as upon the bank, but our merciful Father returned him to his loved employ, and he is on the way to a rapid recovery. The brethren of his charge were thoughtful and kind.

Bros. Leggett and Hull have left us during the quarter to accept work in the Denver Conference. We can ill afford to lose two such men in one year from our ranks, but what is our loss, we feel sure, will prove a great gain to our Western work.

With the consent and approval of the presiding elder, Bros. J. R. Jones and Campbell took a week off to appear before their committee for examination on their Conference course. They have returned to their fields prepared to give their undivided attention to raising the amounts assessed to their charges.

In several charges Rally Day has been observed, and in every instance has been successful.

Bro. Cavett, superintendent at First Church, Jackson, deserves honorable mention. For largeness of membership and greatness of zeal, his Sunday-school leads the district, if not the Conference, and the time is rapidly approaching—yes, now is—when he shall be accorded the place as the John R. Pepper of our Conference. True to the church and suggestions of those in authority, he is training the children in the strictest loyalty.

Bro. H. P. Lewis had arranged his Rally Day in connection with our Quarterly Conference at old Fannin. It was truly a great day. What an opportunity these occasions may prove for the training of the children in the cause of missions!

Decision Day and Rally Day! What value they should prove to our church! May they grow more and more in favor with our people!

The occasion at Fannin proved successful beyond the expectations of all. Bro. Lewis is finishing his third year on this circuit. His labors have been hard, and remuneration by no means in proportion; yet he is cheerful, and looking forward to another year with a spirit which we who are younger should emulate. I hesitate at this point; but of her who shares with him the sacrifices and toils of their itinerant life, too much can not be said. She is not only the queen in the parsonage, but also truly a mother in Israel. Herself deprived of a higher education, she resolved that her sons and daughters should be more fortunate, and no one but those nearest to her will ever know the sacrifices made to that end. Two sons have graduated at Millsaps, and two are in the Senior class at this time. "Where there is a will there is a way," has been clearly proven, and none need plead inability with such example as this before them.

You have already been informed of the fine opening of Millsaps College. Over two hundred boys on the first day, and others coming in up to this hour. It was my pleasure to conduct service a few mornings since, and, to state the case briefly, the chapel was literally full. Dr. Murrah is all smiles; the boys say his face looks as pleasing as the "full moon." He loves his boys, and the boys love him.

Bishop Galloway, and That Conference in Japan.

In the Christian Advocate (Nashville), of Oct. 16, there is an interesting letter from our Mississippi Bishop on "A Methodist Conference under the Japanese Flag." The following clipping is well worth our prayerful consideration:

"The great hour of the first day, if not of the entire session, was the Conference prayer meeting at four o'clock in the afternoon. It was a time of intense heart-searching, of humble confession, and of prayer for divine cleansing. There was the quiver of power in the tones of every voice, and in the tremulous notes of every consecration hymn. Missionaries and native preachers talked out of their burdened hearts, and prayed like the great prophet on the mountain for the fires of heaven to descend upon the altars of sacrifice. Almost every eye was a fountain of tears, and every face radiant with a glory from above. O, it was good to be there! How my heart burned within me as I sat among the Lord's prophets in a strange land! And when at last the entire Conference, as by a common impulse, knelt around the altar in a pledge and prayer of consecration, the windows of heaven seemed to swing wide open, and the voice of the Eternal to fall upon mortal ears. Then we lingered, one prayer following another, until I imagined the doorposts of the upper temple trembled because of our very violence of faith. Such a baptism of power I had never hoped to see and feel in a heathen land. Surely the day of a larger triumph will soon dawn upon all God's Israel in Japan, from the Kurile Mountains to far Formosa. When we moved reverently out of the little church the great sun was reclining behind the wooded mountains, and the twilight shadows were beginning to lengthen. It seemed a delightful, if not divine, impulse to go up into the mountain to rest a while, and looking down upon the bustling city and busy harbor and shimmering sea stretching far away, to wonder what mighty things will be wrought in the Orient when Japan is brought to Christ.

"The next afternoon we had a similar meeting of almost equal spiritual power. And the devotional service of each morning was a time of edification and enrichment. Thus to the closing moment on Tuesday afternoon, when the appointments were read, there was a conscious Presence guiding and presiding. You need not wonder, therefore, that there was oneness of spirit and harmony of view in all our deliberations. A more delightful Conference I do not remember to have attended in all our Israel. Everyone left for the work of another year feeling assured that it would witness many a gospel triumph."

Think of that "time of intense heart-searching, of humble confession, and of prayer for divine cleansing." Think of "the quiver of power in the tones of every voice, and in the tremulous notes of every consecration hymn." Think of "almost every eye" being "a fountain of tears, and every face radiant with a glory from above." Verily, it must have been "good to be there." And then "at last the entire Conference, as by a common impulse, knelt around the altar in a pledge and prayer of consecration." And they "lingered, one prayer following another." The good Bishop adds, "Such a baptism of power I had never hoped to see and feel in a heathen land."

But this was not all. "The next afternoon they had a similar meeting of almost equal spiritual power." "Thus to the closing moment . . . there was a conscious Presence guiding and presiding."

The question arises, Why can not we have such a time of refreshing from the presence of the Lord in our home Conferences?

W. B. LEWIS.

The Study of the Bible in the Public Schools.

The New York Sun, in an article, recently republished in the Press, on the Bible as a text book in the public schools, has this to say:

"It would be taught and studied as art teaches and studies the architecture and sculpture of ancient Greece—that is, as a beautiful human construction which intrinsically appeals to the cultivation of all times.

"The Bible would simply be put in place with other literary treasures handed down to us from a period when our English literature was purest and most vigorous in its simple directness.

"The generation of children before whom the Bible was put in that light would get a very different impression of it from that made on their forefathers, and it would not be to them so awe-inspiring."

It is taught the youth of the land at their mothers' knees, in the Sunday-schools, and from the pulpit, as the one and only fountain of divine wisdom to the world, and as giving the only means of salvation to fallen men, and surely a study of its beauties as a source of literary charm and inspiration would seemingly intensify their faith rather than to destroy. . . .

To argue that a study of the Bible, from a literary standpoint, weakens one's belief in the awe-inspiring, and dramatic occurrences and tragedies stated therein, is certainly a curious proposition to me, when its sublimity, its pure morality, and its finer strains of eloquence, all tend to emphasize the impression and intensify the belief that it is of divine origin.

It illustrates every variety of literary composition and figures of rhetoric; and not a sublime line from Shakespeare, the immortal literary genius, down, can be quoted, but that a parallel to it can be found in the Bible.

The individual who studies it thoroughly from a literary standpoint, as well as a spiritual one, can never doubt its inspiration, for he must be doubly fortified in his belief that human wisdom could not have produced it. And, then, why should it not be taught and read in our schools? At college, in our exercises in belles lettres, it was taught, and its beauties discussed and treasured, and the writer regards the study of same as the most important and valuable part of his education. It led to a continuous study of this priceless book, and opened a mine of both literary and spiritual wealth.

It's all bosh about destroying one's belief in the inspiration of the Bible by teaching it from a literary point. It is to confess that the present race are extremely weak, and that the lessons at our mother's knees and in the numerous Sunday-schools are all a farce. This reading of it intelligently in the schools would lead to a keener appreciation of the moral and spiritual instruction that would follow, and to a more ready, comprehensive grasp of all that is compassed in its inspired lines.

Who reads Shakespeare a dozen times and comprehends him? New beauties are discovered every time he is re-read, and stronger and more lasting impressions are made of his almost divine genius. And the young who have intelligent instruction in the reading of the Bible will, as they progress, have a better understanding of its beauties and truths, and a stronger faith in its inspiration. Who dares deny that the "penciling of the Holy Ghost" was more strongly and beautifully employed in the sorrows of Job than in the felicities of Solomon, and from a literary standpoint, as well as the sublime lessons it teaches, what book in all languages is comparable to it? Will it hurt our children to read it?

No wonder the great Hugo said that it was a great prose poem; and that Senator Ingalls, who somewhat doubted, should say that it was the greatest product of the human mind.

My observation is, that the constant reading of the Bible intensifies one's love of it, and its literary beauties become all the more fascinating and one's faith the stronger.

Nearly all of our great men are constant students of it from every standpoint. Does the study of it weaken their faith even after they have come in daily contact with the rough edges of life?

The youthful impressions hold good, and have kept countless thousands in the faith when the trying realities of life were violently testing their strength.

If we can't take our Bibles in the schools, through fear of wounding some one, or through fear of a pernicious influence, then we had best not talk of a perfect and elevating education. If the Bible is dangerous in our schools, it is dangerous at home; and where we can not carry it, we need not go, nor ask our friends to come.

In Nebraska recently the State Supreme Court handed down a decision forbidding the reading in the public schools of the Bible. In their written opinion the judges say that it does not express their personal inclination, but that the law prohibits anything that forms a part of the belief of sectarian denominations.

It is certainly refreshing to know that this puritanical law did not express their "personal inclination," especially in this, the twentieth century, that boasts of the highest known Christian civilization and tolerance. If we are giving millions to send this book into foreign lands to influence and change other modes of worship—modes of worship the antithesis of ours—then why should we hesitate to place the Bible as a text-book in our public schools, where the masses want it, and where it will reach a class that need it?

The Word of God, whereby his will is revealed to man, surely is the book to be everywhere, is the book of this world, and the only book that can appease and fully satisfy the hungry cravings of the human soul. It compasses all the necessities of human existence. It reveals the only method of salvation. It comprehends all time, embracing all learning, omits no moral duty, is the friend of the sick, the distressed, the mourning, and the poor. It glows and sparkles with all the priceless jewels that fell from the Master's lips, portrays him as the highest type of human manhood, and then thrillingly describes him upon the cross, where he died like a God to redeem fallen man.—Major John J. Hood, in Meridian Press.

BY AN ITINERANT.

SECTION XI.

The design of the covenant which God made with Abraham was to perpetuate and spread his truth among men. The covenanted people were of one special line of descent. In Gen. xvii Abraham pleads, "O that Ishmael might live before thee." God answers by a promise of great temporal good to Ishmael, but said, "My covenant will I establish with Isaac." Paul adheres to this, for he says to the Gentiles, "Now we, brethren, as Isaac was, are children of the promise." (Gal. iv, 28.) Mere carnal descent did not constitute anyone the "seed of Abraham." Ishmael was of the very blood of Abraham, yet not his "seed." The Galatians had none of Abraham's blood in them, "yet they were his seed." The relation was spiritual, and for spiritual purposes. God thus bound Abraham to keep and train his household as the people of Jehovah. By circumcising them, he was committed to this duty. This was to be perpetuated through all generations, and thus the truth about God was to be preserved in the world. And God's people, by these means, multiplied on the earth as they had not done before this covenant was made. This is significant. Let us note the three ages into which time may be divided:

1. Adam to Noah. Man, during this age, had personal communion with God; but there was no covenant imposing upon parents the duty of keeping and training their children for God. The result was heathenism in all the earth, except in the family of Noah.

2. From Noah to Abraham. After the flood came upon the apostate world, God started the race again in the family of righteous Noah; but still no covenant was given concerning the keeping and training of children. There was no token to remind parents and children of their obligation to be the Lord's. The result again was total apostasy, except, it seems, in the family of Abraham.

3. From Abraham to the present time. "Behold! the whole earth is full of the knowledge of God!" This result was wrought by the covenant of circumcision. This is history. But for this covenant, insuring the transmission of God's truth from parent to child, and compelling to it, by every sacred obligation, this world would have been heathenized a third time. But the covenant has been the preservation of a people for God; has kept alive the truth about God.

Says Mr. Hawes: "This same result is now secured by our covenant relations. Rejecters of this covenant scoff at the thought. But did scoffing ever turn truth into falsehood? They do not preach better than Enoch and Noah, and can not hold the world by preaching a pure gospel more securely than those first preachers to adults did. Simple knowledge of God, and preaching and worship, are not enough. From Adam to Noah, and from Noah to Abraham, men had these. Yet the world became heathenized in each dispensation. God's wisdom was to plant truth in the children of each generation, binding parents to do this—affixing the seal to their solemn oath by the covenant token. And thus true doctrine and true religion are preserved by those who adhere to the Abrahamic covenant. It is the 'balance wheel' of the world!"

One of the sins of those whom God "gave over to a reprobate mind" was "covenant breaking." (Rom. i, 31.) Give up this covenant, and men would again "change truth into a lie." By nature they do not like to retain the knowledge of God better than those of whom Paul writes in Romans.

Within the past six months I have taken the census of sixty-two different communities in different States, and, to my surprise, without an exception, find that the majority of mature persons out of the church in every community are Anti-Pedobaptist. This is indeed a sad commentary on the church of God. What is the church of God doing, that so many precious souls are thus jeopardized? Shall the "denominations," "sects," and "heretics" do better by the souls of men than the "true church?" The difference lies in the fact that Pedobaptists, both preachers and people, are in covenant, under seal, to teach the little children the statutes and commandments of God, and thus they are kept, and early surrender themselves to him. On the other hand, the Anti-Pedobaptists teach the children that they have no lot nor part in the church; hence the result as above stated. As to piety and spiritual life in the church, observation reveals to the inquirer that Methodism will measure up to the Anti-Pedobaptist, and give her many points in the comparison.

Whether the truth be palatable or not to the despisers of this covenant, it is yet true that they owe their existence to this covenant, and are dependent upon it for such purity of doctrine as may characterize them.

"Abolish the covenant they would, had they only the ability. But, thank God for our own hope and for theirs, they can not. And it is meet that for all who strike a blow to hurt this covenant the prayer be offered, 'Father, forgive them; they know not what they do.' So, then, let faith continue to give the token in baptism to 'unconscious babes,' and so recognize its obligations to keep in training a people for God. It is an act done towards God. So we accept our vows of duty. So we set our accepting seal to God's offer, 'I will be a God to thy seed after thee.' Those who would put this aside break off, so far as they can, the bonds from parents, and turn the children away from religious training. It is sad, sad work that they would make. But the God of Abraham lives to prevent it."

Need of Evangelists.

BY REV. W. R. WILLIAMS.

MR. EDITOR: Please let me say a few words in reply to "Leroy's" "Need of Evangelists." He says there are three thousand square miles of unoccupied country in the bounds of the Mississippi Conference that need the evangelist, for two reasons. If there is such a large country as he states without the gospel, I will admit this is a sad state of affairs. But should the next General Conference create the office of evangelist, would this country be furnished with the gospel by them? This I very much doubt. I have met in the past ten years a few that called themselves evangelists, but I have never found one of them out in the rural districts. They seem to be the last places under the sun for the twentieth-century so-called evangelists. They are hunting bigger game. Reduce the earnings of the evangelist to the salary of the average itinerant, and my opinion is, you will have solved the problem for all time to come. I knew one that received three thousand dollars for two months' work, while many of his brethren received from one hundred and fifty to five hundred for a whole year's hard work. One old faithful itinerant reported at our Conference, three years ago, that his circuit had paid him one hundred and fifty dollars for a hard year's work, while an evangelist came, and for two weeks' work received two hundred and fifty dollars. I believe Bishop Candler was right when he said he "did not care how much cackling evangelists did, that not one of the eggs would ever hatch, because there was no yellow in them."

"Leroy" says that some places down there have received aid from our Home Mission Board for at least twenty years. If twenty years' faithful work by an itinerant preacher fails to hatch anything, I fear there is no "yellow in the egg," and if there is none, what could an evangelist do with them? Nothing but cackle, that's all.

Where does "Leroy" get his idea that an evangelist is so far superior to any other Methodist preacher? When John Wesley came to America it was all unoccupied from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean, from the great Lakes to the Gulf. Where is she to day? Let "Leroy" answer. Not contented with America alone, she has outstripped civilization, crossed the Pacific, and has been planted firmly in Japan, China, India, Corea, and the Philippines. Across the Atlantic she has glided to Brazil, and is fast pervading all of South America. And this has all been done without the distinct office of evangelist. We have hundreds of young men preparing themselves for mission work. They are willing to go anywhere the church may send them as regular itinerant preachers. I do not think we need any other class distinct from what we have.

"Leroy" says that if a child twenty years old could not stand alone, we would conclude there was something the matter. Yes, there would be something the matter, not with the doctor, but the child: and if twenty years' treatment from a regular itinerant fails to make the child stand, I doubt whether twenty years' treatment from an evangelist would make him stand.

No, Bro. "Leroy;" you go to your next Conference, state to your Bishop and his cabinet these facts, show them the importance of these fields, and it goes without saying they will soon be accepted. I believe our present system is sufficient.

Our Church Literature.

BY REV. J. P. HANEY.

As a member of the M. E. Church, South, in order to learn the condition of my church, what she teaches as doctrines of the Bible, and as my rule of faith and practice; what she expects me to believe, and the way she expects me to act—in fact, in order to know what, by my church vows, taken before God and man, I am under obligation to believe and do—I must read her literature, and nowhere else will I find it.

In addition to the periodicals of the church, every member should have "Wesley's Notes on the New Testament," and get an occasional book on missions; every member should have "Missionary Issues of the Twentieth Century," and, of course, the latest copy of the Discipline. Now, there are a number of others I could mention as of almost imperative importance, but I mention these as first and most essential, and really indispensable to the properly equipped church member.

It is an acceded fact that what we read is one of the great factors or influences that make us what we are. Our thoughts (and a person, to say the least, is largely what they think) control our belief, this controls our words and deeds, which moulds our character, and this makes our destiny. Now, our thoughts, I say, are largely controlled by what we read; hence, what we read to a great extent makes us what we are. How careful, then, we should be in reference to what we read, and what our people read.

And, in conclusion, I want to say to you all, preachers and laymen, that as we have vowed to do so, it is our bounden duty to support and circulate our own literature—in fact, the destiny of our periodicals are in our hands. If we are honest and governed by principle, we must and will do all we can for their circulation by subscribing for and reading them ourselves, and insisting all we can on others doing the same. We can not afford, even a gentleman (to say nothing about religion), to take or circulate any other paper until we have circulated our own.

I want to say just here—and I am responsible for it anywhere—that any member of the church, preacher or what not (unless blinded with ignorance, or rocked to sleep by Satan), that will wantonly circulate, or cause to be circulated, any paper before in opposition to, or to the detriment of any periodical of his own church, is disloyal to his church, untrue to his vows and obligation, and ought to be exposed to the world in the severest type, and branded as they deserve, and will be when they receive that curse and sentence pronounced upon them in Rev. xxi, 8.

I have always been called conservative, and do try to be: but sometimes conservatism ceases to be a virtue, and it has at this point, for all manner of erroneous literature is being circulated in our country, and its influence should be met and exposed, for it hurts every interest of our church, and is doing untold damage to the welfare of precious and immortal souls.

To the Preachers of the Mississippi Conference.

DEAR BRETHREN: We are nearing the session of our Annual Conference. What we do must be done quickly. As president of the Board of Church Extension, we wish to call your attention to the claims of this Board upon you and your people. If you have seriously studied the subject of church extension, you are already convinced of its importance, and that this claim upon the generosity of your people stands second to none. Our work is to encourage and aid in the building of new churches and better churches. The church-house of any denomination is an expression of the strength and standing of that denomination in the community. If the house of worship is shabby and dilapidated, the impression is made that the denomination it represents is in like condition, especially in that community.

Again, the church-house stands for the doctrines of the denomination that builds it. It is a crystallization of denominational sentiment and doctrine, the concretion of things abstract. It is a voiceless, silent witness to the power of the gospel to save. The church-house is a conservator of the force and energies, of the faith and teachings of the church. We ask, What progress could Methodism make in Meridian or Jackson without houses of worship? Absolutely none. Other churches would gather the harvest of our sowing, or the fowls of the air would take away the seed before they could germinate. No church would make such an impracticable effort. This is the day of missions. Pew and pulpit are awakening to the importance of giving the Bread of Life to every man as never before since the days of the apostles, for which God be praised. But shall we forget other claims of equal importance? Shall we forget that the missionary, whether domestic or foreign, needs a house in which to preach, about which he may gather his forces, and in which to conserve his energies? We think not. Such a policy would be unwise and fruitless. Should not our presiding elders and pastors present and emphasize this phase of missionary work with the same earnestness that they do the sending of the missionary to preach the gospel? If they will consider the question prayerfully, we think they will see that the two are inseparable.

Let me urge you, dear brethren, to press this claim upon your people. If you will get the matter on your heart, you will have no trouble in laying it on the hearts of your people; and when this is done, you will have no trouble in bringing up this claim in full. But if you do not get enthused on this subject, be sure not to make it the dumping-ground for your deficits on other collections. We are going to need more money at our next Conference than we have for several years past. God help you to pray and work to collect every dollar of your extension assessments. Yours in Christ,

We closed here, Oct. 3, a fifteen-days' "tent meeting," conducted by Rev. J. B. Culpepper. He was assisted by his two sons, Revs. Marvin M. and Oscar Burke Culpepper, who contributed no small share to the interest and success of the meeting. They were abundant in labors, singing, praying, preaching, and personal work.

All the pastors and congregations of the city came together, united heart and hand, and labored in beautiful Christian fellowship for the one common purpose of saving souls. We feel that much and lasting good was accomplished.

In fact, when we consider the serious difficulties encountered in the equinoctial weather that prevailed, bringing many cool nights and frequent rains upon a leaky tent, often driving us to the churches for shelter, it was a remarkable meeting.

Brother Culpepper resorts to no questionable methods. He preaches a clear and forceful gospel, impressing it by scriptural injunction, sound reasoning, and apt illustration, always insisting upon an immediate decision for the right, a rejection of the wrong—often securing it. He does not cheapen salvation by making the process of obtaining it too easy. He invites penitents to the altar, and there leads them by scriptural instruction to Him "who is able to save to the uttermost all who come unto Him by faith."

Eighty persons gave their names for membership in the various churches. Forty-five came to the Methodist; the remaining thirty-five go to the other churches.

The increased attendance upon the preaching of the Word, Sunday morning and evening; the mid-week prayer meeting, the Sunday-school and Epworth League since the close of the meeting, indicates a decided improvement in the spiritual life of the church.

We hope to make a good report for Macon at the Annual Conference.

Sunday-School Institute.

The Sunday-school Institute just closed at West Point was a season of spiritual and intellectual feasting, as might well have been anticipated when it was known to what excellent hands it was committed. The attendance was disappointing to many, but the addresses were sprightly and meaty, while the work of Dr. and Mrs. Hamill may well be denominated superb.

The published programme was adhered to in the main, only such changes being made as the exigencies of the occasion prompted. The bulk of the work was done by Dr. Hamill and his wife, which is to say that it was of high order. The opening address of the former, in which the relation of the Sunday-school to Methodism was discussed, was veritably a gem, beautiful in all its aspects. It should be published, and in the hands of every Methodist in our land, for none could read it with other than profit and delight.

Indeed, all the features of the meeting were pleasant, saving the attendance, which, while, perhaps, as large as had been expected, was deplorably small, relatively, considering the number which might have, or should have, been there. The impetus which our Sunday-school interests would have received, had every school been represented in the delegation, is well-nigh incalculable; yet out of over two hundred superintendents in the four districts for which West Point was the more convenient site, less than a dozen were present, the majority of the workers being pastors and faithful women, and lamentably few of these. Manifestly these things ought not so to be. Let us arouse to the imperative necessity of an improvement for our next annual Institute. Let the children of light be wise; then only will they be workmen needing not to be ashamed.

ISAAC D. BORDERS.

Wanted—A Presiding Elder.

[MY DEAR DOCTOR BOSWELL: The following is extracted from a personal letter, this much of which I venture to submit for your columns without the writer's consent, because I believe it will be of value in more than one way. First, the ideal herein set forth may discourage aspiration on the part of the unfit; second, some may be led to covet earnestly the best gifts; and, third, the dignity of the office may be exhibited to the eyes of the unappreciative.—F. S. P.]

"Our presiding elder is closing out his fourth year on the district, and somebody will be appointed to succeed him. I doubt not the wisdom of the cabinet, but they can not be wise above information given them from without. Under Dr. ——'s administration our district has forged to the front, and we are anxious to keep it there. Whether it remains in the front depends somewhat upon the life and force of our presiding elder. We want a presiding elder, and not a figure-head. We want a presiding elder who has preaching ability that towers above his fellows. We want one who is broad-minded; who will not allow his prejudices to get away with his better judgment. We want one who can call mourners, or take a collection. We want one who looks after the interest of Zion, and not after his own salary. We want one whom the phrenologist would pronounce a natural born leader. We want not one who will preach his congregation to sleep on Sunday at 11 A. M.

"I would not write you thus, but I understand some are aspiring for it who come not up to my ideal. I can put up with anybody; but, loving the church as I do, I am loath to see a man appointed not qualified, who gets it because he has influence with the Bishop."

Atlanta Circuit.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: We have finished our round of protracted meetings. I was assisted by Bros. H. C. Parrott, local; E. McKee, student from Millsaps; J. A. Leech, of Okolona; W. C. Lester, of Houston; J. H. Ingram, of Fulton circuit, and Rev. T. J. Norsworthy, of Ellisville. These brethren did good and faithful work. Though two or three of them remained with us only about two days, the good work went on.

My last meeting was at Atlanta. Bro. Norsworthy was there ten days with his gospel tent, and notwithstanding the busy season of gathering crops, there were 200 to 300 in the day, and 400 to 600 at night, and each Sunday 800 to 1,000. Bro. Norsworthy is a strong gospel preacher. He causes the wicked to stop and think, the penitent to seek Christ, and the church to a higher plane of living, and to stand by their pastor. The result of this meeting was twenty-five accessions to the church, and the pastor a pounding of dry goods and groceries to the amount of $20 or $25 worth. To God be all the glory. Pray for us. Up to date forty-two persons have united with our church.

This book was written by a personal friend of the editor. He was born and reared in North Mississippi, but for nearly twenty years past has labored in Arkansas. The larger part of this time he has devoted himself to the temperance cause. He has been specially interested in young men, and the book he has sent forth, under the name of Danger Signals, is intended to help solve the problem: "How to save the young men of America, and thus in saving America to save the World." This book points out very clearly the dangers to which the young are exposed, and sets before them the way of safety. Young men who read it will find much in it to awaken their thoughts and quicken their consciences; and should the lessons taught be heeded, the young man of the twentieth century would indeed be a model man and model citizen. The many questions discussed are of serious import, and well worthy of consideration.

The book is not written from the standpoint of a pessimist, but from the standpoint of one who sees real danger to our political, financial, social, and religious life. These matters are discussed fully and plainly. The book is a valuable contribution to current literature, and we commend it to our young men, believing it will do them good. We hope it will have a large circulation.

Pains in the Back

Are symptoms of a weak, torpid or stagnant condition of the kidneys or liver, and are a warning it is extremely hazardous to neglect, as inaction is a healthy action of [illegible].

They are commonly attended by loss of energy, lack of courage, and sometimes by gloomy foreboding and despondency.

"I had pains in my back, could not sleep and when I got up in the morning felt worse than the night before. SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

The Teacher.

Why should not the Sunday-school teacher magnify the office and make it a life work? And why should not many more engage in the work also? We have never yet been connected with a Sunday-school that was not short of teachers, nor have we ever seen or heard of one where the supply was equal to the demand. In this field there is plenty of work for all. Especially is there need for those who will go out into the highways and hedges, and compel them to come in. None need stand "all the day idle."

Sometimes we think, in considering the scarcity of teachers, that it is because Christians have a wrong conception of the kingdom of God, or what it is to have the mind that was in Christ. The Bible says (R. V.), "He that is wise winneth souls." The cobbler had the right spirit who, when asked his business, replied, "I make my living by mending shoes, but my business is to serve the Lord." When Christians get this spirit they are willing to make sacrifices to help shape the destinies of human souls.

We often hear the excuse, "I do not feel qualified to teach." Sometimes there is an honest feeling of inability because of the lack of the gift of teaching, or the want of an education, or of a lack of knowledge of the Bible, but usually those making the excuse are not living right before God and men, or are unwilling to sacrifice their ease and comfort. When the door opens for you to teach a class, God is leading you, and his commands are his enablings. By studying the books of the Study Circle you can cultivate the gift of teaching; by studying the Bible you can get a knowledge of its contents, and it is your bounden duty to study it, whether you teach a class or not; and on your knees you can get yourself right before God and men; on your knees you can get wisdom and an understanding heart; and there also you can get the spirit and mind of Christ. What more can anyone want, whether they have the "gift" or not, to whom the door opens to teach a class in Sunday-school? Remember that "they that be teachers" (R. V.) "shall shine as the brightness of the firmament."

The teacher should be zealous, not having a spasmodic zeal, but rather a constantly sustained zeal. Spasmodic zeal is like a stove full of shavings. When the match is applied the shavings fire up, but the stove never gets enough heat during the combustion to warm anything else. Not so with sustained zeal. Like the stove full of anthracite coal in full blast, it warms the whole room.

The secret of sustained zeal and of the successful worker is given by another in this incident: A lady teacher in an obscure Sunday-school was marvelously useful. Every member of the class successively assigned to her was hopefully converted through her instrumentality. Her gifts were not remarkable, and her success was not understood. By and by "she was not, for God took her." Then a little diary she had kept was found, and all was explained.

In one place they found the following, "Resolved, That I will pray once each day for each member of my class by name." Further on they found this, "Resolved, That I will pray once each day for each member of my class by name, and agonize in prayer." Further on they found these words, "Resolved, That I will pray once each day for each member of my class by name, and agonize in prayer, and expect a blessing."

The success of this dear girl was now plain. She had the spirit of love—the Holy Spirit—that took of the things of Christ, and revealed them to her, thus enabling her to lead others into the light.—Exchange.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

SALEM CAMP MEETING.

Pursuant to previous announcement, the Salem Camp Meeting was begun Wednesday, Oct. 8, 1902, at 7:30 o'clock P. M., under very propitious circumstances, and closed Monday morning, Oct. 13. From the beginning there was interest manifested, which seemed to deepen with each service till Sunday night, when the "zenith" of a great revival was reached.

The preaching was done by Revs. J. M. Morse, J. R. Jones, J. W. Campbell, M. A. Thurman, M. R. Jones, L. P., except the introductory sermon, and the 8 o'clock sermon Sunday morning, which were preached by the pastor.

Better order and greater manifestation of appreciation for the Word dispensed could hardly be found. And yet, dear reader, you will not be surprised at this when I tell you that the preaching, for the most part, was of a very high order. It seemed that the one aim of these faithful men of God was to bring sinners to repentance and to edify the church, and their labors were by no means in vain, for there were twenty professed conversions, two accessions, and the church strengthened. Three infants were baptized. To these gospel messengers we make our profoundest acknowledgements.

The young people here have made us insolvent to them by their valuable assistance in song. To several local preachers and exhorters we are indebted for valuable service in song, prayer, and exhortation.

Much good was done in the grove prayer meetings. The experience meetings were spiritual feasts; the song services were inspiring. In all the services the Spirit of God was given the right of way, and he got to himself glory. To him be all the praise. THOS. J. O'NEIL, P. C.

HARPERVILLE CIRCUIT.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: I held my second protracted meeting at New Providence Church. The meeting began on Sunday, and closed Thursday evening. Held two services a day, with dinner on the ground. Bro. Williams, of Decatur circuit, and Bro. John Hays, local preacher, were to help me, but both got sick, and I had no help. We had a good meeting; large congregations, Christian people very much revived, but only one accession to the church.

My third protracted meeting was held at Harperville, beginning on Sunday, and closing Wednesday night. Bro. J. W. Crisler, of Newton and Hickory charge, did all the preaching after Sunday, to the delight and edification of everyone who heard him. He is a remarkably strong, soul-stirring preacher. We had a good revival meeting; large congregations, especially at night; one accession to our branch of the church. Bro. Crisler's sermon on Wednesday to the children, accompanied by chemical illustrations of the effects of sin, and the cleansing effect of the blood of Christ, was as fine a thing along that line as I ever heard. This writer will long remember the companionship he enjoyed with this dear brother.

My fourth protracted meeting closed last Thursday night. It was held at Hillsboro. Two accessions, church graciously revived, large congregations to the close. My help at this point failed to get there. Bro. Talock, of the M. P. Church, preached one sermon for me, and, although in very feeble health, he was filled with the Spirit, and the grand truths he uttered were indeed "manna" for the soul.

I have three more meetings to hold, and I am praying for the presence of the Holy Spirit in them all. Pray for me.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

PLEASANT HILL CIRCUIT.

While others are writing of success in different lines of church work, I feel that I want to say something, if it is only, "Me, too." But, alas! alas! have but little that is encouraging. There are some noble people in the bounds of this charge.

Our protracted meetings are over, and we had some precious times of refreshing from the presence of the Lord. About forty conversions and about twenty accessions to the church are a part of the results, and our membership, generally, has been toned up somewhat; but there is very little church enterprise here. We have no missionary societies nor Epworth Leagues. Our general collections will hardly reach one-fourth of the assessment, and if the preacher's salary should all be paid, it would be far too small, and we will report no church nor parsonage improvement.

The Lord has been with us in our personal experience. We have been rich in his promise, "Lo, I am with you always," but we grieve over the circumstances that has made our year's work so fruitless.

I have just read the notice of the death of our good brother, "Jack" Foster. We were room-mates last year at Conference, but he has answered to roll-call up yonder, and has his place in the home in the great conference of the skies, whither we are all tending, and we go one by one, until by and by we will all be gathered home. J. H. SMITH.

ABERDEEN, MISS.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Bro. Culpepper and his son are with us, and we are having a great meeting. This old town is getting wakened. Last night over forty penitents at the altar. I am not writing this for the impress of numbers, but to give you some idea that God is with us. Yesterday afternoon Bro. Culpepper addressed a meeting for men and boys only. What a glorious success! I know my people, and know when a thing is taking hold. At the Baptist Church, Mrs. Culpepper held a great meeting for women and girls. The morning service had heaven's seal upon it. God is giving us a blessing. Culpepper is surely a man of God, and a great man, which ever way you count him.

Will write you fully later.

Truly your brother,

RICHARD WILKINSON.

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check, ten cents extra will be charged.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1902.

A Christian newspaper, published principally for family reading, is not a hopper into which all sorts of material is to be thrown just to see what sort of grist will be turned out. In justice to thousands of plain readers, matter should be excluded from a family paper that might properly be admitted into papers of a different class. It is not a good excuse to say that the author of a communication containing heretical and poisonous doctrine does not present his matter "dogmatically," but "tentatively." It makes no difference whether the one way or the other, the poison finds its way into the minds and hearts of thousands, and ruins them for life. For this reason parents should keep bad papers and bad books out of the hands of their children. They should give such literature no place in their homes.

Why should not men regard the special talents with which they are endowed as a call from God to exercise those talents in promoting his cause? If one is gifted with the power of song, why should he not sing to the glory of God? If gifted in prayer, why not lead the devotions of the congregation? If the Lord has blessed him with neither the gift of song, nor prayer, nor with any other qualification for public service, but has given him a good share of worldly means, why should he not feel specially called to exercise his money in spreading and sustaining the gospel? Is there nothing in this worth considering?

One of the wicked devices of Satan is to make men believe that it is a species of inconsistency and hypocrisy for Christians of different orders to unite with each other in religious services. The hypocrisy, if any, is on the part of the man who thinks he is so thoroughly under the direction of the Almighty that he can not afford to assist and be brotherly with those who do not pronounce his Shibboleth. The hearts of Christians may be true to God, and beat in sympathy with each other, notwithstanding they are unable to see alike on all subjects.

The change of people from one denomination to another does not always result in strengthening the church. It is too often the case that those who change are moved by anything but good motives, especially in the case of preachers, many of whom never seem to entertain a notion of changing until by some means they are thwarted in their purposes, or are disappointed in their expectations. All of us would do well to refrain from congratulating ourselves until the new-comers have been fairly tried.

THE TWO WITNESSES.

Two witnesses bear testimony to the regeneration of the heart—the Spirit of God and our own spirit. "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God." This is a familiar expression, and relied on principally to prove that the Holy Spirit imparts to man the consciousness of his sonship. It is seldom quoted to show that human conscience is also a witness. But both witnesses are important, not to say absolutely necessary.

Looking at the matter from a certain standpoint, it is quite impossible for us to understand how a man can be conscious of his acceptance with God except through the concurrent testimony of the two witnesses. The Holy Spirit does not arbitrarily take hold of a man, and regenerate him, and certify to the fact. Such a proceeding would deprive him of his agency, and throw the whole responsibility of the work of salvation on the Divine Being, which is not according to Scripture or human experience. The intellect of man is enlightened and his will is consulted. Under no other conditions are men saved.

An understanding of what is meant by the testimony of the two witnesses may be helpful. In order to this understanding we must bear in mind that the Scriptures set before us the plan of salvation in all its fullness, including the atonement, the conditions to be accepted and complied with in order to become beneficiaries of the plan, and the course of conduct to be pursued that the spiritual life imparted may be maintained. Knowledge of these facts is essential, and the method of making them known has been devised. "How shall men call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher?" It is through the preaching of the Word that the gospel is made known.

Now, when men come to know these things, and accept them, and call upon the name of the Lord with an earnest purpose to do his will, there is a consciousness on his part that he has complied with all the requirements of the gospel. This we call the testimony of our own spirit. "Our rejoicing is this, the testimony of our conscience, that in simplicity and godly sincerity, not with fleshly wisdom, but by the grace of God, we have had our conversation in the world." Not until there is enlightenment and full compliance with scriptural conditions can there be any testimony of conscience, and not until the human spirit is fully ready does the Divine Spirit regenerate and bear witness. To do so under different conditions would be to create anew, and bear witness to the salvation of one who is both ignorant of the gospel and vicious in his life.

The witness of the Spirit is direct and positive. "The Spirit himself beareth witness." It is not to the discredit of the work, nor to be rejected, because the witness is invisible and his voice inaudible. This is one of the spiritual things that is spiritually discerned. Spirit speaks to spirit, and the word is as clear and unmistakable as the word of friend to friend. For the truth itself we rely on the divine statement. To realize it, we must be born again. "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishness unto him; neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned."

We have no difficulty in accepting the doctrine, nor any in meeting the objections of those who oppose it. Some who oppose it tell us that it is impossible, because man can receive no information except such as comes to him through the medium of the natural senses. If this be true, then much that passes for inspired Scripture can not be accepted as such, for all Scripture was not authorized by word of mouth. The Lord did not speak to the writers so as to be heard by the natural ear. Men were "moved by the Holy Ghost." They wrote under the power of inspiration, and wrote as infallibly as if God had dictated in person. One single incident recorded satisfies us of this. Jesus said to his disciples, "Whom do men (the people generally) say that I, the Son of man, am?" After they had given their answer, he appealed directly to them: "But whom say ye that I am?" Peter replied, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." How Peter learned that, and was so ready to answer, our Lord tells us: "Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-Jona, for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven." This great truth did not reach Peter through the medium of the natural senses. He did not get it from any book, nor from any living man. It was a revelation. So men who come into a state of salvation depend not on other men for knowledge of the fact. Other men know nothing about it. None but the Holy Spirit can impart the information. Christians may not be able to explain to the satisfaction of others, but they are themselves satisfied, and testify with as much confidence as the man to whom sight was given by the touch of Jesus: "Whereas once I was blind, now I see." Argument can not affect a man with such an experience. May Methodists never lose sight of this blessed doctrine!

A GREAT INCREASE.

A brother writing to the Texas Baptist Standard makes claims for the Baptists of Mississippi in the following language:

"Our folks are making rapid growth in this State. Last year there were more than 6,000 baptisms among white Baptists. We are growing more rapidly than all other denominations combined. Indeed, we outnumber those already."

We have no reason to doubt the correctness of the brother's statement in regard to the number of baptisms. We take it for granted that he speaks by the book. We rejoice in the success of our sister "Baptist Churches." May the Lord multiply them more and more.

But when he says, "We are growing more rapidly than all other denominations combined," we are not so sure that he has the figures at hand. There are in Mississippi, Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Disciples (commonly known as Campbellites, who are a thrifty people), besides a good sprinkle of Methodist Protestants, and members of the M. E. Church. In addition, there are two Annual Conferences of the M. E. Church, South, numbering 86,740 members, including local and traveling preachers. The statistics of these two Conferences show that last year 9,379 members were added on profession of faith, by letter, or restoration of Church Conference, and all were baptized at the time, or had been previously. These figures do not indicate the net increase. This we could not determine, as one Conference failed to obtain the number of deaths, removals, etc. Neither does the six thousand baptisms indicate the net gain of the Baptists in Mississippi. The percentage of loss is always heavy. On the supposition that the percentage of loss was as heavy in one church as the other, it would be fair to conclude that the net gain of Southern Methodism is not far from the net gain of the Mississippi Baptists.

The net gain in Southern Methodism in Mississippi, according to the figures reported, was about 4,500. This result is arrived at by supposing that the percentage of loss among the Methodists was as great in one Conference as the other. But the brother who wrote to the Texas Standard says the Baptists of Mississippi increased last year "more rapidly than all other denominations combined." The claim is unfounded. Other churches besides the Southern Methodists must have increased some—at least, half as much as any other denomination. And that is giving them credit for very little. But if they have increased even to that extent, then there was a gain in all the churches to the number of about 6,500. And if our Baptist brethren increased more than all others combined, they ran beyond 6,500 net. We are inclined to think our brother wrote without a knowledge of all the facts.

BROTHERLY LOVE ABOUNDING.

While on a visit, not long since, to one of our brethren—an elegant Christian gentleman—we talked about a great many things—mostly about the church and preachers. The brother had a good word for everybody. He is specially happy in his relations with the pastors of other churches in his town, and spoke of them in most brotherly terms. They dwell together in unity. They agree to disagree. Brotherly love abounds. No town in the State is more prosperous, and the church keeps pace, in all respects, with the town. It is a mistake to suppose that brethren of different creeds can not recognize each other, and work together, and each maintain his integrity and the honor of his church. It is a mistake to suppose that a church can not prosper, numerically and spiritually, if the pastor affiliates with a church of another order.

In glancing over our exchanges we frequently see paragraphs which tell of preachers of different churches uniting together in meetings, and what great success attends their efforts. In this issue of the ADVOCATE is a notice of a meeting in which all the pastors and congregations came together for the common good, and labored for the salvation of souls. Will anybody undertake to say that these pastors and Christians betrayed their Lord or their churches by such an exhibition of brotherly love?

When Christians are getting closer and closer together, year by year, it appears to us to be disloyalty to Christ for any brother to undertake to stop them, and say, "They follow not us." Let brotherly love abound!

"HE CAME TO HIMSELF."

A few years since an Arkansas preacher, a member of one of our Conferences, concluded that the church was not as good as it should be, and left. He did not go to another church; there was not one good enough, but organized one according to his own mind and heart. The brother's moral character was without reproach, and he was an active and useful preacher. He simply went wild. Now, after being out, and without a home, such as he, and his honored father before him, found in the M. E. Church, South, he has returned. He gives notice that his "views have so modified" concerning certain matters that he can come back. We have no doubt that the brother will be gladly received, and treated with kindness as in former years.

This brother is not the only one, by several, who went out from us under the impression that he was going into a pure and agreeable atmosphere. He is not the only one who has found out his mistake, and returned a wiser and better man. As a rule, we are inclined to think that men who change their church relations, or go out and organize societies of their own, except on account of radical change of views, are never happy. If they were so, many of them would not seek to return. In the case of the brother here alluded to, there was no change of doctrinal views. He thought he was far in advance of his brethren. He came to himself, and realized the lonesomeness of his position. Who can blame him for desiring to get back? We commend him for his courage in asking to be received into the old fold. He is yet young, and will do much good.

Many other good men, like this young brother, have felt that they were far ahead of their fellows, but they were wiser, and remained in the church. Some of whom we wot are among our best men, and though they have tried, and failed, to bring the church up to the high plane which they have reached, they have not heaped insult upon their brethren by charging them with hypocrisy and corruption. Some have held out a long time in the belief that they, and those who agree with them in their peculiar views, are the only real religious people in the church; but there are signs of returning consciousness. They are coming to themselves. They are beginning to see that two men of different views can both be good alike. Only men of such hearts can dwell in unity with their brethren. And, behold, how good and how pleasant it is!

OPENING COURT WITH PRAYER.

The judges of the Supreme Court of Nebraska have decided that reading the Bible, praying, or singing religious songs in the public schools of that State, is unconstitutional. Of course, public school teachers will cease violating the law. But that decision does not affect the public in Tennessee. Some public officers in that State go a step further, and open their courts with prayer. Such was the action of Judge W. M. Pollard, of Nashville, who, in opening the first session of the County Court under his administration, called the justices to prayer, and led the devotions. In this he was heartily seconded by the majority of the members. We have known Judge Pollard a long while as an earnest, God-fearing Christian, and we are glad to learn that in his responsible office he recognizes the need of divine aid, and has the moral courage to seek it publicly. If all our rulers, legislative and judicial, were to recognize God more fully, and stand unflinchingly for their convictions, the people would be much better off. We heartily commend Judge Pollard.

DR. STEEL'S LECTURE.

Dr. S. A. Steel, one of our most brilliant Southern preachers, will lecture in this city at the Young Men's Christian Association Hall, Friday evening, Oct. 31. The subject of Dr. Steel's lecture is, "Life in Dixie During the War." It has never been our privilege to hear this lecture, but we have heard his "Pioneers of Methodism," and we feel sure that "Life in Dixie" is equally worth hearing. The lecture is for the benefit of the Parker Memorial Parsonage Fund, and we hope the citizens of New Orleans will give the eminent lecturer a good house. The price of admission is only fifty cents.

We rejoice with Rev. J. A. Bowen, of Tupelo, because of his great success. He has just succeeded in securing the last dollar of a big debt ($3,800) on the new church. His charge will pay over $5,000 for church purposes this year. And, best of all, the spiritual outlook is good.

Book Notice.

We are under obligation to the author for a copy of his book. He is well known in Mississippi, having once been a member of the North Mississippi Conference. The book will please all Epworth Leaguers, for whom it was written, and they will gain much information of Europe. We have not space for a full notice, but we join the press in general in kind words, and wishing the book a large sale. It will be furnished by Bigham & Smith, Nashville, Tenn.

Magazine.

Frank Leslie's magazine maintains the character its name indicates—Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly. There is an immense demand for such literature, and Leslie's not only meets the demand, but meets it promptly. The monthly, for November, is on our table, and, as usual, is full of up-to-date reading. The present issue contains an installment of an excellent tale by "Ralph Connor"—Glengarry School Days. There is also much reading of a different character which will both please and instruct. Frank Leslie's is cheap at one dollar a year. New York.

PERSONAL.

Rev. L. F. Alford, at the Tchoupitoulas Mission, has just closed a good meeting. He was assisted by Rev. J. J. Smylie, who rendered efficient service.

Rev. L. M. Lipscomb, at Senatobia, is doing well, is pleased with his charge, and the people are pleased with him, and desire his return next year. We hope they will be gratified.

We had the pleasure, last week, of meeting Rev. W. J. Ferguson, of Adams, Mississippi Conference. He was accompanied by his two bright little boys, and we enjoyed his brotherly visit very much.

Rev. C. D. Atkinson, pastor of Parker Memorial, was quite sick two or three days last week, sufferiug with dengue fever. He was unable to occupy his pulpit on Sunday. The church is doing well under Brother Atkinson's administration.

Rev. K. W. Dodson, pastor of Algiers Church, informs us that he will begin a series of meetings the third Sunday of November. He will be assisted by Brother Joe Ramsey, lay preacher. We pray that great success may attend their labors.

We learn through a personal note from Dr. A. F. Watkins that he is meeting with much encouragement in his work as Agent for the Superannuated Fund. The church papers speak in the highest terms of Dr. Watkins' fitness for the work to which he has been called.

Rev. P. H. Fontaine, pastor of Dryades Street Church, performed an interesting ceremony, on Monday evening last, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. W. Pflug, in this city. He baptized their infant daughters, twins, Miriam and Marion. These little ones will have the nurture of the church. To such belongs the kingdom of heaven.

Rev. W. W. Mitchell, of Macon station, and his good people are arranging to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the erection of their house of worship. Sunday, Nov. 16, is the day for the celebration. It will be a big day with Macon Methodists. But few persons, we imagine, will take part in this celebration who were present at the opening.

While in Hattiesburg, last week, we got only a moment's sight of Rev. J. M. Morse, the presiding elder. He was just in from a trip on the district; had not reached the parsonage. We heard only good words of his work. This is his first year as presiding elder, and he is succeeding finely. He is on his last round for the year, and will make a good report at Conference.

Miss Belle Kearney, one of Mississippi's fair and intellectual daughters, at the recent meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union at Portland, Maine, fairly took the Union and the great audience by storm with the strength and elegance of her address. So we learn from a Portland daily that devoted much space to the proceedings of the Union. Her many admirers in Mississippi will read this item with pleasure.

TESTIMONIAL.

Dear Sirs:—I have used Brodie's Astringent Cordial in my family, and am using the third bottle. It always acts like a charm upon my children, correcting ailments of the bowels better than any medicine I ever tried. * * *

Yours, most respectfully,
MRS. A. W. MOORE.

Sunday-School Institutes.

The two Sunday-school Institutes for North Mississippi Conference have been held—the one at West Point, Oct. 13-15, and the other at Oxford, Oct. 15-17. Both were conducted by our Superintendent of Training Work, Dr. H. M. Hamill, assisted by his wife, who met all expectations for ability and efficiency in the work they are doing for the Sunday-school cause. Their lectures and illustrations on "Bible Study," "Methods of Teaching," "Training Work," "Sunday-school History," etc., was instructive and inspiring to the highest degree. Everybody who heard them was delighted and captivated by their intelligent and skillful presentation of the different phases of Sunday-school work.

No preacher, superintendent or teacher who attended either Institute went away without a sense of great benefit gained, and feeling that he or she was amply rewarded for all expenditure of time and means for the occasion. We feel sure that the fruits of these Institutes will be manifest in increased interest and better work in many of our schools. The generally expressed regret of those present was that more of the pastors and Sunday-school workers were not in attendance to get the benefit.

It is hoped that the work thus begun in our Conference will develop in interest and power, and that the whole body shall soon be leavened by its influence. For this consummation let us continue to labor and pray.

G. W. BACHMAN.

Forest District.

Two more Quarterly Conferences on fourth round held, and both were delightful occasions. The Scott circuit, J. W. Thompson, L. P., supply, and Morton and Pelahatchie, G. S. Harmon, P. C., will be in "Class A;" and not at the bottom of the class, either! Bro. Thompson reported 9 accessions—3 by baptism, 3 by vows, and 3 by certificate—and 3 infants baptized. Bro. Harmon reports 8 accessions—6 by baptism, and 2 by vows—and 1 infant baptized; sold 22 NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATES, 5 Nashville and 1 St. Louis Advocate, 33 Go Forward, 2 Review of Missions, 5 Our Homes, 1 Children's Visitor and 1 Methodist Magazine.

Rev. W. H. Lane, L. P., supply, Edinburg circuit, reports first meeting ever held by him without help of another preacher, and 8 accessions by vows; a new church organized, and the new members keen to build a house of worship.

Rev. W. W. Morse reports 52 accessions at Shiloh Camp Meeting, led by W. D. Bass, L. E., evangelist, Corinth, Miss.

An Appeal to Our Friends.

We make a special appeal to our friends who owe us on subscription to send us the amount due. We need the money. The amount each one owes is small, but the aggregate amounts to hundreds of dollars. Our friends must see that it is embarrassing to us to withhold the money. Please look at the label on your paper, and if you are behind, send us the amount due. We will greatly appreciate it.

Shreveport District Parsonage.

For the information of Louisiana Methodism generally, and the Shreveport district specially, I address you this bit of news. For the purpose of establishing a parsonage for the presiding elder of this district, Doctors J. M. Middleton, of Many; H. E. Atkins, of Atkins; A. F. Jackson, of Mansfield; A. J. Scott, of Greenwood, and myself were appointed a committee, at the last session of our District Conference, with full power to act.

This committee met in Shreveport, on the seventh instant, every member being present except Dr. Middleton, who misunderstood the hour of meeting and arrived too late. The undersigned was elected chairman, and Brother Atkins secretary and treasurer. With but one dissenting voice, Shreveport was selected as the location for this parsonage, and $5,000 was the amount agreed upon as necessary to be raised for the purpose. In order to meet this emergency each pastoral charge or church in the district has been assessed in proportion to $5,000 as is its pastoral and presiding elder assessment is to that sum, the 1902 assessment being taken as a basis.

It is the earnest desire of the committee that all the preachers in this district bring this matter promptly and urgently before their respective churches; and every good mother and patriarch in Israel, and all who love the Master's work and its progress will throw an intelligent industry and enthusiasm into this great work. Give it a splendid assistance and mark its long neglect a thing of the forgotten past.

Yours fraternally,
CAL. D. HICKS, Chairman.

Shreveport, La., Oct. 25, 1902.

Holly Springs Circuit.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: I send you a few items from Holly Springs circuit. We have had over eighty conversions, nearly seventy accessions, and will be more than seventy by Conference. Of these, at least thirty-five of mature years; some more than threescore years. Two young men—young converts—have been called to preach, and are preparing to enter Millsaps College; one, and probably both, next year. We will nearly double our membership in two years. We have four missionary societies, one League, and one aid society.

Since last Conference, notwithstanding the failure in last year's crop, we have, with two hundred dollars' aid from W. H. M. Society, raised money and built to completion a beautiful five-room parsonage, worth eight hundred dollars. Have furnished it throughout nicely, and insured for five years, and premium paid. We have money in hand to pay every cent of indebtedness. I think finances will all be in full. All told, we will raise about fifteen hundred dollars, and this on a hill circuit. We all feel very grateful for the blessings received. I think our district will carry up the best report for many years. Success to the ADVOCATE.

Letter from Aberdeen.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: We have just closed our meeting. I will give you a fuller letter next week. For the present I just want to say Aberdeen has not been so stirred in many years. All classes thronged to the tent and heard some of the best gospel preaching ever given an audience. I am not a believer in evangelists as a class. That is, in my judgment, there are many inferior men in the work, if not unworthy. Bro. Culpepper is the grand exception to any evangelist I have known. He is a truly great revivalist. He has completely won the town of Aberdeen. To-morrow I expect to take a large class into the church. Will tell of it next week. I endorse Bro. Culpepper, heart and soul. He will have great meetings wherever he goes. He is God's man and wonderfully equipped for his chosen work. Truly yours,

RICHARD WILKINSON.

CIGARETTES.

Notices.

The preachers of the Mississippi Conference will please make remittance of church extension money, either by checks or money order, on Vicksburg. Do not send money orders on Plaquemine. You will greatly oblige me by observing this request.

Fraternally,
THOS. A. HOLLOMAN, Treas.

To All the Members of the North Mississippi Conference—

BRETHREN: Please observe the following notices and requests:

1. In due time each of you will receive on postal card the name of your Conference host.

2. Be sure to inform your host on what day and train you expect to arrive.

3. Please come to Tupelo on the day trains. It will be out of our power to meet night trains.

4. Immediately on arrival you will go directly to your homes.

5. Rooms will be provided for committees and Conference Boards, especially if we get notice of time of meetings.

The above is as much for lay delegates as preachers. Some other notices may be given in November.

The good people of Tupelo are glad to have the honor of entertaining the Conference. With pleasure we will serve you the best we can.

Sad News.

DEAR DOCTOR BOSWELL: The sad news of the death of Madie Elizabeth, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Fearn, of Soochow, China, has just been received. She was about five years of age, and her death occurred on Sept. 22. Dr. Fearn has two sisters residing in Yazoo City, and he and family spent several months with them in 1900. Madie Elizabeth made many warm friends while here, who are deeply afflicted over the news of her death. Let the prayers of the home church go up for our brother and his wife in this their great sorrow.

W. B. LEWIS.

Yazoo City, Miss., Oct. 24, 1902.

Sardis Circuit.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: We are almost ready to start on our last round of appointments upon the Sardis circuit for this Conference year. In many respects we have had a fairly good year. Our protracted meetings have all been held. While we have not had as many accessions to our church as we would like, yet we feel that the spiritual interest of the different churches has been built up. We are doing all we can to secure good collections for the different interests of the church. We have sent $32.50 to the Orphans' Home at Water Valley, and expect to send more. We have built a new church at Mt. Tirzah. We held our first service there last Sunday. And a good service it was! All that the house needs of being completed is paint, a few more seats, and the pulpit made. And the seats are being made. When it shall have been finished it will be a thing of beauty, and the pride of, as well as a blessing to, the community. May God bless you and your excellent paper, and enable all the preachers to bring up good reports at Conference! is my prayer.

Fraternally yours,
T. H. PORTER

Almost Exhausted?

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE Revives.

A most beneficial Tonic, steadily improving health, and building up all the faculties.

Special Mention.

Oct. 27, I am just in from Shrock, on Camden circuit, where we held the fourth Quarterly Conference. Bro. Golden reports Conference claimants in full, foreign and domestic missionary collections in full and everything in sight for clean sweep of decks. Like a beehive, everything has been at work. Young ladies with mite boxes, children with "consecrated hens," the pastor with monthly collections of from 10 cents to $1. The stewards are hopeful of getting pastor's salary in full. These reports show the possibility of success when a plan is worked. In this section corn crop almost a total failure and cotton not over 50 per cent.

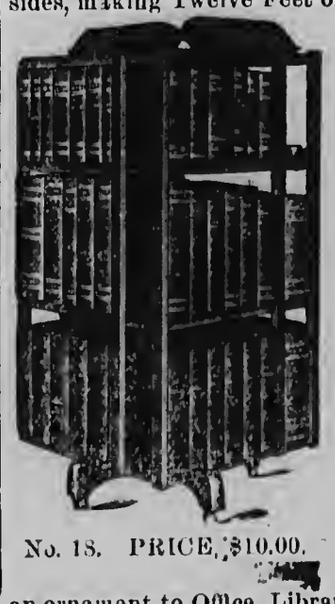
THE

Marsh Revolving Book-Case

DESCRIPTION.

DIMENSIONS.—This Case is 36x18x18. Height, 40 inches. Has three shelves; each has one foot of book space on each of four sides, making Twelve Feet of shelf room.



No. 18. PRICE, $10.00.

ITS CAPACITY.—This Case will admit the entire Encyclopedia Britannica on the lower shelf, and on all about one hundred volumes of Law, Medical or Miscellaneous Works.

TOP.—Can be used as a Dictionary, Bible, Atlas, Directory or Dun and Bradstreet Holder, or other heavy volume. Nothing made for these purposes can be more substantial or complete.

SLATS.—The side pieces or Slats are of Oak, embossed and corrugated, and present a handsome appearance. They are fastened to the Shelves, each by 8 nails, and are firm and rigid under any weight of books the Case contains.

MATERIAL AND FINISH.—This Case is made from selected, thoroughly seasoned Oak or Ash, sanded perfectly smooth on all sides, and finished in Antique Oak, rendering it an ornament to Office, Library or Parlor.

THE BASE is of a handsome design; is capable of sustaining a weight of from Five Hundred to One Thousand Pounds; is provided with Castors, and on which the Case revolves easily, and is practically everlasting.

It is the first time in the history of Revolving Book Cases one has been produced so well adapted to the wants of Home and Profession, so handsome and substantial, and at such a Low Price.

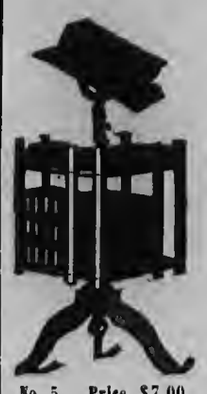
HOW SHIPPED.

As a Great Saving in Express or Freight Charges, this Case is shipped knocked down, or in pieces, and thus compressed to package size, and goes by Freight as Second Class, or by Express at Half what it would if set up. Wrapped in heavy paper, it makes a thirty-pound package, and thus can be safely sent anywhere.

Directions for putting together accompany each Case.

We will furnish the above Revolving Book-Case and ten yearly subscriptions to the ADVOCATE (new or renewal) to anyone for $20, or we will sell you the Case alone for $10 cash.

MARSH Reading Stand and Revoving Book-Case.



No. 5. Price, $7.00.

ADJUSTABLE TOP.—Is 14x18 inches; large and strong enough to hold your Dictionary, Directory, Dun, Bradstreet, Bible, Atlas, or any heavy volume, at any desired angle. It can be revolved and adjusted when reading so as to always throw the strongest light on the pages. You can thus avoid the strain on your eyes inevitable when holding a book in your hand or on a level table. It is made of Oak, and has on one edge a Rest to keep books from sliding off.

REVOLVING CASE.—This case is 15x15x12 inches. The shelves are Oak or Ash, finished on both sides and on all edges, and have 9 inches of book space on four sides, or 3 feet in all, and room enough for reference books of daily use. Many books may also be placed on the upper shelf. In all twenty to thirty volumes, law size, can be put in it. The eight oak slats are attached by four nails each, making the Case very substantial as well as ornamental.

CASTINGS connecting the Top and Case are finished in black enamel, and of sufficient strength to last a lifetime.

PIPE, POST and LEGS.—The three legs are attached by round-headed screws to the turned post. Into this post is forced an iron pipe, which runs up through the Case, and to which the castings at the top are attached. Around this pipe the Case revolves.

As a Home, Office or Library article, it is said, its equal does not exist. The accuracy of this statement can be confirmed by unsolicited letters of the highest commendation from thousands of Ministers, Attorneys, Physicians, Government, State and County Officials, Bankers and Business Men. Over 50,000 have been sold in the United States, and orders now come for large lots from England and other foreign countries.

HOW FINISHED.—It is handsomely finished in Antique Oak, and an ornament to any Office, Library or Parlor.

AS A GIFT.—Nothing made is more suitable to present to a friend, or as a Wedding or Birthday Gift, than this Stand.

HOW SHIPPED.—This Stand is sent knocked down, wrapped in heavy paper, making a package of 20 pounds. By Freight it goes as second class, and at about half what it would cost if sent set up. Plain directions for putting together accompany each Stand.

We will furnish the above Revolving Book-Case and seven yearly subscriptions to the ADVOCATE (new or renewal) to anyone for $11, or we will sell you the case alone for $7 cash.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

JNO. W. BOSWELL,

Very many of our subscribers are behind in payment, and the time of many more is just expiring. Please send what is due. If you can not send the whole, send part. We need the money. Please do no wait another week.

DOCTORS ENDORSE SWAMP-ROOT

For Uric Acid, Kidney and Bladder Troubles.

A. J HALLE, M. D.

East Atlanta, Ga., March 1st, 1901

GENTLEMEN:—While it has never been my habit or inclination to recommend remedies the ingredients of which are not all known to me, it seems as if I should make an exception in the case of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root. My experience, so far as I have tested it in my practice, forces me to the conclusion that it is a remedy of the greatest value in all uric acid, kidney, liver, bladder and other inflammatory conditions of the genito urinary tract. I now take pleasure in prescribing Swamp Root in all such cases with a feeling of assurance that my patients will derive great benefit from its use. I shall continue to prescribe it in other cases in my practice with the expectation of the best results. Very truly yours,

A. J. Halle M.D.

GENTLEMEN:—I have prescribed that wonderful remedy for kidney complaint, Dr Kilmer's Swamp-Root, with most beneficial effect and I now of many cures by its use These patients had kidney trouble, as diagnosed by other physicians, and treated without benefit. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root effected a cure. I am a liberal man and accept a specific wherever I find it, in an accepted school or out of it For desperate cases of kidney complaint under treatment with unsatisfactory results I turn to Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root with most flattering results I shall continue to prescribe it and from personal observation state that Swamp Root has great curative properties.

Truly yours,

276 9th St., Borough of Brooklyn, N. Y.

The mild and extraordinary effect of the world-famous kidney, liver and bladder remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for more sickness and suffering than any other disease, therefore, when through neglect or other causes, kidney trouble is permitted to continue, fatal results are sure to follow.

We often see a friend, a relative, or an acquaintance apparently well, but in a few days we may be grieved to learn of their severe illness, or sudden death, caused by that fatal type of kidney trouble—Bright's Disease.

EDITORIAL NOTE—If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the famous new discovery, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

Sample Bottle of Swamp-Root Free by Mail.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful remedy, Swamp-Root, sent absolutely free by mail, also a book telling all about Swamp Root and containing many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact their very lives to the great curative properties of Swamp-Root. In writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say you read this generous offer in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Home Circle.

Sympathy.

There are few characteristics of our human nature so beautiful as sympathy. It is the silver cord that binds our hearts together, and, from the scattered fragments of our great humanity, makes all one. Sympathy is the bond that unites many lives, so that a thousand hearts throb in the unity of love.

Men may have many different natures, like the notes of many instruments; some harsh, some mellow, some soft and gentle, others thundering in their power; yet sympathy is the harmony of all, as they swell into one great melody without dissonance or discordant note.

Such sympathy is possible because we are made in the image of God. Not after many patterns and many models, but in one image, so that we can live and labor and progress together. He gave man, too, the power of speech, so that we can draw closer by communicating the feelings of our hearts.

Yet some men have no true sympathy; they are all self. They work with others harmoniously so long as they can serve their own ends; but when the sunlight of success fades, the partnership is dissolved. So we find that sympathy is bought with gold and traded with as common merchandise; but in the marts of commerce it is despoiled of all its beauty. True sympathy is the divine element in man. It demands tenderness, sensitiveness; even as in the flowers of spring. They can bend to the cool breath of evening and look upward to the warm midday sun. They can bow the head when the showers are falling, and put forth their cheerful beauty when the clouds are past.

To be sympathetic does not mean to be changeable and irresolute. A weak and fickle nature can not fully sympathize. It needs a strong, brave heart to be able, in spite of its own joys or sorrows, to weep with those who mourn and rejoice with those who are glad.

The sympathetic man can draw the veil across his own merriment and the vision of his joy, and share the bitterness of another's sorrow; or, if needs be, can dry his tears and silence his cry of grief lest his despondency should mar another's gladness.

A purer sympathy, large hearted and sincere, would make the world a nobler world, and the man who owned it but little lower than the angels of God, for it is the offspring of the deepest love, and this commandment have we from Him, that he who loveth God love his brother also.—Great Thoughts.

Mother First.

Fred Baker sat one winter evening watching his mother as she patiently stitched away on the garments of her more prosperous neighbors. Mrs. Baker was a widow, and her income was so small that she must needs eke it out by the help of the needle. Fred was almost thirteen, and was the oldest of her three children. He attended school every day, and Saturday he also spent over his books, for he had determined to make a scholar of himself, and so be fitted to make a good livelihood for his mother and sisters.

But other thoughts suddenly crossed his mind. "What if mother does not live until I am a man? She looks pale and thin. I'd better not wait to do great things. I'd better begin now. Mr. Richie needs a boy over at his store. I think that I will speak for the place." He paid Bert Randolph four dollars a week."

"Very well; that is a safe place for you."

Mr. Richie was Fred's Sunday-school teacher, and she thought that he wanted to ask something about the lesson, as it was Saturday evening, and he had been looking over his lesson-leaf. But he did not even think of the lesson. His mind was full of his new plan. He asked for the situation and procured it, but said nothing until early Monday morning, when he was obliged to explain.

"Mother, I am going into Mr. Richie's store. I knew you would object, and I had intended to keep the whole thing a secret until I had in my hands four dollars, my first week's wages. But I could not do it, because I must leave home before seven o'clock, and stay away until nine in the evening. What do you think of my plan?"

Mrs. Baker burst into tears, and replied:

"I think that you are a blessed boy, Fred. I never felt the pinch of poverty in all my life as I did last week. My heart was very heavy, although I tried to be trusting. I said a score of times: 'God will provide a way,' but these thoughts would return: The snow and the cold are here, and I have only a bushel of coal, almost no provisions, and but fifty cents in my purse. Why, Fred, four dollars is more than I can earn in a week. God bless you, my son! I feel that he has provided a way. I had not thought of your leaving school; you were so anxious to secure an education."

"I was, mother, but I am anxious to secure immediate help for you. I could not go on making fine plans about being able to help you by and by, while you were breaking yourself down to keep a big, strong boy in school. It's right to do the first thing first, Mr. Richie says. 'Mother before books,' now."

He was soon ready, and as he stood with his hat in his hand he said:

"Give me a kiss, mother, to keep me company. The hours may seem long to-day."

She kissed him fondly, and again said: "God bless you!" and he went out to undertake his first day's work.—The Word and the Way.

Helpful Lives.

The world is all aglow with the light of blessed, helpful lives. We see them in our homes, in our streets, in all the ways of life. All who are easing the pain of other hearts, all who are leading wandering feet back into paths of safety, all who are trying to mend the fragments of some shattered soul, all who are lovingly, humbly trying to bring joy and peace to men—all are standing on the Mount of Transfiguration, though they know it not, and round them shines the heavenly light, and from their faces beams the love of God. This is the highest of all. This is the climax of the process of incarnation here on the earth, the transformation of the human into the divine, the transfiguration of man with the glory of the spirit. So it runs through all the history of humanity—first the struggle with the earth, then the struggle with the animal instincts, then the struggle to bring in the kingdom of heaven. So it runs through the life of the individual man—first the conquest of physical forces, then the conquest of the demons of self, and then the victorious life going back to win the cause of those who have fought and been defeated.

This is the story of God's gift of himself to the world. This is the gospel of the incarnation—God working through human minds and hearts to reveal his love and to bring heaven upon the earth. It is no new gospel. It tells you what you know already: that you are the children of the Most High, that you bear in your hearts the impress of his Spirit, that you are the temples of the Holy One. And out of that solemn, awful truth let there rise the strong resolve that, since God is in you, you will make yourselves a fit dwelling-place for all God-like things.—Christian Register.

"No, sir."

"And the sun's not shining."

"No, sir."

"Then why do you carry it?"

"Well, when it's raining pa wants it, and when the sun's shining ma wants it, and it's only this kind o' weather I can get to use it at all."

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

A woman's discovery FREE

By many years of constant study and experiments, I have perfected a simple, harmless vegetable remedy that will quickly cure all female diseases, as well as the piles. It is nature's own remedy, and will not only relieve, but will absolutely thoroughly and permanently cure the ailments peculiar to women, such as falling of the womb, leucorrhea (whites), displacements, ulceration, granulation, painful or scanty periods, irregular menstruation and all the pelvic ills of women. It positively cures rectal ulcers, piles, hemorrhoids, tumors, itching, blind or bleeding piles in either sex. It cures promptly, privately, and permanently without the repugnant methods in general use by physicians. You can escape embarrassing examinations, avoid humiliating exposures, cheat the surgeon's knife out of lucrative in your blood.

The treatment is so simple, mild and effectual that it will not interfere with your work or occupation. Thousands and thousands of letters are being received from grateful persons from all parts of the world who have been cured by the use of this remedy. The first package is free, send for it—send to-day. I know that a fair trial of it will result in your becoming its enthusiastic advocate and friend With it I will send literature of interest and value. Do not neglect this opportunity to get cured yourself and be fit a position to advise ailing friends.

Consider well the above offer and act upon it at once It is made in the sincere hope of aiding you and spreading the knowledge of a beneficent boon to sufferers. Earnestly, hopefully, faithfully, MRS. CORA B. MILLER, 56 Comstock Bldg. Kokomo, Ind.

Artistic Monuments

Cost no more than plain ones in White Bronze. Marble is entirely out of date. Granite eventually crumbles back to Mother Earth. Besides it is very expensive.

White Bronze is strictly everlasting. It can not crumble with the action of frost. Moss growth is an impossibility. It is more artistic than any stone. It has been adopted for nearly one hundred public monuments and by thousands of delighted customers in all parts of the country. We have designs from $4.00 to $4,000. The company ship them to any address. Send me a postal card, and I will call at your home with my designs.

Pearline or Soap—not soap and PEARLINE. That is waste. PEARLINE has enough soap to act in the most effective way on dirt. With many washing-powders, much soap is needed. You can't find a trace of soap in some. But PEARLINE is improved soap itself. Takes soap's place. Does easier—quicker—better work—saves rubbing. 675

Mrs. Mary L. Alford was born in Lauderdale county, Sept. 7 1850, and died at her home near Magnolia, Miss., July 9, 1902. She was the daughter of Abram and Frances Stafford. January 7, 1869, she was happily married to Rev. N. E Alford, a local preacher of the M. E. Church, South. Unto them were born twelve children, ten of whom survive her. Two of her sons are members of the Louisiana Conference, and a third is preparing for the ministry. When about eleven years of age her parents moved from Lauderdale county to Washington parish, La, where she spent her girlhood days. At the age of seventeen she joined the M. E. Church, South, at Bethel Chapel services, conducted by Rev. — Hyde. The following year she was so soundly converted that her faith in Christ was never shaken. She had learned that a Christian's life was not profession, but a sweet communion with God that blessed their daily lives. Sister Alford was a Methodist of the highest type, truly humble, devout, and holy. The love of God shone upon her countenance. To be with her was to be in close touch with God; to pray at her fireside was to have easy access to the throne of grace. She loved her church supremely, and by her consistent Christian life as a member of the church, no doubt many will be led to a closer walk with God. Her pastor always received a warm welcome to her home, and shared its hospitalities as one of her family. The sick were never neglected, nor the poor turned from her door empty-handed. She had been sick only a few days when God called her home. She left no testimony, being unconscious for several hours before her death; but we have sufficient evidence that shines from her beautiful life of submission to God, that a light that shone here is only more radiant in his kingdom.

Her Pastor.

Mr. Dan Hutchinson died July 28, 1902, in Macon, Miss. Bro. Hutchinson was born in Elbert county, Ga. I have not the date of his birth at hand, but he was well advanced in years, being, perhaps, seventy years old. He was one of the first members of Macon Methodist Church. To those who did not know him, two facts in his life will be very suggestive of his life and character, viz.: He was for fifty years a member of the Methodist Church, and was a Sunday-school superintendent in his church for twenty-six years. On Oct. 3, 1853, he was happily married to Miss Permelia Cockrell. There were seven children born of this union, but all preceded him into the other world except one daughter. It is not difficult to sum up Bro. Hutchinson's life, for his was a life wherein the spiritual was enthroned over the carnal; where "Christ was all, and in all." He believed that Christ redeemed this old world with his blood, and, therefore, had a right to it; and he was ever ready to claim that right for his Savior. Perhaps the most striking characteristic of his life was his uncompromising stand against evil of all kinds, and especially the popular evils of the day. He was a great friend of the preacher. He made his pastors feel that his home was a retreat for them, where rest and sympathy could be found; and many an itinerant has found under his roof rest, sympathy, and help. As a husband and father, he was considerate, tender, and kind; as a friend, true and loyal. His ship has passed over the storm-line into the bay, the anchor at last is cast, sails are furled, and the shout goes up, "Home at last!" May God bless and comfort the wife and daughter left behind! He is not here, but yonder, waiting for loved ones to come.

S. L. Pope.

Bro. J. F. H. Carpenter was born Jan. 21, 1857, and died Sept. 17, 1902 His home was seven miles west of Booneville, Prentiss county, Miss. He died at home after a brief, but severe illness, and leaves a wife and several children, and other kindred, to mourn their loss. Bro. Carpenter was one of our best citizens. He was supervisor for his district for a long time. He took a deep interest in all public matters, specially schools and churches. He was said to be among the best farmers of the county. He and a brother beginning in life very poor had, by industry, made good landed property. They held it all an undivided whole. Scarcely has such devotion between brothers ever been seen as with these. But Bro. Carpenter's crowning glory as a man was seen in his devotion to his church. He served as recording steward for a long time. He was a recognized leader among his brethren. His life was most valuable; the church suffers great loss by his death. He was a good father and husband; his home was the preacher's home. A good man has gone to his reward. May the gentle hand of the Lord sustain the dear ones at home, and all meet after a while in the world of light and glory!

W. M. Young.

Miss Maggie Lou Jones was born Oct. 15, 1874, and died at Bolton, Miss., July 18, 1902, aged twenty-seven years nine months and three days. She had been an invalid since May, 1895. Just as she was entering the sphere of young womanhood she became partially paralyzed, and from that time till the day of her death she was cut off from the ordinary pleasures and activities of life. At times hopes were entertained by her loved ones that she would recover; but such was not to be her lot. Her mission in life was fulfilled in patient resignation to the will of God. This beautiful trait of Christian character endeared her not only to those of her own home, but to all who knew her. Who knows what her influence for good as a patient sufferer was and will be? Living as she did, no dying testimony was needed to comfort the bereaved ones. As earthly objects grew dim to her vision, heavenly ones came in view. Doubtless, her anticipations have been realized. She rests with Him who loved her and gave Himself for her.

L. Cabley.

Henry E. Richards was born Feb. 10, 1871, in Richardsville, Ky. After a sickness of twenty-five days he died Sept. 19, 1902. In the evening, at the close of the day, from his cottage home in Gneydan, his soul took its flight home to God. He came to us, in the strength of young Christian manhood, from Richardsville circuit, of the Louisville Conference. He was an ideal Christian father. He leaves a faithful Christian wife and a baby girl, together with friends and loved ones, to mourn his death. We loved him. Those who knew him could not help but feel his loss. His walk among us resulted in a spiritual benediction to our souls. His sickness wasted his body, but the approach of death invigorated his soul, and while speaking of his Master's will, he died a triumphant death. To you who mourn his loss: He who wept with those that weep will bind your wounded heart. Henceforth, in commending you to God, this shall ever remain my inspiration: to know that he is there.

MISS SARAH FINLEY,

Vice-President of the Palmetto Club, Memphis, Tenn.

Miss Sarah Finley.

Wine of Cardui is a thoroughly scientific and modern remedy, meeting the needs of the modern woman in the modern way—without the torture of an operation. Wine of Cardui has cured them in the privacy of their homes and it has found a place in the hearts of American women that no other medicine has found. In their gratitude over 10,000 American women have written letters commending Wine of Cardui. Wine of Cardui meets their wants as no other medicine does. It sustains the young girl at the shock of her entrance to womanhood. Women who take Wine of Cardui have little discomfort during pregnancy and little pain at childbirth. When the change of life appears they enter a happy, healthy old age. Every month it comes to the rescue to assist Nature in throwing the impurities from the body.

Miss Sarah Finley, of Memphis, Tenn., vice-president of the Palmetto Club of that city, speaks for herself and many friends when she bestows the following praise on Wine of Cardui.

"Among the numerous medicines placed before suffering women for their relief none can touch McElree's Wine of Cardui. It towers above them all as a reliable female remedy. It simply drives pain and disease away and restores health in an incredibly short period. I have taken great interest in this medicine for the past two years, since it brought health and strength to me. I have also recommended it to a number of my friends and they who have used it speak of it in the highest terms and I feel that it is praise well bestowed."

If you are suffering from female weakness Wine of Cardui is the medicine you need.

You can have health the same as Miss Finley if you will take the Wine of Cardui treatment. If you need advice further than the complete directions given on the bottle, address The Ladies Advisory Department, Chattanooga Med. Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

HAPPY HENS MEAN PROFIT!

"BOSWELL'S 20th CENTURY POULTRY HOUSE" is a little book which describes the most convenient, practical, and well-appointed hen-house ever devised—given plans, with precise instructions for building. Cheap to build but as planned as to revolutionize poultry keeping. Thousands saved for with ease. The author has the house in practical operation. Lice and other vermin exist in this house. Doubles winter egg yield by making hens happy. Book tells how to handle hens in winter, gives positive ration for winter eggs, and other things you ought to know about hens. Order at once or you will surely wish you had when cold weather comes to nip your egg yield. PRICE, FIFTY CENTS.

Thomasville Charge.

Our new Methodist Church at Monterey, in Rankin county, was dedicated on the second Sunday in October. Dr. I. W. Cooper was to have been with us, but, on account of sickness in his family, he did not come, and Bro. H. G. Hawkins came. His preaching was both spiritual and thoughtful.

Our new church at Thomasville will be dedicated on the first Sunday in November. Dr. W. B. Murrah will preach the dedication sermon for us.

Rev. T. B. Holloman, D. D., dedicated our Mt. Carmel Church for us early in the year.

We have completed three new churches this year, and have the fourth one almost completed. Three of them will have been dedicated during the year.

We have not had the increase in membership during the year that we had the two years previous, but advancement has been made in a material way that is encouraging.

W. A. TERRY, P. C.

WANTED.

Four strong, healthy, settled Christian young ladies to pay half of the cost of board, washing, and tuition, by cooking one meal a day, or pay all the cost of board, washing, and some some special branch by cooking two meals a day. Apply at once.

General News.

The Arbitration Commission met at Washington and decided upon a mode of procedure in the investigation of the anthracite coal strike. The Commission will begin work at Scranton, Pa., Thursday morning.

President Roosevelt, in his annual message, will urge Congress to make liberal appropriations for the Navy and continue the work of constructing new battleships.

The European nations, led by Germany and France, will oppose the ratification of the proposed reciprocity treaty between the United States and Cuba.

Premier Combes, of France, is negotiating with the French coal operators and miners with the view of settling the coal strike by arbitration.

Non-union bill posters were attacked by strikers at Chicago and seven men were seriously wounded before the police could quell the riot.

The Colombian Government has demanded $10 000,000 in cash and $600,000 a year rental for the Panama Canal franchise.

Grover Cleveland says the tariff is now, and will continue to be until equitably settled the paramount issue in American politics.

The Navy Department will ask Congress for an increased appropriation for arms and ammunition for the new warships.

NO; YOU CAN NOT SELL "any old thing" merely by advertising. Many liniments are advertised. Only one, Perry Davis' Painkiller, has stood the test of sixty years. To day it is more popular than ever. 25 and 50c.

TOBACCO HABIT.

I guarantee to cure anything that walks the earth of tobacco habit in all of its forms. Any reference you want. Dr. J. S. HILL, Greenville, Texas.

Marriages.

How Some of our Readers Can Make Money.

Having read of the success of some of your readers selling Dish Washers, I have tried the work with wonderful success. I have not made less than $5 every day for the last six months. The Mound City Dish Washer gives good satisfaction and every family wants one. A lady can wash and dry the dishes without removing her gloves and can do the work in two minutes. I got my sample machine from the Mound City Dish Washer Co., of St. Louis, Mo. I need not to take orders and sell it. Dish Washer is the best day. The Mound City Dish Washer Co. will start you. Write them for particulars. Ladies can do as well as men. JOHN F. M.

R·I·P·A·N·S

I was troubled with sour stomach, and after eating would be in misery. I thought I would try Ripans Tabules, and I have had no trouble with my stomach since. I am never without them in the house now, and I give them to my children when they feel out of sorts.

A Chance to Make Money.

I have been selling Perfumes for the past six months. I make them myself at home and sell to friends and neighbors. Have made $710. Everybody buys a bottle. For 50 cts. worth of material I make Perfumes that would cost $2 in drug stores. I also sold 125 formulas for making perfumes at $1 each.

I first made it for my own use only, but the curiosity of friends as to where I procured such exquisite odors, prompted me to sell it. I clear from $25 to $35 per week. I do not canvass; people come and send to me for the perfumes. Any intelligent person can do as well as I do. For 42 cts. in stamps I will send you the formula for making all kinds of perfumes and sample bottle prepaid. I will also help you get started in the business. MAY HA FRANCIS

Cuba, it is thought by some, is disposed to be contrary. The new republic is charged with being ungrateful. A reciprocity treaty was proposed by our government some time since, the avowed purpose of which was to relieve Cuba of heavy export taxes, but the offered kindness has been rejected—at least, for the time being. The Cuban Congress adjourned without ratifying it, although it was submitted two months ago. A member of the Cuban Congress has declared that the opposition to ratification is to be regarded as a protest against the presence of United States soldiers, eight companies of coast artillerymen being still on the island. If ratification of the treaty depends upon the removal of these troops, the matter, it is said, will be long delayed, for Cuba has no coast defenders at all, and the United States is under obligation to protect the island. And under the treaty between the two governments it is for the United States, not the Cuban Congress, to say when troops are to be withdrawn.—It has developed during the last ten days that certain foreign nations are opposed to the reciprocity offered Cuba by our government, and it is probable that this opposition has something to do with the backwardness of the Cuban Congress. The matter will be pressed when the Congress reconvenes, and will, doubtless, be carried through.

The school children of our country make a vast army. They are constantly increasing in number, and the school term is constantly lengthening. This indicates a healthy public sentiment on the subject of popular education. The census of 1901 shows that there were then 26,098,123 children of school age. Of these 22,837,000 were native whites. The active school army, made up of children from five to twenty years of age, numbered 17,299,230. These figures do not include the large number of students, the majority of whom are of school age, who are attending colleges and private schools and the many normal colleges of the country. Compulsory education in some of our cities, better facilities, and better teachers, have had much to do in this large attendance — an increase over the previous year of 278,520. In more ways than one these figures are encouraging, and there is only one discouraging feature, viz.: the effort to make our public schools more and more secular by eliminating everything of a religious character, which effort, unfortunately, is frequently headed by persons professing to be religious. Those who thus interfere with our public schools can not be too closely watched.

A question somewhat puzzling to laymen is to be settled by the courts. The question is: Are those who practice osteopathy for the purpose of healing disease or mending fractures, etc., doctors in the usual sense of the term? One of this school was arraigned in court on the charge of "practicing medicine without a license." The defendant's plea was that in the practice of his profession he did not employ medicines of any kind, and was not compelled, under the law, to undergo an examination and obtain a license. On this plea he was released. On the other hand, the State set forth the fact that the first requisite of a practitioner is knowledge of disease; that a proper diagnosis of a case is essential to the application of remedies, and that one who professes to have such knowledge, and puts it to practical use, practices medicine within the meaning of the law. Whether the case tried will be appealed we do not know. In the meantime the osteopathist passes for a doctor, and practices without any authority from the State, while other doctors must go through a long course of training, and after all go before a State Board of Pharmacy and obtain a license before he is allowed to legally administer a remedy.

Missionaries are the forerunners of civilization and commerce. Trade to some extent is carried on among uncivilized people, but trade without the leavening influence of the gospel does not amount to much as a civilizer. Bishop Moore, of the M. E. Church, who has just returned from a long stay in China, in a speech before the Methodist Social Union of New York, said: "Missions make the best markets in the world. If we succeed in making China a Christian nation, we shall be doing something that will pay us commercially as well as from a religious point of view. This country has a vital interest in seeing that the gospel is carried to the Far East, especially to Corea, which has been placed by Providence as a bulwark against the encroachments of Russia." It would pay the world to send missionaries to all heathen lands, if for no other purpose than to establish markets.

Charlie, the Lizard Killer.

There lived neighbor to us when I was a boy a very respectable family, in which there was a big boy—one of the main forces on the place to make a crop. Charlie was the name of the boy. He was of far more than common strength, and not lazy at all. You could depend on him every time to do something, but his efforts were not well directed every time. And he was not always reasonable. Indeed, one of the unhandiest things about him was the tenacity with which he clung to a purpose. Where many people are distressingly weak Charlie was sometimes distressingly strong. When once he set out in real earnest to accomplish anything, he lost sight of all related matters and kept to the one thing—the accomplishment of the thing in mind. Within limits, this is a fine quality of mind, but very embarrassing when carried too far. It was laying by time, and Charlie was sent to give the finishing touches to an uncommonly fine piece of corn just jointing. It was like a canebrake; good for forty bushels to the acre. The father was very proud of this particular piece of corn, and sent Charlie down to lay it by. About the middle of the afternoon he went down to see how the work was progressing. To his horror he found Charlie chunking up a tall stump. Evidently he had been at it a long time, for the chunks were lying all around, and about a quarter of an acre of corn was thrashed down and utterly ruined. Charlie was wrought up in a profuse perspiration, and wore on his face a look of grim determination. "What on earth are you doing, Charlie?" the father cried. "I am trying to kill that lizard," was the reply. "Trying to kill a lizard! What do you want to kill a lizard for? A lizard is no count. It can't do any harm. Look what you have done; ruined all this corn trying to kill a miserable lizard. Be ashamed of yourself!" Charlie looked round, and for the first time saw the ruin he had wrought. But his purpose was not changed, for he heroically said: "I don't care. I am going to kill that lizard if I lose a crop. That lizard ran over my foot, and I am going to get him before I quit."

Alas! for the lizard killers in the kingdom—men to whom it is more to run down some small matter and have it their way than it is to edify the saints, build up the churches, and spread the gospel over the world. With many of them it is even worse. Some small, inconsequential question about history or what somebody said; some innocent baby picture, as natural as life, sets the lizard killers off on a rampage, and they will lose a whole crop to run it down, and then likely leave matters like Charlie left the lizard up the stump; not any more settled than at the start. I have known men capable of excellent service go wild after a very small lizard, devastate churches, tear up the denomination, and seem never to care what came of the crop, just so the lizard was killed. Some go entirely beyond Charlie, and quit even pretending to make a crop. Their life-work is to deal with small questions, out of the ordinary. One of the family gave his life to the Greek accent. In time he came on an accent that puzzled him. He studied it long, but could make nothing out of it. He then made a journey to a specialist in his line. The professor looked at it, took up a magnifying glass and looked. Then he wet his finger and rubbed it. It was a fly speck. I do not know whether these learned men were Baptists, but they might have been. They have plenty of kinfolks who are Baptists.

Lizard hunting is the main business of not a few church members. A whole harvest of souls does not concern them as much as some small question, merely incidental to the main thing. I was once at an association. The preaching was under an arbor to an immense throng. The preacher was an unschooled, but not uneducated man. He did not know grammar, but he knew the gospel, and preached it with marvelous power. His subject was a great doctrine which he expounded with enrapturing clearness, unction, and force. We were borne heavenward. The close came, and a profound feeling was felt. A sprig of a school-teacher touched me on the arm, and said, "Did you notice how he broke the Queen's English?" Think of it! We were carried to the very gates of heaven. The glory of the Lamb and of his reign was spread before us, and here was a lizard killer plying his small vocation around the very throne of glory. He would, doubtless, claim to have a soul, but, alas! for the littleness of it. If all lizard killers would pursue their chosen calling in out-of-the-way places, where they would do no harm, they could be borne with better. But they have a fondness for growing crops. I have recently heard of a church torn to tatters over a small question touching the organ—its place in the meeting. The lizard had to be killed, if the crop was lost. The lizards give Zion more trouble than the lions, not that they are dangerous, but they tickle so many people's feet, and are so hard to run down and kill, for their very littleness.

I neglected to say at the proper place that Charlie was a half idiot.—Dr. J. B. Gambrell, in the Baptist Standard.

The Correspondence School.

The Correspondence School of the Biblical Department is making rapid progress. Secretary Cunninggim has been at work every day since July getting ready for the enrollment of students and preparing work for them. The meeting of the General Board of Education in August went over the whole ground and perfected its plans. Dr J. D. Hammond, Secretary of Education, is representing this cause at each Annual Conference visited by him, and his effective work is beginning to bear fruit.

The students already enrolled are distributed over a wide area, reaching from Oregon to New Mexico, and from Texas to Maryland. Among them are represented the following Conferences: St. Louis, New Mexico, Southwest Missouri, Missouri, Columbia, Louisville, Baltimore, Alabama, Texas, Western North Carolina, and Tennessee. A layman has indicated his intention of taking the work, while a minister of the M. E. Church living in West Virginia has had his name entered on the register.

One third of the students now registered are taking the graduate course, while the remainder are distributed over the four Conference years. Some have had either college or theological training, or both; the others have had neither. In age they range from twenty-five to fifty-two. It will be seen, therefore, that however young or old one may be, and whatever his previous training, the privileges of the Correspondence School stand fully open to him.

The interest which has been felt all along in the correspondence work is spreading rapidly throughout the church. A presiding elder aged fifty years, a prominent man in his Conference, gives his reasons for taking the course in these words: "First, for review; second, for books that are now in the course that were not when I passed it; third, that I may be better able to advise the undergraduates who ought to take it; and, fourth, for the sake of the cause." Already the students have begun to express their appreciation. One of the first to enroll writes: "I am very much pleased with the work and with the manner of conducting it."

As already indicated, arrangements have been made for five years of work. Four of these cover the Conference course of study; one is devoted to graduate work. Forty lesson sheets are prepared for each year. These lesson sheets are printed, and contain suggestions helpful to the students in the preparation of the lesson. Accompanying each lesson sheet is a list of questions which the student must answer, returning his answers to the teachers for correction. For all the courses—five years, as stated—two hundred lesson sheets, or more, are needed. It will be seen that the preparation of these sheets is a task of magnitude. Besides this, all papers sent in by students must be carefully read and corrected, and returned to the student. At the same time personal letters are written, calling attention to needed points, and giving personal guidance in the prosecution of the work. Nearly all the work of instruction is done by the biblical faculty of Vanderbilt University. This work must be done in addition to their other duties. Their willingness to undertake this great task is the best proof that could be given of the importance of this work to the whole church.

The Conferences, as they meet, are taking favorable action in regard to the school, authorizing the Examining Committees to accept the certificates of the Correspondence School in lieu of the regular examinations. This argues great good for the cause, for the action of the several Conferences has much to do with the attitude of the young men in the work. H. C. WHITE.

Are We a Sounding Brass or a Tinkling Cymbal?

This caption is suggested by things that happened in our North Mississippi Conference.

First, We sent out a large advertisement at no little expense, making appointments for two Sunday school institutes, to-wit; at West Point and Oxford. Preachers, superintendents and teachers of Sunday schools were urged to attend, with the promise of Dr. Hamill to lead in the Institute. Some of us attended. Dr. Hamill was on hand, ready to lead. Six pastors attended the Oxford Institute, and some of them only once or twice during the session; half as many superintendents and a few teachers attended. Dr. Hamill, in the charity of his soul, apologized for the meagerness of the turnout, saying, "Every great work starts from a small beginning;" and, with chalk in hand and words that enlighten, proceeds to the most practical and thorough work of instruction on the various methods of conducting and teaching a Sunday-school successfully it has ever been our privilege to hear. His wife was no less proficient in her department (the primary). It sent a thrill of joy through my soul as I sat and caught the ideas for our future great work of the church—the teaching of the children. How I longed for every preacher, superintendent and teacher of our Conference not at West Point to be at Oxford! I must emphasize "preacher," "teacher," and "superintendent."

Now, I ask, Are the various Institutes and Conferences provided for by our great church, and appointed by our chief ministers, sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal? Are they nothing? If not, we, by all means, ought to attend. We need all the instruction and inspiration these meetings can give. I never attended one in my life but I returned home a wiser and a better man. I want to especially insist on all of our young brethren attending all the meetings appointed for us, if possible. That which happened to our Institute at Oxford in non-attendance happens so often with some preachers in not going to Missionary Institutes, District Conferences, and sometimes Annual Conferences.

Brethren, my judgment is, we who willfully fail to attend these meetings will, ere long, become back numbers.

Again: Is our Annual Conference a sounding brass? Is there nothing in it to us? What do we go there for? Certainly it should be to transact the business of the church. Listen: How often it happens a number of members are called on for their reports and other purposes, and they are out on the streets!

Brethren, you have all been to town before. We ought to have more respect for the church and the work committed to us than to act thus, unless our church is a tinkling cymbal.

One other question: Are our Conference schools sounding brass or tinkling cymbals? If so, what do we mean by purchasing property for schools, appointing Boards of Trustees, electing presidents and faculty, making assessments upon and collecting from all of our charges for our Conference schools? Why all this routine of worry, expense of valuable time, money, and exciting high hopes for the near future, if there is nothing in it all to us? If our schools are not tinkling cymbals, will we not be true to our promise to support the institutions of the church, true to our promises to the people, loyal in all things to our great church and the Conference of which we are so proud?

Brethren, let us consider these things. If our institutions of learning stand for anything, let us stand to them; do what we propose as a Conference. Let us be men, not children. Let no man beguile us with cut rates. "A house divided against itself can not stand."

The Mississippi Sea Coast.

BY REV. JAS. G. GALLOWAY.

The Board of Missions of the Mississippi Conference has paid more attention to the Mississippi sea coast in the last few years than ever before, and its investment has yielded good returns. But this section has not yet received the attention its possibilities demand.

I do not mean by this that the Board of Missions has not done what it could, for I know it is hampered for lack of funds, and would gladly appropriate every dollar asked for by each presiding elder, if they had it to give. And I do not mean that the pastors on the coast are not well cared for. But I mean that we must have more men. We must have a resident pastor in each of the large towns, and some provision must be made to this end, or we can not accomplish the work the church is called on to do.

Think of towns of four thousand inhabitants, or more, with service only two Sundays in a month! Would it not be a far more profitable investment to send men to each of such towns with an appropriation, say, of $400 the first year, $300 for the second, $200 the third, and $100 the fourth, making $1,000 in four years, if thereby you can develop a self-supporting station, than to give to the same place on a circuit $100 per year for ten years, and still have a mission?

There is no part of the State of Mississippi that is growing so rapidly as that embraced in the Seashore district. Then let us send men to occupy these towns, and advance and capture this beautiful section of our State for our King.

From Aberdeen.

DEAR DOCTOR BOSWELL: Last Sunday I took thirty-one into the church as part of the visible results of the great union meeting conducted by Bro. J. B. Culpepper and his son, Burke. The other churches received a number also.

We are closing our third year in Aberdeen, and it has been the best of the three. The finances will be in full, and a net increase of over sixty members.

With best wishes,

RICHARD WILKINSON.

There, doubtless, are believers who gratefully recognize that "to die is gain," and who would welcome translation from earth to paradise, but the Lord's appointment is at present for this life. An old writer says: "Rivers of themselves would seek the straightest and directest way to the sea, as being greedy to pay tribute to their great master, the ocean; but God hath set a mountain here, and a hill there, in the way, that so by turning and winding, now this way, now that, they might enrich the earth with abundance and beauty. Thus a good man desires to depart and be with Christ, but to 'abide in the flesh is more needful for you.'"—The Examiner.

Christian Advocate.

BISHOP ROBERT PAINE.

BY REV. J. D. HARBEE, D. D.

When God designs a man for some great work he usually prepares him for the task by severest tests, and leaves his mark upon him. Jacob wrestled all night long with the angel, and when at break of day he prevailed and rose from the earth a victor, it was with a dislocated hip joint; but every halting step from the scene of that horrible night was a prophecy of dominion. Saul of Tarsus, the "blood-intoxicated zealot," was breathing out threatening and slaughter on his way to Damascus to destroy the Christians, when suddenly "a light" above the brightness of an Asiatic sun at midday burst upon the scene and struck him to the earth blind. After that the stalwart, self-reliant Saul was led by the hand as a little child, and when the scales finally fell from his eyes, and he could see, it was doubtless with weakened vision and a liability to granulated sore eyes, denominated by him "a thorn of the flesh." The "messenger of Satan" sent to buffet him was designed to take out of him all conceit of his own sufficiency, and to humble him before God, that the Holy Ghost might use him efficiently for the glory of God in the salvation of men.

Bishop Paine had a similar experience in the outset of his great career. I heard him recite it to his cabinet at Murfreesboro, Tenn., when he was eighty years old. The presiding elders had assembled, but noted that the Bishop seemed a little tardy in coming from his private room into the council chamber. But when he did appear his face was radiant, and his venerable frame shook with emotion, and his salutation was: "Brethren, rejoice with me, and help me praise the Lord; this is the anniversary of my regeneration. I had been agonizing in prayer for weeks, and one night at a prayer meeting, in a little log cabin within two miles of old Pisgah Camp Ground, in Giles county, Tenn., the blessing descended upon me; and it seemed as if God had lifted the roof from the house and poured all heaven into my soul."

What could have been the design of this protracted dark struggle? It was to prepare a modern apostle for his great work, and as it was designed that the trumpet of the gospel to be placed in his hands should blow the blast of a captain of Israel's hosts, it should give no uncertain sound to the people. The man who has not drunk the wormwood and the gall has no appreciation of the sinfulness of sin, and is not, therefore, prepared to deal faithfully with souls. The superficial views which preachers sometimes hold of salvation, and their erroneous teachings, are due to the fact that they have never been saved themselves, nor felt that they were lost. Robert Paine might have become great in the secular profession, but he never could have become a great preacher without an experience of the great salvation.

His preaching was not uniformly great; he sometimes failed utterly; but that was not strange: a succession of mountains necessarily displays valleys between the enormous elevations. But when he was in one of his felicitous moods it is doubted that he ever was surpassed by any man, if indeed he ever had a peer. A notable illustration of his marvelous pulpit power and the effect produced by the sermon, lingered as a tradition until the last witness was dead. The place was Antioch Camp Ground, near to Clarksville, Tenn. The regular annual camp meeting began, as usual, on Friday evening, and Robert Paine, the presiding elder, preached the first sermon. It was a cold performance, and so was every successive sermon and service until midday Sunday. The people as well as the preachers were perplexed and distressed, for meetings of great power had characterized all past efforts on that consecrated ground. On Sabbath morning early the young presiding elder took his small Bible and plunged into the nearby forest and was not seen again until he was summoned to the stand by the signal for public worship and preaching. His theme was the general judgment, and his imagery was so gorgeous and his descriptions so realistic, that the people had a sense of the presence of the great day of assize and fancied they heard the trump of doom and felt the earth reel and rock under their feet, and saw the Judge descending with the angelic hosts accompanying him. The scene which followed beggars description and not another sermon could be preached for twenty-fours hours or any definite form be given to public worship.

That such a man should have been chosen by his brethren for the office and work of an itinerant General Superintendent, or Bishop, of the church is not surprising. God had set his mark upon him and suggested him for that exalted station and responsible work, and it was plainly the duty of the church to recognize the divine appointment and place the miter upon the honorable brow. That was done by the General Conference of the M. E. Church, South, in session at Petersburg, Va., May, 1846. The consecration of Bishop Paine was distinguished by the same phenomena which marked his conversion, and had become epochal in his career as a preacher. His room-mate testified that on the night following his election the Bishop-elect never retired, but through all the silent watches he was on his knees or walking the floor wringing his hands in agony. About the break of day, as it had been in the hour of his new birth, so now "it seemed that God lifted the roof from the house and poured all heaven into his soul." Then he consented to receive ordination, and thirty-six years afterward I saw him lay his credentials down in the lap of the church as pure and unsullied as they were the day on which they were intrusted to his care.

Bishop Paine administered the high office with which he had been intrusted with the tender sympathy of a mother and the authority of one born to command. Hence, he knew how to "strike a hard blow with a soft hand," as was illustrated in a notable instance. He was presiding in the Alabama Conference, and sought an interview with John C. Keener and his young wife upon the question of his transfer to the Louisiana Conference, to be stationed in New Orleans. The two young people promptly informed the Bishop that they could not decide a question involving so great responsibility, and requested him to decide for them. Nothing more was said on the subject, and when the Bishop came on into the church at the final session to announce the appointments which he had made he told young Keener to find his wife and tell her he had transferred her husband and stationed him in the deadly city of the Delta, saying, "I do not wish to shock her."

Only the man with innate qualifications for the office, and who has received it by the unsolicited suffrage of his brethren, is worthy to occupy so exalted a station, or could strike a blow, hard or otherwise, with a soft hand. Ambition becomes all things to all men until it is attained: and then it displays a hand of iron. The ecclesiastical politician is not worthy of a place in the church, much less is he worthy to fill its exalted stations of honor and authority. Ambition for place in the church is evidence of a low, coarse nature: it is the bramble readily accepting dominion over the forest which was declined by the fig tree, the olive and the vine, because they were unselfish, being contented with being useful. So was Bishop Robert Paine. He preferred not to have been made a Bishop, but when convinced that it was the will of God he responded to the call, "Here am I; send me." He met grave questions with calm and unwavering courage, and never straddled or equivocated. He believed that he who shirks a responsibility assumes a greater, and that the man who can not administer an official trust impersonally is unworthy of the place. And what contempt he had for mock modesty and that affectation which parades the virtue of humility! That is a species of pious-proud or righteous lying for which he had no tolerance. A person named was represented to him as desiring a certain thing, but the Bishop replied, "If you know what he wants, it is more than I have ever been able to learn." Dear, grand old man, shall we ever see thy equal again? — Nashville Banner.

Warning, and Judgment Following.

BY "OCTOGENARIAN."

In the early part of last Spring we read in this journal a dream by a lady. In it was a threatened judgment, and as it has come and gone, we beg of you to allow the dream repeated here in connection with the judgment that followed. The dream was a proclamation in behalf of Mississippi and North Louisiana, that missionaries be sent at once. The proclamation said: "They have my word, but heed it not. Should they not heed it, they will surely suffer when my judgment comes." In the ordinary course of nature we noticed nothing unusual until some time in April. Just at that time the corn was getting ready to be worked out, and was unusually promising; then fell the heaviest flood of rain all over the country that was ever known in this land. It washed the beds flat, and scattered the corn all over the land. To plant over was a necessity. This was done, and the crops were cultivated throughout the season, and laid by without rain enough to lay the dust at any time. About three months, or more, the drouth continued. The effect of this has been to strip the country of all corn. We do not suppose that there is corn enough in all this land to bread the population sixty days, even if it were fit to eat. What little was made on low land is black with smut, and, when ground, the meal is the color of smut. We doubt the safety of feeding it to stock. All crops of potatoes, peas, etc., a total failure, as well as the corn. The hill cotton is little better than the corn. The best of judges say it will take ten or twelve acres to make a bale. The bottom cotton is something better, though the entire crop will, perhaps, not pay over one-half the cost of production. We passed through the Civil War, and thought we had seen a country stripped, but this sight was reserved until we passed through this drouth. In this country there is literally nothing to eat, nor will there be money from the cotton to buy it. How the people are to get through the Winter with their stock, and should they do so, how they are to start another crop without help, are problems too intricate for my speculation. The citizens of the entire country seem bewildered, not knowing what to do. Many have abandoned their plantations, and gone seeking other employment. The farm laborers have deserted their crops and gone to the railroad.

We have been a citizen of Mississippi nearly seventy years, and this is the first time that we have ever known any scarcity in the land. We learn that this state of things exists everywhere in Mississippi, except in the northern part of the State. In the hill country of North Louisiana it is said to be no better. Out of the thousands reduced to poverty by this judgment, how many can adopt the language of the Psalmist, and say: "The judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether. More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold." During its prevalence we thought some on the philosophy of drouth, and if you will permit, we will give you the result of our silent meditations.

The astrologer goes to the stars for his almanac, but we think it more in harmony with astronomical science to go to the sun. Whatever be the origin of that mighty planet, whether he be a slough from the Pleiades, as infidelic science claims, or whether he be a brilliant planet dropping from the hands of his Creator, as we believe, he must surely possess within his spacious bosom a vast compartment in which he generates light, heat, and electricity, with which to baptize his numerous family of planets and their satellites as they revolve around him as their center. Light, heat, electricity, atmospheric air, the vertical and slanting rays, are elements with which all seasons and climates found on our planet are constituted. If science has ever awarded to light any power over vapor, it has escaped our notice; but to heat and electricity it has. The former generates and expands; the latter condenses it. This being the case, the only thing necessary to produce a drouth over any given area is to restrain electricity from circulation over that area in such quantities as to produce condensation of vapor, and the drouth follows as a philosophic sequence. We think we saw this theory demonstrated during the drouth. At times we would have heavy clouds, and humid and heavy atmosphere, indicating a speedy fall of rain, and in a few hours it would all be dispersed. Occasionally we would have a sound, grating and harsh, in the clouds, resembling thunder, with not rainfall enough to lay the dust. The firefly is a bug that luxuriates in an electric atmosphere, and in it will fly near the ground, and throw off his phosphorescent light profusely. During the drouth they gradually ascended into the air till above the tree-tops, throwing off but little light, and finally all disappeared. The closing of the drouth by rain, we think, gives abundant testimony to the truth of the theory. That day the clouds came, as before the humid atmosphere came, but we regarded it as simply a repetition of what had happened; but suddenly a glaring flash of lightniug, followed by heavy detonating thunder, presented and repeated themselves several times, and then the rain came, and this occurred each day for six consecutive days, clearly showing that abundant electricity had suddenly fallen upon us. But some skeptic will ask, How can electricity be restrained from circulation over any given area? With him we will adopt the Socratic mode of reasoning, and answer his question by asking him another: How was light restrained from circulating over Egypt when Goshen, by its side, enjoyed its usual sunlight? The answer to these and all similar questions is simply this: Omniscience instituted the laws of nature, and Omnipotence wields them when necessary in the chastening of his creatures.

We are no alarmist: we simply state facts, and leave the church and the world to draw their own deductions: but at the same time we think it the duty of the church to search for the golden wedge.

Affairs at Centenary.

BY PROF. R. P. LINFIELD.

Centenary's silence thus far is not to be construed as evidence of the fact that she is in a state of lethargy this session, for her campus is one of the busiest scenes to be found in rural Louisiana. Few, if any, in these quarters have idle time upon their hands, or misused opportunities to their discredit, for the type of activity in and around this dignified old institution can be classified only as strenuous. The work is systematized as never before, and each fellow is impressed with his office in the great machinery.

Prof. Harrell, our latest faculty acquisition, came to us from Hendrix College, and took hold of the work left by Dr. Sullivan. The disadvantage of following a man of acknowledged success is recognized by college men as well as by business men. Prof. Harrell is the successor of one who has been identified with Centenary's interests for fifteen years, and, although his temperament and methods are entirely different from those of his predecessor, he is already recognized as one of the most capable and popular men that we have, and is gaining a stronger hold on the boys daily.

The commercial department, under the management of Prof. J. M. Reaser, assisted by Mr. J. S. Vaught, is the scene of busy activity, and it is not difficult, to one entering the commercial room, to imagine it a type of the real business world, with all its bustle and stir. Profs. Reaser and Vaught know how to keep everybody at work.

The faculty delegated the president to represent them at the meeting of the Association of Southern Colleges and Preparatory Schools, which convenes at the University of Mississippi on Nov. 6 and 7. This gathering is attended and addressed by some of the foremost educators in the South, and Centenary could not afford not to be represented. Her record and present excellence demand it.

Rev. W. H. Coleman, pastor of our church at Jackson, is a familiar figure on the campus, and is at home among the boys. He possesses a manner and is actuated by a love that will render him a great force for good among our boys, and it is hoped by all that the authorities at the coming Conference will be constrained to let us have his help here for another Conference year.

One of the brightest and most diligent of our students here is Miss Jennie May, daughter of our Rev. H. W. May. Besides leading her classes times without number, she had the honor to win last session's Latin prize, which is one of the most valuable rewards offered here, and is attended with unusual honor. Her friends expect a great deal from her future.

Prof. J. E. Northcutt, during the two years that he has been here, has so impressed his personality on the status of the college, and his capabilities on those in authority, that he was elevated to the vice-presidency of the college at the opening of the present session. His colleagues in the faculty regard this as a judicious selection, and feel that the interests of the college are safe in his hands whenever he is called upon to take the direction of affairs in the absence of the president.

One of the most interesting and inspiring events in the recent history of the college occurred at the Methodist Church here on last Sunday night. Rev. W. H. Nelson, a student of the college, and a prominent member of the senior class, occupied the pulpit, delivering his farewell address before leaving for his new field of labor in West Texas. So faithful has this young man been during the three years of his residence here and so popular had he rendered himself with the community as well as with the college folks, that a desire was evident on the part of his friends to show their love for him in a substantial manner. Therefore, after the sermon, the pastor arose and proposed that the congregation make sufficient contribution to present Mr. Nelson with a railroad ticket to the place of his destination. Rarely has an appeal been so heartily responded to here, and, in a very few moments, a substantial sum was in the hands of the pastor for the purpose indicated. Following this, a further expression was called for, in that each friend of the valiant young minister was given an opportunity to come to the altar and shake his hand, thereby promising him a support of prayer and sympathetic remembrance. The exercise was indeed refreshing, and served to exhibit to Mr. Nelson the fact that his sterling qualities and his consecration have not passed unnoticed. He goes to the Northwest Texas Conference in search of health, and will enter actively upon the work to which he is called. He goes from us in the full possession of the esteem and confidence of his preceptors and fellow-students.

The world delights in sunny people. The old are hungering for love more than for bread. The air of joy is very cheap: and if you can help the poor on with a garment of praise it will be better for them than blankets.—Henry Drummond.

The Child and the Christ.

The child is fond of affection. The little tendrils of the vine feel for the strong supports of affection. That is why, probably, a poor teacher in the Sunday-school, who is a warm-hearted and sincere lover of her class of boys, will hold them steady and attentive, when more scholarly teachers fail. And, let us whisper it softly to the pastors, there may be a hint in it for them. Let us out with it: the basis of attraction to all — to children and adults alike—is love.

The Christ and the child can meet in profound reality—for each craves and gives love. Conceptions of God which show him in reality as a father can anchor the child to prayer and to the Christian life. Do not teach children that God hates them, that he ever hates them, but that he loves them even when they are bad. If children believe God hates them, they will hide; if they believe God loves them even when they are bad, they will be sorry when they go wrong, and they will repent and try again.

Children should feel the love of Christ above every other. Yes. Because earthly friends, even the best, have failings and defects, which may wean the child away from the absolute standard. To place the supreme affection on the Shepherd of the lambs will keep them steadfast and near to him, and to those of far less perfections—to father, brother, humanity — quite probably, throughout life.

Children should be taught to show their love of Christ by a life of love to others. Father, mother, brother, sister, playmate, should be loved and served with a sweeter, better life because the child loves Christ. The child should be taught that to love Christ we must literally obey his words: "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise."

Get the children into personal touch with Christ. Lead them to decision for Christ. Teach them the relation they may sustain to Christ. Help them that they not only face towards him, but decide for him, pray to him, confess him, come to him, live for him, and make their lives an exhibition of his indwelling. Christ will help them overcome their little obstacles, their little trials, keep steadfast in the faith and love of a beautiful life. Bring the child to the Christ early. Let us live for man: therefore let us live for the Child.—Central Christian Advocate.

Home Mission Society.

Home Mission Items. North Mississippi Conference.

New societies are reported at Longtown and Fredonia, both in Sardis district. A good list of subscribers for Our Homes is reported as part of the work of organizing. This is a guarantee of success.

An excellent report comes from Wood Street Auxiliary, Water Valley. This society assumed the parsonage debt, and is rapidly paying it. The Week of Prayer was observed, and $10.57 collected: also a box sent to a needy person.

Como observed the Week of Prayer, closing with a missionary tea. Collection, $10.50.

Sardis Auxiliary observed the Week of Prayer. Collection, $6.26, and more expected.

Gunnison Auxiliary has sent a box of clothing to the Home for their adopted child.

Since March 1, five boxes have been sent from Greenville, two of which were sent by the juvenile society and three by the adult auxiliary. Four boxes went to the Home; one to a needy parsonage in our own Conference.

The Bible Study Circle at Greenville has been reorganized for the Winter, with Mrs. Robert Kemp as leader.

The Committee of the Woman's Board on Literature and Press has asked for the appointment of a superintendent in each Conference Society.

Mrs. G. L. Wrenn, of Gunnison, has accepted the position of superintendent for the North Mississippi Conference W. H. M. S.

Applications for assisting parsonages are coming in. This is a reminder that more societies, more members, and a larger income, are needed.

An Ancient Foe

To health and happiness is Scrofula—as ugly as ever sin entailed upon humankind.

It causes bunches on the neck, figures the skin, inflames the mucous membrane, wastes the muscles, weakens the bones, reduces the power of resistance to disease and the capacity for recovery, and develops into consumption.

"A bunch appeared on the left side of my neck. It caused great pain, was lanced, and became a running sore. I went into a general decline. I was persuaded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and when I had taken six bottles my neck was healed, and I have never had any trouble of the kind since." MRS. K. T. SNYDER, Troy, Ohio.

Unskillful Handling of Deep Things.

BY REV. L. S. JONES.

When Moses saw the burning bush, he heard a voice saying, "Take off thy sandals, for the ground upon which you stand is holy ground." He dare not approach the burning bush, save with uncovered head and unsandaled feet.

Holiness is an inherent, essential attribute of deity, and is but a name for all the glorious attributes of his matchless nature. It is the burning bush enshrining the whole of deity. Holiness in the believer is an imparted quality, and, as a doctrine, should be skillfully handled, not as a shibboleth of a sect, but as one of the deep things of our holy Christianity.

We shall use the term, "holiness," as synonymous with entire sanctification. We do this not because they are synonymous, but because they are thus commonly used.

The Methodist Church is the only church that teaches this doctrine as a possible experience on earth. The Methodist Church teaches that it is subsequent to regeneration, and attainable in this life as a conscious experience.

That I may not be misunderstood, I wish to say that I am an earnest believer in the residue theory of regeneration as the basis of subsequent entire sanctification. This I believe to be the doctrine of the Bible and the teachings of Methodism. What we wish to do in this communication is to enter our protest against the urging of this deep experience upon those who are not prepared for it. To urge children, and even adults who have just been converted, to seek the experience we think unwise. For this reason: In the rosy dawn of early conversion the soul is so completely possessed, and the joy of the new life so full, that it is difficult to lead the soul to see that it needs anything more. The soul, in the glow of early life, throbs and pulsates with joys divine, and feels of the Savior perfectly possessed. It requires time for the regenerate to realize that there is yet a dark something left within—a something that makes it sadly sing, "Prone to wander, Lord, I feel it; prone to leave the God I love."

Again, strong meat is not for babes, but for those of maturer years. The doctrine of entire sanctification is strong meat, such as we do not think appropriate for babes in Christ; and yet I have heard this deep experience urged upon young converts who scarcely understood the meaning of the new life that throbbed within their enraptured souls. There is danger in this of leading the young believer to mistake the waves of joy that are incident to the newly converted for the experience of entire sanctification. Such has been my observation.

Or, again: If the experience of regeneration is not definite, the clearer light of regeneration may be mistaken for the fuller experience of entire sanctification.

Now, while we do not believe in growing into sanctification, we do believe in growing up to sanctification; we mean entire sanctification—that is, of growing into the knowledge of what regeneration has done for the soul, and of what God can and will yet do for the regenerate believer. The soul must have time to become conscious of its need before it can hunger and thirst after righteousness. This consciousness does not come in the early morn of the soul's regenerate experience. It comes later, when the simple milk of the gospel will not satisfy, and the soul begins to hunger for stronger food.

"Are you groaning after it?" expresses the state of the soul that is ready to enter into this deep and precious experience. This is not the state of the new convert; he is then singing:

"How happy are they
Who their Savior obey
And have laid up their treasures above!
Tongue can not express
The sweet comfort and peace
Of a soul in its earliest love!"

With such an experience, where is the place for groanings? When should this groaning begin? Just as soon as the soul can see itself, and know its need of a deeper work of grace, professed by a life that has measured up to the light given.

As a church, we can not afford to neglect a doctrine so fundamental to Methodism, so fundamental to Christianity; but we should not use it as a shibboleth, nor handle it unskillfully. We should not ostracise those who do not agree with our views of the doctrine. May the very God of peace sanctify us wholly as a church, and keep us blameless until his coming!

Port Gibson, Miss., Oct. 18, 1902.

Lesser things will drop out as the hand closes upon the larger duty or the greater blessing, just as the hand that reaches out to grasp the great strong oak lets go its hold on the blade of grass it had gathered.—Phillips Brooks.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

FOREST DISTRICT.

Rev. N. B. Young, in charge of Raleigh circuit, reports a fine meeting at Trinity Church, where he was assisted by the Rev. R. A. Breland, L. E.; a number of conversions, several professions of entire sanctification, and 24 accessions. All assessments paid or pledged. And where F. A. E. Corley and his boys are enlisted, those pledges will be kept—not to mention L. F. Bowling, Sam Clark, and others. Another good meeting at Cedar Grove, where Bro. Breland also helped, resulting in 6 accessions and a number of conversions, reclamations, etc.

At the fourth Quarterly Conference for Shiloh circuit, held Oct. 25, the Rev. W. W. Morse, P. C., reported 22 accessions by scriptural baptism (sprinkling), 28 by vows, and 1 by certificate; 4 infants baptized. There are several applicants yet to be received into full fellowship. T. L. MELLEN, P. E.

ELLISVILLE, MISS.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Our church in Ellisville has been carrying the burden of an $800 church debt for several years. This money was borrowed from the Board of Church Extension. To day we forward to Rev. P. H. Whisner, secretary of the Board, $716.35, which leaves us free from debt. We will hold a praise service next Sunday morning in honor of this propitious event.

The pastor and the presiding elder will be paid in full, and every dollar of the Conference collections paid. When we shall foot up the final amount raised by this church this year, it will amount to fully $1,800, and this station is only two years old.

We had Dr. S. A. Steel, president of Lumberton Manual Labor School, with us last Sunday morning and evening in two grand sermons, and Monday night in his lecture on "Go to the Front." To say that he captured the people, and did us all good, and won golden opinions, is expressing it moderately. Our people took a lively interest in his manual labor school, giving him a good-sized contribution.

Wishing the ADVOCATE and its editor much success, I am,

Yours fraternally,

R. D. NORSWORTHY, Pastor.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

FRANKLINTON CIRCUIT.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Our meeting at Franklinton closed after nine days. Bro. H. W. May did all the preaching. His sermons were, from the first, clear-cut, heart-searching, scriptural, simple, sublime, effectual. The immediate results were not as great as we had hoped; but I trust these sermons are "as bread cast upon the waters, that shall be gathered up after many days." One feature of the meeting I will mention to the credit of the business men of the town. They all closed up places of business, and they and their clerks came to church at 11 o'clock each day, Saturday excepted. We had thirteen to profess conversion, two necessions, and a deal of other good done that will require the day of eternity to unfold. Our young brother, Prof. U. S. Ineichen, gave us music. He is a fine vocalist, and this, with the instrument, gave us quite a lift-up.

T. H. MCCLENDON.

ALBERTA, LA.

DEAR BRO. BOSWELL: Nothing having been reported from Castor mission, Louisiana Conference, I now venture to communicate, in order that our brethren may know that the Lord is with us in convicting and converting power.

We commenced a meeting at Ashland, on the L. A. railroad, on the eighteenth. Bro. Finley joined us on the twentieth, and did all the preaching. The meeting closed on Oct. 26. The congregations increased in number and order from beginning to finish. We had built a house at that place 30x40 feet, but it was insufficient to hold the crowd. Many on Sunday were not able to get in. I have never seen its equal, taking the county and people into consideration. There were twenty accessions to our church, and many will go to the Baptist Church.

We have had other good meetings on the work. I think we will be able to bring up a good report at Conference.

I take great pleasure in recommending our dear brother, T. M. Finley, to anyone needing help.

Yours in Christ,

J. M. FRANKLIN.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

PONTOTOC CIRCUIT.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: I am closing out the year with fine success. Am quite hopeful of meeting all my collections in full; have them all subscribed, and more; have had some fine revivals. Held our fourth Quarterly Conference last Saturday and Sunday. Our young and brilliant presiding elder, Brother Augustus, was with us. He did some remarkably fine preaching, and if you will not think it fulsome, I will say, he has proved himself to be the most useful and efficient presiding elder I have ever had under my care in a ministry of more than forty years. I think he will report a parsonage in every charge in his district by Conference. So we will go to Conference with glad hearts.

Fraternally,

M. D. FLY.

Healthy Mothers Make Happy Homes

"His warm but simple home he enjoys
With her who shares his pleasures and his heart.
"Tis sweet to know there is an eye will mark
Our coming, and look brighter when we come."

It is the healthy wife who is cheerful, contented, hopeful, smiling and happy. She it is who can make home the dearest spot on earth, the rallying place of the affections, the sphere of harmony and peace, the sacred refuge of life. The woman who is harrassed, worn and wearied with the irritations and miseries of female ailments, feeling herself distressed and unhappy, is apt to be otherwise to make those what it should be for those she loves. Women who are blessed with perfect health are a constant source of joy to themselves and others. To secure womanly health there is no measure equal to the judicious use of G. P. P.—Gerstle's Female Panacea.

"I had suffered for a year and three bottles has restored my health entirely. Physicians and the many female remedies I used had no effect on me whatever, but to G. P. P. I owe my life. You have my permission to publish this letter that other suffering women may know of this wonderful remedy and be cured."—Mrs. Carrie Richardson, Grace, Miss.

G. P. P.—Gerstle's Female Panacea cures irregular, scanty, too profuse and painful monthly periods; uterine and ovarian irritations; ulcers, displacements and falling of the womb; whites and all unnatural discharges; frigidity, barrenness and all impediments to maternity; also all associate ailments of the private organs of women. At all stages of menstrual life, from budding womanhood until after the changes that end sexual womanly functions, it is the best friend of and remedy for womankind. Its potent strengthens all womanly organs, regulates and renders natural all sexual functions. It is sold at drug stores at $1.00 a bottle. Buy it, try it, and you will find these statements are true, for it is reliable and will not disappoint.

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check, ten cents extra will be charged.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1902.

Submission to the working of the itinerancy of Methodism is no evidence of a lack of manhood on the part of the preacher, or of the spirit of independence on the part of the people, but a recognition on the part of both that it is the system best adapted to secure an equitable distribution of ministerial talent, and the only one that guarantees every church a preacher, and every preacher a church. These two advantages more than make up for the inconveniences and difficulties incident to the system, administered, as it is, by men who, though wise and good, are not infallible. This latter fact good men, who sometimes feel afflicted, are apt to overlook.

On one of the steamers of the Fall River line is conspicuously displayed a "Fire and Accident Station Bill." On this bill is printed the duty of every officer and employee of the boat in case of accident or fire. The bar-tender, though not supposed to be subject to orders, is required, like all others, in case of fire, to perform an important part towards saving the boat and the lives of passengers. His duty reads: "Bar-tender — Destroy all liquors if fire is serious." Could anything be more suggestive? There are serious fires all over our land. They are destroying the souls and bodies of thousands of our men and boys every year. Let us destroy all liquors!

A few preachers taken from poverty and obscurity, forgetting "the hole of the pit from which they were digged," complain of their sacrifices and privations, as if they had given up ease and fortune for the sake of the ministry. Shame on such men! A fledgeling, in the presence of Samuel Drew, who had left the shoe-maker's bench for the pulpit, declared that he had sacrificed his "all" for the ministry, and asked Mr. Drew if such had not been his experience. "Yes," replied the great preacher, "I sacrificed two of the best alls (awls) in England to become a gentleman in society, and an ambassador of the skies."

Those who are over us in the Lord are constantly studying the condition and needs of the church, and the men to whom they look to supply the work, and are better qualified to deal with the men and the churches than they are themselves. A recognition of these facts by preachers and people, and a determination to abide their godly judgment, would save many heartaches, and possibly much real trouble. To put ourselves into the hands of the church, and then rebel, is not consistent with our profession of loyalty.

REPORT OF PUBLISHING COMMITTEE.

The Publishing Committee of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE met in regular session, Oct. 29, 1902, in the ADVOCATE office. There was a full representation from Louisiana and North Mississippi. The Mississippi Conference was without representation. Bro. Watkins was among the Conferences looking after the Endowment Fund for Conference Claimants; Bro. Carley was detained on business; Bro. R. J. Jones had gone to heaven since our last meeting. He will be greatly missed in the councils of the church; a man whose pure heart and clear head made him a wise counsellor and safe guide.

The annual report of the editor was read before the Committee. This report revealed the following facts: At the close of last year the editor's books showed the circulation of the paper to be 3,547 copies, divided as follows: Miscellaneous list, 333; in Louisiana, 991; in Mississippi, 2,223. Present circulation, 4,081, divided as follows: Miscellaneous, 550—increase over last year, 217; Louisiana, 1158—increase, 167; Mississippi, 2372 — increase, 149; making total net increase for the year of 534. These figures are by no means complimentary to the Methodists of Mississippi. Think of it. Louisiana, with less than 35,000 members of the Methodist Church, leading Mississippi, with more than 80,000 members, in the circulation of the ADVOCATE during the present year. Are we doing our duty towards this time-honored organ of our Conferences? The Committee would respectfully call the attention of the presiding elders in the patronizing Conferences to Question 18 in the revised edition of the Discipline, and ask that they give emphasis to the question, hoping thereby to arouse a degree of interest among our people when brought face to face with past derelictions.

The financial condition of the paper was highly gratifying to the Committee. There are no outstanding debts against the concern. The business management by the editor was heartily commended. The Committee deemed it best to adopt the following, and we trust that it will meet the approval of all thoughtful and conservative readers:

"That no calls for financial aid to churches, parsonages or other institutions be published unless officially endorsed by the presiding elder and preacher-in-charge; and that the editor is hereby heartily endorsed in his policy of excluding personalities, and in editing all communications offered for publication."

The question of changing the form of the paper was before the Committee, and left in the hands of the editor to be accomplished as soon as he shall deem the same practicable. To change the form of the paper would necessitate a new folder, requiring an outlay of four or five hundred dollars. The editor assures us that he has the project under advisement, and hopes some day to give us a sixteen-page paper. We are pleased to note the high plane along which the ADVOCATE is now moving, and we trust that its merits will so recommend it to our people that it will soon reach high-water mark in its circulation.

The high esteem in which Dr. Boswell is held by the Committee as editor and publisher of the ADVOCATE is evidenced by the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted at the conclusion of our recent meeting:

Resolved, That we heartily endorse the editorial management of Dr. Boswell, and realize that he is the right man in the right place on the tripod of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, being a worthy successor of the three Bishops and other able men who have preceded him as editor. Respectfully,

J. T. MURRAH,
For Committee.

DENIAL OF SELF.

Our Lord, by virtue of his authority as author of the gospel and head of the church, prescribed the terms on which men were to be accepted as his disciples, as also the principles by which they were to govern their lives. The existence and propagation of the gospel depended on the acceptance of Christ's terms, and the maintenance of the principles which he laid down. It was not sufficient that men acknowledge him as a teacher sent from God, and shout his praise whenever a sick man was healed or a multitude was fed. Acknowledgement of him must include far more than that. He must be acknowledged as Lord and Master. The disciple must no longer lay claim to himself as his own. Self must be surrendered. Jesus said, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself."

We hear much of self-denial. It is insisted on as essential, and our Lord's words above quoted are used as authority. The term is often employed to signify that things pleasant and agreeable to the natural man must be surrendered or eschewed; and the idea is pressed to an extreme, some going so far as to teach that no man can be a true disciple if he indulges in anything that ministers to the pleasure of the natural taste, or to the indulgence of the flesh. This is without warrant. The Scriptures demand of us only that we deny ourselves of such things as are hurtful to the soul and body. Some things exceedingly pleasant, as God certainly intended them to be, are neither sinful in themselves nor hurtful. Men can enjoy them, and at the same time live in communion with God. Other things are wholly sinful and destructive. These sinful things St. Paul had in mind when he said: "The grace of God that bringeth salvation to all men hath appeared, teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world." But when Jesus said, "Let a man deny himself," he did not have in mind the lusts of the flesh which war against the soul. He was aiming at the self-righteousness and self-dependence of men which led them to put their trust in themselves rather than in him. Hence he added, "and let him take up his cross and follow me."

No man can serve two masters. If one is a servant of self, even though self may be as punctilious in the observance of the outward law as were the Pharisees, who "trusted in themselves that they were righteous and despised others," he can not be a servant of Christ. If there was one thing more self evident than another in the life of a Pharisee, it was his self-sufficiency. It amounted almost to self-adoration. We fear this idea of self-sufficiency is prevalent even among men who ought to know better. It is not so assertive as it was among the Pharisees, but it is none the less fatal. They vainly imagine that two things only are necessary to put them on a safe moral basis—one is, to do no wrong, and the other is, to do some good. They feel themselves quite sufficient for either, and thus, irrespective of divine grace, or the commands of Christ, they expect to be saved. It is to such as these that Jesus says, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself."

The condition imposed amounts to a command to abandon self; to renounce every element in self that tends to induce a man to trust in his goodness or in his ability to work himself into divine favor. Of goodness, man has none. His righteousness is as filthy rags. He has no natural ability. To lean on self is to lean on a broken reed.

As previously intimated, the Pharisees, in their manner of life, presented the fullest exemplification of self-dependence. Feeling their all-sufficiency, they were by no means backward in proclaiming their goodness, or in efforts to display their righteousness. They stood at the corners of the streets to pray. They disfigured their faces when they fasted, and sounded trumpets before them when they felt disposed to aid the poor. All this was done that they might appear good in the sight of men. Yet, underneath this cloak of hypocrisy there was a secret conviction that they were the elect of God.

How much better are men today who indulge the hope that they please God because they habitually do good to men, and never do any harm! On these grounds many will plead for admission into the kingdom of heaven. The plea will be made in vain. Jesus tells us they will be denied. "I say unto you that except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the Scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven." The way to heaven is plain: Deny self, and follow Christ as Lord and Master.

A CANDIDATE FOR BEATIFICATION.

There was a short time since, in the city of New Orleans, a thorough investigation conducted by Roman Catholic authorities for the purpose of determining whether or not a certain priest, deceased, is worthy to be raised to the dignity of a saint. The testimony and all matters pertaining to the case is to be gathered up here, and referred to Rome for final settlement. The priest in question is said to be "a candidate for beatification"—whether on his own motion or on the motion of friends, we have never seen stated. He has been dead many years—nearly forty. If we mistake not, it is unusual to demand the beatification of an individual until he has been dead fifty years, but in this case there is more than ordinary merit, and no doubt exists that the candidate will be elected.

This priest was noted for his sanctity. He was universally regarded as holy above many of his fellows. The blamelessness of his life was never questioned. It is supposed that he worked miracles. Persons have visited his tomb, and profess to have been cured of disease. Many witnesses, we learn from one of the city dailies, stand ready to testify that they were healed; that the healing was by the miraculous power of the deceased priest. But something else was necessary besides the testimony of these witnesses. The dead body of the priest was to be a silent witness. Just how we do not understand. But it was said that it was necessary to examine the body to determine whether or not "a miracle had been wrought on it." Accordingly, in the most solemn manner, the priests having the matter in hand marched to the vault in which the body was laid away, took it from its long resting-place, opened the coffin, and examined it. Here the chapter ends for the present. The examination of the body was conducted secretly, and no report as to the state of the body has been made. Possibly it will not be known, until a report reaches the city from Rome, whether a miracle had been wrought on the body, and, if so, what the nature of the miracle was.

If the good priest is canonized as the result of testimony of living witnesses who declare they were healed by praying to the dead priest, or visiting his tomb, there will be no end for a long time to come to the stream of pilgrims, sick and well, to the holy shrine. Of course, we do not believe one word of the miracle-working power of dead men's bones, but if the poor and afflicted can derive any comfort by visiting the grave, why, just let them do it. And how Roman Catholic priests and Bishops, who are supposed to be intelligent and learned men, can believe and encourage anything of the kind, is beyond our comprehension.

PERCENTAGES OF INCREASE.

Some one has discovered that the per cent. of gain in the M. E. Church has not kept pace in the home field with the work in foreign missions. In the missions the gain for ten years past was one hundred and forty-five per cent., while in the home field it has been only twenty-three per cent. This is called a surprising fact. It is not much surprising to one who considers the small number required to make up a big per cent. A gain of ten members in the foreign field may, and we suspect does sometimes, represent one hundred per cent. of increase. Twenty may show two hundred per cent. increase, and so on. In many charges in the home field a gain of one hundred would represent an increase of less than twenty per cent.: in some charges as little as ten per cent. It is not always fair to estimate gains by counting the per cent. Some reports here at home, instead of giving the actual figures, state only the per cent. of increase in membership or collections. One man reports an increase in membership or collections as being over one hundred per cent., making the impression that he has done a wonderful big work, whereas he had but little to start on in the way of membership, and, perhaps, did not have to raise as much as fifty dollars to double last year's collections. He did not do much, but he had over one hundred per cent. increase!

A man in a home field that has been cultivated by four or five evangelical denominations for fifty or seventy-five years, who succeeds in adding ten per cent., or even less, to his church in a year, is doing actually a greater work than one in a foreign field who, with all raw and unworked material at hand, adds one hundred per cent. to his membership. In many places in our country the material to work on is not at hand, and the preacher is fortunate if he can hold his own. He should not be blamed if he fails to show a large increase.

One hundred and forty-five per cent. increase in the church membership in our country during the next ten years, taking in all denominations, would sweep the whole population — men, women, and children — into the churches. The same per cent. of increase in China during the same period would scarcely make an impression in that extensive empire. Let us be done with this unfair method of calculating increase.

WOMAN UNDER THE GOSPEL.

We are under obligation to the author, Rev. T. L. Mellen, of the Mississippi Conference, for a copy of his sermon on "Woman's Place under the Gospel." The purpose of the sermon is to show that under the gospel there is no difference between men and women; that what one may do, the other may do. If Brother Mellen's position is correct, then our women may not only sing, and pray, and teach in Sunday-schools, and lead in social meetings, but also occupy the pulpit and preach. He does not say all this, but this is his logic. And it leads to a further conclusion, viz.: that women as well as men may fill any office in the church. We have read the sermon with more than ordinary care, noted the proof-texts, etc., and we remain of "the same opinion still."

PERSONAL.

Rev. C. D. Atkinson, who has been sick several days—unable to occupy his pulpit two Sundays—is up again and at work with his usual energy.

Rev. W. D. Matthews, formerly of the North Mississippi Conference, but later one of our co-laborers in Arkansas, makes a fine report of his work at Paul's Valley, Ind. Ter., where he labored last year. We rejoice with him in his great success. He has ever been an active and useful man.

Rev. S. B. Myers, transferred from the North Mississippi to the Indian Mission Conference, has been stationed at Checotoh, Ind. Ter. He met a cordial reception at the hands of the Western brethren, and he is well pleased. We hope he will do well. But we are sorry he left our Conference.

A note from Rev. L. E. Alford, Mississippi Conference, says: "I have had a fairly good year on Neshoba circuit. A new church, costing about $1000, and a parsonage, costing $700, have been built on this charge this year. I have received thirty members on profession of faith, and believe we will pay every assessment in full."

Rev. T. J. Upton writes a cheering note from Amite City, La. Rev. W. M. McIntosh is helping him in a meeting. He says: "The meeting has already assumed fine proportions, with promise of a sweeping revival. Already there have been quite a number of professions, and great interest is manifested by almost the entire community."

Rev. A. H. Williams, at Gunnison, Miss., is doing a fine work, and standing by him is a host of willing hands. Not the least work on his hands is the building of a new church. Collectors to the number of thirty-two are in the field, and the new building is only a matter of time. The people are willing, and the means will be forthcoming. May success crown our brother's labors!

Just as we were ready to go to press we received the following note from Rev. R. M. Evans: "The Rev. Wm. L. Sharp, of Wall Hill, Miss., passed to his reward on Oct. 21, after a long and painful illness. He had lived in the same home for more than fifty years, and yet none knew him but to love him. His last moments were spent without a struggle. Sweet be his memory. A more extended notice will follow in due time."

A letter from Dr. J. B. Fearn to his aunt, Mrs. C. G. Andrews, of Memphis, announces the death of his only child, Madie Elizabeth, at Soochow, China. Mrs. Andrews, in a note to the ADVOCATE, says: "Everything possible was done by skillful physicians and kind friends to save this precious child's life. The devoted parents are indeed desolate, but from consecrated hearts they say: 'It is the Lord; let him do what seemeth him good.'"

The members of the ADVOCATE Publishing Committee present at the annual meeting, on the twenty-ninth ultimo, were all in fine health and spirits. They were Revs. S. S. Keener, J. T. Sawyer, F. N. Parker, W. T. J. Sullivan, H. C. Morehead, and J. T. Murrah. The meeting was pleasant and harmonious. We thank the committee for their commendation. After passing through a severe spell of fever in September, we were glad to see Brother Morehead looking so well and cheerful. He has fully regained his strength.

Rev. R. Q. Mallard, one of the editors of the Southwestern Presbyterian, spent last Sunday at Kosciusko, Miss., where he went to take part in the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the ministry of Rev. J. H. Alexander, D. D., of the Presbyterian Church. Dr. Mallard preached the sermon. Other ministers took part in the celebration, including Revs. H. T. Gaines and H. P. Hurt, resident pastors, respectively, of the Methodist and Baptist Churches. Dr. Alexander has been pastor at Kosciusko for the past thirty-eight years. He is loved and honored by the citizens of the community.

New Orleans Preachers' Meeting.

The meeting of Nov. 3 was called to order by Dr. LaPrade, presiding elder. Dr. F. N. Parker led in prayer. Dr. LaPrade called on the local pastors for reports.

Additions—Werlein Mission, 4; Felicity, 2; Carrollton, 2; Algiers, 2; Carondelet, 4; Rayne Memorial, 4.

Pastors Atkinson, Drake, Johnson, Fontaine, Parker and LaPrade reported increase in attendance on the public worship.

Financial reports of the pastors were encouraging.

There is much interest in the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society at Felicity Street Church.

The recent revival led by Rev. W. W. Drake at Epworth Mission was a success.

There is noted growth in grace among the young people of Burgundy Street Church. The pastor attributes some of this to the new missionary literature received by the Epworth League.

Many notes of praise were sounded by the pastors concerning the Epworth League work of the church.

There will be a Sunday-school Rally at Carondelet Street Church, Sunday, Nov. 9.

Dr. F. N. Parker was elected to deliver the Thanksgiving sermon at Carondelet Street Church. The offering to be made at this service will be given to the Building Fund for Epworth Mission.

Question for discussion, next meeting, is: Can We Carry on Useful Mission Work in New Orleans Unless Supplemented by School? Discussion to be led by Rev. R. H. Wynn.

Leagners.

I am in receipt of the first remittance for per-capita tax for 1902-3. It comes from the Moss Point League.

Will the Leagues not take this matter up and make remittances at once? We will need the funds, and while the work of the State officers has been greatly thwarted in the past on account of the scarcity of funds, we hope that every League will do its part, and thus prosper the cause this year.

CANCER CAN BE CURED.

Did Not Expect to Live Long—Proud of His Cure. Would Like All Who Are Afflicted to Hear of It.

VILLAGE MILLS, TEXAS, JULY 2, 1900.

DR. D. M. BYE CO., DALLAS, TEX.:

DEAR FRIENDS—I am so proud and so thankful that I can say to you that the cancer on my nose is nicely healed. I only wish that all parties with the same affliction could know the value of your remedy. I now feel like a new man again. I now feel like I may live to a reasonable old age and see my children in their maturity; but until the cure from your great remedy I did not expect to live but a few years longer, with a wretched life before me. I am now happy and my family is happy to know that I have been saved from the terrible death. I will do everything in my power to let all who are afflicted with a cancer know of your wonderful cure. I am so thankful to my great Maker that he has given to some one the power to heal such places and to put it in the reach of those who are not able to pay large prices for the cure. May God bless you. Yours very truly,

T. J HOOKS.

A jubilant note from the Rev. R. D. Norsworthy, P. C., Ellisville, dated Nov. 27, says: "I have just enclosed $716.35, the amount due the Church Extension Board, to Dr. P. H. Whisner; and so now there is no debt on Ellisville Church, and you and I will be paid in full, and all collections will be in full!" Bro. Norsworthy has succeeded where some younger brethren failed.

The Pleasant Hill Church, on the Raleigh circuit, has recently been ceiled and otherwise made comfortable. Former pastors will be glad to know this. Bro. Young and Bro. Breland were in the midst of a good meeting there a few days ago. Conference assessments had all been paid or subscribed in full.

The Rev. R. S. Gale, P. C., is in the new, though incomplete, parsonage at Taylorville, near by the skeleton of the house of worship. He is hopeful of getting his Conference collections.

The Rev. M. L. White is about to get rid of the old debt so long a burden at Carthage. And the Rev. John W. Crisler is very hopeful of paying off the last cent of the Newton Church debt.

NO REASONABLE MAN expects to cure a neglected cold in a day. But time and Allen's Lung Balsam will overcome the cold and stave off consumption. Cough will cease and lungs be sound as a new dollar.

It is announced that the Alabama Great Southern Railway will extend its Birmingham-Akron service to Meridian, Miss., upon the establishment of fast mail service by the Southern Railway between Washington and Atlanta and night train, Atlanta to Birmingham, November 2. This will place mail into Meridian earlier than ever before, and enables connection at Meridian with Alabama and Vicksburg Railway train leaving Meridian at 11:05 A. M., thereby placing mail in Jackson, Vicksburg, Shreveport, and, in fact, all points west of Meridian, twelve or fifteen hours earlier than at present. This is another case wherein the Southern Railway gives increased service and better facilities to the people in this section of the country, for by extending this service they not only expedite the mails, but enable travelers to reach commercial centers much quicker than formerly.—Globe-Democrat, St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 31 1902.

A Library for Four Dollars.

BEST PICTURES, BEST FICTION, BEST HISTORY FOR PRICE OF A CENTURY SUBSCRIPTION.

Four dollars is a small sum with which to supply a family for a year with the best pictures and literature: "The high-water mark of color reproduction," as Howard Pyle characterizes the exquisite color reproductions of his paintings in the December Century; history, current topics of vital interest, the best verse and fiction of the day.

The most striking successes of The Century Magazine have been made in the field of history, witness the famous Century War Papers, Nicolay and Hay's Life of Lincoln, etc.; and it is to return to the field of historical literature this year. A striking series of illustrated articles on the early campaigns of the Revolution, written by Professor Justin Harvey Smith, of Dartmouth College, will be one of the features, especially covering the picturesque march of Arnold through the Maine woods. Important articles on the "Trusts" will be printed from time to time—not attacking or defending, but simply telling the inside history of the great trusts and how they are conducted.

Richard Whiteing, the author of that popular book, 'No. 5 John Street," is to write one of the serials for The Century in 1903, "The Yellow Van," the story of an American "schoolma'am" who marries an English duke. Another serial, by the author of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," the most popular book of the year, will begin to appear in the December Century. Papers by "Mr. Dooley," giving his unique "Opinions" on literature; new light on the lives of Edgar Allen Poe and Sir Walter Scott; richly illustrated articles on the great exchanges of the world, and the best short stories that can be procured from the leading writers—all these are coming in The Century. Beautiful pictures in color will appear from time to time.

The pictures are richly worth framing and a place in every home. The reading means wide information, culture, and rich intellectual pleasure from month to month. The bound volumes should have permanent place in every library. Big returns, all this, on the small investment of four dollars.

If God give me work to do I will thank him that he has bestowed upon me a strong arm; if he give me danger to brave I will bless him that he has not made me without courage, but I will go down on my knees and beseech him to fit me for my task, if he tell me it is only to stand and wait.—Jean Ingelow.

No. 5. Price, $7.00.

ADJUSTABLE TOP.—Is 14x18 inches; large and strong enough to hold your Dictionary, Directory, Dun, Bradstreet, Bible, Atlas, or any heavy volume, at any desired angle. It can be revolved and adjusted when reading so as to always throw the strongest light on the pages. You can thus avoid the strain on your eyes inevitable when holding a book in your hand or on a level table. It is made of Oak, and has on one edge a Rest to keep books from sliding off.

REVOLVING CASE.—This case is 15x15x12 inches. The shelves are Oak or Ash, finished on both sides and on all edges, and have 9 inches of book space on four sides, or 3 feet in all, and room enough for reference books of daily use. Many books may also be placed on the upper shelf. In all twenty to thirty volumes, law size, can be put in it. The eight oak slats are attached by four nails each, making the Case very substantial as well as ornamental.

CASTINGS connecting the Top and Case are finished in black enamel, and of sufficient strength to last a lifetime.

PIPE, POST and LEGS.—The three legs are attached by round-headed screws to the turned post. Into this post is forced an iron pipe, which runs up through the Case, and to which the castings at the top are attached. Around this pipe the Case revolves.

As a Home, Office or Library article, it is said, its equal does not exist. The accuracy of this statement can be confirmed by unsolicited letters of the highest commendation from thousands of Ministers, Attorneys, Physicians, Government, State and County Officials, Bankers and Business Men. Over 50,000 have been sold in the United States, and orders now come for large lots from England and other foreign countries.

HOW FINISHED.—It is handsomely finished in Antique Oak, and an ornament to any Office, Library or Parlor.

AS A GIFT.—Nothing made is more suitable to present to a friend, or as a Wedding or Birthday Gift, than this Stand.

HOW SHIPPED.—This Stand is sent knocked down, wrapped in heavy paper, making a package of 20 pounds. By Freight it goes as second class, and at about half what it would cost if sent set up. Plain directions for putting together accompany each Stand.

We will furnish the above Revolving Book-Case and seven yearly subscriptions to the ADVOCATE (new or renewal) to anyone for $11, or we will sell you the case alone for $7 cash.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

DID NOT KNOW SHE HAD KIDNEY TROUBLE.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

Gertrude Warner Scott Cured by the Great Kidney Remedy, Swamp-Root.

Women suffer untold misery because the nature of their disease is not correctly understood; in many cases when doctoring, they are led to believe that womb trouble or female weakness of some sort is responsible for their ills, when in fact disordered kidneys are the chief cause of their distressing troubles.

The mild and extraordinary effect of the world famous kidney and bladder remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, is soon realized. It stands the highest for wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. A trial will convince anyone—and you may have a sample bottle sent free, by mail.

Among the many famous cures of Swamp-Root investigated by "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" the one we publish this week for the benefit of our readers, speaks in the highest terms of the wonderful curative properties of this great kidney remedy.

Vinton, Iowa, July 15th, 1902

GENTLEMEN:—My trouble began with pain in my stomach and back, so severe that it seemed as if knives were cutting me. I was treated by two of the best physicians in the county, and consulted another. None of them suspected that the cause of my trouble was kidney disease. They all told me that I had cancer of the stomach, and would die. I grew so weak that I could not walk any more than a child a month old, and I only weighed ninety pounds. One day my brother saw in a paper your advertisement of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy. He bought me a bottle at our drug store and I took it. My family could see a change in me for the better, so they obtained more and I continued the use of Swamp-Root regularly. I was so weak and run down that it took considerable to build me up again. I am now well, thanks to Swamp-Root, and weigh 145 pounds, and am keeping house for my husband and brother. Swamp-Root cured me after the doctors had failed to do me a particle of good.

Home Circle.

Dixie's Six Cents.

A short time ago a pale faced little girl walked hurriedly into a bookstore, and said to the man serving at the counter: "Please, sir, I want a book that's got 'Suffer little children to come unto me' in it; and how much is it, sir? And I'm in a great hurry."

The shopman bent down and dusted his specs.

"Suppose I haven't the book you want, what then, my dear?"

"Oh, sir, I shall be so sorry; I want it so!" And the little voice trembled at the chance of a disappointment.

"Will you be so very sorry without the book?"

"Well, sir, you see I went to school one Sunday when Mrs. West, who takes care of me, was away; and the teacher read about a Good Shepherd who said those words, and about a beautiful place where he takes care of his children, and I want to go there. I'm so tired of being where there's nobody to care for a little girl like me, only Mrs. West, who says I'd be better dead than alive."

"But why are you in such a hurry?"

"My cough's getting so bad now, sir, and I want to know all about Him before I die. It'd be so strange to see Him and not know Him. Besides, if Mrs. West knew I was here, she'd take away the six cents I've saved running messages, to buy the book with; so I'm in a hurry to get served."

The bookseller wiped his glasses vigorously this time, and lifting a book off the shelf he said: "I'll find the words you want, my little girl; come and listen."

Then he read the words of the loving Savior, Luke xviii, 16 (get your Bibles and find the place, children), and told her how this Good Shepherd had a home, all light, rest, love, prepared for those who love and serve him.

"Oh, how lovely!" was the half-breathless exclamation of the eager little buyer; "and he says, 'Come,' I'll go to Him. How long do you think it may be, sir, before I see Him?"

"Not long, perhaps," said the shop keeper, turning away his head. "You shall keep the six cents, and come here every day, while I read some more out of this book."

Thanking him, the small child hurried away. To-morrow came, and another morrow, and many days passed, but the little girl never came to hear about Jesus agin.

One day a loud-voiced, untidy woman ran into the shop, saying: "Dixie's dead! She died rambling about some Good Shepherd, and she said you was to have these six cents for the mission box at school. As I don't like to keep dead men's money, here it is." And she ran out of the shop.

The cents went into the box, and when the story of Dixie was told, so many followed her example with their cents that at the end of the year "Dixie's cents," as they were called, were found to be sufficient to send out a missionary to China to bring stranger sheep to the Good Shepherd.—Episcopal Record.

A Vanderbilt Story.

It has been said that the late Cornelius Vanderbilt was the best of the Vanderbilts. The following story is told of his boyhood:

One day he told his mother he was coming to New York to look for a place. He came, and went first to the Shoe and Leather Bank. He asked the porter if he could see the president. The porter pointed him out. The young lad watched the head of the big bank as he went to his private office, and following respectfully, told him he was looking for something.

The Foreign Missionary and His Work.

By Dr. W. G. E. Cunnyngham.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION BY

16MO. PP. 132. 50 CENTS.

In twelve short chapters sets forth in outline the religious condition of the world, the dominant power of Christendom and its responsibility for the rest of mankind, the need and benedsence of mission work in heathen lands, and the best methods for its performance.

Barbee & Smith, Agts.,
Nashville, Tenn. Dallas, Tex.

His only recommendation was a note from his teacher. The bank president read the letter, and asked the boy if he was related to Commodore Vanderbilt.

"He is my grandfather," said the boy.

"Why didn't you get him to introdnce you?"

"Because I didn't want to ask him for anything," was the reply.

Perhaps it was his independence, perhaps his neat, comely and, withal, earnest appearance, that weighed in his favor, but he was employed. He started at the lowest rung of the ladder, as a messenger. And here it was that he began to show the qualities that made the man he afterward became. He was punctual, prompt, clean-cut, discreet and as hard a little worker as they had in the bank.

One day the president of the bank happened to be in the office of old Commodore Vanderbilt, and mentioned to the Commodore that he had a Vanderbilt in the bank. The old man was astonished, and soon sent for the young man. He asked him why he had not applied to his grandfather if he wanted a job. The young man looked straight into the eyes of the old man, and replied:

"I made up my mind that I would never ask you for anything."

There was something about the answer that pleased the Commodore, and it is said that this influenced him to add the codicil to his will providing that an extra $1,000,000 go to the grandson of whose independent, self-reliant spirit he had had so complete a proof.

It was while he was employed at the bank that his grandfather was first attracted to this one of his grandchildren, who had succeeded fairly well in escaping his notice. One day, when he was still employed in the bank, his grandfather stepped in to see him, and proposed a trip to Europe. This astonished the young man, whose life had hitherto been confined strictly to business.

"I am going myself," said the Commodore, "and I'll take you along, if you want to go."

"And give up my salary?" said the young man.

"Well, I don't suppose it will go on while you are gone," replied the Commodore, grimly.

"Then I guess I'd better stay," said the boy.—The American Boy.

Man and the Farm.

It is a common complaint that the farm and farm life are not appreciated by our people. We long for the more elegant pursuits, or the ways and fashions of the town. But the farmer has the most sane and natural occupation, and ought to find life sweeter, if less highly seasoned, than any other. He alone, strictly speaking, has a home. How can a man take root and thrive without land? He writes his history upon his field. How many ties, how many resources he has! His friendships with his cattle, his team, his dog, his trees; the satisfaction in his growing crops, in his improved fields; his intimacy with nature, with bird and beast, and with the quickening elemental forces; his co-operations with the cloud, the sun, the seasons, heat, wind, rain, frost. Nothing will take the various social distempers which the city and artificial life breed out of a man like farming, like direct and loving contact with the soil. It draws out the poison. It humbles him, teaches him patience and reverence, and restores the proper tone to his system. Cling to the farm, make much of it, put yourself into it, bestow your heart and your brain upon it, so that it shall savor of you, and radiate your virtue after your day's work is done!—John Burroughs.

Lincoln's Promise.

While a member of Congress, Abraham Lincoln was once criticised by a friend for "his seeming rudeness in declining to test the rare wines provided by their host." The friend said to him; "There is certainly no danger of a man of your years and habits becoming addicted to the use of wine."

"I meant no disrespect, John," answered Lincoln, "but I promised my precious mother only a few days before she died that I would never use anything intoxicating as a beverage, and I consider that promise as binding today as it was the day I gave it."

"But," the friend continued, "there is a great difference between a child surrounded by a rough class of drinkers, and a man in a home of refinement."

"A promise is a promise forever," answered Lincoln, "and when made to a mother it is doubly binding."—Selected.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

A woman's discovery FREE

By many people of our state using a experiments, I have discovered a simple harmless vegetable remedy that will quickly cure all female diseases, as well as the piles. It is nature's own remedy, and will not only relieve, but will absolutely thoroughly and permanently cure the ailments peculiar to women such as falling of the womb, leucorrhea, whites, displacements, ulceration, granulation, painful or scanty periods, irregular menstruation and all the pelvic ills of women. It positively cures rectal ulcers, piles, hemorrhoids, tumors, itching, blind or bleeding piles in either sex. It cures promptly, privately, and permanently without the repugnant methods in general use by physicians. You can escape embarrassing examinations, avoid humiliating exposures, cheat the surgeon's knife out of baptism in your blood.

The treatment is so simple, mild and effectual that it will not interfere with your work or occupation. Thousands and thousands of letters are being received from grateful persons from all parts of the world who have been cured by the use of this remedy. The first package is free, send for it—send today. I know that a fair trial of it will result in your becoming its enthusiastic advocate and friend. With it I will send literature of interest and value. Do not neglect this opportunity to get cured yourself and be in a position to advise ailing friends.

Consider well the above offer and act upon it at once. It is made in the sincere hope of aiding you and spreading the knowledge of a beneficent boon to sufferers. Earnestly, hopefully, faithfully, MRS. CORA B. MILLER, 46 Comstock Bldg., Kokomo, Ind

Cost no more than plain ones in White Bronze. Marble is entirely out of date. Granite eventually crumbles back to Mother Earth. Besides it is very expensive.

White Brouze is strictly everlasting. It can not crumble with the action of frost. Moss growth is an impossibility. It is more artistic than any stone. It has been adopted for nearly one hundred public monuments and by thousands of delighted customers in all parts of the country. We have designs from $4.00 to $4,000. OBITUARIES.

SAMUEL B. BIGHAM, son of Hugh Brawley Bigham and Elizabeth Ramsey, was born in Marshall county, Tenn., March 3, 1822. His family moved to Pontotoc county in 1839, and settled six miles north of Pontotoc, and with the exception of three years' service in the Civil War, he lived within one mile of his father's homestead to the time of his death. March 4, 1844, he was married to R. J. Phiper, with whom he lived fifty-six years, until her death in 1900. He filled several terms as justice of the peace and as treasurer of Pontotoc county. He volunteered and served three years in the Civil War. In 1864, his health being impaired, he resigned his commission and came home. He was a public-spirited citizen, concerned for all lines of the public interest. In war he was a volunteer soldier; in peace he was a faithful public servant. He helped to put down carpet-bag rule in 1876. He was a faithful servant of the church. Joining the Methodist Church with his wife, he was a faithful and consistent member for over sixty years. In his private life he was a devout and pious man. Everybody had confidence in him and in his professions. He was reliable in every way, for his financial obligations, for his church obligations, for his duty to his family. He was an industrious man. His life was filled with toil from beginning to end. He was a devoted husband and father. He tried to give his children the advantage of an education. He ministered to their comfort at all times, and with unfailing diligence. He was an officer in the church for over fifty years. He was the faithful and sympathetic friend always of his pastor. He was an open, frank man, without guile, sturdy, industrious, honest, manly, faithful, honorable, devout, godly. He died June 8, 1902, full of years and full of honor, and entered into the rest that remains for the people of God.

N. G. AUGUSTUS.

CONRAD HARRISON PEARS was born Jan. 18, 1841, and went to his reward Aug. 31, 1902. He joined the church of his choice in 1870, under the pastorate of Rev. W. E. Ballard, of the Mississippi Conference, from which time to his death he lived a consistent Christian life. Surely it can be said of him, "He was a good man." On the fourth of January, 1872, he was married to Miss Emma Tucker, and the writer speaks advisedly when he says no union was ever more congenial and happy than was theirs. He leaves a devoted wife, three sons and four daughters, with a host of relatives and friends, to mourn his absence. But no one who knew him doubts whither he has gone, for he lived the religion he professed. His earthly sun has set, but to him it arose in glorious splendor on the other shore, and, ere he lost the last rays on this side, he caught gleams flashing from those celestial plains, where it will rise to set nevermore. Yes, he has gone where death is all unknown. Free from grief and sorrow and sin, he is now with his God, forever shut in. To the fond wife and children I would say: Let us live faithful to Christ, and some glorious day in the blessed beyond we will strike glad hands with our loved one again.

His brother, R. W. TUCKER.

Dr. WILLIAM J. PARMER, of Quitman, Miss., was born in Kemper county, Miss., March 20, 1875, and died at his father's home near Porterville, Miss., Oct. 1, 1902. He was the son of Joseph L. and Janie A. Parmer, who, for many years, have resided near Porterville, in which vicinity he grew to manhood. His parents, of whom his father only survives, were loyal, God-fearing Methodists, and he grew up in an atmosphere of piety. When about eighteen years of age he became deeply impressed religiously, and united with the Chapel Hill M. E. Church, South, of which he remained a faithful member to the close of his life. On the second day of October, 1902, his remains were laid to rest in the Chapel Hill Cemetery to wait the general resurrection. He chose the practice of medicine for a profession, and graduated with honors in the medical college at Memphis, Tenn., April 26, 1901 after which he located at Quitman, Miss., where he faithfully served the public in his profession with the highest honor until he was stricken with typhoid fever, under which he succumbed. The deep grief of his father is shared by five brothers and four sisters, and a large circle of relatives and friends, who mourn their loss. E. C. GRICE.

L. F. MOSS was born in Union county, Miss., Aug. 10, 1870 and died at his home, Myrtle, Miss., Sept. 26, 1902. Bro. Moss joined the Methodist Church about nine years ago, and has filled some official position in the church most of the time. He has been postmaster at Myrtle for the past five years; was superintendent of the Sunday-school at Myrtle when he died. He was buried from the M. E. Church, Sept. 27. He leaves a wife and four children, mother, brother, and sisters, with a host of friends and relatives, to mourn their loss. A truer man never died. He loved his home in a true sense; was perfectly devoted to his church—a truer friend no preacher ever had. When I went there on my first round of work he met me at the train, and carried me to his home. It was then I fully realized that was the preacher's home. He stood by me with that love and intimacy as did David and his friend. The church has lost one of its best friends, the community one of its truest citizens, a wife a devoted husband, and children a loving father. May the loving Father give grace sufficient for this sore trial! Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord. G. W. STRICKLAND.

CECIL WATTS son of the Rev. E E. and Mrs. Rosa M. Langford, was born Dec. 19, 1901; was baptized by the Rev. J. W. Dorman, March 19, 1902, and died at Cedar Bluff, Miss., Oct. 6 of the same year. All too brief, from a human standpoint, was the life of little Cecil. Bright, beautiful, and attractive, he had completely conquered every heart in the household, and when he went away, it was like the going out of the sun. His departure enveloped in darkness the home of which he had been the brightness and joy, and left a shadow upon every soul and an aching void in every breast. But, dear friends, your precious babe has not gone from you forever; he is still yours. He has simply preceded you into the golden city, there to wait and watch for you at the pearly gates. If true to the Master, you will be with him again in the not far future. O, that glorious "house of many mansions!" What family reunions it will witness! There voices, long hushed, will be heard again. There forms, now vanished, will reappear, robed in the garments of immortality. May God help you to look beyond the grief-shadowed present to the dawning of that splendid day! R. A. MEEK

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they can not reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it, you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

Let the local preachers be sure to present to the fourth Quarterly Conference a written report of their work for the year, as directed by the Discipline. (See paragraph 168 page 75 of Discipline.) Will the preachers in charge please urge the local preachers to this duty, and will they also see that reports are made by trustees and from the Woman's Home Mission Board?

The Chicago Inter-Ocean declares there is great prosperity in the West and Northwest, and bases its statement on the following facts: "In the twelve months ended with last June more applications for homestead entries and claims for mineral and timber lands in the West were received by the Commissioner of the General Land Office of the Interior Department than in any like period since the homestead law was passed. There is tremendous migration in progress, from the East and South as well as from the middle West, to all points between the Missouri and the Pacific, but most especially to the Northwest. The government gave away 19,488,530 acres, or several million acres more than were allotted to settlers in any single year since the homestead seekers began to pour into the West forty years ago. Of the total acreage disposed of in the last fiscal year 14,000,000 acres went to actual settlers. The rest was taken up as mining and timber lands. In the same period the receipts for the sale of land too valuable to be turned over to homestead seekers were also greater than during any previous year. Aside from these evidences of growth, the West is developing even more wondrously in those regions which long have been regarded as entirely settled. The high prices for all farm products have enabled the farmers to improve their properties so that throughout Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota, and the Dakotas, the homesteads now have all the appearance of those to be found in the richest farming districts of Ohio."

President Roosevelt has set apart Thursday, Nov. 27, as a day of thanksgiving. The proclamation is as follows:

"According to the yearly custom of our people, it falls upon the President at this season to appoint a day of festival and thanksgiving to God. Over a century and a quarter has passed since this country took its place among the nations of the earth, and during that time we have had, on the whole, more to be thankful for than has fallen to the lot of any other people. Generation after generation has grown to manhood and passed away. Each has had to bear its peculiar burdens, each to face its special crises, and each has known years of grim trial, when the country was menaced by malice, domestic or foreign levy; when the hand of the Lord was heavy upon it, in drouth or flood or pestilence; when in bodily distress and anguish of soul it paid the penalty of folly and a froward heart. Nevertheless, decade by decade we have struggled onward and upward. We now abundantly enjoy material well-being, and, under the favor of the Most High, we are striving earnestly to achieve moral and spiritual uplifting. The year that has just closed has been one of peace and of overflowing plenty. Rarely has any people enjoyed greater prosperity than we are now enjoying. For this we render heartfelt and solemn thanks to the Giver of good, and we seek to praise him, not by words only, but by deeds; by the way in which we do our duty to ourselves and to our fellow men.

"Now, therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, do hereby designate as a day of general thanksgiving, Thursday, the twenty-seventh of the coming November, and do recommend that throughout the land the people cease from their ordinary occupations, and in their several homes and places of worship tender thanks unto Almighty God for the manifold blessings of the past year.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the city of Washington this twenty-ninth day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and two, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and twenty-seventh.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

"By the President:

"JOHN HAY,

"Secretary of State."

A man in Pittsburg, Pa., has been working on a "cotton picker" for the past ten years. It is now in practical working order, and is pronounced a success. The machine has been on trial in a cotton field near Greenville, Miss. An eye-witness, speaking to a Times-Democrat reporter concerning the invention, says: "The planters who have seen it work pronounce it a success. Like every other new invention, though, it is subject to improvement. The machine is propelled by gasoline, and does the work very cleanly. It is so constructed that it straddles the row of cotton, and as the machine goes forward, the needles, which revolve on a disc, come spinning out, penetrate the bolls, and move backward at the same rate of speed the machine goes forward. I saw it pick a hundred and eighty pounds of cotton in eleven minutes, which is more than a man can pick in a day. The planters of the Mississippi Valley have been having a great deal of trouble getting hands to harvest their crop, but from what I saw and others say, I believe the cotton-picking problem is solved."

A press dispatch to the public declares that the appointment of Falconio as apostolic delegate "is a signal disappointment" to Washington. Such an announcement is wholly misleading. The evident intention is to make the public believe that the people in general in Washington are disappointed, whereas, only the Roman Catholic authorities, who alone are interested, are in any way dissatisfied. The people have no interest in the matter, and the government is not even supposed to know that Rome has "an envoy in the city." The delegate, it is said, is pleasing to the prelates in many particulars, and disappointing only because the envoy can not take part in social functions. The Bishops are of the opinion that the apostolic delegate at the Capital should take a high social position, and thus add to the prestige of the church. The Bishops desire their delegates here to live like papal envoys to the courts of Europe—in princely style. In this way they are of opinion that the cause of Catholicity could be furthered enormously. But this can not be done by Falconio, who is a member of the Franciscan order, and by the rules of the order is compelled to lead an austere life, to dress in the plain garb of his order, and, except on State occasions, he will appear in sandals and bare feet. If the delegate is in this country to represent the church and to care for its interests, there is no call for him in social life, no reason why he should lead the life of a prince. Nor would there be any such demand but for the fact that Romanists desire the recognition of the Pope as a temporal ruler. Which thing the American people do not desire.

Old-Time Camp Meetings.

BY MRS. L. C. SADLER.

DEAR BROTHER BOSWELL: In a recent issue of the ADVOCATE, Bro. G. G. Smith writes of "camp meetings" and else. His letters are always interesting on any subject. His mention of "old time camp meetings," and the power there was manifested in all of them, recalled an incident that transpired at one I remember. The son of one of the preachers was at the altar for the second time. Among several others he was converted, and immediately arose to his feet and began to publish the glad tidings to the assembled host in a voice that had no uncertain sound. Some friend, not seeing his mother, ran to her tent to tell her the news. Seeing her busy, she said: "O, Mrs. Eddy, come out to the altar. Thomas is converted, and he is just shouting and talking to everybody as loud as he can raise his voice." The mother smiled, and said: "It is just what I expected at this camp meeting when I came here. When I get through waiting on Brother B——, I will go out there." And she finished waiting on the brother who had just arrived (tired and hungry) from a long distance on horseback. Then she walked out with Brother B——, and saw Thomas standing on a bench exhorting all within hearing to "seek the Lord while he might be found, and call upon him while he was near." Seeing his mother, he said: "Mother, your prayers are answered, and I am saved, and the balance of my life shall be spent in helping to save others." "Amen!" and "Glory to God!" went up from hundreds of voices, and reverberated over the camp ground until the very trees seemed to catch the glad words, and echo and re-echo the glorious refrain. That seventeen-year-old boy was received in the Annual Conference that year, and given a work as assistant. The next year he had a circuit, and then was a successful minister, an ardent, enthusiastic soul-winner through all the phases of a Methodist preacher's career, until he reached one of the highest offices the church could give him as "Missionary Secretary of the Methodist Episcopal Church." Full of good works unto the end, he laid down the work he loved better than life, committed his tender, loving wife and children into God's keeping, folded his hands, and smilingly said, "Sing and pray; eternity dawns," and fell asleep. So lived and died Thomas Mears Eddy, D. D.—a boy converted at an "old-time camp meeting."

One other point. Brother Smith emphasizes about devoting more time to the young children at camp meetings, at Sunday-schools, and everywhere always. Hold the children, and no pessimistic forecasts of the church going to pieces will come to pass.

Four Fields.

BY REV. T. B. HOLLOMAN, D. D.

On Wednesday, Oct. 22, grip, umbrella and overcoat in hand, we started forth for a week's stay among the brethren. The sky is clear and the atmosphere is warm, but these things—umbrella and overcoat—like the "cloak left at Troas," may be needful.

After preaching to a company of "select women" on Wednesday evening at Madison Station, with the pastor we drove out to the old home of the Lambuths, now occupied by one of the daughters, sister to our honored missionary. We were sorry to learn that it is soon to pass into other hands. As we looked upon the portrait of the father, himself a missionary, and recalled the labors of the son and the zeal of the grandson—our honored senior Secretary of Missions—our spirit was stirred within us as we longed for some portion of their spirit to fall upon us.

On Thursday morning we met a small congregation at Pearl River Church, where the Quarterly Conference was held. While we regretted the absence of some of the officials, we were encouraged by the reports presented and the prospects of collections in full, especially on salary of pastor; and if possible for any other man, Moore will bring Conference collections up as assessed. In front of this church stands a marble shaft, 12 or 15 feet high, erected to the memory of Rev. J. W. Lambuth, who went out from this church to his long and useful life in other lands. It was erected by his relatives and friends of his young life as an expression of admiration and love.

On this work, during the pastorate of M. H. Moore, there has been much substantial improvement. An out-and-out new parsonage, valued at $1,400—a delightful home, and a credit to the people who contributed to its erection. At Ridgeland a new and handsome church, and at Pocahontas one to cost $1,000 under construction. "They say" that when it comes to building houses, that Moore can convince a man that he is rich, though he may know he is in debt beyond recovery. Long after the law shall have moved him elsewhere he will live pleasantly in the memory of his people.

CAMDEN.

At Shrocks, on the Camden circuit, on Saturday and Sunday, we were greeted with excellent congregations. The spirit of the Quarterly Conference was fine. Stewards hopeful of collecting greater part, if not all, of assessment for pastor, and pastor jubilant over collections in full for all causes in his hands.

At Goodman, on our return, we fell in with that prince of good fellows, R. H. B. Gladney. Both at Pickens and Goodman he is in great favor with his people. Not only was our short association pleasant indeed, but I learned some things which will serve me well when the Bishop shall give me the pleasure of another pastorate.

VAUGHAN'S.

Somewhat belated, we arrived at Vaughan's, where we found Brother Cottrell awaiting us to drive to his new parsonage home, four miles away, at Deasonville. When we entered that home, with its comfortable apartments, neatly furnished by the women of the charge, and all presided over by that bright, cheery spirit so recently enthroned, we felt at once the truth that "it is not good for man to be alone." Though born and reared in another communion, already she has caught the spirit of our Methodist itinerancy; and that too long broken, scattered home is again established in love. Maggie and Josie and "Jack" all agreed that papa had done well.

Another week-day Quarterly Conference, and not so well attended. Reports only fairly well up, but with a spirit upon pastor and officials which betokens success in the end. Vaughan's is taking her place among the best in the district, and now, with her comfortable parsonage, she is ready to support the best. This house was bought during the present year, and is valued at $1,000. The Deasonville neighborhood, in which it is located, is four miles from the railroad, and in one of the best communities in the State.

SHARON.

Well, what can we say for this time-honored people? Here remain a few names which can not be forgotten in our Methodism. Many and sad have been the changes which have entered here since first we sat at the feet of our beloved Dr. Hunnicutt as student in old Madison College, and afterwards as our first pastorate. Changes, changes, changes everywhere, and of every kind. As in every part of our rural territory, the country is being deserted. The neighboring towns, the Mississippi bottoms, or the far West, have allured the young men until the question of our farm and church life has become a problem. But here are the faithful few who are willing to bear the heat and burden of the day. Full Quarterly Conference, small shortage on pastor's salary, which will be met, and pastor hopeful of good per cent. of collections committed to him. Judging from the nominations for stewards, they are evidently in favor with the pastor, and from the speeches and requests made in open Conference, Brother Gatlin is equally in favor with the stewards. A comfortable house, good garden, nice flower yard, beautiful flock of chickens, milk cow, bee tree in lawn, and kind, thoughtful neighbors—all tell of the delightful surroundings of the pastor at old Sharon. A stroll in the cemetery revealed to us many interesting things and names. Upon the marble slabs we found chiseled Divine, Colemau, Minter, Magruder, Thornton, Pugh, Hart, Wiggins, and others whose names are as ointment poured forth. Some from Maryland, the Carolinas, and Georgia, and some from the Natchez country. Here is the modest shaft which marks the last resting-place of the stalwart David M. Wiggins; here another slab bearing the name, Wm. Foster Jones, 1837, son of Rev. Jno. G. Jones, who at that time was presiding elder of the district (a grave among friends who care for it as their own); and here another which tells that death comes to the parsonage home as to all others—none escape—Martha S. Skipper, wife of Rev. V. D. Skipper, then pastor of this charge. And then we stand beside another new-made grave, which, from its first making, has had tenderest care. At every recurring visit we have found it covered with flowers laid by loving hands. As we thought of where our lot may fall, far away from this precious mound, we were comforted to know it would be cared for lovingly, and with heavy heart we turned away in hope of that joyous day when the "dead in Christ shall rise."

From Rev. J. B. Culpepper.

DEAR DOCTOR: The Lord has given us some very gracious meetings this Autumn in your lovely Mississippi. The one recently held in Aberdeen with Bro. Wilkinson reached high-water mark in some of its features. Wilkinson and his charming wife have done really a great work there.

We are now in the big, little town of Lumberton, with Rev. G. H. Thompson. You know he is all right. The meeting is now eight days old. We have had many conversions and reclamations. About seventy have joined the church. We expect a great victory here.

Our home is Oxford, Miss., for the next year. Brethren can reach me there should they feel that I or my two sons are the men to help them.

God bless you in your noble work.

J. B. CULPEPPER.

Miscellaneous Notes.

The recent Missionary Conference of the M. E. Church, which met in Cleveland, Ohio, was possibly the most numerously attended Missionary Conference ever held. Nineteen hundred delegates were enrolled, thousands of visitors besides were on hand. The programme was perfect, and speakers, judiciously selected, were allowed plenty of time to discuss the questions assigned them. The result was to arouse great interest among the people, and throughout the church. The collection amounted to $800,000, and the Conference determined to call on the church for $3,000,000 for missions next year. The tide is rising.

Dr. DuBose makes an encouraging report of the affairs of the Epworth Era. The subscription list and business are in a healthy and promising condition. The reading course of the League ought to be in the hands of the Leaguers, and studied thoroughly. The League Board has sanctioned the giving of a certificate to all who finish the yearly course, and a diploma to each of those who finish, with approval, four successive years of work. Miss Lena V. Frazier, of Shepherdstown, West Virginia, has the honor of being enrolled as the first graduate.

On July 1 a Chicago Bible House published, it is said, the largest edition of Bibles on record, and that House has been unable to fill its orders, being now 20,000 copies behind. "Never before," says the Northwestern Christian Advocate, "has a Chicago publisher sold over 15,000 copies of the Bible in a year, while the sales of this one House (above mentioned) have been three times that number in six months." This does not indicate that the people are losing interest in the Bible.

In the election, on Nov. 4, in Tennessee much interest centered on the temperance question. The Anti-Saloon League took an active part in the canvass, and in many of the primaries, and they claim a majority in the Legislature pledged to the extension of the local-option feature, which will give towns of 5,000 inhabitants and over an opportunity to rid themselves of the whisky curse. Whether ante-election pledges will be carried out remains to be seen.

The Review of Missions, published by our Board of Missions at Nashville, and edited by Drs. W. R. Lambuth and Seth Ward, is quite equal to any missionary magazine published, and ought to be in the hands of all our Methodist people. It is full, from month to month, with the very best missionary literature and information. Our preachers ought to push this magazine to the utmost limit.

The material for the equipment of the Publishing House in China was shipped last week from San Francisco by the steamer "Shimosa." So says the Pacific Methodist Advocate. The material consists of presses, stereotype machinery, binding outfit, etc. The necessary building has been erected, and work will begin about the first of January.

Christian Advocate.

"WEEPING MAY ENDURE FOR A NIGHT, BUT JOY COMETH IN THE MORNING."

BY REV. G. R. ELLIS.

Many years ago I stood over the dying body of an old servant of God. His house was a little log hut, and his bed was made of straw. In other days he was an owner of slaves and a large plantation in the State of South Carolina, and was surrounded with every comfort of life. He was a local preacher in the M. E. Church, Sonth, and a brother of a man who, for many years, occupied the highest posltion in the gift of the Methodist Church. Through reverses he was redneed to penury, bnt still held on to his Christian integrity.

Shortly after the curtain of night was lowered, and the earth was wrapped in darkness, the black-winged angel of death hovered over that bed, and in a few moments this old salnt exchanged hls desolate hovel for an house of "many mansions," eternal in the heavens; his hard pillow for an unfadlng crown, the lonely hooting of the owl for the sweet intonations of angels' songs, the dark mantle of poverty and the wretchedness for the radiant beams of eternal morn.

Then came a night of weeping, not only becanse father and grandfather was gone, but because the head that was once the seat of a master mind, instead of resting in death npon a pillow of down, was now resting upon a pillow of straw. The blackness of the nlght (for there was no moon), the remoteness of the place, the pecnniary condition of the family, all added to the loneliness of the occasion.

It was a time to weep, and we did weep, and, oh, how we all looked and longed for the first approach of day! There was no watch nor clock to mark the hours as they wearily passed by. Time and again I went to the door and looked toward the east to see if I could catch a glimpse of just one ray of light to drive back the darkness and gloom that overshadowed us. By and by I discovered a narrow streak of light as it shot up from behind the eastern hills. A thrill of indescribable joy went through my heart. Gradually this streak broadened and expanded till the shadows of night were driven back, and the whole eastern sky was robed in gorgeous attire. I announced to the family that day was approaching. Joy immediately filled their hearts, the bitter tear was wiped away, and the bedimmed eye looked with delight upon the golden glories of the rising sun. The ear that had been listening to the sad sound of the groans of the dying loved one could now begin to catch the sweet strains of the lark as he chanted his morning lay. So great was our joy that we forgot for a time that we were still dwelling among the dead. The glorions morning of joy had at last dawned npon ns. I could then comprehend with some little degree those blessed words of David, "Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning."

This fitful life is our night of weeping. The dark shadows fall all along its pathway—the shadows of sorrow, the shadows of disappointments, the shadows of affliction, the rebuffs of friends, and the foul slanders of enemies; the cold, lifeless hand-shake of brethren, and the indifference they manifest sometimes to the church—all start the bitter tear, and make us feel sometimes like weeping our lives away; bnt, thank God! there never was a night whose darkness was not dispelled by the morning sun. The day of joy is coming. Thousands of God's dear children have been watching and longing for its approach from time to time through the long night. By and by they will go to the door for the last time. A glow of radiant light will sweep up from the eternal hills, and drive back the shadows of sorrow and death, and we will walk out into the full blaze of everlasting day. The loving hand of God will wipe the tears from our burning eyes, and for the thorns that pierced us here he will give us palms of victory and crowns of glory. Our night of weeping will be over, and our joy begun. Hail, thou blessed morn!

Brooklyn, Miss.

BY MRS. FANNIE MINOR MONTGOMERY.

Thonsands of Christians remember with reverent affection these twln stars, revolving for years in the firmament of the church. Their friendship was like that of David and Jonathan, and the Lonisiana Conference was as rich in their possession as was the Tennessee In that of Drs. Green and McFerrin. All these fathers of Methodism were known to this wrlter In childhood, and later years, and she can bear testimony to their great love for children—a love which was fervently reciprocated. It is of the first-named two and their methods that this article wonld speak.

Blshop Parker rarely, if ever, preached a "children's sermon;" yet no preacher, perhaps, ever had a larger proportion of youthful hearers among his congregations. It was his habit to come early, and before the close of Sunday-school to ask a few questions calculated to bring out the more important points of the lesson, with, now and then, one of special interest to the younger scholars, as, for example, "Why did David choose five stones instead of one?" To which a little boy sang out, "So if he missed him the first time, he'd hit him the next." At the close of school he would promptly enter the pulpit, open the Bible, and fill the interval before service by questions to the teachers; but so interested were the pupils that the majority would remain for the sermon. In prayer meetings, too, he gave them an opportunity to participate by calling for texts, usually on particnlar subjects. One mother waited on him once in comical distress, declaring that she did not know what to do with her little daughter; the child was so eager to respond to his requests. "Let her alone," he cried; "don't stop her! The very stones would cry out!"

Dr. Walker used to say that he had rather see one boy converted than ten old men; the possibilities of service to the church and the world were infinitely greater. There are those yet living who remember his sermon to the children of Carondelet Church, more than forty years ago, from the text, "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth," and his lncid explanation of the beautiful figures of the sacred writer. Many will recall one of twenty years later to Felicity Sunday-school, from the story of Joseph, giving for the first lesson the deliverance of Peter. Both there narratives were related so graphically that they seemed to be enacted before the eyes of his hearers. At the pathetic parts a great sob went through the audience, and tears streamed down the little faces. But these were soon snceeeded by smiles. Everybody was so glad that Joseph was delivered and restored to his old father, and, doubtless, all were convinced that God does reward the righteous, and bring the devices of the wicked to naught.

The above reminiscences were brought forth by Dr. Smith's timely appeal for greater effort for the salvation of the children. As I write, memory brings back the first Sunday-school of which I was a member. The walk through the woods, and the old wooden church, with its windows open to catch the sunshine (it seems now to have been always sunshine), are things of yesterday to me. We had none of the helps of to-day; no lesson papers or quarterlies, no organ, and when the superintendent could not "raise the tune," a childish voice would start, "There is a happy land," or, "I want to be an angel." Our teacher was a homely little dressmaker, who knew nothing of evolution; never questioned the authorship of the Pentateuch or Hebrews; never, perhaps, heard that there might have been two Isaiahs, but loved to teach us Scripture texts, and to recite such hymns as,

"Holy Bible, book divine!
Precious treasure, thou art mine."

Dr. Winton Criticised.

BY REV. L. S. JONES.

In the Nashville Advocate, of Oct. 16, we see in the leading editorial the following statement: "But by the very nature of religious processes regeneration is inferential rather than experimental. In the same way sanctification is a phase of living, not of feeling. 'A tyro in psychology,'" etc.

Is the statement true or false? We are not prepared to accept it as the teaching either of the Bible or of psychology. Experience, according to Webster, is practical knowledge gained by trial. As a verb, it means to feel. Some one says to me fire brought in contact with the nerves of the hand will produce pain. From this I have knowledge of pain produced by fire, but I have no experience. To obtain a practical knowledge of this fact, I put my hand in contact with a coal of fire. So I gain practical knowledge of the fact stated, and, therefore, have a present experience. I feel pain. I have experimental, and not inferential, knowledge. I don't infer that fire burns; I know it.

Having settled the question of experience, let us now notice the meaning of regeneration. Webster defines it as a change from a natural "to a spiritual state; to give new life or vigor to." According to the Word, it is to be born again. Here we have a change so sudden and so radical that it is spoken of as a birth, as a waking from death into life, as a transition from the natural into the spiritual.

Now, the question is, Do I infer my regeneration, or have I a practical knowledge of it? Is my knowledge inferential or experimental? Do I infer the change, or do I feel it? If a man were suddenly removed from a temperature of 100 degrees to one of 10 degrees, would he infer the change, or would he have practical knowledge of it? If he were dead and then made alive, would he infer that he had been quickened from death into life, or would he have practical knowledge of the fact?

For forty years I have been blind in one eye. If I should have that eye restored, would I infer the change from blindness to sight, or would I know it? Certainly all these physical changes are experimental, and not inferential. So, also, is the mighty change wrought in regeneration experimental, not inferential.

What we have said of regeneration applies with equal force to entire sanctification. Sanctification is an experience as well as a life. Sanctification and holiness are not synonymous. Holiness, as Dr. Winton says, is applied to a course of action, but sanctification is the work of the Holy Spirit in us. Christ said to his disciples, "Be ye holy"—i. e., live clean lives. But when he prayed for his disciples he said, "Sanctify them through thy truth"—that is, cleanse them from all sin, inward and outward. If sanctification is simply a phase of living, and not of feeling, then it is not an inward change at all, but simply an outward life; yet Paul prays for it as something to be imparted, and not something to be evolved. "Now may the very God of peace sanctify you wholly." It is a work to be done for us and in us. Whatever we are taught to pray for, if granted, must be attended by a practical knowledge of its reception. When the refining fire of the Spirit comes in contact with the soul, the soul feels the mighty touch. And until pain produced by fire ceases to be experimental, and is only inferential, regeneration and sanctification will not cease to be experimental and become inferential. If I see a man place his hand on a red-hot stove, and jerk it suddenly away, I infer, from the nature of fire and his action, that he felt pain to a greater or less degree. But if it is my hand, I know from experience that I have pain; I don't infer it at all. If I see a man living like a Christian, I infer that he has been regenerated. But if I am regenerated, I know it as an experience, and do not simply infer it. "What we feel, that with confidence we tell." "The Spirit himself beareth witness with our spirit that we are the children of God."

Regeneration, as well as sanctification, is both an experience and a life. As a life, it is inferential; as an experience, it is experimental. As Methodists, we can not surrender the doctrine of experimental religion. We can't afford to teach inferential regeneration. We have a better knowledge of salvation than inferential knowledge. I don't infer that I love my wife; I know that as an experience. I infer that Smith loves his wife. I don't experience that, and, indeed, can not. I love God. I don't infer it; I know it; I experience love for God. Smith says, "I love God." His life indicates it. From this I infer that he loves God. I don't experience it. His regeneration to me is inferential, but my own is experimental.

Millsaps College Letter.

BY PROF. B. E. YOUNG.

President W. B. Murrah reports fine Sundays passed at Brookhaven and Yazoo City.

Prof. A. H. Shannon will take Professor Moore's position as instructor of the Sunday-school Greek Class at the First Methodist Church. Dr. Moore has taught this class for a number of years, and it is only because of his work at the Capitol Street Church that he has given it up.

The Freshman Class held a meeting on the thirtieth ultimo for the purpose of electing their class officers and otherwise asserting their identity. This class is the largest that has ever entered the college, so that they had a vast amount of material to draw from. The scene was enlivened by the presence of two young ladies as class-mates. Mr. O. C. Luper, of Blountville, was chosen president; Miss Irene Peebles, vice-president; Charles G. Carter, treasurer; while a smaller office was given to nearly every other member of the class.

Dr. James A. Moore had quite a house full at the James Observatory upon the occasion of the eclipse of the moon. Not only was the regular class present, but quite a number of ladies and gentlemen from the city were out to take advantage of this exceptional opportunity, and a good view of the phenomena was had by everybody. Dr. Moore spared no pains in explaining all about the matter.

Recently our chapel exercises have been conducted by Rev. E. G. Kilgore, and Dr. W. T. J. Sullivan, of the North Mississippi Conference, and by Dr. Holloman, our presiding elder. We have also had a visit of a party of friends, which included Bro. Baker, of Natchez, and his daughter.

New students are still coming in, mostly additions to the preparatory school. The number of students matriculated in the law school is already greater than the total enrollment of last session.

Rev. Dr. W. C. Black paid us a visit last week on his round of pastoral calls. Although Dr. Black has a membership of some 732 to look after, he does not neglect the Millsaps students or the Millsaps community. He is a personal friend of each member of his church.

The Jefferson Davis Scholarship, kept up by Mrs. Annie Davis Gunning, of this city, has been awarded to two worthy young men for the present year. This scholarship has done a vast deal of good in enabling young men to go on in their college work. Why can we not have many others like it from thoughtful friends?

In this connection we may mention the Martha A. Turner Library of English and American Literature, endowed by Mrs. J. R. Bingham. There is no better memorial than a special library fund: certainly none more lasting, more productive, and, at the same time, within reach of so many of our friends. The income from the Martha A. Turner fund brings us many a precious book. Why can we not have others like it for other departments which stand so badly in need of special books?

It is customary for the literary societies to elect their debaters and anniversary representatives soon after the opening of college, in order to give them ample time to prepare themselves for the important duties devolving upon them. From the Lamar Society were elected G. R. Nobles, first debater, and O. W. Bradley, second debater; from the Galloway were chosen W. N. Duncan, first debater, and F. D. Mellen, second debater. As orator and anniversarian the Lamar Society chose, respectively, M. S. Pittman and G. R. Nobles, while the corresponding honors in the Galloway Society were tendered to Z. M. Bradley and W. F. Cook. Hon. John Sharp Williams has been invited by the first-mentioned society to deliver the annual address.

At the recent meeting of the faculty Prof. D. H. Bishop was chosen to attend, as a visitor, the annual meeting of the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges, held on Nov. 5, at Oxford, Miss., with the State University.

A new annual prize for the best story has been offered by the Collegian, our literary magazine. This prize comes from Prof. D. H. Bishop, of the Department of English, to whom the Collegian is greatly indebted for his earnest assistance ever since he has been connected with the college. We shall have more to say of the bright prospects of our magazine in our next letter.

Mrs. G. W. Huddleston, wife of our popular professor, has been recently awarded a prize of $125, offered by a leading magazine for the best story submitted. Mrs. Huddleston has frequently taken prizes for her magazine stories, and not so long ago won a prize in a competition conducted by the Youth's Companion.

Prof. G. W. Huddleston occupied the pulpit of First Church last Sunday, preaching an excellent sermon. Our boys, especially, are always glad to hear Prof. Huddleston address them, as he is a great favorite among them.

In Memoriam.

Mrs. Browning, the subject of this sketch, died in Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 11, 1902, and her body was interred at Lauderdale, Miss., the home of her childhood. There, in the old churchyard on the summit of a sunlit hill, surrounded by her friends, loved ones, and ancestors, she sleeps peacefully in Jesus, awaiting the resurrection of the just.

If, when God calls a preacher, he calls a preacher's wife also, Mrs. Blanche Walker Browning was, of a surety, called of God—a vessel chosen of the Lord. Her whole heart was in the church her husband, Rev. Wm. Thomas Browning, as a preacher in the North Mississippi Conference, was serving; her highest hopes were for its success. No expression was more familiar to her lips than, "The whole world is swinging towards Methodism." With open eye she saw the triumphing of the grand doctrines she held so close to her heart, where one with narrower vision might discern only failure and reaction.

Mrs. Browning's life-melody was pitched in a major key, whose three great chords were height of ideal, sympathy, and cheerfulness. She sought for herself, and desired for others, the highest holiness. Her insight into the weakness of human character made her patient and tender towards the lowest and most pitiful failures in other lives, and out of her abounding cheerfulness grew always the hope that somehow good would triumph in the end. She loved the good, and worshiped it with holy incense of sincerest praise; she grieved over evil, and washed it with her tears; she spoke no wrong of anyone; she attributed to every action of friend or foe the best possible motives; she was brave in pain, cheerful in adversity, hopeful in times of trial. In her life storms ever ended with rainbow shinings of promise; night came that stars might shine; and when the horror of great darkness fell upon her, it had a voice, and the voice was the voice of God.

What of her is dead is but the robe of flesh her soul wore with pain, but with patience; what of her is living somehow makes the hope of heaven brighter, and pearly gate and tree of life more real. If height of ideal, if loftiness of faith, if character made strong out of weakness, if the bitterness of pain and sickness turned by brave patience into sweetness—if these things ennoble humanity and glorify it, then Sister Browning's passing was of Him who, to make His holy city fair, bringeth the glory and the honor of the nations into it.

WALTER G. HARBIN.

Notice.

To the Pastors of the Louisiana Conference—

DEAR BRETHREN: I am doing all in my power to give the Conference an up-to-date copy of the Conference Minutes, and am now hard at work on some parts of it. I realize that I can but fail without your hearty co-operation. There are many blanks in our Conference roll that you can fill if you will. Is it asking too much to ask that you drop me a postal card with the data? This is specially needed in the case of transfers to this Conference. There are also blanks in the roll of dead that can be filled, and there are pictures of our deceased brethren that we can preserve for future generations, if we will ask a few questions on our rounds. I am anxious to get all of these.

There is just one other matter—that is the circulation of our Minutes. As things stand, I can send but a very limited number to each charge. Some brethren write that they can use two or three times as many as they get.

Now, if you will bring me the names of those persons who want the book mailed to them as soon as it is from the press, and at the same time bring twenty cents for each name, I will have the number printed extra, and thus be able to give every charge its full quota of the 2,000 printed for the Conference.

Let me also urge you to bring up the assessment for Minutes in full, as it costs money to get out a book, and advertising for this kind of a book is very hard to get.

Respectfully, W. G. EVANS.

The King's Daughters.

The order of the King's Daughters and Sons in Louisiana makes the following appeal to the good people of New Orleans:

DEAR FRIENDS: We want to make a thousand of God's poor happy on Thanksgiving Day. Will you help us, dear friends? Money, food, and clothing for this work will be received at 1440 Camp street. Every case will be throughly investigated and cards issued either to the dinner at the hall or to the basket dinner given to families in destitute condition.

Please send all requests for tickets to the State Secretary before Nov. 12. We call your attention to the annex for little crippled children, and the proposed Summer Home for the weak and invalids. Surely one of these will appeal to your generosity, and some lives will be made brighter for your loving thought. May God fill your heart with the spirit of Thanksgiving, and teach you the truth of the words, "And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity."

Your sincere friend,

MISS SOPHIE B. WRIGHT,
State Secretary.

The Sunday League.

The Sunday League of America, the object of which is to preserve the sanctity of the holy Sabbath, has sent out the following to the people all over our land:

"The Sunday League of America has secured the co-operation of all the Sunday observance organizations in the world for the appointment of the first week following Easter, 1903, as Lord's Day Week. In this week we desire that the prayer-meeting topic shall be Sunday observance. We desire that all your readers put this week down on their calendar, and give much thought and prayer to this subject during that week. Also that literature on this subject be circulated in every city in the land, with the aim to reach every home with the latest thoughts on Sunday observance."

Preachers and others interested will address Rev. Edward Thomson, General Manager, Columbus, Ohio.

Get the Most Out of Your Food

You don't and can't if your stomach is weak. A weak stomach does not digest all that is ordinarily taken into it. It gets tired easily, and what it fails to digest is wasted.

Among the signs of a weak stomach are uneasiness after eating, fits of nervous headache, and disagreeable belching.

"I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla at different times for stomach troubles, and a run down condition of the system, and have been greatly benefited by its use. I would not be without it in my family. I am troubled especially in summer with weak stomach and nausea and find Hood's Sarsaparilla invaluable." E. B. HICKMAN, W. Chester, Pa.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

Scarcely a month remains before our three Conferences will be in session, and our ecclesiastical year brought to a close. We trust the reports will show increased prosperity among our schools. Pastors and secretaries of schools are reminded of the change in the Discipline, requiring the pastor to report the entire number of pupils enrolled during the year. Heretofore only the actual membership of the schools at the time the report was made has been reported, but now the enrollment for the entire year is required.

The attention of presiding elders is called to Paragraph 117, which requires them to furnish the chairman of the Sunday-school Board with a complete list of the superintendents in their districts, with their postoffice addresses. The importance of this requirement is often not appreciated. Without such a list, it is impossible for the Sunday-school Board to get in close touch with the Sunday-schools of the Conference. It is the smaller schools, and especially those in the rural districts, that often need assistance and attention, and they are the ones usually out of touch with the Board.

We would again urge upon our Study Circles the importance of holding their examinations at an early date. If they could all be held before the Conferences meet, it would give added impetus to the work. The Conferences will naturally inquire, What has been accomplished by the Study Circles during the past year? If tangible results can be shown, it will encourage others to take up the work. The Study Circles have accomplished a great work; so let us testify to the fact.

November 27 will be Thanksgiving Day. Let our schools on that day, or the succeeding Sabbath, remember the orphans and the poor. A collection taken for the orphan asylums would be timely, and would express in a substantial way our thanksgiving unto God.

Thousands of teachers all over our land are yearning for a greater influence over their scholars, and for the ability to impress them with the vital truths of the gospel. Let no one say that we are unduly exalting the human side. We all know that only through the Holy Spirit can the great desires of our heart be realized, but we also know that the human ax which the Spirit would use to cut down the trees of iniquity ought to be sharpened. It is not an evidence of grace to be a block-head. Stupidity is not spiritual strength. The devil does not possess the only grindstones that sharpens wits. Too often the cry, "We can do nothing; it is all the Lord's work," is the expression of superlative laziness.

We daily hear, "Knowledge is power." The greater your knowledge of the subject to be presented, the more effectively will you be able to present it. But do not forget that while the particular subject that you are teaching upon a given day may be "The Fall of Jericho" or the "Cities of Refuge," yet your great subject is salvation through Jesus Christ. Hence, to possess true teaching power, you need not only a knowledge of Jericho and its surroundings, but also a knowledge of the entire story of redemption as revealed in the Book. Don't imitate the teacher who contrived to keep just one lesson ahead of his pupils, but ever strive to get a full and accurate knowledge of the Word of Truth.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

SOUTH SIDE (MERIDIAN) AND POPLAR SPRINGS CHARGE.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Our fourth and last Quarterly Conference was held last Wednesday evening at South Side Church. Rev. W. W. Simmons, our faithful and efficient presiding elder, was on hand, and preached us a strong sermon on "Conscience." It was full of suggestive thought, and much enjoyed by all who were present.

After preaching the Quarterly Conference was called to order, and the business pertaining to the church was transacted in a Christian spirit. Never has it been this pastor's lot to be in a more harmonious Quarterly Conference. From the calling of the first question to the benediction, there was nothing to mar the pleasantness of the occasion. Everybody, as Bro. Simmons suggested, seemed to be "in a good humor."

We feel that the Lord has blessed us here in his work this year. While we have not accomplished all we hoped to accomplish, still much has been done. One of the oldest members of the church said the next morning that he thought everything was in better shape than for several years, and that he felt very much encouraged.

To avoid making this contribution too lengthy, I will just submit a few facts as they now stand, both as regards what has been done to date, and what we expect to do by Conference.

First. I would say we have had good meetings this year, resulting in a number of conversions and accessions to the church. All told, we have received during the year thirty-six new members, and disposed of seven, making a net gain to date of twenty-nine. The church has been quickened more or less into newness of life.

Never has better work been done in the Sunday-school and Epworth League. Especially is this true of the latter, as was testified to by one of the League presidents at the last Quarterly Conference. We have at South Side both a flourishing Senior and Junior League. The Juniors have done some good work, recently having put a $15 memorial bed in the Orphans' Home in memory of Mrs. L. F. Alford. They have also presented the church at South Side with a new heater. The Seniors have raised $10 for the Orphans' Home.

As to finances in general, we make three statements besides what the Leagues have raised.

First. The Conference collections are all secured in good subscription, most of which has been paid, and it is the purpose of the pastor to have every dollar of every claim in the hands of the various Conference treasurers by Nov. 15.

Second. The pastor's and presiding elder's salaries will be met in full.

Third. The ladies have raised for the parsonage some forty-odd dollars, and about $30 has been expended on church furnishings and repairs.

So, with this bright record for this year, the people are encouraged, and are planning for greater things next year. Your brother in Christ,

F. B. ORMOND, Pastor.

LEAKSVILLE CHARGE.

DEAR BRO. BOSWELL: If you will allow me some space in your valuable paper, I will convey through its columns a few words of information, which, I feel, will be of interest to some of its readers.

This round completes my work on the Leaksville charge for the three years now closing. These three years have been years of pleasantness, while they have been attended with some unpleasantness. The Lord has graciously blessed us all along the way. In many lines we have been very successful. We have succeeded in organizing two new societies—the first with a membership of about twenty-five, with an increase since of, perhaps, twenty, or more; these being all on profession of faith. The second organization was mostly members from other churches, which gave us a membership of twenty by certificate, with a few on profession of faith. Have taken into the church during these three years about one hundred members, or, maybe, more.

Last, but not least, we have broken the record on Conference collections. We have succeeded for these three years in raising all Conference claims—something which has never been done previous to my coming to this work. I am glad to say I have all the Conference funds in hand, and will forward them to the treasurers of the different Boards this week. Praise the Lord for this much.

But the pastor! Well, he has not suffered, but would feel a lot better if he could say the pastor's salary and presiding elder's had been paid in full; but, alas! But I have labored and prayed and done everything it seemed possible to be done, and still they don't pay. Well, bless the Lord! "He is my shepherd; I shall not want. He prepareth a table before me. . . . Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life."

Yours in the work for Christ's sake,

W. L. BLACKWELL, P. C.

BATESVILLE AND WESLEY CHARGE.

Another Conference year is nearly gone. In many respects it has been pleasant and profitable. The ingathering of souls has not been what we wished, but some have come into the church with buoyant hope and bright prospects for the future. Our prayer meetings have been seasons of refreshing from the Lord. Our Sunday-schools, though fairly good at the beginning of the year, are much improved. Our Woman's Missionary Societies—Home and Foreign—are both regularly attended, and there has been some increase in members and interest. The salaries of the preachers have been ahead all the year. We hope to report all the assessments for the work in full.

We are indebted to Bros. R. A. Clarke and J. R. Roberson for faithful service in our protracted meetings—the first at Batesville, the latter at Wesley.

We are highly favored with the co-operation of the other town pastors: Bro. Lomax, of the Baptist Church, and Bro. Crump, of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. Better yoke-fellows I never had.

We are now in a meeting in the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, and all work together as if we belonged to that church. We are praying and working for a genuine revival in our town, which is greatly needed. Pray for us.

Fraternally, D. W. BABB.

MACBETH on The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check, ten cents extra will be charged.

The Pearl Speaker.

Compiled by J. W. GRAHAM, Clarksville, Tenn.

More than 150 selections from orators and poets in its 320 pages. It will be seen by this that the extracts are short; modern for the most part, and Southern in due part. Some of the best of the long-approved have been retained.

Cloth bound, $1; in Paper, 60 cents.

"I anticipate a world-wide welcome for this book wherever there are Methodists and those who wish to know Methodist teaching."—Bishop E. R. Hendrix.

"It is one of the most thorough works with which I am acquainted on the subject."—Dr. G. B. Stevens, Professor of Systematic Theology in Yale University.

"This seems to me about the best book that has yet appeared in Methodism on the theme of the higher Christian life."—Dr. James Mudge, author of "Growth in Holiness."

"It is clear, strong, and full of spiritual power."—Bishop W. A. Candler.

"This sterling treatise fills a place long vacant in the literature of our Church."—Dr. J. J. Tigert, Editor of the Methodist Review.

"We have seen nothing that will be more helpful to the young preacher in his study."—Bishop H. C. Morrison.

"This work can scarcely be praised too highly in the matter of directness and freedom from technical terms."—Dr. G. B. Winton, Editor of the Christian Advocate, Nashville.

"The subjects discussed are thoroughly thought out, clearly and forcibly expressed, and the truth is sent home to the inner consciousness."—Dr. D. W. C. Huntington, Chancellor of Nebraska Wesleyan University.

"It is doctrine personal, practical, experimental, warm with the spiritual life of which it treats."—Bishop J. C. Granbery.

"Covers the whole realm of popular theology in so bright and readable a way as to make the investigation a pleasure."—Dr. James Atkins, Editor Sunday School Magazine.

"There is a freshness and vigorousness about this book that instantly win attention and hold the mind of the reader."—Zion's Herald, Boston.

"The author looks at things from the standpoint of the most recent scholarship."—Dr. E. B. Chappell, in Nashville Banner.

"The great essential doctrines bearing on the life of the believer are discussed with a fullness of scholarship, a clearness of insight, and a fervor of utterance which leave nothing further to be desired."—Western Christian Advocate, Cincinnati.

"It breathes the broad and liberal spirit of our great and growing communion."—Bishop O. P. Fitzgerald.

"It is clear, strong, suggestive, satisfactory. I covet for it a place in the library of every intelligent Methodist."—Bishop W. W. Duncan.

"The themes are treated with the skill of a thorough scholar."—Dr. Wm. M. Green, Editor Midland Methodist.

"Few books within my knowledge are so well calculated to impress the vital truths of religion in a living way upon the heart of the reader."—Dr. J. D. Hammond, Secretary of Education.

"It is sound in doctrine, discriminating in statement, clear in its distinctions, and full in its treatment of the cardinal principles of Christianity."—Bishop R. K. Hargrove.

"It is a profound, devotional study of Christian doctrine."—New York Christian Advocate.

"The book illuminates all the outlines of our body of doctrine, and puts the emphasis duly on dogma, but most of all on life."—Dr. R. J. Bigham, Book Agent Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

"It is clear and concise, yet it is strong and full; nothing of highest moment is omitted. The book ought to be widely circulated."—Bishop A. W. Wilson.

"The author has put the cream of his thinking into this volume. It is a storehouse of garnered wealth. . . . It cannot be too highly commended."—Dr. J. W. Lee, in Methodist Magazine.

TERMS AND DIRECTIONS.

ONE COPY, one year, $2.00; six months, $1.00. To preachers of all denominations, half price.

CORRESPONDENTS will please direct all communications, whether on business or for publication, to the Editor, 513 Camp St., New Orleans. Write with ink, and only on one side of the paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

OBITUARIES not over two hundred words in length will be published free of charge. All over two hundred words will be charged for at the rate of ONE CENT A WORD. Count the words and send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around.

THE PRINTED LABEL on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after two weeks, notify us, and we will make it right. This applies also to those who request a change of address.

All Preachers of the M. E. Church, South, are authorized Agents, to whom payments may be made.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1902.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

We seldom say anything to our subscribers through the paper about money. But the year is closing, many hundreds of dollars are due us, and we would be thankful if those who are behind would remit. Please do not wait for your preacher to call. Send the amount any safe way that is convenient. Let us hear from you this week.

A sectarian is not necessarily a bigot. Any man belonging to a church, whether congregational or connectional, is a sectarian. The difference between what is called "the church" and "the sects" is purely imaginary. In the early days the Christian church was called "the sect of the Nazarenes," and the sect was "everywhere spoken against." And so far as history in the New Testament shows, the apostles made no protest against the appellation. But the early Christians were not bigots as were the Pharisees. And there would be none to-day but for a false assumption of divine authority coupled with a degree of assumption. None but those who assume to be the only sect authorized of God to preach and administer the ordinances are sectarian bigots. From all such we pray to be delivered.

Saloons are models of hospitality! They put the churches to shame. So it is said. Certainly! They keep open door every day and every night of the week. They furnish every comfort for the outer man—electric fans in Summer, and good seats and good fires in the Winter, and refreshments all the while. They do all this for the same reason the hotel man keeps open house; for the same reason the spider spins a pretty web. Not many poor people, we imagine, are furnished food and drink at the saloon bar free of charge. If reports are true, saloon hospitality is costly. The church can not compete with the saloon in catering to the taste of depraved humanity without furnishing the same kind of refreshments. The church can not afford that.

They "were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea; and were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud, and in the sea." Here, says a wise brother, "is a clear case of immersion. Waters on either side, and the clond covering them, so that they (the Israelites) were hid from the Egyptians." There was a baptism, but to our dull eyes there was not the least semblance of dipping. The Israelites walked across the sea on "dry ground." The Egyptians, assaying to do the same thing, were overwhelmed with the waters and drowned, but they were not dipped.

THE SIN OF THE PEOPLE.

There is but little regard for the holy Sabbath in New Orleans. What is true of this city is true, we suppose, of every town and city in Louisiana except such as are largely pervaded by evangelical sentiment. Even in these there is no law protecting its sanctity against certain forms of evil that are prevalent. It is true, business is largely suspended; the saloons are closed—at least, supposed to be—but public work, under the direction of city officers, is carried on, and petty traffickers pursue their calling the same as on other days. They know no Sunday, save, perhaps, they attend early mass and get a clear receipt for the sins of the past seven days. The city is largely given over to pleasure. It is the regular day for hunting and fishing. Gentlemen of high standing go to the lakes and hunting-grounds, and spend the whole day in sport. The daily papers chronicle their names and success about as regularly as they do the horse-races or the doings on change. In base-ball season Sunday is the big day. The tonghs of the town come together in one noisy crowd. And we are sorry to say many very respectable people — men and women—give them countenance and support. The theaters reap rich harvests on the Lord's day, making it convenient, as often as otherwise, to open their engagements on Sunday. All kinds of traveling shows make it a point to spend Sunday with open doors in New Orleans. These show-men, forced by law or public sentiment to close up on Sunday in other places, when they reach New Orleans, show what their real moral character is — how utterly regardless they are of God and his law. They know what kind of a reception they will have. Only a short time since Buffalo Bill, with his Wild West show, had a three-days' engagement in the city. One day was Sunday, with two performances. Whatever may be said of this show as a week-day pastime, it is certainly out of place in a Christian community on the Sabbath. The quiet of the day is disturbed everywhere within a mile of the ground. The boom of cannon and the rattle of musketry remind one of war and blood and death. Mr. Cody, the proprietor —a man of world-wide fame—should be ashamed to impose this on Christian people simply because there is no law to prevent the desecration.

But what of the people who allow such? Have they no responsibility? Are they not guilty for the lack of restraining laws, or for the non-enforcement of existing laws, if there be such? To abrogate all Sunday laws, and turn people loose to do as they please, is moral anarchy that is bound to have effect on the country and people in more ways than one. People who set at naught the law of God can not be depended on to make first-class citizens. If they will make a breach in the Ten Commandments, it is not strange that so little regard is paid to civil statutes. An uneducated or weakened public conscience that gives way at one point is apt to break down at another, and the consequences of that weakening will not stop with this life. God will hold the violator to account at the judgment, and he will suffer for his wrong-doing in eternity.

Of course, nations and national rulers will have no existence in the future. They must suffer the consequences of their evil-doings in this life. God is still the ruler of kingdoms. "He putteth down one and setteth up another" — not arbitrarily, but is governed in his actions by the attitude of the people towards his laws. Nations introduce, and are responsible for, the elements of their own disintegration, and the destruction of the nation is as surely effected by the violation of God's laws as by disregard of the laws governing society and the State.

The holy Sabbath was instituted as a safeguard, not only for the preservation of the health and life of the people, but of their moral and spiritual well-being. To one who accepts it as a divine institution, ordained for the purposes above specified, it is easy to see that the many evils afflicting the State in the way of lawlessness and failure to punish crime are traceable to the weakening of the public conscience in regard to the observance of the holy day. A multitude of things might be specified in the general indictment of Sabbath-breakers, many of which are regarded as trivial; but, trivial as they are, they can not be left out of consideration, if for no other reason than because in these trival things the break-down of the Sabbath has its beginning. From little things to greater the people have proceeded, until now there is no phase of Sunday desecration that is not tolerated — in traffic, from the simple sale of fruits on the street to the printing and selling of daily papers; and in pleasure, from social visiting to patronizing the vilest theaters.

Our people need to be alarmed and stirred up on the subject of Sabbath-breaking. Sin lieth at the door. God will not hold us guiltless. "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy," is the divine command, and God has promised to bless the man that keeps his law. "Blessed is the man that keepeth the Sabbath from polluting it." Read Nehemiah, thirteenth chapter, from the fifteenth through to the end of the twenty-second verse, and learn how an executive of Israel expounded and enforced the law.

AS TO FOOT-BALL.

We have kept our eyes steadily on foot-ball ever since the opening of the college terms. The season is now at its height, and the boys are in their glory. We hear much more of the game than we do of the standing of the students in their classes. In accounts of college life we see ten times more of foot-ball than we do of anything else connected with the school. The foot-ball team of every college of any note is better known to the public than the faculty. An exceptionally good "team" is known all over the land. But we seriously doubt whether the student making the highest mark in certain colleges is known beyond the members of his own class. If there is an exceptionally bright young man in our leading institutions, his name does not get before the people. The best foot-ball player is notorious. And yet foot-ball as played is brutal.

In a recent editorial the Memphis Commercial-Appeal called attention to brutalities exhibited in recent games, and the consequences. And in another daily we read an account of a game that was simply horrible. The account was by an eye-witness. On Saturday, Nov. 2, at Knoxville, Tenn., in a game between the Maryville College and Deaf-Mute School teams, the deaf and dumb coach, Walter Cole, received injuries of which he is dying. His head and collar-bone were both broken, and he was carried from the field unconscious. The Associated Press sends out this news. The Commercial-Appeal says:

At Nashville the other day ribs and collar-bones were broken; some of the participants were knocked senseless, and a subsequent game had to be abandoned because of the general disfigurement of the players. At Staunton, Ill., one of the members of a foot-ball team was killed in a melee, and his associates burned their uniforms and declared against the refined sport. In one foot-ball season no less than twenty-two young men were killed, and hundreds of lads were badly injured, crippled, or maimed. Hardly a game is played by the best teams that several men are not more seriously hurt than is the prizefighter who is knocked out in the ring. Corbett lost the championship of the world because of a chance blow that dazed him for about eleven seconds. It frequently happens that foot-ball players are knocked senseless for two or three minutes. Here, then, we have a state of affairs amounting to civil war. Young men are being maimed, bruised, disfigured, and killed. Some are incapacitated for life. Some have broken arms or legs. Yet these slugging matches are allowed to go right along, and the clerical gentlemen who protest so vigorously when two skilled boxers have a prize fight, have not a word to say.

The Memphis editor asks, "Where is this thing going to stop?" We answer, It is not going to stop at all, as long as the standing of colleges and universities is determined by the efficiency of its athletic associations, and the extent of the encouragement given to sport by the faculties and trustees. The brutality can neither be stopped or reformed, so long as the most popular men in faculties are at the head of athletic associations, and make no effort to check the barbarism, or so long as players regard injuries as badges of honor and distinction, preferring a broken collar-bone or ankle to the highest distinction as a student. If a foot-ball player is compelled to limp from the field, he does not regard it as a misfortune, but as an evidence of courage. Such players are beyond reform. The team in Illinois, referred to above, was an exception to the rule. The Commercial-Appeal further says:

It is high time that another effort was made to reform the game of foot-ball, and if this is not done, it should be pronounced a felony by law, and those who engage in it should be punished. It is the height of tragic absurdity for any one to say that a game in which youths are killed and wounded is a sport. Prize fighting is a mild, Ladies'-Home-Journal sort of exercise compared with foot ball, and unless the foot-ball rules can be amended so as to bring it within the pale of civilization, it should be abolished by law.

But is it not strange that while a secular journal is taking such extreme ground against a game so brutal in its character, that church colleges hold on to them with dogged tenacity? We do not understand how refined, Christian young men and professors can become attached to a game in which brute force plays such a part as to be almost, if not altogether, essential to success. If we are properly informed, it is only when one college team plays with another that the brutality shows itself. Rival teams on the same campus never kill each other. It is the intercollegiate game that should be suppressed.

Referring to the Memphis editor's statement that "the clerical gentlemen who protest so vigorously when two skilled boxers have a prize fight, have not a word to say," we beg to remind him that two Annual Conferences of the M. E. Church, South, whose members largely patronize the Appeal, have condemned intercollegiate foot-ball in no uncertain way, and, if necessary, will do so again. The only college for boys under the care of these Conferences forbids the intercollegiate sport.

A PIECE OF BAD ADVICE.

A member of the church, dissatisfied because his brethren are not as spiritual as he thinks they should be, asked the editor of one of the popular religious papers what he ought to do. He was advised to leave and join some other church more to his liking. The editor concluded his advice by saying, "The denomination amounts to nothing." This is, in general, the kind of advice people get who patronize cheap, undenominational papers. Is it any wonder that in some sections of our country the institutions of the church are so meagerly supported? People will not support the institutions of a denomination that amounts to nothing. Our preachers still have much work to do.

The church, as an organization, is divinely authorized, and was founded for the propagation of the truth. Men are not called into it merely for personal enjoyment, but to assist in carrying out its purposes. Every denomination of Christians, whether it assumes to be the true church, with the exclusive right to preach and administer the ordinances, or only a branch of the church, stands for something—some peculiar doctrine or practice that is regarded as important. To tell a churchman, ritualist or evangelical, that his denomination amounts to nothing is to insult his intelligence, and call in question his integrity.

If the principles of Methodism are true, and its economy adapted to meet the wants of men, it is well worth our while to induce men to forsake the world and come into our fold. If what we stand for as Methodists amounts to nothing, we had better disband our forces and sell our church-buildings. The Lord will be better pleased with us out of the church than in it. But what shall we do? Where shall we go? Let those answer who believe that "the denomination amounts to nothing." We repeat, Our preachers have much to do. The faith for which we contend must be pressed upon the attention of the people.

Book Notices.

This book of 317 pages contains the meditations of a saintly man on spiritual things. It was written while shut out from the world on account of physical disability. To those who know Bishop Fitzgerald, whether personally or as a writer, no word of commendation is necessary. To those who do not know him we will say: Get the book, and you will not be disappointed. It will be found specially comforting to a lonesome, shut-in soul. There will not be found in these pages anything to awaken doubt as to the truth and inspiration of the Holy Scriptures, but a setting forth of the truth in simple, but elegant and comforting words. We hope the book will have the circulation it deserves.

PERSONAL SALVATION: STUDIES IN CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE PERTAINING TO THE SPIRITUAL LIFE. By Rev. W. F. Tillett, D. D. Nashville, Tenn.: Bigham & Smith.

Dr. Tillett is well known throughout our Connection as a writer on Christian doctrine, having, for years past, contributed to our Sunday-school Magazine a series of articles under the title, "What We Believe, and Why." These studies have been enlarged and presented to the public in the volume before us. The chapters, twenty-five in number, contain a discussion of all questions that relate to personal salvation. The book is, in fact, a body of divinity, in which the author says he has tried, "as far as possible, to combine the best elements," both of biblical and systematic theology. Many of our brethren will not agree with Dr. Tillett in his positions and conclusions on the question of sin in believers and instantaneous sanctification, and others will think he falls short in discussing the matter of a second, or eternal, probation. We wish ourselves that he had left the question untouched, or that he had been fuller and more pronounced in his denial of the doctrine. Nevertheless, we agree with the Pittsburg Christian Advocate in saying: "It gives such a clear outline of Christian theology along the line of personal salvation that its perusal will do much to dissipate the fog which surrounds many points in religious experience."

The Delineator is a magazine thirty years old. The Christmas (December) number is also the thirtieth anniversary number. To do justice to this number, which for beauty and utility touches the highest mark, it would be necessary to print the entire list of contents. It is sufficient to state that in it the best modern writers and artists are generously represented. The book contains over 230 pages, with 34 full-page illustrations, of which 20 are in two, or more, colors. The magnitude of this December number, for which 728 tons of paper and six tons of ink have been used, may be understood from the fact that 91 presses, running 14 hours a day, have been required to print it; the binding alone of the edition of 915,000 copies representing over 20,000,000 sections which had to be gathered individually by human hands.

PERSONAL.

We had the pleasure, last week, of a visit from Mr. W. M. Pendleton, a member of one of our churches in Atlanta. He is in the city temporarily, looking after insurance business.

Dr. W. H. LaPrade preached Sunday evening, last, at Carrollton Avenue Church. The sermon is worthy of note. It was entertaining and edifying, full of gospel truth; just such preaching as is necessary to save sinners. It gave out no uncertain sound.

Rev. W. G. Forsyth, of Gloster station, is closing a fine year's work. There has been prosperity in the church, and all collections will be reported in full, with a good excess for foreign missions. The financial exhibit will show a payment of ten dollars per member. That is a fine showing.

The Sunday-school at Magnolia, Miss., has prospered during the past year under the superintendence of Brother Lucius Lampton, and the members of the school were so well pleased with his administration that they passed a series of resolutions highly complimentary. That was a graceful thing to do.

Rev. W. J. Porter sends notice of the death of Brother John Steotzner, of Livingston parish, La. He was in his sixty-sixth year, a faithful Christian, and for many years an official member in the Pouchatoula circuit. He died peacefully on the twenty-third of October. A good man has gone to his reward.

Dr. F. N. Parker is closing his third year as pastor of Carondelet Street Church. The year has been one of steady growth. There was considerable increase in the Sunday-school last Sabbath, and the preacher was greeted by a large congregation at eleven o'clock. There will be no deficits in the statistical tables.

Rev. J. W. Ramsey is closing a fine year's work on the Nettleton circuit. He writes that he has been blessed with "splendid revivals, resulting in many conversions and sixty-five additions to the church, and with an increase of family altars and prayer meetings. Pastor's and presiding elder's salaries will be paid in full, and a large per cent. of the Conference collections."

Dr. H. W. Featherstun will have a series of articles in the Epworth Era, under the title, "From the Apostles to Wesley." The series will begin with the issue of Nov. 13. When completed, the articles will be gathered into a volume to go into a collection of text-books for the use of League Institutes and Assemblies. Dr. Featherstun's articles will doubtless meet with great favor.

Dr. W. R. Lambuth was in the city on Friday last, en route to Nashville from Mexico and the Pacific Coast. He has been absent from home about two months. During the time he has attended the New Mexico and the coast Conferences, taking in the West Texas Conference on his return. The Doctor is of the opinion that our church was never in a better condition in the West than it is to-day.

We had the pleasure, on Sunday last, of worshiping with our brethren in Algiers; Rev. K. W. Dodson, pastor. The singing was delightful, especially a solo by Miss Jessie Dunn, member of the choir, who possesses the sweetest voice we have heard in a long time. The singing was not operatic, but simple, soul-stirring, musical, and the words, distinctly uttered, were spiritual and elevating. O that we had more such music in our churches!

Louisiana Conference.

KEEP THE DAY. TAKE THE COLLECTION.

The following resolution was passed without a dissenting vote at our last Annual Conference:

Resolved, That we, the members of the Louisiana Conference, do so far as practicable observe Thanksgiving Day as Veterans' Day, and make special effort to raise the collection for Conference claimants on that day, or for an endowment fund for that claim.

(Signed) C C Wier, W. H. L. Prade, J. A. Miller, J. J. Kelly.

We wish to exhort the entire Conference to take the collection on that day for an endowment fund for our veterans. The regular collections no doubt have been taken together—that for the Conference claimants with the others ordered by the various Boards—hence it will be appropriate to take this day as one to observe for increasing our Endowment Fund for Conference Claimants. The Moore Fund has been increased to nine hundred and ten dollars during the year. Why not take this collection and let that fund be raised to two thousand dollars? If the collection is taken, forward it to the undersigned, and it will be put to work immediately drawing interest at the rate of eight per cent. Let us keep the day and take this collection, and put the money to work immediately for this most worthy cause. Forward it, and it will be securely invested and begin to bear interest. Make a plea to some of our wealthy members for a large donation for this cause. Forward all moneys to me at 1114 Carrollton Ave., New Orleans, or to S. B. McCutchen, Shreveport, La. If to the latter, state distinctly what cause it is for, so it will not be confused with other funds.

S. S. KEENER,
President La. Legal Conference.

Indian Mission.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Allow me to make this, my last report before the Annual Conference, for the Indian Mission. We have received, since our last report to the ADVOCATE, the following amounts, to-wit:

Home Mission Society of Jackson, Miss.	$1
Miss Ruth Oquin, Red Lick	1
Mrs. P. A. Johnston, Meridian	5
Rev. F. A. Lane, Trenton	1
Mrs. R. A. Harris, Youngton	1

Many thanks for the above amounts. God bless the givers. We need much more. Who will help? Those desiring to help, please send as before—postoffice order on Lorman, registered letter, check, or express order to me at Lorman; or hand amount to your pastor, to be handed to me at Conference. I do hope many will feel impressed to send me something. Don't let this precious opportunity for doing good pass; but "lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor dust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal." (Matt. vi, 20)

Now, what we do before Conference must be done quickly. Let us not forget.

Yours in the work,
A. D. MILLER.

Lorman, Miss., Nov. 4, 1902.

A New Church in Columbus.

DEAR BROTHER BOSWELL: Our beautiful little Second Methodist Church in Columbus, Miss., will be ready for a pastor at Conference. The auditorium is 32x50, the lecture-room 14x28, with folding doors; the tower is seventy feet high. The house will seat about 350 persons; the approximate cost, $2,000. The Building Committee is composed of the following: Dr. J. W. Lipscomb, C F Sherrod, A. H Pegues, B. L. Reynolds, O P Brown, E. P. Craddock. Yours in Christ,

E. P. CRADDOCK, P. C.

Getting Ready for Conference.

For the next few weeks to come this will be the chief concern of every earnest preacher in the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences. They will be busy collating the results of the year's work, and striving to have the "collections in full."

The colporter is, and will be, of the number thus engaged. In reviewing the work of the year, he is much gratified at the results. The showing will be better than for any previous year of his incumbency. Thanks be unto the Lord for his helping hand, and to all who have co-operated in the good work.

It only remains for us to "gather up the fragments, that nothing be lost." The sowing (circulating the books and papers) has been very gratifying indeed, and it is hoped that the ingathering (collecting) will be equally so.

The sales have been for cash or "its equivalent." Much of the "equivalent" is yet outstanding in small amounts, the aggregate of which means much to me, and is greatly needed in the business.

We kindly ask the brethren to be ready to settle, even the smallest amount due, by the first day of their Conference session, or remit to me before Conference, which would be much better, as we shall all have our hands full of other matters during that time. By all means help us to report "collections in full."

I expect to have a good line of books—new and old—on hand at Tupelo and at Natchez for the preachers and visitors to the Conferences. If there is any special book that you want to procure, write me in due time, that I may have it in stock. Expenses will be saved on all books bought at Conference. In all your getting ready for Conference, be sure to be prepared to get some of the books.

An English Author Wrote:

"No shade, no shine, no fruit, no flowers, no leaves—November!" Many Americans would add no freedom from catarrh, which is so aggravated during this month that it becomes constantly troublesome. There is abundant proof that catarrh is a constitutional disease. It is related to scrofula and consumption, being one of the wasting diseases. Hood's Sarsaparilla has shown that what is capable of eradicating scrofula, completely cures catarrh and taken in time prevents consumption. We can not see how any sufferer can put off taking this medicine, in view of the widely published record of its radical and permanent cures. It is undoubtedly America's Greatest Medicine for America's Greatest Disease—Catarrh.

CIGARETTES.

This habit is doing more damage to men and boys than all the Whisky and Opium combined. It is the curse of the age. I have the only cure known to the world. Any reference you want. Dr. J. S. HILL, Greenville Texas.

From Fort Smith, Ark.

MY DEAR DR BOSWELL: Central Church, Fort Smith, has received fifty new members, and reports all collections paid in full. Official Board has as fine men as ever served together upon that body in any modern church; loyal to the church and pastor, united together, representative of the membership, and true to God. The regular congregation of worshipers has doubled in the year. We raise about $3000 in the regular channels this year, besides specials.

To the Preachers in Charge, Forest District, Mississippi Annual Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, South—

DEAR BRETHREN: You have all been supplied with the new statistical blanks. Fill them out carefully. I wish each one of you to fill out a set of the blanks giving as full statistics as you can on Dec 1, and mail to me at Forest. You will greatly oblige me by so doing.

At the same time every one in charge of a circuit will mail me a plan of the circuit, changing present plans wherever changes have been agreed on.

Yours faithfully,

A HELPING FUND.

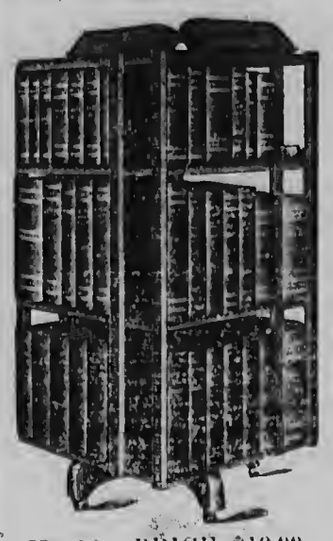
We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

WE MUST GO from heated rooms to the cold outer air, and the change sets us coughing. Curing Winter colds is not hard if you take Allens' Lung Balsam. A neglected cold is troublesome and dangerous.

THE
Marsh Revolving Book-Case

DESCRIPTION.

DIMENSIONS.—This Case is 36x18x18. Height, 40 inches. Has three shelves; each has one foot of book space on each of four sides, making Twelve Feet of shelf room.



No. 18 PRICE, $10.00.

ITS CAPACITY.—This Case will admit the entire Encyclopedia Britannica on the lower shelf, and on all about one hundred volumes of Law, Medical or Miscellaneous Works.

TOP.—Can be used as a Dictionary, Bible, Atlas, Directory or Dun and Bradstreet Holder, or other heavy volume. Nothing made for these purposes can be more substantial or complete.

SLATS.—The side pieces or Slats are of Oak, embossed and corrugated, and present a handsome appearance. They are fastened to the Shelves, each by 8 nails, and are firm and rigid under any weight of books the Case contains.

MATERIAL AND FINISH.—This Case is made from selected, thoroughly seasoned Oak or Ash, sanded perfectly smooth on all sides, and finished in Antique Oak, rendering it an ornament to Office, Library or Parlor.

THE BASE is of a handsome design; is capable of sustaining a weight of from Five Hundred to One Thousand Pounds; is provided with Castors, and on which the Case revolves easily, and is practically everlasting.

It is the first time in the history of Revolving Book Cases one has been produced so well adapted to the wants of Home and Profession, so handsome and substantial, and at such a Low Price.

HOW SHIPPED.

As a Great Saving in Express or Freight Charges, this Case is shipped knocked down, or in pieces, and thus compressed to package size, and goes by Freight as Second Class, or by Express at Half what it would if set up. Wrapped in heavy paper, it makes a thirty pound package, and thus can be safely sent anywhere.

Directions for putting together accompany each Case.

We will furnish the above Revolving Book-Case and ten yearly subscriptions to the ADVOCATE (new or renewal) to anyone for $20, or we will sell you the Case alone for $10 cash.

MARSH Reading Stand and Revolving Book-Case.

No. 5. Price, $7.00.

ADJUSTABLE TOP.—Is 14x18 inches; large and strong enough to hold your Dictionary, Directory, Dun, Bradstreet, Bible, Atlas, or any heavy volume, at any desired angle. It can be revolved and adjusted when reading so as to always throw the strongest light on the pages. You can thus avoid the strain on your eyes inevitable when holding a book in your hand or on a level table. It is made of Oak, and has on one edge a Rest to keep books from sliding off.

REVOLVING CASE.—This case is 15x15x12 inches. The shelves are Oak or Ash, finished on both sides and on all edges, and have 9 inches of book space on four sides, or 3 feet in all, and room enough for reference books of daily use. Many books may also be placed on the upper shelf. In all twenty to thirty volumes, law size, can be put in it. The eight oak slats are attached by four nails each, making the Case very substantial as well as ornamental.

CASTINGS connecting the Top and Case are finished in black enamel, and of sufficient strength to last a lifetime.

PIPE, POST and LEGS.—The three legs are attached by round-headed screws to the turned post. Into this post is forced an iron pipe, which runs up through the Case, and to which the castings at the top are attached. Around this pipe the Case revolves

As a Home, Office or Library article, it is said, its equal does not exist. The accuracy of this statement can be confirmed by unsolicited letters of the highest commendation from thousands of Ministers, Attorneys, Physicians, Government, State and County Officials, Bankers and Business Men. Over 50,000 have been sold in the United States, and orders now come for large lots from England and other foreign countries.

HOW FINISHED.—It is handsomely finished in Antique Oak, and an ornament to any Office, Library or Parlor.

AS A GIFT.—Nothing made is more suitable to present to a friend, or as a Wedding or Birthday Gift, than this Stand.

HOW SHIPPED.—This Stand is sent knocked down, wrapped in heavy paper, making a package of 20 pounds. By Freight it goes as second class, and at about half what it would cost if sent set up. Plain directions for putting together accompany each Stand.

We will furnish the above Revolving Book-Case and seven yearly subscriptions to the ADVOCATE (new or renewal) to anyone for $14, or we will sell you the case alone for $7 cash.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WEAK?

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

To Prove what the Great Kidney Remedy, Swamp-Root, will do for YOU, Every Reader of "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" May Have a Sample Bottle Free by Mail.

(Swamp-Root is pleasant to take.)

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected, and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for many kinds of diseases, and if permitted to continue much suffering with fatal results are sure to follow. Kidney trouble irritates the nerves, makes you dizzy, restless, sleepless and irritable. Makes you pass water often during the day and obliges you to get up many times during the night. Unhealthy kidneys cause rheumatism, gravel, catarrh of the bladder, pain or dull ache in the back, joints and muscles; makes your head ache and back ache, causes indigestion, stomach and liver trouble; you get a sallow, yellow complexion, makes you feel as though you had heart trouble; you may have plenty of ambition, but no strength; get weak and waste away.

The cure for these troubles is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the world-famous kidney remedy. In taking Swamp-Root you afford natural help to Nature, for Swamp-Root is the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that is known to medical science.

If there is any doubt in your mind as to your condition, take from your urine on rising about four ounces, place it in a glass or bottle and let it stand twenty-four hours. If on examination it is milky or cloudy, if there is a brick-dust settling, or if small particles float about in it, your kidneys are in need of immediate attention.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is used in the leading hospitals, recommended by physicians in their private practice; and is taken by doctors themselves who have kidney ailments, because they recognize in it the greatest and most successful remedy for kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

If you are already convinced that Swamp Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

EDITORIAL NOTE—If you have the slightest symptoms of kidney or bladder troubles, or if there is a trace of it in your family history, send at once to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y, who will gladly send you by mail, immediately, without cost to you, a sample bottle of Swamp-Root and a book containing many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women cured. In writing, be sure to say that you read this generous offer in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Home Circle.

Hero in an Unfought Battle.

There was no more doubt about it. Betsy was lost. Ned had looked in the cow-yard, in the shed and the stable, but not a sign of her did he find. He missed her from the pasture behind the house when he came home to dinner. After satisfying his hunger, he made a thorough search of the premises. She was not there, that was certain. Where she was Ned knew it was his duty to find out. This duty was the very thing he least wished to do.

Ned's father was a soldier. It was now a year since his regiment had gone to the Philippines. Just before he left home he said to Ned, in a private talk:

"You're almost eleven years old, and you're big and strong enough to help your mother a great deal. I want you to do everything you can for her while I am gone. You'll be the only man about the house, and I want you to be a real man."

Ned's ideas about what made a "real man" were rather hazy. But he knew quite well what to do to help his mother, and he lived up to his knowledge so well that Mrs. Long had written only the day before: "Ned is a real little man; you would be delighted with him. He is grown so thoughtful and helpful."

To-day Ned was to have the sharpest trial that had yet come to him. His mother had gone out to do some dress making, and Ned had permission to do just what he pleased all day. He had had a jolly morning with some of the boys, and right after dinner they were to go a-fishing—six of them—to Miller's pond, which was two miles from Ned's home. And now the cow was missing. That was a situation for a boy with a fishing excursion before him! Ned sat on the fence and thought. His hands were plunged deep in his trousers pockets; his face was all puckered up into a frown, and he did not whistle—a sure sign that something was wrong. Just now he was thinking, and thinking hard, something like this:

"We can't get home from fishin' till five o'clock anyway, and mother'll want Bets by half past: maybe it'll take me two or three hours to find her; maybe I won't find her at all to-night. Then mother'll be worried. I just can't go fishin' if I wait to find that cow now. Oh! I've got to find her anyhow; there's no use talkin' 'bout that. 'Twouldn't be much like a man to go off playin' when your cow was lost. What I don't know about's whether to go and tell the boys I can't go with them, or let them wait awhile, and then go off without knowing why I don't come. I hate to tell them! I know well enough what Dick'll say: 'Let the cow go, and come fishin'. You can find her all right to-night.' That's so; I might, and then again I mightn't. Well, here goes! I'll tell them, so they won't be losing time waiting for me. It seems too mean to sneak out of telling them, just because I was afraid they'd stop my doing what I've got to do. I'll be man enough to let them know I'm going to stay at home and hunt up the cow."

Thereupon Ned began to whistle so loud that he did not hear the bell down the road, nor the hallo of a small boy who was driving a cow. The boy had to repeat the hallo, and add besides, "Say, Ned, are you deaf!" before Ned paid any heed.

"Hallo!" he shouted: "where'd you find her?"

"Just beyond the turn of the road. Say, have you been all this time eating your dinner?"

"No! I'm awful glad you've found Bets, else I couldn't have gone fishin'."

"Wouldn't your mother let you?"

"She ain't home. I wouldn't have let myself."

"H'm!" was Dick's comment; and he added, below his breath, "You're a brick, Ned."—Helen Holmes Blake, in Sunday-School Times.

"Are You Happy?"

Elizabeth Newcomb was a radiantly beautiful girl when she came, a bride, to South Carlton. She had left college in her junior year to marry Henry Newcomb. It was a "love match," and life stretched clear and bright before them. Elizabeth had a romantic devotion to Shelley and Tennyson, but she also had substantial common sense and practical ability that made her a model housewife.

Five years had brought burdens and problems. First there was a boy baby and then a girl. Soon Elizabeth's mother died, and her father, a feeble deaf old man, came to live with his daughter. Business had been a little disturbed by a strike in Henry's factory, and it did not seem wise to increase the expenses of the house by the wages of another maid. So Elizabeth learned what it meant to be tired from the top of her head to the toe of her neat shoe.

For a month she had been conscious of a growing irritability. Henry did not seem so devoted as once he was: the children were restless and persistent; her father was exacting: the weather was depressing. Her courage and philosophy were at low ebb.

One evening she was left alone. The children and father slept. Henry had gone to a meeting of the library directors. Elizabeth confessed herself too weary to mend a stocking or to write a letter, and she picked up a book. It was Maeterlinck's "Wisdom and Destiny." The first sentence caught and held her attention: "Is happiness truly as happy as people imagine?"

It came on her mood like a startling echo. The prose of middle life was succeeding the poetry of youth, as a cold evening fog shuts down upon a day of summer sunshine.

"Is happiness truly as happy as I imagined?" asks the woman.

She dropped the book, and sat dwelling upon the words long and sadly. Then suddenly a strange thing happened to her in the border-land between sleeping and waking. She dreamed for one brief instant that father and husband and babies were lost to her—that her burdens were gone. She woke with a start of anguish—and in that anguish she knew herself. Out of her flash of insight there emerged a saving philosophy of life. It ran in this wise:

Hard work, scant appreciation, care, loss, grief may press upon a woman's heart. None of them can reach her deepest self. Only one baleful spirit can do that: it is the Spirit of Hate. When she begins to hate her work, to hate her worries and loneliness, to hate even her pain, then indeed happiness ceases to be happy.

So long as out of turmoil and distress the woman can lift her eyes and say, "I still love—I love my life, my friends, my enemies, yes, pain itself, because it comes of Love!" then she is ready to confute and confound the cynical spirit asking his depressing question.

She replies: "True happiness is happier, far happier, than I knew, for it consists not in the having or the lacking of those things that are passing and temporary, but in the possession of that which is eternal."

So the next morning Elizabeth Newcomb took up joyfully her usual cares, quickened for her tasks as spirits have been in all ages by a Vision of Things as they Are.—Youth's Companion.

Too Busy to Be Kind.

I sometimes think we women, nowadays, are in danger of being too busy to be useful, said an old lady, thoughtfully. We hear so much about making every minute count, always having some work or course of study for spare hours, and having our activities all systematized, that there is no place left for small wayside kindness. We go to see the sick neighbor and relieve the poor neighbor, but for the common every-day neighbor who has not fallen by the way, so far as we can see, we haven't a minute to spare. But everybody who needs a cup of cold water isn't calling the fact out to the world, and there are a great many little pauses by the way which are no waste of time. The old-fashioned exchange of garden flowers over the back fence, and friendly chats about domestic matters, helped to brighten weary days, and brought more cheer than many a sermon. We ought not to be too busy to inquire for the girl away at school, or to be interested in the letter from the boy at sea. It's a comfort to the mother's lonely heart to feel that somebody else cares for that which means so much to her. Especially we ought not to be too busy to give and receive kindness in our own home.

May no one be able to say of us that we are too busy to be kind.—The Young Woman.

A woman's discovery

FREE

By many years of constant study and experiments, I have perfected a simple, harmless vegetable remedy that will quickly cure all female diseases, as well as the piles. It is nature's own remedy, and will not only relieve, but will absolutely thoroughly and permanently cure the ailments peculiar to women such as falling of the womb, leucorrhea (whites), displacements, ulceration, granulation, painful or scanty periods, irregular menstruation and all the pelvic ills of women. It positively cures rectal ulcers, piles, hemorrhoids, tumors, itching, blind or bleeding piles in either sex. It cures promptly, privately, and permanently without the repugnant methods in general use by physicians. You can escape embarrassing examinations, avoid humiliating exposures, cheat the surgeon's knife out of baptism in your blood.

The treatment is so simple, mild and effectual that it will not interfere with your work or occupation. Thousands and thousands of letters are being received from grateful persons from all parts of the world who have been cured by the use of this remedy. The first package is free, send for it—send to-day. I know that a fair trial of it will result in your becoming its enthusiastic advocate and friend. With it I will send literature of interest and value. Do not neglect this opportunity to get cured yourself and be in a position to advise ailing friends.

Consider well the above offer and act upon it at once. It is made in the sincere hope of aiding you and spreading the knowledge of a beneficent boon to sufferers. Earnestly, hopefully, faithfully, MRS. CORA B. MILLER, 46 Comstock Bldg., Kokomo, Ind.

DROPSY CURED! Gives quick relief, removes all swelling in 15 to 25 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. This treatment given absolutely free to every sufferer. Write to

Artistic Monuments

Cost no more than plain ones in White Bronze. Marble is entirely out of date. Granite eventually crumbles back to Mother Earth. Besides it is very expensive.

White Bronze is strictly everlasting. It can not crumble with the action of frost. Moss growth is an impossibility. It is more artistic than any stone. It has been adopted for nearly one hundred public monuments and by thousands of delighted customers in all parts of the country. We have designs from $4.00 to $4,000. The company ship them to any address. Send me a postal card, and I will call at your home with my designs.

Mrs. JENNIE E NELSON (nee Deaton) was born in Panola county, Miss., in 1871, and died Sept. 15, 1902 She was happily married to W. G. Nelson in April, 1892. When fourteen years of age she was born of the Holy Spirit, and joined the Methodist Church, and lived a consistent Christian. During her illness she was unconscious most of the time, and said but little about dying; but once, when she rallied, she said it seemed that she had been to a great prayer meeting. Her life gave evidence of fidelity to the church and faith in Christ. The esteem and affection of those who had known her in childhood and young womanhood was evidenced by the loving ministrations of so many during her days of illness. God permitted her to pass but little beyond womanhood's career. Just at the time when, according to human judgment, she was most needed, he took her unto himself. The funeral service was conducted by the writer, assisted by Rev. O. L. Savage. She is not dead, but asleep in Jesus, and we who are faithful shall see her again in the morning of the resurrection.

J. A. GOAD.

ELIZABETH O., daughter of Levy K. and S. J. Goodbold, was born Dec. 1, 1851, and died in great peace at her home in Franklin county, Miss., Aug. 2, 1902. She was converted and joined the Methodist Church in 1863, and was married to Eli Capit, Feb. 7, 1872. Of this union eleven children were born, ten of whom survive her. All, except one, are members of the church. She was born of pious parents, and was rocked in the cradle of faith and prayer. Her life was beautiful in its symmetry, simplicity, guilelessness, and purity. She lived up to her profession of sanctification. The eternal verities revealed in the Bible were exemplified in her life and crystallized in her character. Her children leaned upon her, and "the heart of her husband safely trusted in her." After a life of useful deeds and loving acts her body sleeps well and peacefully in the quiet of the old family cemetery, but up yonder, where God and the angels are, she lives and will live forever. May God gently lead the father and motherless children to a glorious reunion in heaven!

B. F. JONES.

MARGARET MELISSA BAIRD was born near Salem, in Benton county, Miss., Aug. 8, 1847 Her parents were religious people and church members. Her father was an Episcopalian, her mother a Methodist. While on a visit to North Carolina, in her girlhood, she united with her mother's church. When she returned to Mississippi she placed her membership in Salem Church, where it remained until the time of her death. She was married Oct. 10, 1883, to J. A Reid. At the time of her death Mrs Reid was residing in Holly Springs. She died Aug. 25, 1902 and her remains were laid to rest in the old family burying-ground near Salem. Mrs. Reid's life-work was done quietly, within the shadow of her home. Her husband and son were her world. To them she was, as wife and mother, a constant influence for good—towards God. Outside her home all who knew her loved her and honored her. She passed away quietly while serenely and sweetly sleeping. Her waking was in heaven.

WALTER G. HARBIN.

MARY LOU SIMPSON, wife of Robt. M. Simpson, died at her home near Holly Springs, Oct. 17, 1902. Mrs. Simpson was born at Mt Pleasant, Dec. 24, 1832; was married to Mr. Simpson in 1858, and united with the Methodist Church in 1879. She was the mother of seven children, one of whom went before her to the heavenly city. Mrs. Simpson was an earnest Christian herself, and raised her children to love and serve God. Nearly all of them are active members of the Methodist Church. An invalid for two years, confined to her bed for five months, she bore her sufferings with patience, and died in the full assurance of faith, exhorting her weeping loved ones to follow her to glory. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord; . . . that they may rest from their labors"

WALTER G. HARBIN.

MRS ELSIE TAYLOR was born Feb. 22, 1876. She joined the M. E. Church, South, in 1891. Sister Taylor was the daughter of Mr. B. F and Mrs. Anna Barry, and was married to Robert Taylor, Dec. 25, 1901, and departed this life Sept. 24, 1902. She has gone from our midst, but we cherish her memory, and expect to meet her in our Father's house, where there is no more parting. She leaves a father, two sisters and a husband, and a host of friends, to mourn their loss, though we weep not as those that have no hope. Not long before the spirit had taken its flight she asked if it would not soon be Sunday. As she was nearing heaven's bright Sunday she held on to Christ, and passed out in the full triumph of a living faith. May God sustain the bereaved with his grace, and may they ever look to God, who doeth all things well!

J. E. METHVIEN, P. C.

WM. W. HOWELL died at his home in Prentiss county, Miss., July 16, 1902, aged thirty-three years one month and sixteen days. The deceased made a profession of religion six years ago, and although he had never joined any church, he was a Methodist in belief, and his life was that of an exemplary Christian. He was loyal and liberal in support of the church, and punctual in attendance upon its services. And when the end came, it found him ready, his only regret being the leaving his wife and two little boys without his support and protection. We commend them to the care of Him who hath promised to be "a father to the fatherless, and a companion to the widow," and pray that they, with father, mother, brothers and sisters, may so live in this world that they may meet him in the land of the blest.

His pastor, R. W. EVANS.

MARGARET A HAMILTON was born in Lawrence county, Miss., Aug 13, 1839. She was married to Mr. James Rhymes, by which marriage there are four children living—a daughter and three sons—all of whom are grown. Her husband died some twenty years ago. She joined the Methodist Church at Providence in her girlhood, and was always a consistent Christian. Her home mostly was with a son near Terry, Miss., but was taken sick at the home of Mr. John Kennedy, in Copiah county, and died there of swamp fever, Oct. 24, 1902. She had the best of attention by her sister and brother-in-law and physicians, and a number of kindred and friends. We buried her in the family graveyard at Mr. Henry Batton's, near her old home, where a good part of her life was spent.

C. MCDONALD.

PHILIP JAMES MOSBY, the infant son of Philip Holland and Jennie Cusick Mosby, died at the residence of his grandfather, Mr. L. B. Mosby, Holly Springs, Miss., Sept. 27, 1902. Little Philip was born in Memphis. He was sixteen months old when he died. The deep sympathy of the entire community was with the family in their great bereavement.

Catarrh Can Not Be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they can not reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it, you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

MISS IDA M. SNYDER,

Treasurer of the Brooklyn East End Art Club.

Miss Ida M. Snyder.

MENSTRUAL irregularities are generally the beginning of a woman's troubles. With the vitality at a low ebb, the blood weakened, the digestion disordered, she goes about pale-faced, hollow-eyed and haggard, a piteous contrast to the blooming health of her former self. But over 1,000,000 women have found health again by taking Wine of Cardui. As a regulator of the menstrual periods Wine of Cardui has never been known to fail. It has seldom failed to restore perfect health, even in the most persistent and aggravated case of weakness.

Miss Ida M. Snyder, of No. 335 Bergen Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., has used Wine of Cardui and she says it helped her into a new life. Health to Miss Snyder is worth a great deal. She is an attractive young woman with intellectual attainments and she occupies the position of Treasurer of the Brooklyn East End Art Club. This position marks her as a person of intellect, culture and refinement and it speaks highly of the respect and trust her fellow women have in her. She writes:

"If women would pay more attention to their health we would have more happy wives, mothers and daughters, and if they would use more intelligence in the matter of medicines, observing results, they would find that the doctors' prescriptions do not perform the many cures they are given credit for.

"In consulting with my druggist he advised McElree's Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught, and so I took it and have every reason to thank him for a new life opened up to me with restored health, and it only took three months to cure me."

You may secure the same relief as Miss Snyder, if you take Wine of Cardui as she took it. Thedford's Black-Draught is the companion medicine of Wine of Cardui and it is a liver and bowel regulator which assists greatly in effecting a cure. If you take these medicines according to directions, the relief and cure is simple. Some cases are cured quickly and others take longer because the disease has run longer. Remember how Miss Snyder took Wine of Cardui and has health. The same medicines are offered you to-day.

A VALUABLE BOOK FOR LITTLE MONEY.

A History of Methodism in Alabama.

By the Rev. Anson West, D.D.

8vo, pp. 755. Price $1.25.

This is a beautifully printed and well bound book, replete with interest for every lover of our Methodism. To students of Methodist history it is indispensable.

"Upper Room Meditations"

Bishop Fitzgerald's New Book.

Of the many contributions from Bishop Fitzgerald to the literature of Christian experience, none surpass this. Shut in from the world, he has heard the voice of God in the inner depths of his soul, and the Father whom he loves has helped him to tell what he has felt. No man can be unmoved by these pages.—Wesleyan Christian Advocate.

"Upper Room Meditations" is sweet, edifying, Christian. It cannot fail to do good, and I hope will be read by many thousands. It is a book for a sick room or a house in which sorrow sits enthroned.—Dr. Geo. G. Smith, Macon, Ga.

Those who have read it pronounce it the best of all his devotional writings. He has saved the best until now.—Nashville Correspondent St. Louis Christian Advocate.

It will be very helpful to the souls of God's children, for it comes out of a heart full of love and faith.—Texas Christian Advocate.

ST. NICHOLAS IN 1903 PROMISES TO GO FAR BEYOND PAST SUCCESSES.

Professor John Bach McMaster recently wrote to the editors of St. Nicholas: "Thank you very heartily for the pleasure and profit St. Nicholas brings to my boys."

Boys—and girls—are very much alike the world over. The delight and help that St Nicholas is giving to Prof. McMaster's boys, and thousands of other girls and boys, it holds for every girl and boy who can understand English.

Since the first number of St. Nicholas was published, nearly thirty years ago, many weekly and monthly publications for children have come and gone; but St. Nicholas still holds its place, the unrivalled "prince of periodicals for young folks." It was never more enjoyed by its readers than now, for in addition to the usual serial stories, short articles, etc., there is a department called "The St. Nicholas League," in which the children themselves have an opportunity to take part. There are said to be nearly fifty thousand children now belonging to the League, and prizes are given out each month for the best stories, poems, drawings and photographs sent in by the young members. Any reader of St. Nicholas may become a member.

St. Nicholas announces for 1903 "The Story of King Arthur," written and illustrated by Howard Pyle, a companion story to his famous "Robin Hood," but which readers of the manuscript think surpasses that in the strength and interest of the narrative and beauty of the illustrations. Two short stories by Miss Alcott, written for her own little nieces and never before published, will soon appear in St. Nicholas, with other stories and articles by the author of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," by Ruth McEnery Stuart, Frank R. Stockton, Clara Morris, and scores of other well known writers. St. Nicholas makes a specialty of papers of information, richly illustrated articles on practical subjects, like the Navy Yard, the Assay Office, etc.

The price of St Nicholas is three dollars a year. The publishers announce that new subscribers who begin with January may receive the November and December numbers free, and so begin the volume and get the commencement of all the serials. The publishers are The Century Co., Union Square, New York.

For the burdens God lays on us there will always be grace enough. The burdens which we make for ourselves we must carry alone.—A. W. Thorold, D. D.

How a Woman Paid Her Debts.

I am out of debt, thanks to the Dish-washer business. In the past three months I have made $600 selling Dish-washers. I never saw anything sell so easily. Every family needs a Dish-washer, and will buy one when shown how beautifully it will wash and dry the family dishes in two minutes. I sell from my own house. Each Dish-washer sold brings me many orders. The dishes are washed without wetting the hands. That is why ladies want the Dish-washer. I give my experience for the benefit of anyone who may wish to make money easily. I buy my Dish-washers from the Mound City Dish-Washer Co., St. Louis, Mo. Write them for particulars. They will start you in business in your own home. L. A. C.

TOBACCO HABIT.

I guarantee to cure anything that walks the earth of tobacco habit in all of its forms. Any reference you want. Dr. J. S. HILL, Greenville, Texas.

R·I·P·A·N·S

One day an old friend said: "Are you troubled with dyspepsia?" I said: "Yes, and I don't ever expect to be cured." He told me to go across the street and get a box of Ripans Tabules. After using R.I.P.A.N.S Tabules for three weeks I was satisfied I had at last found the right medicine, the only one for me.

Glances at the World.

Canada, it is said, has a serious problem on hand. Located in the province of Manitoba there is a colony of some five thousand Russians called Doukhobors. They are religious fanatics who "hold it contrary to divine law to serve in the army and to perform some other duties which civilized society may, or must, require of its members. Sometimes, as now, they refuse to take any thought for their own subsistence. As a rule, and when not carried away by the excesses of their creed, they are peaceful, thrifty, and law abiding." On account of these peculiarities, and because they refused to pay taxes, they were punished by the Russian Government. Sympathizers interested themselves in their welfare, and they were induced to migrate to Canada. Russia interposed no objection. They did well for a while, but recently they were seized with one of their fanatical fits, declared it was wrong to make animals work, turned their cattle loose, and hitched their women to the plows. They afterwards started on a pilgrimage with no certain destination in view, save that they were going to find Christ. They are peaceable, and will starve rather than steal, and how to deal with thousands of such people is the problem now with the Canadians. The police, after watching them a long time, and finding that their mania did not abate, captured them and sent them back to their villages. It is hard to deal with thousands of men and women who will neither work nor steal. What to do with them is a problem in Canada.

Three notable organizations assembled in annual convention in New Orleans last week, in the following order: National Association of Bankers, the United Daughters of the Confederacy, and the American Federation of Labor. The bankers came to consider the great financial interests of the country, the women to keep alive and honor the memory of dead heroes, and the Federation of Labor to protect and enhance the interests of working men throughout the country. In some respects this latter convention was most important of the three. It was largely attended by labor leaders from all sections of the country, some of whom are men of marked ability. Mr. Samuel Gompers, who has been president for many years, is a strong man, and wields a mighty influence in all the labor circles of the Union. It was a matter of regret that Mr. John Mitchell, who at present holds the most conspicuous place in the public eye, was not able to be present. He was kept away on account of his presence being needed before the Anthracite Strike Commission, now in session. All three of the conventions were of great interest to the people of the city, for what did not interest one class did another, and between them interest was more or less divided. The weather was ideal, a spirit of harmony prevailed, and the citizens and visitors were mutually pleased.

The reduction of representation in Congress from the Southern States has been talked of for several years. The talk has grown out of the enactment of laws in several States limiting suffrage. The States which enacted these laws have practically eliminated the negro vote, so that the Republican party in the South literally amounts to nothing, save in the National Conventions, where, without reduced representation in Congress, the party has as many votes as if the party (including the negroes) mustered its full force at the polls. But the object in reducing representation in Congress is not to reduce the party's vote in National Conventions, but to reduce the number of Democratic seats in the House of Representatives. A bill with this reduction in view will be introduced, it is said, at the meeting of Congress next month, and will take into consideration the law of Massachusetts limiting suffrage in that State, although it has had no reduction of representation. There is evidently a considerable amount of "politics" in this. Massachusetts is included, not because there is any desire to cut down the number of congressmen from that State, but as an excuse to lessen the number from the South.

The temperance question is stirring the people in many sections of the country, and the liquor men are fully awake. Bad feeling is being shown also, as evidenced a few days since in Indiana, where, "as a result of the warfare existing between the saloon and temperance elements, the Friends Church at Raysville was completely wrecked by the explosion of a large charge of dynamite, placed in the basement." The contest between the two elements had been raging some time, and was given fresh vigor when the Friends Conference joined in the fight. The destruction of property has never received any encouragement from the friends of temperance. Even Mrs. Carrie Nation's hatchet-fight was never endorsed by the temperance forces. The liquor men can never stay the tide against them by blowing up houses and endangering the lives of the people. They will only further incur the ill-will of the country, and destroy their business the sooner.

Not long since there was a loud complaint against the increase of the drinking habit among the women in the higher circles of life in the East. Now we find there is ground for complaint against them for giving themselves to the use of cigarettes. But why should anybody be surprised? Why complain? Women are everywhere taking the places of men—in the professions, and in many kinds of business. They come in contact with men in all walks and departments of life. That many of them should adopt men's ways is not to be wondered at. Still we are glad when we note any evidence of disapproval of departure from womanly ways. It was only a few days since that the manager of a big union station in Richmond, Va., issued an order forbidding any more smoking in the ladies' waiting-room. This order was the result of the habit of young ladies—members of the best families, it is said—gathering there in numbers for the purpose of smoking cigarettes. The manager is to be commended.

Strikes come high—to individuals, communities, and to the State. Besides the millions of dollars lost to the strikers in the anthracite coal regions, the cost to the tax-payers of Pennsylvania will amount to two or three millions of dollars. The money is to pay the troops, and afford them subsistence while on duty at the mines. One regiment on duty twenty-three days cost the State $30,000. All told, there were on duty four troops of cavalry, three batteries of artillery, and thirteen regiments of infantry. This guard was on duty from twenty-three to one hundred days. The people, we dare say, hope there will be no more strikes.

The Deaconess Work.

The officers of the Woman's Board of Home Missions, the principal of the Scarritt Bible and Training-school, and two additional members from the society at large, quadrennially elected by the Board, shall constitute a Committee of Control for the deaconess work. Three members shall constitute a quorum.

This committee shall receive and act upon all applications from those who desire to become deaconesses; also all applications to employ deaconesses. It shall receive quarterly reports from all deaconesses and deaconess institutions maintained or controlled by the Woman's Home Mission Society, and keep on file a full statement of the condition and work of these institutions, and endeavor to maintain helpful relations between the several institutions, and between them and the training-school. It shall arrange for any transfers of deaconesses that may be desirable, and shall decide upon all questions of administration and differences.

When the deaconess shall have finished her probationary course of training, the Committee of Control shall present her to the Woman's Board of Home Missions in annual session for final acceptance. When accepted, she shall receive a certificate duly signed by the president and general secretary of the Woman's Board of Home Missions, and one of the Bishops of the M. E. Church, South. This certificate shall be her credentials as a regularly authorized deaconess of the M. E. Church, South, and must be annually renewed. If she should retire, or be found unsuited to the work, her certificate must be surrendered to the Committee of Control, and she thereby ceases to be a deaconess.

Anyone receiving training at the cost of the Woman's Home Mission Society shall refund the money if she voluntarily retires from its employ before the expiration of four years.

No one shall be recognized as a deaconess of the M. E. Church, South, who does not comply with the disciplinary requirements and does not hold a certificate from the Woman's Board of Home Missions.

When the preacher-in-charge and the Quarterly Conference present a candidate that they deem an exception to the general rule requiring a course in the training-school, the Committee of Control shall examine the candidate, and if satisfied that all the requirements are met, shall refer her back to the Quarterly Conference for election, and she shall be granted a certificate as a regular deaconess, subject to the rules governing the same.

No salaries shall be paid, the work of the deaconess being done for the love of Christ, and in his name. Deaconesses shall receive an allowance of $10 a month, with board, traveling expenses, and car fare, but any who so desire may pay their own board and expenses, either wholly or in part. Deaconesses shall be allowed one month's vacation annually, during which time the allowance shall be continued.

No promise of life support when disqualified by sickness or old age shall be made to those who enter upon the work after the age of forty years, or to those who shall have given less than ten years of efficient, consecutive service as deaconess—the ten years not to include the two years of training.

A simple uniform shall be worn, consisting of black dress, bonnet with white lawn ties, and white turnover collar and cuffs.

Wherever there are two, or more, deaconesses at work in the same city, if practicable, they shall live in a Deaconess Home—said Home to be under the control of the Woman's Board of Home Missions.

No institutions shall be recognized as Deaconess Homes of the M. E. Church, South, except those that are authorized by the Woman's Board of Home Missions. All such property shall be held in the name of the society.

Pastors, Mission Boards, or other agencies employing deaconesses, shall obligate themselves to provide for their maintenance as specified in By-law 7. When deaconesses are employed by Foreign Mission Boards, said Boards may, at their discretion, increase the allowance. When a deaconess thus employed resides in a Deaconess Home, the money necessary for her maintenance must be paid to the Home from which she shall receive the same as others. When there is no Deaconess Home in the place where she is employed, the money shall be paid directly to her.

Nurse deaconesses shall receive the same care and allowance as others. When employed in nursing persons able to pay for her services, the money must be paid to the Deaconess Home or hospital with which she is connected. If not connected with such institutions, the money shall be sent by her to the general treasury, and held subject to the needs of the Deaconess work.

All deaconesses shall be required to pursue a continuous course of study and reading prescribed by the Committee of Control.

Cities and towns in which Deaconess Homes are located shall maintain the Home by private subscriptions and donations or public collections, and shall do all that is possible to awaken interest in the Home and the workers. All moneys expended for the maintenance of these Homes shall be reported by voucher through the regular channel, said Home to be given twenty-five per cent. on this amount from the general treasury. The deaconesses of a Home may elect annually one of their number as a delegate to the meetings of the Woman's Home Mission Society in the district and Conference in which it is located.

The rules for government of all the Deaconess Homes must be submitted to the Committee of Control and receive its approval before they go into effect. The rules of the several Homes shall be as nearly as possible uniform.

The superintendents of Deaconess Homes shall report the names and work of the deaconesses in their charge to the Committee of Control quarterly—first of June, September, December, and March, with an itemized statement of all moneys received and expended, and shall also make an annual report at the close of the fiscal year. They shall, when deemed advisable by the Committee of Control, attend the Annual and District Conferences where the Homes are located to secure the interest and co-operation of the brethren.

The Committee of Control shall, at the annual sessions of the Woman's Board of Home Missions, make a full report of the deaconess work, which, after acceptance, shall be incorporated in the printed Minutes of the Board.

A New Methodist Hive.

Jackson Methodism is preparing to swarm a second time. A mission church has been projected in the southern section of the city, known as Duttoville. A very eligible lot has been purchased and paid for lying between the Illinois Central and the Gulf and Ship Island railroads. The contract has been let for the erection of a neat building twenty-eight by forty-five feet. We hope to have it ready for occupancy by Conference. We have a good Sunday-school in the vicinity, it having been organized in August by Rev. S. C. Shaw, a hustling local preacher connected with First Church, the pastor, of course, heartily co-operating. The school was at first conducted in one of "God's first temples"—the groves. On the approach of cold weather a temporary domicile was secured, but as our lease on that has expired, it is necessary to build at once. A church will, doubtless, be organized in the near future.

First Church has had 141 accessions during the current year, bringing our total membership up to 754—the largest Protestant Church in the State. During the last three years we have added to the roll 404 names. W. C. BLACK.

Good Work at Mayersville.

DEAR DOCTOR: As Mayersville has for some time been infested with "blind-tigers" of the wide open kind, I decided last week to strike a blow at them myself, as nobody else seemed willing to do so. Accordingly I swore out two search-warrants, and put them in the hands of the sheriff, who succeeded in finding a quantity of intoxicating liquor of various kinds. On yesterday the stuff was confiscated by law, and upwards of two hundred gallons of intoxicants, consisting of rum, wine, and whisky, were poured out on the ground. This is quite a victory for temperance in this rum-cursed county. However, it will require repeated and strenuous effort to drive the "blind-tiger" out of this section. For the present he is only in hiding.

We have had eighteen additions to the church this year—nine by certificate and nine on profession. All of our assessments will be raised in full. Yours fraternally,

M. M. BLACK.

To My Successor.

As I am closing my fourth year in Providence charge, I know by the law of the church that another pastor is to be here next Conference year. I found some things thoughtfully prepared for me by former pastors, and I have tried to improve on these, so that you will have more comforts and conveniences than I found. I have planted about one hundred peach trees; some of them bore fruit this year. You will have plenty of peaches any good peach year. I have planted a number of apple and pecan trees. The ten pecans in the lawn have frames to protect them, and hope you will wisely care for them and all the fruit trees, walnuts, figs; and the good scuppernong vine I planted and put an arbor to will yield you most delightful fruit. We ate pecans this year from a tree planted by dear Brother Downer thirteen years ago, while pastor here. May generations to come bless his name while they eat the good fruit of his toil! I aim to leave plenty of Winter vegetables in the garden for your table use, such as turnips, collards, mustard, and onions. I have put up seed sweet potatoes and seed (Louisiana) cane, which I hope will be helpful to you in the beginning of your four-years' term. I think I leave the premises in value worth more than when I came here by one or two hundred dollars. We found a number of chickens here—the rule of the pastors who leave here—and we leave as many, with some accrued interest, for you. You will find the parsonage tolerably well furnished, and a kind and liberal people to aid you in doing good. I hope and pray that you may do s better work than I have been able to do.

Fraternally, C. MCDONALD.

TYRO, MISS., Nov. 13, 1902.

Columbus Station.

The work moves steadily forward here. During the two years of my residence in the city we have received 194 into the church, making our membership about 745. The organization of a second church in the southeastern part of the city will take some 45 names from this number. Columbus will raise about $5,000 for all purposes this year, and the Sunday-school is the largest in the history of the church. Two hundred and ten Methodist girls in the I. I. and C. attend our church, giving us the largest congregation in the State. The parsonage has been painted and papered, is out of debt, and everything will be "in full" when the brethren meet in Tupelo, Dec. 3. T. W. LEWIS.

North Mississippi Conference Notices.

The Class of the Fourth Year will meet for examination at the Methodist Church in Tupelo on Monday, Dec. 1, at 3 o'clock P. M.

W. T. J. SULLIVAN, for Com.

The Board of Education of the North Mississippi Conference will please meet for important business at the Methodist Church in Tupelo at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 2, next. W. T. J. SULLIVAN, Chairman.

To the North Mississippi Conference—

BRETHREN: Please say to those who are not enrolled as preachers and delegates to the Conference that if they expect homes provided for them, they must be sure to give us written notice in due time; otherwise we can not be responsible for their entertainment. This humble notice is given to prevent any confusion on arrival in Tupelo.

Faithfully, J. A. BOWEN.

The Orphans' Home Need.

A dispatch from Bro. W. T. Griffin, Agent of our Orphans' Home at Water Valley, Miss., urges us to call attention to the fact that the Home is in great need of heating apparatus for the house. There are one hundred and three children in the Home. Will the Mississippi Methodists remember them on Thanksgiving Day, and send in enough money to put in a steam plant before cold weather? "He that hath pity upon the poor lendeth to the Lord."

Our faith in God's promises oft depends on our faithfulness to his precepts.

NEWS FROM BRAZIL.

The following items of interest are from a private letter written by Rev. Geo. D. Parker to a special friend, who has sent it to the ADVOCATE, believing that Brother Parker's many friends in Louisiana will be glad to read it. After a few words of personal friendship, etc., Brother Parker says:

"The Lord has given me a work to do for the young people of Brazil for which I feel altogether unqualified. I had been here but eight months when the Conference made me responsible for the work among the young people of our mission. This means editing a section of our Conference organ, translating and circulating literature for the Leaguers, organizing new Leagues and encouraging those already organized, etc. I have translated and introduced the topic cards which are now used by all the Leagues in our mission, and each week print an exposition of the topic in the mission paper. I also have a pamphlet on Bible study now in the printer's hands, and hope soon to be able to report systematic study of the Scriptures being carried on by the Leaguers.

"About a month ago I preached my first sermon in Portuguese, and rejoiced in the privilege of telling the old, old story of Jesus' love to the Brazilians in their own tongue. There is so much to say of the work out here that I am sure I would weary you with a recital of its various phases. However, a description of last Sabbath will be representative, and give you an idea how my time is spent in this great city. Sabbath-school at ten o'clock, in which I teach a class composed of the children of missionaries, who recite their lessons in English, this being the only class in English in the school. At eleven the Portuguese service is held, which I always attend, helping in the singing and in such other ways as I am able; at noon, the Brazilian congregation having been dismissed, I preach to the English congregation. I get home between one and two in the afternoon, and after a short rest and dinner, we start out to hold meetings in the 'estalagens,' which correspond to our most crowded tenements at home. On last Sabbath we went at the request of one of the members of our church to hold a meeting in her home for the benefit of some of her neighbors, to whom she had been telling the story of the Christ. We found the family in one of the most neglected parts of the city, and had to walk a great distance to get there. They live in one of these crowded 'estalagens,' which are a number of low, miserable buildings constructed around a small courtyard. All of the houses open on this court, which serves as a common yard. Usually these yards are filled with rocks, on which clothes are spread to bleach and dry. Most of the people inhabiting these places are the washerwomen of the city. We held a service of song, which attracted as many as the small room could seat, and then one of the young Brazilians read and explained the gospel of free grace. After the meeting we went through the entire place, distributing tracts and Testaments to those who would not come to the meeting. They always accept very graciously offers of this kind, though the illiteracy is so great that in many cases it is useless to give them literature, as they can not read. On my way home from the meeting on last Sabbath, I stopped at the home of one of our Brazilian Leaguers to meet my committee to arrange for a literary social to be held this week. I have charge of the third department of the local League. Stopping by our college for tea, I hurried on to church, to get there too late for the League service, which usually has an attendance of about forty, but was in time for evening service, which is always in the native language. Thus one Sabbath day's journey was made, and I was ready for the rest and quiet of the night. I should have said that this cottage prayer-meeting work on Sundays and on evenings of week is done entirely by the Epworth Leaguers.

"To-day, eleven months ago, I landed in Brazil, and think I have gotten acclimated. Have not been sick a day, and never was in better health. I remain, sincerely, Yours in Christ,

"GEO. D. PARKER."

IRREVERENCE.

BY REV. W. B. LEWIS.

The following from "The Ministry to the Congregation," by J. A. Kern, is worth considering. In his lecture on "Forms of Worship—Prayers," Mr. Kern speaks of reverence, and says, "The too frequent utterance of the name of God in prayer is irreverent." Also: "The use of 'you'—the polite form of the pronoun of the second person—instead of 'thou' is painfully out of place in prayer. How can anyone suppose it to express the true feeling of reverent and gladsome worship? Amatory words, such as 'Dear Father,' 'Sweet Jesus,' 'My Jesus,' are lacking in reverence. The Psalmists did not use them, nor Isaiah, nor Paul, nor our Lord; and surely we can have no better examples to follow. . . . Child-like trustfulness toward the Father who is in heaven, whole-hearted love to him, is not fondness and unseemly familiarity. Is there not always intermingled with it a spirit of holy and loving awe?"

These are wise words. They refer to faults in prayer that seem to be increasing, and need to be checked. I have often been pained to hear devout worshipers and consecrated Christians use them; and I sincerely wish the offensive custom could be put away from us forever. It may be said that these are very small matters; but are they? Is anything that smacks of irreverence a small matter? But even if they should be so regarded by some, it remains true that he that regardeth not little things shall fall by little and little.

The tendency of our age is to irreverence. This is manifested among our children and young people, often, in a painful degree. We who profess to be the children of God should not foster, but restrain this tendency. In our attitude in prayer, in our demeanor in the house of God, in the use of the name of Deity, and in our words of prayer and praise, we should show a profound reverence for Jehovah. I fear the faults mentioned above are to be found among some who advocate the doctrine and profess the blessing of perfect love. But let me not be misunderstood. I firmly believe in the doctrine of entire sanctification as it was taught by our fathers, and as I believe it to be taught in the Scriptures. I believe it to be a work of grace, subsequent to regeneration. I believe it to be conditioned upon entire consecration to God, and perfect faith in Jesus Christ our Lord. I believe it to be an experience to be sought as well as a life to be lived, and that it is possible to all believers. But there are customs and tendencies among some of those who advocate this doctrine that I dissent from and deprecate. I deprecate them because I believe them to be at variance with the true spirit of the gospel, and also because they give unnecessary occasion to criticism on the part of those who are of the contrary opinion, and hence are hurtful to the cause we love so well. Let us hold fast to the form of sound words; let us press on into the fullness of the blessing; let us advocate the truth as it is in Jesus, wisely and faithfully; let us profess what the Lord has done for us, modestly and on proper occasions; but let us be "wise as serpents and harmless as doves," giving no "occasion to the enemy to blaspheme."

"Unskillful Handling of Deep Things."

BY REV. J. H. BASS.

DEAR DOCTOR BOSWELL: Under the above caption I notice an article from Rev. L. S. Jones, of Port Gibson, Miss., in your issue of Nov. 6, concerning which I wish to say a few words.

In the first place, he says holiness and entire sanctification are not synonymous terms, but that he uses them as such in an accommodated sense, and throws the strength of his choice of the two on entire sanctification, which is not a Bible term at all, but is only made use of by theologians to convey the idea of holiness of heart and life. I have never yet read any man's work on this subject who made use of such a statement. Paul says, "Without holiness no man can see the Lord," but he did say, without "entire" sanctification no man can see the Lord. The adjective, "entire," before sanctification does not strengthen the term at all, and hence is nowhere used in the Bible; but sanctification and holiness are Bible terms, and are used as synonymous terms by the apostles. I do not believe in the residue theory of sanctification, for this necessarily includes instantaneous sanctification, which is nowhere so much as hinted at in the Bible. The Lord taught that it was necessary for us to be born again in order to enter into the kingdom of heaven, but the residue theory of sanctification teaches us that we are qualified for the kingdom of heaven, but not qualified to go on to perfection in the Christian life; and this doctrine, of course, if we did not know better, would lead us to the conclusion that Christian perfection, as taught by the residue advocates, is much higher than the kingdom of heaven.

I have had the privilege of reading most of the leading works on this subject on both sides, and thus far I have been unable to find one single advocate of the residue theory who was able to show the difference between a truly regenerated believer and a sanctified believer, and prove his position by God's Word. The truth of the business is, there is no difference.

Bro. Jones wishes to enter his protest against urging this high experience of "entire sanctification" upon newly regenerated believers and children. If the Bible taught entire sanctification as a separate work from regeneration, to be obtained by repentance and faith, it seems to me that the newly converted believer should be urged to seek it at once, so as to enable him to begin his growth in grace. Why should not the new convert and the child enter at once into the field of growth in grace? Surely he has no time to lose. Is it possible that he must wait for a season, and to his great surprise find that the "rosy dawn" of his new spiritual life was partially a delusion, and was not a new life in Christ Jesus? To my mind such logic is light weight; to use a Bible term, "It is weighed in the balances and is found wanting." If the Bible teaches the residue theory of sanctification, I would be glad to have chapter and verse.

Bro. Jones says that strong meat is not for babes, but for those of maturer years. This may be true when applied to theology, but it will not hold good when applied to the love of God. One of the sweetest moments a repenting sinner ever receives is when the gentle, still voice of the Savior is heard to say, "Peace, be still; thy sins are forgiven thee." No wonder the soul "throbs and pulsates with joy divine" under such golden rays of heavenly sunshine.

Our brother says, "It requires time for the regenerate to realize that there is yet a dark something left within," etc.

This is to say, in substance, that it requires time for the regenerate to find out that he was mistaken; that he was not made "a new creature;" that God had not saved him from the guilt and power of sin, but that he must take a second trial at it; that the sinner must go and repent and believe, and let the Lord speak to him the second time, "Peace, be still; thy sins are forgiven thee," and then it is that he is made free from sin. Why not believe the Lord the first time he speaks? I believe the Bible to teach that when a sinner is converted by the power of the Holy Spirit, he comes into a saved relation with the Lord Jesus Christ, is made a partaker of the divine love of God, has all of his past sins taken away, and has placed within his soul the element of every single virtue that grows and springs up into a full-grown man in Christ. He is sanctified by the Holy Spirit, and his growth in grace begins from the very moment of his regeneration, and continues to heighten, brighten, deepen and extend as long as he lives, provided he continues to use the means within his reach. The thing for us to be most concerned about is whether we are really born again, and whether we are using the means of grace that God has furnished us to the best of our ability. We can only do the best we can, and this is Christian perfection.

Long Bill.

BY J. A. L.

Long Bill was born in the backwoods. His parents were poor and ignorant. Early in life he was left an orphan. He had no father to counsel him. He could hardly remember the tender touch of a mother's hand. He worked from place to place, and made enough money to keep him in coarse clothes, brogan shoes, and a wool hat. This was the extent of his wardrobe. In an aimless way he spent the early years of his boyhood. When the Civil War broke out Bill joined the Confederate Army. He was too young, but was large and healthy. He had no idea of the dangers and hardships of a soldier's life. Soon after he entered the service his command was ordered to the front, and was engaged in deadly conflict with the enemy. When Bill saw his comrades fall on the right and left he realized for the first time the dangers to which he was exposed. That night, after his first battle, he sought a private place, and on his knees he made a vow to God that if he would spare his life to the end of the war, he would give him his entire service. This vow was renewed on many bloody battlefields, for his command did active service for four years. Bill was always at the front. His health was good, and he had no family ties to call him home.

Bill began to realize the importance of an education. He had none. A comrade of his that had been more fortunate than he, had agreed to be his teacher. As they had no books, he cut the letters out of an old book and pasted them on a board, and thus he learned the alphabet. His teacher cut letters out of old books and newspapers, and made words, and taught Bill to spell and to read. His teacher took old goods boxes, and with a lead pencil set copies for Bill to learn to write. In this way Bill got a little start on this line.

Bill was a good soldier. In the camp, out on picket, or on the bloody battle-field, Bill could be depended on. But the war closed, and Bill, with a few others, returned to their native community. The country was devastated by the cruel hand of war. Some of their thoughtless neighbors gave the soldiers a dance. Bill was invited, and he went. When he reached the place, and heard the fiddle and merry dancers, his vow, made on so many bloody battlefields, came home to him with double force. He had learned to retreat during the war; so he made a successful retreat to a private place, and on his knees he confessed his wrong, and again renewed his vow. The next Sunday, Bill went to hear an humble Methodist circuit rider preach. The sermon touched Bill's heart. A call was made for penitents, and Bill was first at the altar. The preacher prayed with him, and soon Bill was happily converted to God. Bill gave the rebel yell. It was all he knew how to do. That day he joined the Southern Methodist Church, and he felt like all his troubles were past, and that life would be happy.

But, alas! another trouble soon came. An impression came as unmistakable as if spoken by an audible voice, saying, "Bill, you must preach." Bill said: "I can't. I have no education, no friends to aid me. I am nothing but poor, long Bill." The impression was more keenly felt each day. When he could stand it no longer he went to his faithful pastor, who advised him to go to school. He said he had no money or friends. His pastor said: "Go to school. If you need help, I will help you." He worked part of the time, and then went to school awhile, and in a few years he had the foundation of an English education laid. But the impression was so strong, saying, "Go preach," that he stated his impressions to his church. He was recommended to the Quarterly Conference for license to preach. His examination was poor, but the members of the Quarterly Conference thought they saw the elements of true manhood in him, and gave him license, and the presiding elder gave him a little backwoods work. He went preaching and studying. He did his work so well that he was received into the Annual Conference the next Fall. His examination was satisfactory each year. He continued to grow until now he fills the best appointments in his Conference.

Tribute to Dr. Cooper.

In the September number of the Maroon and White, Centenary College's paper, the following tribute appeared, which the friends of Whitworth College will greatly appreciate:

Rev. Inman W. Cooper, D. D., came to Centenary in 1898 from the regular work of the ministry. As pastor, presiding elder, and college financial agent, he had so impressed the church that our college authorities deemed it wise to call him to the presidency of this heroic institution. Without useless delay and formality he bent the full energy of his vigorous manhood to the task of resuscitating his sick patient, and the success of his operation won for him the applause of 27,000 Methodists in Louisiana, and a host of friends in Mississippi. Dr. Cooper was pre-eminently an organizer, endowed with an unusual degree of good judgment, gifted in the art of devising and operating plans for the accomplishment of righteous purposes. The material improvement of our college buildings, and the gratifying increase in our enrollment during his administration, are substantial evidences of his service to education in this State. As a speaker, the subject of this tribute possessed many of the essentials of powerful oratory, and his appearance on the platform or in the pulpit, while in our midst, never failed to command a large attendance of the students.

At the meeting of the Board, last June, President Cooper submitted his resignation, and left to take the helm at Whitworth Female College, in his native State, leaving behind many busy footprints and pleasant memories, and countless evidences of his Christian influence.

Notes from the Jackson District.

Methodism in Jackson is a strong and interesting plant. Here one of our youngest and most popular Bishops lives, honored at home and sought for abroad; here our strong and highly prosperous educational institution, Millsaps College, is located, manned by a corps of Christian gentlemen, all members of the Methodist Church, and strong in the positions which they occupy.

Our First Church, in this city, has the largest membership of any in the State, numbering over 700. Dr. Black is a tireless pastor, having added more than 150 members during the past year, and about 300 during the three years closing.

Capitol Street is growing with the advancement of the city; no more important field within our bounds than this. New houses and new people is the curt description of this interesting work.

By joint action of the two older churches work has begun in South Jackson. A Sunday-school of thirty, and more, children organized; a lot purchased, and subscriptions for a neat chapel is now being taken, with prospect of completion by the coming of Conference. Dr. Black has the matter well in hand, which guarantees success.

From my first coming on to the district there has been a desire by some for a church on Millsaps grounds.

CHAPLAIN.

My opinion is that the time has come for the two patronizing Conferences to consider the joint support of a chaplain at Millsaps. The college community would pay something to his support, and the two Conferences could supplement the salary of a man for $1,000. A suitable man would do a great work among the students.

During the past week the two women's missionary societies held a joint district meeting. The enthusiasm was more like that of a Conference session; not a discordant note, not a ripple of jealousy, but the most kindly spirit between the two. Plans for the workings of both were freely discussed, and high hopes reigned. Doubtless, you will have a full report from the secretary. They took in hand the better equipping of the district parsonage, which was thoughtful and wise.

At Flora we held the fourth Quarterly Conference for that charge. The stewards reported well, and expressed full confidence as to pastor's salary. While the Conference collections may not be "in full" at all points, the pastor has a considerable increase over last year in hand, and others to collect. The stewards at this place, as at others, "spoke out in meeting" in behalf of Bro. Jones for another year. They are pleased.

T. B. HOLLOMAN.

Amite City.

DEAR DOCTOR: Our meeting has closed and an immense amount of good has been accomplished. The visible results are:

1. A wonderful revival in the church of all the different Protestant denominations, and a brotherly feeling unsurpassed amongst Christians.

2. Not less than seventy-five professions of religion in and out of the churches, and a consecration of many children from eight to sixteen years of age.

3. A much stronger faith in the divine origin and mission of the church, and the power of the gospel to save sinners.

4. A full conviction of the fact that the preaching of a genuine gospel is attractive to the world as nothing else is.

5. About thirty-six persons have pledged themselves to join some branch of the church at the first opportunity. Twenty-five of these have applied for membership in the Methodist, ten in the Baptist, and one in the Campbellite Church.

Sunday, next, has been appointed as the time for the reception of the applicants into the Methodist Church, and I suppose the applicants for membership into the Baptist Church will be received the same day.

Bro. McIntosh did the preaching, and Bro. Ineichen presided at the organ, and both did their best, and the Lord blessed their efforts.

My third year among these excellent people is rapidly drawing to a close, and I pray that the Lord will send them just the preacher they need for the next Conference year. Your brother,

THOS. J. UPTON.

Amite, La., Nov. 11, 1902.

Shannon, Miss.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: We are closing up the year's work on Shannon circuit satisfactorily. Have succeeded in raising nearly all of the collections ordered by the Conference. Feel confident all will be paid. Salary will be paid in full. The ladies have expended near a hundred dollars on parsonage, which was needed to make the home comfortable. We have had thirty accessions to the church, ten of them by letter, giving a net increase of twenty-one. The spiritual state of the charge is good.

S. A. BROWN, P. C.

We may well take the lesson which Christ's prayers teach us, for we all need it—that no life is so high, so holy, so full of habitual communion with God that it can afford to do without the hour of prayer, the secret place, the uttered word. The life that was all one long prayer needed the mountain-top and the nightly converse with God. He who could say, "The Father hath not left me alone, for I do always the things that please him," felt that he must also have the special communion of spoken prayer. What Christ needed we can not afford to neglect.—Dr. Alex. McLaren.

All Stuffed Up

That's the condition of many sufferers from catarrh, especially in the morning. Great difficulty is experienced in clearing the head and throat.

No wonder catarrh causes headache, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, pollutes the breath, deranges the stomach and affects the appetite.

To cure catarrh, treatment must be constitutional—alterative and tonic.

"I was afflicted with catarrh. I took medicines of different kinds, giving each a fair trial; but gradually grew worse until I could hardly hear, taste or smell. I then concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after taking five bottles I was cured and have not had any return of the disease since." EUGENE FORBES, Lebanon, Kan.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

Conducted by N. A. MOTT, Yazoo City, Miss.

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

The Study Circle.

We recently asked Prof. Ricketts, of Millsaps College, and leader of the Study Circle at Jackson, Miss., to give us for this column his experience and suggestions in Study Circle work. In his reply he stated that the letter was not for publication, but gave us permission to use such parts as we desired. But the whole letter is so readable, and states the difficulties and conditions so clearly, that we print it entire. We believe it will be helpful and an encouragement to others.

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 2, 1902.

DEAR BRO. MOTT: Replying to yours of the fifteenth ultimo, I regret to say that we will not have our examination in Study Circle in time for report at Annual Conference.

We have found a number of difficulties in the way of our progress in the course of study, chief among which are the Summer "hegira" of many of our best members—the secular school teachers and others—which caused a partial suspension of work for several months, and the fact that it is so hard to find a time of meeting which does not conflict with that of some other church or Sunday-school organization. Most of our Circle belong to one or more of these. We were unfortunate, also, in having several of our meetings, in the early part of the year, interfered with by bad weather, in consequence of which we really met but once before the close of the schools in June.

There are forty-eight names on our roll, several of which should probably be dropped because of removals. Thirteen of our number are business men who are often out of town, or otherwise so situated that they can not attend a meeting—or think they can not—during the day except on Sunday, and Sunday is taken up with other services; twenty-four are ladies, a majority of whom can not get out to a meeting at night; and the remainder, for various reasons mostly good, can not be expected to come with any regularity. Quite a number indeed joined with the understanding that they could probably not be able to meet with the Circle, or do the work at any definite time, though they have bought the books and are pursuing the course of study with some interest. Only a few comparatively are expecting to take the examination, not more I think than one third of those enrolled. We may have made a mistake in receiving members on such easy terms, but we thought best to encourage as many as possible to engage in the study of the books, even though it should be in some cases not very systematic or thorough.

In spite of these conditions, however, I am glad to say that a number of our Circle are in earnest and applying themselves regularly and with good results. We have completed the first two books of the course, and have made some progress on the third. It also might have been finished by a few of us, but we decided to wait a little for some who joined late, and indeed the little book is so interesting, and promises such rich rewards to real study, that we want to master it pretty thoroughly before offering for examination.

Our first meetings were held at private houses, and but that some of our most earnest and studious members can not well get out at night, we would prefer to meet in this way. If it were possible to meet by sections in different parts of the city and at different times, our work would be greatly facilitated and the meetings might be made very pleasant and profitable, socially, intellectually and spiritually.

We are trying to meet now every two weeks, and it is our purpose to take one chapter of the Bible Studies at a lesson. Thus far we have followed the author's suggestions in the use of the blackboard anaylsis, re-reading the books covered by the lesson, and briefly discussing such points as seem most important. Of course, the leader might be easily tempted to degenerate into a mere talker or lecturer, but we shall try to make the discussion of the lesson informal and general, so far as that can be done without confusion.

I might offer some suggestions as to manner of conducting meetings, etc., but I suppose you would prefer to know what we are doing, rather than what we think might be done, or ought to be done, here or elsewhere. R. S. RICKETTS.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

DEDICATION OF WEST END CHURCH, IN MERIDIAN, MISS.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: The third Sunday in this month (sixteenth instant) will be a day of rejoicing among the Methodists of West End, Meridian. That will be dedication day with us. At the beginning of the year a balance of $250 of the old church debt was still hanging over us. We started out with the determination to pay it before Conference. The amount has been raised, and arrangements are now being made for the dedication service. Dr. Murrah has been engaged to preach the sermon, and we are looking forward to the occasion with pleasant expectations. A cordial invitation is hereby extended to all former pastors of the church to be with us that day. We specially hope to have the presence of Dr. I. W. Cooper, under whose pastorate the present building was erected. It is hoped that all who then composed the Board of Trustees will be on hand.

I am glad to say that the work here has moved along very well this year, considering the disadvantages under which we have labored. It has been a year of almost continuous sickness in the writer's family, but God has graciously blessed us, and carried on his work anyhow. Up to date we have had seventy-six accessions to the church, twenty of whom have been received on profession of faith. Our Conference collections ($270) have been secured, and seventy per cent. of the money is in hand. All will be paid in full.

West End Church runs all the machinery of Methodism. We have a good Sunday-school, a live Senior Epworth League, and the best Junior League of which I have ever had any knowledge. We have both a Woman's Foreign and Home Mission Society, and a Sunday school Missionary Society, which has already paid $25 on the collections.

This is a hard field in some respects, but I know of no place where a preacher has greater opportunities to work and do good than here. This church has some of as efficient, faithful and true workers as the writer has ever known. Like other pastoral charges, we have some driftwood. There are those among us who are not as loyal to the church as they should be. We ask an interest in the prayers of all the brethren.

D. SCARBOROUGH, P. C.

SHUQUALAK, MISS.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: I have just returned from Mashulaville, where I have been assisting Rev. J. D. Newsom in a revival meeting. The Lord was with us in great power, resulting in a great awakening of church members. Methodists, Baptists and Presbyterians, all alike, took part and enjoyed the work. There will be about a dozen accessions to the different churches. I sold three Disciplines and took three orders for CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and in these orders alone I shall feel repaid for my trip, for the greatest trouble among our people, as I see and understand it, is a lack of information. They know so little about the church to which they belong, and of the God whom they worship; and yet they are not taking church papers, nor reading good books. And some of our people wouldn't know a Methodist Discipline if they should find it in the road (stewards, too). O, for a spirit of reading and of knowledge! We hope the spirit is coming. One good brother, so filled with the Spirit, said: "Send me the ADVOCATE. I can't read, but my wife can." Many of the hard problems over which we work and pray will never be solved till we get our people to reading our church papers. Our Lord's answer, on one occasion, to a man who was inquiring what he should do to inherit eternal life was, "How readest thou?" (Luke x, 26.) Give me a people that read our church papers and literature, and I'll give you a live church—one that believes in and supports all her institutions.

Bro. Newsom, in his seventy-third year, is full of life, and has an elastic step; has done a good year's work, and is now completing a new church at Mashulaville—all ready now except the paint and paper. It should be called Newsom's Chapel.

My charge (Shuqualak) is in good shape; will make the best financial report that it has made for years. I have held eight revival meetings, resulting in eighty-five or ninety conversions, and fifty-one accessions to Methodism in my charge. To God be all the glory.

W. A. BOWLIN, P. C.

WINCHESTER CIRCUIT.

MR. EDITOR: I have closed out my revival meetings for this season. We have had two sweeping revivals at Big Rock and Winchester. Four churches out of five will pay up everything in full and over. I was assisted by the following brethren: Bros. P. D. Hardin at Winchester, W. W. Murry at Fedora and Pleasant Grove, W. E. Chambers at Big Rock, and E. W. Coleman at State Line. Ten conversions and seven reclamations is the result of our meetings. These young brethren preach the Methodist doctrine with the old-time ring. They are students, and will at an early day clasp hands with the leaders in our grand old church in soul-saving.

R. H. BARA, P. C.

The misspents of every minute are a new record against us in heaven. Sure if we thought thus we should dismiss them with better reports and not suffer them to fly away empty or laden with dangerous intelligence. How happy is it when they carry up not only the message, but the fruits of good, and stay with the Ancient of Days to speak for us before his glorious throne.—Milton.

Change of Life

(Woman's Most Critical Period.)

"The woman is a mother still, The holiest thing alive!"

At about the age of 45 years women begin to pass into a condition on which their future health depends. This condition is known as the "change of life," or the cessation of the monthly function and capabilities for maternity. If they pass this change safely they may reasonably look for a quarter of a century of good health, but if complications arise and are not properly treated they will be left feeble wrecks. When symptoms of this change appear a woman should at once begin to take G. F. P. It will carry her through the period safely and leave her enjoying good health.

"My wife suffered for seven years from the Change of Life. We tried every thing we could get from the doctors and paid out a considerable sum of money for treatment, but without any good result, so we then began using G. F. P. and it did more good than all else we had used for six years. It is the greatest remedy for suffering females ever yet placed on the market."—I. D. Borden, Colmesneil, Tex.

G. F. P.—Gerstle's Female Panacea, cures irregular, scanty, too profuse and painful monthly periods; uterine and ovarian irritations; ulcers, displacements and falling of the womb; whites and all unnatural discharges; frigidity, barrenness and all impediments to maternity; also all associate ailments of the private organs of women. At all stages of menstrual life, from budding womanhood until after the changes that end special womanly functions, it is the best friend of and remedy for womankind. Its use strengthens all womanly organs, regulates and renders natural all sexual functions. It is sold at drug stores for $1.00 a bottle. Buy it, try it, and you will find these statements are true, for it is reliable and will not disappoint.

All ladies who care not perfectly right and well in a womanly way should write to the Ladies' Health Club, care of L. Gerstle & Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., for free medical advice and instruction.

The Way of the Preacher:

An Interpretation of a Calling.

By JOHN A. KERN, D.D., Professor of Practical Theology in Vanderbilt University; author of "The Ministry to the Congregation."

No earnest minister can read it without benefit to himself and the souls within his keeping.—Northern Christian Advocate, Syracuse, N. Y.

If a young minister can read this book without being kindled into a better man, a better preacher, there must be something lacking in his make-up.—Nashville American.

No minister can carefully read its pages without a higher sense of his calling and a larger purpose to measure up to its possibilities.—Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

It has a life and character of its own, and a mission which will be successful, I dare foretell, because it throbs with the highest ideals, the noblest attainments, the soundest methods.—Christian Guardian, Toronto, Canada.

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check, ten cents extra will be charged.

All Preachers of the M. E. Church, South, are authorized Agents, to whom payments may be made.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1902.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

We seldom say anything to our subscribers through the paper about money. But the year is closing, many hundreds of dollars are due us, and we would be thankful if those who are behind would remit. Please do not wait for your preacher to call. Send the amount any safe way that is convenient. Let us hear from you this week. The amount due us is needed. Please do not delay.

Dr. Winton says it "never was as easy for one to become a preacher as it is now." In one sense it is. People hold such slack-twisted notions in regard to the call to the ministry they will encourage anybody that professes to have a call. This partly accounts for the many irresponsible evangelists. In another sense it is much harder to become a preacher—at least, in our church—than it ever was. Many poor boys called to preach do not measure up to the required standard of education, and many who make application for license, and for admission into the traveling connection, fail. The constantly decreasing number of local preachers indicates that it is not an easy matter to become a preacher.

It is easy for one to put himself in such an attitude as to utterly fail to receive attention. Strangers sometimes do this. They go to church, sit in back seats, and rush away as soon as the benediction is pronounced, and neither the pastor nor anyone else has any opportunity to shake hands with them. And too often, after that manner of conduct, they complain of neglect, and pout and go off to another church to repeat the same schedule. Christians of this order can always find some cause of complaint. They have none but themselves to blame. Persons thoroughly in love with their church in going to a strange place will not desert it for lack of a handshake.

The matter of candidating for vacant pulpits among the churches that are independent or congregational must be troublesome at times. To avoid trouble, a good, prosperous church advertises through one of the papers. The salary is stated, and also the fact that there is a parsonage. Those who answer the advertisement are asked to state age and experience. This "method of inviting attention to the church" is made "to avoid candidating." So says the card. We imagine the salary, which is far above the average—in fact, liberal—will act as a good bait, and the church will, no doubt, have much trouble answering letters.

THE PREACHER'S TEXT-BOOK.

In the schools there are text-books for the primary, intermediate, and advanced classes. The scholars study one set and pass on to another, until all are mastered. Not so with the preacher. The Bible is his text-book. He has no other. He is authorized to use no other. Beyond this he can never advance. It is the rule of faith and practice in the kingdom, and is bound to be in the hands of all alike, from peasant to prince, from the humblest preacher to the highest authority in the church. It is true there are schools for the training of preachers, with courses of study covering a period of years. Many books are used in going through the course. Of theological books outside the course in the schools there is no end. But all of them are based on the Bible. They do not, and were never intended to, supersede the Word of God. Whatever of good they contain is dug from the great mine of truth. They originate nothing; they give out nothing new.

We do not mean to say that scholars, through their books, throw no new light on the Word of God. They do, and are continually enriching our sacred literature with their contributions. Nor does it require learned men to discover new phases of the truth. The Word is so wonderful, so full of wisdom, and presents the truths of the gospel in so many ways, that even an unlearned reader, without a human teacher, finds new things, and sees old truths in a new light, every time he looks into the Book. How much better qualified is a devout scholar to discover truth and make it known! But even he, with all his learning, can never exhaust the mine. "The well-instructed scribe, out of the good treasure of his heart, bringeth forth things new and old."

Why is this? Other books grow old and stale, and men cease to read them. A generation suffices to exhaust interest in an ordinary book. The best of uninspired productions do not afford material for thought sufficient to keep the ripest scholarship of the world interpreting and elucidating their pages age after age. But three thousand five hundred years have not sufficed to exhaust the thought or tire the pens and tongues of men in commenting on the Word of God. The roll of thousands more will still find men studying and interpreting the Scriptures. The reason is, the Bible is God's Word—a revelation in full of his will, and dealing in the profoundest things in the universe. "Which things the angels desire to look into." No wonder the gospel preacher can not get beyond the text-book.

And yet, strange to say, men standing as teachers of the Word, and before men hungry and starving for the gospel, forsake the text-book, and week after week discourse on matters wholly outside the province of the pulpit. They do this not because faithful preaching of the Word has lost its power over men, but because they themselves have lost faith in its inspiration, or have lost the life and power of godliness. Affected one way or the other, we can not expect them to be true preachers, nor can we expect them to save sinners and edify believers. Judging by the subjects often announced for Sunday consideration, we are constrained to believe that a multitude of preachers are short of gospel themes, or have discarded the gospel altogether.

So far as young preachers are concerned, we can hardly find it in our heart to blame them. Trained, as many of them are, under teachers with modern notions of inspiration and atonement, and largely affected by the conclusions of the higher critics, they naturally lose faith in the old-time religion, and turn their pulpits into rostrums for the reading of essays on morals, or into platforms for the delivery of harangues on politics or social economy. We have been told that some schools pretending to stand for orthodoxy, and certainly supported by an orthodox constituency, are honeycombed with the infidelity here named. Whether true or not, we are not able to affirm. If it is true, what may we expect to see in the course of a few years? Nothing but a flood of infidelity, which, if not stayed, will sweep vital godliness from the churches. Fortunately, there are barriers, and we believe they will prove strong enough to save the truth. Let us hold on to our text-book.

HANDICAPPING THE PREACHER.

We know nothing better adapted to handicap a preacher than the musical programmes arranged and executed in many of our churches. Of course, if a preacher approves and falls into line with the programme-makers, he necessarily consents to the minifying of his own part in the divine service, and by as much as he consents to this, he consents to the magnifying of the musical parts of the worship, which, if we understand aright, is a reversal of the proper order. And the order can not be reversed without doing harm.

Preaching is of prime importance; music is secondary. It may aid, and in a large measure, if of the right character, inspire both the preacher and the congregation, but it can not supersede the sermon, and should not be allowed to encroach upon the time set apart for its delivery. But this is just what the elaborate musical programme does. If the preacher arranges for this—purposely gives his time to the choir, instead of to the sermon—it is all right; he is not handicapped. But if he has a God-given message, and his soul is on fire to make it known, having in view the one purpose for which he was sent out to preach—the salvation of souls—he is compelled to feel cramped, and fail in the delivery of his message.

The preacher should not be subjected to such limitations. It is belittling him in the presence of the world. It is dishonoring his Lord. No church that recognizes its true relation to God and the world can give way to this spirit without loss of spiritual life, and in that case it can not accomplish its mission to the world. The preacher can not surrender without sin. And as ambassador for Christ, with authority to direct the services, he should not allow himself handicapped after the prevailing style in some fashionable churches. The same evil—for evil it is—begins to show itself in some of our smaller churches. If allowed to grow, our preachers in the small towns and in some of our country charges, like our city preachers, will find themselves sandwiched between the quartette and the soloist, and their occupation will be gone. They will be as weak as Samson when shorn of his locks.

WANTED—A PRESIDING ELDER.

An extract from a private letter printed in this ADVOCATE, two weeks since, under the title, "Wanted—A Presiding Elder," and copied by Brother Bailey, of the Baptist, was not written by a layman. The author is one of our active and useful preachers—one interested in the welfare of the church. He is not at all frightened, as Brother Bailey supposes, but was simply expressing his views concerning the character of the man he prefers to succeed the presiding elder who now so ably and acceptably serves the district in which he is working. The present incumbent is a first-class man, and has kept up the work in a first-class way, and, naturally, the preacher desires the district to maintain its position, which it would fail to do under a man of less preaching and administrative ability.

Brother Bailey construes the extract as a protest—couched in such language as to reveal "a state of affairs sad and deplorable indeed." The sad and deplorable thing revealed is the fear that a man not qualified may be appointed to the presiding eldership, "because he has influence with the Bishop." That a man, not properly qualified, is sometimes appointed presiding elder, is true; but it is not because of his personal influence alone. Unqualified men generally have help. There is not a Bishop in the church that would appoint any man to a district, if he believed him to be unqualified. Unfortunately, though, friends sometimes recommend a man, and the Bishop is induced to believe that he is qualified. Even then the unqualified man is an exception.

Brother Bailey says he "can not enter fully into the writer's feelings, having never been a victim of any such machine as he describes." We wonder if he has ever sought election as pastor of a church, and was defeated through the influence of one man, or through the influence of one man ever received a call. We hope he has never been the victim of a dictatorial, tyrannical, rule-or-ruin deacon, such as is met occasionally. We have known a few who were bosses of the local church—quite as much so as any presiding elder or Bishop, or quite as much as Croker ever was of Tammany. We suppose Brother Bailey reads the Texas Baptist Standard. If he does not, we ask him to turn to the first page of this ADVOCATE, of last week, and read "Charlie, the Lizard Killer," by Dr. Gambrell. "It's mighty interesting reading."

No, no, Brother Bailey; you will not find perfect church government, perfect conditions, or perfect men in this world. We will not meet with perfection this side of heaven. In the meantime let us work our respective church machinery the best we can. The Methodist Church and the Baptist Churches in Mississippi seem to be doing fairly well, considering the number of Bishops who oversee the flocks. Let us not stop to kill lizards.

THE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

The primary object of the Epworth League is to train and develop our young people in the grace and work of the gospel. Under existing conditions, it is but fair to say that the League is more depended on for this purpose than any other organization authorized by the church. From its very beginning we have felt much interest in its work; have been anxious for its success. Not only the objects in view, but the Constitution and By-laws under which it operates, we believe to be in perfect harmony with other arms of service. We have never found anything objectionable in it at all, save, occasionally, a departure from the custom of Methodism in the conduct of worship. Trained as a Methodist, and having adhered to its usages all the years of life, we find it impossible to consent to a departure therefrom in any of our meetings. We do not believe the League gains anything by adopting forms of worship unknown to the church. But for any departure we have observed, we do not blame the League or the young Leaguers, but the older ones who take the lead.

But the object of this writing is not to make objection, or to point out defects, but to say a word that may awaken greater interest in the work. We do not know that interest has abated throughout our patronizing Conferences, but we know there is not sufficient interchange of thought between the Leagues, and that but little news of the work is seen in print. Very little, indeed, reaches the public through this ADVOCATE. By special arrangement space was set apart for League notes, and we suppose it is generally known that the ADVOCATE was selected as the local organ for the three Confereuce Boards. The notes were always welcome, and would be still, but none come to the office. With the exception of the official communication and a short note from Parker Memorial League, found on the opposite page, and a notice some weeks since, not a line of any character concerning the League work has reached us during the past three months. We do not know why. We hope those who have the matter in charge will revive the department. The notes will interest the Leaguers and do good. We hope, also, when we change the form of our paper to sixteen pages, which we desire to do at as early a day as practicable, to devote one whole page to the interest of the League.

"TO MY SUCCESSOR."

The letter of Brother C. McDonald, found in another column, is something unique. We do not remember ever to have seen anything like it. Evidently the parsonage and parsonage ground have been cared for during his four years' stay. The brother who follows him will be fortunate indeed. The lines will fall to him in a pleasant place. How different some parsonages! We have seen a few that looked like they were occupied by poor widows with lazy boys. Everything out of doors was out of order—fences down, gates unhinged, with only feeble attempts at gardening, and that early in the Spring before the weather waxed hot. The only tidiness about the place was under the immediate direction of the good wife, and she had only half a chance.

Many years ago we knew a preacher who was sent to a circuit with a good, new parsonage. There was no stable, no fencing around the lot. Big sweet-gum logs were lying all around. The preacher went to work—cleared up the logs and brush, built a stable, fenced in the lot and a garden, and got ready to live like a gentleman. His wife was fully his equal, if not a little superior, in taste and tact. Everything around was soon in the very best order; even flowers were set out, and there was a sense of refinement all around. In a little while the neighbors were provoked to good works—in the way of cleaning up. Some of the brethren said, "We are sorry the Bishop sent us that man." "Why?" somebody asked. "Because," said they, "he and his wife have put all the women in the neighborhood to cleaning up, and we can't have any rest until we have bought rakes and hoes, and cleaned up all the stumps and brush about the place." They set a good example. They left that parsonage in good condition.

We hope Brother McDonald will have the fortune to be sent to a work with all the fruit trees, collards and turnips, and other necessaries and conveniences, ready for his use. Brother McDonald forgot to say one thing. We will say it for him: He is one of the best agents for the ADVOCATE in the whole field.

Dr. Watkins captured and captivated the West Texas Conference. He raised $5,805 for the Endowment Fund for Superannuates. The Texas Christian Advocate put him down as a connectional platform speaker as the best since Bishop Wilson was Missionary Secretary. We are proud to hear such an account of our Mississippi agent.

Bible Offers Renewed.

We occasionally have calls for certain styles of Bibles, and have decided to renew our offer—not to give Bibles as premiums, but to assist our readers in securing suitable books at small cost.

We will send the ADVOCATE one year, and the International Teachers' Bible, minion type, for $3.10.

Same book in larger type and ADVOCATE for $3.35.

The Red Letter Testament, a very popular book, and ADVOCATE for $2.10.

A complete description will be given next week.

Note: We do not keep these Bibles on hand, and it generally takes from ten days to two weeks for the books to reach those who order them.

PERSONAL.

Our brother, Rev. W. D. Burroughs, who has been sick so long, writes that he is improving slowly, but will not be able to attend Conference. We hope our brethren will remember him and his helpless family in prayer. We trust that his health may be permanently restored.

Bishop Hoss has accepted the invitation of the Texans, and will fix his residence in Dallas. The Epworth Era says: "A handsome residence will be built for him, the work of erection, as we understand, to begin at once. Bishop and people are happy in their selection of relations."

Rev. H. T. Cunningham, writing from Floresville, the seat of the West Texas Conference, requests that his ADVOCATE be changed from Amory, Miss., to Uvalde, Texas. We take it for granted that he has been stationed at the latter place. Thus North Mississippi loses another good man.

The Rev. H. P. Lewis, one of the veterans of the Mississippi Conference, spent a while in the city last week. We had the pleasure of a short conversation with him in our office. Notwithstanding his more than twoscore years of active service, he is still vigorous and in the ranks, as anxious as ever to labor for the Master.

Our friend and brother, Col. J. G. Hamilton, of Durant, Miss., in a business note to the ADVOCATE, gives us a kind word, which we much appreciate, and which we take the liberty to copy. Brother Hamilton says: "I would grieve and keenly feel the loss of a much-valued friend, were I denied the pleasure of reading the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE."

A press dispatch from London announces the death of Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, the most conspicuous figure in the Wesleyan Methodist Church. No particulars of the great man's death were given save that he died suddenly on the night of the seventeenth of November. Mr. Hughes was the leader of the great "forward movement" in home mission work in London.

Dr. Julien C. Brown, a special friend of this editor, is closing a four years' pastorate at Central Avenue, Hot Springs, Ark. The church has been greatly blessed under his administration. He is one of the most popular and useful preachers that ever served in Hot Springs. The Daily News, speaking of his preaching on Sunday, the ninth of this month, says: "Dr. Julien C. Brown preached with great power and eloquence to large congregations, Sunday, at Central Church. His discourse in the evening was especially a masterpiece, and created almost a sensation by reason of its lofty thought and fervor of delivery. He is now closing a four years' pastorate, and his closing sermons seem even better than those before delivered. He is certainly one of the most powerful men in Southern Methodism, and well able to fill any of the most important stations in the church."

A note from Rev. Robt. Selby, our pastor at Brandon, Miss., brings news of the death of his mother. It will sadden many hearts. Brother Selby says: "At 1:10 P. M., Nov. 15, the soul of my dear mother, Mrs. T. H. Selby, was released from her tabernacle of clay, and ascended to the home of many mansions. For four months and a half she suffered intensely, but now she is freed from the encumbrances of earth. The greatest sorrow of my life is this, but I rejoice in the fact of her great confidence in the Lord, and that we shall see her again where there will be no separation. Those of us left to cherish her precious memory are my father, brother, sister, and myself. To-day she was buried from the church, the service being conducted by her pastor, Rev. J. W. Crisler."

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

Rev. O. D. Atkinson, Editor.

Our Thanksgiving Service.

(Ps. cxvi, 12-17; James i, 27.)

Our topic card calls for such a service, Sunday, Nov. 23. This service can be made one of the best of the year. It is one in which all will take part with a little encouragement by the leader. We hear it said people as a rule, are not grateful. This may be true in part, but give people an opportunity to stop and count their blessings, and there will be many expressions of gratitude and thanksgiving.

Epworth League.

To the Pastors, Epworth League Presidents and Workers, Mississippi Conference:

It was my purpose, just after being elected to the very responsible position of president of the Mississippi Conference Epworth League, to appeal to each of you for your prayers and co-operation in this great work; but, owing to the fact that several of the officers resigned shortly after the Conference, and have just gotten their places filled, I am thus late in making my appeal to you. It is my desire and purpose that the League cause shall so prosper in our Conference that it shall reach the hearts and lives of our young people, and bring them in close touch with the Master, and make of them loyal and intelligent servants in his vineyard; Methodists that shall know the doctrines and polity of our church, who will go through life with hearts pure and minds bright, scattering sunshine and happiness as they go. It can be done; will we do it? Let us have before our next Conference fifty new Leagues, eight hundred subscribers to the Epworth Era, and five hundred studying the Reading Course.

Will you please allow me to offer the following suggestions?

1. See that each League has a charter, and that it keeps up the work in all departments, and that a report be made to the business meeting from each department; also that a report be sent the secretary of your district once per month, or, at least, once per quarter. (See list of secretaries below.)

2. That there be organized under the Literary Department of each League a "Reading Circle," to study the books of the Reading Course, which can be obtained of Bigham & Smith, Nashville, Tenn.; price, $2.25. They are excellent books. [See advertisement in another column.]

3. The ten-cent per capita assessment, to defray the expenses of the General Office, should be paid by each League at once.

4. An Epworth League Conference, or Institute, should be held in each district under the supervision of the presiding elder and district secretary before the meeting of our next Conference at Yazoo City (unless one has already been held).

5. In reference to our organ, the Epworth Era, I would say: It is a splendid paper, both as to appearance and reading matter, and reflects great credit upon the church and the editor, our own Dr. DuBose. It serves its mission to our young people faithfully and well. It should be in the hands of every Leaguer in the Conference, and if we will interest ourselves in its circulation, it will be. It is essential to our success in the work. Have a large club in each League, and the work will grow as never before. Try it.

Now, let me beg the pastors to carefully answer all the questions in reference to the League in your report to the Annual Conference.

The Decatur Quarterly Conference was held at Union, Nov. 8 and 9, where a gracious revival had recently occurred, Rev. J. L. Morrill, L. E., assisting the pastor. Bitter feuds had been settled, family altars erected, many persons converted, many backsliders reclaimed; a few had professed entire sanctification, discipline enforced, and the church members at peace among themselves. Union has paid Conference claims in full, and will overpay assessment for ministerial support. All the churches on the circuit are far, very far in arrears. None of the Conference assessments in full, but far ahead of last year. Bro. Williams is in favor with his people, especially at Union. The Quarterly Conference was a delightful occasion.

The Neshoba Quarterly Conference was held at Philadelphia, Sunday night and Monday, Nov. 10 and 11, in our new, but incomplete, church-house, which has been marred in the building by unwise changes in the plan. The preacher-in-charge is in the unfinished parsonage, which is but scantily supplied with furniture yet. Bro. Alford reported the assessments for foreign and domestic missions and Conference claimants paid in full, and is confident of full collections by Conference. Excepting Mars Hill, Pine Grove and Mt. Pisgah, the other churches are considerably in arrears on ministerial, but the stewards are hopeful of meeting all obligations.

At the Decatur fourth Quarterly Conference the Rev. J. E. Williams, P. C., reported 10 accessions—4 by baptism, 5 by vows, and 1 by certificate, and 4 infants baptized.

At Neshoba fourth Quarterly Conference, L. E. Alford, P. C., reported 35 accessions—14 by baptism, 17 by vows, and 4 by certificate.

At Indian Mission fourth Quarterly Conference, W. P. Donnell, L. P., supply, reported 25 accessions—24 by baptism and 1 by vow; and 3 infants baptized. The presiding elder baptized two of the babies—one, Gladys May, daughter of the Rev. W. P. Donnell and wife, and T. L. Mellen, son of the Rev. Simpson J. Tubby and wife. Another namesake of the presiding elder is Arthur Mellen Brokeshoulder, son of Morris and grandson of Adam Brokeshoulder.

Miss Fannie C. Moore, a graduate of Peabody Normal College, Nashville, Tenn., and of the Scarritt-Bible and Training-school, was duly elected deaconess. She is employed by the Woman's Home Mission Board among the Choctaws.

Personal to Subscribers

We will send to every subscriber or reader of the

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

a full sized ONE-DOLLAR package of VITE-ORE, by mail, POSTPAID, sufficient for one month's treatment, to be paid for within one month's time after receipt, if the receiver can truthfully say that its use has done him or her more good than all the drugs and doses of quacks or good doctors or patent medicines he or she has ever used. Read this over again carefully, and understand that we ask our pay only when it has done you good, and not before. We take all the risk; you have nothing to lose. If it does not benefit you, you pay us nothing. VITE-ORE is a natural, hard, adamantine, rock-like substance—mineral—ORE—mined from the ground like gold and silver, and requires about 20 years for oxidization. It contains free iron, free sulphur and magnesium, and one package will equal in medicinal strength and curative value 800 gallons of the most powerful, efficacious mineral water drunk fresh at the springs. It is a geological discovery, to which there is nothing added or taken from. It is the marvel of the century for curing such diseases as Rheumatism, Bright's Disease, Blood Poisoning, Heart Trouble, Diphtheria, Catarrh and Throat Affections, Liver, Kidney and Bladder Ailments, Stomach and Female Disorders, La Grippe, Malarial Fever, Nervous Prostration and General Debility, as thousands testify, and as no one, answering this, writing for a package, will deny after using. Vita-Ore will do the same for you as it has done for hundreds of readers if you will give it a trial, which none should hesitate to do on this liberal offer. SEND FOR A $1.00 PACKAGE AT OUR RISK. You have nothing to lose if the medicine does not benefit you. WE WANT NO ONE'S MONEY WHOM VITE-ORE CAN NOT BENEFIT. Can anything be more fair? One package is usually sufficient to cure ordinary cases; two to four for chronic, obstinate cases. Investigation will bear out that we MEAN JUST WHAT WE SAY in this announcement and will do just as we agree. Write to-day for a package at our risk and expense, giving your age and ailments, so that we may give you special directions for treatment if same be necessary, and mention this paper, so that we may know that you are entitled to this liberal offer.

Your Doctor

may tell you that your case is incurable, that medical science is unable to help you, that all you can expect is temporary or slight RELIEF. Well, let HIM think so. He is certainly entitled to HIS OPINION. You need not think so unless YOU WISH TO.

MANY PEOPLE whose testimony appears in the books and pamphlets of Theo. Noel Co. were told that their cases were hopeless, helpless, impossible, incurable, past all recovery, yet—READ THEIR TESTIMONY. Many were told that they had but a few short years—some but months—to live, yet—READ THEIR TESTIMONY. There are more things in Heaven and Earth than are dreamed of in the Doctor's philosophy, and VITE-ORE is one of them.

As a Beacon Light

VITÆ-ORE points the way for storm-tossed sufferers to a haven of HEALTH and COMFORT. If you have been drifting in a sea of sickness and disease, toward the rocks and shoals of CHRONIC INVALIDISM, Port your Helm ere it be too late, take heed of the message of HOPE and SAFETY which it flashes to you; STOP DRIFTING about in a helpless, undecided manner, first on one course and then another, but begin the proper treatment immediately and reach the goal you are seeking by the route so MANY HAVE TRAVELED WITH SUCCESS.

Every person whose testimony is given on this page is willing to act as a PILOT for you, each knows the way from having followed it: Attend their advice, FOLLOW THE LIGHT and be cured as they have. CAN YOU AFFORD TO DISREGARD IT?

This offer will challenge the attention and consideration, and afterward the gratitude, of every living person who desires better health, or who suffers pains, ills and diseases, which have defied the medical world and grown worse with age. We care not for your skepticism, but ask only your investigation, and at our expense, regardless of what ills you have, by sending to us for a package. Address THEO. NOEL CO., N. O. WEAK KIDNEYS AND BLADDER TROUBLE.

Had to Pass Water Very Often Day and Night.

CURED BY THE GREAT KIDNEY REMEDY, SWAMP-ROOT.

Among the many famous cures of Swamp-Root investigated by "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" the one we publish this week for the benefit of our readers, speaks in the highest terms of the wonderful curative properties of this great kidney remedy.

A. H. MOONEY.

DR. KILMER & CO., Binghamton, N. Y.

About two years ago I had a very severe case of kidney and bladder trouble. The pain in the small of my back was so severe that I could not stand it to stay in one position more than a moment or two, and was obliged to pass water very often day and night. I tried medicines and doctors without getting relief. Noticing an advertisement in the TOPEKA STATE JOURNAL of Swamp-Root, I determined to give it a trial and bought a bottle. By the time I had finished the first bottle the pain had entirely disappeared from my back. The pain and frequent desire to pass water ceased. However, I continued to take the medicine, using about six bottles in all. That was over a year ago and I have had no return of the trouble since.

A. H. Mooney.

Chief Engineer, State Capitol Building.
Jan. 2nd, 1902. Topeka, Kan.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for more sickness and suffering than any other disease, therefore, when through neglect or other causes, kidney trouble is permitted to continue, fatal results are sure to follow.

We often see a relative, a friend or an acquaintance apparently well, but in a few days we may be grieved to learn of their severe illness, or sudden death, caused by that fatal type of kidney trouble—Bright's Disease.

The mild and extraordinary effect of the world-famous kidney and bladder remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. A trial will convince anyone—and you may have a sample bottle sent free, by mail.

Sample Bottle of Swamp-Root Free by Mail.

EDITORIAL NOTE—Swamp Root has been tested in so many ways, and has proven so successful in every case, that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of the "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" who have not already tried it may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail. Also a book telling all about Swamp-Root, and containing many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact their very lives, to the wonderful curative properties of Swamp-Root. In writing, be sure and mention reading this generous offer in NEW ORLEANS "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" when sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

If you are already convinced that Swamp Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

Home Circle.

Jack's Queer Dream.

"I want somebody to come and button my shoes," called Harold down the stairs.

He waited, but no one went to his help, for the reason that Aunt Amy had told Emma, the girl who waited on the children, not to go.

"I can't find my brush," came another call. "Emma, you come here."

Emma did not go.

"I think you are mean, Emma," in a fretful tone. "You can leave Harry as well as not. Bring some warm water with you." But Emma still played with little Harry.

"Emma," called another voice, "won't you please—" Emma jumped up, and was half way up stairs before Jessie had finished saying, "tell me where my slippers are?"

That was it. The mother of the children had been ill for a long time. Now she had gone away for help, and Aunt Amy had come to take charge of them. She found them pleasant and well-disposed children, but sadly lacking in the small graces of speech which take all the care of a strong mother to form into a habit.

"I suppose it's because they're the 'little things,'" said Jessie, as when they finally gathered at the table Aunt Amy talked to them about it, assuring them that no children could ever hope to get along agreeably in the world without a good supply of such nice small change as "If you please," "Thank you," "Excuse me," and the like. "You see," she went on, "we wouldn't any of us tell a lie, or steal, or slap Harry, or say bad words, because they're big things. But 'please' is so little we always forget."

"And so poor Aunt Amy has to keep dinging away at us," said Harold.

"O," said Jack, bursting into a langh, "I had the funniest dream last night. I dreamed there was a garden, oh! beautiful. All flowers and grass and trees. And you never could guess what grew on those trees."

"Apples, pears?"

"Peaches, cherries? Or chestnuts?"

"Oranges, bananas?"

"Now, I knew you couldn't. It was all sorts of toys. You can't think of a thing that wasn't there. There was a top tree, and a bat and ball tree, a doll tree and a balloon tree. There was a jumping jack tree and a tree full of dogs and cats and elephants and monkeys that would wind up and go. There was a candy tree and a lemonade creek. And then there were boys and girls running about and picking things—all they wanted."

"Did you get any?"

"No, I didn't. I was outside. Lots of other boys and girls were outside, and we all wanted to get in."

"I guess so!"

"I saw some of them going up and asking if they could go in. And they came back and said the man at the gate—he looked fierce and grim—said no one could go in without a golden key, and any one could easily find one. So we all hunted and hunted, but we couldn't find any golden keys. Then I saw a boy go up and ask to go in, and the man looked as pleasant as anything, and let him right in. But I hadn't seen that he had any key. And as I looked after him I saw a tree full of cars and steamboats, and I was wild to try it again, and I went right up and said to the man: 'O please, please, mister, let me go in. I've hunted and hunted for the key, and I can't find it.' And he smiled like everything, and he said, '"Please" is all the key you need to get in here.' And I was just going in when the rising bell woke me up. Mean old noise!"

All laughed at the dream.

"I think," said Aunt Amy, "that my dinging and dinging must have done some good if I have made you dream about the golden key. You will keep it for every-day use, I am sure; not only for dreams."

"That's what I'm going to do," said Jack.

For his dream was a very true one in the fact that this golden key and the other little polite words will open to you a great many of the pleasant things in the world.—New York Observer.

The President and the Kittens.

A feature of President Roosevelt's character, different from that which he is commonly credited, was displayed recently in a little incident which the Saturday Evening Post relates. The President, in company with Secretary Root, had been enjoying a horseback ride to Chevy Chase, in the vicinity of Washington. On their return they were going along Sixteenth street, near the Henderson Castle, when a series of short cries attracted the President's attention.

"What is it?" asked Secretary Root.

"Kittens, I think," replied the President, turning his horse around. "And they seem to be in distress."

Then the Chief Magistrate began an investigation, and discovered that the melancholy chorus issued from the open catch basin of a sewer.

The President beckoned to two urchins who, from an awed distance, were admiringly watching the performance.

"Will one of you boys crawl into the opening while the other holds his legs?" President Roosevelt asked.

Sport like that, with the greatest personage in the United States as umpire, could come reasonably only once in a lifetime, and the boys fairly tumbled to the opportunity.

"That's the stuff!" exclaimed the President. "Now, what do you find there?"

"Cats in a bag," shrilled the boy with his head in the sewer. The other boy sturdily clung to his companion's legs. The kittens, unaware that their plight had stirred the sympathies of the head of a nation, and that their deliverance was at hand, wailed as if a new calamity were about to strike.

"Drag them out," came the command.

In a moment the President of the United States, the Secretary of War and two excited youngsters stood around the rescued litter. Three forlorn kittens struggled feebly. Then the wrath of the leader who had slaughtered wild game, and shot down armed men in battle, blazed into epithets upon the wretch who had flung the kittens to die in slow agony.

The commotion brought out a wondering butler from a neighboring residence.

"Will you care for these little kittens?" asked the President; "give them milk and a place to live?"

Had the man been asked to accept a Cabinet portfolio he could not have responded with more heartfelt eagerness.

The President thanked him, told the astonished urchins they were little men, and, joining Secretary Root, moved on to the White House.

Living Within One's Income.

"Father, will you please lend me a dollar?"

"Yes, Carl. But, my son, this is the second this month. Is not your allowance large enough? I will increase it willingly, but I want you to learn to live within your means."

"I know, father, and I do try. As you know, I never borrow of any one else."

"That is right, my boy. Always come to me if you want money. You do manage well, and I trust you perfectly, so if you need more each month we will see to it."

"It would be fine to have more, but I do not need it. I spend too much the first of the month on luxuries, and I find I need something for necessities at the close. I do not run in debt, so what can I do but come to you to advance some on my next month's allowance?"

"You do just right about that. It is a great comfort to know that you run no bills and apply to no one else for assistance. Be careful not to overdraw, for you will get into bad habits, which you can not cure when you have money to control. Here is a little statement I found long ago:

"Income, $1.00; expenses, 99c. Result: Riches, affluence.

"Income, $1.00; expenses, $1.01. Result: Poverty, bankruptcy.

"Sermon short for the text, but strong and to the point."

Mr. Cameron was called away. Carl stood studying the slip of paper. When he turned away he had decided to discipline himself so that he might prove worthy of the larger means that would one day be his by being faithful in the management of his small income now.—Exchange.

A woman's discovery FREE

By many years of constant study and experiments, I have perfected a simple, harmless vegetable remedy that will quickly cure all female diseases as well as the piles. It is nature's own remedy, and will not only relieve, but will absolutely thoroughly and permanently cure the ailments peculiar to women such as falling of the womb, leucorrhea (whites), displacements, ulceration, granulation, painful or scanty periods, irregular menstruation and all the pelvic ills of women. It positively cures rectal ulcers, piles, hemorrhoids, tumors, itching, blind or bleeding piles in either sex. It cures promptly, privately, and permanently without the repugnant methods in general use by physicians. You can escape embarrassing examinations, avoid humiliating exposures, let not the surgeon's knife out of baptism in your blood.

The treatment is so simple, mild and effectual that it will not interfere with your work nor occupation. Thousands and thousands of letters are being received from grateful persons from all parts of the world who have been cured by the use of this remedy. The first package is free, send for it—send to-day. I know that a fair trial of it will result in your becoming its enthusiastic advocate and friend. With it I will send literature of interest and value. Do not neglect this opportunity to get cured yourself and be in a position to advise ailing friends.

Consider well the above offer and act upon it at once. It is made in the sincere hope of aiding you and spreading the knowledge of a beneficent boon to sufferers. Earnestly, hopefully, faithfully, MRS. CORA B. MILLER, 46 Comstock Bldg., Kokomo, Ind.

Died at the home of his son-in-law, Bro. G. T. Goddard, in Tishomingo county, Miss., Oct. 7, 1902, Dr. CHARLES RYAN, in the eighty-third year of his age. The writer was acquainted with Dr. Ryan only a few months, but it is not always necessary to know men long to know them well; and from our first meeting, when the doctor told me of his hard mental struggle with "materialism," and how, in following his own heart-longings as it was wrought upon by the Holy Spirit, he was led to reject the teachings of materialism and accept the Word of God as revealed truth, and by the hand of faith lay hold of its promises for eternal life, and thus found "peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ," I knew him well as a "child of the King." He was for a long period of years a member of the M. E. Church, South, on Burnt Mills charge, where from early manhood he had been a practicing physician. In his professional intercourse with the people he availed himself of his opportunity to be helpful to them in every relation of life, and had thus endeared himself to a large portion of two counties. Dr. Ryan had been successful in life, and made a great deal of money, but, like Mr. Wesley, he said he only wanted enough of this world's goods to bury him when he died; therefore, he had divided his property amongst his children, and had broken up housekeeping and lived amongst his relatives and friends, where he was familiarly called "Old Pap" by old and young. In his last sickness, which lasted about six weeks, he was tenderly nursed and waited on by a host of loving relatives and friends, and though his sufferings were great, he bore them with the most perfect submission. The same robust faith and calm, sweet peace that filled his life sustained him in affliction, and while his heart was anxious for his relatives and loved ones—often calling their names in prayer—there was but one petition for himself, and that was, that he might die easy, and this prayer was granted. When he end came he was peacefully sleeping, his breathing stopped, and he ceased to live this earthly life, and began to live the life of heaven. The burial service was conducted by the writer at Friendship, his old home church, after which he was laid to rest with Masonic honors in the presence of a host of mourning relatives and friends. "Servant of God, well done!" R. W. EVANS.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

The following resolutions were adopted at a meeting of the Methodist Home Mission Society of Shelby, Miss.:

Whereas, Death has invaded our ranks and removed from its membership our beloved president, Mrs BLANCHE BROWNING; therefore, be it

Resolved, 1. That in the death of our dear sister we realize the loss to our society and church is irreparable, and a noble woman endowed with many Christian graces has been removed from the Master's earthly service.

2. That, as president of our society, she presided with queenly dignity, and we recognized the beautiful Christian character of our sweet-spirited sister, and feel that we, her earthly co-workers, should emulate her virtues. We realize that we, who loved and worked with her, are made better by being permitted to have had her with us.

3. That to her husband, Bro. W. T. Browning, our beloved pastor, and to the little ones, Russell and Blanche, we tender our hearts' greatest sympathy and love. May God, in his goodness and mercy, soften the pain in the aching heart of him who deeply mourns his loss, and take under his sweet, protecting care the lives of their two precious children!

Committee: Mesdames G. B. Shelby, W. Connell, J. B. Bennett.

SISTER COURTNEY H. WELCH (nee McDowel) was born in Wilkinson county, Miss., Nov. 24, 1877, and died near the home of her childhood, Sept. 14 1902. She was married to Bro. Willie Welch, March 29, 1900. At the tender age of eleven years she was converted and joined the Methodist Church. Ever afterwards she lived a consistent Christian life. She has gone from our midst, but we cherish her memory, and expect to meet her again in our Father's house on high." Touchingly beautiful was her constant devotion to her family and friends. She was a modest, humble, sweet-spirited Christian. In earlier life she felt it to be her duty to nurse the sick and comfort the dying. True to her convictions, she filled her mission well till God called her to a home where there are no sick and dying. Truly we can never estimate the value or measure the influence of such a life. She was always the friend of her preacher; also she loved the church, and gave to it liberally of her means and time. She leaves a mother, sister, two brothers and a husband to mourn their loss. May the Lord comfort them!

E. J. COKER, P. C.

Died Oct. 11, at 6:30 P. M., Mrs. NANCY FARISH, wife of Mr. Ned Farish, of Jackson, Miss. Mrs. Farish was one of our oldest and most highly respected citizens, being a resident of our city nearly all her life. Sister Farish was one of those dear old-time Methodists that we love so much to meet. All found in her a dutiful wife, good mother, true friend and good neighbor. Sister Farish was in her seventy-third year, and leaves, besides a devoted husband, several children to mourn their loss. Truly a mother in Israel is gone, and her many friends and loved ones are left on the shores of time to mourn their irreparable loss. But could her angel spirit speak to her loved ones, she would say: "Why grieve for me? I have only gone on before. Prepare to meet me in the sweet home of the soul, where our family ties that have been broken will be eternally welded with God's unchangeable love." Farewell, dear friend, farewell.

J. D. W.

Mrs. SALLIE E. BRINSON was born in Carroll county, Ga., Feb. 22, 1824. After she was married she and her husband moved to Jasper county, Miss. The Lord blessed them with six children. Three of them are still living. Her husband and three children preceded her. She joined the M. E. Church, South, when young, and lived a consistent life until her death, which took place Sept. 9, 1902. Sister Brinson's home was the preacher's home. Her seat at church was never vacant, unless she was providentially hindered. She was willing to die, and passed away without a pain. We laid her away in the Holder Church Cemetery to await the final judgment.

J. N. WARE, P. C.

Miss SUSAN BRINSON was born in Lawrence county, Ga., Sept. 28, 1854, and died in Jasper county, Miss., July 29, 1902. Miss Susan was a devoted Christian, and loved her pastor and church. On July 30 we laid her body in old Holder Church Cemetery to rest until God shall call for it.

Catarrh Can Not Be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they can not reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it, you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

The author employs a graceful and lucid style. . . . Dr. Featherstun has placed all of us under lasting obligations to himself.—Nashville American.

This charming volume has been made part of the League Course for 1902. . . . Dr. Featherstun has done his work admirably.—Sunday School Magazine.

Your book exhibits, it seems to me, not only careful and conscientious study and good taste, but that rarer and finer quality we call insight.—Bishop O. P. Fitzgerald.

We welcome this volume as a valuable addition to a class of literature which has been neglected to some extent by our Southern writers.—Raleigh Christian Advocate.

The poets are searched for the footprints of the Man of Calvary, and many of them are found. . . . The book makes most profitable reading.—Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

The volume suggests on every page, for which we can never be sufficiently thankful, that the great poets . . . were every one of them genuinely and predominantly religious.—Northwestern Christian Advocate.

"The Christ of Our Poets" is so full of thought, so full of noblest purpose, so vivid in word painting that I would it might be put into the hands of every young man and woman of our land.—Mrs. Callie H. Howe, W. C. T. U. lecturer.

All Christians and poet-lovers should feel indebted to Dr. Featherstun for this volume, in which he shows very beautifully how the poets have ever gone ahead of their time in their conception of a Christ to which the world has gradually been led in its ideals.—Review of Missions.

BISHOP HENDRIX'S BOOK:

12mo, Pp. 326. Cloth. Gilt top. Price $1.25.

"This is a timely and thought-provoking book, written with a holy purpose, and sure of a wide and beneficent mission. . . . The title is suggestive, and every page instructive. . . . One cannot escape the impression that some fervent paragraphs were penned when the devout author was sitting very close to the feet of his Lord."—Bishop Galloway.

"Upper Room Meditations"

Bishop Fitzgerald's New Book.

Of the many contributions from Bishop Fitzgerald to the literature of Christian experience, none surpass this. Shut in from the world, he has heard the voice of God in the inner depths of his soul, and the Father whom he loves has helped him to tell what he has felt. No man can be unmoved by these pages.—Wesleyan Christian Advocate.

"Upper Room Meditations" is sweet, edifying, Christian. It cannot fail to do good, and I hope will be read by many thousands. It is a book for a sick room or a house in which sorrow sits enthroned.—Dr. Geo. G. Smith, Macon, Ga.

Those who have read it pronounce it the best of all his devotional writings. He has saved the best until now.—Nashville Correspondent St. Louis Christian Advocate.

It will be very helpful to the souls of God's children, for it comes out of a heart full of love and faith.—Texas Christian Advocate.

The Oil Cure Permanent.

GISSLAND, LA., AUG. 30, 1901.

D. M. BYE Combination Oil Cure Co., DALLAS, TEX.

GENTLEMEN—I am in receipt of your letter of the 29th relative to the permanancy of the cure of a tumor on my face, nearly a year ago, by the use of your Combination Oil Cure. I am glad to inform you that the place healed up nicely, left no scar and has been sound and well ever since. I see no cause to apprehend or fear a return of the tumor, and will heartily recommend the treatment to any one similarly afflicted. Furthermore, I will take pleasure in answering all inquiries relative to the Oil Cure that may come to me. Yours truly,

J. W. LANGSFORD.

A Healing Mineral Spring at Your Door.

Every reader of this paper who is sick and in need of medicinal treatment should be interested in the offer which the Theo. Noel Company of 527, 529, 531 West North Avenue, Chicago, Ill., are making in this issue under the heading, "Personal to Subscribers." The offer will be found on page five, and should be read and accepted by every sick person. This Company is the proprietor of the famous Vitæ-Ore medicine, a natural healing and curing mineral, which was discovered many years ago by Theo. Noel, the president of the company, at that time a prospecting Geologist, while prospecting in the neighborhood of an extinct mineral spring. The Ore or rock from this locality, when properly oxidized, possesses marvelous curing and healing properties, and since its introduction has been instrumental in curing thousands upon thousands of people all over the country of the diseases named in the announcement, and has already wrought many wonderful cures among the readers of this paper. The Theo. Noel Company desires no one's money whom Vitæ-Ore can not positively benefit, and for this reason desires each person to test it before paying for it.

WANTED.

How Some of Our Readers Can Make Money.

Having read of the success of some of your readers selling Dish-washers, I have tried the work with wonderful success. I have not made less than $9 to any day for the last six months. The Mound City Dish washer gives good satisfaction and every family wants one. A lady can wash and dry the dishes without removing her gloves and can do the work in two minutes. I got my sample machine from the Mound City Dish-Washer Co., of St. Louis, Mo. I used it to take orders and sold 13 Dish washers the first day. The Mound City Dish-Washer Co. will start you. Write them for particulars. Ladies can do as well as men. JOHN F. M.

Glances at the World.

The depth of depravity, and the extent to which lewd men and women will go, can hardly be conceived by the good men and women who live in the rural sections of the country. Even dwellers in the cities are frequently shocked at the revelations that are made. Evidence of all this is shown by recent discoveries in the city of Philadelphia. The police of the city made a raid on houses of ill-repute, and obtained facts that will warrant action by the United States authorities. "It is charged that a syndicate, having for its purpose traffic in young girls, is operating on both sides of the Atlantic, and that agents are scattered broadcast to lure girls from their homes, especially in foreign countries, to lives of depravity in Philadelphia and other cities. The investigation was primarily inspired by the German consular service, and the raid resulted in the arrest of 113 girls and a number of men, some of the latter suspected of being agents in the sinister business. District Attorney Weaver has taken charge of the matter, and all the defendants were held to bail for a further hearing. The man suspected by the police of being the leader in the conspiracy has thus far evaded arrest, but the authorities express confidence in their ability to shortly apprehend him." No punishment can be too severe for men and women engaged in such a debauching business. And yet the Rev. Dr. Andrews, president of a great college, advocates the licensing and inspection of such business by the government. And great cities are demanding self-government—absolutely independent of State control. What would they come to if their morals were not guarded by the country people, who still have regard for God and his Word?

The Mormon question seems likely to arouse another excitement throughout the country. The recent elections took such a turn in Utah as makes it possible to elect a Mormon to the United States Senate, and one of the leading members of the faith, Apostle Smoot, is already presented as the probable representative of the State. But the evangelical party, commonly known in Utah as "the Gentiles," are on the alert, and will take cognizance of every movement. The Picayune, of New Orleans, in its issue of Nov. 19, gives the following dispatch from Salt Lake City: "The Ministerial Alliance of Salt Lake City is making preparations for a vigorous fight against the election of Apostle Reed Smoot to the United States Senate, and, failing in this, to carry the fight against him to the halls of Congress. A plan for organized effort on this line, it is said, already has been outlined, and will be taken up at the next meeting of the Alliance. The general idea is to make a fight similar to that waged against Brigham H. Roberts in the House. Not only will the matter be brought before the non-Mormons of the State, but if the fight is unsuccessful in the Legislature, then an attempt will be made to make Mr. Smoot's election a national issue, and a petition will be drafted to Congress asking that Dr. Smoot, as a high official of the Mormon Church, be refused a seat in the Senate."

There can be no doubt that a change of sentiment has come about in the ranks of the Democratic party, and that there is a more manifest disposition to get together than has been seen for a long while. The recent election has given ground for hope, and the party leaders are looking about for a suitable standard-bearer for 1904. The principles around which the people will be called to rally, as set forth by ex-President Cleveland, are thus summarized by the New Orleans Picayune:

First—A tariff for revenue. This will demand an extensive revision of the present tariff law.

Second—It must fight aggressive expansion of territory. This is interpreted to mean that the conquest and annexation of territory in Europe, Asia and Africa should on no account be permitted, but such acquisitions which may occur on our own hemisphere by the consent of the people inhabiting such regions should alone be countenanced.

Third—The tremendous growth of trusts and capitalistic combinations which strangle individual enterprise and destroy competition come next in importance. This should include every combination intended to control and monopolize any and all articles of daily consumption, the internal transportation of the country, and the labor supply.

Fourth—The stupendous extravagance of the government comes in for a well-deserved condemnation. A few years ago there was an outcry against what was called the "Billion Dollar Congress"—a Congress that had spent in two years a thousand millions of the people's money. Since then the amount has increased, and it is going on to a billion and a half for two years.

A short time since a certain "Professor," who plays hypnotic tricks, put his wife asleep under his hypnotic influence, and buried her. He announced that she would remain interred several days. Citizens sought to interfere, and carried the case to the court, but the judge decided that the show was a genuine one, and allowed the Professor to carry out his programme. His trick was discovered and exposed. "A reporter for a local newspaper and a policeman secretly watched the Professor, and caught him passing down food to the woman by means of an eight-inch air shaft. He created suspicion by buying milk and bread in a restaurant, and carrying it away. He was watched as he made his usual trip for the milk. After securing the food, he went to the hole in the ground, and a little later came back to the restaurant. The policeman procured an electric flash-light, and, slipping up quietly to the hole, put the light in place, and suddenly flashed it in the hole, while he and the reporter looked down to see the result. There was nothing visible but a mattress and pillow. While the men were looking the woman's face came sliding into view. They looked a moment and went away. A few minutes later another trip was made to the grave. The face was gone this time, and did not reappear. The Professor was in a rage, and cursed the police, reporters, and newspapers of the city. The 'resurrection' was not the success he anticipated."

If we do not misunderstand the action of the Federation of Labor, whose representatives have been in session in our city, that body has put itself on record as opposed to the enactment of any law for the suppression of what is known as "ticket scalping"—that is, the buying and selling of the unused parts of railroad tickets. In all large cities there are traffickers in such tickets. Of course, these tickets are purchased at small figures—much lower than the rate paid by original purchaser. As we see the matter, traffic in such tickets is unfair to the railroads, especially when excursion tickets are sold. To sell such tickets to a "scalper" is a species of fraud, for they are purchased from the railroad with the express understanding that they are not transferable. And one who buys from a "scalper" such a ticket, and uses it, is guilty of perjury. If called on by a conductor to be identified by signature, the holder would be compelled to confess to the fraud, or forge another individual's name. That many persons are liable to this sort of temptation, and actually fall victims, is bound to be true, else there would not be so many dealers in cut rate tickets. We are sorry the Federation of Labor has given countenance, even by implication, to a business that can not be morally right, either upon the part of the seller or the buyer.

Sabbath Observance.

BY REV. J. E. DENSON.

Never in the history of our great nation was the necessity of emphasizing the divine law of Sabbath observance more imperative than now; and welcome alike to preacher and people should be the day which diverts the mind and heart from the dominant spirit of secular and commercialism which has well-nigh destroyed the sanctity of our day of rest. The Sabbath was instituted to be man's delight, not his burden; to be his rest in weariness and irritation of spirit. Are we getting out of it all the blessings that God has lodged herein for us and for our fellow-man?

On what ground, then, we may ask, is one day in seven to be set apart as holy? The assurance is obvious. It is a natural law of universal application that God is to be worshiped, and since man is created in order to exist in society here and for eternity, the worship of God ought to be social. The social worship of God, however, can not be maintained until stated times be appointed for that purpose. Hence it is clear from natural reason that some definite period of time ought to be set apart for the service of God; but from natural reason it does not appear what precise portion ought to be. Here it is that divine revelation comes to our relief. Scripture informs us that Jehovah finished the work of creation in six days, and that the seventh he rested from all the work which he had made, and blessed the seventh day and sanctified it. That is, he set it apart, or separated it from all other days. Thus the consecration of one day in seven dates from the creation, and not from the giving of the Law on Mount Sinai to the Israelites. The manna was given from heaven before the Law from Mount Sinai, and when the manna was given the seventh day was holy; therefore, God Almighty brought the sanctity of the Sabbath from the very clouds of heaven from which the manna came. Not only so, but in the Decalogue the obligation of consecrating the seventh day is grounded upon the creation itself. Again, the promulgation of the Decalogue was not the enactment of a new code, but the republication of the original law given to man at the beginning. If, then, the other commandments of the Decalogue have a moral significance and world-wide application—which, beyond the possibility of a peradventure, they have—can we question that the Fourth Commandment, which, by the hand of God himself, was placed among them, has no such moral significance of universal and perpetual application? Emphatically, no. God Almighty himself declares the unity and indissolubility of this matchless code of ethics. He calls it, not the Nine Commandments, but Ten Commandments. And our Lord says, "If thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments;" and St. James teaches that if a man break one commandment, he is guilty of them all.

It is eminently true that we do not comprehend the moral fitness of consecrating the seventh portion of our time to rest and social uses, but it does not, therefore, follow that there is not some moral fitness in so doing. There are many mysteries in the divine harmony of things which our keenest intellect may not discover, but which may be fully revealed hereafter, when we see face to face and listen to the sublime music of heaven.

Another question closely interwoven with this is, Upon what authority is the first day of the week, instead of the seventh, to be hallowed by us? Ought we not to keep Saturday only, and not Sunday? Doubtless, we should be obliged to do so if, like the Jews, we accepted only the Old Testament as the last word of divine authority, and repudiated the teachings of Christ and his apostles. But we have the gospel as well as the Law, and Christ, who preached the gospel, came to explain and to fulfill, or fill out the Law. His works and his miracles were the credentials to which he appealed, in proof of his equality to and oneness with God, who fashioned the world with his hands, and delivered the Law on Sinai. He proved himself to be what he came to be—the Lord of the Sabbath. But he came to infuse into it new life and to invest it with new dignity. He came to confirm the consecration of one day to God, and to change the position of the day dedicated to God. He came to teach that we still owe the seventh part of our time to God, and that this debt is to be paid, not at the end of the week, but at the beginning, and so the first-fruits of every week of our lives is to be dedicated to God. There is something significant in the fact that Jesus, having rested the seventh day in the grave, raised himself from the tomb very early in the morning on the first day of the week. Thus we may say that the seventh-day Sabbath died and was buried with Christ, and that it rose with him from the tomb, and emerged with fresh beauty on the first day of the week, and received a new name, and was baptized into Christ, and became the Lord's day.

Further, when Christ ascended into heaven, he did not forget the first day of the week—his own day. On the first day of the week he gave his best gift to the church; on that day he sent the Holy Ghost to his waiting disciples in the upper room at Jerusalem. Here, then, we see the Trinity united together in consecrating the first day of the week. The first day is holy to God the Father, who began to create the world on that day; it is holy to God the Son, who rose from the dead on that day; and it is holy to God the Holy Ghost, the Comforter, who came down from heaven on that day. Thus for nineteen centuries this day has been singing a weekly anthem of praise to Father, Son, and Holy Ghost.

One other question concerning Sabbath observance remains to be answered, and, though last in point of statement, is of equal, if not more vital importance. In what manner is the Lord's day to be observed by us? The fundamental idea is, that it is a day of rest. It is a great mistake which some commit in imagining that by treating the Sabbath as a day of rest from worldly pleasure, we imitate the Jews. Let anyone examine the writings of the ancient Christian fathers, and he will discover that they often censure the Jews because they would not work on the Sabbath; yet they did not scruple to spend it in worldly pleasure. The fact is, that the real Judaizers are those who observe the Sabbath by worldly amusements, and make it a day of diversion, revelry, and mirth.

The Christian Sabbath, however, is something more than a day of rest; it is the Lord's day—not our day, not man's day, not the Tempter's day, but the Lord's day, and profaned and desecrated whenever it is spent in secular business or worldly pleasure. But more than this, it is the day of resurrection. It is the day of Christ's resurrection, and the day of spiritual resurrection of every true member of Christ. Every successive Sabbath should find us more disengaged from earth and its attractions, and nearer to heaven.

Our Sundays should be the days on which we open our hearts to the symphonies of the blessed; the days on which we should plume our feathers for the heavenly flight.

North Mississippi Conference Notes.

Many thanks to the editor for his timely editorials this week as well as during the past. He is writing on matters worthy of consideration by both preachers and people.

Brother McDonald's open letter in the ADVOCATE this week, "To My Successor," is very suggestive. It is to be hoped that it will provoke others to like good works. Rev. T. C. Wier might, with all propriety, write similarly of the much-improved parsonage-house and grounds in Lexington—only that he has one more year tenure there. If all preachers and their families would keep and improve the parsonages as these have done (much of it at their own expense), the people would have less occasion to express regrets for having established homes for the preachers.

Rev. W. S. Shipman and family are happy in their occupancy of the elegant and commodious parsonage recently built at Minter City at a cost of $1,500. They respectfully ask to be permitted to enjoy this restful home for the next three years.

Rev. J. E. Thomas and family are also in their new parsonage in Greenwood. Bro. Thomas has been sick with fever several weeks, but we are glad to report him improving, with prospect of being able to attend Conference.

We exceedingly regret to hear of the serious illness of Sister Countiss, wife of Rev. J. R. Countiss, of Gronada. Their many friends are daily praying and hoping for her speedy restoration to health.

Among the many books we will have on hand at Tupelo and Natchez during the Conference sessions we note specially the following new ones: "Personal Salvation," by Dr. Tillett; "The Way of the Preacher," by Dr. Kern; "Upper-Room Meditations," by Bishop Fitzgerald; "The Church of the Fathers," by Dr. Kerlin; "Bible Teachers' Study Circle," first course; Epworth League Reading Course, 1902-03; Book of Discipline, 1902; "Quarterly Conference Record," revised to conform to new edition of the Discipline. Every pastoral charge will have to have this with the beginning of the new quadrennium. It will serve for four years. Orders for it are coming in rapidly.

Let preachers and others note these and other books wanted, and come prepared to take them home, and thus save expense of ordering and transportation.

Let us all pray and strive to make our approaching Conference sessions the best we have ever had. So mote it be.

Sharon Church.

As a matter of news, we publish a clipping from the Valley Record in reference to Sharon Church, located near Gloster, Miss. The writer, "X. Y.," we take to be a resident of Gloster. The Rev. John Paul is a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, commonly known among us as "the Northern Methodist Church." Our people can draw the proper inference.

On last Sunday the people of Sharon had with them Rev. John Paul, of Auburn, who preached two excellent sermons. In the afternoon he organized the M. E. Church with an enrollment of fifty-two members. This people have been shoved out and ostracised for many long, weary years, but no longer will they be held in check by ecclesiastical tyrants.

Sharon is now the M. E. Church organization of Gloster. Her doors are open to all. Come and worship with us. Its doors are open for the poor and rich, ignorant and educated, just alike. Don't stay away from Sunday-school and church because you are poor. This is your home.

Again, this church stands for free and full salvation. The Methodist Episcopal body is the greatest Protestant organization in the world. The sun never ceases to shine upon its people.

Rev. D. H. Cassels will preach there next Sunday at 11 A. M. and 7 P. M. The Rev. John Paul will be with us again on the third Sunday in December. Come one; come all.

The Georgians are pressing the Legislature to pass the bill exempting denominational schools from taxation. The Wesleyan Christian Advocate rings out clear on the question. As the editor presents the matter, we do not see how the Legislature can hesitate. Under the Constitution of the State the colleges and schools for the whites are taxable, while the schools for negroes, being mainly supported by annual contributions from philanthropists beyond the State, are not taxable. And these colored schools are richer than the schools for the whites.

Bishop Hendrix, says the Wesleyan Christian Advocate, "will deliver the Quillian lectures at Emory College some time next Spring." The subject has not yet been announced.

A TRIP TO WASHINGTON.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: It has been my good fortune recently to go to Washington, D. C., with Miss Duncan, of Centenary College, Cleveland, Tenn., in charge of the party.

My life has been a circumscribed one. I have felt that duty to home and loved ones demanded my presence. When Miss Duncan's invitation to join her party to Washington came, it seemed impossible for me to go, but I finally consented, and joined the party at Cleveland.

Miss Duncan perfected her arrangements for the entire trip before leaving Cleveland, and to all appearances she enjoys everything that comes along as much as anyone in the party, and she has the power of imparting her enthusiasm to others.

After dinner Monday evening, Oct. 27, we quietly walked down to the car side-tracked for us, and made ourselves comfortable for the night, and were taken up by the regular train some hours later. Our progress was impeded by a disabled freight, and our train had to push it a number of miles into Knoxville. We thought that an advantage, however, because, when daylight came, we were on the banks of the French Broad river, and for sixty-five miles we were in sight of that beautiful stream. We thought the beauty of that scenery unsurpassed, but on we sped towards our grand old Capitol, and ere long we were in "the Land of the Sky." The grandeur of the sight I can not describe, and I will not forget.

We reached Washington about 1 A. M., Wednesday, and after a good nap were ready for the day's programme. Our first outing in Washington was a car-ride to the Potomac; then a boat ride to Mt. Vernon. Our trip to Mt. Vernon was an hour or so long; but who can tell the memories and feelings that were stirred as the magnificence of the views were unfolded to us? We spent an hour at the home of Washington, and with the profoundest reverence we looked upon those scenes once so familiar to him. Back to the boat on which we stayed just long enough to enjoy a lunch, and we were at Alexandria—one of the quaintest towns, I suspect, on our continent. There we saw the church in which Washington, R. E. Lee, and Fitzhugh Lee all worshiped. The church is in the midst of a cemetery, and we learned that the last interment was in 1809.

A trolley-ride brought us to Arlington, the old home of R. E. Lee, which is now a national cemetery. There we found evidences of Miss Duncan's thoughtfulness, as hacks were awaiting us, and the ride through and around Arlington, and on to the home of Francis S. Key, was a memorable one. Another trolley-ride from this point brought us to our hotel again as darkness overtook us. After dinner we went to the library of Congress, and spent two and a half hours. Many times we wondered if another day could be so full as this first day had been.

Thursday morning found us at the Capitol very early, and on our way there we passed through the Botanical Gardens. Our Capitol is one of which every American is justly proud. The spacious grounds around these buildings impresses one with the broadness of our American character.

From the Capitol to the Navy Yard, and then to the Treasury; then the War and Navy Departments; then to the Corcoran Art Gallery. After luncheon that day we saw Ford's Theater, the building in which Lincoln was assassinated, and also the one in which he died. From there we went to one of the largest dry goods houses in Washington—Latham & Lothrop—to compare it with others of our Southern cities. We returned to our hotel, and for an hour searched near-by shops for souvenirs.

Next morning—our third and last day—we went first to the postoffice. From there to the Washington Monument, the Printing and Engraving Building, the Smithsonian Institute, the National Museum; then back to luncheon, and too tired, we thought, to enjoy anything; but here Miss Duncan's readiness for all emergencies was again exemplified. She had engaged locomobiles, and for two hours we rode around the circles where many of the wealthiest people live, and we saw the homes of many of the foreign legations. We packed our grips, and after dinner we went to the Halls of the Ancients. The last seemed the most interesting. Mr. Smith, the originator of the Halls, was present, and with his explanations made it doubly so.

On our return we stopped at Biltmore. Miss Duncan had carriages awaiting us, that took us through Mr. Vanderbilt's domains. We saw his beautiful castle, his dairy, his fine quarters for his stock, his hogs, his chickens, and his laborers. Before night-fall we saw Asheville thoroughly. After dinner we saw the stores before going to our car, which had been taken on to Asheville, and left for us. One more night's travel put us into Cleveland.

On this trip, where a guide was needed, Miss Duncan engaged the very best that was to be had for us, and her explanations were far more satisfactory than any guides.

The Southern railroad officials, from Chattanooga to Washington, were exceedingly kind, and did, so cheerfully, everything in their power to make the trip comfortable and profitable. The trip to me will be a joy forever.

Most cordially,

MRS. J. H. SHERARD.

LETTER FROM REV. R. S. TRIPPETT.

The following is part of an interesting letter from Rev. R. S. Trippett to Rev. W. G. Evans, who has kindly sent it to us for publication in the ADVOCATE:

DEAR BROTHER: .....I have been in such feeble health since I received your letter, that I have not been able to comply with your request. I am still suffering very much from sciatica and weakness of the heart, so that I am able to get about but little, and that in good weather. My bodily weakness is extreme. I often wonder that the earthen vessel, though full of the treasures of light and love, does not break down. My mind is vigorous, increasingly vigorous, and my renovated spirit seems almost ready "to clap the glad wings and tower away, to mingle with the blaze of day." O for more of the spirit of power, of love, and of a healthful mind!

"Of health that pain and death defies,
Most vigorous when the body dies"

For some time I have been confined to my room, not able to leave my bed; but the Lord has been with me. He has made my bed in sickness, and gives me a constant heaven within.

I am delighted with the "Conference Annual." I thank you for the painstaking care that you have, and are taking, in keeping in remembrance the sayings and doings and lives of the "old itinerants" of the Louisiana Conference, and, like another "Old Immortality," will see that their noble deeds for their Lord and Master are not forgotten.

I have filled up the "blank" that you sent me; it may not be all that you require.

I may say that I was converted in my thirteenth year; commenced exhorting and had a class of boys the same year: was licensed to preach among the Primitive Methodists at fourteen years of age; was received by letter in 1843 by Rev. C. W. Whitall, pastor of the Seaman's Bethel, and licensed by Rev. Dr. Wm. Winans, presiding elder of the New Orleans district, Mississippi Annual Conference, of the M. E. Church. This was before the separation of the church. I was employed by Dr. Winans, and had charge of the church at Algiers and Gretna in 1843, '4, and '5, and was received on trial in the Mississippi Conference, which was held in Poydras Street Church, New Orleans, in December, 1845; was appointed to the First Municipality, and formed a church on Marais street, between Bienville and Conti street, New Orleans; there we built Soule Chapel.

The first Louisiana Conference was held in Opelousas in January, 1847. Bishop Soule presided. I was present; so was Bro. R. J. Harp. I do not know of any other brother who was present now living. From 1847 to 1888 I attended every session of the Louisiana Conference, and received appointments. I was transferred to the Mississippi Conference for one year, to fill the Port Gibson station for a brother who had been appointed there, but failed to go. I returned to the Louisiana Conference in January, 1873, and continued until December, 1888, an active member, at which Conference I asked and received a superannuated relation, which relation I hold at present. I spent forty-seven years in the work, and traveled in nearly every part of the State, and was blest with good appointments. (See the Minutes for proof.)

In those early times we sometimes had long and expensive moves from one circuit or station to another. We were changed every two years until 1866; then the term was extended to four years.

I send you two photos; they were taken a few days ago. I have entered on my eighty-first year, and the sixty-first of my ministry. And that gospel which I have preached to others cheers and comforts me in my old age, and the prospect for the future brightens every day. I love the M. E. Church, South; her Bishops, ministers, and members, and especially the brethren and members of the Louisiana Conference. God bless them all.

Yours fraternally,

R. S. TRIPPETT.

A Dastardly Proceeding.

BY REV. C. A. POWELL.

MR. EDITOR: It really seems that nothing can excel the blatant conceit, the bombastic utterances and the fanatical pretensions of some of the so-called advanced thinkers in their misguided, not to say satanical, thrusts at the genuineness and divine authenticity of the Holy Scriptures.

Not many days ago a gentleman called my attention to a brief notice in one of our secular dailies of a would-be Solomon belonging to the brotherhood of hope-destroyers, commonly known as "Higher Critics," who had summarily discarded the teachings set forth in the first chapter of the book of Genesis. He proceeded to maintain his unwarranted position with scholarly (?) arrogance, asserting what no Bible student pretends to hold, that the chronology of the Scriptures settles the question of authenticity. To be charitable, I suppose we must accord to these objectors the element of sincerity, which may, or may not, be a virtue.

The fanatic, whether of the school of science or religion, as a rule, believes what he asserts to be true, and the majority of them believe it because they assert it. The fact is, there is but little to be said in his favor. The man who would destroy the confidence reposed in the Scriptures, and thereby rob the world of its only hope, offering nothing as a substitute, is more dangerous to the weal of society than all the burglars, highwaymen and pickpockets combined. They make their assertions, and rush to conclusions which are revolutionary at the most vital points in human faith, and then lift their hands in holy horror, commiserating the ignorance (?) which fails to see, and the cowardice which refuses to follow them, in their wild and reckless hallucinations. These men do not stop long enough to consider that an attack on the divinity of the Scriptures, in the process of subtraction, puts an effectual check upon every heaven-sent agency to restrain from error, and lifts the flood-gates of the kingdom of darkness, shutting out every vestige of justice, fairness, truth and mercy from the heart forever. There is no outrage on the laws of mind which they will not commit, and no sophistry which they will not stoop to employ in defense of their unworthy cause.

If we may discard and repudiate the first chapter of Genesis, there is no sane reason why we should accept the remaining part of the book; therefore, let us be consistent, and apply the same reasoning to the whole Bible, and rid ourselves of the restraints and constraints which it imposes. This wholesale tampering with the Word of God, based upon the testimony of "globe-trotters," lately exhumed manuscripts, and science, falsely so called, is growing in popularity, and its virus is spreading to an alarming extent.

This new-fangled presentation of that old stereotyped theory of the annihilation of the finally incorrigible is but a sample of the liberty which is now being used in the interpretation of Scripture. If there is a climacteric expression of false reasoning which eclipses all others, it is enveloped in the theory of the annihilation of a human being, whatever his character may be. It robs Jesus Christ, our ascended Lord, of his highest glory as the Redeemer of mankind.

To my mind, this proposition is a transparency, to-wit: The redeeming work of Jesus Christ so projects itself into the life and being of every man that death, in the sense of a surcease of life, is an utter impossibility. Life, perpetual life, is one of the inalienable benefits of the atonement. One quotation from the teachings of our Lord settles forever the extent of the atonement with reference to its application to individuals, universally and unconditionally: "Marvel not at this. All that are in their graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth: they that have done good unto the resurrection of life, and they that have done evil unto the resurrection of damnation."

What a stupendous folly to bring the resurrection power to bear upon the incorrigibly wicked, if they are to be at once blotted out of existence by the process of annihilation! This is a puny and an unworthy way to escape future retribution.

The advocates of this theory will have to resort to some other method, if they propose either to magnify the redeeming work of Christ, or rule hell out of existence.

Loyalty to Truth.

BY REV. M. M. BLACK.

It is apparent to every lover of righteousness, as he considers the numerous evidences of fraud and falsehood in business, in society and in politics, that one of the greatest needs of the hour is the exhibition by professing Christians of unswerving loyalty to truth. Deceit and trickery are far too common in this land of boasted enlightenment and progress, devotion to truth being looked upon by many as impracticable, inexpedient, and unnecessary. Accordingly, the business man who succeeds, although it may be by dishonest methods, by lying advertisements, and other subterfuges, is usually characterized as "clever" and "progressive," and his example is not seldom considered worthy of imitation. Misrepresentation, if it enables one to get on in the world, is by the majority of people looked upon as both legitimate and commendable. The man who insists that commercial affairs shall be conducted along the line of strict truth and honesty is almost certain to be regarded as a fanatic or a silly dreamer. Alas! that such should be the case!

Prevarication and wrongful exaggeration in mercantile transactions and in political matters are not only frequently resorted to, but are condoned by the public. How often the political trickster is exalted to honor and office, while the incorruptible statesman and patriot lives unhonored and unrewarded!

The tendency in many directions is to subordinate truth to expediency, sincerity to success, and to make the outside appear fair and beautiful, although it may cover much that is imperfect and impure.

What a vast amount of sham and pretense there is in modern fashionable society! How hollow and insincere oftimes are its friendships! What an encourager it is of deceit, flattery, and extravagance! How frequently it exalts polish above purity, etiquette above equity, glitter above greatness of soul! The man who has the manners and dress of a Chesterfield is usually admitted without hesitation to all the fashionable functions of the "Four Hundred," although he may be notoriously dissolute in character.

The secular newspapers so frequently print gross exaggerations and fabrications as news, especially during the progress of political campaigns, that the truth-seeker is obliged to take what appears therein, cum grano salis. Were it not for misrepresentation in advertising, some second or third-rate colleges that now flourish vigorously would command a much less extensive patronage.

How seldom do people go to the trouble to ascertain the exact truth when they hear an evil report of some one in their community! The average man or woman seems to be ever ready to circulate a slander or a mischievous bit of gossip. Fortunate, indeed, is the church or the community that is free from prevaricating tattlers and scandal-mongers.

"Ah! well the poet said, in sooth,
That whispering tongues can poison truth"

Sad to tell, not a few children form the habit of prevarication largely through the influence of their parents, who, instead of correcting them when there is evidence of such a tendency, simply laugh at what they term John's or Sallie's "cuteness." Mothers who teach their children to send unwelcome visitors away by falsely reporting that they are sick or not at home, are sowing the wind, and some day will reap the whirlwind. How can boys and girls grow up with any real regard for truth when their parents often break their promises to them and to others, and indicate by their conduct, if not in word, that deception is permissible whenever it will avoid inconvenience or loss?

As the distinguished writer, O. S. Marden, forcefully says: "Ten lies are acted for every one spoken. To say nice things merely to avoid giving offense; to keep silent rather than to speak the truth; to equivocate, to dodge, to say what is expedient rather than what is truthful; to shirk the truth; to face both ways; to exaggerate; to seem to concur with another's opinion when you do not; to deceive by a glance of the eye, a nod of the head, a smile, a gesture—all these are but various manifestations of hollowness and falsehood."

The temptation to compromise the truth, to soften it so that it will please rather than give offense, is one of the strongest and subtlest to which a minister of the gospel is subjected. The plain, unvarnished truth is not always palatable, and so the man of God must ever guard against seeking to win the favor of men rather than the favor of God. The minister who takes occasion from time to time to depict the sins of the day in their true colors, unless he does so in an exceedingly delicate and prudent manner, is almost certain to be characterized as vulgar and fanatical. "Men love darkness rather than light because their deeds are evil." There is a tendency in some quarters to compliment the rich and the great instead of holding up before them the greatness of their responsibilities and the grandeur of their opportunities. No minister, however, ought to utter unpleasant truths, as if he delighted in producing unpleasant feelings. Unless the truth is preached in love, it will fail to have the proper effect.

Without uncompromising loyalty to truth there can be no such thing as real manhood or genuine Christian character. Well has it been said that "to love truth for truth's sake is the principal part of human perfection in this world, and the seed-plot of all other virtues." "Every one that is of the truth," says Christ, "heareth my voice."

W. F. M. S.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct 29, 1902.
Mrs. Clara B Drake—

DEAR SISTER: Mrs. Trueheart, secretary of our Board, has written to your Conference secretary, and I feel impelled to write you of our great need of money just now. Our missionaries in Mexico, Cuba and Indian Mission have not been paid their October drafts. Our collections for June and September quarters, one-half of our fiscal year, were $34,450—less than the expenses for October quarter, which were $35,000. Will you please write to your Conference treasurers before the November meeting, and ask them, not for an additional collection, but for back dues, and at least one-half of their Conference pledge? Urge them to send the money to you as soon as possible, and you in turn send to me. Only in this way can we hope to relieve our missionaries.

Yours faithfully,

MRS. H. N. MCTYEIRE,
Treas. Woman's Bd. of For. Miss.

For the first time in its history—a record of twenty-four years of wonderful achievement—our Board is confronted with debt, and this because during the last two quarters the auxiliaries of our various Conference societies have failed to send in their full quota of dues and Conference pledges. We are urged to send on at once these uncollected dues and pledges. This will tide over the crisis and put us where we can again move forward. We must not, we will not, let our missionaries suffer through our neglect. Let the treasurers of our Mississippi Conference auxiliaries be among the very first to heed this appeal from our General Treasurer.

Yours for immediate action.

CLARA B. DRAKE,
Treas. Miss. Conf. W. F. M. S.

The above letter has been sent by Mrs. McTycire to every Conference Treasurer in Southern Methodism, and this, with the added appeal by Mrs. Drake, has been sent to every Auxiliary Treasurer in the Mississippi Conference. We feel sure that all that is needed is that our women shall know the emergency that is upon us, and that response to the suggestions and appeals will be prompt and generous. Let the Mississippi Conference Woman's Foreign Missionary Society come up to the help of the Lord, and nobly do its full part in tiding over the crisis.

Our Week of Prayer, as usual, includes Thanksgiving Day, and is near at hand. Let all auxiliaries make full preparation for observing it, and let every effort be made to carry out in detail the attractive and instructive programme which has been prepared. May it be a time of great benefit to our workers at home as they study the work, pray for its needs, and give for its support, and may the influences of our services in the home-land be felt by our work and workers in the uttermost parts of the earth!

BESSIE W. LIPSCOMB,
Pres. W. F. M. S., Miss. Conf.

A Noble Deed.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Our ladies at Magnolia, under the auspices of the Woman's Home Mission Society, have just packed a box for the Orphans' Home at Water Valley, valued at over $100. We expect to have it on hand for Thanksgiving.

Yours, B. F. LEWIS.

Nov. 20, 1902.

Brooklyn Charge, Mississippi Conference.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Seven protracted meetings, with Revs. W. M. Sullivan, C. C. Griffin, and T. J. Norsworthy to do the preaching; forty accessions. The church revived, and all assessments paid in full, are some of the good things to be reported to the Annual Conference from this charge. To God be all the glory. Yours faithfully,

G. R. ELLIS.

A note from Vanderbilt University says: "The Young Men's Christian Association of the different departments of Vanderbilt University have recently organized a Y. M. C. A. Board, to be composed of at least one representative from each department. The purpose of the Board is to study the religious interests of every department, and to help in the development of the associations, especially in the weakest points. By mutual helpfulness and advice the members of this Board bring the different associations closer together, and thus invigorate the efforts of the whole movement."

Aching Joints

In the fingers, toes, arms, and other parts of the body, are joints that are inflamed and swollen by rheumatism—that acid condition of the blood which affects the muscles also.

Sufferers dread to move, especially after sitting or lying long, and their condition is commonly worse in wet weather.

"It has been a long time since we have been without Hood's Sarsaparilla. My father thinks he could not do without it. He has been troubled with rheumatism since he was a boy, and Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine he can take that will enable him to take his place in the field." Miss ADA DOTY, Sidney, Iowa.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

Conducted by N. A. MOTT, Yazoo City, Miss.

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

Not among the least important of the duties of our coming Annual Conferences will be the appointment of their Sunday-School Boards for the next four years. Let them be selected with care. We pray that the right men may be appointed—men who will push the Sunday-school interests of our beloved church.

A live church will have a live Sunday-school, and, per contra, a live Sunday-school will make a live church. But the live Sunday-school has the advantage in this: that it not only gives life to the church now, but ensures life for the future. The most enduring work of a pastor in a church is the work he does among the children.

To-morrow will be Thanksgiving Day. Let it be remembered that one of the best methods of giving thanks is to give to God's poor. Therefore, while we keep ourselves "unspotted from the world," let us also remember "the widow and the orphan in their affliction." Nothing so appeals to children like giving to the orphans, and we trust that our Sunday-schools will observe Thanksgiving Day, and also Christmas, by contributing to their happiness and welfare.

We recently read about a Methodist Sunday-school in a sister State that was eighty-one years old, and the oldest in continued existence in that State. It would add to the interest in the work, and be a good thing, if the workers in Louisiana and Mississippi would look up the historical data of the schools within their borders. How many schools have we three-quarters of a century old? What school has the honor of having the longest continued existence? Let us hear from our workers on this subject.

There are two ways of observing our Savior's birthday in the Sunday-school. One is the time-honored custom of giving every scholar a little gift—a box of candy, or a toy, or an orange or apple. The other is to let every scholar bring a gift which shall go to make Christmas brighter in a home less fortunate.

Strange as it may seem, this second way, which only accepts as true our Lord's statement that it is "more blessed to give than to receive," is by no means universal among Sunday-schools. It is probably true that in most Sunday-schools there is no thought or opportunity of the scholars' giving at Christmas time. Yet the Sunday-schools that have tried the giving plan—and some have tested it for a generation—would no more think of going back to the old self-centered method than they would think of replacing gas or electricity with the tallow dip.—Sunday-school Times.

Good Roads.

An exchange gives the following valuable points on good roads:

Good roads have a money value to the farmer as well as a political and social value.

The difference between good and bad roads is often equivalent to the difference between profit and loss.

Charles Sumner once said: "The road and schoolmasters are the two most important agents in advancing civilization."

Good roads raise the value of farm land and farm products, and tend to beautify the country through which they pass.

Bad roads constitute the greatest drawbacks to rural life, and for the lack of roads the farmers suffer more than any other class.

Good roads, like good streets, make habitation along them most desirable; they economize time and fare in transportation of products, reduce wear and tear on horses, harness and vehicles, and enhance the market value of real estate.

Life on a farm often becomes isolated and barren of social enjoyments and pleasures, and country people in some communities suffer such great disadvantage, that ambition is checked, energy weakened and industry paralyzed.—Exchange.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

LUMBERTON, MISS.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Some time last Spring I reported through the ADVOCATE that we had an experimental station at Lumberton. The church was experimenting with station life, the pastor was an experiment as a station preacher, and the presiding elder was an untried "beloved." I am glad to report that the station has prospered in spite of its abuses.

Our fourth Quarterly Conference was held Sept. 15, when all assessments were reported in full. While waiting during the remaining three months for the coming of Conference, we concluded to have a revival. On invitation, Bro. J. B. Culpepper and sons, Marvin and Burke, brought their large tent, and gave us a twelve-days' meeting. Some of the results of this meeting were: About 200 conversions and reclamations, 186 accessions to the churches (128 of these to the Methodist Church), about 50 family altars, and everybody glad that we had the meeting, and wanting these holy men to come back again next year.

Comparing this with last year's report, we will more than double our contributions, nearly double our membership, and have planned to increase the size of our church. Some say we must build a new parsonage next year. The Lord is with us, whereof we are glad.

GEO. H. THOMPSON.

POPLARVILLE AND PURVIS.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Permit me to say a few words concerning the year's work on the Poplarville and Purvis charge. In many respects it has been one of the most delightful years of my ministry. We have been most comfortably housed, and our Board of Stewards—as fine men as I ever knew—have seen that the pastor's salary was paid quarterly, thus releasing him of all anxiety along that line. The assessments are up in full, with a respectable surplus.

Within the past two weeks the church at Poplarville has raised $700 for the liquidating of a debt on the church. Not a cent of indebtedness now remains. The total amount raised by the two churches this year is $2,150—a fine showing indeed. Yesterday our Sunday-school at this place subscribed $50 to the "Yuan Fund," for the establishing of a chair of English in Soochow University.

At both Poplarville and Purvis we have a W. F. M. Society, and also Sunday-school Missionary Societies.

At Poplarville a flourishing Epworth League, and a society known as the Little Workers, which have raised $50 this year. Fifty-four have been added to the church, and many bright conversions.

At Purvis I was ably assisted in a fine revival meeting by Bro. D. Scarborough, of West End Church, Meridian, Miss.

At Poplarville Bro. J. W. Chambers charmed our people for ten days by his deeply spiritual sermons. As one result of the meeting here, every department of church work seems to have taken on new life. There is not a more delightful work in the Conference, perhaps, than this.

Bro. Morse, our efficient presiding elder, is in high favor with our people, and he seems to be the "right man in the right place"—a phrase which is none the less true because not altogether novel.

J. S. PARKER.

A GOOD MAN COMPLIMENTED.

Feeling that true merit demands recognition, we, the Board of Stewards of the Columbia Church, Seashoro district, Mississippi Conference, in fourth Quarterly Conference assembled, hereby extend in behalf of the church to our beloved pastor, Rev. W. M. Williams, our heartfelt thanks and appreciation for his unremitting labors in behalf of the church for the past three years. We feel that under his ministry the church has materially prospered, and that God has wonderfully blessed us. Through his influence and zeal all the institutions of the church are in the best of working condition, and are putting forth every effort toward making the service of the Lord paramount in the community. He found this charge a mere circuit, with a small membership, and paying a meagre amount for the Lord's cause. From this condition it has developed into a full station, and meeting obligations above the average. His life evidences a fervor in the Lord's service, and no one can say that he is not always on the right side of every moral question.

We also resolve that it is the sense and desire of this Conference that Bro. Williams be returned to us for his final year's service at this place.

THE BOARD OF STEWARDS,
Columbia Church.

Columbia, Miss., Nov. 17, 1902.

TRENTON CIRCUIT.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: I am closing up my fourth year on the Trenton circuit, Mississippi Conference. This has been the best year of the four. I will be able to get up all my collections this year, for the first time on this circuit. We have had fifty accessions during the year. Bro. R. A. Breland has helped me in four of our protracted meetings, and at these, where he has assisted, have been very good meetings. He is the best help in a meeting I have ever had. He keeps the pastor in the front.

My last meeting closed here at Trenton on the night of the eighth. We had a large number of reclamations, over thirty conversions, and a few professed sanctification; thirty-three were received into the church—one by certificate, the others by vows and baptism. Truly, it was a great meeting.

At Gasque Chapel, from Sept. 27 to Oct. 5, we had the best meeting I ever witnessed. Bro. Breland preached with great power. Over thirty-five entered into the experience of perfect love. In that community the young men are leading the prayer meetings, and the revival continues. To God we give all the glory. Yours fraternally,

D. C. LANGFORD.

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check, ten cents extra will be charged.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1902.

The saloons keep open night and day. They are always well lighted. In Summer weather electric fans cool the air. In Winter comfortable seats and fires are furnished. Contrasting all this with the churches, which are closed every day of the week except Sunday, leads Dr. Winton, of the Advocate (Nashville), to say, "The saloons put us to shame in the matter of hospitality." But the saloons do not keep open house, and furnish the public with comforts and conveniences for nothing. The desire for gain is at the bottom of their hospitality. If the church kept open house for the same reason, as do the saloons, it would draw upon it the contempt of the public. Not many poor people, we imagine, are furnished food and drink at the saloon-bar free of charge. If reports are true, saloon hospitality is costly.

The lynching of criminals is a sin peculiar to no part of our country. The sections, North and South, must first pull the beam out of their own eyes before they can say to each other, "Let me pull the mote out of thine eye." And it is the full measure of presumption for one section to charge the other with lack of civilization and law-abiding spirit. Lynching is lawlessness, pure and simple, whether it occurs North or South. No language of condemnation is any too strong. But what avails it to protest and denounce? Pulpit, press and bar have thundered against it to no purpose. We must have better men and better laws before we can hope to clear our land of the awful curse.

A minister of some note and influence has declared unequivocally that "baptism is not baptism unless performed by a vote of a church." Without stopping to inquire how it is possible for a vote to perform baptism, we feel justified in saying that, if the brother's statement is correct, several baptisms, of which we have record in the New Testament, are alien and invalid. There was no church in the desert to authorize the baptism of the eunuch. The history says nothing about a church voting authority to Ananias to baptize Saul of Tarsus. The Lord does not keep the door of his church locked after that style.

It is possible that the liberalism of some orders of Christians is responsible in part for the waning of the denominational spirit, and the indifference that prevails in regard to ecclesiastical life and doctrinal teaching; to what extent, we are unable to say, but we feel sure that it is not as largely responsible as the spirit of that narrow sectarianism which prompts its votaries to pose before the public as the sole representatives of Christ authorized to preach his gospel and administer its ordinances.

THE DUTY OF THANKSGIVING.

The basest sin of humanity—a sin that law can not reach—is the sin of ingratitude. An ungrateful son or daughter is looked upon as unnatural. So is any other being who receives favors and profits by them, and feels no grateful emotion. Such a sin places the individual a degree below some members of the brute creation. Dogs never fail to exhibit signs of thankfulness for "the crumbs that fall from their masters' tables." How much heartier and fuller should be the expressions of gratitude of men to God, who "daily loadeth them with benefits."

God is good. He is good to every creature that he has made. He is more than good to man—he is merciful; and man, therefore, is under special obligation to be thankful. God is good to the race in general, and to every man in particular. His providence is both universal and special. To deny the general superintendence of God is to rule him altogether out of the affairs of men. This but few are ready to do. The fact of a special providence, however, is not so clear to many. But to us this is a strange position for any Christian to take, inasmuch as God is the creator of all things, and as the Book explicitly declares "his tender mercies are over all his works," and that he "upholds all things by the word of his power."

Every day calls for thanksgiving, and good men and women never neglect their obligations, but once a year we are called upon by our rulers to observe one day in public recognition of the divine goodness. The duty is reasonable.

We are under obligation to God. Every blessing we enjoy has come to us from his bountiful hand. "Every good gift, and every perfect gift, is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning." The divine goodness is manifested to us as a nation. We have a goodly heritage. No people on earth have a better. Our domain is broad, with every variety of climate and product; it is fertile, and yields to cultivation abundant harvests. Want is practically unknown, except as the result of indolence or dissipation. Scant harvests are the exception, not the rule, and where one section fails, the lack is made up by superabundance in another. Famine is a stranger to our land.

We have liberty—civil and religious. Our rulers—men of our own choosing—are wise and patriotic men, who administer the laws in the interest of the people. In saying this, we do not wish to be understood as saying that our rulers are all just such as we would have, or that all the laws of the land are the best. No government is perfect. But our rulers and our laws are according to the will of the majority. So that, if we have nothing to be thankful for in the way of government, we have only ourselves to blame. But though matters might be better than they are, we have much to call forth our gratitude.

We have religious liberty. No yoke of any kind binds our necks. We worship God, not at the dictation of the State, nor according to any State formula, but in our own way—every man under his own roof, or at any altar he may choose. This is something to be thankful for; something for which martyrs bled and died. This boon of religious liberty we must not only appreciate, but transmit to our children. Eternal vigilance is necessary. The same power that bound the ancients, and galled their necks, is at work to-day, and would take from us our rights. Let us keep the spirit alive by taking advantage of our opportunities to go to the house of God, and to the throne of grace. Let us then thank God for what he has done for us.

Temporal blessings abound. The seasons have come in their turn, and with them the early and the latter rain, and under diligent cultivation the land has yielded its increase: barns and storehouses are full, and the great body of our people have enough and to spare. Surely we can go to the Lord in thankfulness, and lay upon his altar the first-fruits of our land, and with our earthly substance present our souls and bodies, living sacrifices, holy and acceptable in his sight. This is our reasonable service.

Great spiritual blessings have been poured upon us. The living Word, preached in its purity by faithful men, has been accompanied by the power of the Holy Ghost, and the church, throughout its length and breadth, has been mightily strengthened in the faith. God's people were never more active and useful than they are to-day. Besides, hundreds and thousands of souls have been brought under the influence of the gospel, and have been soundly converted to God. There has been a gracious ingathering, and God's people rejoice on every side.

During the year past it has not been all sunshine and prosperity with every individual. Bereavement has entered many homes. Personal affliction has taken hold of many bodies. Many have suffered reverse in fortune, and to-day may be on the verge of poverty. The tongue of slander has not been silent, and the names of good people have been cast out as evil. This is next to death itself. In many instances it is worse. But, notwithstanding all these, and maybe other evils that have befallen, not one can sit quietly down and fail to count blessings too many to name. These blessings, whatever they may be, call for gratitude. Let us thank God and take courage.

OWE NO MAN ANYTHING.

Happy is the man who can close up his year's work, and say, "I owe no man anything but love." He can enter upon the next year's work with a light heart, even if, after squaring all balances against him, he has no money left. He feels that if not wholly independent, he is at least under obligation to nobody, and that chances are in his favor. Men will trust him more readily than if they knew he was burdened with debt.

The preachers in our patronizing Conferences are closing their year's labors. We dare say many of them have been forced to contract small debts for household and family supplies: and our observation and general knowledge of preachers leads us to say that when they leave their charges with a debt, however small, hanging over them, it is a matter of no little concern. It is only occasionally that one is indifferent to his obligations. A few who do not know how to use money leave unpaid bills. It is not always because of indifference that they do not pay. They would pay if they had the means. In the run of more than forty years in the itinerancy, the preachers we have known who were regarded as positively careless about their small debts can be counted on the fingers of one hand.

It is frequently the case preachers are sanguine, and make bills, the payment of which depends altogether on the collection of the assessment for his salary. At the end of the year he finds that his hope was misplaced. The salary is far behind. He goes to Conference, and is sent to another appointment, and with a bleeding heart he leaves his account unpaid. The amount received during the year was insufficient for his wants. Debt was inevitable. He could not pay because the people failed to pay him. In such a case we leave our readers to say who is to blame.

It will be seen from what we say that much depends on the willingness of a people that have assumed an amount for the preacher's support to carry out their own part of the obligation—for obligation it is—and none the less because it is moral, rather than bound by law. And much depends on the stewards. In a few places all depends on their fidelity and zeal. Preachers have been known to suffer, in the language of Bishop McTyeire, "in the midst of plenty and a willing people," because those who were appointed to collect the preacher's salary failed to do their duty. When stewards let the preacher suffer and leave their charge in debt, can they say, "We owe no man anything but love"?

AT CONFERENCE.

It is a blessed privilege for Methodist preachers and laymen to attend Annual Conference. The preacher feels free and easy—the burden of work for the time being is cast off, and he enters fully into fellowship with kindred spirits. This is specially true of the younger preacher who has not attained age sufficient to be put to work on committees which exact his time and strength. The lay brethren and sisters enjoy the occasion in the same way and for the same reasons the preachers do. It is a time for general rejoicing.

The Conference may also be made an occasion for profit. The social advantages are great. We not only meet the very best people, and get acquainted with their ways and spirit, but we meet people from different sections and different circles, and learn something of polite society. This is of immense advantage to a poor preacher who has never had much in the way of opportunity. We have seen many preachers who needed such training. Besides, they come in contact with the great minds of the church, take notes, and go to their homes and fields of labor with stores of knowledge for future use.

The religious advantages are great. The Word preached, when properly heard and appreciated, is always good to the use of edifying. We may, if we will, make our approaching Conferences seasons of great spiritual profit. The Lord is as ready to bless us at Conference as at home. There is no reason why any of us should backslide at Conference.

DANCING AND CARD-PLAYING METHODISTS.

Methodists have ever been against taking "such diversions as can not be used in the name of the Lord Jesus." They have a General Rule to that effect. Among the diversions condemned, and specially named by our own branch of Methodism, are dancing, both public and private, and card-playing. As far as we know, there is no trouble in our church in reference to the matter. That there are members here and there who indulge in these sinful amusements, we do not question; but if there is a preacher in our ranks who encourages them by word or deed, we do not know him. We have never heard of him.

But to our surprise, it is reported through the columns of one of the best and most widely-circulated journals of the North, that in one of our sister Methodisms the practice is encouraged by some of the preachers, and indulged by the members. In the State of New York a Methodist Church is much divided on the subject, the pastor siding with those who indulge, holding that "card-playing and dancing are not detrimental to the spiritual welfare of the church, provided they are conducted within reasonable lines." The anti-card-playing element in the church made complaint, and the discussion waxed warm, and had its culmination when in the Quarterly Conference complaint was made "that the pastor of the church had set an unchristian example by being a member of the club—an organization which countenances dancing, card-playing, and other similar forms of amusement." Much to the disappointment of the anti-dancing brethren, the presiding elder "mildly defended" the amusements, saying "the right to shuffle out a deck of cards, providing there was no money at stake, and to gayly skip over a waxed floor, was not denied to even Methodists. In such matters they should be guided by their consciences." This led a good old sister to say: "I am too old to dance now, but I can go home and play cards."

The movement which had been put on foot to secure another pastor was defeated. A motion to retain the present pastor was offered and carried. This was carrying the encouragement of worldly amusements further than either the spirit or the letter of our law justifies. Southern Methodists may come to this after while, but at present the day is far away. Let us thank God, and pray to keep it away forever.

A THREATENED EVIL.

Inch by inch our government seems to be giving way to Romanism. There is but little doubt—to use a common phrase—that the administration was "taken in" by the authorities at Rome when Governor Taft was sent to the Vatican to transact business pertaining to the Friars. On this side of the water it was thought and said that the governor's mission was of a purely business character. So it was, but Rome construed the act upon the part of our government as a recognition of the Pope as a ruler, and looked upon Mr. Taft as an envoy. So, whether the administration at Washington intended it that way or not, Rome practically gained what she wanted. At least, a precedent was set, and now Rome's heart is fixed on a church representative at Washington—one who can deal with our government in business matters—as if Rome has anything else in this world than business to transact with secular powers.

And now comes the news that the Romish Church is seeking to gain control of the public schools in the Philippines. By some means the authorities at Washington came to the conclusion that the school commissioner was not altogether satisfactory, and he was superseded by another. Some surprise was expressed, for it was generally thought that good work was being done. But when it became known that the new commissioner was a Roman Catholic, the reason for the change was manifest. The school commissioner must be a man in favor at the Vatican.

The action of our government gives us ground to fear that our public-school system in the Philippines, modeled after the system in the United States, is not only to be controlled by Rome, but modified to suit Rome, and we may expect a wholesale discharge of teachers sent out last year by our government, and Roman Catholic priests and nuns installed in their stead. This is the first step towards maintaining the connection between Church and State. Beside the school question in the Philippines the friar question dwindles to small proportion. This Roman Catholic papers do not hesitate to say. If Rome can control the schools, she can control the government.

OLD FOLKS' SERVICE.

Rev. C. D. Atkinson, pastor of Parker Memorial Church, planned a service on Sunday last for old folks. The day was called "Old Folks' Day." Special preparation was made for the comfort of the very aged and infirm, and a couple of carriages put at the disposal of the pastor, and in these he brought several old ladies to church who otherwise would have been unable to attend. A sermon suitable to the occasion was preached, after which the Lord's Supper was administered. A large congregation was present, and the service was much enjoyed. All the arrangements planned by the pastor were well executed by the Epworth League, the members of which always co-operate in every good word and work. This unique service will be long remembered. It was the pleasure of the editor to worship with the old folks, and to minister to them in holy things.

The Memphis School Board has had under consideration the question of Bible reading in the public schools, and was about to adopt the proposition, but the Jews and Roman Catholics raised such a fuss about it the Board declined further consideration of the matter. This seems to be a case of Herod and Pilate joining hands against Jesus.

PERSONAL.

The Rev. T. B. Clifford informs us, under date of Nov. 21, that he has been transferred from the Arkansas to the Mississippi Conference, and that he will meet the brethren in Natchez (God willing) the eleventh of next month.

A card from Rev. W. D. Bass, sent from Wesson, Miss., says: "We closed a great revival in Wesson last night (Nov. 23). I assisted Brother Peebles thirteen days. He is in great favor with his people. He is one of the most faithful pastors I ever helped. There were seventy-five additions."

Brother Joe Ramsey, lay preacher, has been with Rev. K. W. Dodson in Algiers, holding a meeting, but with what success we have not learned. We hope Brother Dodson will give us the particulars. Brother Ramsey is a consecrated and zealous man, a man of intelligence and fluent, and we know the congrega- has been blessed with good preaching.

The zealous and tireless bookseller and general agent for good literature, the Rev. G. W. Bachman, is closing his eighteenth year as colporter—working all these years in the same Conference—and says he has sold more books than during any previous year. We hope the brethren will not slight him at Conference. No man among us works harder.

Dr. F. N. Parker will preach the Thanksgiving sermon at Carondelet Street Church on Thursday, Nov. 27, at 11 A. M. All our churches in the city will join in that service, and the collection for the day will be devoted to the Louisiana Conference Endowment Fund for Conference Claimants. We hope our brethren and sisters throughout the city will be present, and lend substantial aid.

Bishop Hoss has just now closed his third Annual Conference. At every place he has "won golden opinions" for himself, both as a presiding officer and a preacher. That he measures up to the highest standard as a preacher is not surprising. His ability was already known and recognized. We are glad to know that in him we have not only a great preacher, but a great Bishop.

Rev. T. N. Ivey, editor of the Raleigh Christian Advocate, is greatly bereaved by the death of his father, the Rev. G. W. Ivey, of the Western North Carolina Conference, who had been an effective preacher for fifty-two years. He was stricken in the pulpit the first Sunday in November while preaching. We extend to our brother editor and family our sympathy and prayers. We know his loss. Our own father passed away at the age of eighty-two, having been a preacher sixty-four years.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

REV. C. D. ATKINSON, EDITOR.

UNION EPWORTH LEAGUE.

The union meeting of the Leagues of New Orleans for the month of November was held in Algiers on the evening of the eleventh. The attendance was not very large, but every League was represented, either by a member or by the pastor. The most important matter that came up was a resolution requesting the Bishop of the Louisiana Annual Conference to appoint a preacher at Epworth Mission. The resolution was passed.

NOTES.

Rev. G. D. Parker, founder of Seashore Epworth League Assembly, now of Brazil, preached his first sermon in Portuguese some weeks since.

Mrs. Lyons, president of the Home Mission Society of the State, reports that Miss Mayo, the noted Junior Epworth League worker, is delighted with the Scarritt Training-school.

The Parker Memorial Senior Epworth League had charge of the "Old Folks' Day" at that church, Nov. 23. Dr. J. W. Boswell preached an appropriate sermon at 11 A. M.

Rev, F. N Parker, pastor of Carondelet Street Church, is of the opinion we need a society in our churches for young men alone, something like the "Brotherhood of St. Andrew."

The Reading Course of '02-'03 is said to be very fine. We attended a Reading Circle recently which had just taken up the new course. The evening was given to the lives of William Cary and Joseph Hardy Neesima. The attendance at this circle numbered eighteen.

Forest District.

The fourth Quarterly Conference for Carthage circuit was the most pleasant held in the four years. The prospects are that allowances for ministerial support and all Conference claims will be paid in full. The presiding elder suggested that if there were any danger of a shortage anywhere, they could pay it up as a thank-offering—for that a new presiding elder would be on the district next year. A brother promptly responded, "Bro. Mellon, acting on that suggestion of yours, I increase my assessment $10!"

The Edinburg Quarterly Conference was not so satisfactory, and yet conditions are not desperate. An incomplete, but neat house of worship has been built at Alice, in Neshoba county, and the ugly old shell at Rocky Point has been torn down and lumber is being laid down for a neat house of worship. A parsonage has been secured at Edinburg—not yet paid for. Conference collections will be paid in full, but the stewards have been lacking in zeal.

D. C. Langford, P. C., Trenton circuit, reports a glorious revival at the Trenton Church; 32 accessions to our church and 1 to the Presbyterian. The circuit will pay in full. E. A. Breland, L E., conducted the meeting. T. L. MELLEN, P. E.

Mississippi Conference.

To Whom It May Concern:

In answer to several inquiries from confused brethren, I would say:

1. Bishop Key expects to call the Mississippi Annual Conference together in session at 9 A. M, Thursday, Dec. 11, in the Jefferson Church, Natchez, Miss. He changed the time from Dec. 10 to Dec. 11, of his own motion and without consulting me—as he had a perfect right to do. I had nothing to do with his changing the time; and declined to interfere by asking him to change again to

[This is a Sample of the Type.]

An Instantaneous Comparison.

There is nothing mysterious or involved about the Linear Bible—all is plain sailing. There are no parallel columns or embarrassing foot notes to mystify one's understanding. To read the Authorized Version, one has but to read the large type line along to any point of difference in the respective versions, and then follow the UPPER small type line through such difference. Likewise, to read the Revised Version, one has but to read the large type line along to any difference in the respective versions, and then follow the LOWER small type line through such difference. This rule holds as to every difference, even to that of a comma. Thus not only the readings, but the comparisons of the two versions become easy, immediate, satisfactory and perfect.

In addition to the Old and New Testaments this edition contains the New Analytical and Comparative Concordance with 100,000 References—the most complete Concordance in any Teachers' Bible. A series of Fifteen Beautiful Maps in Colors, with cross-line Index. These maps are entirely new, and were engraved expressly for the Holman editions.

If you want this Book in connection with your ADVOCATE subscription, we will be glad to furnish both the Bible and the ADVOCATE, one year, for $7.00.

KIDNEY TROUBLE, LAME BACK AND RHEUMATISM

CURED BY SWAMP-ROOT.

To Prove what the Great Kidney Remedy, Swamp-Root, will do for YOU, Every Reader of "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Free by Mail.

Among the many famous cures of Swamp-Root, investigated by "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" the one we publish this week for the benefit of our readers, speaks in the highest terms of the wonderful curative properties of this great kidney remedy.

T. F. McHUGH.

DR. KILMER & CO., Binghamton, N. Y.

GENTLEMEN:—It gives me great pleasure to add my testimonial to that of hundreds of others regarding the wonderful curative properties of Swamp-Root. I had a lame back three years ago before leaving North Dakota for the coast. Soon after my arrival in the Puget Sound country it became very much worse. I felt certain that the coast climate had given me acute rheumatism and came to the conclusion that I could not live in this climate. Later I became convinced that what I really had was kidney trouble, and that the rheumatism was due to my kidney trouble. The lameness in my back increased rapidly and I had other symptoms which indicated that I would soon be prostrated unless I obtained relief quickly. Noticing your offer of a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, free, I had a friend write for one and began taking it immediately. Within three weeks the lameness in my back began to disappear. During that Fall and Winter, I took three one-dollar bottles of Swamp-Root with the result that I became completely cured. I no longer have pains in my back and can exercise violently without feeling any bad effects. I have recommended Swamp-Root to several of my acquaintances who were similarly affected, and without exception they have been greatly benefited by its use.

Yours very truly,

T. F. McHugh

701 E. St., South.

Lame back is only one symptom of kidney trouble—one of many and is Nature's timely warning to show you that the track of health is not clear.

If these danger signals are unheeded, more serious results are sure to follow; Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble, may steal upon you.

The great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, is used in the leading hospitals, recommended by physicians in their private practice, and is taken by doctors themselves who have kidney ailments, because they recognize in it the greatest and most successful remedy for kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

EDITORIAL NOTE—Swamp Root has been tested in so many ways, and has proven so successful in every case, that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of the "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" who have not already tried it may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail. Also a book telling all about Swamp-Root, and containing many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact their very lives to the wonderful curative properties of Swamp-Root. In writing, be sure and mention reading this generous offer in the NEW ORLEANS "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" when sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

If you are already convinced that Swamp Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

Short Tales by St. Nicholas Leaguers.

A CRITICAL MOMENT.

BY JOE POUND (AGE 12).

One cloudy day, as I was sitting in the parlor, wondering what I could do, the door-bell rang. I opened the door, and found a man on the porch who asked to see papa. He told papa that a passenger-engine had just come out of the shops, and that he was wanted to break it in. Every new engine has to be broken in or run for a while before it is used for pulling trains. I was hoping papa would ask me, and, much to my delight, he asked my friend Don also. We hurried down to the roundhouse and soon started. We had lots of fun until it began to rain. Then I got cold and climbed down near the boiler. Just outside of town there is a curve, and you can't see the track on the other side. As we were nearing the curve, Don, who could see the track, cried out: "There's another train coming, and it's going to hit us!" I jumped up on the seat, and saw a double-header freight-train coming right at us. Papa had already seen it, and had put on brakes and reversed the engine. He called out to the fireman: "Tom, hold those boys in." The train crew on the other engine jumped, and they looked like frogs sailing through the air. Papa soon had our engine going backward, but you could have stepped from one pilot to the other the moment before we backed. We went at full speed backward, and soon drew away from them. We left the engine in the roundhouse and ran home. I told mama; but Don was so scared that he didn't tell anybody.

THE ORCHARD TELEPHONE.

BY MIRIAM ABBOT (AGE 12.)

One warm afternoon in the latter part of June, Mary and I, having nothing else to do, thought we would go out and read in the orchard. So we went into the house to get books for ourselves.

Then, suddenly, I had a bright thought. Why not take some stout string, tie it together, and make a double line, which would connect the two trees in which we were going to play?

I told Mary my plan, which she said she thought would be great fun. So we took some twine, fastened it together, and made a long enough piece to stretch doubly between the two trees.

Then we tied a basket on, and fitted a piece of cardboard on the basket for a cover, with two elastics to hold it on.

Then Mary got into her tree, and I into mine, each with a book, paper and pencil. First we read a little while, and then we wrote notes to each other. We did not get the line tied tight enough, and the basket went wibbly-wabbly whenever it went across, but it always got across all right.

After a while the sun got around so it shone right into the tree where Mary was sitting, so I went into the house and got an old sheet, and fastened it up so that it shaded her.

We played there all the afternoon, and I am sure that we shall ever remember with pleasure the pleasant afternoon spent in the orchard.

General Sheridan and His Son.

Two grave, quiet-looking men stood on the steps of a big house in Washington some years ago. They were watching four bright children get into a cart and drive down the street, throwing back kisses and "good-by" to papa and papa's friend, the general.

The young man and the father, was General Phil Sheridan—"Fighting Phil," as he was called in those days. Another general, an old friend, said, "Phil, how do you manage your little army of four?"

"Don't manage; they are mischievous soldiers, but what good comrades! All the good there is in me they bring out. Their little mother is a wonderful woman, and worth a regiment of officers, John. I often think what pitfalls are in waiting for my small, brave soldiers all through life. I wish I could always help them over."

"Phil, if you could choose for your little son from all the temptations which will beset him the one most to be feared, what would it be?"

General Sheridan leaned his head against the doorway, and said, soberly: "It would be the curse of strong drink. Boys are not saints. We are all self willed, strong willed, may be full of courage and thrift and push and kindness and charity; but woe be to the man or boy who becomes a slave of liquor. Oh, I had rather see my little son die to-day than to see him carried to his mother drunk! One of my brave soldier boys on the field said to me just before a battle, when he gave me his message to his mother, if he should be killed: 'Tell her I have kept my promise to her. Not one "drink" have I ever tasted.' The boy was killed. I carried the message with my own lips to the mother. She said, 'General, that is more glory for my boy than if he had taken a city.'"—Cumberland Presbyterian.

By many years of constant study and experiments, I have perfected a simple, harmless vegetable remedy that will quickly cure all female diseases as well as piles. It is nature's own remedy, and will not only relieve, but will absolutely thoroughly and permanently cure the ailments peculiar to women such as falling of the womb, leucorrhea, "whites," displacements, ulceration, granulation, painful or scanty periods, irregular menstruation and all the pelvic ills of women. It positively cures rectal ulcers, piles, hemorrhoids, tumors, itching, blind or bleeding piles in either sex. It cures promptly, privately and permanently without the repugnant methods in general use by physicians. You can escape embarrassing examinations, avoid humiliating exposures, cure at the surgeon's knife, out of hospitals, at your home.

The treatment is so simple, mild and effectual that it will not interfere with your work or occupation. Thousands and thousands of letters are being received from grateful persons from all parts of the world who have been cured by the use of this remedy. The first package is free, send for it—send to-day. I know that a fair trial of it will result in your becoming its enthusiastic advocate and friend. With it I will send literature of interest and value. Do not neglect this opportunity to get cured yourself and be in a position to advise ailing friends.

Consider well the above offer and act upon it at once. It is made in the sincere hope of aiding you and spreading the knowledge of a benefactor boon to sufferers. Earnestly, hopefully, faithfully, MRS. CORA B. MILLER, 46 Comstock Bldg., Kokomo, Ind.

Artistic Monuments

Cost no more than plain ones in White Bronze. Marble is entirely out of date. Granite eventually crumbles back to Mother Earth. Besides it is very expensive.

White Bronze is strictly everlasting. It can not crumble with the action of frost. Moss growth is an impossibility. It is more artistic than any stone. It has been adopted for nearly one hundred public monuments and by thousands of delighted customers in all parts of the country. We have designs from $4.00 to $4,000. The company ship them to any address. Send me a postal card, and I will call at your home with my designs.

A Child's Imagination.

There was once a little six-year-old girl who had the habit of telling wonderful stories of things no one but herself had ever seen or heard.

"As I was walking along," she said one day to her mother, "a golden egg dropped out of a tree and fell down upon the stones. The egg was broken to pieces, but a beautiful bird, with wings of gold, and little stars for eyes, flew up before me, away into heaven, and sang, 'Little girl, I love you; I love you.'"

"Oh, what a beautiful story!" said her wise mother. "I will get a pencil and paper and write it out. When father comes home I will read it to him, and perhaps to-morrow you can tell me another."

This delighted the little girl, and when her father, who was also wise, clapped his hands and pronounced it an "excellent story," her satisfaction was complete.

The next day another story, longer than the first, and, if possible, more marvelous, was told, and again written out by her mother for her father's pleasure, and the daily story became a habit of the little girl's life.

After awhile she learned to write, and was then able to tell her own stories on paper. And when she grew to be a woman and took up her life-work, which was that of telling stories altogether, she gave the credit to her mother, who had so wisely developed and cultivated her inborn talents.

A stupid and impatient mother might have said to her child, "That is not true; no such thing ever happened, and you have told a wicked story." Or a tender mother who was yet stupid might have said, "My little girl must not tell things that never happened, for this is telling a lie."

Just here is the place where discrimination on the part of parent or teacher is plainly in order. The mistake is often made of taking it for granted that the child expects you to believe him, when the chances are that he does not.—Southern Churchman.

Too Smart for His Papa.

The twelve-year-old son of a Topeka (Kan.) fond parent recently became the proud possessor of some guinea pigs. A day or two after they were safely corralled in a cage he went about bragging of his new acquisition among his playmates. Now, it seems, these youngsters knew of a "sell" in which guinea pigs play a prominent part. They started to "hook" the youngster, and they caught him hard and fast.

He felt so badly about it that he started to "sell" some one else. His father was the victim.

"Do you know, papa, if you hold a guinea pig by the tail that its eyes will drop out?"

His father laughed outright.

"Why, who in the world told you such stuff as that, Louis?"

"The boys all say that," answered Louis, sober as a judge; "and it's so, yes, sir."

"O nonsense!" said the father, still laughing.

"Well, you go to the cage and hold one up, and you'll see."

Just to humor the boy the father went out. In a moment he came back, looking—well, looking just like a man who has been badly sold.

"The little rascal got me that time," he remarked to a friend.

"But I don't see the point," said the friend.

"Don't you?"

"No."

"Well, guinea pigs have no tails."—Nashville Christian Advocate.

OBITUARIES.

MRS. HARRIETT FRANCES HENSON was born Nov. 2, 1832, and died Oct. 12, 1902. She died at her home, ten miles southeast of Booneville, Miss. She was in her seventieth year; had been married three times. Five children were born to her in her first marriage to John Whitley, a Methodist minister, and two to the second marriage to John Alexander. She professed faith in Christ and joined the M. E. Church, South, while a girl, and had lived a faithful Christian through all the years of her long and useful life. She was devoted to her church, always taking personal interest in its welfare, and in the interest of her preacher. She was a good neighbor, never too busy to look after and care for the sick and needy. She excelled as a mother in her judgment, her firmness and decision of character; yet, by tender and kind treatment of her children, she won their love and devotion. She was a woman with great natural gifts in business, of high purpose in life. She had no patience with shams in religion, always demanding a high standard, and tried to live up to the standard she required of others; and until old age had deprived her of strength, she was the embodiment of industry. Her life is an inspiration to those who knew her in all that makes for righteousness. May her children emulate her virtues, and so live that they shall meet their mother in heaven!

W. M. YOUNG.

MISS DELIA MURPHY was born Nov. 3, 1867, and died Aug. 26, 1902. In her death Neshoba circuit, Mississippi Conference, has lost one of its best members. Hester's Chapel feels the loss most because her labors of love were confined chiefly to that church and community. Her life, from early childhood until called to her reward, was consecrated to her Lord. The joy of her life seemed to be in working in the church and Sunday-school, trying to make others better and happier. Her whole life was devoted to the cause of righteousness. None knew her but to love her. She was the pastor's right-hand friend. She was a faithful and devoted daughter, a loving and helpful sister, being ever bright and cheerful. Her bright, active and well-poised mind enabled her to be a strong support in the home, community, and church. During her last illness, of two months' duration, she was patient, submissive, and full of peace and joy. She would sing songs of praise, and talk to her friends and loved ones of Jesus and his love. She has gone to her reward, and my prayer is that her mantle may fall on some other member of that church.

L. E. ALFORD, P. C.

MR. ALBERT S. HOYLE son of Rev. P. R. and Mrs. Ellen Hoyle, was born Nov. 15, 1858, and departed this life at his home in Booneville, Miss., Friday, Oct 31, 1902, at 1 o'clock A. M., after an illness of more than three weeks. The struggle for life was a hard one. He fought the disease bravely, but without a murmur, patiently submitting to God's will. Bro. Hoyle was married to Miss Sallie Miller, Nov. 19, 1884, by Rev. P. R. Hoyle. There were born unto them three children, two preceding him to glory, while one remains to comfort the sorrowing mother. The faithful religious training by a godly father and mother bore fruit in an early conversion, and at the age of thirteen our brother joined the M. E. Church, South, under the ministry of Rev. J. W. Hounoll, at old Carolina Church. He was a faithful son, devoted husband, loving father, upright citizen, consistent Christian, and faithful steward of the church. The writer devoutly thanks God for his friendship, brotherly kindness, and official support. May the God of all grace support the bereaved, and unite all around his throne!

BEN P. JACO, P. C.

Resolutions adopted by the Methodist Sunday-school, Houston, Miss., Nov. 2, 1902:

Whereas, God, in his wisdom, removed from our midst on the twenty-eighth day of September, 1902, our honored and beloved friend and brother, BENJAMIN F. COLLINS, and bore him to his everlasting home; therefore, be it resolved by this Sabbath-school:

1. That while we bow in meek submission to the will of the Master, yet we deplore with great pain and sorrow this dispensation of his providence.

2. We fully realize that in the death of Bro. Collins we have lost a most efficient and faithful co-worker and officer, and that he has left to us a most worthy example of love and devotion to the church and Sunday-school, which we should strive to emulate.

3. That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the Minutes, and furnished the family of the deceased; also that the same be furnished the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

Committee: T. W. Hamilton, P. W. Shell.

MRS. ANNIE ELIZABETH DILLON, wife of John Dillon, and daughter of Elisha R. and Sarah Margaret Clark, was born April 7, 1876, and died Oct. 12, 1902, near Mount Hermon, La., where she has resided nearly all her life. Sister Dillon joined the M. E. Church, South, at Mount Hermon in the Summer of 1892, under the pastorate of Rev. W. M. Sullivan. She was married to Mr. John Dillon, Nov. 16, 1899. One little boy was given to them to bless their home, and lives to mourn with the bereaved husband, father, mother, and loved ones. She was a patient sufferer with pulmonary trouble for more than a year. She passed from this life triumphant over death, having lived a consecrated Christian life since she joined the church. She had the assurance that her name was written "on pages white and fair in the book of" God's "kingdom." We extend our heartfelt sympathy to the sorrowing ones, and pray God to comfort them in their affliction.

CHAS. T. STEPP, P. C.

MRS. PERMELIA ROBERTSON (nee Walker) was born in Simpson county, Miss., in August, 1828, and died at her brother's, near Waynesboro, Miss., Oct. 16, 1902. She was married to Rev. D. Robertson, a Baptist minister, in 1861. Their married life was happy, but of short duration, for he was soon taken to his reward. She joined the Baptist Church while she was a girl, and lived a consistent member. She united with the M. E. Church, South, in 1890. She lived so as to gain the confidence of all who knew her. During her last illness she was never heard to complain, keeping all her pains to herself. She said frequently that she was waiting for the Lord to take her. She had no fears of death, for the God who gave her living grace in due time gave her dying grace. She leaves one daughter and a host of friends to mourn her death. God has taken her beyond this troublesome world to himself on high.

ALICE CARY CLARKE, infant daughter of Rev. W. A. and Nannie S. Clarke, of the Louisiana Conference, was born Sept. 14, and died at Vienna, La., Oct. 22, 1902. This life, though brief, was not in vain. She accomplished her mission, which was to form a link in the never ending chain of our existence which, day by day, draws us heavenward. May God comfort those who loved her, and grant that the little twin sister may make the world better for having lived in it! "Suffer the children to come unto me." The lambs are safely housed in his fold.

MISS MONIE BOWEY,

No. 38 Perry Street, DETROIT, MICHIGAN.

Miss Monie Bowey.

A couple of winters ago I slipped on a frozen sidewalk and fell flat on my back. On being examined I found that I had sustained internal injuries which laid me up for more than two months. After that I noticed that I had pains in the back and groin which I never had before. I doctored and doctored for several months but as the pains increased instead of growing better I decided that I was not having the right treatment. Reading in the papers of the wonderful cures performed by Wine of Cardui I wrote to one of the parties and received a very satisfactory reply and I immediately sent for some. In a very short time I felt generally better and after seven weeks faithful use I was once more well and strong. I have never had a sick hour since and I daily bless your splendid medicine.

MONIE BOWEY.

WINE OF CARDUI is one medicine that should always be kept on hand in every home for immediate use when female weakness first makes its appearance. Miss Bowey's painful and dangerous accident would not have resulted so seriously had she taken Wine of Cardui promptly.

Wine of Cardui makes women more womanly by curing their weakness and making them stronger. Wine of Cardui cured Miss Bowey. As a medicine for all women in every trying period of their lives can you think of a better medicine for yourself, your sister, your daughter or your mother? Can you think of a more acceptable present to give your friend than a bottle of this medicine which will bring her health and happiness? You are suffering? Your duty is to rid yourself of this pain. If your daughter, mother, sister or friend is sick and in need of relief, your duty is equally great to them. Many women, now well, owe their lives to friends who brought them Wine of Cardui.

Wine of Cardui is adapted to women at any age in any walk of life. For the working woman it gives her strength for her tasks and better treatment than a doctor for very small cost.

Your druggist will sell you a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui. Secure the medicine today. Take it in the privacy of your home. Relief will come to you as surely as you take it.

The Christ of Our Poets.

By REV. H. WALTER FEATHERSTUN, D.D.

12MO. PP. 171. 75 CENTS.

The book is a mine of suggestions. Epworth Herald.

Thanks to Dr. Featherstun for his timely book.—Rev. R. E. Dickenson.

"The Christ of Our Poets," in the present Reading Course, is proving to be very popular.—Epworth Era.

We only regret that the book is so slight; . . . it holds the reader from beginning to end.—New York Christian Advocate.

He holds up the Christ of poesy illuminated by a new and rarer light, presenting ineffable beauties hitherto unseen.—Mrs. Bishop Morrison.

Dr. Featherstun's book exhibits while reading, and a profound philosophical insight into the spirit of these poems.—St. Louis Christian Advocate.

The author employs a graceful and lucid style. . . . Dr. Featherstun has placed all of us under lasting obligations to himself.—Nashville American.

This charming volume has been made part of the League Course for 1902. . . . Dr. Featherstun has done his work admirably.—Sunday School Magazine.

Your book exhibits, it seems to me, not only careful and conscientious study and good taste, but that rarer and finer quality we call insight.—Bishop O. P. Fitzgerald.

We welcome this volume as a valuable addition to a class of literature which has been neglected to some extent by our Southern writers.—Raleigh Christian Advocate.

The poets are searched for the footprints of the Man of Calvary, and many of them are found. . . . The book makes most profitable reading.—Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

The volume suggests on every page, for which we can never be sufficiently thankful, that the great poets . . . were every one of them genuinely and predominantly religious.—Northwestern Christian Advocate.

"The Christ of Our Poets" is so full of thought, so full of noblest purpose, so vivid in word painting that I would it might be put into the hands of every young man and woman of our land.—Mrs. Callie H. Howe, W. C. T. U. lecturer.

All Christians and poet-lovers should feel indebted to Dr. Featherstun for this volume, in which he shows very beautifully how the poets have ever gone ahead of their time in their conception of a Christ to which the world has gradually been led in its ideals.—Review of Missions.

BISHOP HENDRIX'S BOOK:

12mo, Pp. 326. Cloth. Gilt top. Price $1.25.

"This is a timely and thought-provoking book, written with a holy purpose, and sure of a wide and beneficent mission. . . . The title is suggestive, and every page instructive. . . . One cannot escape the impression that some fervent paragraphs were penned when the devout author was sitting very close to the feet of his Lord."—Bishop Galloway.

"Upper Room Meditations"

Bishop Fitzgerald's New Book.

Of the many contributions from Bishop Fitzgerald to the literature of Christian experience, none surpass this. Shut in from the world, he has heard the voice of God in the inner depths of his soul, and the Father whom he loves has helped him to tell what he has felt. No man can be unmoved by these pages.—Wesleyan Christian Advocate.

"Upper Room Meditations" is sweet, edifying, Christian. It cannot fail to do good, and I hope will be read by many thousands. It is a book for a sick room or a house in which sorrow sits enthroned.—Dr. Geo. G. Smith, Macon, Ga.

Those who have read it pronounce it the best of all his devotional writings. He has saved the best until now.—Nashville Correspondent St. Louis Christian Advocate.

It will be very helpful to the souls of God's children, for it comes out of a heart all of love and faith.—Texas Christian Advocate.

A Chance to Make Money.

I have been selling Perfumes for the past six months I make them myself at home, and sell to friends and neighbors. Have made $310. Everybody buys a bottle.

I first made it for my own use only, but the curiosity of friends as to where I procured such exquisite odors, prompted me to sell it. I clear from $25 to $35 per week. I do not canvass; people come and send to me for the perfumes. Any intelligent person can do as well as I do. For 42 cents in stamps I will send you the formula for making all kinds of perfumes and a sample bottle prepaid. I will also help you get started in business. MARTHA FRANCIS,

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

THE LARGEST AND MOST COMPLETE LABORATORY IN THE WORLD.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Nov. 1st.—Whoever goes to Binghamton, as I did, will find a much alive, brisk city, with beautiful, wide, asphalted streets and charming residential sections. Its business streets are necked with handsome business buildings and public institutions, but none of them can compare in magnitude and beauty with the new Swamp-Root Laboratory now nearing completion. This tall, towering building is the first object that confronts the eye upon alighting from the train at the railway stations.

The building itself is remarkable, because, when finished it will be the finest, most scientifically built, and best equipped medical laboratory in the world.

It was the pleasure of the World to send a representative to inspect this building, and from the stand point of an architect, scientist and searcher after the beautiful, I can say, with warmth, that the trip from New York was well worth while.

Hundreds upon hundreds of the readers of the World owe their restored health, and the restored health of their friends, to Swamp-Root, the great kidney liver and bladder remedy, and I am sure they will be interested in my brief description and the photograph of these Laboratory, where, beginning with the new year, Swamp-Root will be compounded.

The magnitude of the building is not all. It will stand for centuries. It has the finest of modern steel construction, with fireproof masonry and cement arches, not a piece of wood is used in its structure. It is situated on the most central and commanding site in the city, and has a frontage of 231 feet on Lewis Street, 345 feet on Chenango Street and 407 feet on Lackawanna Avenue; its floor space amounts to the astonishing area of four and one half acres, and is to be devoted exclusively to the Swamp Root business.

The building is eight stories high, built of steel, granite and light-colored brick, and its architecture is of the most pleasing style.

As is the present Laboratory, so will the new one be equipped with the very latest scientific apparatus for the compounding of Swamp-Root, the demand for which has so greatly increased that the mammoth new Laboratory became an absolute necessity.

A convenient switch connecting with the main lines of all railroads entering the city runs direct to the doors of the shipping department.

After going through this new structure as well as the present Laboratory, the writer was surprised to see the immense scale on which Swamp-Root is prepared.

But when an hour later, I sat in the offices of Dr. Kilmer & Co. and had the pleasure of seeing many hundreds of the thousands of unsolicited testimonial letters from all parts of the world—letters written by grateful men and women cured by Swamp Root, I thought these people did just as you and I would do. They sat down and wrote their thanks for what Swamp-Root had done for them, and asked that their testimonials be published in order that all might know of this wonderful medical discovery.

Having seen a little mountain of these letters, each bearing the imprint of sincerity, no one would wonder that this business has increased as it has, and that the largest and finest laboratory in the world is needed and forthcoming.

It may be of interest to our readers to know that they can obtain free, by mail, a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, by addressing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

There have been great labor disturbances in Havana, and strikes resulted. For a while excitement was high, and small riots occurred. Happily a strong hand had the helm, and the situation was mastered. The strikers returned to work. The causes of the trouble are thus set forth by the Picayune: "According to all accounts, the motive at the bottom of the general strike at Havana is not a desire for better wages, but a determination that native Cubans only shall find employment in all branches of industry, except on the sugar and tobacco plantations, where there is always a demand for ordinary unskilled labor. Foreigners are to be shut out, particularly foreign youths, who desire to learn trades as apprentices. While this interdict is aimed ostensibly at all foreigners, it is meant principally for Americans, and is a fact well worth remembering, because of its possible political effect upon the future relations between this country and Cuba. The people of Cuba are anything but favorably disposed towards this country. Notwithstanding the alleged benevolent intentions of our administration in the matter of a reciprocity treaty, the Cubans are openly hostile to such a measure. This hostility to the Americans is very plain in the strike now in progress in Havana. This strike is a direct attack upon the advent of American labor in Cuba. What the outcome will be of this pronounced anti-foreign feeling in Havana it is difficult to foresee, but there are many people who confidently believe that American troops will be again in Cuba to restore order before many months have passed. There is a growing belief in this country that the Cubans are unfit for self-government except under the tutelage of a strong power, and it is expected that the recent evidences of disorder and unrest in Havana will induce the substantial people of the island to ask for annexation, as the only means of insuring peace and security for life and property."

A matter has been reported from a New York town which may well arrest the attention of the whole country. A man belonging to the Painters' and Decorators' Union also belonged to the National Guard, and when the company to which he was attached was called out for service, he responded to the call, whereupon the labor organization expelled him from the ranks, and this, in turn, compelled his employer to dismiss him from service. Thus it comes to pass that the National Guard, which carries the flag of the Union, is boycotted by men whom it would protect in time of danger. We do not understand how loyal citizens can so insult the power of the government. Alluding to this matter, the Times-Democrat says, editorially: "It is to the National Guard that the people of this country must look for the maintenance of domestic peace, and as the nucleus of a force to repel invasion. There is no case of record where the National Guard or the army of the United States has undertaken to interfere with the liberty of action of those who were not engaged in the violation of the law. No man who does not himself intend to defy proper authority can have any objection to the one arm of the service or the other when it interposes to preserve the public peace. It is gratifying to learn that Major-General Charles P. Roe, of the New York National Guard, has begun an investigation to learn how far the Union can be legally held liable for the expulsion of this man, and that as soon as he learns what the legal rights of the State are in the matter, the facts will be presented to the governor for action."

One of the good signs of the times is the voluntary raise in the wages of the employees of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. This company employs many thousands of men, and to meet the raise which has been determined on will require $5,000,000 a year more than the past years' pay-roll. Every employee who has been receiving less than $200 per month has been granted ten per cent. raise. Those receiving that amount and over are regarded as well enough off. This action on the part of the railroad authorities was taken for two reasons. First: It was thought right, in view of the increased business of the road, that those who had been so faithful and constant in their duties should share in the general prosperity. Second: The increased cost of living influenced the directors in their generous act. This move on the part of the authorities will be appreciated. The example is a good one, and were it followed by corporations throughout the country, would do much to allay strife and the uneasiness now prevailing.

The corn crop of the United States for the present year is immense almost beyond conception. No other crop is anywhere near it in magnitude. In round numbers it amounts to 2,550,000,000 bushels, or 286,000,000 bushels more than was estimated in October. This is but little less than the wheat crop of the whole world. In the production of this crop Illinois takes the lead in the number of bushels, and Missouri the largest number of bushels per acre. In quality the crop is seven per cent. less than it was last year. This immense crop of corn, together with the wheat crop—which is in excess of last year, taking the world's production into consideration—will insure continued prosperity, and will after awhile bring about a reduction in the price of meat.

The whisky lords are preparing to make a raid on Congress. Men have been appointed whose business it will be to wait around the Capitol during the session and lobby through any bill that may be of interest to the trade. The ostensible object in view is to work for the reduction of the tax on distilled liquors. They are not making quite enough money. If they succeed, they will, doubtless, do as the brewers, who, though relieved of a tax of a dollar on the barrel of beer, still keep the price up to the retailers. So it is said. But these lobbyists, we dare say, will join Gen. Corbin in seeking to re-establish the army canteen, and thus promote sobriety and good order among the troops, who now get drunk and become unruly and desert because there is no liquor sold at the camps. Such is Gen. Corbin's opinion. If they had ready access to liquor, they would remain sober! What nonsense!

Notes from District.

BY REV. T. B. HOLLOMAN.

Since our last contribution we have been east of the Pearl, down upon the Gulf and Ship Island. Upon this great highway are striking evidences of the developing influences of a railroad. The old Westville circuit has been almost destroyed, and there has grown up in its stead four points on the railroad: Braxton, D'Lo, Weathersby, and Mendenhall, the new county seat—all growing towns, and in each place a lot secured for church and two for parsonage.

At Braxton a beautiful church has just been completed, and at other places prospect for others, especially at Mendenhall, since the brethren are already greatly interested. Wanted, for this work, a young man of good preaching ability, and possessed fully with the spirit of Nehemiah.

The Quarterly Conference was not well attended, but the brethren were hopeful of satisfactory settlement with pastors. Bro. Graves' long illness has been greatly against his work. He is rapidly gaining strength, and will be ready for Conference.

At Harrisville we met the usual good crowds, and received the reports of the stewards. Bro. Cowan, who is supplying until Conference, was present, and attended to the work of the pastor.

On the Thomasville charge the stewards were in force, and, as usual, in good spirits. Terry will make a clean sweep of all claims.

During the war Simpson county was drawn upon to give name to out-of-the-way and dark places; not so now. Civilization and growth are rapidly following the Gulf and Ship Island. Listen, brethren, for Simpson.

Our Baptist brethren have hitherto claimed a monopoly of this field, but Methodism is here to stay, and growing stronger daily. The influx of liberal-minded men is already working like the yeast in the three measures of meal.

CANTON.

Leaving the east, our next was Canton, where Bro. Harmon is closing a laborious year. I found him teaching the Sunday-school Study Circle. Such attention to the teachers must result in substantial benefit to the children. For some months he has had his people interested in the building of a new and more comfortable parsonage. Already several hundred dollars are in bank, and if time shall allow, he will accomplish what some of us who are older have failed to do. But, then, he is in practice, having built a new church at Bay St. Louis while pastor there, and also having had that most undesirable of all experiences—the liquidating of debt upon church property while at Ellisville and Laurel, where he raised nearly $1,000 for that purpose. The success of Bro. Norsworthy in liquidating the whole brings joy to Harmon as, perhaps, to none else for this reason. The Quarterly Conference was well attended, as the brethren had something to say under miscellaneous business. A hard struggle, and stewards greatly behind.

That saloons make a town is contradicted in the case of Canton. The general appearance is that of lack of thrift among the people. None of the houses of worship are what they ought to be; no pastor receives a salary commensurate with the size of the town, and I was reliably informed that it is the only town in the State whose taxable property had not increased during the past decade. While the neighboring towns of Pickens, Jackson, and Yazoo City, all dry towns, are growing rapidly, this, the only wet town in this part of the State, is on the standstill, if not retrograding. The god of this world has truly blinded the eyes of this deluded people.

Affairs at Centenary.

BY PROF. H. F. LINFIELD.

President Carre represented Centenary at the meeting of the Association of Colleges and Preparatory Schools of the Southern States, which was held at the University of Mississippi during the early part of last month. While at the meeting, and returning therefrom, he was the recipient of much cordial attention. He is enthusiastic in his estimate of the good results to come from the auspicious gathering.

We enjoyed thoroughly a visit from Rev. Dr. Hillhouse recently. Dr. Hillhouse is a Presbyterian minister of Vicksburg, and came to Jackson to conduct a series of revival services for the Presbyterian Church here. While in the city he made a visit to Centenary, and conducted chapel exercises for us one day. The address that he made the boys on that occasion was enjoyed exceedingly, as were also his pure gospel sermons at the church.

The lyceum attractions that come to our town under the auspices of the local organization appear on the rostrum at the college, and are a source of much innocent pleasure to the students. Recently the Pitard-Latische Concert Company gave an evening of sweet music, and, following them, came Dr. Briggs in a lecture full of oratory and common sense. These entertainments are looked upon by the faculty as an aid to them in their work, as they furnish amusement for the boys, and go far toward displacing the more objectionable kinds of pleasure sometimes indulged in by college students.

Our Senior class this session is composed of unusually fine young men, and the quality of work that they are doing is much to their credit. Messrs. L. J. Bass, of Morgan City; J. T. Nabors, of Mansfield, and L. H. Pearce, of British Honduras, are candidates for the B. S.; while Messrs. W. L. Byers, of Norwood; W. L. Doss, Jr., of Gneydan; E. K. Miller, of Jackson, and W. G. McDonald, of Minden, expect to receive their A. B. in June. In addition to these candidates for degrees, Messrs. W. H. Nelson and E. A. May expect to take department certificates. All these are boys of fine ability, and Centenary feels perfectly assured of the honor that they will reflect upon her after they shall have taken up the active work of life.

Accepting the faculty's invitation, on a recent Thursday evening a number of local friends of the college, both ladies and gentlemen, came up to inspect the improvements that have rendered the boys' quarters in the west wing so home-like and comfortable. Those who came seemed to enjoy thoroughly this opportunity of seeing the boys in their living-rooms, and getting a glimpse of this phase of college life. A great deal of surprise was expressed at the wonderful change in the aspect of the dormitory. Each room, with a very few exceptions, has been renovated and furnished with very nice furniture. We quote from The Feliciana, a local paper, the following: "The transformation is wonderful. The wear and tear and vandalism of three quarters of a century had all but made a hopeless wreck of the old piles of brick and mortar and wood. So complete was the wreck that there was hardly a floor left in the dormitories upon which to stand to view it. All has been changed. New floors, walls, ceilings and furniture, all of neat and tasteful design, have transformed the large, barny rooms into bright, cozy, cheerful quarters, brilliantly lighted with acetylene gas—the delicate green globes tinting the rooms with a soft halo that was simply charming. The unsightly and enormous old chimneys, with their mammoth fireplaces, have been walled in by ceiling extending clear across the room, and the vacant spaces on each side converted into nicely finished book-cases, clothes and laundry closets, lavoratories, etc. The woodwork has been finished in oil inside, and freshly painted outside."

Port Gibson Female College.

Port Gibson Female College, of which I have had the honor of being president for the past four years, is now in a very prosperous condition, and is rapidly forging her way to the front as an institution of learning. The patronage is now four times as large as when I took charge four years ago. The curriculum has been raised and the faculty strengthened, so that we can now offer parents a high-grade course for their daughters. While this is true, we still feel that the Mississippi Conference should have a regular college for our girls, and let our numerous colleges be secondary or preparatory schools, looking to entrance in the college proper. More about this at Conference. We have a competent faculty, composed of earnest Christians, who endeavor, by precept and example, to mould our girls into a beautiful Christian womanhood. Our main thought is to make Christian women of our girls. We have earnestly sought to bring expenses within the range of all, so that men of ordinary means can give their daughters an education comprehending the ornate branches. No school in the South is more healthfully located, and gives more attention to sanitary conditions, than the P. G. F. C.

With reference to schools and health, we take pleasure in quoting the following from the United States Health Bulletin, of Sept. 10, 1902: "The United States Health Bulletin has had occasion to examine into this subject quite extensively during the past few months," and "among the schools that met the general approval of the experts investigating these matters for us, and which we have no hesitation in recommending to our readers, is the Port Gibson Female College, Port Gibson, Miss. We know nothing about the course of study at this school, but if the same care is taken with the mental welfare of the pupil as is plainly shown to be taken with the physical, it deserves the support of parents and the encouragement of the public." "The above investigations have been made without the instigation of the proprietors, and generally without their knowledge."

This is absolutely true of the P. G. F. C. It is the policy of the present administration to canvass largely during the next twelve months, soliciting both money and girls. We have already doubled the capacity of the school, and wish to add another wing, and repair the main building and old dormitory. We are sure this school is a necessity to Methodism in this section of the State, and are confident of large success. We wish to call attention to the fact that this school is as much the property of the Methodists as Whitworth, and holds as strong claims upon the Conference and our people as Whitworth, or any of her four girl schools; and unless the Conference thus feels, it should relinquish all claims upon the institution, and let it be free to take care of itself. We are happy to say that many of the preachers are helpful to us, and this number is constantly increasing. We take preachers' daughters, and give them board and tuition and one extra for $130 for entire session.

Any wishing to enter their daughters with us would do well to make application at once, as we have only a few vacancies. For catalogue address the president, or Mrs. L. S. Jones, vice president.

Fraternally, L. S. JONES.

A Steward's Experience.

DEAR DOCTOR BOSWELL: At the risk of being out of order, I venture to relate my experience as a steward of the church, and offer a few suggestions which may, or may not, be proper, but harmless, I trust, if not to be recommended.

We are making our last round, collecting quarterage. It is my thirty-seventh year as steward, and I find that there is still a lack of understanding among many of the members in regard to church dues, and the fact that the obligation to meet all such dues rests upon all whose names are upon the church roll as far as they are able morally, if not legally, according to their church vow taken by them when they joined the church. While many are loyal, and pay all the church requires, there are those who pay part, some pay nothing, and seem to have no conscience in the matter. There are exceptions, of course; the above applies only to the careless.

Now, is there not a remedy for this? Would it not be well to have our Discipline taught in our Sunday-schools and Leagues? Ought not the pastor, in his visits among his members, inquire of each family if they have a copy of the Discipline, and insist on placing one in each family at mere cost? It is true, the rules are read occasionally to the congregation, but few get any benefit from it that way. Our membership is ignorant of the law of the church. I believe it should be a rule adopted by every church that there should be no letter given to a member who is wilfully delinquent—such a one being in contempt of the law, and having violated their church vow, in thus failing to contribute to the support of the church as far as they are able.

Now, if there is a brother of like experience, I shall be glad to have him second the motion.

May the blessings of God rest upon you in your labors! is the prayer of

Your brother in Christ,

GEO. P. HAMMERLY.

Iuka, Miss., Nov 25 1902.

Welcome Your Preacher.

The preacher who goes to you next year is not there because he chose to be your pastor. The Bishop and the presiding elders made the choice for him, and he is with you because of his cheerful obedience to our polity. Hence, if there is any mistake about the matter, the fault is not his, and it becomes your duty and his to so adjust yourselves to each other as to make the year as mutually helpful as possible. Give him the benefit of your sympathy and prayer, and the probability is that he will prove to be the very man after all that you need. If you do otherwise, his work will fail, and you will be large losers as well as himself.—Texas Christian Advocate.

Christian Advocate.

ANDREW JACKSON FOSTER.

The subject of this sketch was born in Marion county, Ala., Jan. 17, 1849, and died in the parsonage at Ethel, Miss., Sept. 24, 1902. The years which elapsed between these dates have given us a life of singular and unwavering devotion to our Lord. Brother Foster was powerfully converted late one evening in the month of May, 1866. He had started home from the field after a hard day's work, but, suffering keenly all the bitter pangs of repentance, he stopped in the woods to pray. There loved ones found him, and he was soon praising God in the consciousness of a new joy. During all the years which followed that hour he never wavered in his loyalty to his Lord. He joined the church at old Friendship, in Chickasaw county, Miss.; was licensed to exhort the next year, and in 1868 he was licensed to preach by Rev. A. C. Allen. His educational advantages were limited, owing both to the scarcity of good schools and to the care of a widowed mother, which he shared with his brothers; but later in life he located and attended Hiwassee College, from which he received a diploma.

He was admitted on trial in the North Mississippi Conference at its first session at Water Valley in 1870; was received into full connection two years later, and ordained deacon by Bishop Kavanaugh. In 1874 he was ordained elder by Bishop Doggett. He filled the following appointments: Starkville circuit, 1871; junior preacher on Honston circuit, 1872; Athens circuit, 1873; junior preacher on Honston circuit, 1874; Plattsburg circuit, 1875; Hickory Flat circuit, 1876; local the next two years; re-admitted in 1878, and served Ashland circuit, 1879-80; Austin station, 1881; Lexington circuit, 1882; Louisville circuit, 1883-84; Tampico circuit, 1885; Toccopola circuit, 1886-87-88; Atlanta circuit, 1889-90-91; Pittsboro circuit, 1892-93-94-95; Sturgis circuit, 1896; Blue Springs circuit, 1897; Salem circuit, 1898-99; Jonesboro circuit, 1900-01; Ethel circuit, 1902.

He was happily married to Miss Mary Jane Nangle, Dec. 13, 1881, who, with one son, survives him. His home-life was beautiful. He regarded his wife as his helpmeet, adviser, and friend. He deferred to her judgment in almost all of his affairs. She was the best judge of his preaching, the safest counselor in all the trying and responsible duties of an itinerant Methodist preacher.

Brother Foster was a guileless Christian. He loved his brethren, but, above all, he loved his Savior. The great themes filled his mind, and on some occasions he rose to sublime heights, and preached sermons that could do credit to the brain and heart of the masters of sacred oratory. But his work is done. His last sermon was preached from John iii, 16. When the end came he whispered, "No charm so sweet." We shall see him again.

T. W. LEWIS.

I SAY, "AMEN!"

[The following letter, written a year ago, is quite as timely as it was when first penned. It did not reach us until after the Conference sessions began. It has not spoiled by the keeping.—EDITOR.]

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: I have just read the timely article of Bro. Park, of Winona, and think what he has to say anent the approaching Conference of that section should engage the attention and solicit the earnest consideration of every member of the Louisiana Conference.

I wish to make special mention of the first thing to which our brother calls attention, viz.: to "magnifying of the preached Word." It is obvious that there is a growing tendency to set aside or crowd out this most important and needed feature of our Annual Conference. This was a noticeable and lamentable fact of our Conference at Baton Rouge last December, so much so that it became a subject of comment. It will be remembered that we did not have but about two sermons before Sunday. Both preachers and people attend our Conference occasion to hear preaching as well as to witness our deliberations.

Now, I would not undervalue the work of our Boards, etc. It is not to be denied that these various Conference Boards and anniversaries are important—yea, indispensable—but does not this come under the head of the business rather than the spiritual import of the Conference? Indeed, these anniversaries may be spiritual—they should be; and while we would not fail to recognize the design and purport of our Boards, and would by no means underestimate the good accomplished by them, yet we must not forget the overwhelming importance of the direct dispensing of the Word. The man who is a thoughtful student, a close observer, and a diligent worker, has more than once noted the vast difference between "preaching" the gospel and preaching "about" the gospel.

I would not be a pessimist, but it is only to state facts to say that a pure, simple sermon preached in love, having for its end the salvation of souls, is far more reaching in its effect than the most brilliant lecture. Statistics do not feed the soul, and sometimes fail to edify.

Bro. Park suggests that a preacher may even backslide at an Annual Conference. Be that as it may, it is already a sad demonstration of facts that one may grow cold and, in a measure, lose his spiritual power.

The question is often asked, "Why do we not have conversions at our annual gatherings as we did in years gone by?" Let Paul answer. Rom. x, 14: "How shall they believe in Him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher?"

So we say, Amen! to Bro. Park's wise suggestion to give prominence to the preaching of the gospel.

MEMBER LA. CONF.

TO WHOM DOES THE EARTH BELONG?

BY ARTHUR ERWIN.

"In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." (Gen. i, 1.)

"And he blessed him, and said, Blessed be Abram of the most high God, possessor of heaven and earth." (Gen. xiv, 19.)

"And Abram said unto the King of Sodom, I have lifted up mine hand unto the Lord, the most high God, possessor of heaven and earth." (Gen. xiv, 22.)

"And Moses said unto him, As soon as I am gone out of the city, I will spread abroad my hands unto the Lord; and the thunder shall cease, neither shall there be any more hail; that thou mayest know how that the earth is the Lord's." (Ex. ix, 29.)

"Now, therefore, if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people: for all the earth is mine." (Ex. xix, 5.)

"Behold, the heaven and the heaven of heavens is the Lord's thy God, the earth also, with all that therein is." (Dent. x, 14.)

"If I were hungry, I would not tell thee: for the world is mine, and the fullness thereof." (Psalm l, 12.)

"Who hath prevented me, that I should repay him? whatsoever is under the whole heaven is mine." (Job xli, 11.)

"The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof: the world, and they that dwell therein." (Psalm xxiv, 1; I. Cor. x, 26.)

"The Father loveth the Son, and hath given all things into his hand." (John iii, 35.) "I and my Father are one." (John x, 30.) "All things that the Father hath are mine." (John xvi, 15.)

These quotations from the Word of God should be carefully considered by all Christians, and an honest effort made to use all things according to the will of the Father as revealed through his Son and the Holy Spirit. The righteousness of God should prevail rather than the righteousness of the law. "The law and the prophets were until John, but since then the kingdom of heaven is preached." The law was for the sons of Abraham, but a new order obtains for the sons of Abraham's God.

Unskillful Handling of the Deep Things of God.

REPLY TO BROTHER BASS.

BY REV. L. S. JONES.

Nothing affords us more pleasure than to turn on the light for those who desire to see the truth more clearly. Since Bro. Bass objects to the expression, "entire sanctification," though constantly used in our acknowledged standards, we shall endeavor to accommodate him by using the scriptural expression, "Sanctify you wholly," which, of course, is equivalent to "entire sanctification." That the brother may know where to find this equivalent, we quote the passage in which it occurs, "And the very God of peace sanctify you wholly." (I. Thess. v, 23.)

Bro. Bass says, "The adjective, 'entire,' before sanctificatiou does not strengthen the term at all, and hence is nowhere used in the Bible." If that be true, why does the apostle use its equivalent when he prays, "And the very God of peace sanctify you wholly"? If the term, "sanctify," is not strengthened by its use, why did he not simply pray, "And the very God of peace sanctify you," leaving off the word "wholly," which is equivalent to "entirely"?

If Bro. Bass will read Paul's first letter to the Thessalonians, he will, doubtless, find that this church was in a better condition than any church he or any other pastor has ever served. (Read I. Thess. i, 1-10.)

What pastor among us has ever had a church to which he could write, "We give thanks to God always for you all," and which he could declare to be "ensamples to all" who knew them? Yet this is what Paul affirms of this church for whom he prays that God would sanctify them wholly. Here we have a church of regenerate believers walking so orderly as to fill the heart of Paul with holy joy; a church of regenerate believers, yet not wholly sanctified, for whom the saintly-inspired apostle prays, "And the very God of peace sanctify you wholly."

Bro. Bass surely can not charge these Thessalonian Christians with being in a backslidden state. If so, how could Paul rejoice in them, and joyfully write them, saying, "Ye are our crown and joy"? (I. Thess. ii, 20.) If these Thessalonian Christians were wholly sanctified when they were born of the Spirit, and were not in a backslidden condition—which no one could truthfully affirm—Paul, the inspired, prayed a meaningless prayer when he prayed God to sanctify them wholly. The fact is, these believers were in a state of partial sanctification, and Paul, desiring them to enter into the fullness of the inheritance of the saints, prayed God to sanctify them wholly, or that they might have "entire sanctification."

Bro. Bass says: "I have been unable to find one single advocate of the residue theory who was able to show the difference between a truly regenerated believer and a sanctified believer, and prove his position from the Word of God. The truth of the business is, there is no difference."

If we know the use of language, we have proven from the Word of God that there is a difference between regenerated believers and wholly sanctified believers. If not, Paul thanked God for a backslidden church; or if not backslidden, for an unregenerated church; or if regenerated and not backslidden, he prayed for something these believers already had, and, therefore, prayed nonsense.

Bro. Bass says: "I do not believe in the residue theory, for this necessarily includes instantaneous sanctification, which is nowhere hinted at in the Bible."

I am glad to say that every church in Christendom does believe in the residue theory. If the brother will read the creed of any or of all the branches of the church of Christ, he will discover that, without a single exception, they all teach the residue theory of regeneration, and upon this predicate subsequent entire sanctification. Besides this honorable company with which we find ourselves, we find also that Paul believed in it. In Rom. vii, 22, Paul says: "For I delight in the law of God, after the inward man: But I see another law in my members warring against the law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity to the law of sin which is in my members." Who ever heard of a sinner delighting in the law of God after either the inward or outward man? Or who ever heard an unregenerated man say, "With the mind I myself serve the law of God; but with the flesh the law of sin"? (Rom. vii, 25.) Again, Paul, in writing to the church at Corinth, says: "And I, brethren, could not speak unto you as unto spiritual, but as unto carnal, even as unto babes. . . . For ye are yet carnal." (I. Cor. iii, 1-3.)

Bro. Bass will, doubtless, say, "But these babes were backslidden." Suppose they were? Paul speaks of their carnality as the carnality of babes. Besides, it can not be proven that they were backslidden. In addition to this testimony, does not the experience of most Christians witness to a residue of carnality remaining in the heart after regeneration, leading to many painful backslidings? Paul felt this when he said, "Now, if I do that I would not, it is no more I that do it, but sin that dwelleth in me." (Rom. vii, 20.)

Our brother rejects the residue theory from the fact that it "involves instantaneous sanctification, which is nowhere hinted at in the Bible."

If this be his only ground of objection, he must also reject instantaneous regeneration, for that is no more hinted at in the Bible than instantaneous sanctification. We teach instantaneous regeneration because the nature of the work implies it; not that it is so spoken of in the Bible. So, also, for the same reason do we who believe in subsequent instantaneous sanctification teach that the work is instantaneous. The nature of the work implies this and demands it.

We said sanctification and holiness are not synonymous (meaning theologically), though commonly used as such. Theologically used, there is this difference: Sanctification refers to the inward condition; holiness to the outward life. The Lord says, "Be ye holy, for I am holy." Being holy, therefore, is something the believer can do. But when Christ prayed for his disciples, he prayed the Father to sanctify them. One is prayer for cleansing; the other a command to live clean lives.

In my protest against urging this deep experience upon babes in Christ, we did not say sanctification is separate and distinct from regeneration; we did not say sanctification is to be obtained by repentance and faith; nor did we say regenerated believers can not grow in grace prior to entire sanctification; but will now say that entire sanctification is obtained by prayer and faith. It begins in regeneration, and is finished in the moment the soul lays hold upon God, and, with deep groanings, claims the answer to Paul's prayer. After being wholly sanctified, growth in grace is more rapid than before.

The brother again asks, "Is it possible that the babe in Christ must wait for a season, and to his surprise find that the 'rosy dawn' of his new spiritual life was partially a delusion, and was not a new life in Christ Jesus?"

To this we answer: No; we never intimated such a thing. But he does have to wait a season in order to know what has been wrought in him by the Holy Spirit, and to comprehend what is yet to be done for him before he can truly say, "I am wholly sanctified." Who that has felt the soul of Jesus fully possessed in conversion has not sooner or later been forced to say:

"Prone to wander, Lord, I feel it;
Prone to leave the God I love."

And that this sad experience may not linger, says:

"Here's my heart, oh, take and seal it;
Seal it for thy courts above."

This is the experience, sooner or later, of well-nigh all. It is now that the soul begins to see itself, and begins to groan for perfect deliverance from inward remaining corruption.

Our brother again says with reference to the statement that it requires time for the regenerate to realize that there is a dark something left within: "This is to say, in substance, that it requires time for the regenerate to find out that he was mistaken; that he was not made a new creature in Christ Jesus: that God had not saved him from the guilt and power of sin, but that he must take a second trial at it."

This misconstruction can be equaled by nothing save the sad condition in which it places the regenerated believer. I wonder if Paul saw the Thessalonian Christians in this sad plight, and was moved by the vision to pray, "And the very God of peace sanctify you wholly"?

I will close by saying that the views herein stated with reference to entire sanctification are both scriptural and Methodistic, and that my protest against urging this deep experience upon babes in Christ is based upon logic and sound wisdom.

And now may "the very God of peace sanctify" us as a church "wholly," "and preserve us blameless till the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ."

Millsaps College Letter.

BY PROF. B. E. YOUNG.

President W. B. Murrah spent last Sunday in Meridian, where he assisted in the dedication of a new church. He goes next Sunday to Macon, Miss., where he will attend the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the church at that place, preaching the anniversary sermon.

Last Friday morning, in response to an invitation from President Murrah, Hon. R. H. Henry, World's Fair Commissioner from Mississippi, called at the college and made a talk to the students in regard to the fair, and the scope of the exhibit which Mississippi intends to make there. Alluding to the work of our colleges, Mr. Henry pointed out that students could be of immense service to the cause, and pointed out some ways in which their help would be of value. At the conclusion of the address the co-operation of the faculty and students in preparing the educational exhibit was pledged. It is expected to make the educational exhibit a very interesting one, and all the schools and colleges in the State have been asked to co-operate with Mr. Henry and the Commission.

The college community was much gratified, last week, to welcome President Henry Beach Carre, of Centenary College, who paid a short visit to Prof. J. M. Sullivan while on his way home from the meeting of the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges. President Carre occupied the pulpit of the First Church both morning and evening, and gave us two strong and learned sermons.

Recent gifts to the college library have come from Prof. G. L. Harrell, Rev. C. N. Guice, Rev. J. R. Countiss, Rev. W. L. Duren, and Maj. R. W. Millsaps. Our former beloved professor, Dr. A. M. Muckenfuss, has also remembered us with an important contribution. It is earnestly desired to complete the college's collection of documents and articles pertaining to its own history. At present the writer is trying to form a complete file of the catalogues of the institution, and finds it difficult to get the early numbers. We shall be very grateful to any reader of the ADVOCATE who will favor us with any early number of this catalogue down to 1899. Copies of the earliest commencement invitations and programmes would also be welcomed.

Dr. T. B. Holloman was with us on Nov. 13, and conducted chapel exercises.

On last Sunday, Prof. A. H. Shannon occupied the pulpit of the West Capitol Street Church.

Prof. D. H. Bishop, of the Department of English, represented the college at the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges, which was held at Oxford, Miss. He reports a highly interesting session, participated in by representatives from almost all the principal Southern universities, colleges, and preparatory schools, and by "fraternal delegates" from a number of institutions north of the "line."

Our visitors' list includes Rev. W. L. Duren, '02, of Vaiden, Miss., who is well known to our readers by his prominence in oratorical and literary lines; A. W. Fridge, 1901; F. M. Glass, '01, and A. A. Hearst—all rising young alumni.

Major R. W. Millsaps attended the Bankers' Convention at New Orleans, last week, and reports an exceptionally interesting session.

Perhaps never before in its history has Millsaps College had a more representative group of young ministers in attendance as students. Most of them are good scholars, diligent and earnest in their duties in class, but we are glad to note that they are, one and all, active in all departments of college activity. Not alone in such active Christian institutions as the Y. M. C. A., but in literary work, college society work, in daily social activities, is their influence seen. We believe that no college in this country has a more upright set of young men as student-body than has Millsaps College, and a great deal of the credit therefore is due to these young ministers whom we have with us each year.

Carthage, Miss.

In the fourth Quarterly Conference, Carthage circuit, Forest district, Mississippi Conference:

To Whom These Presents Come—Greeting:

Whereas, Bro. T. L. Mellen has been our presiding elder in this district for the last four years; And, whereas, Bro. Mellen has done a faithful and earnest work in our district, and has, by his laborious work, brought our district to the front, making it one of the most desirable in the Mississippi Conference; And, whereas, Under the time-limit of our church he necessarily goes from us, we, therefore, commend him to the people wherever he may go, praying God's blessings upon him.

Whereas, Our beloved pastor, Bro. M. L. White, has been our pastor for the past four years, and has done a faithful and very helpful work in our circuit, and has wonderfully built up the work, and has labored hard in and out of season to do his Father's will, surely we have never given up a pastor that has so completely won the love and respect of all our people. We commend him to the people wherever he may go as a faithful servant in our Master's cause. May God's richest blessing rest upon and abide with him!

Spiritually, our circuit has grown steadily under his four-years' ministry until most of the churches have doubled their membership; and, financially, the circuit has steadily grown until this year we feel confident we will report everything in full.

Now, be it resolved by this fourth Quarterly Conference, by a unanimous vote, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication, and the same be spread upon the Minutes of our Quarterly Conference.

Fourteen consecutive numbers of a first-class magazine, including an elaborate Christmas issue, sold at retail for 25 cents, a beautifully executed Art Calendar, finely lithographed on three sheets—such is the offer which Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly, of 141 Fifth avenue, New York City, makes to any reader of this paper who will send $1 subscription at once. The calendar bears on each of its three sheets a graceful figure of a college girl, dressed appropriately in the colors of one of the great collegea, the college seal and the college yell, the whole embodying the complete college idea. The editor acknowledges receipt of the beautiful calendar, for which the Frank Leslie Popular Monthly publishers will please accept thanks. The calendar is a beauty.

Itching Skin

Distress by day and night—

That's the complaint of those who are so unfortunate as to be afflicted with Eczema or Salt Rheum—and outward applications do not cure. They can't.

The source of the trouble is in the blood—make that pure and this scaling, burning, itching skin disease will disappear.

"I was taken with an itching on my arms which proved very disagreeable. I concluded it was salt rheum and bought a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. In two days after I began taking it I felt better and it was not long before I was cured. Have never had any skin disease since." MRS. IDA E. WARD, Cove Point, Md.

From Rev. G. P. White.

MY DEAR DR. BOSWELL: I write this letter for information to my brethren of the Louisiana Conference. I have been a constant sufferer from nervous troubles for many years. Eight years ago I found it necessary to rest, which I did for two years, after which time I resumed my ministerial duties, being sent to St. Francisville charge, then Bayou Sara circuit. Of my labors there I will not speak. Most of the brethren know of my labors at that place. But, suffice it to say, that it was there, during my arduous labors of various kinds, that my nervous system was again wrecked, and my health greatly impaired. I verily believe that had it not been for kind friends, who came to my assistance, and sent me to Cooper's Well twice during my stay, and gave me a sufficiency to bear my expenses while there, and cared for my family during my absence, I would not be alive to-day. Of course, to God be praise that he enabled me to respond to the change and treatment.

Last Fall my nervous condition was such that I found it necessary to go to New Orleans for treatment, which I received at the hands of that kind-hearted and skillful physician, Dr. F. W. Parham, to whom I am greatly indebted. It was Dr. Parham's opinion that it was necessary (as also it was the opinion of other physicians) for me to rest from ministerial duties for a year, and at the expiration of which time we could decide if it be wise for me to resume the work. This I tried to do, as some laymen of my charge well know, and will testify to the same, but it seemed that I could not give up my work; so, at the very last minute, I got off to Conference. I was sent to Plaquemine and Donaldsonville, which work was entirely too large for me in my present condition, and as proof of it, early in the year my troubles came back on me with double force, and I have been a sufferer all the year. I am now sitting in bed at this writing. Yesterday I got up; walked over to church to hold services. I managed to get through, but it was fifteen minutes before I was able to get back to my house, and was unable to meet my evening appointment at Rosedale. So, under the circumstances, I am forced to take a rest. It, indeed, pains me, but I am unable to do the work, and it is not right that the Lord's work should suffer at my hands.

I write this to make myself understood by all the brethren. I rest, purely and simply, on account of bad health. All have been exceedingly kind to me, members of my various congregations; my presiding elders have been exceptionally kind, for all of which I am truly thankful to Almighty God.

Of course, I am in a bad fix, financially. By referring to the Minutes, one can readily see what a meager support we have had; yet we have had plenty. Our every want has been met. And now, while I must rest from my labors for at least a year, I believe God will open a way for a support for myself and family—my wife and three children.

I ask you, Doctor, and all my brethren to remember us at a throne of grace. Fraternally,

GEO. P. WHITE.

China Mission Conference.

DEAR MR. EDITOR: Our China Mission Conference closed last Monday night. We had a most delightful and profitable session under Bishop Galloway's presidency. He was kind and considerate to all, and I think that the most critical would have some difficulty in finding a flaw in the work that he did.

Our reports showed an advance along all lines. There were fewer local preachers, but that was because one had died and two had become traveling preachers. Our collections for missions was also smaller, but the natives have been doing some work on church building during the year, and that has cut off what they would have given for missions. The work is the same, and total of all money raised for all purposes will be found to exceed last year's sum. Enclosed I send some statistics and the appointments which may prove of some interest to your readers. With kind regards,

Yours fraternally,

W. B. BURKE.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

NEWS FROM RUSTON.

On Sunday, Nov. 2, Rustonians had the pleasure of hearing two strong and helpful sermons from one of the old pastors of the Ruston Church—one of the most popular that ever served this church—Bro. John A. Miller. At the morning service a collection of $450 was taken to pay off all indebtedness on the church and parsonage, to buy new stoves and carpet, and chairs for the infant department of the Sunday-school. This puts our church on a good working basis for the Winter, with every claim met except a small part of the pastor's salary.

Beginning Sunday evening, Nov. 2, the pastor preached twice a day to large congregations, and at the last service announced that there had been 17 conversions and 17 applications for membership. During his three years at Ruston, Bro. Singleton has received, so far, 285 members, giving us now a net membership of 460. The stewards assessed the pastor's salary for this year at $1,500, and seem to be having no trouble in collecting it. They have unanimously petitioned for Bro. Singleton's return for a fourth year.

On Sunday, Nov. 16, Dr. S. A. Steel preached to fine audiences.

Our Sunday-school now numbers 375, divided into 34 classes, under teachers who meet every week to be drilled in their work. We all think there is no better superintendent anywhere than Capt. C. C. Henderson. International Rally Day was observed a few Sundays ago, when ninety-two per cent. of the school was present. Contributions average $6 per Sunday. Decision Day was observed on Nov. 23, when 77 young people, who had not previously done so, decided for Christ.

The Ladies' Home Mission and Ladies' Foreign Missionary Societies both have strong auxiliaries here, and both have largely increased their membership in the past few months. One of our finest young ladies has decided to give herself to the foreign mission field, and will probably enter the Scarritt School shortly. More anon. S. C. L.

RED RIVER CIRCUIT.

MR. EDITOR: As the Conference year is drawing to a close, I feel that it will not be amiss for me to send you a few lines from our circuit.

During the last year the Lord has graciously blessed us. Our churches have been made more comfortable, and our people have taken more interest in the work and become more spiritual. While our crops have not been as good as in some years past, still we have nothing to complain of, and expect to have our collections paid up in full.

Our minister, Rev. R. J. Harp, is a pastor indeed. He is an untiring visitor and an able teacher, and urges his people, in sermons of great power, to glorify the name of the Lord and surrender their lives to Jesus. To his great energy we are indebted for a handsome new church which is now being erected at Athens. He has also secured a house in which to worship at Chalk Level. The latter place is not on the regular work, but Bro. Harp preaches there the first Sunday evening in each month after filling his regular appointment in the morning.

We hope the Bishop will be good to us, and return our pastor for another year.

ONE OF THE BRETHREN.

MINDEN, LA.

DEAR BRO. BOSWELL: Our church at Minden will send their preacher up to the Conference with all assessments in full, and some in excess. They are also building a nice chapel, to cost about one thousand dollars, in West Minden. It is for the benefit of the operatives of the big mill. We hope to have it about completed by Christmas. A noble and generous people this! This chapel movement is purely a missionary movement, and is the result of the spirit of the Master in the leaders of this church. We will have a small increase in membership.

May God bless you, and grant that your work as editor of our organ may bless the church for years to come. Sincerely,

B. T. CREWS.

GIBSLAND, LA.

DEAR BROTHER BOSWELL: I am closing out my third year on this work, and it is the best of the three in some respects. We will report something over twenty accessions during the year, and we have expended some money on the parsonage, and have painted a church built last year, and not a dollar of debt on it. I think that we will pay a little over our assessment on missions, though the other assessments and pastor and presiding elder are behind. God has been good to us, and we are trying to love him more and serve him better.

Fraternally,

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

LAMAR, MISS.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: We have cleaned out the "blind-tigers," we think, for good at Lamar. Until one year ago they ran unmolested and almost like open shops, but things have changed. Lamar, with a new, well-organized church and a new parsonage and a lot of new Christians, is a new town. We have held our last quarterly meeting, and everything was reported in full, with excess on salary of pastor. More than $1,700 expended.

Fraternally yours,

J. H. HOLDER.

One misses certain notes of the former preaching which were very impressive, and whose echoes still fall upon our ears with grave sweet melody, each as the profound sense of spiritual reality and affectionate urgency in exhorting men to flee from hell and to lay hold on heaven, an unaffected interest in human souls and an intense devotion to Jesus Christ. To-day preaching is more intellectual and practical. In the former time it was more spiritual and evangelical. What we miss with unexpressed regret is the ancient and winsome sound of the everlasting gospel.—Ian Maclaren.

Life is a pure flame, and we live by an invisible sun within us.—Browne.

A WOMAN WORN and WEARIED

By pelvic weakness and pain and some of the many reflex disorders of other parts in sympathy through nerve connection with the seat of the real disease, cannot be expected to find zest in any duty or amusement.

Sensitive women shudder at the thought of consulting a physician. A natural feeling of modesty makes them dread the embarrassment attending examinations and local treatments.

In nearly all cases such ailments can be quickly, privately and safely cured at home and at very little expense.

In nearly every neighborhood are women who will testify that G. F. P. corrects all functional wrongs peculiar to women; promotes proper periods; corrects displacements; strengthens relaxed muscles, ligaments and tissues; stops unnatural drains; allays all pelvic irritations and makes a woman as she should be.

"I had almost given up hope of ever being cured, out through the means of G. F. P. I have been restored to health. I wish that I could tell all women of this splendid medicine."—Miss Cornelia Peterson, Iroo City, Ga.

There is but one thing more convincing than the testimony of others and that is actual self-experience. If weak or ill in a womanly way go to your nearest druggist or dealer, invest one dollar in a bottle of G. F. P., take it according to directions, and of your own self you will know that it does not disappoint. It is the ailing woman's reliance, the one medicine that, wisely used for years, has withstood the severest tests and more than fulfilled the hopes of the thousands who have tried it. There is no other medicine like it or "just as good," none that can take its place and do its work. Accept no substitute, get the real medicine and it will prove the right remedy.

G. F. P.—Gerstle's Female Panacea, is sold by nearly all medicine dealers at one dollar a bottle, or six bottles at one time for five dollars. If your dealer does not have it we will supply you with it, all charges prepaid, on receipt of the price.

The Commoner

(Mr. Bryan's Paper)

The Commoner has attained within six months from date of the first issue a circulation of 100,000 copies, a record probably never equaled in the history of American periodical literature. The unparalleled growth of this paper demonstrates that there is room in the newspaper field for a national paper devoted to the discussion of political, economic, and social problems. To the columns of The Commoner Mr. Bryan contributes his best efforts, and his review of political events as they arise from time to time can not fail to interest those who study public questions.

The Commoner's regular subscription price is $1 per year. We have arranged with Mr. Bryan whereby we can furnish his paper and NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers when subscribed for separately is $3 net. When remittance is made by personal check, ten cents extra will be charged.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1902.

It seems impossible for Southern people, through their courts or otherwise, to please some of our Northern brethren, in dealing with lawless and brutal negroes. If they are lynched outright, the people are classed as barbarous. If the law is allowed to take its course, and the criminal is executed on short notice to prevent a lynching, the action is characterized as a "wicked proceeding," and a "savage lust for blood." We wonder if our critics would be pleased were we to let criminals alone, and turn our communities over to their tender mercies!

Bad health, it is said, is going out of style; but whether in the list of ailments is included nervous prostration from overwork, is not stated. If it is, and weak-minded clergymen who take a month, or more, of vacation every year, can be persuaded that it is out of fashion to complain, their congregations may be better served, and at less expense to their spiritual interests. It costs every church more than money to send a sick preacher to the seaside or across the ocean.

When every ninth day's wages of the laborers of this country are handed over to the liquor dealers, entailing poverty upon at least one-fourth of the families of these laborers, we need not be surprised at the power of the whisky trusts, and the influence of whisky men and lobbyists over immoral politicians and feeble-minded legislators.

The New York lawyer who declined to accept a talesman on a jury because he belonged to a Christian Endeavor Society, probably showed more shrewdness than depravity. He felt sure that such a juryman would give his client justice, and that was what he did not want. His object was to clear a guilty man.

The desire for great wealth is not in itself a sin, but if in heart a man determines to become rich at all hazards, his soul is mastered by covetousness, and he is sure, soon or late, to give rein to his passion and make some innocent neighbor the victim of his overreaching hands.

The stringing together of words, no matter how beautiful, nor how many petitions are embraced, will not be accepted as prayer, unless they are uttered in the proper spirit, and express the true and earnest desires of the heart.

A man who loses faith in humanity has first lost faith in himself, else he justly exposes himself to the suspicion that he regards himself as about the only good man in the world.

REGENERATION, NOT REGULATION.

Modern reformers who have the good of humanity at heart make the fatal mistake of supposing that society can be raised to an ideal condition by processes wholly outside the realm of grace. That the good qualities of the human race have somehow become degenerate, they seem ready to acknowledge. But the vital fact of death that reigns, not only over the mortal body, but the soul also, and which has operated to separate man from God, they wholly ignore. Of course, the gospel is a myth—a superstition unsuited to, and inadequate to meet the demands of society. With them regeneration is out of the question. Regulation is what is needed.

Under existing conditions it is impossible for the reformers to effect their object. The world is astray because of the misconception of the truth, and it is held in bondage by the gospel, which must be gotten out of the way. The method of accomplishing that end is "by clarifying the truth." That done, the people will be able to see clearly, and the old superstition will no longer hold sway. These reformers may be perfectly sincere, but we have no assurance that they are better prepared to devise and set forth a system of truth than was Jesus and his apostles. As far as we know, they propose nothing better adapted to meet human wants than the gospel. Their methods are not sufficiently radical. They affect only the outer life. They do not touch the center and source of human conduct, because they do not recognize the existence of an inward, moral malady, without the removal of which man's attitude and status in the sight of God can not be changed.

As well as we are able to discover, these reformers propose to substitute in place of the gospel a religion that appeals solely to the intellectual and esthetic tastes of humanity. That is to say, they propose by education and refinement to regulate conduct, and lift humanity out of its present degraded condition. The basis of this idea is that education is the panacea for all human ills—a proposition in which there is no truth. A little observation should satisfy any intelligent man that it is utterly false. The masses of men were never better educated than they are to-day; yet there was never more wickedness than now exists. And the wickedness, which occasions all the evil, natural and moral, is not confined to the uneducated classes of society. Those acts of wickedness which more generally affect society and the State, as a rule, are committed by persons of education, and who move in good society. Nor is the common forms of wickedness, which principally affect the individual and his immediate family, confined to the ignorant. This everybody knows.

Every student of the gospel sees at a glance that the work proposed is purely a reformation, a work far short of what is demanded by the gospel, and that, to effect it, human aid only is called into requisition, whereas the gospel attributes the needed work to the agency of the Holy Spirit, teaching that man is so far gone from God and from original righteousness "that he can not turn and prepare himself by his own natural strength and works to faith and calling upon God." The gospel demands the regeneration of the human heart, which regeneration is to be preceded by "repentance toward God and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ." This work, even in its incipient stages, is by the power of God. "It is the Spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing."

We note further in this connection that the reformers who appeal to the intellectual and esthetic tastes of men ignore the principal purpose of the gospel, viz.: the purification of the soul form the defilement of sin. Possibly this is because the doctrine of human depravity finds no place in their system save as the result of the actual transgressions of men. But the gospel teaches that depravity is inherent as well as acquired, and that nothing short of divine grace can so counteract and change the natural bent as to regulate the life, and render the individual wholly acceptable to God. The life may be regulated in perfect accord with the outward requirements of the Word, and the individual outside the pale of salvation. Jesus found a young man of this character, one who had never openly violated the divine law; yet said our Lord, "One thing thou lackest." And so we may say of all who seek to regulate life without first rectifying the heart.

If the gospel is of God, then every effort of men to reform the world, whether it includes the world's regeneration, or merely seeks to regulate life along external lines, will prove a failure. Jesus said, "Ye must be born again." This was a new statement to "a teacher in Israel." It brought forth a question which showed that the inquirer was not only ignorant of what Jesus said, but incredulous. "How can a man be born when he is old?" But Jesus insisted, and added, "Except a man be born of water and the Spirit, he can not enter into the kingdom of God." We are to be born of water and the Spirit; not of education and culture. This requirement is made because such is the natural state of man—a state of guilt and uncleanness—that nothing short of a new creation and new life, divinely wrought, can prepare him for communion with God on earth, or salvation in heaven.

Regulation is well enough, for the life must be conformed to the will of God. Christians must walk uprightly before the world, but without regeneration the Christian life is pure formality; the man who professes is nothing more than a tree which is all leaf, but no fruit. He is but a whited sepulcher, full of dead men's bones. We lose sound footing whenever we tread on ground outside the gospel. The world can never outlive the necessity for regeneration.

WIFE AND MOTHER.

It is a delicate thing these days to write anything of the modern woman, especially if the writing smacks of fogyism. Old things have passed away, and the women, like the men, are seeking after new things. The time was, when to be wife and mother was the highest ambition of every true woman. This was the natural feeling, and it was cherished, because to be the wife of a noble man, and the mother of bright and good boys and girls, gave the woman so blessed a position in society that she could never, under different conditions, have attained. Her husband praised her, her children adored her, and her neighbors honored her.

To be a wife now, under certain conditions, is, perhaps, as desirable as at any former time. Women try to make "good catches" as ever, and in the effort make themselves as attractive as ever. Perhaps never before did they go to such lengths—many of them spending fortunes on dress, cosmetics, etc., for no other purpose than to attract attention. To be a mother is quite a different thing. To rear children is a tax on strength, time and patience—such a tax as many will not endure. Witness the number of childless couples, and the smallness of the number of homes where only one or two little ones are found. The home with a large number of children is the exception, not the rule. And the childless houses are those owned by men and women well able to care for children—far more able than many who are fulfilling their God-given mission.

We may well pause and inquire why this is true. Why are so many young men and women, particularly in our cities, disinclined to marry? It may be that the men are to blame. We think they are in part, but we believe the larger blame is to be laid at the door of the women. They have imbibed the commercial spirit of the age. They are fascinated with the idea of money-making, and are giving themselves to business life, many of them going into places for which neither God or nature ever designed them, and into which some of them should not be allowed to enter. We have lady clerks, lady type-writers, type-setters and teachers; women doctors, lawyers and preachers, lecturers and politicians. Indeed, they are found almost everywhere. They are a vast army working for wages—distressingly small in many instances, but the money is their own, and this is the incentive to work—the main reason why many will sacrifice their opportunity to become home-makers and the joyful mothers of children. This is a sordid and selfish view of life, and a defiance of the plan and purpose of God. For this perversion of God's order our modern life in its teaching and training is largely responsible. Said a president of an industrial school, not long ago, in awarding a diploma to a young lady: "This lady is now prepared to take full charge of a printing office." It would have been no strange thing had she gone out and established a newspaper and a job printing office, or, failing in that, sought the job of a journeyman boss. With such a compliment from her president, nothing short of a boss-printer would have satisfied her ambition. The same spirit rules in other lines.

How refreshing to turn to something like the following, which is taken from the Christian Work: "A few ladies were discussing their different occupations recently, when one of the brightest and most intelligent of them all said: 'Well, my profession is the very prosaic one of house-keeper and house-tender, and all pertaining to the requirements of a family; that absorbs most of my time at present.' And a lady, with sadder eyes, was quick to reply: 'The most blessed and desirable occupation that a woman can have.' And remember that it is not only the mother herself, but the one who helps her, that makes home in many an instance the dearest spot on earth."

COMING TO THE AID OF THE FAITHFUL.

It has been known for some time that His Holiness, Pope Leo, purposed the appointment of a commission, to be made up of cardinals, for "promoting the study of the Holy Scriptures." The duties imposed on the men who compose the council are onerous, and while the instructions given seem to allow great latitude, they are really restricted, for they are to be guided in their investigations by the fundamental principles of the Catholic faith. By this we are to understand that while in their researches they are to have recourse to all sources of information, and freedom to set forth individual opinions and discuss them, they are not to put forth any opinion contrary to the generally accepted faith. And this is borne out by the fact that "all matters treated by the council in general will be referred to the Pontiff by that one of the consultors whom the Pontiff shall have appointed for this purpose." Looking at the matter from a Protestant standpoint, this commission seems utterly useless.

We all know what the Roman Catholic Church teaches in regard to the Holy Scriptures, and are ready to acknowledge its reverence for the Book, and it seems to us that unless the Pope is desirous of conceding something to the higher critics—which something the commission may suggest—he could have cut the whole matter short by declaring his infallible mind, for is he not the court of last resort when it comes to questions of law and gospel? Why should he wait the results of the commission's investigations to "declare what is to be inviolably held by Catholics, what is to be reserved for further investigation, and what is to be left to the judgment of private individuals"? It looks very much as if the Pope were preparing a way for the higher critics to escape the anathema of the church, and for the accommodation of that class who desire larger liberty in the interpretation of the Word of God.

Pope Leo is evidently uneasy, if not alarmed, at the progress the world is making in the study of the Scriptures, and the effect that the general spread of the Scriptures is having on the "Holy Roman Church." Protestantism is, doubtless, modifying Romanism in this country, as well as making great headway in other countries. Otherwise, we think the Pope would not manifest so much concern. But if he is concerned for the outside world, non-Catholics should thank him, for certainly his learned commission will further throw light on the Scriptures, and strengthen their faith.

OF INTEREST TO PREACHERS.

We have received from the Southeastern Passenger Association a copy of Passenger Tariff, containing rates, rules and regulations of the railroad lines relative to transportation for clergy, etc., during the year 1903. Each company will continue to issue its own individual permits.

Among persons named to whom special permits will be granted are some who heretofore have not shared this advantage. Foreign and home missionaries engaged exclusively in ministerial work, having no other occupation, upon presentation of proper credentials. Members of properly constituted religious organizations wearing a distinctive garb and performing duties similar to those of Sisters of Charity, actually in service, having no other occupation, upon presentation of proper credentials. Families of ministers changing their pastoral locations will be accorded the same rate as announced for ministers themselves.

This last concession will be of great help to many poor preachers.

Bishop Joseph S. Key.

Bishop Joseph S. Key has charge this year of the Episcopal District in which our three Conferences in Louisiana and Mississippi are included. He is little past middle life, but is in vigorous health, and will be able to give to the hard work before him the strength, both of body and mind, of many younger men. He is not a stranger in this section of the church, having presided at previous sessions of the Conferences. He was among us four years ago, and will receive a cordial welcome at the hands of all the brethren. He will find the church throughout our bounds in peace, and the brethren in love with one another.

Until a man properly governs his life, and fully trusts in God, he has no right to complain at the dispensations of Providence.

Book Notices.

We dipped into the pages of this "religious fiction" with eagerness, but have not had time to complete the reading. It is a tale of absorbing interest, founded largely on fact. It is a tale of early life in the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley. Our young people will be fascinated, and the middle-aged and old ones can find pleasure and profit in its pages. The book is the work of one of our own young and rising preachers, and we hope he will receive such encouragement as will prompt him to write again. We expect to refer to the book again. Order of the author at Schlater, Miss., or of Bigham & Smith, Nashville, Tenn.

THE DICTUM OF REASON ON MAN'S IMMORTALITY, OR DIVINE VOICES OUTSIDE OF THE BIBLE. By Rev. David Gregg, D. D. New York: E. B. Treat and Company. 1902. Price, 50 cents.

This booklet of seventy-four pages is "much in little." It is a fine treatise on an important subject in the plainest language. The author treats his subject in two particulars: The Right of Reason to Be Heard on Man's Immortality, and the Method which Reason Follows in Dealing with the Subject. We have read the book with no little interest, and have marked many passages of strength and surprising beauty for future reference. The reading will amply compensate any person who is desirous of information on the subject treated. It will be sent postpaid by the publishers.

PERSONAL.

Rev. V. D. Skipper, the popular pastor at Edwards, Miss., will remove to Georgel, Va. The ADVOCATE will very greatly miss Brother Skipper, but wishes him even greater successes in his new field of labor.

A letter from Bro. J. A. Goad, P. C., Pope, Miss., tells us of the burning of Chapel Hill Church on Nov. 28. The fire was caused by a defective flue, and there being no insurance, entailed a total loss of $1,000.

Dr. F. N. Parker preached an excellent sermon Thanksgiving Day at the union service held at Carondelet Street Church. He was greeted by a large congregation of representative men and women, who gave him marked attention.

Rev. M. F. Johnson, pastor of Carrollton Avenue Church, was summoned, last week, by telegram to his home in a distant part of the State, on account of the serious illness of a sister. The particulars of her sickness we have not learned.

The editor left last Friday for Tennessee on a visit to his aged mother. From there he will go to Tupelo, the seat of the North Mississippi Conference, where he hopes to meet with, and enjoy the company of his brethren. We expect a happy time.

The Rev. S. B. Beall, an old Louisianian, now of West Texas, in a note asking change of address from San Antonio to Kyle, Texas, says, "After three years labor in the city we have moved to Kyle, a delightful charge in the mountains." We hope our brother may have great success in his new field.

The Hot Springs (Ark.) Daily News gives a lengthy account of the last service held by Dr. Julian C. Brown at Central Church, in that city. The News further says in an editorial note: "There was a marvelous ovation tendered Dr. Brown at Central Church last night (the twenty-third) upon the occasion of his farewell sermon, closing a remarkable pastorate of four years. It was a popular testimonial of a whole community to a great preacher, and expressive of the high esteem in which he is held."

We are pleased to acknowledge receipt of a letter containing $15 in currency, with directions for the amount to be applied to the cause of missions. The giver thought best that his name and postoffice remain unknown to the world; therefore, did not favor us with either. Some of our readers will call to mind that about one year ago we received a somewhat larger donation in the same manner. We may safely guess this last amount came from the same silent giver. The $15 will be applied as directed.

Rates to Mississippi Conference.

By special request, I furnish through the ADVOCATE information about railroad connections at Jackson for Natchez. By present schedules, trains leave Jackson for Natchez at 6:15 a. m. and 2:45 p. m.

No trains coming into Jackson connect within an hour or two, with the 6:15 a. m. train to Natchez, except the following: No. 1, southbound, I. C., arriving here about 4:30 a. m.; No. 1, west-bound, Q. and C., arriving here about 5:39 a. m.

The following trains connect with the 2:45 p. m. trains to Natchez: Nos. 4 and 24, I. C. north-bound, arriving here 2:34 p. m. and 1:05 p. m.; No. 3, I. C. south-bound, arriving here 2:45 p. m.; No. 3, Q. and C. west-bound, arriving here 2:20 p. m.; No. 4, Q. and C. east-bound, arriving here 2:25 p. m.; No. 2 G. and S. I. north-bound, arriving here 2:00 p. m.

I am informed by the agent here that a change of schedule on the I. C. may be expected about Dec. 7, and, while this may not seriously alter present connections, those interested would do well to look out for such announcement. The agent requests me to say, further, that, when possible, tickets with certificates should be secured through to Natchez. When this is not possible, buy to Jackson, getting certificate, and then get in Jackson tickets and certificates to Natchez. On return, through tickets can be bought at Natchez for I. C. points.

J. A. MOORE.

The train for Natchez leaves Jackson at 2:45 p. m., after all of the big trains from every direction have come and gone. Brethren coming on any trains except south-bound local passenger on I. C. catch this train. A train also leaves for Natchez at 6 a. m. By request,

T. B. HOLLOMAN.

NEURALGIA may not be dangerous, but it hurts. It seems to tear the face with red-hot pincers. Stay indoors and use Perry Davis' Painkiller. The blessed freedom from pain which follows can not be told.

Harriston Circuit, Natchez District, Mississippi Conference.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: I am now closing up my third year on this, Harriston circuit, and am glad to be able to make a good report. We have received forty-two members—a net gain of twenty, and will be able to report all Conference collections paid in full.

Foreign missions	$90 00
Domestic missions	47 00
Conference claimants	65 00
Church extension	27 00
Education	23 00
Bishops	14 00
Bible cause	10 00

Many thanks to the good people of this charge for their faithfulness in meeting these obligations. And also to our faithful presiding elder, Rev. T. W. Adams, for his very efficient help in raising these amounts, and in all the other interests of the church. He has been faithful. We hope he will be returned for another year, unless the Bishop can do better for him. God bless all the people.

Now, allow me in conclusion to supplement my last Indian Mission report:

Mrs. R. J. Cammack	$1 00
Mrs. R. A. Harris	1 00
Miss Annah Jones	1 00
A Friend	1 00

Many thanks, and let others do likewise, and at once.

Yours in the work,

A. D. MILLER

DEAR BRETHREN: At the Louisiana Conference will convene at Alexandria on the eighteenth instant, I trust you will read the within, take notice, and be governed accordingly.

The presiding elders of the various districts are requested to forward names of all persons in their respective districts who are entitled to entertainment by the Conference, and whose names are not to be found in Minutes of 1901. Please forward names of delegates to Annual Conference, admission on trial, and candidates for local deacon and elder's orders.

All members of the Conference who are not met at the train will please report at the Methodist Church, where their homes will be assigned them. All committees on examination and members of the various classes will report at the Methodist Church, where convenient apartments will be provided them for class work.

PREACHERS' WIVES.

All preachers who will bring their wives, will please drop me a card, at an early date, and they will be provided for. Brethren, do not write at a venture, but when you are reasonably certain your good wife will come, let me hear from you. Brethren, pray earnestly that the power of the Most High shall rest on the Bishop and Conference. C. C. MILLER.

To Epworth Leaguers.

Please take notice with reference to the League lesson for Dec. 14, that it is I. Cor. xii, 12-27, instead of I. Cor. ii, 12-27, as now appears on the Topic Card. The error occurred apparently through pulling out by the press of the letter "X" in the Roman numeral "XII." Please take notice for your own use, and call such attention to it in your League column as you may think proper. Yours faithfully,

H. M. DUBOSE.

OIL CURE FOR CANCER.

Cured When Surgery Failed:

EL PASO, TEXAS, SEPT. 14, 1900.

DEAR DR. BYE CO., DALLAS, TEX.

I feel that it is my duty to write and tell you how much I appreciate your Oil Cure, for it is certainly a permanent cure. I suffered for more than fifteen years and tried many remedies, including a severe surgical operation by a noted St. Louis specialist, and nothing ever relieved me until I reluctantly tried your Oil Remedy, and then with little faith. I am now perfectly sound and well and able to work from early dawn till late at night with great comfort. It is my duty to write you how grateful I am and will take great pleasure in distributing your circulars if you will mail them to me, as I know of a great many afflicted.

How a Woman Paid Her Debts.

I am out of debt, thanks to the Dish-washer business. In the past three months I have made $600 selling Dish-washers. I never saw anything sell so easily. Every family needs a Dish-washer, and will buy one when shown how beautifully it will wash and dry the family dishes in two minutes. I sell from my own house. Each Dish-washer sold brings me many orders. The dishes are washed without wetting the hands. That is why ladies want the Dish-washer. I give my experience for the benefit of anyone who may wish to make money easily. I buy my Dish-washers from the Mound City Dish-Washer Co., St. Louis, Mo. Write them for particulars. They will start you in business in your own home. L. A. C.

ANOTHER NOTICE.

Requests for special copies of the ADVOCATE come to us so often that they are burdensome, and we again remind our friends that in making such requests they must send FOUR CENTS for each copy. We can not afford to "send bill," as we are sometimes asked to do. Please, friends, bear these things in mind.

This Select List of Bibles

was chosen by the ADVOCATE to offer to its subscribers after a careful search through the catalogues of two of the world's greatest Bible Houses. It will interest you to read what we are offering in this line.

FIRST, we have the INTERNATIONAL MINION TYPE TEACHERS' BIBLE, which contains 300 pages of up-to-date helps, including maps and the Word-book, which is a combination of the Concordance, Index, Proper Names and Gazetteer; bound in Flexible Morocco, Divinity Circuit overlapping edges), round corners, fine grained lining, and red-under-gold edges, for $1.60. Or

SECOND, if you want a larger type, we have this same Bible in Long Primer for $1.85.

THIRD, of the International series we have the RED LETTER TESTAMENT. This is a book that every one ought to have. It is printed in black and red ink. Every word that was spoken by Christ appears in red ink, while all the balance is printed in black. The paper is extra quality and thin, like that used in all fine Bibles. The Book is 4¾x3¼ inches in size, and beautifully bound in limp leather, red-under-gold edges, round corners, gold lettering on side, silk marker. The binding is soft and pliable. Drop us a card for sample page. We will send you this Book for $1.00.

There is another style of binding for the above Testament we can furnish you. It is in imitation leather, and will cost 70 cents.

The RED LETTER TESTAMENT as a present would be very highly esteemed.

If you want one of these books in connection with your subscription to the ADVOCATE, we will furnish them as follows:

The ADVOCATE, one year, and the International Minion Type Bible will be sent to you for $3.10.
The ADVOCATE, one year, and the International Long Primer Edition will be sent to you for $3.35.
The Red Letter Testament and the ADVOCATE, one year, will be sent to you for $2.60.
The Red Letter Testament, in imitation leather, and the ADVOCATE will be sent to you for $2.40.
We will print your name in gold (one line) on the cover of any book for 20 cents extra.
The Patent Thumb Index will be furnished on the Bibles for 25 cents extra.

P. S.—The ADVOCATE offers apply to old as well as to new subscribers.

THE

Linear Parallel Edition

THE HOLMAN

Comparative Self-Pronouncing S. S. Teachers' Bible

Containing, in Combined Text, the Authorized and Revised Versions of the Old and New Testaments.

PRINTED ON THE FINEST LINEN RAG PAPER.

The Linear Parallel Method

presents in a single line and in large, clear type the texts of the Authorized and Revised Versions of the Holy Bible, where said texts are alike. Where they are unlike, either in language, spelling, italicization, capitalization, parentheses, punctuation, or otherwise, the difference is at once set forth by means of double lines of smaller type, making a readily and easily readable combined text.

[This is a Sample of the Type.]

An Instantaneous Comparison.

There is nothing mysterious or involved about the Linear Bible—all is plain sailing. There are no parallel columns or embarrassing foot notes to mystify one's understanding. To read the Authorized Version, one has but to read the large type line along to any point of difference in the respective versions, and then follow the UPPER small type line through such difference. Likewise, to read the Revised Version, one has but to read the large type line along to any difference in the respective versions, and then follow the LOWER small type line through such difference. This rule holds as to every difference, even to that of a comma. Thus not only the readings, but the comparisons of the two versions become easy, immediate, satisfactory and perfect.

In addition to the Old and New Testaments this edition contains the New Analytical and Comparative Concordance with 100,000 References—the most complete Concordance in any Teachers' Bible. A series of Fifteen Beautiful Maps in Colors, with cross-line Index. These maps are entirely new, and were engraved expressly for the Holman editions.

If you want this Book in connection with your ADVOCATE subscription, we will be glad to furnish both the Bible and the ADVOCATE, one year, for $7.00.

WHAT A SAMPLE BOTTLE OF SWAMP-ROOT DID

To Prove what Swamp-Root, the Great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy, will do for YOU, Every Reader of NEW ORLEANS "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Free by Mail.

Among the many famous cures of Swamp-Root investigated by NEW ORLEANS "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" the ones we publish this week for the benefit of our readers, speak in the highest terms of the wonderful curative properties of this great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

Mrs. H. N. Wheeler, of 117 High Rock St., Lynn, Mass., writes on Nov. 2, 1901: "About 18 months ago I had a very severe spell of sickness. I was extremely sick for three weeks and when I finally was able to leave my bed I was left with excruciating pains in my back. My water at times looked very like coffee. I could pass but little at a time, and then only after suffering great pain. My physical condition was such that I had no strength and was all run down. The doctors said my kidneys were not affected, but I felt certain that they were the cause of my trouble. My sister, Mrs C. E. Littlefield, of Lynn, advised me to give Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root a trial. I procured a bottle and inside of three days commenced to get relief. I followed up that bottle with another, and at the completion of this one found I was completely cured. My strength returned, and today I am as well as ever. My business is that of canvasser. I am on my feet a great deal of the time, and have to use much energy in getting around. My cure is therefore all the more remarkable, and is exceedingly gratifying to me."

Mrs. H. N. Wheeler

MRS. H. N. WHEELER

The mild and extraordinary effect of the world-famous kidney and bladder remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for more sickness and suffering than any other disease, therefore, when through neglect or other causes, kidney trouble is permitted to continue, fatal results are sure to follow.

We often see a friend, a relative, or an acquaintance apparently well, but in a few days we may be grieved to learn of their severe illness or sudden death, caused by that fatal type of kidney trouble—Bright's Disease.

THE EFFECT OF THE SAMPLE BOTTLE OF SWAMP-ROOT.

"Having heard that you could procure a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, free by mail, I wrote to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle and it was promptly sent. I was so pleased after trying the sample bottle that I sent to the drug store and procured a supply. I have used Swamp-Root regularly for some time and consider it unsurpassed as a remedy for torpid liver, loss of appetite and general derangement of the digestive functions. I think my trouble was due to too close confinement in my business. I can recommend it highly for all liver and kidney complaints. I am not in the habit of endorsing any medicine, but in this case I can not speak too much in praise of what Swamp-Root has done for me."

421 West High St. W. F. Johnes.

Springfield, Ohio, Feb. 21st, 1901.

EDITORIAL NOTE—If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the wonderful discovery, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful remedy, Swamp Root, sent absolutely free by mail, also a book telling all about Swamp-Root, and containing many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact their very lives to the great curative properties of Swamp-Root. In writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say that you read this generous offer in the NEW ORLEANS "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE."

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

How a Governor Helped to Celebrate Thanksgiving.

Former Gov. Leslie M. Shaw, of Iowa, now Secretary of the Treasury, issued two Thanksgiving proclamations the last year of his incumbency of the governorship of Iowa—one for the State and one for a little nine-year-old girl living in the northwestern part of Iowa, in a country town.

The governor was busily engaged one morning, a few days after Thanksgiving Day, assorting and answering his mail, and arranging the concluding matters of his four years of administration, when he opened and read the following letter:

Gov. L. M. Shaw, Des Moines, Ia.—

DEAR GOVERNOR: Please can we have another Thanksgiving Day, and have it next Thursday? I was sick, and could not eat any turkey or any good things. I ain't very big, but I like turkey. Please let us have it.

Your friend, MARY ——.

Governor Shaw read the letter over twice, and then, calling a messenger, said:

"Billy, go down-town and buy the biggest and fattest turkey you can get, and express it, together with a lot of cranberries and celery and all sorts of Thanksgiving goodies, to this address."

And then the governor dictated to his stenographer his second Thanksgiving proclamation for 1901, as follows:

Having been informed that Mary ——, of ——, Ia., was ill on the twenty-eighth day of November, 1901, and was thus prevented from joining in the festivities incident to Thanksgiving Day, I, therefore, recommend that at a convenient hour on Monday, Dec. 9, 1901, Mr. and Mrs. ——, together with their family and such young friends as Mary may choose to invite, assemble in the family dining room, and there, with hearts full of thankfulness for country, for home, and for the blessed influence of children, partake of such bounties as are usually served in Christian America on the day appointed for national Thanksgiving, and that especial attention be given that Mary shall be bountifully supplied with such portions of the national bird and with such other delicacies as are most congenial to her.

(Signed) L. M. SHAW,
Governor of Iowa.

This 6th day of December, 1901.

That Little Boy.

The Little Boy was fast asleep and the Clock struck twelve. The Piano began a scale, but stopped short. "Well, I can't get any further," it groaned; "that pin is still there. I shall have to be tuned. Twenty-nine times without stopping, to-day, that Little Boy sang, 'Hurrah for the Red, White and Blue,' and I had to bang out the most frightful discords each time!"

"We all heard you and were sorry for you," squeaked the little French Writing-desk. "As for me, my legs tremble under me every time he comes near and throws back my lid—my poor, scratched lid!"

"You young people may have your mahogany scratched a little, but just think of me!" came from the tall Napoleon Desk between the windows. "Wait until you are one hundred years old, as I am! That Little Boy has no more respect for me that he has for his woolly dog. He tried his new penknife on me to-day."

A muffled tone was heard from the floor. It was the Cashmere Rug speaking. "Half the bread and jelly he had to day is daubed over in this corner. You can't imagine how uncomfortable it is to have your face left sticky over night! And I am always left in a tumble, besides being trampled full of sharp bits of nutshells."

"Do let's go to sleep now," sighed the soft, cushiony voice of the Green Morris Chair. "He has jumped about on me so much to-day that I ache still. Good-night!"

The next day two men came in and took up the Cashmere Rug. What a beating and shaking it did get! It was too much exhausted to even groan, when, all clean and bright, it was once more spread on the floor.

Meanwhile a white capped maid was washing all the wood of the furniture in a sparkling soapsuds. Then with a queer dark oil she rubbed and rubbed it, until she could see her face in every glossy surface.

Next came a man with a little black bag and took the Piano all apart; the dust and pins that had choked its voice were removed, and it sang sweetly under his fingers.

Then the Chairs and Desks and Tables and Sofas were put in place and night came again.

"Well, how do you all feel now?" asked the Piano, as the Clock struck twelve. "I am not quite as happy myself as I expected to be. The Little Boy hasn't been near me all day; and, though I can sing now, somehow I don't feel like it."

"As for me," remarked the Napoleon Desk, "I confess that I, too, miss the Little Boy. Now that all his finger marks and the dents and scratches are polished away, I miss them. I have felt like a grandfather to that Little Boy, and I miss his little pats."

"I should like to hold him in my arms for a minute or two, I confess," sighed the Green Morris Chair. "They have pounded every crumb of his candy and cake from my cushions and every little dusty heel mark has vanished."

"It's altogether too bare and dismal," said the Cashmere Rug. "They have carried out his horse and picked up his toys and all the picture-books."

"Well, don't let us distress ourselves," observed the Piano; "for by to-morrow night we shall all have a brand-new lot of love-pats and grease spots, and around us will be the same litter of his toys and things, and they will not clean house again until next Fall."—Clara Marie Platt, in Little Folks.

Tell-Tale Lines.

"I watched that pretty woman the whole evening, and I saw that she was cross and dissatisfied. There were tell-tale lines about her face that spoiled her beauty."

"Suffering lines, maybe?"

"No; suffering writes one story and ill-temper another. That woman is not a good tempered person."

The fragment of conversation gave me a text.

Tell-tale lines are graven on our countenances by emotions which ravage and lay waste our souls. She who would be free from those marks of care and fretfulness which disfigure some middle aged faces must be neither careworn nor fretful. We are the artists of our own faces; we, not outsiders, by the domination of our thoughts, change ourselves from one degree of grace to another, or mar the loveliness we might have. No fretful heart can fail to impress itself on a face that will proclaim fretfulness to all beholders.—Christian Herald.

It was little Alfred's first ride in a sleeper. He had thought it great fun when he was popped into the upper berth to sleep. But during the night a sorry little voice called: "Mama, take me down. I don't like sleeping way up the chimney."—A. T. D.

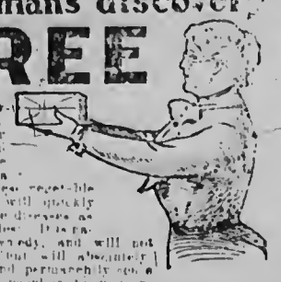
A woman's discovery FREE



By many years of constant study and experiments, I have perfected a simple, harmless, reliable remedy that will quickly cure all female diseases as well as the piles. It is nature's own remedy, and will not only relieve, but will absolutely, thoroughly and permanently cure the almost peculiar to women such as falling of the womb, leucorrhea (whites), displacements, ulceration, granulation, painful or scanty periods, irregular menstruation and all the pelvic ills of women. It positively cures rectal ulcers, piles, hemorrhoids, tumors, itching, blind or bleeding piles in either sex. It cures promptly, privately, and permanently without the repugnance in them in general use by physicians. You can escape embarrassing examinations and avoid humiliating exposures, cheat the surgeon's knife out of his fee and cure yourself at home. The treatment is so simple, mild and effectual that it will not interfere with your work or occupation. Thousands and thousands of letters are being received from grateful persons from all parts of the world who have been cured by the use of this remedy. The first package is free; send for it—send to-day. I know that a fair trial of it will result in your becoming its enthusiastic advocate and friend; with it I will send literature of interest and value. Do not neglect this opportunity to get cured yourself and be in a position to advise ailing friends.

Consider well the above offer and act upon it at once. It is made in the sincere hope of aiding you and spreading the knowledge of a beneficent boon to sufferers. Earnestly, hopefully, faithfully, MRS. CORA B. MILLER, 46 Comstock Bldg., Kokomo, Ind.

Artistic Monuments

Cost no more than plain ones in White Bronze. Marble is entirely out of date. Granite eventually crumbles back to Mother Earth. Besides it is very expensive.

White Bronze is strictly everlasting. It can not crumble with the action of frost. Moss growth is an impossibility. It is more artistic than any stone. It has been adopted for nearly one hundred public monuments and by thousands of delighted customers in all parts of the country. We have designs from $4.00 to $4,000. The company ship them to any address. Send me a postal card, and I will call at your home with my designs.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

OBITUARIES.

Obituaries of 200 words published free. For all words in excess of that number send one cent per word.

Dr. WILLIAM WALLACE GRAVES, son of William and Mary Graves, was born in Port Gibson, Miss., Oct. 23, 1830, and peacefully fell on sleep at the home of his son-in-law, Bro. T. W. Stewart, near Fitler's, Miss., Sunday evening, Sept. 28, 1902. When he was quite small his parents moved to the Pleasant Valley neighborhood, where his boyhood days were spent. At the age of twenty he professed conversion, and joined the M. E. Church, South, at Pleasant Valley. Not long afterward he was licensed to preach, and labored faithfully in the local ranks until December, 1856, at which time he was admitted on trial into the Mississippi Conference. During the eleven years of his connection therewith he served the following appointments with diligence and acceptability, to-wit: 1857, junior preacher on the Fayette circuit; 1858, Upper Deer Creek circuit; 1859, Covington and West Pearl; 1860, junior preacher on Peroy Creek charge. He located in December, 1860, but was readmitted in 1861, his appointments thereafter being as follows: 1862, Yazoo Colored Mission; 1863, junior preacher at Raleigh; 1864–65, Handsboro and Biloxi; 1866, Red Creek; 1867, White Plains. In 1868 he was located at his own request, and the remainder of his life was devoted to the practice of medicine, for which he had great aptitude. He delighted in relieving suffering, and his fervent prayers by the bedside of the sick were often a great source of comfort to them and to their loved ones. On March 26 1864, he was happily married to Mrs. M. M. Henry. Five children were born to them, none of whom are now living except a daughter, Mrs. T. W. Stewart. Soon after his location Dr. Graves moved to Texas, where he remained for about twelve years. He then moved to Forest, Miss. After two years he moved to Gallman, Miss. During the past four years he and his wife have lived with their married daughter, near Fitler's, Miss. Though my acquaintance with Dr. Graves was comparatively short, as his pastor for about a year and a half preceding his death, I learned to love him, and knew him to be a man of saintly character and sterling integrity. Unless providentially hindered, he was always in his place in the sanctuary on the Sabbath, and his presence was ever an encouragement and inspiration. He loved to talk of spiritual things, and ofttimes his cup of joy would run over. He was everybody's friend, and commanded universal esteem and confidence. His usefulness and consecration were such as to render his death a heavy loss to our church at Fitler's. He was extremely feeble during his last days, but his faith was strong. He was buried at Carey, Miss., Sept. 29, Rev. J. G. Cammack officiating. The deep sorrow of his widow and his only daughter, with her family, is shared by an aged sister, Mrs. A. B. Nicholson, two brothers, and a large circle of friends and relatives. May they emulate his blessed example and follow him to the gates of glory!

M. M. BLACK, Pastor.

Mrs. S. M. STILPHEN, of Biloxi, Miss., died Sept. 5, 1902. Sister Stilphen was born and reared in the State of Maine. In early life she joined the M. E. Church, and became a worker in the Lord's vineyard. Her husband being a sea captain and working in Southern waters, she found it necessary to change her residence to the South. About the year 1883 they concluded to buy a residence in Biloxi, Miss. I was in charge of that monthly appointment. Sister Stilphen, on my first day there, made herself known as a Methodist, and while not fully determined as to a permanent residence, wanted a church home, and inquired if I would honor a church certificate from the M. E. Church. I accepted it at par value, and she, noting the feeble condition of Zion in those days, asked if I would permit her to help build up God's cause there. Obtaining permission, she and her daughter re-established a weekly prayer meeting at once, enlisted in Sunday-school work, and to-day Biloxi Methodism is largely indebted to Sister Stilphen for its present prosperity. Noting the presence of seven saloons in the town, she established a W. C. T. U., and became an enthusiastic worker along that line. She was constantly engaged in charitable deeds, without regard to creed or position in society. She felt herself to be God's helper to elevate the community where she lived to higher ideals of life, and most nobly did she succeed. Personally, she enjoyed a close walk with God; was meek and humble in spirit, responding readily to any Christian request of her pastors, and most happy when engaged in labors abundant. For several years her health failed, yet her love for God's cause was continued by proxy. Patiently she submitted to enforced rest, and ripened into a perfect Christian character. Her removal from earth's sphere makes a vacuum not easily filled. She leaves a husband, daughter and son, and a host of sorrowing friends, to mourn their loss. She was ready when the Master called, and had naught to do but fall asleep in Jesus. "Being dead, she yet speaketh."

R. B. DOWNER.

Resolutions by the Biloxi M. E. Church, South:

Resolved, That we, the members of the Biloxi M. E. Church, South, do mourn over our great loss in the departure of our sister, Mrs. Sadie M. Stilphen, who has recently ascended to her palace home with Christ. For nearly twenty years she has gone in and out before this church and community, bearing the standard of Christ fearlessly and courageously into whatever conflict or circumstance of life God called her.

Resolved, That we, as a church, share in the well-nigh universal sorrow of our city in this great bereavement, and grieve over our great loss in the removal of one of our chief workers from our ranks. Truly, we are unable to fill her place, and do pray that the mantle of her prophetic life may descend upon some gifted and sainted follower.

H. W. Van Hook, P. C.; Frank Suter, Sunday-school superintendent; H. E. Latimer, J. W. Farish, D. L. Mitchel, stewards.

Mrs. JOHN H. COMFORT (nee Miss Annie Edwards) was born in Panola county, Miss. Her mother was of the old Presbyterian stock; hence Sister Comfort was reared to strictly observe the laws of God, especially to remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy, which law contains one of the fundamental principles underlying the whole moral structure of the world. She was married to Bro. Comfort in the Winter of —, and joined the Methodist Church very soon afterwards. Bro. Comfort, in his palmy days, had plenty of this world's goods, and was accustomed to pay fifty and one hundred dollars when collections were taken in his church. Bad health kept Sister Comfort, in her latter days, close at home, but there was always in the expression of her countenance that which showed a religious character back of it, which had in it the elements of deep piety. Her convictions on the great subject of religion were impressed upon me on my first visit, after holding family prayers, in the way she thanked me and insisted on my coming back. She died Wednesday night, Oct. 1, 1902 in peace, and leaves a husband and six children behind in this world to follow on after her to the world to come. May they all meet her in heaven!

The Christ of Our Poets.

By REV. H. WALTER FEATHERSTUN, D.D.

12MO. PP. 171. 75 CENTS.

The book is a mine of suggestions.—Epworth Herald.

Thanks to Dr. Featherstun for his timely book.—Rev. R. E. Dickenson.

"The Christ of Our Poets," in the present Reading Course, is proving to be very popular.—Epworth Era.

We only regret that the book is so slight; . . . It holds the reader from beginning to end.—New York Christian Advocate.

He holds up the Christ of poesy illuminated by a new and rarer light, presenting ineffable beauties hitherto unseen.—Mrs. Bishop Morrison.

"Dr. Featherstun's book exhibits wide reading, and a profound philosophical insight into the spirit of these poems.—St. Louis Christian Advocate.

The author employs a graceful and lucid style. . . . Dr. Featherstun has placed us under lasting obligations to himself.—Nashville American.

This charming volume has been made part of the League Course for 1902. . . . Dr. Featherstun has done his work admirably.—Sunday School Magazine.

Your book exhibits, it seems to me, not only careful and conscientious study and good taste, but that rarer and finer quality we call insight.—Bishop O. P. Fitzgerald.

We welcome this volume as a valuable addition to a class of literature which has been neglected to some extent by our Southern writers.—Raleigh Christian Advocate.

The poets are searched for the footprints of the Man of Calvary, and many of them are found. . . . The book makes most profitable reading.—Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

The volume suggests on every page, for which we can never be sufficiently thankful, that the great poets . . . were every one of them genuinely and predominantly religious.—Northwestern Christian Advocate.

"The Christ of Our Poets" is so full of thought, so full of noblest purpose, so vivid in word painting that I would it might be put into the hands of every young man and woman of our land.—Mrs. Callie H. Howe, W. C. T. U. lecturer.

All Christians and poet-lovers should feel indebted to Dr. Featherstun for this volume, in which he shows very beautifully how the poets have ever gone ahead of their time in their conception of a Christ to which the world has gradually been led in its ideals.—Review of Missions.

"Upper Room Meditations"

Bishop Fitzgerald's New Book.

Of the many contributions from Bishop Fitzgerald to the literature of Christian experience, none surpass this. Shut in from the world, he has heard the voice of God in the inner depths of his soul, and the Father whom he loves has helped him to tell what he has felt. No man can be unmoved by these pages.—Wesleyan Christian Advocate.

"Upper Room Meditations" is sweet, edifying, Christian. It cannot fail to do good, and I hope will be read by many thousands. It is a book for a sick room or a house in which sorrow sits enthroned.—Dr. Geo. G. Smith, Macon, Ga.

Those who have read it pronounce it the best of all his devotional writings. He has saved the best until now.—Nashville Correspondent St. Louis Christian Advocate.

It will be very helpful to the souls of God's children, for it comes out of a heart full of love and faith.—Texas Christian Advocate.

Temperance.

ALCOHOL AND WOMEN.

Dr. Heywood Smith Thinks Women Drinkers Are Increasing and Tells Why This Is So.

I think we may take it for granted that drunkenness is on the increase among women, and that not only among the poor, but also to an alarming extent among the well to do. And we may the more readily do so, as, in answer to an invitation from the Charity Organization society, a meeting was held in the Royal United Service institution on the 29th of last month to consider the question of intemperance among women, and to suggest some remedy for the evil; and it was then given as the opinion of the majority of the speakers that intemperance was greatly on the increase among women.

That such is the case witness the provision that is being made for the reception of the criminal inebriates into reformatories that are being established in order to carry out the requirements of the inebriate acts. In those already opened there is accommodation for about 50 men, and for about 252 women, or in the proportion of one to five. So, too, the number of convictions under the act in 1899 were two males and 90 females. Again, in certified retreats there is provision for 131 men and 174 women. And in the recent epidemic of poisoning among beer drinkers in Manchester and its neighborhood the majority of the victims have been women.

Now, sir, why is all this? Why are so many women becoming drunkards?

(1) First, perhaps, to put it broadly, the increasing independence of women may be a factor: i. e., women during the last 30 or 40 years act more than formerly according to their own discretion; they are by common consent, or, if not by consent, yet by custom, accorded more liberty, a liberty which it seems some of them proceed to abuse.

(2) In the struggle for life which this independence engenders there is often the element of failure or over nerve strain, and women, too weak in many instances to bear the strain, fly to stimulants.

(3) The anxieties connected with the home and children, especially where to these are added, it may be, a husband's neglect, or the brutality of a husband who drinks.

(4) We must not omit the influence of pain in driving some women to alcohol as a remedy. To women, not only to the poor, but the rich, come often periodic waves of pain, and at those times the advice of injudicious friends, nay, even of their own mothers, is to take some hot gin and water.

(5) I am sorry that I cannot exclude the not infrequent carelessness of our own profession, for medical men are too apt, should they deem it necessary to prescribe alcohol, to say: "Oh, take a little wine," leaving it to the patient to determine the dose; whereas, did they realize that alcohol was so insidious a poison as it is, possessing as it does the seductive power of inducing the exhibition of larger doses, they might hesitate before they placed without limit such a dangerous drug in the hands of their patients, and prescribe it in more accurate doses, and wrapped, perhaps, on some less pleasant taste.

(6) Among the well to do the habit of drinking champagne and other wines at dinner, fosters a taste that tends to enthral rather than to leave the partaker a free agent. So-called moderate drinking is a snare, as few have sufficient self-control to determine what moderate drinking is.

Among men some of the causes of inebriety are the temptations arising from boon companions; there exists a sort of idea that to refuse to drink when invited is a kind of insult or want of good-fellowship. Again, how often business transactions are sealed by a drink, though happily this is not so frequent a habit as formerly. To these causes must be added business and domestic troubles, and but too often a careless, untidy, or nagging wife drives the man to his only club, the public house.

Men drink in company, women too often in secret, making the detection of the early stages difficult or almost impossible.

We will now just see how this evil of drinking affects men and women.

1. When a man comes home drunk he comes as a terror to his children, who shrink on hearing his footsteps; he quarrels with his wife, as to his food, it may be; he may be violent and smash up his little furniture, and with the broken pieces assault his long-suffering partner. But when a woman drinks she neglects her children, pawns their clothes, leaving them exposed to cold and disease; she neglects her home and her husband, driving him probably also to drink, and so leading to assault and perhaps murder.

2. Again, when a man is imprisoned for some consequence of his drunkenness, the family is indeed deprived of the chief bread-winner, and they are exposed to want and privation, which may, however, be mitigated by the industry of the wife; but when the wife is shut up the family is deprived of the mainstay, the husband is left without anyone to care for him or provide his food, the children are left to run about uncared for and exposed to all sorts of dangers, and on her coming out of prison her drinking habits are as bad as ever, and the house has ultimately gone to wrack and ruin.

I have hitherto referred only to wives, but woe betide that solitary woman, whether the unmarried or the childless widow, who, companionless and despairing in her very solitude, has recourse to drink in order to infuse, if possible, some measure of so-called happiness or oblivion into her probably objectless life. For these sad and unhappy cases, the victims of a veritable disease, measures must be taken (1) to prevent them having access to the poison that is destroying their existence, (2) to help them in their fight against the terrible onsets of the drink-crave, and (3) to build up their health during the process, which, in most cases, is associated with a deeper despair and hopelessness. And in our dealing with these suffering sisters of ours let us ever remember that a tender and human sympathy will do more to wean them from the habit than any measure of forcible coercion.

Among the well to do, facilities for women obtaining drink are being multiplied. The granting of licenses to grocers is one of the chief of these. The housekeeper has no necessity to enter a public house, she has only to go to her grocer and have the bottle of wine put down as candles or raisins or some other commodity, and even the lady in her carriage can there obtain all she needs without even entering a wine merchant's establishment. And to those who have no shrinking from entering a public house there are now being fitted up ladies' bars, comfortably furnished, and in some cases, with a separate, unobtrusive door, where the enemy lies in wait to compass their destruction.

The drink habit lays hold of women insidiously, and of its effects one of the most frequent is the habit of lying—a pretty constant symptom of the disease; then comes unthiness, poverty, dirt, ruin and death.

But before death closes the sad scene there is another effect that is becoming deplorably frequent, and that is insanity; the proportion being of two women to one man, and the seeds of insanity once sown bring forth fruit in succeeding generations. —Dr. Heywood Smith, in Temperance Record.

GERMANS DRINKING LESS.

Hard Times Forcing the People of That Country to Cut Down Their Wine Bills.

Hard times are accomplishing in Germany what the temperance crusaders long ago abandoned as hopeless. There is now a distinct diminution in the consumption of wines and spirituous liquors. It is estimated that never in the history of this nation have all classes been so temperate. Those who have been in the habit of drinking wine exclusively have responded to the demands of their depleted bank accounts by becoming tectotalers.

Wholesale and retail dealers join in the complaint of the hotel and cafe proprietors that many persons now regard wine as a luxury who heretofore thought it a necessity. Maurice Matthai, director of the Kaiserhof wine cellars at Berlin, said to the Chicago Record-Herald correspondent:

"People who formerly spent 20 marks ($4.75) for a bottle of wine are now paying three marks (72 cents). Those who paid three marks are drinking beer, coffee and tea. Germans economize in food and drink only at the last extremity. There is no surer indication of depleted pocketbooks than decreased wine-drinking."

Another circumstance the temperance people put on the list of providential helps is the report circulated by rival districts that Rhine wine induces heart disease.

Report from Meridian and East Mississippi Female College.

At a meeting recently held by Rev. J. P. Lowrey, of Arkansas, in Central Church, Meridian, in which there were many conversions, the pupils of East Mississippi College very largely shared. Brother Lowrey conducted chapel exercises at the college twice during the meeting and the evening service the night before he left, and was a blessing to many of the girls. However, most of the girls had been saved before the meeting. We had, before this meeting began, about one hundred and sixty professions of salvation, which number has been increased to about one hundred and eighty or ninety professions since school opened in September. There has not a week passed but some one has been saved. God is good to us in giving us such a spiritual atmosphere. It would do you good to be in one of our meetings of the Young Womans' Christian Association and hear the bright testimonies of these girls and see their shining faces. It is a glorious work to send out young women over the land on fire for God, to spread the tidings of full salvation to a lost world, and we thank God for letting us have a place in the great work. We have them here from nearly every Southern State, the largest number we have ever had and the finest student body. They will make valiant workers for God and noble helpers to their pastors, if they will only put them to work. Most of them are already active Christian workers. We have a flourishing Young Womans' Christian Association, a Y. W. C. T. U. and a large Missionary Society. Members of the college are supporting two foreign missionaries, one in Cuba and one in China; they are also supporting one or more child widows in India, besides helping the cause of missions in the various churches to which they belong. We believe this college days more to foreign missions than any two churches in the State. They have a missionary library, take several missionary periodicals, and have the benefits of the personal instructions of a graduate of the Scarritt Bible and Training Institute, who is teacher of the Bible and religious work, and chairman of the missionary work. Thus we have a real missionary spirit among the students, several of whom feel their call, and are studying to be missionaries. Besides the regular Bible text book recitations which we have twice a week, Bro. L. P. Brown, who is president of the Board of Trustees, and a thorough Bible scholar, gives the girls a lecture on the Bible once a week, which is a great blessing to them. In addition to this, the girls and teachers are carrying on twenty-five Bible Circles, each composed of six to fifteen members, each circle being led by a good Bible scholar, either a teacher or a student. These meet separately once a week for study, prayer, and to relate their experiences and for mutual help. The president of the college meets these leaders once a week for prayer, consultation, and for report from the circles.

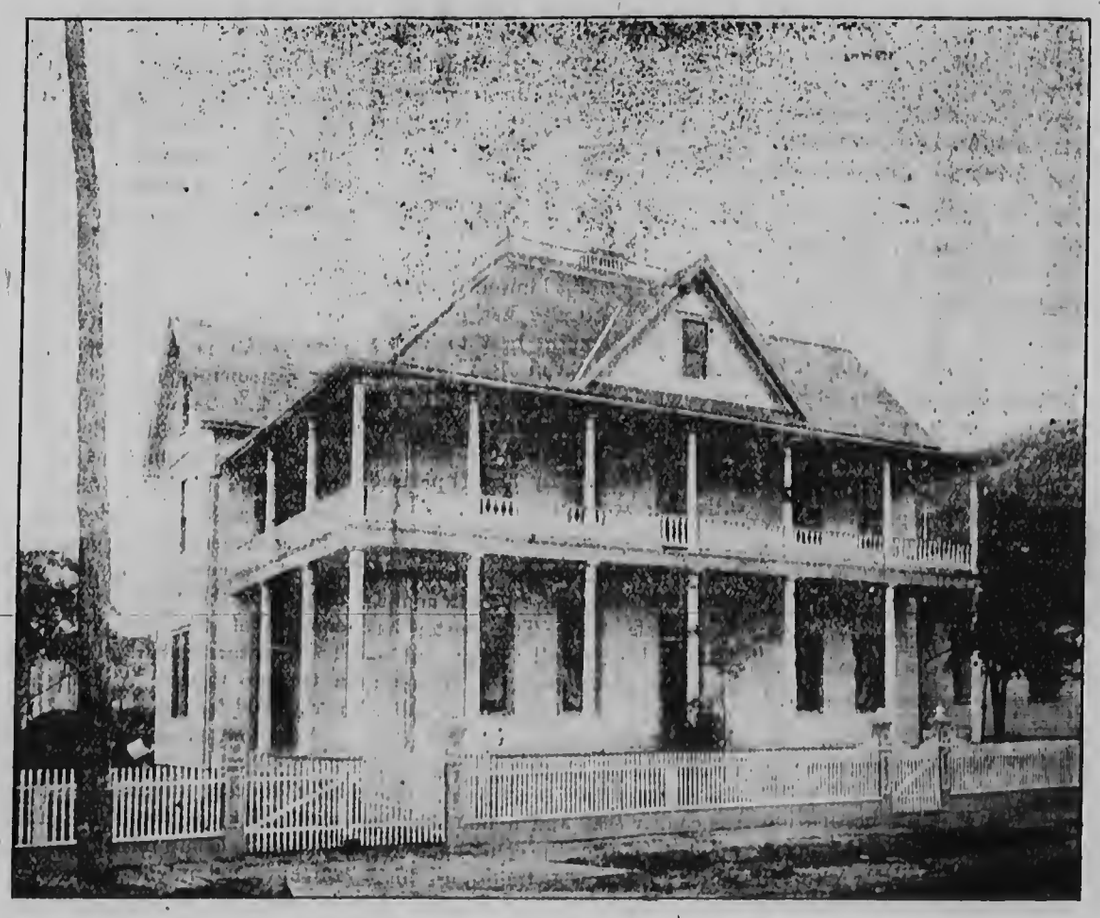
These, together with the daily prayer meetings that are held by the students before breakfast, constitute the power-houses. Attendance upon all of these meetings, Study Circles, etc., is entirely optional, except, of course, the regular text-book work; yet so fine is the Christian sentiment and spiritual atmosphere about the college that nearly all take part in them.

We have opened a new industrial department of the college, and are now allowing the young ladies to do the cooking. We have tried it for six weeks, and it works finely. We have more intelligence in the cooking, and at the same time it enables us to help twelve more young women to get an education. It also serves to train them in this science that has been so much neglected by our Southern women and delegated to the negro. It also helps to break down the idea that it is a disgrace for a white woman to cook. Some of our noblest and most honored young women and best students from the best families are filling these places, and are thus helping themselves, and are doing excellent cooking. It is more expense to the college, but better for the girls. We can use two more stout, healthy Christian young ladies, who can pay the entire cost of board, washing and tuition in some special branch, such as music, elocution, stenography, book-keeping, or dress-making, by helping to cook dinner. They can study their special in the afternoon and night. If the pastors or business men know of some worthy settled young woman, they may tell them of this excellent opportunity, for it will not be open long, and I can not offer so much next session.

The male college has about one hundred bright, promising young men, all Christians but about eight; several young preachers (not a one uses tobacco in any form, and not a one swears). Many of them are brothers of girls who are in the college, and who wanted to be near their sisters. The young men and women are being trained to go out and to bless the world, and to spread a full gospel after the manner of the early Methodists. Truly, God is honoring the work. Let everybody who loves God, and knows how to get answers to prayer, remember our work at a throne of grace.

J. W. BEESON,
Pres. E. M. F. C.

If God give me work to do, I will thank him that he has bestowed upon me a strong arm; if he give me danger to brave, I will bless him that he has not made me without courage, but I will go down on my knees and beseech him to fit me for my task, if he tell me it is only to stand and wait.—Jean Ingelow.



PARSONAGE AT LAKE CHARLES, LA.

Parsonage at Lake Charles.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: If you have not "felt" or heard a "kick" from Lake Charles, it is not because our pastor is slow or indisposed, for he is one of the most wide-awake men in our Conference.

In January last a new parsonage was talked of a little, and at the first consultation, for reasons that seemed best, the enterprise was postponed.

During the first week in September the impression of doing something seized our good pastor, Robert W. Tucker, and after consulting a few trustees and stewards, and finding "all willing," he literally "rolled up his sleeves," and to-day he is moving into the handsomest frame parsonage there is in the State. Some of our people catch their breath in wonder at the enterprise. And when you consider the time used, very much credit is due to the projector.

Bro. Tucker began his soliciting for funds about Sept. 9, and finding the enterprise met with such unanimous favor, on Sept. 15 he rented a house, into which he moved while the new one was being built upon the site of the old. On Sept. 23 he moved, and on Sept. 27 the contract was let to J. H. Murphy and son, members of our church, and on Sept. 30 the work of tearing away was begun, and on Nov. 25 the happy preacher, with his happy family, are moving into a commodious, well-furnished new parsonage. On the first floor there is a hall 10x18 feet, and six rooms, including parlor, 17x18 feet; library, 15x18 feet; sitting room, 14x15 feet; dining-room, 14x15 feet; guest-chamber, 16x17 feet; kitchen and pantry. Up-stairs a hall, four large bed-chambers with fine closets, and a bath-room. In appearance the building will peer with the best residences in our little city, and we have many times been complimented for our many modern dwellings. The good ladies of the Woman's Home Mission Society have furnished it entirely new down-stairs, with modern furniture, rugs, etc., to the great comfort and joy of the preacher's faithful wife.

If you don't know Will Tucker, let me whisper something to you. "He don't do things by halves;" it's the "whole hog" with him. The other half is very gratifying to him first, and then to us. It is, that it is all paid for. And at the least calculation, three thousand dollars have been added to our church property. All due to the earnest, consecrated, indomitable will of this man of God.

At no time during his pastorate with us was he more encouraged than now, for on Nov. 16 he received in full connection a class of nine boys and six girls from the Sunday-school.

The first year with us he built a good church, paid for it; the second year furnished it throughout, paid for it, and the third built such a good parsonage, and all paid for. I trust, with many others of us, he may be allowed to remain with us the fourth year, not only to enjoy the fruit of his hands, of his heart, and of his feet—for, you know, it took all in accomplishing this good work—but that we may soon rejoice with him over spiritual gains, now that he has brought up the material interest so well.

A Visit to Lake Charles.

MR. EDITOR: Sometimes, from narrow observation of a social organism, one wrongly obtains the impression of retrogression. This is true of churches. It is no infrequent thing to hear discouraged men talk as if all prospects were bad and all efforts at upbuilding futile. Thus one would have judged of the church at Lake Charles at times during the interval of years that have elapsed since the meeting of the Annual Conference that enjoyed the hospitality of Lake Charles under the pastorate of Bro. Upton, about ten years ago—the last time I had visited that thriving city. The old parallelogram, barn-like church; the derrick, from which swung the bell, standing at one side, whence a rope entered the church, passed over a sash pulley in a slot in the wall, and was used to call the faithful to prayer and hearing the Word; the school forms and plank benches upon which sat the worshipers under some of our best preachers; the low, small, ill-finished parsonage standing in Broad street just beside the church; the vacant corner lot on the other side of the church, upon which Christian Keener had planned to build in advance of the city's growth, as he anticipated it, just as he was laid aside in the midst of his career of usefulness—these were the prominent features of the picture as I remembered it. These same features, aged somewhat, remained until within a recent time.

An opportunity to correct my judgment about progress came about in form of a meeting of the Mission Committee of the Crowley district, consisting of Revs. A. W. Turner, R. W. Tucker, and your correspondent. It lay with me to name the place of meeting; hence I might have brought the committee to Crowley; but everybody has seen Crowley. I, at least, had not seen Lake Charles since the inauguration of the present building era by Bro. Tucker. I wished to see and to estimate the advance movement by comparison of the present reality with my mental photograph of years ago. Available time did not admit of viewing much of the city. Glimpses of large and beautiful residences as we sped to Bro. Tucker's hired house through the evening shadows; a drive to the depot down Ryan street the following morning between blocks of masonry, stores, banks, new court-house, and office buildings, to the new S. P. depot (similar in style to that at New Iberia and the one now building in Crowley)—that was about all. The place is recognizable, and the blue waters of the lake gleam at the foot of each cross street as of yore. But the Broad Street Church was a complete transformation, and I took ample time to inspect it thoroughly. The old parallelogram is still in the building, but you would never suspect it. With the apse for choir and pulpit built out upon the east side, and an extended nave on the west, it forms the main beam of a cross. The floor is bowled, and the handsome oak pews are constructed on arcs of large circles, whose radii pass through the pulpit, making the most remote seats laterally and longitudinally equidistant from the preacher. The ceiling is finished in natural wood, and is of a groined pattern. A primary class-room opens into the south transept; the north is entered by a vestibule, and has access to the library. The derrick belfry has been replaced by a large square tower of architecture that I did not readily classify, but making excellent effect. Truly, we register progress by these long-distant comparisons that the toilers who in times past wrought towards it did not see.

The change upon the parsonage lot is even more wonderful. The imposing front of a two storied colonnade in colonial style, with solid turned pillars, the roof deck and the ornamental gable, strike one as the impossible for a parsonage type. But Bro. Tucker assures us that this is not the residence of a lumber nabob, but, in verity, the dwelling provided by the church for the preacher-in-charge—in elegance of design, interior finish, and cleverness of conception, not behind any parsonage in the State, and certainly the largest. Broad piazzas, ample halls, large chambers, library, parlor and sitting-room, exposure to the Gulf breezes of the Summer—we have here prospects of solid comfort for the fortunate preacher who is read out for Lake Charles. Bro. Tucker's laudable ambition to make of this work a first-class appointment is not far from realization.

What I have described is the result of the faithful toil of a man who would not believe that to be impossible which he deemed needful for the upbuilding of the kingdom of God. If you wish to go and see for yourself, Mr. Editor, Bro. Tucker will certainly have room to put you in, and you may sit by the cheery, open fireplace of his cozy study, and get him to tell you how it was done, when the unanimous opinion was that it could not be done. And the parsonage hostess, to whose charming hospitality I have been no stranger in times past, will be at her best amid the ingenious and tasteful arrangements of her itinerant's planning.

FITZGERALD SALE PARKER.

Port Gibson Female College.

For eighteen years I have been at Conference at roll call, and at the close have been read out to some pastoral charge. This Conference will be different from the rest that I have attended. My work will then cease as a pastor, and I will thereafter devote my whole time to the cause of education—Christian education. This is no less work for the Master than preaching. Here we have the best opportunity possible for making character. The material with which we work is constantly in hand every day in the week and every hour in the day. Our aim for the college is 100 girls and an endowment fund of $50,000. Surely the Methodists of the Mississippi Conference will give us one dollar per member for the education of our daughters. We have Methodists enough to make the endowment twice that amount and press no one. We trust the preachers will give us access to their people and help us in the achievement of this end. The brethren can aid us in this work by opening the way for me to hold meetings for them during the Spring and Fall terms.

If our preachers will help us, we can put a liberal education with the ornate branches at such prices as will make it possible for them to educate their daughters on a par with the daughters of other men. With many regrets we give up the pastorate for school work. Our pastorate in Port Gibson has been most pleasant, and our labors crowned with success. This is a most desirable charge. Good enough for the best.

In our many journeyings another year we shall remember the ADVOCATE. Fraternally,

L. S. JONES.

ARKANSAS CONFERENCE LETTER

MY DEAR DR. BOSWELL: A pleasant and harmonious session of the Arkansas Conference closed last Monday, at Harrison, with the reading of the appointments. Bishop Hoss presided with great acceptability. He is, personally, very popular in Arkansas, and his sermons, editorials and addresses have been much enjoyed for over a decade. While he is now a strong Bishop, he is always the brotherly man, which is far better. The Arkansas Conference has a strong body in character and intellect. It is small in members, but great in ability, and fine in quality. Such men as Oscar E. Goddard, Stonewall Anderson, Jas. A. Anderson, Jas. M. Hughey, E. R. Steele, J. B. Stevenson, W. N. Waldrip, and P. C. Fletcher, are a credit to any Conference. They do good work wherever placed, are loved by the people they serve, and they lead, without self-conscious egotism, in the great work of the church and the ministry. The membership is 21,639—a slight decrease, though many of the best charges had a gratifying increase. This decrease of the total membership is due to the emigration of hundreds of our members to the Indian and Oklahoma Territories. This has been going on for years. We shall hardly make any great gain until this senseless movement ceases. For all purposes this country is far ahead of the great territories lying to the west of us. The people will learn this to be true in the next decade. Northwestern Arkansas will yet prove the garden and vineyard of the Southwest.

Great advance is indicated by the reports in the character and extent of our Sunday-school work. This gratifying condition is credited to the Sunday-school Institute held last March, in Van Buren, by that indefatigable and intelligent leader, Dr. H. M. Hamill. No doubt this busy period of three days had much to do with it, for there was a fine attendance of both preachers and Sunday-school workers, who drank in new thoughts and new methods from this prince of Sunday-school instructors, only to go back home to incarnate them into the life of their Sunday-schools. Over $1,000 more was raised for missions this year than last; $700 more for foreign missions alone.

The new men from a distance this year are few in number, but we learn they are all right. Revs. J. C. Sligh, of Louisiana, and R. A. Holloway, of the White River Conference, were received by transfer. The former young gentleman is the son of the worthy president and principal of Mansfield Female College, Prof. and Mrs. T. S. Sligh. We know he is all right with such parentage. We lost more men by transfer than we gained, three to one.

Your correspondent was returned to Central Church, Fort Smith, for the second year. His Board was anxious enough about the matter to vote unanimously for his return, and requested their chairman to write the Bishop direct. Those who know me will learn from this of one of the most charitable, considerate Boards in our great church. I shall strive to merit their confidence by better work this year.

Central is a desirable appointment. It is free from factions. There is an organic spirit which is admirable. They give bountifully to any good cause, and withhold not. The promise of this Board to pay their pastor is bankable without discount. The worldly element in the church is smaller than in any city or town church of its size we have ever known. They are united in their loyalty to, and support of, their pastor. So determined is the Official Board to keep out any disturbing element from their membership, that no person who is known to be officious or factitious can be "log-rolled through" the Quarterly Conference, even though the pastor might desire, for reasons which seem best to him, to place the man upon his Official Board. And, after all, this is as it should be, for an Official Board should be representative of the make-up of the body of the membership. Such a Board will never cause any true pastor pain, nor bring reproach and loss to the church.

Yours cordially,

COURTLAND P. SMITH.

SCARRITT BIBLE AND TRAINING-SCHOOL.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: "Freely ye have received, freely give," were our Savior's words to his disciples, and from this injunction we learn the lesson that when we find a good thing, it is well to "pass it on," that others may be benefited thereby.

It has been my blessed privilege to find my way to the Scarritt Bible and Training-school, and I would indeed be neglecting a golden opportunity if I did not enlighten the young women of my own State regarding this institution and the work done here. The training-school occupied rather an obscure position in my mind before our Heavenly Father guided me here. It did not occur to me that it was an institution that should claim the attention of every Christian in the land. It was an institution to me for only those that were called of God to prepare themselves for foreign mission work. How differently it confronts me to day!

First of all, let me tell the young women—and the older women, too, for that matter—that this institution is meant for "all Christians that want to consecrate their lives to the service of Jesus Christ, and to supply the demand at home and abroad for skilled service in Christian work."

"The Scarritt Bible and Training-school is owned by the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions, M. E. Church, South, and is incorporated under the laws of Missouri. The institution is located in the center of the new park and boulevard system, within twenty minutes' ride of the center of Kansas City. Its commanding situation on a lofty bluff overlooking the Missouri river, and its handsome building, make it one of the city's attractions. The building and site are valued at $65,000. The lot and $25,000 in cash were the gift of Rev. Nathan Scarritt, D. D., a pioneer citizen of Kansas City. The remainder of the building and furnishing fund was contributed by individuals and churches throughout the South through the untiring energy and consecrated zeal of the financial agents appointed by the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions—Miss Belle H. Bennett and Mrs. M. D. Wightman, who for several years gave their services as a gift of love. The building was dedicated to the service of God, Sept. 14, 1892."

It gives me great pleasure to testify to the merits of this institution. Our lives here as students are ideal. With such a noble woman as principal to mother us, and to guide and direct all we do, and with teachers that are so untiring in their efforts to administer to our intellectual and spiritual needs, how could it be otherwise?

I send this letter, hoping that it may be received in the spirit that it is sent; and should it meet with the approval will gladly write you later of the course of study, and the methods used, and the plan of industrial work of this institution.

My most earnest prayers will follow this letter home, and may it bespeak a message to those wanting to be more efficient in the service of their Master.

Sincerely, MAY MAYO.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 3, 1902.

Notes from the District.

BY REV. T. B. HOLLOMAN.

YAZOO COUNTY.

Of the eight pastoral charges in Yazoo county, seven are in the Jackson district. By the way, I doubt if there is another county in the State with as many Methodist pastors within its bounds. The Minutes of 1901 show a membership of nearly 2,000. On this itinerary Yazoo City was first to report, "Prospect for everything in full is certain." That Board has no other thought from the beginning, and keep finances well up with the quarter. The Sunday-school adds $100 and the Epworth League $75 to the missionary surplus fund. Are these not entitled to the banner? Bro. Lewis will leave a pleasant charge, which any brother may count himself fortunate to inherit. The city has grown so that it was thought best to have a mission work. And Bro. H. B. Watkins, as its first and only pastor, has done well in organizing and developing. The people called Methodist in Yazoo City are all pleased with their under-shepherds.

BENTON.

Owing to bad weather the congregations were small, but attendance of officials fair. The pastor has been faithful in all things, and expressions of appreciation frequent, but salary and Conference collections greatly behind. At old Benton, where the Conference was held, the changes have been great. Once the county seat and a fine business point, even after the court-house was moved, it is now a straggling, dilapidated village. Within the past two years we have lost heavily here. Brother and Sister Witt have added greatly to the comfort and attractiveness of the parsonage.

Our next point being Silver City, we had planned to spend the Thanksgiving Day in Itta Bena, where two of the younger generation have established themselves. A most delightful stay and, an excellent sermon from our young Brother Brogan.

Leaving Itta Bena for Silver City via Moorehead and the Y. D. (Yellow Dog) R. R., we spent the night in the thriving young city of Belzona. Through the kindness of Brother Davenport, who met us (a stranger in a strange place) at the depot, we were piloted to the hospitable home of Bro. Sorrells, who keeps open house to the Methodist preachers who pass this way. May his kind never grow less, and may every wandering itinerant fare always as we did under that roof! Belzona is the present terminus of the Y. D. branch of the Y. and M. V., but the grading for its extension to Yazoo City is being pushed rapidly, and ere another twelve months shall have passed, trains will be running into that place. This branch will greatly benefit in every particular, giving easy access to the outer world, and making the Jackson district the most easily traveled of all in the Conference.

There will be need for great diligence by our preachers in this section to secure lots in the towns which will naturally spring up along the route. There is no doubt but that Methodism is well in the lead in the Delta, and only wisdom is needed to establish her planting firmly. Intelligent, active men are needed for the work.

Silver City is located immediately on the line. New dwellings and new stores are in process of erection, and there is every prospect for a good town. The depot grounds have been laid out and town lots staked off.

At Silver City, Bro. Moore has been going in and out among the people faithfully, and in this parsonage home we were again reminded (by contrast with our first visit) that it is not well for man to be alone. If a woman can make so much improvement in the surroundings of a young bachelor, what can she not do for an old one?

Quarterly Conference was interfered with by rain. Reports not in because of absence of stewards; hopes, however, for good returns.

Our church here has suffered greatly in the death of Sister Austin. The preacher's friend and the guardian over the needs of the church, she will be greatly missed. May her mantle fall on one younger and stronger!

THE LAST NOTE.

MR. EDITOR: Please allow me one last word. Four years ago, when Bishop Galloway read me out for the Jackson district, Dr. Black, then editor of the ADVOCATE, asked that I send him notes from the field. How well I have employed this invitation is known to all of your readers, and I would here express to both you and him my appreciation of the honor you have done me in printing them. If your readers have suffered, it is attributable to your leniency and the robbing of the waste-basket.

In many particulars four more pleasant years I have never spent, due to the abounding kindness and patience of the brethren, both clerical and lay. I shall ever owe debts of gratitude to them all. Whatever of success has been achieved is due to the zeal and fidelity of those who have labored with me. The material growth of the district (in the four years) is represented by six new parsonages and thirteen new churches. Two new works have been organized within the territory; three hundred dollars' worth of improvements upon the district parsonage, making connections and adding modern convenience, repairing of fences and buildings, and furnishing the home for the greater comfort of the incoming beloved. To whomsoever shall follow we guarantee two things: A kind people, and a field for much labor.

And now, as we come to lay the work down, we would again thank all for every kindness, fully conscious of these two facts: That we have made some mistakes, and that we have not intentionally wronged any man.

Brethren, my heart's desire and prayer for you is that you may prosper in all good things.

Letter from Ascension.

BY MRS. C. D. SIMMONS.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Again this scribe begs the privilege of submitting a few notes to your valuable paper, which may be of interest to a few of your readers, at least.

The Ascension Mission seems to be "holding the fort" right royally, particularly the New River portion. Those people are evidently fired with an unwonted enthusiasm, thanks to the persistent energy with which the preacher-in-charge, Rev. J. L. McManus, has pressed his work in their midst.

One of the oldest and most responsible citizens in that community has donated sufficient land on which to build a first-class, up-to-date Methodist Church; and though this generous brother is a time-honored Baptist, yet he is liberal enough to see the immense amount of good a Methodist Church can accomplish, and the blessings which would accrue to him with one under the shadow of his domicile. The natural order of things is for "the almighty dollar" to show a peculiar tenacity for a man's pocket, but when the sound went forth that money must be had to build this church, men's hands slipped into their pockets with great avidity. They actually seemed eager to give, and promised that as soon as the crops are gathered, teams and all things necessary will be in readiness to begin work on the building.

But one fact should not be ignored: These people often find their dark eyes bathed in tears, fearing that their redoubtable preacher-in-charge will not be returned to them. They argue wisely that if one man plans and another builds, disaster may follow; therefore, he who plans is better fitted to complete than a new, untried man. Hence their silent petition goes up to Conference that he be sent back to them, where the Lord has so signally blessed his labors. Two young men from among his recent spiritual harvest will attend Centenary College next session for the ministry. Must not that comfort a struggling preacher-in-charge's heart to feel that he has been the instrument for leading two more to enlist as captains of the Lord's host?

Bro. McManus confidently expects to carry up in full his Conference claims, and is bending every effort to that end.

Quarterly Conference will be held on Dec. 10 and 11, with New River Church. The presiding elder will be present (D. V.), and the people are already preparing to kill the fatted calf. Truly, the hospitality of those people, regardless of creed, is unexcelled.

In conclusion, it is affirmed by those who know whereof they speak, that the itinerancy of the M. E. Church, South, is terribly detrimental to the accumulation of chickens, the legs of which Methodist preachers are proverbially fond, and such like perishables by the would-be thrifty housewife of the preacher-in-charge. However, to atone for the loss of many luxuries which could not develop in one year, this particular preacher-in-charge has ferreted out the hiding-places of the finny tribe along the shores of Port Vincent, and we doubt not that should he be forced to leave, he would sadly remember the many happy times he had crossed swords with the wily trout; and, oh, what savory table comforts would be his no more!

Now, this is not necessarily a digression, for have not environment and nutritious food much to do with a man's ability to work?

This is a populous and rich section of country, and when the spiritual can be brought upon a par with its material development, then what a host there will be on the Lord's side! But let not those who are toiling in this day and generation feel discouraged, for, "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."

Letter from China.

BY DR. A. P. PARKER.

The China Mission Conference met at Shanghai, Oct. 22, and adjourned Monday night, Oct. 27. Nearly all the missionaries, together with the native preachers and delegates, were present. We had a most interesting and profitable meeting. Bishop Galloway presided to the satisfaction and delight of all. We are glad he has come among us. His kindness of manner, easiness of access, his clear insight into the situation and firmness of decision, captured all our hearts, and his visit will do us much good. Reports from the workers throughout the bounds of the Conference show encouraging results for the past year. The interest in the gospel is growing among the people. The list of enquirers increases at every point. Indeed, it was the constant refrain of the preachers in their reports that they had to be constantly on their guard in receiving enquirers and members in the church, lest many should be taken in who are not qualified for church membership. The preachers have to be especially on their guard against men who come seeking membership through false motives, hoping, in most cases, to get help in law-suits, or to get protection from official justice on account of their having violated the law in some way. But notwithstanding some whose motives are improper, large numbers are coming from a genuine desire to learn the truth. The statistics show that we have now in this Conference, including the Korea district, some 1,650 members, besides several hundreds of probationers. This is a considerable increase over last year, and is very encouraging.

The work in all its phases was discussed in the Conference, in the mission meetings, and in various committees, and plans were adopted for a further extension and development of the work in its various departments. The days were full of labor. Beginning at 9 o'clock with an half-hour's prayer service, the Conference opened at half-past 9, closing at 12. The ladies had their meeting at 2 o'clock; the men had their mission meeting at 4 o'clock. There was preaching in the church at 8 o'clock, with committee meetings, and the Bishop had his cabinet meeting thrown in to make up good measure. Our China Mission Conference, though small, can give a Bishop more hard work to do than many of the great Conferences in the home-land. We have such a variety of meetings, and so many things to attend to, and the Bishop has to be present at all the meetings, so that his time and strength are taxed to the utmost to meet the calls made upon him; but he bore it all in the greatest good humor, and I think there will be a general acquiescence in the counsel and decisions that he made. I will write more in detail in a future letter.

Shanghai District—W. B. Burke, P. E. Moore Church, W. B. Burke; Anglo Chinese College, A. P. Parker, J. W. Cline, J. Whiteside; College station, A. P. Parker; Review of the Times and Christian Advocate, Y. J. Allen, editor; Sung Kiang, H. T. Reed and A. C. Bowen.

The Lumberton Manual Labor School.

MR. EDITOR: I have just finished a big batch of letters, saying in each one, "I am sorry to tell you we can not take any more boys at present." No, I am not through. Here comes another batch of letters that must be answered the same way. Some of these letters are very touching. A widow writes that her husband was killed by a mine explosion, and she was left with eight children to support. Two boys are old enough to attend college. She is willing to deny herself their help, to sew and to take in washing to support the rest, if, by so doing, she may give her boys a college education. This is precisely the heroic spirit that made the Scotch people resent Mr. Carnegie's gift of ten million dollars to give free education in the Scotch universities, as tending to destroy in the minds of the Scotch people that self-reliance and self-sacrifice that have hitherto stimulated their endeavor, and made them the most intellectual people in the world. And yet I have to write to this brave mother and tell her I can't take her boys. Our means are limited, and I must have the generous help of friends to our work to support the boys who are here. But, as sure as you live, the field I have entered is "white unto the harvest." The church ought to do this work. It is what God Almighty expected Methodism to do. Her universities and colleges are all right. God bless them, and make them a hundredfold more useful. But these stacks of letters show that there are hundreds of worthy boys and girls, willing to work and anxious for an education, who can get it only in a school where expenses may be paid with work. Primary church schools is what we need.

I don't know whether I am going to succeed in the great home mission enterprise I have undertaken here at Lumberton, or not. I know the experiment has so far demonstrated the urgent need of such a school.

1. The Woman's Home Mission Society is a legatee of the late Mrs. Lindsey Wilson, of Louisville, Ky. By the will the Sue Bennett Memorial School, of London, Ky., is to have $2,000, and the Parsonage Loan Fund $5,000, and if there is a remainder after the legatees are paid, the W. H. M. Society, the Board of Church Extension, and the Louisville Church, are to share alike. When the will is to be settled is not known yet, though she requested that it be within six months. This is the second bequest the W. H. M. Board has received within the last two years. Mrs. Lindsey Wilson is the daughter of the late Marcus Lindsey, a pioneer preacher of the Louisville Conference.

2. The first Sunday in October five young Japanese men were received into our church at San Francisco. These have been students in our school there.

3. There are six young women at the Scarritt Bible and Training-school preparing for home mission work.

4. Miss Bruce is doing a fine work at Tampa as superintendent of the work. Her field is broad, as there are three nationalities under her direction—Americans, Cubans, and Italians. She is preparing to study Italian, as there are so many with whom she comes in contact. In two months she has established a "Day Nursery," increased the Sabbath-school by more than 50, and is helping our Cuban congregation to make necessary repairs on the church.

5. Miss Mary Peery is in Eckman, W. Va. Miss Peery is making friends in the coal fields, and is at work through our Home Mission Society, the Epworth League, and Sabbath-schools.

Pains in the Back

Are symptoms of a weak, torpid or stagnant condition of the kidneys or liver, and are a warning it is extremely hazardous to neglect, so important is a healthy action of these organs.

They are commonly attended by loss of energy, lack of courage, and sometimes by gloomy foreboding and despondency.

"I had pains in my back, could not sleep and when I got up in the morning felt worse than the night before. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and now I can sleep and get up feeling rested and able to do my work. I attribute my cure entirely to Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. J. N. PERRY, care H. S. Presiding Elder Morse.

MR. EDITOR: Rev. J. M. Morse is closing his first year as presiding elder. He has given his whole time to the work, constantly traveling, preaching and holding Conferences. He is a loyal son of Methodism, and no man amongst us has labored more faithfully. His preaching is plain, practical, effective, and always a pure gospel. His administrative ability is of a pleasing and high order. With painstaking he looks into all the interests of the church, and his coming always leaves us stronger. From expressions heard throughout the year, I think that I speak the sentiment of the district, both lay and clerical, when I say, "He is the right man in the right place." B. S. RAYNER.

Mt. Olive, Miss.

God has promised to satisfy, but he did not promise when. God has time enough, and so have you. God has boundless resources, and his resources are yours. Can you not trust him? Trust and wait. He knows what is best for you; he has reasons for denying you now, but in the end he will satisfy.—Maltbie D. Babcock, D. D.

"There is an argument for Christianity which I can not answer," said David Humer, as a young man, distinguished for his consistent life, passed by. MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

WAYNESBORO, MISS.

MR. EDITOR: This pastor closes here one of the pleasantest years of his life. The good people of this charge have been uniformly kind to him, and, best of all, the Lord has blessed his labors. The salaries of preacher-in-charge and presiding elder have been considerably overpaid, and an excess has been paid on each of the Conference collections. Substantial improvements have been made on the parsonage property, and new furniture added. The remarkable healthfulness of this section is attested by the fact that but three of our members have died during the year—two of old age, and the other of consumption.

Last July the people of Chicora, a mill-town near by, "called" this pastor to preach to them, offering liberal inducements. Accordingly, the presiding elder substituted this place for State Line. There is a "union" church at Chicora, but few Methodists, and not even a Methodist in official position; yet the members of all the denominations represented there heartily co-operate in building up Methodism. Mr. C. F. Darrow, a gentleman holding a position of great responsibility, one of nature's noblemen, is Board of Stewards and Sunday-school superintendent.

Bro. B. B. Davis, the leading merchant at Buckatunna, one of the truest Christian men I have ever known, is the pillar of our church there.

At Waynesboro, Bros. Davis, Lathram, Fagan, McKay and Huggins are all consecrated men, faithful and zealous in discharge of official duty. The religious tone of the community is excellent. All the stores close here during the hour of worship in a protracted meeting.

May the great Head of the church constantly abide within the hearts and homes of these good people!

C. F. EMERY.

MEADVILLE, MISS.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: We are closing up our second year on this circuit, with some encouraging results. During the two years we have had some thirty accessions to the church by vows and baptism. Last year the work came near paying out on all the assessments, paying an excess of $10 on foreign missions. This year we expect to have fuller reports than last year. We are building a new parsonage, which, when completed, will be both handsome and comfortable—a cottage of six rooms.

There are many nice things our people have done for the pastor's family during these two years that deserve mention, but we will only mention some of the more recent acts of kindness.

On Thanksgiving Day we had services at the church in Meadville, and took a collection for our Orphans' Home, and secured $6.25 in cash, which was at once forwarded to Bro. Grillin.

On Thanksgiving Day a storm swept over this community. This storm has been brewing for a long time, but it finally came on the day named, and, as a result, the pastor's family has been made the recipients of many nice things to eat and things to wear.

This is a good people, and the preacher whose lot it is to serve them as pastor need not fear that he or his family will suffer. The people are good and responsive at all the churches on the charge.

A goodly number of our people take the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Pray for us, that all will be well with us, even unto the end.

Fraternally, J. E. GRAY.

MOUNT OLIVE CHARGE.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Our fourth Quarterly Conference was held last week, and was largely attended, and a most enthusiastic occasion. The Lord has greatly blessed us during the year. We have had one hundred and nine accessions to the church; Conference collections are in full, with some excess, and we expect to report all claims in full. We are building at Collins the nicest church ever erected in this section of country, to be completed by Jan. 1.

At Mount Olive the ladies have had the church painted. The indebtedness is about provided for, and pews will soon be purchased.

At Magee the ladies are having inside of church painted, and all of the debt will soon be in hand.

In the near future three splendid churches, one at each of our preaching-places, will be ready for dedication.

Throughout the year we have had the co-operation of a number of faithful brethren, and the elect women, including Collins, have been working actively. The year's work has been a heavy one, but the great Head of the church has crowned it with success.

WESSON, MISS.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: We have had 137 accessions this year. I have baptized 72 adults and 93 infants. We have lost 80 members this year. Seventy-six joined during a meeting held by Bro. Buss for me. He is a strong and earnest preacher. He is truly Methodistic in doctrine. Our collections are all up in full except $7.48, which is covered by subscriptions. I hope the stewards will come all right with collections for the ministry. God bless you and yours. Please to pray daily for us.

Yours in Christ,

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

LEESVILLE, LA.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: As the year is nearing the close, we will let the brethren hear something from this part of the Master's vineyard. This is our third year's pastorate at Leesville, and in some respects the best year. We have not had anything like a sweeping revival, but there has been a steady and, we believe, a permanent growth in both the membership and spiritual life.

Our greatest success this year, in a material way, consists in the liquidation of the debt on our church, which is now about provided, and the erection of a neat, comfortable home for the preacher. The latter is built after a modern plan, with front octagon room for parlor, two good bed-rooms, dining-room and kitchen; five rooms, besides hall, front and back porches. We have been occupying same over two months, and are as happy as itinerants get to be in Louisiana. The fact is, Leesville is just now got to be real pleasant to live in.

I want to say to the brethren that we have a people here whose liberality, according to their means, is exceeded by none in Southern Methodism. Our membership belongs to the laboring class, and, for the most part, live in rented houses.

It is our intention to dedicate our church the second Sunday in December.

During our three years' stay here our membership has grown from twenty seven to two hundred. We have every year reported in full all collections ordered by the Conference, and paid all assessments for preacher in charge and presiding elder. All told, we will have raised by Conference, $6,500.

There are some things here, however, which make our work peculiarly difficult in some respects. It is hard to raise money for other than home purposes. Teachers in other churches have, by precept and example, created a strong anti-missionary spirit. Hardshells and Campbellites were the pioneers in this community.

We raised every cent of our assessments, but the example of the other churches make it exceedingly difficult to raise these collections. So you see what this scribe has to contend with outside of his own church. Then I am in my last year's Conference course—Fisher's History and Tigert's Logic, for instance; prepare two new sermons every week (or remodel old ones), build a parsonage, pay a church debt (the meanest thing on earth to pay), besides various and sundry other duties and responsibilities. Oh, "who is sufficient for these things?"

Brethren, pray for us. God bless the ADVOCATE and the Methodist Church! J. M. ALFORD.

The cross means simply that you are to go the road which you see to be the straight one; carrying whatever you find is given you to carry as well and stoutly as you can, without making faces or calling people to come and look at you. ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "It is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

WHY SEND MISSIONARIES TO ROMAN CATHOLIC COUNTRIES?

There seems to be as much reason for Protestants to undertake mission work among Roman Catholics, as for Roman Catholics to undertake it among Protestants. Yet many people wonder why we send preachers and teachers to Cuba, Mexico and Brazil. And a great hue and cry is raised against Protestants for putting missionaries in the Philippines. We are authoritatively informed by Romanists that the islands are thoroughly Christianized, and they stand horrified at the idea of undertaking to unsettle their faith, as though Protestants were proposing to introduce a new religion.

But are we really justified in sending missionaries into these islands, or into any land where Romanism is well established? Do they need any further light? According to published accounts, notwithstanding the Roman Catholic Church has been established there for centuries, the people, nominally Christian, are but little, if any, removed from a state of barbarism. They know nothing of the elevating and purifying influence of the religion of Jesus. And even admitting that the Roman Catholic Church holds to the form of sound doctrine, such has been the secular and immoral life of the priesthood, the virtual rulers of the Philippines, that the people have never seen any wholesome example of Christianity. What is said of the Philippines is partially, if not wholly, true of many other lands in which no form of religion is known except that of the Roman Catholic Church.

If certain things which we read concerning Romanism in our own country is true, we are prepared to believe there is ground for what we hear of it abroad, and we do not wonder that missionaries are needed. For example: In the city of New Orleans the body of a priest who had led a saintly life, and who has been dead more than a generation, was exhumed and examined for the purpose of discovering whether or not a miracle had been wrought on it. This was necessary to determine the priest's fitness for elevation to sainthood. What character of miracle was looked for, or how the matter was to be settled, we do not know: but solemn dignitaries of the church in secret, with solemn awe, investigated and reported to the Pope. And simple-minded, honest people in numbers testified that by visiting the dead priest's tomb and praying, they were cured of disease through his intercession.

And these same Roman Catholics will hold "missions" in our cities for the avowed purpose of enlightening "non-Catholics," by which they mean Protestants, and winning them to the true faith. If here in New Orleans, and in other Christian centers they will in this ingenuous way—not purposely intending to offend—seek to win non-Catholics to their church, why should we, as Protestants, not send our missionaries to the semi-civilized Roman Catholic lands, and win their people, who are but little more than superstitious idolaters, to the evangelical truths of the gospel? And this will we do, if God permit.

Since writing the above, we have received a copy of the New York Freeman's Journal, containing an article which treats on the subject in hand, and manifests enthusiasm over the success of a mission to non-Catholics in Chicago. The article informs us that more than a thousand non-Catholics attended each evening, and that in the inquiry class organized there "were nearly two hundred." The writer seems to think that all "teaching authority" outside the Roman Catholic Church is breaking down. He was never more mistaken. Non-Catholics are still making head way, and will make more rapid strides as we push our way into the regions beyond.

EPISCOPAL DECISIONS.

At the recent session of the Northwest Texas Conference, Bishop Hendrix, as reported by the Texas Christian Advocate, decided two questions of law as follows:

1. Is the law mandatory requiring an undergraduate to pass his annual examination, provided he holds a certificate of satisfactory examination on the course from any one of our institutions of learning? The decision was affirmative. 2. Is it necessary for a preacher on trial in the Annual Conference to have his license renewed by the District Conference? The Bishop decided that it was not.

If the decision in answer to the first question is sustained, it will be well for committees to bear it in mind. If we are not mistaken, at one Annual Conference the certificate of a wholly unauthorized body was accepted as satisfactory, and the undergradnate was passed.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

The thirty-third session of the North Mississippi Conference convened in Tupelo, Miss., Dec. 3, 1902. Bishop Joseph S. Key was on hand promptly, and opened the Conference in due form, and proceeded to business without any loss of time, and yet there was not the least indication of haste. He is in excellent health, and in excellent spirit, and transacted the work with ease. The close of the first day's session found the Conference routine a little further advanced than usual.

Rev. T. W. Lewis, the genial and competent, was elected secretary for the fourth time, and nominated as his assistants, J. M. Bradley, R. M. Evans, J. R. Countiss. The latter not being able to serve, was substituted by W. E. M. Brogan. G. W. Bachman was also nominated as assistant, with special reference to work as editor of the Conference Minutes, which work he has acceptably performed for several years past. Immediately after the election of secretaries reports were presented from various bodies and referred to appropriate committees. Some of the reports were referred without reading. Among those read was one from the trustees of Grenada College. This report was heard with more than ordinary attention. Of the final disposition we are unable to speak at this writing.

The character of the presiding elders was passed. All of them, without exception, made good reports, not only of the general condition of the church, but of the work of the preachers, who have been faithful and diligent. The presiding elders are W. T. J. Sullivan, J. W. Bell, J. H. Mitchell, W. S. Lagrone, J. W. Dorman, W. M. Young, W. W. Woollard, N. G. Augustus and T. W. Dye.

The following brethren, some of whom have been on the honor roll for several years, were referred to the Committee on Conference Relations for the superannuated relation, viz.: C. N. Terry, J. M. Hampton, W. R. Ratley, S. A. Ellis, J. W. Peston, A. P. Leech, A. P. Sage, J. B. Stone, T. G. Freeman, J. T. Cunningham, J. D. Newsom, G. H. Jacobs, W. D. Burroughs, K. M. Harrison, R. M. Davis, T. L. Foster, J. M. Barnes, and Thos. Cameron. The majority of these brethren have done hard and faithful service for many years. They retire with the benedictions of the Conference. Others are prematurely forced to rest on account of sickness. The prayers of the brethren, and their sympathies, go with them.

Only one of our number has died during the year, the lamented A. J. Foster. He died in his prime—a man full of faith and the Holy Ghost. He was a notable character in the Conference, one in whom everybody had the utmost confidence, and whose company was enjoyed by all. No man could be more missed than he. He died at his post.

The sermon of Rev. J. W. Honnoll, delivered the first evening of the Conference, was an admirable presentation of gospel truth, and produced a fine impression on the large congregation. It was followed by the Lord's Supper, administered by Dr. J. D. Cameron. It was a season of great refreshing. A very large number of persons, besides the preachers, communed, and enjoyed the service.

Much of routine business was transacted on the second day. All the questions relative to the undergraduates were asked and answered except as to those who were entitled to admission into full connection, and to those making application for admission. Two reports on education were presented and adopted. Great interest was aroused, but discussion was cut off by a motion to table a resolution, which motion was overwhelmingly defeated, and the reports of the Board of Education were adopted.

Dr. Atkins, of the Sunday-school Department, was present one day. He met and advised with the Sunday-school Board, and in the evening delivered an address which was strong, full of information, and well adapted to the times. It put many men and women to thinking, and we feel sure it will produce good fruit. The Doctor left a son at home sick, and, though he was on the way to recovery, felt it to be his duty to return as soon as possible. He started for Nashville that night.

The Missionary Anniversary, on Friday evening, was more like an "old-time anniversary" than any we have attended for many years, save as to the collection, which was only a "hat collection." Two addresses were made: the first by Rev. L. M. Lipscomb, one of our rising young men. It was a fine address—well worded and well delivered. It pleased the audience, and was all too short. The main address was by Dr. S. A. Steel. Those who know Dr. Steel will fully understand us when we say, he was up to his best. For those who do not know him, it is useless for us to undertake a description of the talk. The house was crowded with eager listenes, and there was a mighty handshaking at the close. The Doctor was among his friends.

There was a long and exciting debate over a report from the Sunday-school Board, providing for the appointment of a Sunday-school Agent to give his entire time to the work, and to provide for his support out of funds collected on Children's Day, there being quite enough left over from last year, and now in hands of treasurer, with what has been collected this year, to meet the salary in full. The matter at issue was whether the Board had a right to take such surplus and apply it in that direction. All admitted that a surplus of such funds could not be so used, but the Board argued that there was no surplus, the appropriations for the advancement of the Sunday-school work taking up all the funds on hand. The Bishop decided that such surplus could not be so used. The Conference adopted the report. The question, however, as to whether there is a surplus or not, remained unsettled.

A class of nine was admitted on trial, viz.: W. L. Duren, W. M. Johnson, J. T. McCafferty, J. T. Lockhart, W. P. Jones, J. D. Simpson, W. R. Goudelock, W. S. Mosier, and L. A. McKeown. There was also received a young man, C. W. Baley, from the Methodist Free Church. Some of these brethren are young and very promising. Others are of middle age, strong and vigorous, and have been successful in the local ranks for years.

The event of the Conference was the collection for the Endowment Fund for Superannuated Preachers. The collection was preceded by an elaborate address from Dr. A. F. Watkins, the Agent, in which he set forth the need for such a fund, and that the inauguration of the scheme was an inspiration—an epoch in Southern Methodism. It has not fallen to the lot of the people called Methodists for a long while to listen to such an address, so full of facts and figures, and argument, persuasion and pathos, delivered in faultless English. As a platform man, he surpasses the expectations of his most ardent friends and admirers. To listen to him brought "old times" to mind when giants occupied the field. And he has a cause that appeals to his own heart, and the hearts of his hearers. If the movement itself was inspired, certainly the trustees were led to the selection of the right man to raise the money. The Doctor is a fine collector. The sum raised amounted to $9,005—an amount equal to any sum raised at any Conference, taking membership and circumstances into consideration.

Sunday was a great day in Tupelo. The weather was clear and pleasant, and the town was crowded with people. As usual the Methodist Church, where Bishop Key preached, and where the love-feast, led by Brother J. B. Stone, was held, was the center of attraction. The church was crowded—hundreds of people could not get inside the house. Many stood out of doors, and many went to other churches, which had much better congregations than is generally seen at eleven o'clock on Sunday of Conference. Bishop Key preached a great sermon on the parable of the Wheat and Tares, and after sermon ordained a class of young men to the order of deacon. Those elected to elder's orders were ordained in the afternoon. Other brethren who preached, Dr. Murrah, Dr. Watkins, Dr. French, and Rev. J. C. Park, were well reported of. It was our pleasure to hear Rev. T. W. Lewis at the Baptist Church in the morning, and Rev. A. H. Williams, an Arkansas co-laborer, in the evening. Both sermons were full of gospel truth and comfort. How Brother Williams' sermon compared with former efforts we do not know, as this was the only time we ever had the privilege of hearing him. Brother Lewis surpassed himself. In the afternoon the chief attraction was the children's service, at the Presbyterian Church, led by Revs. R. G. Porter and R. P. Neblett. On account of change in time, which was duly announced, but not understood, Rev. R. M. Standifer failed to preach in the morning at the Presbyterian Church, thinking the appointment was for evening. The Annual Conference, Sunday, in Tupelo will be long remembered.

The Conference closed on Monday afternoon, the session having been as harmonious as any in its history. The presidency of Bishop Key gave great satisfaction. It could hardly have been more so. Monday was full of work—a little too much hurried, but we trust it will prove to be entirely of the right kind. The most important action of the day was concerning temperance. The Conference put itself on record as favoring the enactment of such laws as will prohibit the manufacture and sale, and the giving away of liquor in any form, and to that end respectfully recommended that the Legislature of Mississippi provide for constitutional prohibition. The appointments were announced, and Conference adjourned to meet next year in Holly Springs.

We have never seen at any time a more perfect arrangement for the entertainment of an Annual Conference. Arrangements, perfected in advance, were carried out without any hitch or trouble. Committees met preachers and delegates at the trains, and almost in a moment had them in carriages and on their way to their homes, and their entertainment was cordial—the hospitality abundant. Our host, the Rev. J. A. Bowen, knows how to be polite and accommodating, and takes pleasure in putting his knowledge into practice. We heard not a discordant note from any source nor concerning anything during the whole Conference, save an unfortunate break by a sensitive young man, for which he duly apologized.

It was the good fortune of the editor to be domiciled with Brother G. W. Bachman as room-mate in the home of an old friend, Mr. H. E. Blakeslee, editor of the Industrial Review, who, with his good wife and Sister Crockett, who lives with them, spared no pains to make us comfortable. Under their hospitable roof we felt quite at home during the session. May the Lord reward them a hundredfold, and in the world to come give them and theirs eternal life. In the same home were entertained Sister Whitson, widow of one of our preachers, and Mrs. Kendrick, one of our Methodist sisters at New Albany. It was pleasant to be in such good company.

PERSONAL.

Bro. C. M. Simpson, pastor of Washington Street Church, Vicksburg, will bring up a good report.

Rev. Amos Kendall, after preaching on Sunday morning last, was stricken with paralysis. We have heard none of the particulars. The last account was, "he was resting easier." We trust the stroke was not heavy.

Sister Annie Lee, wife of Rev. Earl Tucker, was buried at Booneville, Miss., on Nov. 29. She died triumphantly. Rev. W. G. Hawkius was buried on Monday. He was a local preacher. He lacked one month of being ninety years old.

The Vicksburg Herald has this notice in connection with its article about the Thanksgiving union service:

The preacher at the union service in the Presbyterian Church was Rev. H. R. Singleton, pastor of Crawford Street Methodist Church, and by those who heard it it was pronounced to be one of the most powerful Thanksgiving sermons ever heard, the preacher putting forth the need of a thanksgiving period for a free and enlightened public in his usually clear and comprehensive way.

Bro. Joe Ramsey, the lay preacher from Tennessee, has been conducting a meeting with great success in Algiers. The pastor, Rev. K. W. Dodson, is greatly pleased with the results, there having been about one hundred conversions and ninety accessions to the church. Twenty-four family altars were pledged to be erected. Bro. Ramsey is not a modern evangelist, but conducted the meetings with the old-fashioned altar service. Bro. Dodson says the church in Algiers is one-third stronger, both in membership and finances, than it was one year ago. Two hundred dollars more was pledged to the pastor than last year, with other assessments increased proportionally. All will be paid in full. This is a fine report, and speaks well for the faithful pastor.

New Orleans Preachers' Meeting.

The meeting of Monday, Dec. 8, was given up to reports from the local pastors. All the preachers in charge were present except one.

Additions reported: Werlein Mission, 3; Carondelet, 2; Louisiana Avenue, 10; Dryades, 6; Felicity, 2; Algiers, 91; Rayne Memorial, 5; Parker Memorial, 8.

Most of the pastors reported the finances of the church in full. Rev. R. H. Wynn sounded a note of increase in nearly every department of church life.

Rev. W. W. Drake reported a special service—An Evening with Brazil—under the auspices of the Epworth Leagues. An offering of $45 was made to the G. D. Parker Fund.

Rev. F. G. Hoentt, of Covington, was present and spoke of his work.

Dr. LePrado reported there will be a Sunday school Institute held at Rayne Memorial, beginning Dec 14. This Institute will be led by Prof. Hamill, of Nashville, Tenn.

C. D. ATKINSON, Sec'y.

MR EDITOR: I am winding up my second year on the Ponchatoula circuit, which consists of six organized churches and three school-house appointments. The first of July I lost my faithful horse (Charlie) who had served me for nearly ten years, carrying me many thousands of miles. My people were very kind, and, in a short while, raised funds sufficient not only to get me a horse, but, in addition, a new set of harness, and repair a buggy which I had used for about ten years, for which I realized sufficient to get a new one. Have held protracted services at seven of my appointments, assisted by Bros. Kleinschmidt, Vaughn, Bott, Stepp, and Harper. While we have fallen behind our expectations on some lines, we are glad to report as follows: Infants baptized, twenty-five; adults, four. Members received, thirty-one. Married eighteen and buried sixteen. Finances all in excess, except for pastor, which I think will come up all right. As a result of our Thanksgiving services, I mailed a check yesterday to Dr. S. S. Keener, treasurer of our Veterans' Fund, for twenty dollars.

Resolutions.

DEAR DOCTOR: The following resolutions were unanimously adopted by the fourth Quarterly Conference of Gloster and Sam Jones Camp Ground charge, I. e.:

Whereas, Rev. T. W. Adams has been faithful, earnest and true in the discharge of his duties as presiding elder of Natchez district, doing all in the fear of God and for the good of the church; And, whereas, The church has greatly prospered under his wise and firm administration, therefore, be it Resolved, 1st, That we express to Bro. Adams our most hearty approval and endorsement of his work.

2nd, That we thank and praise God for the results that have accrued to the church from his work.

3rd, That we do most abidingly believe that for the good of the church and the protection of her best interests it is imperatively essential he should be returned to the district.

4th, That a copy of this paper be sent the ADVOCATE for publication.

(Signed) W. G. Forsyth, P. C.; J. R. Whittington, Trustee; J. L. Rogillio, Steward; W. Y. Webb, Steward and Trustee; W. O. Ligon, Steward and Trustee.

Yours truly,

W. G. FORSYTH.

To the Members of the Mississippi Conference.

It is our purpose, God being willing, to give our whole time to canvassing for money and girls for the Port Gibson Female College. We would like for the brethren to open their doors to us and give us work to do in the way of holding revival meetings and presenting the claims of the college, which is the property of the Mississippi Conference. It is our desire to build another dormitory to be used for preachers' daughters, and to give them the advantage of a college education, including one extra, for $130 per session, or two extras for $150. This is at actual cost. Won't the preachers help a brother who purposes to make it possible for them to educate their daughters at a moderate price? I believe they will

A Wonderful Invention.

It is interesting to note that fortunes are frequently made by the invention of articles of minor importance. Many of the most popular devices are those designed to benefit the people and meet popular conditions, and one of the most interesting of these that has ever been invented is the Dr. White Electric Comb, patented Jan. 1, '99. These wonderful combs positively cure dandruff, hair falling out, sick and nervous headaches, and when used in connection with Dr. White's Electric Hair Brush are positively guaranteed to make straight hair curly in 25 days' time. Thousands of these electric combs have been sold in the various cities of the Union, and the demand is constantly increasing. Our agents are rapidly becoming rich selling these combs. They positively sell on sight. Send for sample. Men's size, 50c; ladies, 35c—half price while we are introducing them. See Want Column of this paper. The Dr. White Electric Comb Co., Decatur, Ill.

A New Church.

Yesterday we held our first preaching service in our Rankin Street Church—that being the name we have given to our Dattoville Mission. The sermon was preached by Rev. T. B. Clifford. The building is not yet ceiled inside, and its seating arrangements are only temporary. The building in this incomplete state has cost about $660, exclusive of the lot, which cost $210. The money for the erection of this building was not all contributed by First Church. Several members of Capitol Street also contributed. Some members of other denominations also gave substantial aid.

Good Work.

In a recent letter from Bro. H. R. Singleton, of Vicksburg, to the business department of the ADVOCATE, we note the good work that is being done at Crawford Street. The church has been re-seated with modern pews costing $1,200, and the old parsonage disposed of at $3,000. In the near future they will build a better one in a more convenient locality. Crawford Street, as usual, will pay all assessments in full.

Wesson, Miss.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Our last Quarterly Conference was held Dec. 5, and I am thankful to say that all our assessments are paid up in full. During the two years I have been here I have taken 303 into our church, and I have baptized 214 infants. I have baptized 85 adults.

Yours in Christ,

ISAAC L. PEEBLES.

Notice.

Prof. Tom Carter, president of the State Epworth League, calls a meeting of Executive Committee of the State Epworth League Conference for Monday evening, Dec. 26, at 7:45 P. M., at the residence of Dr. Jno. T. Creboin.

Louisiana Conference.

I have thought, for several weeks past, that it might not be amiss to say a few words in regard to the work of the Auditing Board and its plans for the approaching session of the Conference.

In the first place, I would call attention to the resolution passed by the last Conference in regard to the filing of pastor's reports by the close of the first day of the Conference session. If this is done, and the payments on all assessments are made in even dollars, it will be a very easy matter for this Board to be able to settle with all the Conference Boards the second day of the session. This may mean that some amounts will have to be carried over to the next year's report by pastors, but it will also act as a stimulus to have all moneys in hand in time for a report on the first day.

The Auditing Board has arranged to be on hand the day before Conference convenes, and be ready for business. We will have an office convenient to the Conference room, and will take all the reports and moneys that the pastors have to report to the Conference, and give a receipt for the same.

Our plan is to have a deposit slip printed similar to those used in banks, which, when made out in duplicate, will be signed, and, after our report is made up, one copy passed to the statistical secretary as a check against errors in his report.

There will be no running from place to place to look up treasurers of the various funds, or for a secretary's file, but at one time and place make all reports, and, being done with it, be relieved of the responsibility of looking after Conference funds in the pastors' hands. Some member of this Board will be on hand constantly for the accommodation of the brethren.

Let me urge upon every brother to report early. Yours to serve,

WM. G. EVANS, Chair'n.

An Easy Way to Make Money.

I have made $560 in 80 days selling Dish washers. I did my housework at the same time I don't canvass. People come or send for the Dish-washers. I handle the Mound City Dish washer. It is the best on the market. It is lovely to sell. It washes and dries the dishes perfectly in two minutes. Every lady who sees it wants one. I will devote all my future time to the business, and expect to clear $4,000 this year. Any intelligent person can do as well as I have done. Write for particulars to the Mound City Dish-Washer Co., St. Louis, Mo.

[This is a Sample of the Type.]

An Instantaneous Comparison.

There is nothing mysterious or involved about the Linear Bible—all is plain sailing. There are no parallel columns or embarrassing foot notes to mystify one's understanding. To read the Authorized Version, one has but to read the large type line along to any point of difference in the respective versions, and then follow the UPPER small type line through such difference. Likewise, to read the Revised Version, one has but to read the large type line along to any difference in the respective versions, and then follow the LOWER small type line through such difference. This rule holds as to every difference, even to that of a comma. Thus not only the readings, but the comparisons of the two versions become easy, immediate, satisfactory and perfect.

In addition to the Old and New Testaments this edition contains the New Analytical and Comparative Concordance with 100,000 References—the most complete Concordance in any Teachers' Bible. A series of Fifteen Beautiful Maps in Colors, with cross-line Index. These maps are entirely new, and were engraved expressly for the Holman editions.

If you want this Book in connection with your ADVOCATE subscription, we will be glad to furnish both the Bible and the ADVOCATE, one year, for $7.00.

Keeping Up Appearances.

"Have you heard the news? I thought perhaps you hadn't. Isn't it dreadful? Poor Mrs. Murray! I have just come from there. She is broken down completely and has to be sent to a sanitarium for a year at least. Indeed, she may never recover—and just after moving into their new house! And her husband doing so well! Nervous prostration they call it. Truly the ways of Providence are inscrutable!" Here kind-hearted Mrs. Meigs overcome by emotion sank into the nearest chair and buried her face in her embroidered pocket handkerchief.

"It is sad enough," replied her friend, "and I am greatly shocked to hear it and yet I can hardly say I am surprised, for I have been expecting something of the kind for a long time."

"Not surprised!" Down came the handkerchief indignantly. "Well, I am sure everyone else is—expecting something of the kind! Do you suppose she broke down on purpose? I am sure she kept up as long as she could. Think how she has worked to keep up appearances ever since her husband failed! She had done without a nurse for the children, sewed from morning till night, kept up her music and frequently gone into society with him and entertained his friends, and now, when all need of worry is over, her health is gone and she may never be able to enjoy her beautiful new home; but, of course," added Mrs. Meigs, significantly, "people who have never known reverses can scarcely be supposed to be sympathetic."

"Perhaps not," answered Mrs. Fairchild, pleasantly, "but not belonging to that fortunate class, I am not able to say. If you have a moment to spare and will pardon my speaking of personal affairs, I will tell you why I am not surprised and also how I once escaped a similar fate. When we were first married my husband was wealthy and we began life at the top instead of the bottom of the ladder. After eight years of uninterrupted prosperity, came heavy losses through a bank failure. Poor Tom looked dreadfully worried when he told me about it. 'We shall have to live very differently, Kate,' he said, 'and practice the strictest economy.' I was completely overwhelmed by the news, and, never having known the value of money, at a loss to know where to begin to economize, and a hundred wild schemes passed through my head. In despair I ordered the carriage and drove down town to consult my mother.

"'Why, Kate!' she exclaimed, as soon as she saw my grave face, 'what is the matter? Has anything happened to Tom or the children?'

"'No,' I answered, 'they're all right, fortunately, but something dreadful has happened: Tom has lost a great deal of money and everything is as bad as it can be.' And here I childishly burst out crying.

"A smile of relief came over mother's countenance as she remarked, encouragingly: 'I am glad it is no worse. I do not regard the loss of fortune as by any means the worst of evils. Sorrow, disgrace and death are the real trials and you have been mercifully spared these. You and Tom are still young enough to begin again and the loss of a few luxuries will not hurt you, and with plenty of common sense and pluck you will be able to weather the gale. I suppose you will at once move into a smaller house?'

"'Oh, no!' I replied: 'I hope to retrench in some other way. It's such a "come down" from a big house to a little.'

"'Your carriage and horses, then! You will dispense with them?'

"'Sell the horses! No, indeed. Poor Tom would be lost without his drive in the park and we must manage to keep up appearances.'

"'This is my plan,' I continued. 'In the first place, we shall give up our Summer trip. It costs a fortune to go to these watering-places. Of course, I mean for the children and myself only. Tom must have his fortnight's shooting. It would look so badly for him not to go. I shall also dismiss my nurse and take care of the children myself and do the sewing at home. We shall have to entertain less, and really dinners are very expensive. Of course Tom will go out occasionally. A man must keep up with these things, but I shall be too busy at home to miss society, and by going out less I shall save a great deal on dress. And now you have heard my plan, mother. Don't you think it the very best?'

"'No,' she answered promptly. 'I think it the very worst, and I must speak my mind plainly. This keeping up appearances is all wrong and is generally fatal to happiness. It has wrecked many a home and life. Its object is always the same—to deceive the public. Believe me, the public is seldom deceived.

"'My advice would be to move into a small house in the suburbs—which would require less care and expense and where you would have plenty of fresh air and more ground for the children to play. In this way you could avoid the necessity of a Summer trip and enjoy the luxury of a garden. I would by no means dismiss your faithful nurse—as nothing is more wearing than the care of little children. Rather part with your house-maid and get a good general servant. If I may suggest further—one horse will surely be sufficient to convey Tom to and from his office, as well as to afford him many delightful drives with his wife—who by adopting this simple mode of life will always find time to be his cheerful companion. Unless I am mistaken in this same Tom—he is not the man to take Summer trips while his worn-out wife at home enacts the dual part of nurse and seamstress.

"'I think by following my plan and living simply you will also have a small margin to gratify your love of music and books. I am not afraid to venture the prediction that in a few years your husband will retrieve his losses. Resolve to live in such a way that when that time comes it may find you young and fresh enough to enjoy life and friends. And I firmly believe you can do this if you do not strive to keep up appearances.'

"When I reached home, Tom met me at the door and marveled much at my cheerful countenance.

"'Have you inherited a fortune, Kate?' he queried.

"'Yes,' I explained, triumphantly, 'a fortune of good, common sense, next in value, at the present time, to money,' and I proceeded to lay mother's suggestions before him.

"Of course, we followed them, and in time things turned out as she predicted. But for her wisdom, I should have been what our poor friend Mrs. Murray is to-day, a prematurely broken down woman. I trust you will pardon me talking so long about myself. I did not want to be misunderstood."

"Indeed, I think you sincerely," answered Mrs. Meigs, "and I ask your pardon for thinking you unsympathetic. If there were only more wise mothers like yours, we would learn to live simpler and more sensible lives."—The Interior.

A woman's discovery

FREE

By many years of constant study and experiments, I have perfected a simple harmless vegetable remedy that will quickly cure all female diseases as well as the piles. It is nature's own remedy, and will not only relieve, but will also thoroughly and permanently cure the ailments peculiar to women such as falling of the womb, leucorrhea (whites), displacements, ulceration, granulation, painful or scanty periods, irregular menstruation and all the pelvic ills of women. It positively cures rectal ulcers, piles, hemorrhoids, tumors, itching, blind or bleeding piles in either sex. It cures promptly, privately, and permanently without the repugnant methods in general use by physicians. You can escape embarrassing examinations, avoid humiliating exposures, cheat the surgeon's knife out of his fees, in your home.

The treatment is so simple, mild and effectual that it will not interfere with your work or occupation. Thousands and thousands of letters are being received from grateful persons from all parts of the world who have been cured by the use of this remedy. The first package is free, send for it—send to-day. I know that a fair trial of it will result in your becoming its enthusiastic advocate and friend. With it I will send literature of interest and value. Do not neglect this opportunity to get cured yourself and be in a position to advise sufferer friends.

Consider well the above offer and act upon it at once. It is made in the sincere hope of aiding you and spreading the knowledge of a beneficent boon to sufferers. Earnestly, hopefully, faithfully, MRS. CORA B. MILLER, 46 Comstock Bldg., Kokomo, Ind.

Don't Forget the Oil-Can.

My bicycle gave me another sermon recently. I think I'll have to paint it black, with a white stripe here and there, to show that it is a member of the clergy, and wears black clothes.

We had thrown ourselves down on the grass, watching the "wheels" as they rolled past. There was a '99 model, and next was a brand new '02 "Columbia." Then came an old fashioned high-wheel "ordinary." Some we noticed ran hard; others squeaked as they passed. Oh, my!

"I wish," said my bicycle, "that people wouldn't forget about the oil-can. How much smoother they would go along! A drop of oil is worth a pound of muscle. If a dash of rain has rusted the chain, or if dust has gotten into the bearings, a little oil will fix it. That old '95 wheel would run twice as easy with the help of a little oil."

That talk about oil set me to thinking. More oil would make life go smoother.

There is one kind of oil that is excellent—it is kindness.

Try it in the kitchen. The hired girl is the crank there. Pour a drop of the oil of kindness on her; you'll get it back in doughnuts.

Try it on the street car. There is a bent over woman who has just come in: get up, lift your hat, and give her your seat.

Try the oil-can at home. Is father cross? Pour a little oil on him. Is mother fretful? Press the oil-can. Is brother's wheel running hard? Is grandfather riding an out-of-date wheel, making him puff and wheeze? Use the oil-can of kindness and cheerfulness.—American Weekly.

"There Is One Who Can."

In a conversation with Mr. Moody, a few years ago, he related the following incident, illustrating the power of Him who is mighty to save:

At the close of an evening meeting in the church at Chicago a well dressed young man came in from the street and inquired for Mr. Moody. After a little search Mr. Moody was found, and, coming forward, he greeted the stranger cordially, and inquired his errand. With much earnestness the young man said:

"I have come to ask you to save me. I am going to ruin from the use of drink, and, unless you save me, I shall go down."

Mr. Moody still warmly held the outstretched hand as he said, earnestly, "I can't!"

With evident disappointment, his caller said, "Why, you surprise me, Mr. Moody: it is at a great sacrifice of my pride that I have come to you: my mother and sister told me that you could save me, and now you say that you can not."

"No," said Mr. Moody, "indeed I can not: but there is One who can! Come, and I'll lead you to Him."

They went to a side room, and there, with simplicity and loving earnestness, Mr. Moody told him of his lost condition—of the mighty love and power of Jesus, and of his deep personal interest in him. They knelt in prayer—the prayer of penitence, faith and acceptance; the burden rolled off, and there was joy in heaven over another soul converted.

Yes, "there is one who can!" Blessed be God for the simplicity of the gospel method of salvation.—Central Methodist.

ANOTHER NOTICE.

Requests for special copies of the ADVOCATE come to us so often that they are burdensome, and we again remind our friends that in making such requests they must send FOUR CENTS for each copy. We can not afford to "send bill," as we are sometimes asked to do. Please, friends, bear these things in mind.

MANAGER WANTED.

We desire to employ a trustworthy lady or gentleman to manage our business in this County and adjoining territory. Our house is well and favorably known.

$20 Straight Cash Salary and all Expenses paid Each Week by Check direct from Headquarters. Expense money advanced; previous experience unnecessary; position permanent. Address Thomas J. Cooper, Manager, 1040 Caxton Building, Chicago, Ill.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

WILBUR FISK PIPKIN was born in the Darlington neighborhood, St. Helena parish, La., Dec. 6, 1840, and died at the old home, March 14, 1902. He was the son of Rev. Barnabas Pipkin and Martha E. Hanna. His mother died in 1846, and his father, who, in conjunction with Drs. Wilcans and Drake, was one of the pioneers of Methodism in the Southwest, died in 1878. Wilbur attended the Darlington schools up to the age of seventeen, when he was sent to the Baton Rouge Collegiate Institute (Prof. W. H. N. Magruder) and afterwards to Centenary College, Jackson, La., where he was a student at the time of the breaking out of the Civil War in 1861. He joined the M. E. Church, South, in early youth, and was for a number of years prior to his death one of the most zealous and efficient stewards of the St. Helena circuit. Himself abounding in the grace of Christian liberality, he was well fitted to be a leader and exemplar to those whom he served as an official. He not only solicited, but urged the people, in season and out of season, to meet their obligations in supporting the ministry of the gospel, and advancing in every possible way the Master's cause. His love to his Lord was not a mere sentiment; it was a vitalized and an aggressive affection—a "love not in word, neither in tongue, but in deed and in truth." No labor was too arduous, no task too severe, no burden too heavy to be borne, provided he could see, in the end, some advancement of the interests of the kingdom of Christ. Shortly before his death, seeing that the old church, where he had worshiped all his life, sadly needed a new roof, with characteristic promptness and loving cheerfulness he took the matter in hand, and rested not till his labors were crowned with success, and the dear old place of hallowed memories and precious experiences was again in shape for high and holy uses. He took delight in all the services of the sanctuary. He was a devout and intelligent, and thus an inspiring hearer, and engaged with evident zest in the prayer and praise meetings of the church, responding with becoming modesty, and yet with genuine heartiness, to any call that might be made upon him for a prominent part. With him religion was both worship and service. As a citizen, he was without reproach; as a neighbor, full of good cheer, sympathy, and helpfulness; as a friend, faithful and true; as a son, dutiful and thoughtful, and as a brother—especially to his only sister—his devotion was beautiful to behold and touching to witness. He was never married. Though apparently robust, his health had not been good for several years prior to his demise. An insidious catarrhal affection had possibly preyed for some time upon his system, so weakening the springs of life that he fell an easy victim to brain fever. He was confined to his room and bed for only three days; was unconscious for the last eight or ten hours, and then peacefully and sweetly fell on sleep. I knew him about few, if any others, knew him. I loved him as a brother, I honored him for his sterling worth, and shall continue to cherish his memory in this life, and then, if I am faithful, I confidently expect to greet him in the better world. Till then, my dear brother, farewell!

T. C. BRADFORD.

MRS. C. E. OLIVER was born in Alexandria, Va., but came to Louisiana in early life, making her home in the northern part of the State until after the close of the Civil War. She then came to New Orleans, where she lived until called to eternal rest of the people of God in her seventy second year. She died in Mandeville, La., Sept. —, 1902. She consecrated her life to God in early youth, and from that time until the end she was a consistent member of the Methodist Church, being for many years identified with the Carondelet Street Church in New Orleans. She was an example of fidelity in all the relations of life. When ever possible, she was in her place in the house of God. She was active and interested in the work carried on by the women of the church. Nothing but failing health during the last two years of her life prevented her from discharging these duties to the last. Her Christian experience was clear. She walked by faith, and enjoyed the conscious presence of her Lord. She was a woman of prayer, and the Bible was her daily counsel. She read the Word of God much, and with a discriminating appreciation of its treasures of wisdom and knowledge. For nearly two years before her death she was an invalid, but through it all showed the peculiar courage and grace which had sustained the frail body through life. She was gentle and unobtrusive in her life, but firm in principle and resourceful in compassing the tasks for which she felt responsible. In her memory her friends have a clear token of the power and beauty of the Christian life, and her children, though greatly chastened in her loss, have an inheritance to inspire, to comfort and enrich their lives, being assured that her end was peace, and her hope full of blessed immortality in the presence of Christ our Savior.

F. N. PARKER.

PHILIP M. PREVOST, son of Antoine and Louisiana Prevost, was born Nov. 15, 1859, at West Pearl River, La., and died Nov. 1, 1901. He was converted in 1877, and joined the church under the ministry of Rev. M. B. Sharbrough. He was married to Miss Ellan Joynar by the Rev. C. W. Carter in 1888, in New Orleans. Philip lived an exemplary Christian life, and died in the faith, saying to his wife that he was ready and willing to go, if it pleased God to call him, and that he was not afraid to "walk through the valley of the shadow of death" for he knew of the light beyond. In 1878-9 Philip was in the writer's Bible class in the old West Pearl River Sunday-school. He was always attentive, respectful, and eager to get the benefit of the lesson. Once I requested each one to write me a note on the Sunday-school. He wrote: "Dear Teacher—I love the Sunday-school, and feel that it is a blessing to me. I appreciate your efforts in my behalf and your kindness, and know that I will always love the Bible more for having been a member of this Sunday-school. Philip M. Prevost." "In the land that is fairer than day" I hope to meet Philip again.

MISS FAY LEE,

President of the Shakespearian Club, Kansas City.

Miss Fay Lee.

"Your booklet came to my home like a message of health when I had suffered with headache, backache and bearing-down pains. I was weak, nervous and hysterical and had not consulted any doctor, thinking it would pass away in time, but instead I found that the pains increased and were more frequent. I decided to try Wine of Cardui and in a short time was much improved. It seemed to act like a charm. I kept up the treatment and the result was most satisfactory. Words fail to express my gratitude for the suffering that is now saved me. I am in fine health, physically and mentally. I can only say 'thank you', but there is much more in my heart for you."

BEARING-DOWN pains are the worst that women know. If you are suffering from this trouble you need not be uncertain about it. The pains in the abdomen and back that feel as if heavy weights were pulling down on the nerves of the stomach are "bearing-down pains". They may not be particularly severe at present but they are growing worse. That headache which nearly drives you distracted now is caused by the terrible nervous tension. The nerves soon begin to give way under the strain. You perhaps jump at any unusual disturbance, or laugh or weep, hysterically, at no apparent cause. That is what Miss Fay Lee, 603½ North Seventh Street, Kansas City, Kansas, was coming to when she rescued herself by taking Wine of Cardui. The Wine made her a strong, healthy woman again, as it has made a million other women strong and healthy. By inducing regular menstruation the entire system is relieved of the terrible wasting drains. The ligaments which hold the womb in place are strengthened by a healthy flow and that organ is returned to its normal position. Returning health is the result. This is what Wine of Cardui has done for thousands of the best women in America.

If you need advice write The Ladies' Advisory Department, The Chattanooga Medicine Company, Chattanooga, Tenn., describing all your symptoms freely, and a letter of advice will be sent you. Secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist to-day.

The Christ of Our Poets.

By REV. H. WALTER FEATHERSTUN, D.D.

12MO. PP. 171. 75 CENTS.

The book is a mine of suggestions.—Epworth Herald.

Thanks to Dr. Featherstun for his timely book.—Rev. R. E. Dickenson.

"The Christ of Our Poets." In the present Reading Course, is proving to be very popular.—Epworth Era.

We only regret that the book is so slight; . . . it holds the reader from beginning to end.—New York Christian Advocate.

He holds up the Christ of poesy illuminated by a new and rarer light, presenting ineffable beauties hitherto unseen.—Mrs. Bishop Morrison.

Dr. Featherstun's book exhibits wide reading, and a profound philosophical insight into the spirit of these poems.—St. Louis Christian Advocate.

The author employs a graceful and lucid style. . . . Dr. Featherstun has placed all of us under lasting obligations to himself.—Nashville American.

This charming volume has been made part of the League Course for 1902. . . . Dr. Featherstun has done his work admirably.—Sunday School Magazine.

Your book exhibits, it seems to me, not only careful and conscientious study and good taste, but that rarer and finer quality we call insight.—Bishop O. P. Fitzgerald.

We welcome this volume as a valuable addition to a class of literature which has been neglected to some extent by our Southern writers.—Raleigh Christian Advocate.

The poets are searched for the footprints of the Man of Calvary, and many of them are found. . . . The book makes most profitable reading.—Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

The volume suggests on every page, for which we can never be sufficiently thankful, that the great poets . . . were every one of them genuinely and predominantly religious.—Northwestern Christian Advocate.

"The Christ of Our Poets" is so full of thought, so full of noblest purpose, so vivid in word painting that I would it might be put into the hands of every young man and woman of our land.—Mrs. Callie H. Howe, W. C. T. U. lecturer.

All Christians and poet-lovers should feel indebted to Dr. Featherstun for this volume, in which he shows very beautifully how the poets have ever gone ahead of their time in their conception of a Christ to which the world has gradually been led in its ideals.—Review of Missions.

"Upper Room Meditations"

Bishop Fitzgerald's New Book.

Of the many contributions from Bishop Fitzgerald to the literature of Christian experience, none surpass this. Shut in from the world, he has heard the voice of God in the inner depths of his soul, and the Father whom he loves has helped him to tell what he has felt. No man can be unmoved by these pages.—Wesleyan Christian Advocate.

"Upper Room Meditations" is sweet, edifying, Christian. It cannot fail to do good, and I hope will be read by many thousands. It is a book for a sick room or a house in which sorrow sits enthroned.—Dr. Geo. G. Smith, Macon, Ga.

Those who have read it pronounce it the best of all his devotional writings. He has saved the best until now.—Nashville Correspondent St. Louis Christian Advocate.

It will be very helpful to the souls of God's children, for it comes out of a heart full of love and faith.—Texas Christian Advocate.

Big Eggs From Big Hens With Big Records

THE KIND WE SELL will hatch stock that will pay for its keep, for we breed what we advertise—a great laying strain of WHITE WYANDOTTES—ideal birds of large size and great productiveness, and hardy to an amazing degree. They are standard-bred and beautiful; but what is more to you, they are utility-bred. The farmer, and most others, desire stock that will bring dollars, and not simply blue ribbons. Ours will do both, but our special point is to produce a big hen to lay eggs.

THE KIND YOU WANT are the very kind we have—STRONG HENS. They lay strong eggs, and vigorous chicks result. It is a patent fact that Southern-laid eggs are the best. There are no better than ours in the South. Our hens have laid as high as 242 eggs in a year, with no forcing feed. It's in the strain, bred there, and they will please you mighty well. They have not been weakened by inbreeding, but built up from the "fittest" in standard points and stamina we could raise or buy.

The Christmas Dinner.

In spite of the fact that the word dyspepsia means literally bad cook, it will not be fair for many to lay the blame on the cook if they begin the Christmas Dinner with little appetite and end it with distress or nausea. It may not be fair for any to do that—let us hope so for the sake of the cook! The disease, dyspepsia indicates a bad stomach, that is a weak stomach, rather than a bad cook, and for a weak stomach there is nothing else equal to Hood's Sarsaparilla. It gives the stomach vigor and tone, cures dyspepsia, creates appetite, and makes eating the pleasure it should be.

An Electric Belt Free

Send Your Application At Once To The Physician's Institute.

They Will Send You Absolutely Free One of Their 100 Gauge Superb Electric Belts, the Belt Which Has Made so Many Wonderful Cures—You Needn't Send Even a Postage Stamp, Just Your Name and Address.

Seven years ago the State of Illinois granted to the Physicians' Institute of Chicago a charter. There was need of something above the ordinary method of treatment for chronic diseases; something more than any one specialist or any number of specialists acting independently could do, so the State itself, under the powers granted it by its general laws, gave the power to the Physicians' Institute to lend it to the sick such help as would make them well and strong.

Ever since its establishment this institute has endeavored in every possible way to carry out the original purposes of its establishment under the benevolent laws of the State.

Three years ago, the Physicians' Institute, realizing the value of electricity in the treatment of certain phases of disease, created under the superintendence of its staff of specialists an electric belt which has been proved to be of great value as a curative agent. From time to time it has been improved until it reached that stage of perfection which warranted its present name of "Supreme."

This belt is the most effective of all agents in the cure of rheumatism, lumbago, kidney trouble, nervous exhaustion, weakness of the vital functions, varicocele, kidney disorders and many other complaints.

This "Supreme Electric Belt" is made in one grade only—no grade—there is no better electric belt made and no better belt can be made. Whenever in the opinion of our staff of specialists the wonderful curative and revitalizing forces of electricity will cure you we send you, free of all cost, one of these Supreme Electric Belts. It is not sent on trial, it is yours to keep forever without the payment of one cent. This generous offer may be withdrawn at any time, so you should write to-day for this free "Supreme Electric Belt" to the Physicians' Institute, at 2396 Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ills.

MARSH Reading Stand and Revolving Book-Case.

No. 5. Price, $7.00.

ADJUSTABLE TOP.—Is 14x15 inches; large and strong enough to hold your Dictionary, Directory, Dido, Bradstreet, Bible, Atlas, or any heavy volume, at any desired angle. It can be revolved and adjusted when reading so as to always throw the strongest light on the pages. You can thus avoid the strain on your eyes inevitable when holding a book in your hand or on a level table. It is made of Oak, and has on one edge a Rest to keep books from sliding off.

REVOLVING CASE.—This case is 15x15x12 inches. The shelves are Oak or Ash, finished on both sides and on all edges, and have 9 inches of book space on four sides, or 3 feet in all, and room enough for reference books of daily use. Many books may also be placed on the upper shelf. In all twenty to thirty volumes, law size, can be put in it. The eight oak slats are attached by four nails each, making the Case very substantial as well as ornamental.

CASTINGS connecting the Top and Case are finished in black enamel, and of sufficient strength to last a lifetime.

PIPE, POST and LEGS.—The three legs are attached by round-headed screws to the turned post. Into this post is forced an iron pipe, which runs up through the Case, and to which the castings at the top are attached. Around this pipe the Case revolves.

As a Home, Office or Library article, it is said, its equal does not exist. The accuracy of this statement can be confirmed by unsolicited letters of the highest commendation from thousands of Ministers, Attorneys, Physicians, Government, State and County Officials, Bankers and Business Men. Over 50,000 have been sold in the United States, and orders now come for large lots from England and other foreign countries.

HOW FINISHED.—It is handsomely finished in Antique Oak, and an ornament to any Office, Library or Parlor.

AS A GIFT.—Nothing made is more suitable to present to a friend, or as a Wedding or Birthday Gift, than this Stand.

HOW SHIPPED.—This Stand is sent knocked down, wrapped in heavy paper, making a package of 20 pounds. By Freight it goes as second class, and at about half what it would cost if sent set up. Plain directions for putting together accompany each Stand.

We will furnish the above Revolving Book-Case and seven yearly subscriptions to the Advocate (new or renewal) to anyone for $14, or we will sell you the case alone for $7 cash.

Glances at the World.

The annual report of the Postmaster-General, just published, recommends the adoption by Congress of the "post-check" system for the transmission of small sums of money by mail. It consists in the printing of the $1, $2 and $5 bills, and, perhaps, a paper fractional currency, in a new form, with a blank for an endorsement, by which any holder may transform them into checks or drafts on the United States Treasury, payable only to the endorsee. Such bills would pass current so long as they remained blank. A holder who desired to transmit a small sum by mail, and to whom the securing of a money order would be inconvenient, would fill the blank and mail the bill to his creditor. The simplicity of the system recommends it, and persons who have occasion to send or receive money by mail are very desirous of the adoption of such a plan. Some officials of the Postoffice Department and the Treasury, however, have been opposed to it, and it has not been hitherto practicable to get a favorable report before Congress. The Postmaster-General's championship of the measure may prove sufficient to secure the passage of the bill. Newspapers, particularly weekly papers, are naturally anxious for some more convenient system of transmitting small sums of money, for the delay in the payment of subscriptions, which is so serious a burden, arises in no small degree from the procrastination due to the necessity of a special trip to the postoffice to buy a money order. Subscribers who send personal checks seldom remember to add the cost of exchange which banks charge for collection; so this is an unsatisfactory means of transmission.—Standard (Chicago).

The Salt Lake Ministerial Association, consisting of fifteen Protestant ministers, in Salt Lake City, has succeeded in arousing the whole State of Utah by the adoption of vigorous resolutions against the candidacy of Apostle Smoot for the United States Senate. The resolutions set forth as reasons for such opposition Mr. Smoot's high office in the Mormon Church—not his mere membership; the approval of the church authorities which he sought and received, making him an ecclesiastical candidate; the approach toward a union of Church and State in Utah which this action foreshadows; and the fact, as alleged, that "the majority of the Mormon apostolate to which he belongs, and with which he works in harmony, are living in polygamous relations, in violation of covenants made by the people of the United States, as well as in violation of the criminal statutes of Utah. . . . Apostle Smoot dare not oppose such polygamous conditions." This protest has angered the Mormon leaders, who have replied defiantly, declaring that, "We never agreed to abandon our families," and that the Edmunds-Tucker law, superseded when Utah became a State, has no successor. The movement against Smoot's election has gained national notice, and the interest almost equals that excited by the Roberts case. It seems likely that Smoot will be elected, and the question then arises whether the Senate will refuse to seat him, or will expel him after seating. The case differs from that of B. H. Roberts, as the charge of present polygamy is not brought against Smoot; but it is held that, as an apostle, he is bound to support the polygamous principles of his colleagues, and that, as an apostle, he is in possession of evidence which would convict scores or hundreds of Mormon polygamists now going unpunished. The real ground upon which his election should be opposed is that the Legislature of Utah, if it elects him, openly shows its contempt for the agreement by which Statehood was secured. Baptists must be careful not to oppose the election of any man to office because of his membership in a religious sect, for entire religious liberty is one of our principles; but the determined effort of the Mormon Church to force upon the country a "constructive recognition" of the right of polygamy by Congress should be firmly resisted.—Standard (Chicago).

Journeying in California.

BY REV. R. I. ALLEN.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: We are now near the end of our journeyings in California. This is Saturday night, and we expect to get up Monday morning "before day" to take the train for Mississippi. I seem perfectly well here; have not been sick during the four months of our stay. The sore feet I brought from Pike's Peak continued with me for some time. The ocean water at Long Beach seemed always to inflame them. So the best use I found for the salt water during our stay of nearly a month at the beach was to ride on it and fish in it. I got to be quite a "fisher" for herring. My best catches were seventy-four one morning, and forty-five one night. We just didn't get worn out with eating fish.

Having gotten the promise of work—secular employment—we went to Los Angeles to live, and let our return tickets expire. We were there a month, until the Los Angeles Conference met at Santa Ana. Who ever heard of a Methodist Conference paying off all its assessments for benevolent claims? Yet that is what this heroic little Conference did. I came up here into the Sacramento Valley, in sight of Mount Shasta—which stands like a sentinel at the head of the valley—with a view to accept this pastoral charge, and doing work here for a year, but conditions do not fit; so we will go back to Mississippi. We are in the midst of ripening oranges, limes and lemons here, in what the real estate men call the Italy of California. The Coast Range of mountains to the west, and the Sierra Nevada to the east, are covered with snow; but the ground is everywhere green with grain and grass in this great valley. Almonds are raised here by the ton; prunes, peaches and pears are dried by the car-load. Peach and apricot seeds are used for fuel, and burn like coal. Prunes can be bought here from the drying-trays at from two to two and a half cents per pound. The wild geese are here by the thousand. The salmon fish are running up the rivers and streams, and the people are shooting and spearing them. We had some for our table a few days ago. So now we bid California farewell for the present, after a pleasant stay of four months in its bounds.

Orland, Cal., Nov. 29, 1902.

LATER.

We came over the great Santa Fe line of railroad from San Francisco to Kansas City. We had a very pleasant trip, finding the mountains of New Mexico and Colorado covered with snow, and cold weather from there on to Memphis, Tenn. We had a delightful night's ride from Kansas City over the Frisco line. Mrs. Allen and the children changed cars at Holly Springs for Winona, Miss., while I journeyed on to Conference at Tupelo. We had a wonderful wreck at Wallaville. Our fast train ran into some freight cars on the main line, tore them to pieces, but kept on the rails. But one passenger was hurt, and he by a flying rod or piece of timber; but our engine was disabled and cars badly damaged. Another engine pulled us on after a delay of two hours. I greatly enjoyed the Conference, and arrived at my new appointment last night, some twenty-seven hours after the appointments were read. With gratitude to God for "traveling mercies" and protecting care, we settle down with the hope of doing a good year's work.

Paul's Thorn in the Flesh.

Some lives run pretty continuously on a low level. There are no great elevations, no very great depressions. They are like the low-lands bordering the coast in many localities. Other lives resemble our Western plains. They are at a good elevation, with a good outlook, but not eventful. Others, still, live shut in lives, like valleys closed in by the mountains.

Paul's life was like a rugged mountain country, with ups and downs, deep valleys, lofty mountains. His experiences ran the whole gamut of human suffering and joy. It was the greatest life lived on this planet since the Lord of Glory ascended to his Father and our Father. God made Paul for this great life. It is a most meaningful thing that before his conversion he was designed by God for his tremendous work. His natural endowments were given for this service. He was born out of the very heart of Judaism. His rearing gave him the exact preparation needed for his world-wide work. A Hebrew of the Hebrews, Paul was also a Roman citizen, born to all the singular and great privileges of that vast empire which was to be the arena of his matchless missionary activities. God's plan for Paul's life was bold and revolutionary. It was to be an epoch-making life. No such life could be smooth.

One can not study this life without seeing the constant struggle between the human and the divine. It was far from Paul's idea that he had outgrown human weaknesses. He knew that he was in the flesh, and subject to its perverting power. He also believed outright in a devil—not the devil of the modern artist, but a devil shrewd, cunning, tactful, appearing as an "angel of light," deceiving the unwary, and ready always to work with the flesh. The first saint of the ages had no confidence in the flesh, and was very shy of the devil's power. . . .

It pleased God once to give to his servant special, glorious, unutterable revelation. He was caught up into the third heaven, and saw things not lawful to tell. The vision was for him. We do not know the cause or the occasion of this special revelation. Nor do we know why it was Paul was not permitted to tell what he saw or heard. He was permitted, however, to refer to his exaltation, but, in doing so, he added what has been from then till now one of the most instructive and helpful incidents of any human life. He says that lest he should be exalted above measure, there was given him a thorn in the flesh, a messenger of Satan to buffet him. What this thorn was we are not told and can not know. It was something that rankled and had a tendency to humble the great spirit of the world's mightiest preacher and worker. Moreover, it was set over against the vision of glory given him. The two preserved the spiritual equilibrium of the apostle. The exceeding glory of the spiritual and eternal, the sorrowful humiliation of the flesh, which must soon, as a weather-beaten house, be dissolved, kept God's saint doing what he rejoiced ever to be doing—looking away from self to God.

The statement, "messenger of Satan," is not without significance in many ways. Our humiliation from the fall of Adam to this day is the work of Satan, plying the weak places in human nature. Satan was permitted to plant his thorn in Paul's flesh. He did it with the malice of his satanic nature, but God made it bless Paul and glorify him. Many of God's ministers of good come to us clothed in black. Paul's triumphant outburst of faith was, All things work together for good to them who love God. This included that satanic thorn in the flesh, for the removal of which he prayed three times. His prayer was answered, not by the removal of the thorn, but by a larger blessing to more than offset it.

The exalted, humbled Paul made an epoch in the world's history. That epoch, like its maker's life, was mountainous. One great purpose ran through it all like a mountain range. It was heroic to the last limit. The chief actor in it counted not his life dear to himself. To meet the requirements of a great trust kept him at the highest point of endeavor from the hour when he first saw Jesus on his way to Damascus till he put his head on the block outside the gates of Rome. It was during this rugged, tumultuous period that Christianity made greatest progress. There were pentecosts and stonings. Great revivals and martyrdoms and prisoners fleeing away to other parts have been closely allied in the history of Christianity. In the experience of heroic workers exaltations have been associated with thorns to humble. Satan's malice is aroused always by displays of grace. His buffetings are to be taken as signs of good, not of evil. They are only permitted because God sees they can be used for good, and they always call for more grace which is in store for those who are buffeted.

The history of Baptist affairs in Texas for several years has been a close parallel to the apostolic period. Great opposition, great trouble, great revivals, great progress. Afflictions have been everywhere set off by consolations. May our God lead us on and make all things work for the glory of his name, and give us to rejoice in every dispensation of his providence!—Dr. Gambrell, in Texas Baptist Standard.

Let Definite Results Follow Our Preaching.

Preaching the gospel is God's method of reaching the children of men with moral and spiritual truth. True, we have other media through which this is done in part, but preaching the gospel is the one great and effectual means of accomplishing this result. Then, when the gospel is properly preached, we have a right to expect results. In the first place, people ought to be convinced, brought to repentance, and converted. Our church service is adapted to this end, and results ought to be forthcoming. Jesus Christ has promised as much, and when our pulpits trust in the promise and comply with his given conditions, then conversions ought to follow the proclamation of the gospel message. A preacher who preaches year in and year out, and does the pastoral work required at his hand, and then, at the end of the year, has no visible fruit in the way of soul-saving, may well doubt either the validity of his call to the ministry, or proceed to examine into his fidelity to his God-given mission. There is something radically wrong in a barren ministry. Wherever it exists, whether in the city station or in the country church, it is proof positive that there is a serious lack somewhere. Such a pastor needs to take his Bible, go into a solitary place, get down on his knees, and never cease his crying unto God until the cause, or causes, of his unfruitful ministry are effectively removed. There is one thing certain, and that is, when the Holy Ghost calls a man to the office of the ministry, and he proceeds to preach the gospel in the power and demonstration of the Spirit, souls at some time during the year will call aloud for mercy and obtain pardon. But when a man has preached time and again, and nobody is brought to repentance, the time for serious and strict questioning of his own conscience has arrived. And there are too many of our pulpits today void of power with God and men. They can not point to souls saved from sin as the unmistakable tokens of the blessings of God upon the Word therein proclaimed. The church machinery moves along smoothly, the incidental expenses are met promptly, people come into the membership by certificate, but no penitent is ever seen at the altar, and no genuine revival takes hold of the people. Are you that sort of a preacher, and have you charge of that sort of a church? If so, you had better look into the cause, and at once proceed to ask God to help you get out of this state of spiritual barrenness. Then your ministry will bring forth fruit, and the church will move out of her lethargy. In the next place, people ought to be established in faith and righteousness under an efficient ministry. They need to be rooted and grounded in the truth as it is in Jesus. To a people thus instructed the Word of God will be their joy, and the world will not have strong attractions for them. But as it is, many of our so-called Methodists find more delight in the groveling things of sense than in the deep things of God. Is not the character of much of our pulpit ministration at fault just here? A bold, loving and faithful ministry will lead the minds of people away from the things that perish to a love for the things that are spiritual. Much of our preaching is superficial, speculative, commonplace, and void of the spiritual grasp upon the great doctrines of the gospel. People are not made to realize that the gospel is the power of God unto the salvation of those who believe. They are often entertained by the gospel, or by what purports to be the gospel, but they are not always made strong in the faith and power of the gospel. Hence at this point we need to make a close examination of our methods of preaching the gospel. Therefore, the position of the preacher is the most serious and responsible one occupied by any mortal man. He is God's agent, vitalized by the Holy Ghost, for the conversion of mankind from sin and their establishment in righteousness. We have a right to expect these results when we proclaim the truth of God.—Texas Christian Advocate.

Resolutions of Appreciation.

The law of our church making it necessary to remove our pastor, Rev. D. P. Bradford, he having labored with us four years; be it

Resolved, By the fourth Quarterly Conference of the East End Church, Meridian, Miss., that in severing our relations with Bro. Bradford, we lose one of the most faithful, untiring, and self-sacrificing pastors we have ever had. There is not a home in our flock where his cheery face will not be missed. He has been at the call of his people night or day, rain or shine, to minister unto the sick, bury the dead, comfort and sympathize with the sorrowing. His work with us during the four years has been remarkably successful in every way. The church obligations have all been met in full each year during his ministry. The membership has been increased at least one-third, the church property has been greatly improved, all church factions have been obliterated, and he leaves a united people, who pray that his new field of labor may be pleasant, and that he may be as successful in the Master's vineyard during the remainder of his life's work as while associated with us. LETTER FROM BISHOP GALLOWAY.

Nashville, Tenn. Dec. 6, 1902.

Rev. Jno W. Boswell, D.D., New Orleans La—

MY DEAR BROTHER: I enclose you herewith a letter which has just been received from Bishop Galloway, in regard to the recent commencement exercises of our Medical School at Soochow. Trust you will be able to give space to it in your columns.

Yours cordially.

W. R. LAMBUTH.

Soochow, China. Nov. 6, 1902.

DEAR DOCTOR LAMBUTH: We leave here this afternoon for Huchow. Have spent nearly a week in this city. On Wednesday afternoon we had the commencement of the Medical College, when three graduates received the degree of M. D. It is said by every one to have been the most notable day in the history of modern Soochow. The governor, provincial treasurer, chief justice, and many other officials were present, with the Japanese consul, the commissioner of customs, and many distinguished guests. Our chapel was crowded with the elite of this aristocratic and literary city. The wives of millionaires in gorgeous dress were out in large numbers. Essays on appropriate subjects were made by the graduates. I delivered an address, interpreted by Dr. Parker, and the governor presented the diplomas with a word of congratulation and counsel. After the exercises at the church all the distinguished guests were entertained with refreshments at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Fearn. His excellency, the governor, seemed greatly pleased with the occasion, expressed in generous words his appreciation of the work we are doing, and said he would be glad to aid in every way possible. He has already promised a liberal contribution to the Soochow University. That the Medical College should have commanded such distinguished and official recognition, and our work and workers have had such influential endorsement, is a most grateful thought and a stupendous fact. A new morning has dawned upon China. The mists are clearing away and the whole land will one day be flooded with light. Now is the church's magnificent opportunity. Gates that were hermetically sealed are beginning to open, and others that stood again have fallen from their hinges. We need men for the field and men for the schools. We need women to go into these open homes and women to teach the children to know our Lord.

I wish you could have been in Soochow on that great day. What a magnificent display of Chinese official and aristocratic life, as one chair after another arrived with runners and outriders in brilliant oriental dress! Such emphatic and cordial endorsement we have never known in China. You can well imagine my eyes dilated with wonder as I had only a few hours before read an account of Dr. Muirhead's bitter experience on his first visit to Soochow, barely escaping with his life, and of your father's frigid loneliness, who came shortly after. Now how changed! There on the same platform with once despised "foreign devils" sat the chief executive of more than ten millions of people, and by his side I sat at the table in Dr. Fearn's home. Through his interpreter, who speaks excellent English, I said: "Your Excellency, it was a very small matter to you personally to present the diplomas to those young people, but it was a great event in their lives, and they will never forget the high honor you have done them." He replied: "It was my great pleasure, and I beg again to assure you of my interest in the work you are doing." He then asked for the names of the graduates, which were written for him on red paper in beautiful Chinese characters, and inquired as to the number of years they had been students, of what cities they were natives, etc.

Truly and fraternally.

CHAS. B. GALLOWAY.

REV. J. H. HOLLAND'S ITINERANT LIFE.

I feel it a duty, as well as a privilege, to say a few words concerning the life, labors and usefulness of Rev. J. H. Holland (deceased), who for more than thirty years gave his life and service to God and the Methodist Church as an itinerant preacher in the Mississippi Conference. While a local preacher he traveled as a supply three years previous to his connection with the Conference, serving, first, the Ocaha circuit, 1866-67; and Rankin circuit, 1868. In 1869 he was admitted on trial in the traveling connection, and served the following charges, to-wit: Philadelphia circuit, 1870-71; Paulding circuit, 1872 to 1875, inclusive; Trenton circuit, 1876-77; Union circuit, 1878-79; Shady Grove mission, 1880; Enterprise circuit, 1881; Vancleave circuit, 1882-83; Ellisville circuit, 1884; Neshoba circuit, 1885-86; Marion circuit, 1887-88; Bethel circuit, 1889; Whittington circuit, 1890-91; Americus circuit, 1892-93-94, inclusive; Nicholson mission, 1895; Fuller circuit, 1896; Linwood circuit, 1897; Gulf Port mission, 1898; St. John's mission, 1899, at the end of which year his itinerancy closed, and he was granted a superannuated relation.

It was not the writer's privilege to know Bro. Holland until the day of his long and useful life was drawing to a close, and I was then privileged to know him. I say privileged, for it was indeed a privilege to know him, and to hear him pray and sing. I have never yet seen a greater faith, and at the same time so unpretentious and holy a life.

In 1901 Bro. Holland and his faithful wife bade farewell to his native State and hosts of friends, and came with his son to California, and located in Berkley, from which place his triumphant spirit took its flight on Jan. 18, 1902.

In company with his wife, a short while since, I visited the beautiful cemetery, coming quite near the spot where this "prophet of the Lord" was laid. Before me quickly passed the vision of his sunny face, his cheerful voice, his snowy locks, and I intuitively felt that the ground I treaded was holy, while these familiar lines came floating into mind as if an echo from the hills of glory:

"Servant of God, well done!
Rest from thy fond employ;
The battle fought, the victory won,
Enter thy Master's joy."

FROM THE SOCIETY OF FRIENDS IN AMERICA.

To the Various Christian Bodies in the United States—

DEAR BRETHREN IN CHRIST: We are confident in the belief that the consensus of opinion of the professing Christians of our land is opposed to the evils of the liquor traffic, and we find a want of co-operation in practical effort to give effect to this opposition because none of the propositions heretofore made has met the approval of the general judgment of Christian people. We recognize that this is the case in our own body and we believe it is likewise true of others. As a result, the church exerts far less influence than it should to prevent the evils produced by this great cause of poverty and crime, and which, also, is a most serious obstacle to the spread of the gospel.

We are deeply impressed with the conviction that an earnest effort should be made to ascertain in what way Christians can exert a united influence in this cause, and by what means they may work together. Upon what proposition can we obtain a practical agreement? We frankly confess that we are not competent to solve the problem, but we believe that by united inquiry and a prayerful seeking for divine enlightment, with a willingness to approach the subject with an open mind, the united church may find a way by which we can serve the cause of Christ and the good of mankind in seeking the ultimate elimination of this stupendous evil. We, therefore, invite the governing bodies of the various denominations of Christians in the United States to appoint delegates to represent them in a Conference to be held in the city of Washington, to begin on the second Wednesday of March in the year 1906. The decisions of this Conference should be reached only in practical unanimity, and, therefore, it is unnecessary to indicate any limit to the proposed representation.

We issue this invitation with an humble realization of the smallness of our body, as compared with many others, but we do it under a deep sense that this duty has been laid upon us and that God will use the proposed instrumentality for the accomplishment of great good to mankind and for the glory of his name.

Believing that this proposition will meet with your approval and practical co-operation, we have appointed James Wood, of Mount Kisco, N. Y.; Rufus M. Jones, Haverford, Pa.; Timothy Nicholson, Richmond, Ind.; Benjamin F. Trueblood, Boston, Mass., and Edmund Stanley, Wichita, Kan., with one additional delegate from each of eleven yearly meetings, to represent us at the Conference.

In the faith and love of Jesus Christ, we are your friends,

EDMUND STANLEY,
Presiding Clerk.
ELLWOOD O. ELLIS,
Assistant Clerk.

State Prohibition.

A mass meeting of the Prohibitionists of Mississippi who favor the passage of a law by the next Legislature to prohibit the manufacture, sale and importation, for beverage purposes, of all alcoholic liquors throughout the State, is hereby called at the State Capitol in Jackson, on Tuesday, the seventeenth day of February, 1903, at 11 o'clock A. M., to organize for the accomplishment of this object.

It is believed by the signers of this call, and thousands of others, that the time is ripe for an aggressive, decisive movement along this line. For more than twenty years the soundness of the principle of prohibition has been embodied in the liquor laws of the State, and approved by Democratic governors and Legislatures, with only certain qualifying conditions, such as local option, exercised by petition or a direct ballot. By this means, and statutory prohibition in small areas, sixty-three of the seventy-five counties of the State stand to day redeemed from the debauching influence of the legalized dram-shop. It has been outlawed in those counties by the votes of the people themselves, whose representatives have gone to Jackson and voted for its perpetuation in other counties. On the Mobile and Ohio railroad, along the eastern border of the State, not a licensed dram-shop is to be found, from the Alabama line on the south to the Tennessee line on the north. Along the entire main line of the great Illinois Central, from the Tennessee line on the north to the Louisiana border on the south, but one licensed town is traversed. On the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley branch, from Jackson to its northern terminus, and along the Aberdeen branch extending easterly through the central portion of the State from Durant to Aberdeen, not an open dram-shop exists, while across the State via the Georgia Pacific, from the Alabama line far into the Delta, and via the Alabama Great Southern from the Alabama line across the State to Vicksburg along the Northeastern from the Louisiana to the Alabama line in Southeast Mississippi, and again from Jackson along the Gulf and Ship Island to Harrison county, the same condition prevails. Only in twelve counties in the entire State—three on our Gulf coast, one in Central Mississippi, and the rest scattered through the Delta and along our Mississippi river border—does the dram-shop exist by sanction of State law.

This has been practically the situation for a decade. In these counties the traffic has become fortified behind a perverted and misguided local public sentiment, backed by the money and active sympathy of the whisky interests beyond the State, whenever a mere local effort is made to dislodge it. In these counties the dram-shops continue as so many plague spots, poisoning the moral and political atmosphere about them, and, by plying their boldly advertised and vicious "jug trade," spread the evil contagion to the dry counties beyond. In every local-option contest, whether brought on by Prohibitionists or dram-shop advocates, the brunt of the fight against the combined liquor interests uearly always falls upon the ministry and the consecrated Christian women of our State, who are thus brought into a hand-to-hand contest with the worst elements of society of both races, marshalled under the red banner of the dram-shop. The strange anomaly is often presented of white men, who will not tolerate the negro at the ballot-box under any other circumstances, exerting every effort to get him registered, and standing shoulder to shoulder with him at the polls for the liquor traffic against the best men and women of the community.

So much without referring to the palpable wrong and inconsisteucy of the State's longer continuing as a conditional partner in a confessedly immoral and nefarious business. For a money consideration, the State licenses the dram-shop. Thereby she adopts that institution as her own, protects and dignifies it with her authority and laws, and really becomes a co-partner in the business, since she receives a liberal share of the profits. But for what purpose is the dram shop set up? Simply and solely that the citizen may go there and get alcoholic drinks. Then, when he has taken those drinks until his reason is dethroned, temporarily, he commits murder; and the same good State, which has put the dram-shop there that he may drink, turns right about and hangs him for the murder. To maintain her respectability and consistency, let the good State of Mississippi either cease to make criminals, or cease to punish them.

It is notorious that alcoholic drink is the greatest of all incitants to crime, and one of the greatest demoralizers and disorganizers of labor. In a State with such an immense negro population as ours, it should especially concern our statesmen and all other thoughtful citizens to remove, as far and effectually as possible, this crime- and sloth-producing traffic. The thought expressed by England's great statesmen of the last century should become the sentiment and policy of Mississippi, viz.: That the State should make it as easy as possible for her citizens to do right, and as difficult as possible for them to do wrong.

The hour has struck when we should go forward and renounce forever the alliance which has hitherto existed between the State and the dram-shop. Any time within the last dozen years the Prohibitionists of Mississippi, had they been united on plans and policy, could have achieved such a result. For them to neglect or fail to do so with the opportunity now before them, would be a stupendous mistake. Next year, for the first time in the history of the State, nominations for every elective office in Mississippi are to be made directly by the people themselves in a primary election, with all the safeguards thrown around the primary which apply at a regular election. None will be allowed to participate in the Democratic party primary but white qualified electors—persons who have complied with the conditions of Mississippi's high-standard elective franchise laws—thus assuring an electorate of the people which should be the very cream of the State's citizenship. Nominations by the Democratic party primaries will be tantamount to an election at the regular election to follow. If, therefore, Prohibitionists—ninety-nine one-hundredths of whom are Democrats—will come together, organize, and resolve to make this question an issue in the primary for nominating a governor and legislators, victory will be assured. And if due care is exercised in nominating minor executive officers throughout the State, no fear need be entertained that a carefully drawn State prohibition law will be enforced. Officers thus nominated and elected, backed by Mississippi's able and incorruptible judiciary, would reduce the "blind-tiger" nuisance (always exaggerated by those wishing to bring prohibition into disrepute) to the lowest possible minimum.

Mississippi occupies a proud and unique position among her sister States. Among the first to recognize the property rights of her women: first to establish an Agricultural and Mechanical College for her boys and an Industrial College for her girls; first among her Southern sisters to abolish the cruel and bloody convict leasing system and to substitute therefor convict farms under State control; the pioneer and exemplar of all her Southern sisterhood in solving the race problem in politics by constitutional enactment, and elevating the standard of the elective franchise: first of all to give to her legal voters a direct individual voice in the nomination of all elective officers—now let her add to her proud fame by becoming the first of the Southern sisterhood to throw off the degrading yoke of the liquor traffic, and place the dram-shop under the same legal ban to which she long ago consigned its lesser associates in evil—the gambling den and the brothel.

All friends of prohibition who are willing to unite with us in such a movement are earnestly and cordially invited to meet in Jackson on the date above named. It is desired that every county in Mississippi be represented.

New Orleans Seamen's Bethel.

APPEAL FOR COMFORT BAGS.

Nearly everyone looks forward to Christmas as a time for receiving a gift, and the sailor is not an exception to the general rule. For many years it has been the custom to present "Jack" with a "Comfort Bag," in whatever port he happens to be during the Christmas holidays, and he is very much disappointed if he is overlooked. Last year, at the dinner given by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Bethel, and during the following week, 600 of these bags were given out by our Bethel. They came from all parts of the country, and were donated by ladies' societies, Circles of King's Daughters, and by individuals. Some send one, others a large number. Surely the sailor away from home and friends, and suffering a great many hardships and privations, should not be neglected, especially when it is so easy to bring some good cheer into his life by remembering him during the festive occasion, when people away from home are most likely to feel home-sick.

The bags are usually made of some stout cotton goods, such as cretonne, denim, fancy awnings, or ticking, etc., finished at the top with a draw string. They should contain coarse white and black thread, large needles, scissors, buttons, and such other sewing articles as would be helpful to a man who has to do his own mending (10x12 inches is a good size to make them).

A good Christian letter is much appreciated by the sailor, and often proves a means of grace to him. A Testament is supplied by the superintendent in the language of the sailor receiving it, and in this way the Word of God is scattered in many languages all over the world.

We hope that our appeal may meet with a hearty response from the ladies this year, and that we will be able to supply 2,000 sailors with bags during the Christmas holidays. If name and address are given, the receipt of them will be acknowledged.

Starving to Death.

Is it possible that Christians can persuade themselves that it is nothing to starve the soul, while they daily act on the supposition that it is fatal to starve the body? The spirit thrives on food not less than the body. The spirit declines, weakens, staggers, falls down, if it be denied its natural food. A starving soul is no praise to God. He who set the priceless price on a human soul has assured us that he would have that soul "strong," and full of health and beauty—"the beauty of holiness," which is the beauty of wealth or health. The Apostle Paul said, "And now, brethren, I commend you to God, and to the word of his grace, which is able to build you up, and to give you an inheritance among all them which are sanctified." The Apostle Peter said, "Desire the sincere milk of the Word, that ye may grow thereby." Joshua said, "This book of the law shall not depart out of the mouth," but, feeding upon it, "thou shalt meditate therein day and night." To read the Bible every day, to meditate upon it and inwardly digest its life-giving words, mingling the reading with prayer and thanksgiving, will cause the spiritual life that it be not an unfruitful starveling, but that it be strong and beautiful in the strength and beauty of God. The Czar Alexander I. said he had devoured the Bible, and found it suitable to his need. To the Bible men will return, said Matthew Arnold, because they can not do without it; just as a man who tries to give up food, thinking it a vain thing, will return to it. The Bible is the only book, said Beecher, that from beginning to end has sympathy with the poor and weak and struggling, the sorrowing, the sinful—"a book whose fruits rise higher, smell sweeter, taste more flavorsome, inspire more health than any or all others that have been produced upon the plain of human life." Break thou the bread of life, dear Lord, as thou didst break the loaves by Galilee, and we shall live and we shall be strong in thee.—Central Christian Advocate.

Resolutions.

Resolutions of sympathy, Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, Mississippi Conference:

Whereas, It has pleased the All-wise Father to call his faithful servant, John Marshall, to come up higher and enter into the joy of his Lord; therefore, be it

Resolved, 1. That by his death the church has lost a loyal and consistent member, and the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society a warm friend and advocate.

2. That our heartfelt sympathy goes out to the bereaved wife and children, especially to his daughter and our beloved ex-president, Miss Addie V. Marshall, and that we commend them tenderly to the God of the widow and fatherless, who alone can comfort in this sad hour.

3. That we request the publication of these resolutions in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and that a copy be sent to Miss Marshall.

An Ancient Foe

To health and happiness is Scrofula—as ugly as ever since time immemorial.

It causes bunches in the neck, disfigures the skin, inflames the mucous membrane, wastes the muscles, weakens the bones, reduces the power of resistance to disease and the capacity for recovery, and develops into consumption.

"A bunch appeared on the left side of my neck. It caused great pain, was lanced, and became a running sore. I went into a general decline. I was persuaded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and when I had taken six bottles my neck was healed, and I have never had any trouble of the kind since." MRS. K. T. SNYDER, Troy, Ohio.

Jackson, Miss.

While en route to the seat of Conference I had the pleasure of being the guest of Prof. A. H. Shannon, the genial manager of Founder's Hall, the late munificent gift of Major Millsaps. This is indeed a splendid property. It is heated by steam throughout and admirably arranged for a dormitory. An abundance of wholesome, well-cooked food is provided. There are at present fifty inmates. It was a pleasure to attend chapel exercises, and look over the student body numbering two hundred and fifty as splendid specimens of young manhood and womanhood to be seen in any land. Many of them in the near future will make their influence felt in affairs of Church and State. Millsaps College, so thoroughly equipped and manned by so able a president and faculty, is justly the pride not only of Methodists, but of all the citizens of our own great Commonwealth.

I am indebted to the courtesy of the supervising architect, Mr. K. E. Link, who showed me through the new State House, explaining everything in detail. Visitors are excluded from the building for obvious reasons. This is a magnificent structure, worthy of a great State. Not only from various sections of our Union has building material been brought, but marble has been imported from Italy and far-away Africa. Mississippians may justly feel proud of this monument to engineering skill.

Jackson is enjoying a season of phenomenal prosperity. On every side handsome stores and residences are being erected, and the principal thoroughfares are being paved with vitrified brick.

That princely Methodist, Mr. I. C. Enochs, is rebuilding a handsome hotel on the site of the old Edwards House. The congregation of Capitol Street Church hold him in grateful esteem because of his generous liberality. With two such men as R. W. Millsaps and I. C. Enochs, Jackson Methodism will not suffer. Time would fail me to mention other noble, consecrated men and women who are here, pillars of strength in our beloved church. May the blessings of the Great Head of the church ever attend them!

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

Conducted by N. A. MOTT, Yazoo City, Miss.

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

To All Pastors and Sunday-school Officers and Teachers in Louisiana:

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Louisiana State Sunday-school Association, held in New Orleans, Dec. 5, I was elected to the office of Field Secretary, with instructions to devote my entire time to the work. Now, I desire to say to every pastor and Sunday-school worker: Please send me your name and address at once; also give me the name of the denomination to which you belong and the position you hold—whether pastor, superintendent, secretary or teacher. By complying with this request at once you will confer an appreciated favor and at the same time lend some assistance to the promotion of the great work in which you are interested.

The Louisiana State Sunday-school Association is auxiliary to the International Sunday-school Association, and is interdenominational—not union, but the co-operation of all the evangelical churches for the promotion of the Sunday-school cause everywhere.

The Sunday-school is no longer an insignificant affair to be looked after by those whose only fitness for the work is their charitable disposition, but it is a mighty arm of power calculated to wield a tremendous force in the development of the twentieth-century church. But how shall this force be properly measured and directed? These are questions that present themselves to every conscientious officer and teacher. And these are the questions that the Association desires to help you solve.

Great good is bound to come out of conventions at which methods are discussed by the leading workers of all the denominations. It will be a part of my work to hold such conventions whenever and wherever possible throughout the State, and to that end I trust I may have the faithful co-operation of every pastor, superintendent and teacher.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

BOONEVILLE, MISS.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: I am very grateful to return to my charge for another year. Am still happier since it seems that the people are so well pleased. A material manifestation occurred this morning which confirmed the hearty handshaking of yesterday morning. A wagon rolled up before the door of the parsonage and the driver began to unload and continue to unload until he demonstrated that he had been loaded for the occasion. The articles were too numerous and diversified to name; but in the strength of these we shall be able to go more than forty days.

Fraternally, BEN. P. JACO.

The Emotional in Religion.

It is thought by many that the manifestation of any emotion in religion is an evidence of weakness. Such people usually think that they themselves live on a higher plane, that of pure reason, and that they are above all such superficial unnecessary manifestations of anything you might call feeling, in religion or anything else.

Now, all such ideas are false and very hurtful. The emotions are a very important and essential part of our natures. They arise naturally and invariably whenever we come to believe anything thoroughly, as, for instance, when sudden or immediate death stares us in the face. We can restrain them in some degree, it may be, but the only way not to have any emotion at all is to turn the mind altogether to other subjects. A closer study of the mind and its faculties will show that the will-power may thus direct the attention and thereby determine the materials out of which the intellect weaves its fabric of thought, but it will be seen also that emotion is not so subject to the control of the will. We are forced to the conclusion, therefore, that where there is no feeling, no emo tion, there is not very much religion, because the intellect is certainly dead to that subject. There can be no intellectual conception even of the greatness of the issues at stake or the consequences that may follow a mistaken course of action. If there was any such conception it would lead certainly to a state of increased feeling and interest in the whole matter.

On the other hand, the mistake is sometimes made that religion is all emotion; that there must be a state of good religious feeling all the time, or we are losing our religion. Such an idea of religion is a very imperfect one. The true foundations of religion rest on the exercise of every faculty of our mind or soul. Religion, we insist, is not confined to any one set of faculties or powers of the mind, but should be expected to call into full play every faculty that we exercise in any other department of life. We should at least be consistent.—Central Methodist.

The Parsonage.

The appearance of the parsonage is often a pretty fair expression of the character of its occupants. Even when it is not a modern or sightly building, it may be greatly improved by a little care. The expenditure of a few dollars, or even of a few hours' labor, may alter it much for the better, and there is no direction in which it is possible to make a wiser outlay of a little muscular Christianity. Nailing down the loose shingles, putting a new hinge on the window blind, removing a decayed plank from the porch or the front steps, setting out a tree in the front yard, pulling up the weeds, and cultivating a bit of green lawn, making a bed of brightly colored flowers—these are all easy tasks, and yet they are often neglected. Sometimes even a new and elegant structure is so defaced and damaged by neglect and rough treatment that it soon comes to look like an old barn. Shame on the preacher and his wife who care so little for their home. They ought to be compelled to live for a while in a mere shelter tent.—Christian Advocate (Nashville).

Unsuited to the House of God.

A concert, an operetta, and a breach of promise suit were given in a Methodist Church, and were spoken of in the daily papers as "a very creditable entertainment." It is certainly not wrong to attend a concert, nor is it necessarily evil to impersonate in singing, nor at certain times and places would it be wrong to have a mock trial, if conducted, not for buffoonery, but to entertain auditors and spectators with a well-carried-out imitation of the proceedings of courts. But a combination of this kind in a church-building, where the holy communion is administered, solemn appeals made and funeral services conducted, is an incongruity which by all the laws of nature can not be helpful to the purpose for which an evangelical church is established, and is liable to be exceedingly pernicious.—Christian Advocate.

Faith says not, "I see that it is good for me, and so God must have sent it," but, "God sent it, and so it must be good for me." Faith walking in the dark with God only prays him to clasp its hand more closely, does not even ask him for the lifting of the darkness so that the man may find the way himself.—Phillips Brooks.

A HELPING FUND.

We have many calls to send the ADVOCATE to poor, aged persons at a reduced rate. This we always do. Are there not many persons, well-to-do in this world's goods, who will send us money—any sum they may see fit to give—to supply the ADVOCATE to persons who would like to have it, but are unable to pay anything? We will gladly send it to such for one dollar a year. We hope to get many responses to this appeal. Let those who respond designate the names of those to whom they desire the paper sent, or give the money to their pastors, and let them send the names. If names are not sent, the editor will do the best he can. Who will first respond?

WOMAN'S SPECIAL ILLS CURED.

G.F.P. GERSTLE'S FEMALE PANACEA.

Cures irregular, scanty, too profuse and painful monthly periods; ovarian, uterine and all pelvic inflammations; ulcers, displacements and falling of the womb; whites and all unnatural discharges; frigidity, barrenness and all impediments to maternity; also all delicate ailments of the private organs of women. At all stages of uterine life, from childhood to womanhood and after the change that ends sexual womanly functions, it is the best friend and remedy for womankind. Its use strengthens and tones all womanly organs, regulates and renders natural all sexual functions. It is sold at drug stores at $1.00 a bottle. There is no other medicine like it or "just as good," none that can take its place and do its work. Accept no substitute; get the real medicine and it will prove to be the right remedy. Buy it, try it, and you will find these statements are true, for G. F. P. is reliable and will not disappoint.

"For ten months I suffered from various disorders incident to change of life, when I commenced the use of G. F. P., and must say that I found it to be all you recommend. It has certainly been a great help to me."—Mrs. Mary Richardson, Trussville, Ala.

"I had almost given up hope of ever being cured, but through the means of G. F. P. I have been restored to health. I wish that I could tell all women of this splendid medicine."—Miss Cornelia Peterson, Iron City, Ga.

What G. F. P. has done for these it will do for others.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

THE NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE AND TEMPERANCE.

The question of temperance was thoughtfully and fully considered at the recent session of the North Mississippi Conference, and the resolution adopted was one with no uncertain sound. There never was a time when the Conferences occupied anything like a doubtful position on the liquor question. The voice of the church, speaking through her representatives in the General Conference, fixes the attitude of all the Annual Conferences towards the liquor traffic, which is one of "extirpation." The North Mississippi Conference is no exception. But the General Conference has not determined the method of extirpation. In this matter each Conference may speak for itself.

Immediately after the session of 1901 it was noised abroad that the North Mississippi Conference was opposed to State prohibition, and that its action had blocked the way thereto. Such a supposition was without warrant, as will be seen by considering the action of the Conference as expressed in two resolutions. One reads:

"That we, as a Methodist Conference, composed of pastors and laymen, do pledge our sympathy and co-operation, along with other religious bodies, to continue the fight for prohibition until every county in the State shall go dry."

Another resolution embraced a petition to the Governor of Mississippi to submit to the special session of the Legislature a recommendation to so amend the "dram-shop or retail-liquor law as to limit the power to issue license to sell vinous, alcoholic, malt, intoxicating, or spirituous liquors, in any quantity," to towns of more than five hundred inhabitants, etc. This petition had its desired effect. The law was enacted, and drove the liquor traffic out of certain towns in counties that had not been touched by the local-option law. At the same time the Governor and Legislature were asked to allow the local-option law to remain in force. This request was also granted.

These resolutions do not indicate that the Conference of 1901 occupied an equivocal position. At the recent Conference State prohibition was an issue. The Committee on Temperance presented a resolution recommending the enactment of such laws as will prohibit the manufacture, sale and giving away of alcoholic liquors in any form, in the State of Mississippi. This resolution was amended by adding: "and to this end the Legislature is respectfully memorialized to provide for constitutional prohibition." We give the substance, not the exact words. The amendment was accepted by the Conference, and then the report of the committee was adopted. Thus, whatever may be said of the action of 1901, there can be no doubt of the position the Conference took in 1902. It favors State prohibition, but it wants the prohibitive clause ingrafted into the constitution, so that the liquor question will not be a matter of agitation at the meeting of every session of the Legislatnre, and prohibition liable to be repealed by a changing body of men whose opinions might be influenced.

The position of the Conference is well defined. The step taken is a step in advance, and from which, we dare say, the Conference will not recede. The Christian forces of Mississippi are determined on the extirpation of the liquor business.

Since writing the above, we have seen in the dispatches that the Mississippi Conference has, by a good majority, "placed itself on record as favoring an amendment to the State Constitution prohibiting the liquor traffic." This makes Mississippi Methodism solid on the question.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

The Mississippi Conference convened in its eighty-ninth session in Natchez, Dec. 11, 1902; Bishop Joseph S. Key presiding. The opening religious exercises were conducted by the Bishop, the members of the Conference and visitors joining heartily in the service. There was almost a full attendance of preachers and delegates from the beginning, and the business moved rapidly and without friction to the close.

Dr. A. F. Watkins, who has served as secretary for several years, was re-elected, and named as his assistants, R. Selby, H. M. Ellis, G. S. Harmon, W. T. Griffin, and T. B. Cottrell.

The following committees were appointed:

Memoirs—D. C. Langford, W. C. Black, E. H. Mounger, V. V. Boone, A. F. Watkins, J. S. Parker, and I. L. Peebles.

State of the Church—C. M. Abney, H. P. Lewis, W. H. Lewis, H. Mellard, C. C. Evans, M. A. Thurman, B. F. Lewis.

Bible Cause—W. W Morse, T. B. Cottrell, H. L. Norton, P. H. Howse, J. H. Jones, T. M. Evans, and R. Bradley.

Sabbath Observance—M. L. White, A. H. Bradley, H. B. Singleton, S. B. Watts, A. D. Miller, J. A. McLeod, and J. A. B. Jones.

Publishing Interests—W. L. Blackwell, J. R. Jones, M. M. Black, J. W. Lewis, H. B. McGehee, T. J. O'Neil, and M. L. Burton.

District Conference Records—L. E. Alford, M. H. Moore, W. W. Ellis, C. F. Emery, T. H. King, R. A. Sibley, Jr., and G. H. Thompson.

Conference Relations—W. J. Dawson, H. J. Moore, J. P. McKeown, G. A. Guice, W. G. Forsythe, G. H. Galloway, and L. Carley.

Temperance—J. N. Ware, H. A. Gatlin, A. B. Kling, L. P. Brown, H. G. Millsaps, J. G. Galloway, and E. F. Edgar.

Public Worship—T. W. Adams, J. E. Carpenter, J. W. Brown, and E. A. Enochs.

Communications from the various connectional Boards, and from the schools and colleges under the care of the Conference, were read and referred to appropriate committees for consideration.

The Board of Missions was represented by Dr. C. F. Reid, who made a short talk to the Conference, and delivered two addresses at length to large public congregations. The press dispatches quote Dr. Reid as saying that the Southern Methodist Church raised more than one million of dollars during the past year for foreign missions. That is a mistake. We were not present, but, having some knowledge of the facts, we take it for granted the Doctor said that during the quadrennium we had raised more than $1,500,000 for foreign missions.

Dr. P. H. Whisner represented church extension, but, being sick, he made no public address.

The Publishing House was represented by Mr. Henry Spence, who faithfully looked after the work in his hands.

The Mississippi Conference is more fortunate than other Conferences, having two connectional officers as members of the body: Dr. DuBose, Secretary of the Epworth League Board, and Dr. A. F. Watkins, Agent for the Endowment Fund for Superannuates. Both causes were ably represented. It was predicted in advance of Dr. Watkins' talk that he would not succeed in raising $10,000 at the Mississippi Conference, but a dispatch to the Picayune says, "He made the speech of his life, and under the influence of his eloquence $13,000 was raised." This was a notable achievement. Dr. Watkins has been in the field less than three months, and has raised one hundred thousand dollars.

Dr. W. B. Murrah, president of Millsaps College, was present, and presented the claims of the college in his usual clear and forcible manner. No man in Mississippi Methodism occupies a more responsible position than Dr. Murrah. No man is more faithful in the discharge of his obligations. He impresses himself on the whole church.

Dr. DuBose's report to the Conference was very encouraging. The Epworth League is constantly increasing in numbers and usefulness, and the Epworth Era has so far increased in circulation as to be near self-sustaining. We sincerely hope it will soon be a source of revenue to the League Board.

Dr. H. M. Hamill was present in the interest of Sunday-school work. He is Superintendent of the Training Department of the Sunday-school, and spends much time in holding Institutes throughout the connection. He addressed a mass meeting of Sunday-school teachers and pupils, citizens and preachers on Friday evening. The address was interesting and inspiring; full of instruction and encouragement. It was a rare treat to the large audience. Dr. Hamill is at present holding a Sunday-school Institute in New Orleans, at Rayne Memorial Church. He is accompanied by his wife, who drills classes in the Primary Department.

The Bible cause during the past year, both in the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences, has received more than ordinary attention, and the collections are larger. Hereafter there will be a standing committee, to serve four years, on the Bible work. This was ordered by the General Conference last May, and will be of great help to Bible superintendents in conducting their correspondence with the Conferences. Rev. G. D. French, the superintendent for Mississippi, was present, and addressed the Conference.

The reports of the presiding elders and preachers indicated a year of great prosperity, spiritually and financially. There have been great and extensive revivals throughout the Conference, and many souls were added to the church. The preachers worked hard, and the brethren, generally, nobly responded to their call, and the collections were large. We have not the figures at hand. They will probably appear later. The Joint Board of Finance reported the claimants on the Board paid in full. This was cheering. All the districts did well, but the Seashore district, under the leadership of the Rev. J. M. Morse, in his first year in the presiding eldership, was awarded the banner. The Mississippi Conference is composed of self-sacrificing, active and intelligent men, who work hard on little pay, expecting to be rewarded in the world to come.

Four members had died during the year, viz.: Ransom J. Jones, J. H. Holland, James P. Drake, and John W. Harmon. Memorial services were held on Sunday at 3 P. M., at which time appropriate and touching tributes were paid to the departed. Some of these were old, others middle-aged and strong, but all were men of God, and died in the faith.

Five preachers were admitted on trial, viz.: James W. Thompson, Wm. B. Jones, Henry T. Carley, Shadrach N. Young, and Edward T. Coker. Charles M. Chapman, from the Missionary Baptists, and William F. Baggett, from the Methodist Protestant Church, were received into full connection in elders' orders. I. W. Cooper, W. T. Bolling, T. B. Clifford and J. E. Lewis were received by transfer.

The following committees to serve for the next quadrennium were announced:

Board of Missions—M. M. Black, J. E. Carruth, B. F. Lewis, Allen Kling, H. M. Ellis, R. L. Bennett, W. L. Linfield, R. L. Blackwell, W. M. Sullivan, W. S. F. Tatum, W. J. Dawson, W. G. Forsythe, E. A. Enochs, Jas. Watts.

Board of Education—R. W. Millsaps, R. Selby, W. Wanl, L. E. Alford, W. H. Huntley, T. B. Holloman, A. F. Watkins, H. B. McGehee, E. H. Mounger, D. W. Heidelberg, M. L. Burton, L. L. Lampton, John A. McLeod, E. S. Drake.

Board of Church Extension—W. H. Saunders, H. G. Millsaps, C. W. Crisler, N. B. Harmon, M. L. White, J. T. Abney, M. M. Williams, L. N. Dantzler, T. A. Holloman, L. Stainer, J. Galceran, B. A. Summer, W. M. Estes, R. F. Witt.

Sunday-school Board—J. S. Parker, Asa Weston, W. H. Lewis, J. M. Black, H. C. Brown, James M. Egan, J. W. Crisler, W. H. Ormond, A. D. Miller, Adrian Trimble, B. W. Lewis, J. B. Holland, H. A. Gatlin, N. A. Mott.

Epworth League Board—H. G. Hawkins, J. M. Moore, D. P. Bradford, W. H. Ellis, J. R. Jones, D. G. Patton, F. A. Grimes, H. E. Hines, D. Scarborough, W. D. Hawkins, W. W. Featherstun, R. P. Blankenship, T. B. Clifford.

Bible Board—T. B. Cottrell, L. Carley, V. V. Boone, W. A. Price, W. W. Morse, T. M. Evans, W. L. C. Hunnicutt.

Joint Board of Finance—J. W. Chambers, A. C. Enochs, V. D. Skipper, H. G. Godbold, P. D. Hardin, W. J. Hunnicutt, T. J. O'Neil, W. M. Thornton, H. Mellard, J. C. Catett, M. H. Moore, T. P. Bell, C. A. Powell, J. H. Jones.

Conference Committee on Admissions—J. M. Weems, L. Carley, B. S. Rayner, G. A. Guice, J. E. Carpenter, J. W. Lewis, C. McDonald.

Examining Committees: Admission—H. W. Van Hook, C. A. Powell, I. L. Peebles. First Year—M. M. Black, John A. Moore, G. H. Thompson. Second Year—T. L. Mellen, James A. Moore, J. D. Ellis. Third Year T. B. Holloman, B. F. Lewis, W. G. Forsythe. Fourth Year—C. W. Crisler, E. H. Mounger, H. W. Featherstun.

Visiting Committees: Millsaps College—W. H. Huntley, H. B. McGehee. Whitworth College—H. M. Ellis, J. S. Twiner. East Mississippi Female College—M. M. Black, W. P. Davis. Edward McGehee College—C. A. Powell, J. R. Lin. Port Gibson College—W. H. Saunders, John A. Guice.

Monday was devoted to the consideration of reports from boards and committees, and to hearing addresses of connectional men who were not present earlier in the session, among them Dr. Tigert, who represented the Review, and other publications of our House at Nashville. Among the reports was one on temperance and one from the Mississippi Orphans' Home. The report on temperance "recognizes the great advance made in Mississippi along temperance lines, reaffirms opposition to the army canteen system, and asks our national representatives at Washington to use their votes and influence against it. The Conference affirmed its opposition to the liquor traffic in every form, and pledged its 'prayers and labors to any Christ-like means to prevent the sale of liquor within the borders of the entire State.' In addition, the Conference adopted a resolution favoring a constitutional amendment prohibiting the liquor traffic."

The report of the Orphans' Home showed an encouraging state of things. During the five years of its existence 219 orphans have been cared for, including 107 now in the Home. Great improvements have been recently added—but more are needed, especially apparatus for heating the building.

Just before the close of the Conference "a resolution was adopted by a rising vote, thanking the citizens of Natchez for their hospitality, the New Orleans Times-Democrat and Picayune, and the Natchez Democrat, for their very complete reports of the Conference proceedings; the congregations of the Presbyterian and Baptist Churches for the use of their houses of worship, and Dr. J. E. Carpenter for his painstaking care of the visiting brethren. It was resolved that hereafter the Conference convene on Wednesday."

The editor met many of the brethren, by whom he was "courteously entreated." And we take occasion here, as we did in their presence, to thank them for the generous manner in which they have stood by the ADVOCATE during the past year, and for their pledge for the year to come. The Mississippians are noble people. Conference adjourned Monday evening, to meet next year at Central Church, Meridian, and with the request that the day of meeting be Wednesday instead of Thursday.

PERSONAL.

A note from Dr. W. T. J. Sullivan informs us that Rev. Amos Kendall, whose illness we noted in our last issue, is improving. He was able, the middle of last week, to be up and walk about. We trust the "old soldier" will soon be entirely restored. He is cheerful and happy.

Rev. J. H. Mitchell, presiding elder of the Winona district, in a letter to the editor, says: "I begin my work for the new year hopefully, and will try to make it the best year that we have had." We thank Brother Mitchell for kind and encouraging words concerning the ADVOCATE.

A note from Rev. D. W. Babb informs us that his appointment is "Batesville and Beeley," not "Batesville and Burgess" as printed last week. Our printers had the appointments in type when we reached home, having followed the copy in the Picayune. In reading the proof we failed to detect the error.

Rev. E. N. Evans, of Baton Rouge, in a note to the editor, says: "Mrs. Mary W. Read departed to-day (Dec. 12) for her eternal rest, after ninety years well spent—a life as far above the average in intellectuality and purity of character as in length of days. A more extended account of her life will be given soon by Dr. LaPrade."

We copy the Mississippi Conference appointments from the Times-Democrat. If there are any mistakes, we will be glad for the brethren interested to point them out, and we will correct. Rev. R. H. Barr is announced for two charges. We put him down at the point first named, Escatawpa, and left Estabuchie blank. The presiding elder, Brother Mellen, will kindly supply the necessary information.

Rev. D. E. Kelly, of Boyce, La., just at the close of the year, sends us a list of nineteen new subscribers to the ADVOCATE. He has our heartiest thanks. Brother Kelly says: "I have worked hard for these subscribers, but never in my life did I enjoy anything more. It gives me a good conscience, and I shall be glad to see you at Conference. We have had fifty accessions this year. I hold official receipts for every dollar assessed to the Boyce charge by the Annual Conference. So we have great reasons to rejoice and take courage."

Our Female Colleges.

BY REV. L. S. JONES.

Fortunately or unfortunately, we have four female colleges in the bounds of the Mississippi Conference. These four schools stand for the higher Christian education of Mississippi Methodism, with curriculums differing widely from each other, and all falling more or less below the standard of female colleges raised by the General Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. These schools all confer the degrees of M. E. L., B. S. and A. B. Anyone who has compared the curriculums of any two of these colleges has discovered that no two girls graduating from any two of these so-called colleges would have the same mental equipment. From this fact is it not manifest that there must exist confusion and contradictions among us as regards the higher education of woman? And, further, do we not lay ourselves, as a church, liable to just, but unfavorable criticism, and even ridicule? To me it has that appearance.

How is this confusion to be reduced to order? And how are we to place our institutions upon a more commendable footing in the esteem of educated people? But, it may be asked, what confusion exists, and how are we liable to unfavorable criticism? The confusion exists in that our degrees do not mean the same thing, and that we are liable to criticism, and even ridicule, is manifest from the fact that an A. B. graduate of neither of our colleges could get a position as teacher in any first-class college, either North or South. The most she could do would be to teach the freshman classes.

Our General Board has given us a standard for college degrees—such a standard which, if adopted, would remove our reproach and bring order out of confusion. If our Conference would act in harmony with the General Board, we would soon move into line with the educational progress of the age, and our degrees would mean the same thing, and be worth something to those who hold them. We haven't too many colleges, but too many conferring meaningless and confusing degrees.

The Mississippi Conference needs only one college conferring degrees. This we should have, and the rest of our colleges should be reduced to preparatory schools, fitting our girls for college, provided the preparatory school should be allowed to prepare girls to enter as high as the junior year, thus requiring two years to graduate with a degree from the college. The college should be endowed sufficiently to give free tuition, and should not be allowed to have a preparatory department. The secondary schools should be compelled to have a uniform course, and should be under the supervision of the college president. All secondary schools should be required to publish their rates, and only for good cause be required to adhere to the same.

Again, with reference to the assessment, this should be increased twenty-five per cent. and prorated between our Conference schools, male and female, according to the number of preachers' sons and daughters attending these several schools. Why should the male college receive an annual stipend from the church to pay for the tuition of preachers' sons, and our female schools educate their daughters free of tuition? There is not the semblance of justice or Southern chivalry in so doing. If the boys themselves were allowed to direct this fund, we are sure they would devote it to the education of their sisters.

For the small sum of $90 per session our female schools are striving, without any endowment, to furnish a liberal education for the daughters of our traveling preachers. Why should not the church help to educate the daughters of itinerants as well as their sons? Is it because the education of the boys is more imperative than that of the girls? Certainly not. We feel confident that if either must suffer in their mental training, the Commonwealth would suffer more from the neglect of the girls than from the neglect of the boys.

There is no reason why this fund should not be increased, and divided equally between the boys and girls of our toiling, faithful itinerants. Let us put the education of our girls upon a firmer, broader basis. It may work a hardship to some of us, but we deem it better to let some one suffer than to cripple the education of our girls.

TESTIMONIAL.

LINDEN, ALA.

I. L. LYONS, New Orleans—

Dear Sir: Last winter I had a severe cough pain in the chest and spitting of blood. I procured a bottle of Dr. Locock's Cough Elixir, and am happy to state that four doses relieved me entirely, and I can safely say that I think it is the best cough medicine I ever saw.

SOMETIMES a cold settles in the bowels. The pain pierces like a lance. Get rid of it promptly by taking Perry Davis' Painkiller in sweetened water. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'. Refuse substitutes.

Mississippi Orphans' Home.

As the Conferences have been held, and the Conference collections are out of the way (though we believe they would not be lessened by our cause being presented), the opportunity should be seized by the pastors and friends of the orphans, and special effort made to help care for them. Many churches failed to have Thanksgiving services, and give the people an opportunity to contribute. The bad weather, and other collections in many instances, prevented much being done for the Home.

Now, we ask that the matter be given right of way, and that a Christmas service be held, and the holidays given, in some measure, to this work.

We very much appreciate the presents, toys, dainties and the like sent. They give the children a happy Christmas, but we need substantial improvement for their comfort and training. We now need ten more beds to properly care for the number we will have during the Winter, as six or eight more will come in in the near future. The heating apparatus will be installed at a heavy expense, but will be much more satisfactory, and will save one-half, or more, fuel, and last for probably thirty years.

A friend—a layman—has undertaken to raise a sum sufficient to put thirty nice desks in the chapel. This is very much needed, and is asked for by the Superintendent of Education.

Our Hospital Cottage is to be used for the care of infants as well as the sick. We now have four, and will employ a lady for this work in connection with the other smaller children. Only two rooms of this building have been furnished so far.

OUR PLAN.

We will mail to every superintendent, or the pastor, gleaners, requesting him to put them in the hands of some Leaguers or little girls of the Sunday-school, to be filled and returned to him, to be sent the Home, or sent direct by mail to the Home. Then, in addition to a Christmas service, will put the matter properly before the people, and much will be raised to help in this great work. So far the field has only been worked partially. Thousands more will give cheerfully. Few there are who will not give to these helpless little ones.

One of our noble girls, Miss May Knox, has had fever eight weeks, but we are thankful to note she is improving at this time.

Yours for the children,

W. T. GRIFFIN, Manager.

Report of Epworth League Board.

Since the State Epworth League Conference has been dissolved, the control of the work and the responsibility for its success rest immediately upon us as a Conference. We can not afford to discuss the practicability of running this organization, nor is it a matter of debate as to whether we need it or not. For it is a demonstrated success in other parts of the church, and the need for the work it proposes to accomplish for our young people grows more imperative each day.

The purpose of your Board is to present a working plan that will at least solve some of the problems that we must encounter.

We do not wish to minimize the work of the devotional and of the missionary departments of the League. We feel, however, that a true appreciation of the material with which the League has to deal debars these departments from the prominent places in the League plans. Young people are not wealth producers, and to lay stress upon the money-collecting spirit is to stimulate them to gather from their parents the necessary contributions, and thus to defeat the very end at which we aim. The status of a child's education and his lack of organized thinking, and trained expression, and his poverty of language, render verbal expression difficult, and especially the expression of his feelings while in the throes of a mental and moral revolution, such as conversion, brings into his life. While we do commend and encourage public expression of feelings and public prayer on the part of our young Leaguers, we feel that the League will never touch vitally the young men and young women of our church as long as our ministers seemingly make this a requirement for entrance to the League.

We feel that the success of the League in both the town and country-place hinges on a uniform, full and complete plan of work in the third department of the League. The spirit of materialism is permeating every stratum of our society, resulting in the dulled sensibility to the spiritual nature of man, in a superficial culture greatly to be deplored, and a taste for a worthless class of current literature, much to the detriment of the noble masters, who are the sources of true culture. The influence of the spiritual element in life is being lost, and we are being trained to the flippant consideration of the most serious problems, and are losing the power of being deeply and vitally affected by life's great questions. The four books of next year's course, if carefully read by our ministers and Leaguers, will do much to offset these evils. The plan adopted by Dr. DuBose of sending out free an analytical manual of helps for the close study of these books, and the uniform plan of circulating these books, so that they will reach the entire body of each League, we feel will do much to bring about a revival in this department, and we recommend that the Conference endorse and adopt these plans. And we further recommend that, in order that these plans may be carried out thoroughly, and that these tedious questions of what our young people shall read shall be brought prominently home to the Leagues, the parents and the churches of the Conference.

We further recommend that one or more field workers be elected to conduct an educational campaign along these lines, and that the traveling expenses of these men shall be defrayed by the churches to whom they go, and that no other compensation shall be expected for this work.

We further recommend that Prof. J. T. Connell, of Tupelo, be elected to carry on this work, and that he report to the chairman of this Board from time to time the progress being made.

R. H. B. GLADNEY.

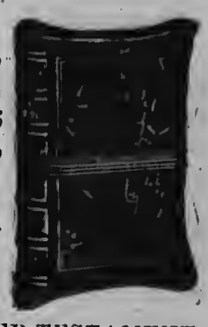
This Select List of Bibles

was chosen by the ADVOCATE to offer to its subscribers after a careful search through the catalogues of two of the world's greatest Bible Houses. It will interest you to read what we are offering in this line.



FIRST, we have the INTERNATIONAL MINION TYPE TEACHERS' BIBLE, which contains 300 pages of up-to-date helps, including maps and the Word-book, which is a combination of the Concordance, Index, Proper Names and Gazetteer; bound in Flexible Morocco, Divinity Circuit (overlapping edges), round corners, fine grained lining, and red-under-gold edges, for $1.60. Or

SECOND, if you want a larger type, we have this same Bible in Long Primer for $1.85.

THIRD, of the International series we have the RED LETTER TESTAMENT. This is a book that every one ought to have. It is printed in black and red ink. Every word that was spoken by Christ appears in red ink, while all the balance is printed in black. The paper is extra quality and thin, like that used in all fine Bibles. The Book is 4¾x3¼ inches in size, and beautifully bound in limp leather, red-under-gold edges, round corners, gold lettering on side, silk marker. The binding is soft and pliable. Drop us a card for sample page. We will send you this Book for $1.00.

There is another style of binding for the above Testament we can furnish you. It is in imitation leather, and will cost 70 cents.

The RED LETTER TESTAMENT as a present would be very highly esteemed.

If you want one of these books in connection with your subscription to the ADVOCATE, we will furnish them as follows:

The ADVOCATE, one year, and the International Minion Type Bible will be sent to you for $3.10.

The ADVOCATE, one year, and the International Long Primer Edition will be sent to you for $3.35.

The Red Letter Testament and the ADVOCATE, one year, will be sent to you for $2.60.

The Red Letter Testament, in imitation leather, and the ADVOCATE will be sent to you for $2.40.

We will print your name in gold (one line) on the cover of any book for 20 cents extra.

The Patent Thumb Index will be furnished on the Bibles for 25 cents extra.

P. S.—The ADVOCATE offers apply to old as well as to new subscribers.

The Linear Parallel Method

presents in a single line and in large, clear type the texts of the Authorized and Revised Versions of the Holy Bible, where said texts are alike. Where they are unlike, either in language, spelling, italicization, capitalization, parentheses, punctuation, or otherwise, the difference is at once set forth by means of double lines of smaller type, making a readily and easily readable combined text.

23 ¶ And Jē'sus went about in all Găl'i-lee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching "the gospel of the kingdom," and healing all manner of (sickness disease) and all manner of (disease sickness) among the people. — (ch. 9, 35. Mar. 1, 21, 39. Lu. 4, 15, 44. ech. 24, 14. Mar. 1, 14. z Mar. 1, 34.

24 And (his fame the report of him) went (throughout forth into) all Sȳr'i-ȧ: and they brought unto him all (that were sick, people that were taken holden) with divers diseases and torments, and those which were possessed with devils, and (those which were lunatick, epileptic,) and those that had the palsy (palsied;) and he healed them.

25 y And there followed him great multitudes (of people) from Găl'i-lee and from Dĕ-căp'ō-lis and from Jĕ-ru'să-lĕm and from Jū-dæ'ȧ and from beyond Jôr'dan. — y Mar. 3, 7.

[This is a Sample of the Type.]

An Instantaneous Comparison.

There is nothing mysterious or involved about the Linear Bible—all is plain sailing. There are no parallel columns or embarrassing foot notes to mystify one's understanding. To read the Authorized Version, one has but to read the large type line along to any point of difference in the respective versions, and then follow the UPPER small type line through such difference. Likewise, to read the Revised Version, one has but to read the large type line along to any difference in the respective versions, and then follow the LOWER small type line through such difference. This rule holds as to every difference, even to that of a comma. Thus not only the readings, but the comparisons of the two versions become easy, immediate, satisfactory and perfect.

In addition to the Old and New Testaments this edition contains the New Analytical and Comparative Concordance with 100,000 References—the most complete Concordance in any Teachers' Bible. A series of Fifteen Beautiful Maps in Colors, with cross-line Index. These maps are entirely new, and were engraved expressly for the Holman editions.

DID NOT KNOW SHE HAD KIDNEY TROUBLE

Thousands of Women Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

Gertrude Warner Scott Cured by the Great Kidney Remedy, Swamp-Root.

Women suffer untold misery because the nature of their disease is not correctly understood; in many cases when doctoring, they are led to believe that womb trouble or female weakness of some sort is responsible for their ills, when in fact disordered kidneys are the chief cause of their distressing troubles.

The mild and extraordinary effect of the world-famous kidney and bladder remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. A trial will convince any one—and you may have a sample bottle sent free, by mail.

Among the many famous cures of Swamp-Root investigated by NEW ORLEANS "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE" the one we publish this week for the benefit of our readers, speaks in the highest terms of the wonderful curative properties of this great kidney remedy.

"Doctors Said I Had No Kidney Trouble."

Vinton, Iowa July 15th, 1902.

GENTLEMEN:—My trouble began with pain in my stomach and back so severe that it seemed as if knives were cutting me. I was treated by two of the best physicians in the county, and consulted another. None of them suspected that the cause of my trouble was kidney disease. They all told me that I had cancer of the stomach, and would die. I grew so weak that I could not walk any more than a child a month old, and I only weighed ninety pounds. One day my brother saw in a paper your advertisement of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy. He bought me a bottle at our drug store and I took it. My family could see a change in me, for the better, so they obtained more and I continued the use of Swamp-Root regularly. I was so weak and run down that it took considerable to build me up again. I am now well, thanks to Swamp-Root, and weigh 148 pounds, and am keeping house for my husband and brother. Swamp-Root cured me after the doctors had failed to do me a particle of good.

Heart Beauty.

"It is a pity that Margaret is so—well, is so horrid homely."

"Margaret homely! You would never say that if you knew her better."

Mrs. Carter looked up in surprise.

"Certainly, no one would call those irregular features anything but ugly. Poor girl, she must feel it when she is with her sisters, for their beauty is such a contrast."

"You never think of her features when you are about her. She is so ready to do a favor, and is so kind and gentle in her ways. She has always a kind word for everybody."

I heard a slight rustle behind me and glanced around just in time to see Margaret disappear down the steps; she must have been reading in her favorite nook among the honeysuckles at the end of the piazza. That night she came into my room as usual for a little chat before retiring, but she was unusually quiet as she sat on the stool at my feet and gazed at the fire in the grate, for the night was cool.

"I don't know what you will think of me," she said at last, and there was a tremor in her voice, "but I could not help overhearing what you said about me this afternoon, and I want to thank you for it. You see I am so 'horrid homely,' as Mrs. Carter said, and I have always felt it, especially when people will compare me with Edith and Laura, and speak of their beauty. Don't think that I am envious; I am proud of them that they are so pretty, but I can't help being sensitive about my ugliness. I used to get angry and fret because my hair wouldn't curl, and because my mouth was so large and my nose such an ugly shape; until I guess I was getting as ugly inside as I was out," she smiled sadly. "One day an old woman came to the house selling laces, and when she went out of the gate she fell. I ran down and helped her up and straightened the things in her basket for her. She laid her hand on my shoulder and said:

"'God bless you, young leedy, youse not got the beauty that's skin deep. No, youse not got skin beauty; youse got the heart beauty: that's inside. Youse got a kind word for an old woman. God bless you, child.'

"Well, that 'heart beauty' was a new idea to me, and I thought over it a great deal; and I made up my mind that I would try to have that if I could not have the 'skin beauty,' and if I was kind to everybody they wouldn't think of my ugly face. What you said this afternoon—well, it made me feel that I was gaining a little at least. It was the first time I ever heard anyone say that I was anything but horrid ugly." She laughed, but there were tears in the gray eyes that looked into mine.

"Heart beauty. I shall try to have it if I can," she said half aloud, then gazed fixedly again at the fire.—May Everett Glover, in New York Observer.

Helpful Hints.

Camphor put in drawers or trunks will keep away mice.

Rub hinges with a feather dipped in oil, and they will not creak.

A small bag of sulphur kept in a drawer or cupboard will drive away red ants.

Boil three or four onions in a pint of water, apply with a soft brush to gilt frames, and flies will keep off them.

A spoonful of vinegar put into the water in which meats or fowls are boiled makes them tender.

Equal parts of ammonia and spirits of turpentine will take paint out of clothing, no matter how dry or hard the paint may be. Saturate the spot two or three times, then wash out in soap suds.

A little charcoal mixed with clear water thrown into a sink will disinfect and deodorize it.

The odor of sweet peas is so offensive to flies that it will drive them out of a sick room.

A fever patient can be made cool and comfortable by being frequently sponged with water in which a little soda has been dissolved.

Brass work can be kept beautifully bright by occasionally rubbing with salt and vinegar.

Stain of fruit, etc., may be taken out of wash goods by first saturating the spot with coal oil, then washing as usual.

To make sugar syrup so that it will not crystallize add a pinch of grated alum the size of a small pea to each pint of sugar. Cover with hot water, and let boil five minutes. This can be flavored if desired.

A pinch of salt will make the white of an egg beat quicker, and a pinch of borax in cooked starch will make the clothes stiffer and whiter.

An iodine stain, one of the most stubborn to encounter, can, it is said, be removed by soaking the fabric in sweet milk and occasionally rubbing the spot.

A good idea for mending a hole in an umbrella is to stick on very firmly black court plaster inside the cover. This is not so much seen as a darn.

Peeling from lemons and oranges throw into cold water, place on the stove, and when they come to a boil drain the water off and cover again with cold water. Let them boil fifteen minutes. Make a syrup of sugar and water, put the peeling into this, and boil until transparent. Roll in sugar, then place on a plate to dry. This is fine for fruit-cake.—Woman's Home Companion.

Harmful Habit of Answering Back.

The habit of "answering back" is as reprehensible in grown people as in children, and should be suppressed by every person anxious to lead a peaceable and harmonious life.

The "scrappy" household, in which each member strives for the last word in the argument, is most anxious to maintain an independent course of action, is afraid lest he shall be imposed upon, is not a happy household, nor can it ever become such a one.

It is an odious place to visit, and the separate individuals that compose it can always have a pleasanter atmosphere and time somewhere else, yet it is but seldom that anyone will give up the habit, or a whole family reform and institute a new order of things.

There is but one way to produce a lasting result, and that is to "withhold your tongue" on each and every occasion when bitter or sharp words arise to the surface.

The old adage, "It takes two to make a quarrel," is invariably true, and while silence is an aggravating response to an irritating remark, its effect is inevitable. The temptation to repudiate an unjust accusation is strong, but if it is unjust it will be regretted more than if a quarrel resulted in which both parties lost their temper.

She who will inwardly determine to "withhold her tongue" from ill-natured remarks, from unkind suggestion, from bitter retort, from nagging, will begin a revolution in her own home.

Do not wait for some one else to start the movement; have the joy in your own soul that you have planted the seeds of happiness yourself. Do not be discouraged if your efforts are not met half way. Go all the way if need be; "seek peace and pursue it!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Bear in mind that your happiness or your misery is very much of your own making. You can not create spiritual sunlight any more than you can create the morning star; but you can put your soul where Christ is shining. Keep a clean conscience. Keep a good stock of God's promises within reach. Keep a nightingale of hope in your soul that can sing away the dark hours when they do come.—T. L. Cuyler.

Sister CARRIE J. BAILEY was born in Nottoway county, Va., Nov. 29, 1819, and died at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. R. T. Bailey, in Lexington, Miss. Between these dates are comprised the lights and shadows of a long and beautiful Christian life. Sister Bailey's maiden name was Wells. She was married to Mr. Jordan Bailey, Dec. 21, 1858, and soon after her marriage moved with her husband to Mississippi, and located near Acona, in Holmes county. Here she lived for a number of years, perhaps, to the time of her husband's death. Two daughters—Mrs. R. T. Bailey, of Lexington, and Mrs. Emma Atkinson, of Grenada county—and several grandchildren survive her. While yet young our sister joined the Methodist Church, and for nearly threescore years and ten she adorned her profession by a pious walk and godly conversation. She made her home with her daughter in Lexington, and, although compassed with the infirmities of age when I first made her acquaintance, yet she enjoyed life and seemed happy, surrounded by her children and grandchildren. She loved her church, and took a lively interest in its affairs, attending its services when able to do so. She appreciated and enjoyed the visits and prayers of her pastor. She bore the privations and vicissitudes of life, and the infirmities of age, patiently and cheerfully. "She made the best of everything." The life of Sister Bailey was a beautiful exemplification of the uplifting and sustaining power of the gospel. It was a helpful inspiration to all who came in contact with her. After but a few days of sickness she closed her eyes on earthly scenes to open them, as her friends humbly trust, upon the beauties of the paradise above. After a funeral service conducted by the writer, her body was laid to rest near Acona. T. C. WIER.

MR. JOHN MARSHALL was born in Warren county, near Vicksburg, Miss., Nov. 5, 1822, and died in Brookhaven, Miss., Oct. 29, 1902, just one week before his eightieth birthday. He joined the Methodist Church when quite young, having been brought up in the church by Christian parents. His father moved from Warren to Carroll county while he was a boy, and the greater part of his youth and early manhood was spent in this county and Holmes. He was twice married; first to Miss Mary Stevens, and next to Miss Virginia Byrd, daughter of Rev. J. I. E. Byrd, one of the pioneer Methodist preachers of Mississippi. He served through the Civil War in Company G, 22nd Mississippi Regiment. A year or two after the surrender he moved to Copiah county, where he was engaged in the lumber business for some time. He moved to Brookhaven with his family in 1875, and here spent the last twenty-seven years of his useful life. Bro. Marshall was a gentle and unassuming Christian gentleman. He had deep and decided religious convictions, and was a man of unusual strength of character. He uncompromisingly opposed that which was wrong, and actively espoused all that was right. He was an ardent Prohibitionist, and rendered valuable and heroic service in those campaigns which finally freed his home town from the whisky saloons. As a Christ-like, sweet spirited Christian, Bro. Marshall had few equals, and as a generous hearted, patriotic citizen, he had no superior. In his death the church loses an exemplary member, and his family a devoted husband and father. He leaves a wife and two children—Miss Addie V. and Jno. I. Marshall. May the God of all grace keep and comfort them!

CHAS. W. CRISLER, Pastor.

CONRAD D. KREISER was born in Hesse Castle, Germany, Nov. 22, 1817, and died in Terry, Miss., Nov. 17, 1901. He came to America at seventeen years of age, and settled at Charleston, S. C., from which place he came to Mississippi in 1859, and made his home near Crystal Springs. Here he remained until eight years ago, when he moved to Terry and resided with his daughter, Mrs. Agnes Fanches. He was twice married, and at his death left seven children. In infancy he was baptized in the Lutheran Church, of which he remained a member until, coming to America, he united with the M. E. Church, South. Brother Kreiser was a true man in every sense of the word. Honest in his dealings with his fellows, and sincere and faithful in his service to God, his was a life beyond reproach. The writer knew him only in his old age, and a pleasure indeed it was to go into his home and converse with him. Himself clean in life and thought, he was ever ready to throw the mantle of charity over the actions and words of another. A short time before his death, after he had been quietly for some minutes making a review of his life, he said to one who sat near him, "I have looked back over my life, and if every word and act were printed in a book, I would be perfectly willing to have that book given to the world." He has left "the heritage of a good name" to his children. H. C. BROWN, P. C.

MRS. CORA BELL (nee Evans) was born Nov. 24, 1882; was baptized when six months old by her grandfather, Rev. John M. Evans; joined the M. E. Church, South, in September, 1895, during the pastorate of Rev. W. M. Sullivan on Carthage circuit, at Singleton Church; was married Nov. 10, 1901, by Rev. M. L. White to Mr. J. E. Bell, of Kosciusko, Miss., and left this earth for heaven, Oct. 5, 1902. Her body was interred in the cemetery at Singleton Church. A large assembly gathered to mourn the loss to church and relatives. I do not know that I have ever seen a more beautiful Christian character, loved by all the members of the church and schoolmates. She was ever faithful to Sunday-school and preaching; it was a rare thing for her to be absent. Her appearance and testimonies in the church, her life before the community, her devotedness to her father, mother and husband, brothers and sisters, prove beyond a doubt that she was God's child. God gave to her one child, for whom she gave her life. Her pastor had the pleasure of baptizing her (Cora Evans Bell) Nov. 16, 1902. No doubt Cora has gone to God. Her relatives are looking forward to the time when they will meet her. May God bless them all!

Her pastor, M. L. WHITE.

HESTER WEBB (nee Nesom) was born Jan. 7, 1882, on the Amite river, in Livingston parish, La., near the old Live Oak Church, at which she attended Sunday-school almost from infancy. Her father, George Nesom, of sacred memory, was for many years superintendent of this Sunday-school, and a more faithful one this scribe has seldom known; so you see it was perfectly natural that at the age of eight years Hester was received into the M. E. Church, South, during the pastorate of E. T. Denson. Her life as a Christian was a consistent one. On Nov. 15, 1901, she was happily married to Mr. Clark Webb, a member of a prominent Methodist family in Livingston parish; also a member of the church. On Sept. 19, 1902, Hester bid farewell to husband, mother, brothers and sisters, and went to live with papa on the other shore, there to await loved ones left behind. She left an infant child, which is doing well; cared for by his aunt, Mrs. J. D. Nesom. We bow in humble submission to the will of Him who is able to keep that which we have committed unto Him.

Her uncle, A. W. TURNER.

The Christ of Our Poets.

By REV. H. WALTER FEATHERSTON, D.D.

12MO. PP. 171. 75 CENTS.

The book is a mine of suggestions.—Epworth Herald.

Thanks to Dr. Featherstun for his timely book.—Rev. R. E. Dickenson.

"The Christ of Our Poets," in the present Reading Course, is proving to be very popular.—Epworth Era.

We only regret that the book is so slight; . . . it holds the reader from beginning to end.—New York Christian Advocate.

He holds up the Christ of poesy illuminated by a new and rarer light, presenting ineffable beauties hitherto unseen.—Mrs. Bishop Morrison.

Dr. Featherstun's book exhibits wide reading, and a profound philosophical insight into the spirit of these poems.—St. Louis Christian Advocate.

The author employs a graceful and lucid style. . . . Dr. Featherstun has placed all of us under lasting obligations to himself.—Nashville American.

This charming volume has been made part of the League Course for 1903. . . . Dr. Featherstun has done his work admirably.—Sunday School Magazine.

Your book exhibits, it seems to me, not only careful and conscientious study and good taste, but that rarer and finer quality we call insight.—Bishop O. P. Fitzgerald.

We welcome this volume as a valuable addition to a class of literature which has been neglected to some extent by our Southern writers.—Raleigh Christian Advocate.

The poets are searched for the footprints of the Man of Calvary, and many of them are found. . . . The book makes most profitable reading.—Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

The volume suggests on every page, for which we can never be sufficiently thankful, that the great poets . . . were every one of them genuinely and predominantly religious.—Northwestern Christian Advocate.

"The Christ of Our Poets" is so full of thought, so full of noblest purpose, so vivid in word painting that I would it might be put into the hands of every young man and woman of our land.—Mrs. Callie H. Howe, W. C. T. U. lecturer.

All Christians and poet-lovers should feel indebted to Dr. Featherstun for this volume, in which he shows very beautifully how the poets have ever gone ahead of their time in their conception of a Christ to which the world has gradually been led in its ideals.—Review of Missions.

BISHOP HENDRIX'S BOOK:

12mo. Pp. 326. Cloth. Gilt top. Price $1.25.

"This is a timely and thought-provoking book, written with a holy purpose, and sure of a wide and beneficent mission. . . . The title is suggestive, and every page instructive. . . . One cannot escape the impression that some fervent paragraphs were penned when the devout author was sitting very close to the feet of his Lord."—Bishop Galloway.

"Upper Room Meditations"

Bishop Fitzgerald's New Book.

Of the many contributions from Bishop Fitzgerald to the literature of Christian experience, none surpass this. Shut in from the world, he has heard the voice of God in the inner depths of his soul, and the Father whom he loves has helped him to tell what he has felt. No man can be unmoved by these pages.—Wesleyan Christian Advocate.

"Upper Room Meditations" is sweet, edifying, Christian. It cannot fail to do good, and I hope will be read by many thousands. It is a book for a sick room or a house in which sorrow sits enthroned.—Dr. Geo. G. Smith, Macon, Ga.

Those who have read it pronounce it the best of all his devotional writings. He has saved the best until now.—Nashville Correspondent St. Louis Christian Advocate.

It will be very helpful to the souls of God's children, for it comes out of a heart full of love and faith.—Texas Christian Advocate.

OTHERS DISCUSS THEM | 200-EGG-PER-YEAR White Wyandottes | WE POSSESS THEM

THE KIND WE SELL will hatch stock that will pay for its keep, for we breed what we advertise—a great laying strain of WHITE WYANDOTTES—ideal birds of large size and great productiveness, and hardy to an amazing degree. They are standard-bred and beautiful; but what is more to you, they are utility-bred. The farmer, and most others, desire stock that will bring dollars, and not simply blue ribbons. Ours will do both, but our special point is to produce a big hen to lay eggs.

THE KIND YOU WANT are the very kind we have—STRONG HENS. They lay strong eggs, and vigorous chicks result. It is a patent fact that Southern-laid eggs are the best. There are no better than ours in the South. Our hens have laid as high as 242 eggs in a year, with no forcing feed. It's in the strain, bred there, and they will please you mighty well. They have not been weakened by line-breeding, but built up from the "fittest" in standard points and stamina we could raise or buy.

General News.

The Chilian Cabinet resigned, after being in office only ten days.

Railroad traffic in the vicinity of Memphis has been demoralized by floods.

Italy has requested the United States to protect Italian subjects in Venezuela.

Congress has passed a bill providing for a union railway station in the city of Washington.

Twenty-four Macedonian workmen were massacred by Turkish troops near Dabolitza.

The Temps, of Paris, says it is time for the United States to intervene in the Venezuelan affair.

A Baltimore syndicate has been granted a franchise for an electric railway system in Monterey, Mexico.

The House passed Congressman Brousard's bill providing for locks and dams in Mermentau river and Bayou Vermilion, La.

Prominent doctors and lawyers of Caracas will request President Castro to resign, that an agreement may be reached with the allies.

Argument has begun before the Supreme Court as to whether the anti-lottery law is in violation of the interstate commerce clause.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children decided to abandon the Waifs' Home at Beauvoir and devote itself to rescue work here.

The British commander in Venezuelan waters will be ordered to take no further aggressive action, pending a decision in respect of arbitration.

The Louisville and Nashville and Illinois Central tracks are flooded in a number of places in Kentucky. Nearly a foot of water fell at Paducah in four days.

There is now on foot a project to erect a national memorial in honor of the author of the Declaration of American Independence. To this end a Thomas Jefferson Memorial Association of the United States has been organized.

The Freight and Transportation Committee of the New Orleans Board of Trade conferred with railroad freight agents relative to discriminations against New Orleans on Southeastern roads, and an early investigation was promised.

Dispatches to the Associated Press from the Central and South American countries show that the sentiment of the people is in favor of Venezuela. The Governments, however, will not take collective action against Great Britain, Germany and Italy.

Cures Cancer without Pain or Disfigurement.

PISON, ARK. MARCH 21, 1898.
DR D. M. BYE CO.

DEAR SIRS—A few months ago I was reading the Arkansas Methodist and saw your advertisement for the cure of cancers. I had one on my neck and thought I would try your medicine, and sent for one of your catalogues, and after reading that, I sent for medicine and after using it for a few months I can say I am well and it cured without pain. Can also say that you are very prompt in doing business. I am very thankful to you for your kind and skillful treatment. Yours very respectfully,

ELIZABETH G. CULPEPPER.

(The originator of the Oil Cure.)

Italian warships have joined in the Venezuelan blockade. England and Germany have received Italy in the combination against Castro. Venezuela has expressed a wish for a peaceful settlement of the dispute. The United States is upholding President Castro's peace proposals. It is said the German Government will declare war against the Venezuelan Republic.

The Central American Republic of Colombia, which has just come out of one of its periodical revolutions, is now proposing to make war on the Republic of Nicaragua, capture the territory through which the long discussed Nicaraguan ship canal would lie, and thus the ambitious Colombia would own both canal sites and be able to dictate terms to the United States.

The Sopreme Court decided that the State Railroad Commission has authority to compel Morgan's Louisiana and Texas railroad and Steamship Company and the Southern Pacific to build and maintain a station and depot at Berwick, La.

LOSS OF FLESH, cough, and pain on the chest may not mean consumption, but are bad signs. Allen's Lung Balsam loosens the cough and heals inflamed air passages. Not a grain of opium in it.

In discussing Italy's part in the Venezuelan affair, a leader in the Chamber said the imperialism of the United States should be watched, to which the reply was made that under a show of force the Monroe Doctrine had been "knocked sky-high."

A Wonderful Invention.

It is interesting to note that fortunes are frequently made by the invention of articles of minor importance. Many of the most popular devices are those designed to benefit the people and meet popular conditions, and one of the most interesting of these that has ever been invented is the Dr. White Electric Comb, patented Jan. 1, '99. These wonderful combs positively cure dandruff, hair falling out, sick and nervous headaches, and when used in connection with Dr. White's Electric Hair Brush are positively guaranteed to make straight hair curly in 25 days' time. Thousands of these electric combs have been sold in the various cities of the Union, and the demand is constantly increasing. Our agents are rapidly becoming rich selling these combs. They positively sell on sight. Send for sample. Men's size, 50c; ladies, 35c—half price while we are introducing them. See Want Column of this paper. The Dr. White Electric Comb Co., Decatur, Ill.

The Queen and Crescent Route, on account of the holidays, has authorized the low rate of one and one-third fares for the round trip from and to all points on its line; also to all points south of the Potomac and Ohio and east of the Mississippi rivers, selling tickets Dec. 23, 24, 25, 30 and 31, 1902, and Jan. 1, 1903, with limit of Jan. 3 1903.

The superb service in effect over the Queen and Crescent Route, affording quick time, and trains of the most approved modern pattern, composed of Pullman's latest design of sleeping-cars, parlor-cars, and dining-cars, gives the public an opportunity to make its holiday trip in a degree of comfort never before realized. Two daily trains in each direction.

MARSH Reading Stand and Revolving Book-Case.

No. 5. Price, $7.00.

ADJUSTABLE TOP.—Is 14x18 inches; large and strong enough to hold your Dictionary, Directory, Dun, Bradstreet, Bible, Atlas, or any heavy volume, at any desired angle. It can be revolved and adjusted when reading so as to always throw the strongest light on the pages. You can thus avoid the strain on your eyes inevitable when holding a book in your hand or on a level table. It is made of Oak, and has on one edge a Rest to keep books from sliding off.

REVOLVING CASE.—This case is 15x15x12 inches. The shelves are Oak or Ash, finished on both sides and on all edges, and have 9 inches of book space on four sides, or 3 feet in all, and room enough for reference books of daily use. Many books may also be placed on the upper shelf. In all twenty to thirty volumes, law size, can be put in it. The eight oak slats are attached by four nails each, making the Case very substantial as well as ornamental.

CASTINGS connecting the Top and Case are finished in black enamel, and of sufficient strength to last a lifetime.

PIPE, POST and LEGS.—The three legs are attached by round-headed screws to the turned post. Into this post is forced an iron pipe, which runs up through the Case, and to which the castings at the top are attached. Around this pipe the Case revolves.

As a Home, Office or Library article, it is said, its equal does not exist. The accuracy of this statement can be confirmed by unsolicited letters of the highest commendation from thousands of Ministers, Attorneys, Physicians, Government, State and County Officials, Bankers and Business Men. Over 50,000 have been sold in the United States, and orders now come for large lots from England and other foreign countries.

HOW FINISHED.—It is handsomely finished in Antique Oak, and an ornament to any Office, Library or Parlor.

AS A GIFT.—Nothing made is more suitable to present to a friend, or as a Wedding or Birthday Gift, than this Stand.

HOW SHIPPED.—This Stand is sent knocked down, wrapped in heavy paper, making a package of 20 pounds. By Freight it goes as second class, and at about half what it would cost if sent set up. Plain directions for putting together accompany each Stand.

We will furnish the above Revolving Book-Case and seven yearly subscriptions to the ADVOCATE (new or renewal) to anyone for $14, or we will sell you the case alone for $7 cash.

The Message of Peace.

The message of Christmas is a message of peace. The Christ whose coming made Christmas is called in the quaint phrase of hymnology the "mild, pacific Prince." It was the mission of Jesus Christ to bring ultimate peace upon earth. The gospel, wherever it goes, is a gradual peace bringer.

Yet to this distracted and contentious world, whose cupidity leads it to indulge in endless prize fights, whose delight is in fisticuffs, race and class wars, and merciless gladiatorial combats, the song of the angels who hovered over the fields of Bethlehem, coming so near as with their wings almost to brush the upturned faces of the shepherds, seems to sound a strange and, perhaps, unwelcome note. It comes as a rebuke to selfish strife; it amounts to a summons to self-repression and self-denial. The world considers the Christian message of peace an impertinence, or, at any rate, an impossible ideal. And truly the world, through many centuries of greed and lust and violence, has become so accustomed to the policy of hate and hurt as scarce to retain any more the idea of millennial love, mercy, and tranquillity—save as Christianity keeps urging upon it the ideal of a society where all seek one another's good because all find their common good in the unspeakable gift of God—Jesus Christ. If the world is ever actually to enjoy peace, it must get it, both as to theory and practice, from Christianity. The closing of the Temple of Janus is a mockery, unless a stronger hand than conventional custom seal its doors forever in obedience to the behest of the sovereign Prince of Peace.

The message of the evangel, which came to concrete expression in the person of the Babe of Bethlehem ages ago, is, first of all, an offering of spiritual peace. Christianity is primarily a method of reconciliation, a means of spiritual recovery. Things are not right between God and men, save as a mediatorial mercy bridges the moral gulf, and supplies the links of grace and love which will bind wandering man once more to his Heavenly Father. Unless things are right with one's Maker, all things are wrong. There is no real peace in a sinful life. It is true that the wicked seem, in many instances, to abide in a social stability, and to disport themselves with a perfect contempt of any moral laws which meanwhile they may be transgressing; but underneath the outward mien of indifference an acute, feverish unrest gnaws at the heart. Where conscience is yet unappeased, and where religion sheds no discovering ray on the mysteries of the great future, there can be no peace in any life.

The message of Christmas contains the promise of social peace. As individuals become reconciled to God, and their characters are accommodated to his righteous and loving purposes; as the gospel of the Bethlehem Babe penetrates through humanity, and the truth of the old-time prophecy, "A little child shall lead them," receives illustration increasingly amid the domestic and communal circles where men and women congregate, class differences, social shocks and collisions become less and less, and the generous Christmas spirit of give in place of get, of suffer rather than save, proves to be the solvent of the labor question, the temperance question, the problem of civic administration and all other social difficulties that now puzzle the American people, for one very simple reason—because the majority of Americans are so selfish, so far removed from the ideals of the Nazarene.

The message of Christmas involves an implication of international peace. Incarnate Christ did not strike at imperial Cæsar; no revolution took place immediately in political affairs as a result of his preaching in Judea and Galilee; in spite of all his words of love and deeds of mercy, many and ruinous wars have taken place since his time, and yet the spirit of his gospel is opposed to war, and the general trend of events, now that Christianity preaches its doctrine and unfolds its grace, is in favor of peace on earth, good-will to men. As men take the New Testament in hand, and read it in the intervals of their maddening rush after wealth or pleasure or glory, they come to feel that something there contradicts the idea of an excessive militarism, an arrogant nationalism, a swaggering, chip-on-the-shoulder style of diplomacy. And as men of the New Testament type come more and more into prominence and positions of power, their influence in courts and parliaments will be felt with increasing strength in favor of peace unsoiled with dishonor and unbought with any sacrifice of principle. The Hague tribunal is one distinct fruit of the Christmas spirit in the world.

The principle of the arbitration of international difficulties is gaining ground. Meanwhile, when battles still occur, the Red Cross Society comes with its ministrations of mercy to the relief of afflicted men. In 1859 a Swiss gentleman, Henri Dunant, was a witness of the fearful battle of Solferino. On the conclusion of the conflict he worked eagerly to assuage the sufferings of the wounded. On leaving the field he made a mighty resolve that he would do what he could to relieve the horrors of war. Through his instrumentality an International Conference was projected, which met in Geneva in 1863, which was followed by a convention in the same city in 1864, when the Red Cross Society was organized, which has since done such beneficent work in the spirit of the merciful Christ. The award of the Nobel prize to Henri Dunant was a fitting, but belated, acknowledgment of the debt that civilization owes to such a man of peace and minister of mercy.

It should always be remembered, furthermore, that the peace message of the gospel is no mawkish, dreamy, sentimental vaporing over idyllic conditions of life, but a practical precept, a declaration of duty, based on the regenerating work of the evangel of the divine Son of God. Peace will never come broadly through the earth until more people—most people, if not all people—are soundly converted. New hearts make new political policies. The best Peace Society is a Missionary Board. Multitudes of men, as it is, are but half-Christianized, and the other half of them is unmitigated barbarian. Still larger numbers are not Christianized at all. Until the area of unregenerate barbarism is reduced by a proportionate increase in the bulk of converted humanity, wars and rumors of wars will continue to be as frequent in the future as they have been in the past, and the Christmas spirit will be practically denied and defeated.

The peace song of the angels was sung to men of good will—that is, to men willed to the good; willing to love the good, and to do the good. The hope of the race, the promise of civilization, lies in such men. Peace and prosperity must be their handiwork, for they are the instruments whom the Almighty most loves to employ for the making of history. Greed, lust, hate and ill-will are doomed. The Christ whose coming first made Christmas has predicted their downfall. The day of millennial glory will some time dawn, when the angels will sing again their song of peace, but sing it then in fuller volume, with richer meaning and with more abounding joy.—New York Observer.

Millsaps College Letter.

BY PROF. H. E. YOUNG.

Students and faculty, we are at present in the throes of the examinations of the first term. So far our new system of three terms is working very well. The first term ends at the Christmas holidays, the second on March 19, thus dividing the school year into three equal divisions. One excellent feature of this plan is that it will tend to diminish the strain and length of each examination period, as well as of the examinations themselves.

Dr. Murrah's report to the Conferences brought many of us for the first time to a realization of our progress and well-being. This year is the best of all, and most hopefully opens the second decade of the college's history. Not only is the attendance very large, as before noted in these letters, but the loss by withdrawals of students has been much less than usual.

Our list of visitors is rather longer than usual for the fortnight. Quite a number stopped over en route to and from Conference. Among these we may note Dr. J. J. Tigert, who visited us on Saturday, when practically the whole campus was deserted, very much to our loss and disappointment. A fairly complete list of our other visitors is as follows: Rev. Dr. C. F. Emery, Rev. G. W. Bachman, Dr. T. W. Dye, Dr. T. B. Holloman, Rev. Barney Lewis, C. M. Simpson, Leon Holloman, H. L. Clark, Prof. George L. Harrell, Rev. W. L. Duren, H. B. Watkins.

We spoke in our last letter of the good influence exerted here by the young preachers who are members of the student body. In this connection we may note that the members of our faculty who attended the Conferences are speaking with great enthusiasm of the stand taken by the young ministers who have gone out from this institution.

If we may be permitted to make special mention where all deserve commendation, we may cite Rev. J. R. Countiss as one who has worthily represented us in his work at Grenada. We understand that he was so successful in that charge that his church adopted the strenuous policy to have him sent back.

Rev. C. M. Simpson, 1902, stopped over with us in returning from the Conference at Natchez. He goes on at once to Vanderbilt University, where he will take the theological course. He was not only one of our best students, but one of our best men.

We note that H. O. White, 1901, who has been some time at Vanderbilt, where he has taken a very unusual stand in scholarship and literary endeavors, has been elected president of the Social Science Club—an organization devoted to original investigation in sociology.

Dr. W. C. Black's last sermon here was his famous one upon the "Immorality of the Soul," delivered upon the request of our Young Men's Christian Association. A considerable percentage of the large audience that greeted him were strangers and members of other churches, who came to hear him on this subject.

Rev. W. W. Graves, who was prevented from returning this year by an illness of more than two months of typhoid fever, was with us recently. We were glad to see him in the flesh again—something that for a time seemed hardly probable. His residence here near the campus has remained unoccupied for a long time now, and we shall be glad to have him back with us.

Mr. W. A. Gunning, of this city, has contributed to the Science Museum his fine collection of bird eggs. Another interesting contribution, which we shall describe later upon its receipt, is a section of the famous Lorenzo Dow tree. This has been shipped to Dr. Murrah, but up to the present has not arrived. We trust that the liberality of these patrons of the college may be emulated by others. Our Museums of History and of Science need your assistance.

A division of our library that is perforce sadly neglected, and which is very much in need of accessions, is the modern language section. The Martha A. Turner Fund gives us many books on English literature; the Department of History has a very good friend in Major R. W. Millsaps, who makes many a silent contribution of fine historical works every year; the Federal Government sends us more reports than we can always digest; but the collection of French, German, Italian and Spanish books does not grow rapidly. Can not some of our friends help us in this way? While our courses in modern languages have now grown to five in number, we have almost no library facilities to accompany this growth. Dictionaries would be especially appreciated, no matter how well-thumbed.

The second issue of the Collegian has appeared, and we are glad to note the superior quality of its contents. Under the editorship of W. F. Cook, of Hattiesburg, all departments seem to be flourishing, and the editorials and communi are thoughtful and exceptionally able for a college magazine.

A Jackson paper states that Rev. Dr. A. F. Watkins will make his home in Jackson. We have no more zealous friend in the State than Dr. Watkins, and his residence here will mean a great deal for Millsaps College.

Mr. T. P. Barr, treasurer of the First Church, informs us that plans are on foot for the building this year of a new parsonage for the pastor. The present house is in very poor condition, and will probably be moved to the rear of the lot.

A prominent member of the First Church, in talking with the writer, remarked that Bro. Barr made an exceptionally fine secretary and treasurer, and that "the church had not seen his equal for bringing things to pass."

We have heard everywhere expressions of satisfaction upon the appointment of Rev. W. T. Bolling to First Church. His family will remove to Jackson at the first of the year, and until the new parsonage shall be completed, will occupy a home rented for them by the Board of Stewards.

Prof. A. H. Shannon will probably spend the holidays in Nashville, where business, as well as pleasure, demands his attention.

While a cordial welcome awaits Dr. W. T. Bolling in his pastorate here, as we have indicated in a foregoing paragraph, no less cordial good-will and affection attends the retiring pastor, Dr. W. C. Black, who goes to Moss Point. During his long pastorate here, amounting collectively to seven years, the church has had a remarkable growth in numbers and influence, until it now ranks as the largest Protestant Church in the State.

On Dec. 7 Rev. M. M Black occupied the pulpit of the First Church, giving us a strong sermon upon, "Patience."

RIGHT GIVING.

There stands out before the world one ever living, supreme example of benevolence: Christ giving himself for humanity. Priceless gift indeed! Even he could give us no more. In giving himself he opened the whole treasury of heaven and poured out all at once. With the hoarded wealth of eternity in his heart "he pleased not himself," but gave all for the good of man.

How much do we owe, how much shall we give for Christ? The answer is easy:

"Love so amazing, so divine, Demands my soul, my life, my all!"

Christ has bought us with his own precious blood; we are not our own. We have no proprietorship of our souls and bodies—our time, our talents or money. It is our high duty and heaven-born privilege to hold and to use all that we are and have, as subordinate and subservient to Christ's supreme and inalienable claim upon us.

"For the love of Christ constraineth us." Here is the one true motive which actuates to right giving. We do not understand how to give and we can know but little of the joy and blessedness of giving unless our hearts are open to the incoming of the love of Christ. If he come into us and fill us, then will we respond. When he moves upon us it is not as the ripple on the Summer's lake; it is not as a movement faint or imperceptible; but it is as the coming of a flood of mighty power and our whole nature will respond to this coming as the shore responds to the surging of the ocean.

In a heart that is filled with Christ, there is no room left for a selfish, or sordid, or worldly spirit. After all, the true test of fidelity is this: to love the Lord Jesus Christ. And this will fix the measure of our giving. What we love most is what we will try most to be, to have, or to do. If we love the world, if we are dominated by some selfish appetite, or desire; if we love applause, prominence, or money, this love for the one or the other will lead us on, and will constrain us mightily, so that we will become slave to that which sooner or later becomes the master possession of the soul. But, if we accept Christ as our Savior and Lord, if he thrills us with his wondrous life and power, if we have a true experience of his supernatural grace and presence, then will we be constrained by a motive power which will bear along with it the noblest efforts and purposes of our being. We will want to be like our blessed Lord. We will want to please him. We will delight supremely in his service. We will find more real pleasure in promoting his cause among men than in any pursuit, employment or pleasure of earth. We will be true Christian workers and Christian givers. Our zeal will light its torch at the altar fire of his love.

Our aim, then, in every-day life, will not be merely to get something; but to give something. We will come, too, in closer touch with our fellow-men.

Our example will stir, and stimulate our brethren who have been lukewarm, selfish and indifferent, and, like our Master, we will be impelled by a burning desire to seek, and save the lost.

O, that as pastors, and people, we may come to realize fully that the only cure for worldliness, and covetousness in the church, is the love of Christ! We may multiply our external agencies, we may work our financial plans, old and new. We may seek to improve what we call the "social life of the church," we may resort to entertainments, feasts, and shows of one kind and another, to raise funds for the church; we may coax and cajole, we may exhort and scold, we may appeal to "church pride"—yes, do all this, and even more, but we will fail to move our people to a proper conception of their obligations, and duties, the finances will "wag on," and the great body of the membership will know scarcely anything of right giving. Let us pray most earnestly for the Holy Ghost, that he may fill us with the love of Christ; when the churches are constrained by divine love, then and not until then, will the spirit of covetousness be driven from our sanctuaries and our homes.—Rev. F. R. Hill, D. D., in Central Methodist.

LETTER FROM CHINA.

BY DR. A. P. PARKER.

We have a regnlar missionary prayer meeting every Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the lectnre hall belonging to the Union Chnrch here in Shanghai. Frequently visiting missionaries from other parts of China and from Japan and Korea bring us news of the progress of the work at varions points in these Eastern lands. Last Monday afternoon two items of information were given us which were very interesting, and I pass them on for the benefit of onr people in the home-land.

Dr. Noyes, of the Presbyterian Mission in Canton, told ns of a wonderfnl work that is going on in that region. He spoke of the fact that the Chinese who go to foreign conntries colonize mostly from certain points in China. For instance, the Fokien people go to the Philippines, the Swatow people go to Singapore and the Strait Settlements, while emigrants to the United States come from four districts along the coast, south of Canton. In former years Chinese who had become Christians in America or the Sandwich Islands, etc., on retnrning to their native land fonnd the opposition so great as to deter them from making themselves known as Christians. Only a few of the more bold and gennine kind came to the churches and identified themselves with the Christians. Bnt in the last few years a great change has come over the people in that region. They have not only become more favorable to foreign things in general, bnt they have become more interested in Christianity, and it is possible now for Christians retnrning from the United States, Hawaii, Australia, and other places, to boldly acknowledge themselves before their relatives as Christians, without fear of persecntion or serions inconvenience, and the work of the evangelization is now going on in those regions in a most wonderful manner. Dr. Noyes says that there are now in those four counties 1160 communicants. They have between fifteen and twenty church-buildings that the Christians have paid for themselves without foreign aid. One of these churches cost $6,000 (Mexican); others have cost from $1,000 (Mexican) and over. Altogether, a most enconraging work is going on in that region, after long years of faithful toil and patient waiting.

The same Monday afternoon Dr. Parsons, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Danville, Ill., who is now on a tour through the East, told ns a most interesting work going on in Korea. He said that some three years ago his church had undertaken the snpport of a missionary in Korea. During the first two years their missionary had, of conrse, given the most of his time to the study of the language, bnt he had gradually gotten into the work, and was now in charge of the station, Ping Yang, in North Korea, where a most wonderful work has been going on during the past few years. This young missionary reported having received 800 enquirers last year, and baptized 295 persons and received them into the church. Dr. Parsons told of attending a week-night prayer meeting in the church at Ping Yang, where there were 600 men and 300 women in attendance. He said it almost took his breath away to see an audience of 900 people at an ordinary meeting; something which could hardly be duplicated even in Christian America. So the work goes on!

The above are only instances that come to onr knowledge from time to time of the mighty movements in these Eastern lands. The people are receiving the truth. The Word of God is running and being glorified in the conversion of the heathen all over the East. Let the home church take courage, and send their men and their means to enter the wide and effectual doors that are open to us here.

The following is a list of the appointments of the representatives of the Woman's Board that should have been included in my last letter:

Shanghai District: Miss Helen L. Richardson, agent; McTyeire School, Miss H. L. Richardson, Miss Nicholson, and Miss Alexander; Trinity Girls' School, Miss M. B. Bomar; Palmetto School, Miss C. E. Steger; day-schools, Miss Emma Gary; Bible woman's work, Miss E. D. Leveritt; Sungkiang, Bible Woman's Institute, Mrs. J. A. Gaither; girls' day-schools, Miss A. G. Waters; Hongkew day-schools and Bible woman's work, Mrs. J. W. Cline, Miss Ida Anderson.

Soochow and Hnchow Districts: Miss V. M. Atkinson, agent; Soochow day-schools, Miss A. Atkinson, Miss M. C. White, and Miss M. M. Tarrant; The Indnstrial School and Davidson Memorial Bible Woman's Institnte, Miss Snsie E. Williams; Woman's Hospital, Dr. M. H. Polk; Laura Haygood Memorial School, Miss M. E. LETTER FROM ALABAMA.

BY REV. M. H. WELLS, D. D.

The late session of the North Alabama Conference goes to record as a notable occasion. Every mouth is busy praising the generous people of Lafayette. It is quite a small town, and yet managed to care for one of the largest Conferences in the Connection. Not a word of complaint has been heard from its guests. As usual, every man had "the best home." The spirit of the session was decidedly religious. When that is the case, the people who spend so much time and money entertaining are fully compensated. After all said about an evil generation, spiritnality is at a premium. Nothing so gathers and holds the masses as a spiritnal ministry.

Bishop Key won all hearts, as is his custom. He is a wise and religious Bishop. Where these qualities dominate our chief pastors, contentment will abound among our preachers and people.

We have a gain in membership of more than 2,000. As a rule, the salaries and collections were reported in full. For missions there was an excess. The collection for the Superannnate Fund was, up to that date, the largest reported. It neared $10,000. A special agent is in the field increasing this amount. Rev. J. W. Norton has been a success hitherto, and, no doubt, will maintain his record in this good work. A layman becomes responsible for his salary. This is proof that the cause is on the heart of our people. Earth and sky rejoice to see this day.

The appointments were a surprise to "saint and sinner." Such a scattering has not hitherto occurred in these parts. We need to study the geography of our country to locate our friends. Six of the ten presiding elders are new men. Two were moved at the end of the third year. This does not mean a discount, as they both get first-class stations. Rotation in office is a most wholesome practice. The present presiding elders are mostly young men. We have a territory of vast undeveloped possibilities. It may be best to put the young and hale men at this work. They are all men of pluck and ability. Something will happen.

Rev. Theo. Copeland goes from us to the North Mississippi Conference. He is genial, brainy, and consecrated. For the past two years he has served a charge in sight of his home. I have known him from boyhood, and take great pleasure in commending him to his new friends. This last charge he has seen grow from small things to a first-class station. Grenada Methodists will love him, and delight to care for him and his elegant family.

The next session goes to Tuscumbia.

"Methodism the Highest Evolution of Theological Thought."

BY REV. L. S. JONES.

Every denomination, so far as we have investigated, has a system of theology peculiar to itself. These various systems agree in many things, and differ only in a few. The points of difference constitute the foundation upon which the various denominations build their creeds. If Methodists and Presbyterians held the same polity and doctrine, they would constitute only one church, though retaining different names. Theological systems are expressions of religious faith and evolutions of thought relative to the plan of salvation. Religious creeds are not the creations of a day. They do not come into being full grown, but have a birth and a growth before they reach maturity. The perfection of a creed is in proportion to its conformity to reason and revelation. Reason and revelation are in perfect harmony with each other; therefore, we hold that theology, to be correct, must agree with both. The Bible contains the whole truth concerning salvation, but since the various denominations entertain different views of the plan of salvation, no denomination is infallible in its expressed religious views; but since the Bible is the standard of both faith and practice, the denomination that most perfectly harmonizes with the Word of God approaches nearest perfection, and, according to the survival of the fittest, should become the universal, dominant faith of the world.

As a Methodist, we believe Methodism to be the most perfect expression of divine thought as revealed in God's Word, and, for which reason, must become more and more the universal faith of Christendom. Methodism, doctrinally considered, is virtually the faith of Christendom to-day, though unconsciously, perhaps, to many who hold to other tenets.

To substantiate the foregoing statement, let us briefly consider the theological views of the atonement as categorically stated by the churches that control the religious thought of this country. There are only two theological systems held and taught by the Protestant Churches of America, viz.: Calvinism and Arminianism. Under these two all the branches of the church may be grouped. The Baptists, Presbyterians and Episcopalians are Calvinistic; Methodists are Arminians in faith.

The Presbyterian Church, being the best exponent of Calvinism, or of a limited atonement, for which they stand, we will review their expressions on that subject. By an impartial, unprejudiced study of the Presbyterian Confession of Faith, it will be seen that they teach that Christ died for only a part of the race, and that he unconditionally elected that part unto salvation, and that he unconditionally passed the other part by, consigning them to everlasting chains. This is the doctrine of all the branches of the Baptist Church, though not so clearly stated.

The Methodist Church, in all her branches, teaches a conditional, universal salvation—that all may be saved, that Christ tasted death for every man, so that "whosoever believeth on him might not perish, but have everlasting life." The doctrine of a universal, conditional atonement as taught by Methodists, and set forth in the standards of the church, is not only in harmony with reason and revelation, but also with the oral teachings of the Calvinistic Churches.

While the Calvinistic Churches have not modified their written theology, they have practically abandoned the doctrine of a limited atonement. They dare not preach the horrid creed of unconditional damnation. The world has outgrown the awful decrees of Calvin. Methodism has changed the religious faith of the world, so that if you go into any Baptist or Presbyterian Church of to-day, you will hear the glad news of salvation for every man, that all may be saved, and that none need be lost: If Calvinism would not use Methodist fire, but confine herself to her own armory, Methodism would become the universal religious faith of all Christendom, for there is not one Presbyterian or Baptist in every hundred that believes in an unconditional damnation.

Hard upon a limited atonement presses the doctrine of free moral agency. Any tyro in logic can readily see that free moral agency, under a limited atonement and the unconditional election of those included therein, is a logical impossibility; yet, as incompatible as the two doctrines are, Calvinists incorporate both in their Confession of Faith. However, the fact remains that no man, nor set of men, can harmonize free moral agency with a limited unconditional, elective salvation.

We all believe that Mr. Moody is now in heaven enjoying the blessedness of the saved. According to Calvinism, Mr. Moody was elected to salvation in the secret councils of the Trinity, away back in the eternities that were before time was. Thousands and millions of years before Moody was born God decreed his salvation, and unconditionally elected him unto eternal life. We, therefore, conclude that Moody, in the face of this decree and unconditional election to salvation, could not have been a free moral agent; and if not a free agent, an automaton; and if an automaton, incapable of moral action, either good or bad.

Scripture, logic and experience, all, in harmony with Methodism, declare man to be a free moral agent, free to accept or reject salvation through Christ. Here, again, Calvinism goes to battle clad in the livery of Methodism. Calvinists plead with men to turn and live just like Methodists. They dare not do otherwise, so long as they wish to hold the hearts of men. The Calvinism of to-day teaches an unlimited, conditional atonement, and that it is possible for every child of Adam to be saved. Methodism has exploded Calvinism, and ground her awful decrees into dust. Calvinism is dead and buried in the sublime verbage of the Presbyterian Confession of Faith and the Shorter Catechism.

As a corollary to an unconditional, elective salvation, comes the unconditional, final perseverance of the saints. This tenet of Calvinism follows the doctrine of an unconditional, elective salvation as naturally as effect follows cause. If one is true, the other is true; and if one is false, the other is false. But since an unconditional salvation is incompatible with free moral agency, so also is the unconditional, final perseverance of the saints. That Calvinists do not believe in the unconditional, final perseverance of the saints any more than do Methodists, is evinced by their earnest insistence upon purity of heart and holiness of life. Methodism teaches that all men may be saved; that salvation is conditional; that man, being a free moral agent, may accept or reject Christ; and that, having accepted him, may fall away from him and be finally lost. This is the substance of what is preached from Calvinistic pulpits, though disclaimed in their theological standards.

In conclusion, we wish to notice the decrees of Calvinism. It is maintained by Calvinists that whatsoever comes to pass among men and angels was ordained of God from before the foundation of the world—that is, that which is was to be. If this be true, does it not follow that God is the author of evil as well as good, and that bad men are his agents, performing what he has before ordained, as well as good men? Does not absolute foreordination make God the author of murder, blasphemy, and every other wicked thing? To my mind, there is no other conclusion. Such a doctrine would make God not only the author of all evil, but also the author of sin as a principle, and the destroyer of all who are lost in perdition. These horrid decrees, as Calvin himself called them, are not any longer preached by Calvinists, though incorporated in their written creeds. This brings us back to a restatement of our first proposition, viz.: Methodism is an evolution of the highest and most perfect expression of theological thought, and is destined more and more to mold and shape the religious beliefs of the world. She has already modified the creeds of the world, and quickened the pulse-beat of Christendom. What success the Calvinistic Churches are achieving is due to the modifying influences of Methodism upon their deliverances of messages of life to a dying world. Methodists have a creed that they believe and preach; a creed that meets the needs of a lost world, and that finds a hearty response in every human soul.

A Correction.

DEAR BROTHER BOSWELL: I note in your issue, of Dec. 11, reporting the proceeding of the Conference at Tupelo, that you state that the question as to whether a surplus was left over from the Children's Day collections in the hands of the Conference Board was left open and unsettled.

I think you are mistaken in your conclusion. You are correct in stating that the Bishop ruled, as a matter of law, that the surplus, if any, went as provided by the Discipline (Paragraph 248). The question of fact as to whether or not there was a surplus at the end of the preceding Conference year was submitted to the Conference after a very full discussion, and the Conference — the jury — decided, as a matter of fact, that there was no surplus unappropriated, and so the matter stands as I view it. I think it was settled. Very truly yours,

GEO. J. LEFTWICH.

Aberdeen, Miss., Dec. 16, 1901.

Mississippi Orphans' Home.

The following are some points of interest which I gather from the report of the Board of Directors of the Mississippi Orphans' Home to the North Mississippi Conference:

In the five years of its history this institution has cared for 217 children; 110 have been provided for; only 2 have died, and 107 remain in the Home. The year now closing has been the most satisfactory and profitable of its history, the income being sufficient for the support of the Home.

Many improvements have been made at a cost of more than $1,000, giving a new kitchen and other necessary room, with long hall, galleries, etc.

There is a school in the Home which runs ten months each year. Five and one-half months of this school are kept up by the county. There are two intelligent, consecrated teachers in charge. There are more than seventy of the children in this Home school. Besides this, we have nine girls in our different church schools in the State, and two in the college in Water Valley.

The religious training in the Home is excellent; family worship each day, preaching each Sunday evening. The results are: Thirty-five of the children have joined the church during the year, which raises the number of church members in the Home to seventy-seven.

There is not a dollar's indebtedness; everything is operated on strictly a cash basis.

Contrary to the general policy of orphanages, it has been thought wise to prepare to take care of infants as well as older children, and four of them are now being cared for. If necessary, other help will be employed for this purpose.

The Board of Directors have seen the immediate need of more adequately heating the Home, so have ordered that a modern steam-heating apparatus be placed as early as practicable, at an approximate cost of $1,200, which is to be in place by Jan. 1, or very soon thereafter.

Now, with these facts before us, is it possible that anyone can be indifferent to the interests of this, a home for our children, where they can receive the necessaries of life; and more, at the same time receive a liberal education, and, above all, a religious training, which is the greatest factor in their qualification for the realities of life?

The Christmas tide is now upon us, and while we are remembering our loved ones at home and our friends in other sections with more or less costly gifts, let us remember that there are in the Home at Water Valley 107 little plates to fill three times a day for 365 days in each year, and 107 little bodies to warm and clean the whole year round. We thank God that there has not been a day in the history of the Home that when a hungry child extended his little hand, and in it an empty plate, that there has not been a sufficiency of food to fill it.

Now, just as we are about to be ushered into a new year, let a number of liberal souls send a sufficiency of cash to put the Home beyond the possibility of want for a whole year. Let all who love God and the institutions of his church remember the Mississippi Orphans' Home at Christmas time.

We thank God for his blessings and for a goodly measure of liberality on the part of the people during the past, and take courage for the future. T. H. DORSEY.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: We have finished our second year's labor on Dry Creek charge, and go to Conference with claims up in full, except preacher's and presiding elder's salaries, and they are very well provided for. May the Lord add his blessings to this people by sending them a preacher worthy of their benevolence. J. S. RUTLEDGE.

Godless Public Schools?

The laws of our country properly guard our public schools from being used to advance any interests of religious sects or parties. The rivalries of church and creed are justly barred from the sphere of public education to which all the people, without respect to church or creed, must contribute. But is it just to call our public schools godless? So far as we have observed, this charge is especially urged by the Catholics. Having done all in their power to bar religious instruction from the schools, they then disparage the schools as being godless, and set forth the great importance of teaching children religion. They oppose the public schools if they teach religion; they denounce them if they do not. They are enemies to public education, one way or another, and will never cease to oppose it. But are our public schools really godless? This editor has examined the school laws of most of the States. There are few States where it is not altogether permissible to read the Bible and pray with the students. We have visited various State Universities, normal schools, high schools, and have not in a single instance found that it was considered an improper thing to read the Word of God and offer prayer. . . . We can testify that the teachers of the schools of Arkansas are almost without exception religious people. They are not godless, nor is there anything to indicate that their influence upon the children under their care is unfavorable to religion. The public school teachers are for the most part members of the churches. They teach in our Sunday-schools, they exhibit regard for religion, and are far from meriting the charge of being godless.—Arkansas Methodist.

The Good Side.

"If I can get on the good side of him!" said a young man, half jestingly.

"That is the only side you have any business on — with anybody," answered his older companion.

Whatever the fragment of conversation might mean, there is a sense in which the statement of the last speaker is true. Every nature has its good side, or at least its better side, however faulty that may be, and whatever association we have with any fellow-being should mean the awakening, so far as lies in our power, of his higher self. His beliefs, his education, his aims, may be very different from our own, but somewhere along the line of experience, hope or desire, must lie a little point of common ground where we can meet with sympathy instead of antagonism.

It may not be easily found, indifference is not likely to discover it, but every life with which we come in contact is worth studying—must be studied—if we would bring to it any real helpfulness. It is our business to find the "good side" and be on it.—Forward.

Get the Most Out of Your Food

You don't and can't if your stomach is weak. A weak stomach does not digest all that is ordinarily taken into it. It gets tired easily, and what it fails to digest is wasted.

Among the signs of a weak stomach are uneasiness after eating, fits of nervous headache, and disagreeable belching.

"I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla at different times for stomach troubles, and a run down condition of the system, and have been greatly benefited by its use. I would not be without it in my family. I am troubled especially in summer with weak stomach and nausea and find Hood's Sarsaparilla invaluable." E. B. HICKMAN, W. Chester, Pa.

Teaching Our Children to Observe Sunday.*

How may the young be taught and trained properly to observe the Lord's Day?

The primary element of their education here, as in the whole realm of morals and religion, is the example of their elders. Parents, pastors, Sunday-school officers and teachers, and all others responsible for the training of the young, must clearly recognize how much more influential is what they do than what they say. Indeed, if the saying and the doing differ, the former will have little or no permanent influence where it contradicts the latter. Many parents who themselves work on the Lord's Day, or spend it in seeking amusement, wish their children to attend Sunday-school and church, and are even very rigid in requiring them to do so. For a few years this does very well. A faithful pastor aided by a faithful Sunday-school teacher will hold them, and some form habits and attachments which are never broken. But in most cases the parental example by and by prevails. Meanwhile such parents little realize the burden they are imposing by trying to shift their own responsibility to other shoulders.

The stronghold of the proper observance of the Lord's Day is thus seen to be in the family. Let the parents set a consistent example of rest and worship. If work must be done, let the necessity for it be made clear to the children. Let them see the rights of household servants scrupulously respected. Let the children be taught to practice self-denial in order that servants may have the least labor possible, and may be free to attend the church of their choice. The influence of domestic arrangements carefully planned for a day each week of unbroken rest and worship is inestimable.

Very precious, also, is the influence of family worship. In every Christian household each day should be begun with united reading from the Bible, prayer, and, if possible, singing. But if the duties of the six days seem to make this impracticable, certainly it can be attained on the seventh. Nor need it interfere with the additional hour of sleep which the weary body craves, needs, and should have. There is still ample time for family worship. And the day begun in prayer at home carries a sacred savor throughout all its hours.

"Come to Church," Not, "Go to Church."

Then let the family attend church together. It will not do for the parents to say to their children, "Go," they must say, "Come." Rather, they should say nothing, taking it for granted that only illness, or other unavoidable obstacles, will detain any member of the family from public worship. There are many homes nominally Christian, where the whole matter of church attendance is reopened each Lord's Day morning, and discussed at the breakfast-table. It should never be an open question, but as much a matter of course as the morning bath and the morning meal. Let the family life, which is a unit at home, continue a unit in the sanctuary. Then the family pew will become as precious as the cosiest corner in library or living-room, or as the invariable seat at table.

It is of prime importance that, throughout all this family observance of the Lord's Day, the utmost cheerfulness should prevail. The privilege rather than the obligations of the day should be the informing thought. If parents act as though they were driven to rest and worship when they would prefer to work or play, they will certainly make the day distasteful to their children. So will they by sternly enforcing even their most reasonable requirements, and more, of course, by making unreasonable ones. The Lord's Day is neither the Jewish Sabbath nor the Puritan Sunday; it is a period, not for gloomy repression, but for joyous freedom. The week's rigid hours at shop, office, school, are relaxed, as is the week's rigid tension of business or study. This liberty of the day should be carefully respected.

Cheerfulness without Desecration.

And parents should be sedulous to dismiss the superstition that the Lord's Day is desecrated by cheerful conversation and genial good-fellowship. Many people say that they disregard the day in their mature years because it was made a burden to them in their childhood. In some cases, no doubt, this is a false excuse, but in many other cases it is a fact. Alas for the man or woman whose memory of childhood's Sunday is a nightmare! Try as they will, they can never fully escape that evil influence. Parents should be careful to make the first day of the week its happiest, brightest day, full of smiles, kind words, thoughtful courtesies—its duties thus robbed of all hardship and transformed into delights.

This will solve [illegible] present vexing social problems of the Lord's Day. At least, if they are not solved here, it is difficult to see where they can be solved. Social visiting in all forms, especially large dinners, receptions, and the like, are now the chief menace to our priceless day of rest and worship. These can not be reached by civil law, nor by social rules and regulations; only by the right spirit among the people. It will not avail to say to the young: "You must avoid all social diversions on the Lord's Day." It will not, partly because it is not a day of rules, but of the two great principles of rest and worship, and partly because our nature has its strong social craving, which ought to be gratified. Let it be gratified at home; in the reunion of the family, in the presence at our tables of some homeless or friendless stranger, in good music, cheerful conversation, reading aloud of papers, magazines and books which are interesting, instructive and devotional. Let the day at home and at church be so satisfying to all the nature—family, social and religious—that nothing more is desired. Then the Sunday newspaper, the afternoon tea, the evening dinner or reception, golf, the bicycle, the excursion, will have no attractions. And for the many who are homeless, let the homes of Christians, especially on the Lord's Day, prove a safe and joyous refuge.—Tennis S. Hamlin, D. D.

Holiness and Crucifixion.

On the night in which the Master was betrayed, from his soul, "exceeding sorrowful even to death," he poured forth his high priestly prayer for his disciples—till the end of time; and under the dark winds already blowing over the brow of Calvary for what awaited him, he said: "I sanctify myself." Yes, the sanctification of Jesus Christ was ultimately connected with his crucifixion. Will it not be true of us? Jesus Christ sanctified himself to the work on which he came into the world; that work required the giving up of his will to the will of God; and now it summoned him to lay his will at the feet of the will of God in the obedience of death.

When will we learn that holiness consists essentially in obedience to God? When will we learn that this obedience is only possible when we are altogether the Lord's, his property, partakers of his nature, his true sons? Jesus Christ, "though he was a son, yet learned obedience by the things he suffered." He was a son; he was the only-begotten Son; but he showed to us all that he was a Son in his obedience; loyalty was the open palimpsest of his Sonship; thus, as the mark of his sanctification presently in Gethsemane, he was to make the cry: "Nevertheless, not my will, but thine, be done."

Our sanctification has no less a standard of life—obedience. Obedience is the test; obedience born of sonship, of filial and "perfect love." Crucifixion of whatever it is the will of God we should give up—that is the obedience and foundation of a sanctified life.—Central Christian Advocate.

How to Keep Young.

She is one of the most interesting women in the world. Over sixty-five years old, slight built, sensitive, and nervous—and though she has seen more suffering than falls to the lot of most women, she is still young.

Her prescription for youthfulness is interesting and well worth trying.

"How do I stand all this wear and tear? Economy. That's it, economy. I save my strength. When I'm not working at the business which is my very life, I either rest or play. I don't putter. That's what ages women—puttering. When I see a teacher breaking down or a trained nurse giving up with nervous prostration, I wonder when women will learn to stop puttering.

"It isn't work that wears out; it's fretting and puttering. The way to keep young? Stop worrying and go to work. Throw yourself, heart and soul, brain and nerve, into some one thing; make a fetish of it; throw every bit of energy you've got into it—housekeeping, taking care of children, teaching, writing, nursing—it doesn't make a bit of difference what you do; it's the way you do it that counts. Copy the first young-looking man you see; do the way he does; work when you are working, but when you are not working cultivate the art of being amused."—Selected.

CHRISTMAS THANKSGIVING.

A beautiful custom was established among the Jews by advice and authority of Mordecai, who, in connection with Esther and all the Jews in Persia, were delivered from the envious and malicious Haman. The custom was that of making the fourteenth and fifteenth days of the twelfth month of the church year "a day of gladness and feasting, and a good day, and of sending portions one to another." Mordecai's proclamation was confirmed by Queen Esther, and sent out to all the Jews in "the hundred twenty and seven provinces of the kingdom of Ahasuerus, with words of peace and truth." The letter authorized the Jews to "keep the fourteenth day of the month Adar, and the fifteenth day of the same yearly, as the days wherein the Jews rested from their enemies, and the month which was turned unto them from sorrow to joy, and from mourning into a good day; that should make them days of feasting and joy, and of sending portions one to another, and gifts to the poor."

How much more appropriate is the annual celebration of the birth of Christ, and God's proclamation of the spirit of the gospel message: Peace on earth, and good-will to man! Jesus came to save us from more than a temporal calamity. He came in human flesh, "that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil; and deliver them who, through fear of death, were all their lifetime subject to bondage."

No command is given in the Scriptures to celebrate this day; no programme is marked out to follow. Individual consciences must determine the matter and manner of celebration. In the very nature of the case it is a glad day—a day which brings to remembrance the love of God to lost men, a day of release, a day of joy to all people. Such was the song of the angels. The wise men in the East, far from Jerusalem, saw his star, and, guided by its course, they traveled till it came and stood over where the young Child was. And when they saw him with Mary his mother, they fell down and worshiped him. They opened their treasures and presented unto him gifts, gold, frankincense, and myrrh. This offering was an expression of their devout feelings for the holy Child.

This example of the wise men may well be followed by all Christians. They can as consistently, and with as much religious feeling, present their gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh to Christ, now that he is ascended on high, as when he was among men. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me." The poor we have with us always, and we can always do them good. In doing good to them for Christ's sake, we express our thanks to God for his unspeakable gift.

Let us make our Christmas a good day. We may send portions to one another — remember our friends and loved ones. But we may gain the everlasting good-will of the poor and needy by supplying their wants. The good-will gained and the smile of God are worth a thousandfold more than the gift. Let us this glad day express our thanks to God by remembering the poor and sorrowing!

LETTER FROM BISHOP GALLOWAY.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: The face of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE never seemed fairer to me than out here in this "Middle Kingdom," and its visits never more welcome. I read every item with intense interest. The news from the colleges, reports of revivals, etc., give me a genuine home-feeling and a sweet delight.

I am glad to see that Millsaps College, after a remarkable history of ten years, enters upon another decade with such brilliant prospects. The attendance of students—the largest ever enrolled—is another evidence of Mississippi's intelligent appreciation of effort made to meet a great educational need. More and more the conviction grows, as the spirit of secularism increases, that the hope of our nation and the strengthening of the church is in a wholesome, positive Christian education. Studies in the Orient have enlarged that view, and made its possible neglect a real alarm.

You will be glad to know that the Soochow University, for which such a generous collection was taken in New Orleans during the Missionary Conference, is organized and at work. The new buildings are going up, the entire compound is enclosed with a substantial wall, and the people—I mean the Chinese—are showing substantial sympathy. When all the departments are at work, and sufficient faculties are employed, we will have one of the greatest educational centers in all the Orient. Of the medical department and the recent commencement, you have already heard.

We have just returned from the interior, visiting Soochow, Huchow, Nanzing, Song-kong, and leave in a few days for another visit. After a few weeks we go to Japan.

Fraternally yours,

CHAS. B. GALLOWAY.

THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

The Louisiana Conference met in its fifty-seventh session in the city of Alexandria, Dec. 18, 1902. The attendance, it is said, was unusually large—including members and visitors. The weather was fine. The place of meeting is within five miles of the geographical center of the State. These two facts largely account for the crowds, though, as everybody knows, a Methodist Annual Conference always brings the people together. Alexandria is a progressive city of about six thousand inhabitants, and growing. It is situated on the Red river, the largest tributary of the Mississippi in Louisiana. The country round about is agricultural, and the land is rich. Cotton is the chief product, and the fields pour their wealth into the little city, and help to sustain the population. Judging by the size and number of the stores, a large trade is enjoyed by the merchants. An electric plant furnishes the city with light. The water supply is abundant, furnished, we suppose, from deep wells. Concerning this, however, we asked no questions—simply took it for granted, as Artesian water is now so common.

The entertainment of the Conference was all that could be desired. Many more people were provided for than came, which indicated the hospitality of the good citizens. The Conference host, Rev. C. C. Miller, exerted himself to the utmost to accommodate the brethren, often putting himself to great trouble and inconvenience in meeting trains at all hours of the day and night. The writer was pleasantly and comfortably entertained at the Rapides Hotel, the leading hotel of the city. We have rarely met such kind attention as we received at the hands of the gentlemanly managers. The servants were as polite as any we ever met, and as quick to take and fill orders. We experienced no such vexatious delay at the table as at some hotels it has been our fortune to visit. We advise friends, in going to Alexandria, to stop at the Rapides.

Conference convened at 9 A. M., the usual hour, but not on the usual day of the week, as it met Thursday instead of Wednesday. Bishop J. S. Key presided throughout the session. This Conference completed his labors in our patronizing territory. Through all three of the Conferences he was painstaking, looked carefully into the details of the work, dispatched business rapidly, and yet was never in a hurry. He seemed to be as fresh and vigorous at the close as at the beginning. He conducts the business of an Annual Conference admirably, and, as far as we have heard, his presidency has given general satisfaction. This remark, of course, does not apply to his work in the cabinet, and yet it is fair to say that the appointments made came as near giving satisfaction to all as any Bishop could give. In the appointment of five hundred, or more men, to as many places, it would be well-nigh impossible to please every man or every place. But, fortunately, the great majority of preachers and places accept their dis-appointments without complaint, and look to the Lord to make everything work for good. Only where men deem themselves really afflicted—a thing never intentionally done—is dissatisfaction expressed. Then, if practicable, the mistake is corrected.

Rev. F. S. Parker, secretary of the last Conference, called the roll, and was afterwards unanimously re-elected to the secretaryship, and performed his work as usual—that is, in such a perfect manner that, almost uniformly, the Minutes were approved without correction. The secretary named as his assistants, W. G. Evans, R. H. Wynn, C. B. Carter, and C. D. Atkinson. The special duty of the first-named assistant is to edit and publish the Conference Minutes—a work which, under the advice of the Conference, he is expected to accomplish by the fifteenth of February. The contract for the work having been let before the meeting of the session, we presume Brother Evans will have no trouble in meeting the wishes of the brethren.

The first order of business, after organization, was the election of standing committees, nominations having been made by the presiding elders, and read by Dr. C. W. Carter.

Bible Cause—S. J. Davies, T. K. Faunt LeRoy, J. O. Bennett, K. W. Dodson, W. H. Hatfield, T. J. Martin, I. W. Lampton.

Temperance—T. J. Upton, P. O. Lowery, Noel Norwood.

Church Publications—J. M. Brown, J. F. Foster, B. Wright.

District Conference Records—H. W. Rickey, J. M. Alford, A. S. Lutz.

Sabbath Observance—R. J. Harp, S. S. Bogan, J. E. Denson, Wilson, Moore.

Public Worship—J. D. Harper, C. C. Miller, W. T. Woodward, D. E. Kelly.

Reports from the connectional officers and Boards—from the Book Agents, Mission Board, Church Extension, Education, Sunday-school, Epworth League Boards, and from the Conference Colleges—were presented, and referred to the various Conference Boards and committees without reading. This method of dealing with connectional reports does not meet the entire approbation of the representatives of the great interests involved, but as the matters are fully considered in committee meetings, and afterward rehearsed and enlarged upon by connectional secretaries, and saves much time, it is eminently satisfactory to the Conference, and, we imagine, is equally so to the presiding Bishop.

Under call of Question 20: "Are all the preachers blameless in their life and official administration?" the names of the superannuated preachers were called, their characters passed, and they were referred to the Committee on Conference Relations for continuance in the superannuated relation, viz.: J. L. Wright, Geo. Jackson, R. S. Trippett, J. M. Johnston, A. D. McVoy, B. F. White, J. F. Wynn, T. H. McCleudon, and J. L. P. Sheppard. The name of F. G. Hocutt was also referred to this committee.

It was announced that two honored veterans, M. C. Manley and J. F. Scurlock, had died during the year, and their names were referred to the Committee on Memoirs.

When the name of R. M. Blocker was called, his presiding elder announced that during the year the charge of immoral conduct, viz., "Obtaining money under false pretenses," had been lodged against him, that an investigating committee had found a "trial necessary," and that he was accordingly suspended until the meeting of Conference. Thereupon a committee of trial was appointed, which committee, after thorough investigation, found the accused guilty, and he was expelled from the ministry and membership of the church.

The following were admitted on trial: M. H. Honeycutt, S. L. Riggs, W. H. Coleman, R. H. Green, A. A. Bernard, and C. T. Stepp. W. H. Jordan and J. E. Methvien were discontinued at their own request. R. P. Howell was granted a location at his request. H. M. Banks, who was located last year in his absence, and without his knowledge or consent, made an appeal to the Conference for a rehearing of his case. His appeal was granted, and, after discussion, he was reinstated. Whereupon he asked for a location, and his request was granted.

Connectional dignitaries to the number of five were present, viz.: Drs. J. J. Tigert, Seth Ward, J. D. Hammond, H. M. Hamill, and A. F. Watkins. Mr. W. C. Everett represented the branch Publishing House at Dallas, and Mr. Henry Spence represented the House at Nashville. These honored laymen made no speeches, but they attended to business. Brother Spence led the music once or twice while we were present, and exhorted "everybody to sing," but everybody did not heed. Dr. Tigert talked about the Review, and preached an able and instructive sermon Thursday evening. Dr. Hammond talked on our educational work, stressing specially the importance of ministerial education and the Correspondence School for our young preachers. We do not agree with Dr. Hammond at all in seeking to make the Correspondence School supersede the Annual Conference examination by committee, but he made us feel like taking the correspondence course; and, notwithstanding our years, but for the amount of editorial labor we are compelled to do, we would go to school again.

Dr. Hamill edified the Conference in a talk on the Sunday-school work. We tried our best to hear, but having one defective ear, we failed to catch all he said. When about two-thirds through the electric light went out and left the church in total darkness. The Doctor kept right on, and while the darkness lasted we heard him distinctly and with satisfaction. Did the Doctor talk louder in the dark to keep his courage up, or was the acoustic properties of the house better in the dark than in the light, or can a deaf man hear better in the dark than in the light? We are of the opinion that he talked louder while the lights were out, and thereby helped more than one man to hear with satisfaction his delightful talk. The Doctor talked an hour and fifteen minutes, but the congregation did not tire. Nevertheless, at the close the singing men and singing women broke out, "How tedious and tasteless the hours!"

We did not have the privilege of hearing Drs. Ward and Watkins, as we were compelled to leave before their turn came.

We heard Dr. Edward Thompson, the General Manager of the Sabbath League of America. His speech was full of facts and figures, his arguments strong, and his exhortation earnest. He made a strong plea in behalf of our holy Sabbath. We were well pleased with everything connected with the service except the doggerel verses which the congregation was asked to sing. We refer to the opening song, one stanza of which begins, "Old Noah kept this calendar," etc. Why should Methodists be asked to sing doggerel printed on a slip of paper in a church supplied with hymn books?

A paper offered on Saturday by C. C. Weir, J. D. Harper, and others, provided for a Methodist orphanage for the State of Louisiana. The proposed enterprise was endorsed by the Conference, and the following members were appointed a Board of Control, viz.: C. C. Weir, J. D. Harper, F. S. Parker, J. T. Sawyer, H. R. Singleton, H. O. White, and W. L. Doss. This matter has been under consideration for quite awhile, and it is understood that several—at least two—towns will make a bid for the orphanage. The enterprise is worthy, and will, doubtless, receive the general endorsement of the people.

The Sunday services were of the usual character, but we have heard of none of the particulars, save of the work of Dr. Watkins, who, in presenting the cause of the superannuates, said he would "take no text," but would call his talk "a sermon-address." The talk was effective, and was followed by a collection amounting to $10,025.

The routine business on Monday was such as always comes up on the closing sessions of an Annual Conference. Reports were presented from the Board of Education, the Legal Conference, Board of Missions, the statistical secretary, Sunday-school Board, Epworth League Board, Woman's Missionary Society, and the Preachers' Education Aid Society. We presume also a report was made from the Church Extension Board, though no mention is made of the fact in the published accounts. The Conference endorsed the Correspondence School at Nashville, and resolved to accept its certificates of proficiency in lieu of an examination by the Conference Examining Committees.

The report of the Committee on Church Publications was presented. Dr. F. N. Parker represented the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and Drs. S. S. Keener, Jno. T. Sawyer and F. N. Parker were continued as members of the Publishing Committee.

The Bishop announced the following transfers to the Conference: Richard Wilkinson, from the North Mississippi Conference; W. J. Rogers, from the Little Rock; W. E. Boggs, from the North Texas; H. G. Davis, from the North Alabama; and J. R. Roy, from the West Texas.

A vote of thanks was tendered the good citizens of Alexandria for their hospitality; to the press of the city, and also to the New Orleans papers, for their reports of Conference proceedings. The vote was hearty and unanimous. The Conference adjourned to meet next year at Minden.

Conference Reports.

It is customary for Conference organs to print Conference reports, but with the exception of one or two, we have been unable to give the reports to our readers. They have not been furnished us. Secretaries are not expected to turn official documents over to the editor, and it would be hard to require them to make copies. Our only alternative is to call on chairmen of committees. If they will furnish us with copies of their reports, we will gladly print them.

PERSONAL.

From several sources we have received requests to say that the changes made by Bishop Key in the Mississippi Conference since adjournment, and which were published in the Picayune, have been canceled. The appointments will remain as announced at Natchez.

We call attention to the card of a physician in another column. He is seeking a location. He is a member of our church, a son of an itinerant preacher, and would like a location in a good religious community. A letter addressed to this office will reach him in good time.

Rev. R. A. Burroughs, who was transferred from the North Mississippi to the Texas Conference a year ago, did faithful work on Kosse circuit, and at the session recently held was appointed presiding elder of the Calvert district. We rejoice with Brother Burroughs that he is held in such high esteem in his new home.

The list of Quarterly Conferences sent in by Revs. T. W. Adams, J. M. Morse and W. H. Huntley came to hand too late to secure insertion in this week's issue of the ADVOCATE. Those interested will take notice that the Quarterly Conference for Centerville, in Natchez district, and for Shiloh, at John's, in Forest district, will be held Dec. 27, 28, and for Crawford Street Church, Vicksburg, Jan. 4, 5.

"The Mind Which Was in Christ."

Bitterness of spirit is a great hindrance to Christian growth and religious enjoyment. It is engendered by cultivating a contentious and disputatious mental attitude. Some one has said that Aristotle was the author of the art of quarrelling. But we suspect there was quarrelling in the world long before Aristotle's day. However this may be, it is true that much oral arguing is not to be classed as one of the foremost means of grace. Argument, in its place, is a good thing; but strange it is that very few men can engage in it without becoming angry. Loud and self-assertive propositions are never helpful in the cultivation of a "meek and quiet spirit." There are but few men who imitate even the great Socrates, to say nothing of Christ. The shrewd Roman lawyer, Pilate, could not force Jesus into a personal altercation of words. "He was led as a lamb to the slaughter."

Paul said to the Romans: "Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ he is none of his." That the pneuma, or spirit, here referred to, is not the Holy Spirit will be evident from the fact that it would be the statement of a mere truism. Of course, without the Holy Spirit no man could even begin the way of salvation; and to some extent every man has the "light which lighteneth every man that cometh into the world." But the "Spirit of Christ" to which the Apostle refers, is further explained by I. Peter iv, 1, when he exhorts: "Christ having suffered in the flesh, arm yourselves likewise with the same mind." And again: "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ." And the Scripture phrase, a "meek and quiet spirit," expresses the same idea.

All these passages, and a great many others, mean sweetness of temper, humbleness of mind, gentleness, quietness, forbearance, charitable judgment, kindness, and much else which goes to make up the mind which was in Christ—the most lovable character which the world has never before nor since perfectly reproduced.

This mind or spirit must be constantly sought after and cultivated by the Christian professor, and particularly by ministers of the gospel, as the greatest force they can set forth against sin and sinners. To have this, there must be no self-seeking—no vaulting ambition to be called Rabbi—to occupy chief places, and seeking after worldly popularity and praise and glory that comes from men. The only proper direction here is the injunction of the apostle: "In honor, preferring one another!" Oh, how beautiful is the good, and how attractive "the mind which was in Christ!"

It occurs to us at this point that Christ never used severe rebukes toward any except hypocrites. From his lips no ordinary sinner, man or woman, ever met severity. And so we may be required to rebuke hypocrisy, and when some important principle is to be defended, it must be done. But we must be sure and careful that we make no mistake.

"Arm yourselves likewise with the same mind." The phrase, "arm yourselves," suggests war. In another place, "put on the whole armor," etc. The mind which was in Christ is a militant spirit, not in the use of material powers—for these, by every token of the above recited passages, are excluded—but spiritual forces, such as love, are more powerful than material; and in the spiritual sphere are the only weapons. In a state of probation the soul's only armory is Christ.

A kind Christian spirit is the essential thing. If we rebuke sin while in an angry mood, we do more harm than good. The provocation to this is often very great. One may be the object of envy, and others may imagine him to be in their way to the gratification of their ambitious desires. Men may even conspire together to cause suffering; they may, in their madness, imagine that we are their enemies, and work themselves into an evil spirit of retaliation; their efforts may result in our suffering, mentally and physically; they may even kill our body; but if our conscience, enlightened by God's Word, is not condemned us, they cannot really hurt us, if we have not allowed ourselves to yield to the wickedness of retaliation, for if they even kill us, they only unwittingly enrich us, for "Death is the gate to endless joy."

Nor, on the other hand, must we suppose that the mind which was in Christ is a mean and cowardly spirit. Christ was the bravest man the world ever saw. The elements of the Christ-mind can not compromise with sin unless they cease to be a force, and this mind is brave to the extent of heroism and even martyrdom; but it is this in a meek and quiet spirit. Nor is the mind which was in Christ a mere put-on or make-believe affair. It is not a selfish, negative goodness which gathering its better-than-thou robes around leaves the sinner in his sufferings; nor is it a quality of the self-righteous Pharisee, who content himself with his own supposed safety, and passes by, leaving the wounded man by the wayside to shift for himself.

"But" said one, "if I do not retaliate and fight evil with evil, do I not give encouragement to the wicked to go on with their meanness?" No, not at all. Hear what the apostle exhorts: "Beloved, avenge not yourselves, but rather give place unto wrath"—that is, leave room for God to deal with the wicked—"for vengeance is mine: I will repay, saith the Lord." And he will surely repay. The mills of God grind slow, but they grind fine. God's judgments will surely overtake the wicked.

Above all, the mind which was in Christ must show in our lives a righteousness of life that is impervious to attack and irreproachable in moral integrity. Then, although suffering in mind and body from the work of empowered wickedness, we have an ear for the divine consolation which comes to the heart: "Call upon me in the day of trouble, and I will deliver you."—E. A. Yates, in Raleigh Christian Advocate.

Good News.

DEAR DOCTOR BOSWELL: Thinking that our brethren will wish to know about our dear brother, Amos Kendall, I send this note. He is steadily improving; was up all day last Friday, cheerful and comfortable. He relishes his food, and is quite at himself—only needs caution to gain strength. The attack was in the left side, and seems entirely to have disappeared. He and Sister Kendall greatly appreciate the many kind and warm expressions of sympathy and interest.

Your brother,

WELCOME AS SUNSHINE after storm is the relief when an obstinate, pitiless cough has been driven away by Allen's Lung Balsam. No opium in it. The good effect lasts. Take a bottle home with you this day.

Of Value to Cane Growers.

A pamphlet entitled, "Fertilizing Sugar Cane," written by a practical sugar planter from Hawaii, has just been published by the German Kali Works, 93 Nassau street, New York, N. Y., and a copy of it can be obtained free by writing to them. No doubt many of our readers will be interested to learn how this crop is treated so as to produce large yields of cane and sugar, and the pamphlet mentioned contains many valuable points pertaining thereto. We have read this little book with interest. Write and get one.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DEPARTMENT.

Mississippi Conference Epworth Leagues.

By request of the Mississippi Conference League president, W. D Hawkins, the writer called and held during the meeting of the Annual Conference in Natchez a session of the Conference League Cabinet. The chief purpose of the session was to make plans for the First Mississippi Conference League Conference, which will be held at Yazoo City. June 16, 17, 18 was fixed as the date. H. W. Featherston, W. D. Hawkins and H. A. Jones were appointed as a committee to draft Provisional Constitution and By Laws, and publish same in NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. Each League will be allowed two or more delegates, and each church that has no League is invited and urged to send a delegate to this first Conference League. Yazoo City will expect a large attendance.

Rev. H B. Watkins was elected editor of a League column of the ADVOCATE, to serve from now until the Yazoo City meeting. W. D. Hawkins, the president, was appointed to provide printed stationery to be used by the Conference League officers in their correspondence.

Miss Katie Swan, of Moss Point, was elected second vice-president, in place of Miss Clausman, resigned.

The new Conference League Board, which is to serve for the next four years, organized itself, with Dr. H. W. Featherston as chairman, and Rev. J. R. Jones as secretary. This Board decided to recommend to the Leagues the support of Dr. J. B. Fobes in China, and the writer would suggest that the chairman of the League Board and the president of the League Conference at once levy an assessment upon each League, asking the League to approve and notify them of the acceptance of the assessment.

H. G. HAWKINS,
Pres. pro tem.

To Epworth Leaguers throughout Louisiana:

The last annual League Conference, held in New Orleans, pledged to Centenary and Mansfield Colleges the sum of $800. On this pledge $301, as per statement herewith, have been paid and applied as shown by statement, which ratio was agreed upon by the Conference. These institutions are very much in need of this fund. All Leagues who have subscribed and not paid, will please forward their subscription; and others who have not subscribed, if you will send such amounts as you can raise, I will promptly acknowledge receipt of same, and forward to the two colleges at the ratio fixed by the Conference. Fraternally yours,

C. B. HICKS, State Treasurer.

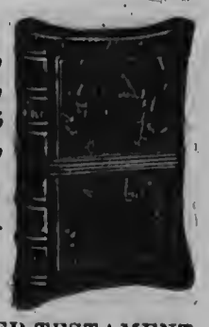
How a Woman Paid Her Debts.

I am out of debt, thanks to the Dish-washer business. In the past three months I have made $600 selling Dish-washers. I never saw anything sell so easily. Every family needs a Dish-washer, and will buy one when shown how beautiful y it will wash and dry the family dishes in two minutes. I sell from my own house. Each Dish-washer sold brings me many orders. The dishes are washed without wetting the hands. That is why ladies want the Dish washer. I give my experience for the benefit of anyone who may wish to make money easily. I buy my Dish-washers from the Mound City Dish-Washer Co., St. Louis, Mo. Write them for particulars. They will start you in business in your own home. L. A. C.

This Select List of Bibles

was chosen by the ADVOCATE to offer to its subscribers after a careful search through the catalogues of two of the world's greatest Bible Houses. It will interest you to read what we are offering in this line.



FIRST, we have the INTERNATIONAL MINION TYPE TEACHERS' BIBLE, which contains 360 pages of up-to-date helps, including maps and the Word-book, which is a combination of the Concordance, Index, Proper Names and Gazetteer; bound in Flexible Morocco, Divinity Circuit (overlapping edges), round corners, fine grained lining, and red-under-gold edges, for $1.60. Or

SECOND, if you want a larger type, we have this same Bible in Long Primer for $1.85.

THIRD, of the International series we have the RED LETTER TESTAMENT. This is a book that every one ought to have. It is printed in black and red ink. Every word that was spoken by Christ appears in red ink, while all the balance is printed in black. The paper is extra quality and thin, like that used in all fine Bibles. The Book is 4¾x3¼ inches in size, and beautifully bound in limp leather, red-under gold edges, round corners, gold lettering on side, silk marker. The binding is soft and pliable. Drop us a card for sample page. We will send you this Book for $1.00.

There is another style of binding for the above Testament we can furnish you. It is in imitation leather, and will cost 70 cents.

The RED LETTER TESTAMENT as a present would be very highly esteemed.

If you want one of these books in connection with your subscription to the ADVOCATE, we will furnish them as follows:

The ADVOCATE, one year, and the International Minion Type Bible will be sent to you for $3.10.

The ADVOCATE, one year, and the International Long Primer Edition will be sent to you for $3.35.

The Red Letter Testament and the ADVOCATE, one year, will be sent to you for $2.60.

The Red Letter Testament, in imitation leather, and the ADVOCATE will be sent to you for $2.40.

We will print your name in gold (one line) on the cover of any book for 20 cents extra.

The Patent Thumb Index will be furnished on the Bibles for 25 cents extra.

P. S.—The ADVOCATE offers apply to old as well as to new subscribers.

Linear Parallel Edition

THE HOLMAN

Comparative Self-Pronouncing S. S. Teachers' Bible

Containing, in Combined Text, the Authorized and Revised Versions of the Old and New Testaments.

PRINTED ON THE FINEST LINEN RAG PAPER.

The Linear Parallel Method

Presents in a single line and in large, clear type the texts of the Authorized and Revised Versions of the Holy Bible, where said texts are alike. Where they are unlike, either in language, spelling, italicization, capitalization, parentheses, punctuation, or otherwise, the difference is at once set forth by means of double lines of smaller type, making a readily and easily readable combined text.

23 ¶ And Jesus went about in all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of sickness disease and all manner of disease sickness among the people.

24 And his fame the report of him went throughout forth into all Syria: and they brought unto him all that were sick, people that were taken holden with divers diseases and torments, and those which were possessed with devils, and those which were lunatick, epileptic, and those that had the palsy palsied; and he healed them.

25 And there followed him great multitudes of people from Galilee and from Decapolis and from Jerusalem and from Judæa and from beyond Jordan.

[This is a Sample of the Type.]

An Instantaneous Comparison.

There is nothing mysterious or involved about the Linear Bible—all is plain sailing. There are no parallel columns or embarrassing foot notes to mystify one's understanding. To read the Authorized Version, one has but to read the large type line along to any point of difference in the respective versions, and then follow the UPPER small type line through such difference. Likewise, to read the Revised Version, one has but to read the large type line along to any difference in the respective versions, and then follow the LOWER small type line through such difference. This rule holds as to every difference, even to that of a comma. Thus not only the readings, but the comparisons of the two versions become easy, immediate, satisfactory and perfect.

In addition to the Old and New Testaments this edition contains the New Analytical and Comparative Concordance with 100,000 References—the most complete Concordance in any Teachers' Bible. A series of Fifteen Beautiful Maps in Colors, with cross-line Index. These maps are entirely new, and were engraved expressly for the Holman editions.

If you want this Book in connection with your ADVOCATE subscription, we will be glad to furnish both the Bible and the ADVOCATE, one year, for $7.00.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains the linen it is evidence of kidney trouble: too frequent desire to pass it, or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, and a book that tells all about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing be sure to mention that you read this generous offer in the NEW ORLEANS "CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE." Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

The Boy and the Mill.

Nearly a hundred years ago a farmer went from Lehigh Valley, Pa., into the Valley of Wyoming, and bought a piece of land through which a stream flowed. On the stream was an old-fashioned mill for grinding wheat and corn. The farmer knew very little about machinery, but the man who sold the place to him spent a day in showing him how to run the mill. He had three boys, twelve, fourteen and sixteen years old. Of course, boy-like, they were interested, and watched and listened all day.

Next morning, a grist having come in, the farmer and his two elder boys tried to run the mill, while Johnny, the youngest, was helping his mother in the house. But they could not make it go. After wasting an hour or two the father said: "Boys, it is of no use. We will take our axes and go over to the creek and work in the clearing."

Towards noon one of the boys, looking about as boys will, suddenly cried, "Why, the mill is going." And the father said, "It's Johnny's foolishness, but it will soon stop." It did not stop, however, and when they went home to dinner they found that the grist was ground and in the bin ready for sacking. Johnny had given close attention to the explanations of the man of whom his father bought the place, and thinking he understood the machinery, he persuaded his mother to help him start the big wheel, and then he tended the gearing and the hoppers, and the result was satisfactory.

From that time on the father put the mill in charge of Johnny, and he ran it successfully for years. During these years he read all the books that he could get, and studied how to do things. The result was that in early manhood he built himself a much larger mill, and then became an architect and contractor. And, although he died at forty-five, some of the best buildings, dams and bridges in the country survive as monuments of his ability and energy.

I believe that in this country every boy has an opportunity. But he needs to appreciate it when it comes, and to do his best to improve it. Any man who met Johnny when he was thirty or forty years old would have thought that he had received a thorough education. He was familiar with all the best works on architecture and engineering, and was a good draftsman. But, in fact, he never went to school but a few months in all, and that was only to learn to read and write. He was self-educated.—Herald and Presbyter.

How Mayor Johnson Began.

Mayor Johnson, of Cleveland, familiarly known as "Tom Johnson," lived in Louisville when a small boy. At the age of fourteen he secured employment as an office boy in a foundry at $2 a week. His duties consisted of keeping the office clean, running errands and picking up odd scraps that got into other people's way.

B. DuPont, who was part owner of the foundry, saw the industrious office boy rush one day into the street, pick up a bit of iron, and, returning, throw it on the scrap heap inside. When the boy re-entered the office Mr. DuPont said to him:

"Why did you do that, my son?"

"Why, sir," said Tom, a bit embarrassed, "there was no use wasting it. They can put it in the furnace and use it over again."

"Well, I just think I can use you, young man, in the street car business. How would you like to come at $7 a week?"

Young Johnson accepted the $5 raise with alacrity. Mr. DuPont controlled the Fourth Avenue and Walnut Street lines. One barn was at Eighteenth and Walnut streets, and at Fourth avenue and Main street was the drawing station. All the cars of the system had to pass there, and it was there that the money was drawn from the big clumsy boxes into which the fares were dropped.

One of the rules of the company was that as each bag of money was drawn the drawer must carry it into the office, put it into the safe, and close the door. To this rule Johnson owed his promotion from office boy.

Mr. DuPont was seldom at the drawing station during the day, and in time the drawers grew careless. No one had access to the room but the drawers, and, knowing one another to be honest, they formed the habit of carelessly throwing the bags of money on the floor and piling them all into the safe in a heap at the end of the day, or when they thought Mr. DuPont might be around.

One day the chief drawer was ill, and young Johnson, the office boy, was sent by Mr. Dupont from Eighteenth and Walnut streets to Fourth and Main to help out. Johnson read the rules, and in drawing the bag of money from the first car he bounded up the steps to the room, opened the safe, threw in the money, and slammed the door.

"What did you do that for?" demanded the book-keeper.

"The rules say so," answered the sub-drawer over his shoulder, as he ran down the steps to meet another car.

The same thing was repeated a dozen times. Then the book-keeper wheeled around, and demanded:

"Don't you think I'm honest? Do you think I want to steal any of that money?"

"Dunno," answered Johnson: "but the rule says, 'Put the bag in the safe and shut the door,' and that's what I'm going to do, whether you like it or not."

The book-keeper jumped off his stool just as Mr. DuPont stepped in.

"What's all this row about?" he asked.

"This young fool is acting as if he thought I was trying to steal your money," the book-keeper replied.

"I was just obeying the rule, Mr. DuPont," spoke up young Johnson. "Here it is," and he showed the president of the company the rule.

"All right, my boy," said Mr. DuPont, "since you obey the rules so well, I'll make you chief drawer right now."

Two years later, when he was seventeen, Johnson was superintendent of the road.—Exchange.

Just Like a Girl.

"Isn't that just like a girl?" and the fond mother smiled indulgently as her daughter, rosy and smiling, came in from school, tossed her muff on a chair, deposited her books on top of the piano, carelessly dropped one glove on the floor, then, after kissing her mother and saluting others in the room, lightly ran up-stairs to her chamber. Yes, such ways may be very pretty and engaging now, but how will they appear after becoming fixed habits of character? Simple heedlessness in a young girl, in the care of her person and possessions, develops into slovenliness with advancing years: and of all disagreeable sights, one of the most unpleasant is a middle-aged or elderly woman who is not neat. The girl who tumbles up the contents of her bureau drawers, and leaves things scattered about for others to pick up, will surely make an untidy housekeeper when she has no mother to pick up after her. Her habits will be an annoyance to her husband, if he be a lover of order and system, and, as a guest, she will always be dreaded in homes differently conducted from her own. The disorderly girl will make a disorderly woman: and as cares increase and strength fails, she will be likely to be not only disorderly, but slatternly. Think of this future, mothers, and insist upon your children—boys as well as girls—being neat and orderly, even if they carry the virtue to the point of fussiness. Better this than going to the opposite extreme in these matters.—Unidentified.

A Barking Dog.

The Boston Transcript tells a story of a minister who had occasion to travel a certain road with frequency, to be always annoyed by a dog:

"At a house on that road lived a big bull dog, which always came out and attacked him viciously. The minister stood this for a good while, until, finally, as he drove past one Winter day in a low sleigh, a means of correcting the dog by moral suasion occurred to him. He stopped his horse in the road before the house. The dog rushed out madly, barking and threatening to jump into the sleigh. The minister sat in his sleigh and paid no attention. The dog tired, returned to the assault, retired again, and a third time rushed out to the attack, but did not touch the man. Then he returned to the doorstep and lay down, apparently, utterly crestfallen and disgusted with such a man: and, as he paid no further attention, the minister drove. After this the minister drove many times past the house, but the dog paid no attention to him, and never seemed to see him at all. He was cured."

From this way we may learn a good lesson. In every community there are men just like that dog. They like to bark. And if any one will pay attention to them, either by rejoinder or by fight, they will continue to bark. It is only when their companions learn to treat them with a courteous silence that they cease their assaults. "Take no heed unto all words that are spoken, lest thou hear thy servant curse thee."—Christian Observer.

What They Do with Naughty Hens in China.

Many boys and girls have missionary hens. Do you know how to break a hen from setting? If not, probably you could learn a lesson from the Chinese. A few days ago we saw our servant come from the hen-house with a hen which was making some sounds showing that she was not well pleased. He then took a rag and tied it over her head to blindfold her eyes, and then set her feet on the low branch of a tree, and she was kept busy balancing on the perch. A lady asked me what he was doing that for, and my reply was: "The hen wants to set, and he is breaking her of it."

You see the hen is so taken up with trying to keep steady on the limb that she forgets about her plan to set on eggs.

But this old hen was rather set in her ways, and a few days after that we saw her walking about in the back yard with a small bunch of straw tied around her neck, looking something like a collar, though it was not very ornamental. The lady said: "What is that straw for?" My answer was: "He is trying another plan now. He wants to keep her worried, so that she will not feel comfortable sitting still."—Ex.

The Handshake.

I care nothing about what the wrinkles of my hand may mean, but I do care a great deal what kind of a grasp of welcome I receive.

I like the hearty grasp, but I do not wish to be mistaken for a grip-testing machine. The intangible clasp is hardly more satisfactory: and, while it may be interesting to watch a man use both hands to shake himself through a crowd, as an athlete climbs a rope, it is not very pleasant to be one of the subjects.

But, above all things, I dislike to think my friend evolved from some huge cuttlefish, whose arms stretch out in all directions. I want a man to look me in the eye when he shakes hands, even though the eye be glass, and not to reach his hand out backward or sideways to grasp mine, if he be so fortunate as to find it.

The conspicuous placard, "Strangers Welcome," the bright smile of recognition, the hearty greeting, "I'm glad to meet you," the sympathetic inquiry—each makes its appeal through eye or ear: but of the greeting expressed by the grasp of the hand we should be equally careful if we would give a full and complete welcome.—Christian Endeavor World.

ELIZABETH SELF was born in Amite City, La., Feb. 28, 1838 and died at her home in St. Helena parish, La., Oct. 16, 1902. Dec. 2, 1858, she was married to W. C. Harvell, who still lives to mourn the loss of her who was his companion for nearly half a century. Their union was blessed with eleven children, nine of whom still survive her, and rejoice in the precious heritage of faith which she has left them. Sister Harvell joined the M. E. Church, South, when she was fourteen years of age, and for fifty years of her life she worshiped at the altars, shouted over the victories, bore the burdens, and, better than all, exemplified the doctrines of that church in her life. A former pastor writes in high appreciation of her loyalty to her church. Sister Harvell belonged to that class of women who find their highest mission in the duties of wife and mother, and it was around her family fireside that her Christian light shone brightest. One of her chief joys was to minister in her home to the comfort of the ministry of her own and other churches. Many a weary prophet of her Lord found his way to her home, and there gathered fresh strength, physical and spiritual. In her life was beautifully mingled the distinguishing traits of the sisters of Bethany. While, like Martha, she loved to minister to the physical wants of the preacher, at the same time, like Mary, waited prayerfully and attentively upon his ministry of the Word. The latter years of her life were marked by great bodily suffering. Under these afflictions she patiently and beautifully ripened for the garner of her Savior. During these years she tented yearly at the Bluff Creek Camp Ground, which is near her home, and though often too feeble to attend the services at the tabernacle, she would lie on her bed in her tent and shout the praises of God, and exhort her friends and loved ones to become Christians. It was at this camp meeting that one of her sons (Rev. W. R. Harvell, of the Louisiana Conference) was converted and called into the ministry of the M. E. Church, South. No doubt her greatest comfort during the last years of her life was the privilege of seeing her son a useful minister of the church which she loved so much. Her triumphant death was a fitting close to such a life. She constantly called upon her weeping loved ones to rejoice with her over the glorious prospect of "going home." Her last articulate breath was a triumphant shout of victory over death and the grave. That her husband and children may so live as to meet her on the other shore, is the prayer of one who loves them.

PAUL M. BROWN.

Rev. W. G. HAWKINS, who had been a local preacher for more than fifty years, a member of the M. E. Church about seventeen years, and of the M. E. Church, South, since its organization, and who, within a month of his eighth birthday, died in the home of his son-in-law, near Booneville, Miss., Sunday night, Nov. 23, 1902, was laid to rest on the next evening in Meadow Creek Cemetery, close beside his companion who preceded him to heaven. The writer only knew this faithful man through today's association at a quarterly meeting. Here we heard him pray, here we talked with him about the precious gospel of Jesus and our Father's home above. He said to us in ecstacy that he was only waiting for God to call him. He bade us preach Christ and him crucified, and defend the doctrines our church. He believed in the doctrines of his church as that system of Christian theology necessary and potent to establish the church, and believed in the gospel's ability to save the whole world. Bro. Hawkins talked as freely and confidently about his going to heaven as he would a visit to either of his daughters. Truly, a good man has fallen, but with his face toward Zion. May souls will rise up in the judgment and call him blessed. May the peace of God which passeth understand comfort the minds and hearts of his sorrowing daughters in perfect peace, and may the memory of our brother's faith strengthen the ministry our day is!

BEN P. JACO.

Miss ANIE BROWN, daughter of Mrs. Sarah and Mr. Jos. W Spain, died in Booneville, Miss., Dec. 6, 1902, after an illness of but three or four days. Miss Annie was twenty-one years old on the ninth day of September last, and had been a member of the M. E. Church, South, about two years. Hers was a life that cast sunshine wherever she went. Her gentleness, amiableness and unselfishness were remarkable, and made her very attractive. These charming virtues drew to her many warm friends and admirers. But her place is now vacant around the fireside, in the social circle, the church, and the town. She who was so soon to have worn a bride on earth, and to have worn the wreath, has passed on into the temple above, a part of the church triumphant, Christ's bride to be, crowned with everlasting life. May the loving Christ sweetly comfort the sorrowing ones, and help them to look above, whence cometh their help! BEN P. JACO, P. C.

Mrs. ANNIE LEE, wife of Earl A. Tucker died in the triumphs of Christian faith in Booneville, Miss., Nov. 26, 1902. Her illness was very much protracted, and was very trying, but she grew in patience and submission as vitality departed. One sister had been a consistent and earnest Christian, having for several years filled the responsible place of the wife of an itinerant Methodist preacher. This place she filled most happily as she did all the relations of life. Sweet were the talks we had concerning God's goodness and gracious dispensations to his humble followers. Thus a life goes out; at midday the light ceases to shine; the young mother and faithful wife passes behind the veil. She joins her infant son in the world beyond, while he bereft husband and orphaned little girl remain in the world below. May God bless each of them and all the mourning ones, and gather all at last safely home!

BEN P. JACO.

Hon. DANIEL F. ASHFORD was born in Adams county, Miss., Feb. 25, 1837, and died at his home, just a few miles from his birthplace, Nov 1, 1902. He was educated at Yale College. In early life he united with the Methodist Church at Kingston, and learned to love the teachings of Methodism. He was steward for many years, and recording steward at the time of his death. He was also a member of the County Board of Supervisors, filling that position for twenty years. On Feb 3, 1858, he was married to Miss Martha Thorne, who survives him, with two living children and four grandchildren. His life was a great blessing to many. He lived "not to be ministered unto, but to minister." He leaves as a heritage "a good name," which "is rather to be chosen than great riches." May his mantle rest on us! We commend the family of Bro. Ashford to Him "who does all things well." He was buried from Jefferson Street Church, Natchez, Miss., by the writer.

Little self-denials, little honorables, little passing words of sympathy, little nameless acts of kindness, little silent victories over favorite temptations—these are the silent threads of gold which, when woven together, gleam out so brightly in the pattern of life that God approves.—Canon Farrar.

Mrs. Laura S. Webb,

Mrs. Laura S. Webb.

THERE ARE MANY sickly women between the ages of 45 and 55, but there are very few invalids over 55 and 60 years of age. The change of life coming to a woman near her forty-fourth year, either makes her an invalid or gives her a new lease on life. Those who meet this change in ill health seldom live ten years afterward, while a woman who lays aside the active duties of womanhood in health seldom fails to live on in happiness, years after she has passed 60. This is truly a critical time.

Mrs. Laura S. Webb, of Toledo, Ohio, recognizes the change of life as a dangerous period and she also has faith in Wine of Cardui. She writes:

"As I had always been troubled more or less at the menstrual period, I dreaded the change of life which was fast approaching. While visiting with a friend I noticed that she was taking your Wine of Cardui, and she was so enthusiastic about it that I decided to try a bottle. I experienced some relief the first month, so I kept on taking it for three months and now I menstruate with no pain and I shall take it off and on now until I have passed the climax. I do not dread it now, as I am sure that your Wine of Cardui will be of great benefit at this time."

Wine of Cardui is the remedy to re-inforce a woman against the shock that comes with the change of life. It re-establishes healthy functions after years of suffering. In doing this it has saved thousands of sufferers just in time. Do not wait until suffering is upon you. Thorough preparations should be made in advance. Begin the Wine of Cardui treatment today.

The Christ of Our Poets.

By REV. H. WALTER FEATHERSTUN, D.D.

12MO. PP. 171. 75 CENTS.

The book is a mine of suggestions.—Epworth Herald.

Thanks to Dr. Featherstun for his timely book.—Rev. R. E. Dickenson.

"The Christ of Our Poets," in the present Reading Course, is proving to be very popular.—Epworth Era.

We only regret that the book is so slight; . . . It holds the reader from beginning to end.—New York Christian Advocate.

He holds up the Christ of poesy illuminated by a new and rarer light, presenting ineffable beauties hitherto unseen.—Mrs. Bishop Morrison.

Dr. Featherstun's book exhibits wide reading, and a profound philosophical insight into the spirit of these poems.—St. Louis Christian Advocate.

The author employs a graceful and lucid style. . . . Dr. Featherstun has placed all of us under lasting obligations to himself.—Nashville American.

This charming volume has been made part of the League Course for 1903. . . . Dr. Featherstun has done his work admirably.—Sunday School Magazine.

Your book exhibits, it seems to me, not only careful and conscientious study and good taste, but that rarer and finer quality we call insight.—Bishop O. P. Fitzgerald.

We welcome this volume as a valuable addition to a class of literature which has been neglected to some extent by our Southern writers.—Raleigh Christian Advocate.

The poets are searched for the footprints of the Man of Calvary, and many of them are found. . . . The book makes most profitable reading.—Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

The volume suggests on every page, for which we can never be sufficiently thankful, that the great poets . . . were every one of them genuinely and predominantly religious.—Northwestern Christian Advocate.

"The Christ of Our Poets" is so full of thought, so full of noblest purpose, so vivid in word painting that I would it might be put into the hands of every young man and woman of our land.—Mrs. Callie H. Howe, W. C. T. U. lecturer.

All Christians and poet-lovers should feel indebted to Dr. Featherstun for this volume, in which he shows very beautifully how the poets have ever gone ahead of their time in their conception of a Christ to which the world has gradually been led in its ideals.—Review of Missions.

BISHOP HENDRIX'S BOOK:

12mo. Pp. 326. Cloth. Gilt top. Price $1.25.

"This is a timely and thought-provoking book, written with a holy purpose, and sure of a wide and beneficent mission. . . . The title is suggestive, and every page instructive. . . . One cannot escape the impression that some fervent paragraphs were penned when the devout author was sitting very close to the feet of his Lord."—Bishop Galloway.

"Upper Room Meditations"

Bishop Fitzgerald's New Book.

Of the many contributions from Bishop Fitzgerald to the literature of Christian experience, none surpasses this. Shut in from the world, he has heard the voice of God in the inner depths of his soul, and the Father whom he loves has helped him to tell what he has felt. No man can be unmoved by these pages.—Wesleyan Christian Advocate.

"Upper Room Meditations" is sweet, edifying, Christian. It cannot fail to do good, and I hope will be read by many thousands. It is a book for a sick room or a house in which sorrow sits enthroned.—Dr. Geo. G. Smith, Macon, Ga.

Those who have read it pronounce it the best of all his devotional writings. He has saved the best until now.—Nashville Correspondent St. Louis Christian Advocate.

It will be very helpful to the souls of God's children, for it comes out of a heart all of love and faith.—Texas Christian Advocate.

NEW CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

NOW BEING TESTED WITH WONDERFUL RESULTS

Offered Free to All Sufferers of Lung Diseases.

Special Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 22.—Dr. M. Beaty, the throat and lung specialist of Cincinnati, has recently completed a series of trial treatments of his antiseptic medicated air on 100 patients some were consumptives in the lowest emaciated stages, others of a catarrhal and bronchial nature.

MARSHAL BEATY, M. D.

The record of each patient was very interesting as the treatment progressed, rapid improvement was noticed in each case; one of the most interesting features is connection with this treatment was the great and rapid increase in weight of the patients, some of them gaining as much as 40 pounds of flesh in four weeks time. This is certainly phenomenal, and proof sufficient that this great discovery merits consideration. In his account of it, the doctor says: "No germ of catarrh, bronchitis, or consumption, can live under the action of this antiseptic. When breathed into the air passages, bronchial tubes and cells of the lungs it arrests the disease by destroying its cause."

Dr. Beaty has decided to continue these free tests a short time longer, so that invalids in every walk of life can test it for themselves and see what this great treatment will do for them. When Dr. Beaty makes such a liberal offer as this, there is surely something in it. The doctor especially extends an invitation to those of long standing and well-known cases of consumption, catarrh, bronchitis and weak lungs who have failed to get relief elsewhere.

Write the doctor at once, 602 W. 9th Street, Cincinnati, O., and tell him the nature of your throat and lung trouble and how long the disease has had a hold on you.

Big Eggs From Big Hens With Big Records

THE KIND WE SELL will hatch stock that will pay for its keep, for we breed what we advertise—a great laying strain of WHITE WYANDOTTES—ideal birds of large size and great productiveness, and hardy to an amazing degree. They are standard-bred and beautiful; but what is more to you, they are utility-bred. The farmer, and most others, desire stock that will bring dollars, and not simply blue ribbons. Ours will do both, but our special point is to produce a big hen to lay eggs.

THE KIND YOU WANT are the very kind we have—STRONG HENS. They lay strong eggs, and vigorous chicks result. It is a patent fact that Southern-laid eggs are the best. There are no better than ours in the South. Our hens have laid as high as 242 eggs in a year, with no forcing feed. It's in the strain, bred there, and they will please you mighty well. They have not been weakened by line-breeding, but built up from the "fittest" in standard points and stamina we could raise or buy.

General News.

On Dec. 10, in the Senate of the United States, Hon. J. B. Foraker, United States Senator for the State of Ohio, offered a bill which directs the Secretary of War to mark with marble headstones, as is done with the graves of the Federal dead in the national cemeteries, the graves of Confederate soldiers and sailors who died during the Civil War in Northern prisons and hospitals and were buried there. The bill appropriates $100,000 for the purpose, and was referred in due course to the Military Committee.

Germany and Great Britain have prepared their replies to the arbitration proposals. There is great hope in London that President Roosevelt will agree to act as arbitrator. None of the allies want to submit to The Hague Court. Venezuela has accepted President Roosevelt as arbitrator. The blockade has begun in earnest.

Great Weather Calendar.

The Chattanooga Medicine Co., the manufacturers of McElree's Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught, have just issued the 1903 edition of the Cardui Weather Chart and Calendar. This Calendar has sprung into universal prominence by accurately foretelling the Galveston flood, and predicting the droughts and floods of the past Summer, a year ahead of each occurrence. This office has just received one of these calendars, which consists of twelve sheets of paper, 13x20 inches in size, all fashioned together with a gilt tin strip and a brass loop hanger. Each sheet contains the calendar for one month in large figures that can be read across the room. Under the figures patent weather signals indicating Prof. DeVoe's weather forecasts for every day in the year appear. We understand a few copies of it can be secured by sending 10 cents apiece in postage stamps to The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

The romantic story of the four Nez Perce-Flathead Indians that made the journey to St. Louis in 1831-2 in search of the "White Man's Book of Heaven" has received new illumination from the pen of Eva Emery Dye, in "The Conquest; the True Story of Lewis and Clark," just published by A. C. McClurg & Co., of Chicago. Mrs. Dye shows conclusively that these are the same Indians that Lewis and Clark met in their overland journey in 1804-6. The facts have been gleaned from Governor Clark's own letter-books, from the life of William Walker, who first published the incident to the world, and from the traditions of the Nez Perces themselves. An Indian boy who rode with the Indian envoy when they started for St. Louis lived to be known as "Billy Williams, the historian of his tribe." Billy died in 1895 on the Nez Perce reservation. Miss Kate C. McBeth, the noted missionary among the Nez Perces, knew Billy well, and kept a record of his statements that has enabled Mrs. Dye to supply the missing links of this important event. As a result of this visit to St. Louis, missionaries were sent to Oregon. First the Methodists sent Jason Lee, whose mission resulted in the present Willamette University of Oregon. Next, the Presbyterians sent Dr. Whitman, whose mission later resulted in Whitman College. Later, the Catholics sent Father De Smet, at whose mission Christianity was first taught in the present Montana. This Macedonian call is one of the most remarkable in American annals, and the events leading up to it are fully set forth in "The Conquest."

The Queen and Crescent Route, on account of the holidays, has authorized the low rate of one and one-third fares for the round trip from and to all points on its line; also to all points south of the Potomac and Ohio and east of the Mississippi rivers, selling tickets Dec. 23, 24, 25, 30 and 31, 1902, and Jan. 1, 1903, with limit of Jan. 5, 1903.

The superb service in effect over the Queen and Crescent Route, affording quick time, and trains of the most approved modern pattern, composed of Pullman's latest design of sleeping-cars, parlor-cars, and dining cars, gives the public an opportunity to make its holiday trip in a degree of comfort never before realized. Two daily trains in each direction.

A WORD OF GOOD COUNSEL.—When days are bleak and nights are long and cold, keep Perry Davis' Painkiller in the house. It is your faithful friend, as it was your parents' friend. External and internal use.

We take pleasure in saying a good word for the Williams Organ & Piano Co., of Chicago. They are makers of the Epworth instruments. The piano we purchased from them about one year ago is a beautiful thing, and has given entire satisfaction. Refer to their ad. on page 8, and if in need of a piano or organ, you would do well to write them.

An Electric Belt Free

Send Your Application At Once To The Physician's Institute.

They Will Send You Absolutely Free One of Their 100 Guage Supreme Electric Belts, the Belt Which Has Made so Many Wonderful Cures—You Needn't Send Even a Postage Stamp, Just Your Name and Address.

Seven years ago the State of Illinois granted to the Physicians' Institute of Chicago a charter. There was need of something above the ordinary method of treatment for chronic diseases, something more than any one specialist or any number of specialists acting independently could do, so the State itself, under the powers granted it by its general laws, gave the power to the Physicians' Institute to furnish the sick such help as would make them well and strong.

Ever since its establishment this Institute has endeavored in every possible way to carry out the original purposes of its establishment under the beneficient laws of the State.

Three years ago, the Physicians' Institute, realizing the value of electricity in the treatment of certain phases of disease, created under the superintendence of its staff of specialists an electric belt, and this belt has been proved to be of great value as a curative agent. From time to time it has been improved until it reached that stage of perfection which warranted its present name of "Supreme."

This belt is the most electric of all agents in the cure of rheumatism, lumbago, lame back, nervous exhaustion, weakened or lost vital functions, varicocele, kidney disorders and many other complaints.

This "Supreme Electric Belt" is made in one grade only—100 guage—there is no better electric belt made and no better belt can be made. Whenever in the opinion of our staff of specialists the wonderful curative and revitalizing forces of electricity will cure you we send you, free of all cost, one of these Supreme Electric Belts. It is not sent on trial, it is yours to keep forever without the payment of one cent. This generous offer may be withdrawn at any time, so you should write to-day for this free "Supreme Electric Belt" to the Physicians' Institute, 4E 2296 Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ills.

A Wonderful Invention.

It is interesting to note that fortunes are frequently made by the invention of articles of minor importance. Many of the most popular devices are those designed to benefit the people and meet particular conditions, and one of the most interesting of these that has ever been invented is the Dr. White Electric Comb, patented Jan. 1, '99. These wonderful combs positively cure dandruff, hair falling out, itch and nervous headaches and when used in connection with Dr. White's Electric Hair Brush are positively guaranteed to make straight hair curly in 25 days' time. Thousands of these electric combs have been sold in the various cities of the Union and the demand is constantly increasing. Our agents are rapidly becoming rich selling these combs. They positively sell on sight. Send for sample. Mailed, postpaid, ladies, 35c—half price while we are introducing them. See Want Column of this paper. The D. White Electric Comb Co., Decatur, Ill.

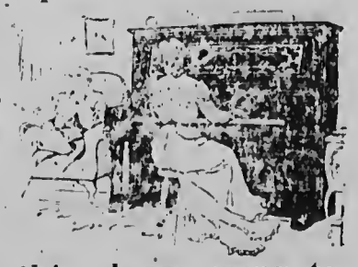
Sweet Toned—Reliable

Epworth Pianos



Why I am going to buy the Epworth

—because it has a sweet, pure, sympathetic tone—the singing tone. I dislike a piano with a cheap, common, harsh tone, no matter how pretty the case.

—because Epworth sounding boards are made by the slow, old fashioned, German process—by hand—giving greater vibration and resonance to the tone,—and more life and power. I don't want my piano to get "tinny" or "thumpy" after awhile, like so many pianos I have seen.

—because the action of the Epworth is easy and prompt—responds rapidly and has a beautiful touch. I don't like to play on a piano that rattles or works sluggishly.

—because the Epworth is finished in the old reliable, slow process—not rushed. I have seen pianos, whose finish peels off after a while.

—because the Epworth has the strongest guarantee I ever saw.—the Company insures all the parts of piano better. Most other warrants don't warrant the working parts nor the sounding board from splitting.

—because I can buy the Epworth direct from the Company, instead of through an agent or dealer. I prefer to be my own dealer—sell it to myself and save that middle profit. It costs lots of money to sell pianos ordinarily, and that expense is a dead loss—which I avoid by buying the Epworth direct.

—besides the Company will send me a piano on trial. It must be perfect and satisfactory to me or they take it back. In this way I get to use my own judgment—and no agent around to worry me.

A new edition of the Epworth Piano Book is now ready to mail to any intelligent buyer. It contains fine cuts and explains a number of other interesting points. Tells how some pianos seem to become old and worn after a few years of service, while others get better and better, year after year. It tells how.

No matter what piano you are thinking of buying it will pay you to sit down and write for the Epworth Piano Catalogue—free for the asking.

Write for it at once (get today).

Many of our readers know that war has been imminent for some time past between Eastern allied powers and Venezuela. It seems almost ridiculous to speak of war between one of the weakest of South American governments and the two strongest nations of Europe, but such is the case. Certain investors from England and Germany and Italy, with a view to speculation, were unfortunate in their ventures. Their investments, it appears, were secured by Venezuelan bonds. Failing to realize on their outlay, they laid complaints before their respective governments, and these governments, in turn, demanded settlement. Failing to secure satisfaction, they issued an ultimatum, which, being unheeded, they proceeded to blockade Venezuelan ports and seize Venezuelan ships. At this point, fearing an infraction of the Monroe Doctrine, the United States dispatched a squadron under Admiral Dewey to keep watch. United States Minister Bowen was requested by the Venezuelan Government to intercede. This he did, and by wise and judicious management or advice actual hostilities were stayed, and now matters are in a fair way of amicable settlement. Venezuela proposed to submit all matters in dispute to arbitration, naming President Roosevelt as arbitrator. To this the powers agreed, as did Mr. Roosevelt. But there was much opposition among our leading people, not that confidence was lacking in the President, but because of a disinclination to place the President in such an attitude before the world. Perhaps this was well. Now it is proposed to carry the cause to the Hague Tribunal. All parties have agreed to this, and it is hoped that the difficulty will soon be a thing of the past.

By the time our readers look into this paper the Christmas of 1902 will have passed away, and its record made up. According to accounts, it was fully celebrated everywhere, and after the usual custom, and the record of burning, accidental shooting, and killing on purpose, is fearful. It almost makes the head swim to read of the crimes committed. Much of it is due to liquor, and many of the accidents are due to the careless handling of firearms, and the use of firecrackers and fireworks in general. If indulgence in these things was as general elsewhere as in New Orleans, the proclamations of Chiefs of Police do not amount to anything. The citizens of one Kansas town indulged in a lynching on Christmas morning. A negro was suspected of murdering a policeman. He was arrested and put in jail. A crowd of men gathered, took him from the jail, and hung him up; then let him down and cut his throat, and then hung him up again. This was in Kansas, the home of John Brown. How true it is that the spirit of lynching is not sectional! And lying is no less disgraceful in Kansas than in Texas or Georgia. We expect the Kansas citizens to be denounced as barbarians and outlaws.

[Since the above was written and put in type, it is given out that the Kansas mob lynched the wrong man. The mob was hasty in its zest for blood.]

Congress has adjourned for the holidays, but congressional matters still engage the attention of politicians throughout the country. During the three weeks of the session very little legislation was effected. To many people the most important act was the passage of a law forbidding the sale of liquor on government property. This will drive the beer-joints from the national Capitol, and thus purge the building of a long-standing disgrace. The bill to admit Oklahoma, Arizona and New Mexico to Statehood was pending when the recess was taken, and it is feared that this bill has the right of way when the Senate as unfinished business, nothing will be done until it is disposed of. Nothing was done in the way of anti-trust legislation, and the prospect is not all bright to those who are eager to see something done that will loosen the grip of great monopolies. The prospect also for the ratification of the Cuban treaty is gloomy. Our American Congress moves slowly.

In the Hall of Fame, to be set apart in the new Capitol of Mississippi, will be placed portraits of leading men of the State, and of some who were never within its borders. Among the latter was President Lincoln—the war President of the United States. His son, Robert T. Lincoln, has been requested to place a portrait of the President in the Hall. He will, doubtless, comply with the request. The Southern people have for years past recognized the greatness and sincerity of Mr. Lincoln, and, as they learn more and more of his character, and the motives by which he was influenced in his life, they have been more and more inclined to join with the people of his own section in honoring him as "Honest Abe"—the name by which he was known in his young days, and which he retained throughout his successful life. Northern people will look with pride on the portrait of Mr. Lincoln in Mississippi's Capitol, and Southern people will not be ashamed that they have thus honored his memory.

Notes after Conference.

BY MISS MARY B. MEGOINSON.

Bishop Key seems to have favored some stake-driving with much help. There would have been grieved hearts if he had not. Wall Hill wanted Brother Evans back. And Batesville is to be congratulated. Everybody who knows Brother Babb wants him for preacher. He and Sister Babb are a double blessing wherever they go. They expect greater prosperity than ever in this year's work.

The natives of the hill country have much to thank Brother Augustus for. His work in disestablishing the saloon in Marshall county is like old-time successes one reads about. He made people believe that was the way to do. While contributing generously to a fund for an old preacher once, he told an enquirer that his initials were supposed to stand for "No Good," for which little joke one can hardly forgive even him.

Brother J. A. Randolph has the largest army post in the service, and besides his work as chaplain, he translated portions of the Scriptures into the language of the natives of one of the Philippine Islands, and taught a class of Filipinos some of the difficulties of our language, and his bow abides in strength. Personal experience has proved that the more humility of position in prayer, the more blessing. Brother Holder, of the Holly Springs circuit, demonstrates this to his congregations. He makes himself lowliest in body as well as in spirit, and then is made wise in winning souls.

Country people do not get preaching enough in Winter. The church has much social value for sincere young members who are peculiar about the gatherings they attend. The towns have no monopoly of the vast and varied need in that regard. Next to the personal element to interest comes our Advocates, whose editors are simply wonderful in succeeding week after week in making their papers both religious and popular. Nobody can realize, as such editors do, the amount of living that goes to a little writing.

That Oregon brother's idea of lay preachers would fit the sister's work, too. In the ordinary sinner's mind—and some saints—a preacher's shop-talk is paid for, while that life has marvelous influence which sometimes loses things by a Christian profession. The banner of love rules souls as well as hearts.

Those who know Miss Viola Blackburn—and many who do not—find Dr. Winton superior to all reports; and we had never heard that he was not equal to his present position. He can interest the higher critics, and also talk down—or up—to the common people, so that they hear him gladly. His interpretation of St. John's love, published in the Nashville some years ago, broke away a great deal of the rock that an ancient philosopher illustrated as non-education.

It is sad news that Sister Annie Lee, wife of Brother Earl Tucker, has gone from time. She worked for her parsonage, leaving it more comfortable. She traveled the circuit for love's own sake, helping the meetings with prayer and song. Her own works praise her. Brother Tucker now has her dear, beckoning hand, as well as those others, to keep in his mind that it is good to be with God. Our prayers follow him and little Annie Heslep.

A Flower to the Living.

Mississippi Methodism has had no preacher within her ranks since I have been a member of the Conference of whom she might be more justly proud than she should be of Rev. E. H. Mounger, D. D., who located by his own request at our last session held in Natchez, Miss.

Dr. Mounger was easily the most scholarly man among us, and the most scriptural preacher I have ever heard. His sermons are rare literary gems, always perfect, ready for the press without revision or correction.

Mrs. Hunneycutt, an intimate friend of Dr. Mounger's, said to me while he was her pastor: "Bro. Mounger is the most helpful pastor I have ever had. I have but one objection to him. His sermons are almost painfully correct. I had rather they were a little more rugged." I have found few men as free from harsh, rude, unseemly speech as he.

During many years of pleasant intercourse with him I never heard him speak a word or make a suggestion that could not have been used in the parlor or spoken in the pulpit. He is singularly free from harsh criticism of his brethren.

As a preacher, there was no circle which he could not enter and feel at ease. If found with scholars, he was modestly conscious of his own culture and scholarship; if with the unlearned, he could adapt himself to his circumstances. With the rich and the poor he was equally at home. In my humble judgment, there is not a pulpit in the Conference that he could not fill with graceful ease, nor a congregation that he is not qualified to serve. No thoughtful man can fail to be edified by his preaching. As my presiding elder in two districts, our relation was most pleasant, and I admired and loved him more than any I have ever had.

No man's severance from us could have given me more real pain than his. For more than forty years he has met with us in our annual convocation, and answered to roll-call. Forty years of cultured, dignified manhood have been given to Mississippi Methodism; forty years of a vigorous manhood that would have adorned any of the vocations of life.

May God's richest blessings rest upon him and abide with him till he answers to the great roll-call in the skies!

Lovingly subscribed.

Letter from Dr. Fearn.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: Time and again I have wanted to write you something of our work out here, and, in fact, have written you parts of letters more than once, but for some reason I have not sent you anything yet. Last week we had quite an unusual meeting in connection with our medical work. I have sent a copy of my letter to the North China Daily News, of Shanghai, to my sister, and asked her to send it on to you. I thought you might think it of some value to you. I hope to send you from time to time some notes about this country and our work. We have become so used to the conditions around us that it is very hard to realize those things which would be of interest to our home people. I have many friends in Mississippi. The Mississippi Conference made it possible for me to come to China nearly eight years ago.

We have just had the pleasure of having Bishop and Mrs. Galloway in our home for a week, and it was indeed a great pleasure. The Bishop thinks we have a fine paper in our NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE. May the Lord continue to bless you in your work! Yours sincerely,

J. B. FEARN.

Soochow, China, Nov 19, 1902.

Note from Memphis.

Rev. G. W. Banks, the newly appointed pastor of Hernando Street Church, Memphis, sends us the following pleasant note, which we appreciate:

DEAR BRO. BOSWELL: I was disappointed, and so was the mistress of the parsonage, because you did not stop on your way from the North Mississippi Conference. As we now remember the matter, you promised so to do, but we only hold you to the promise, and claim you when you pass this way again. Things are about in "order" in the parsonage, and we hard at work. This, Hernando Street Church, is growing very rapidly, as is the city of Memphis. The great question with us, What shall we do with the multitudes that are crowding into our great cities? We have already received fourteen new members since Conference, and have several more good families listed whose letters we have not yet secured.

We have had a debt-paying era in Memphis, and, as a result, some of the churches are already entirely free. We have on Hernando Street Church a small debt of $1,300, which we hope to take off this year.

We are always glad to see the bright face of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. We are yet at a loss to know what to do for a means of local intercommunication. A strong plea was presented by the brethren of the Midland Methodist for "adoption," but the brethren of our Conference declined the offer. We hope in the near future to have a neat journal of our own.

Your brother, G. W. BANKS.

For the Orphans' Home.

DEAR ADVOCATE READERS: We Choctaws, of Tullichulok mission, desire an interest in the contributions to the Orphans' Home at Water Valley, Miss. Our God has done so much for us, and we have done so little for him, that we want to practice some self-denial for the Lord by making a little gift from our church to the Orphans' Home. We feel that it will please God for us to leave off some Christmas luxuries for ourselves and give it to the orphans.

We had a Thanksgiving service, and took a collection for the Home, but the day was so cold, the congregation was small, and our collection was so little, that we decided to try it again at our Christmas service, and hope to be more successful, and will then add the two and forward to the Home.

Please pray for us, and that the new year shall be the best in the history of the mission.

Yours for the right,

SIMPSON J. TUBBY.

Tolee, Miss., Dec 22, 1902.

Ackerman, Miss.

DEAR DR. BOSWELL: I would like a little space in the ADVOCATE to tell of my move and reception in Ackerman. We are strictly itinerants. Two years ago we moved from Hernando to Durant, a year ago from Durant to Hernando en route to Pleasant Hill, and this time we come back from Hernando by Durant to Ackerman. If it be true that while a rolling stone gathers no moss it keeps rubbed bright, we ought to be very brilliant. Some talk eloquently about the "four-year term," "driving down stakes," and so on; but of what use is all the pile-driving of stakes when the automatic stake lifters get to work "to lift a fellow out of his boots"? Sometimes I have thought we were too securely fixed to be disturbed, only to find I was mistaken; but since Freeborn Garretson was converted on horseback, Methodism has been a moving element. "For so we preach and so they believe," and the "kingdom of God comes nigh unto" many who otherwise would never hear. All glory to the Father above, and we will work and wait till our change comes.

Now we find ourselves in a new, live, enterprising town of about 1,000 inhabitants, with about thirty-five business houses (some of them splendid), a good court-house, the county site of Choctaw. We have a compress, telephones, and a talk of electric light. Two county papers are published here. There are five churches in very good working order. The people gave us a very hearty welcome, partly expressed in a donation of everything they could think of, from a barrel of flour to a box of matches, and had between five and six dollars left, which they turned over to us to buy whatever we wished. And they give us a crowded house to preach to. So, if Bro. R. M. Davis be correct, that the way to make a preacher and his family happy "is to brag on his preaching and give him things," these people expect to make their preacher and his family very happy this year.

With success to you and the ADVOCATE, I am, Yours in Christ,

J. H. SMITH.

[And may Brother Smith have the happiest and most successful year of his life.—EDITOR.]

Crawford Street, Vicksburg.

We have closed the second year at Crawford Street, Vicksburg. All acquainted with this charge know it to be unusually difficult. Besides the general drawbacks, we have had some misfortunes that were unusual and discouraging. The loss by death and removal has been large and important. Among others was the president and three members of the Board of Stewards, the presidents of the Ladies' Aid and Missionary Societies, the Sunday-school superintendent, the vice-president of the State Epworth League, the president of the Junior League and manager of the juvenile department of the Sunday-school; also a large per cent. of Sunday-school teachers. The Paxtons, Robins, Roaches, and such families, have moved away. This, together with the $7,500 church debt, was quite a hindrance. Numerically, the gain has been equal to the loss. Financially, we are $1,500 beyond last year, and last year all was up in full. Those who know the condition of things in the city tell me there has been no decrease in the congregations, and that our church is prospering as well as any communion in the city.

Yours,

H. R. SINGLETON, P. C.

From Rev. C. McDonald.

MR. EDITOR: I start to-day for my new charge, stopping by the way for Christmas with two of my married children and other relatives in Rankin county.

Yesterday we buried Bro. T. F. Cammack at Providence. He died happy. He was one of our most important men. So the last service among these good Providence people was a very sad one.

I send three renewals to the ADVOCATE, besides my own. I hope to do good work for the ADVOCATE in Satartia charge.

My crippled foot is nearly well.

Kindly, C. MCDONALD.

Notice to Friends.

MR. EDITOR: As Rev. M. C. Manley, deceased, so long a member of the Louisiana Conference, had many friends whom I have not been able to see, and who, doubtless, would like to help pay the deficit of $21.75 on the tombstone which now marks his grave in the cemetery in Opelousas, La., I wish to say I will receipt for all contributions sent me for this purpose, and supply Sister Manley with a list of contributors, and the excess, in case more than the amount specified should be received. Address me at Hammond, La.; Box 96. W. J. PORTER.

Dec 25, 1902.

Port Gibson, Miss.

DEAR DOCTOR: We are here, comfortably housed at Port Gibson. Our reception is such as maketh the heart of man glad, equaled only by such as we received here twenty years ago. We find a new, roomy parsonage, newly, neatly, and fully furnished; pantry, wood-house and coal-house filled to overflowing; above all, warm, loyal hearts, and a cordial welcome. I'd be ashamed to give such people less than the best that is within me. Yours,

H. R. SINGLETON.

Half-Sheet This Week.

We hope to greet our readers next week with a sixteen-page paper—neat, clean, and well printed. In order to do this without undue haste, we send out this week only a half-sheet, but it makes the fifty-third paper issued in 1902. Besides, as our printers have had no holiday during the year, we thought they deserved the Christmas rest. May our indulgent readers remember us in prayer as we remember them.

Christians may be led into a "selfish and self absorbed life," either by the idea that they are wholly incompetent to perform any useful work in the church, or by the false notion that to have anything to do with the world is detrimental to personal piety. A man acting on suggestions of that sort in secular life would both suffer and justly incur the scorn and contempt of his fellow-men. Shall we respect an idle and self-satisfied professor of religion more than we do a man of the world who fails to meet his obligations to his family and his neighbors?

A Christian man may be devoted to his church, its doctrines and government, and yet be thoroughly fraternal in his feelings. He may believe that his church is better adapted to carry on the work of the gospel than any other; at the same time he can take a brother of a different creed by the hand and bid him God-speed. Such a man, though a sectarian, is not a sectarian bigot. He is a brother to all who love the Lord Jesus Christ. Nothing but false notions of church authority and priestly functions hinders such fraternity from becoming universal.

The table talk of honest, but injudicious Christian parents has often destroyed the influence of a worthy pastor over their children by unnecessary and harsh criticism of his sermons, and his manners in the social circle. It is no little harm they do both the pastor and their children. Many preachers in the bounds of our territory are just now entering upon new fields, and making new acquaintances. Do not criticize them. Accept them as God's messengers, and so treat them as to impress the children that they are the Lord's servants, sent to do them good.

A pedantic display before a crowd of hearers, one-tenth of whom—and, perhaps a less number, are wholly incompetent to understand the technicalities and quotations from unknown tongues, is not only out of taste, but an utter waste of time and opportunity. A preacher who indulges in that sort of sermonizing had just as well get out of doors and beat the air with a base-ball bat.

THE UNITY AND EFFICIENCY OF THE METHODIST SYSTEM.

Methodists are annual witnesses of the unity and efficiency of their itinerant system. It is demonstrated by the facility with which the churches are supplied with pastors, and the pastors with charges. If there is a lapse in the pastorate, it is not chargeable to the system, but to fault or misfortune. For reasons, always known, churches are occasionally left to be supplied. And supplies are quickly found. Death deprives a church of its pastor, but his place is soon filled. Sometimes a pastor drops out of his own accord, or, for cause, is suspended. The appointing power readily finds a man to take his place. Men are transferred from one Conference to another, and our reserve force—the local ministry—is drawn on, and the work of the church moves without interruption. The preacher moves from one place to another, but never for a moment is he out of the pastorate. This fact should put to rest that class among us who sometimes clamor for a settled pastorate. They do not seem to know that only such a system as ours is the only system that has a settled pastorate—the difference between ours and other systems being, ours has a definite term of service, while the ministry of other churches has an indefinite tenure, except where pastors are elected for a given length of time.

Within the past week we have been witness to the efficiency of our system, and we may add, witness to the perfect satisfaction with which it works. A preacher was transferred from a distant Conference and stationed at one of our leading charges in this city. When the appointment was announced he was in the parsonage of his old charge. The next evening he was in New Orleans, and ready for work. The following Sunday he appeared before his congregation for the first time. There was no formal induction into office; no formal introduction to the congregation. Nobody challenged his right to take charge of the church; nobody demanded credentials. The Conference from which he came had examined and endorsed his character. This was sufficient, and he was recognized and accepted as pastor quite as heartily and as fully as if he had been elected by the unanimous vote of the people. Between the going out of the old pastor and the coming in of the new there was not the loss of a moment. Nor was there any friction. May success crown the labors of the preacher and his flock!

TURNING A LEAF.

Many light remarks are being made this week by thoughtless or wicked persons about "turning a new leaf." This lightness is indulged because so many people make serious and solemn promises to amend and lead a new life, and break them almost immediately, and go back to the old life apparently with as little disturbance of conscience as if they had never made a vow to God. Perhaps many of the vows so taken are made without due consideration of their import, but we take it for granted that all who turn a leaf on New Year's Day are in earnest, and really intend to be better and do better.

Why should they not? Life is fleeting and uncertain. They have come safely through another year, with all its "dangers, toils and snares." Thousands of their fellow-beings have fallen by the way, and many of their friends and kinsmen have been the subjects of sorrow and affliction, and they themselves, maybe, have not escaped. All this should occasion reflection, and not only lead to thankfulness, but to consecration to God, which is largely implied in turning a leaf.

Nor is there any reason why a devout and consistent Christian should fail or decline to renew the covenant. Perhaps unwittingly or in the press of business, some duty has been overlooked, some privilege neglected, and, as a consequence, loss of spiritual joy has followed. It is well to renew the covenant, even though there may be no consciousness of failure in duty, no conscious loss of spiritual life. It is written of Job that he "continually" sanctified his children, and "offered burnt offerings according to the number of them all," lest, said he, "It may be that my sons have sinned, and cursed God in their hearts." May we not well follow the example of Job, both for ourselves and our households?

Why should not a poor man, constantly following a tempter that would lure him to his death, break away and vow never to be led into sin again? Suppose he has not fully counted up all the cost of such a resolve, and really feels his inability to keep the pledge? If he is honest in the effort, he deserves the help of stronger minds; and a sense of responsibility for "keeping a brother" should drive these stronger minds to his assistance. Instead of hindering, they should encourage and help. It is nothing short of a sin to throw any sort of a stumbling-block in the way of one who desires to reform and turns over a leaf on New Year's Day. Better once a year than not at all, even though the vow is kept no longer than a month.

Business men are settling their accounts with the world. They are balancing their books—determining the loss or gain of the year's work. Why should not these same men, and all others, see how they stand with God? If the balance is on the wrong side—as most men find it is—why not vow to God and turn a leaf? Let us all, this good day, wipe out all old scores against our fellow-men, and ask God to wipe out all he has against us. Let us begin the new year with a diary of three hundred and sixty-five clean pages, and resolve, by God's help, to turn a clean leaf every day. And shame on the man who will make light of such a vow!

A CONGRESS OF SOME BAPTISTS.

It is denied that any such organization exists as the "Baptist Congress." It is admitted, though, that there is a Congress of Some Baptists. No matter whether it is this or that, representative Baptists get together once a year in what they call a "Congress," and discuss questions of interest to the religious world in general, and presumably they are of interest to the Baptist world in particular. It is understood that in these annual gatherings, those who are selected to do the speech-making are not hampered by any rule or creed, but are perfectly free in their utterances. They may be rigidly orthodox, or, if they choose, may attack the foundations and dig out all the stones. Now and then some brother makes the eyes of the "Landmarkers" open with astonishment. They are horrified at the idea of a Baptist giving voice to such sentiments as are expressed.

The recent "Congress" was no exception to the general rule, save that some of the speakers went a bow-shot, or more, beyond anything ever heard in a meeting of Baptists. The question, "Is baptism essential to church membership?" was vigorously discussed. The question itself smacks mightily of heterodoxy, and is quite sufficient to horrify the saints who contend earnestly for the faith; but to take the negative side, and argue against tradition that reaches back to Pentecost, not to say to the day "when Jesus established the church about the time he preached the Sermon on the Mount and somewhere near the place of its delivery," is too much even to be thought of. But reports all agree in saying that several prominent Baptist ministers did say that baptism is not essential to church membership and sustained their contention by such arguments as these: "To make baptism essential to church membership is to demand more for the church than is required for the kingdom. . . . To make baptism essential to church membership is to emphasize ceremony rather than character, and is to exalt the letter above the spirit . . . It is to perpetuate a cleavage in the body of Christ along the line of ceremony merely. . . . It compels us, for the sake of a ceremonial observance, to disregard the fundamental biblical principle of the right and duty of individual freedom of Scripture interpretation," etc.

Such reasoning is not specious, but it is not convincing, for though it would be right hard to prove by a "thus saith the Lord" that baptism is essential to church membership, the rank and file of the Baptists believe it. In this they agree with the great body of Christians. It might be too much to say that they are more insistent on the subject than others, but they are more demonstrative, and, unfortunately, heretics who run counter to their cherished beliefs are beyond the reach of punishment. There is no court to indict and bring them to justice. They are generally popular men who have the backing of their congregations, and these congregations, being independent, are safe from any sentence of excommunication. We have sometimes thought that an appellant court would save our Baptist brethren a deal of trouble.

Death of an Elect Lady.

After our paper had gone to press, last week, we received a telegram from Mrs. L. B. Freeman, announcing the death of her mother, Mrs. L. L. Barton, widow of the late Rev. W. P. Barton, long a member of the Mississippi Conference, but who closed his useful career in the North Mississippi Conference, having become a member of that body at its organization in 1870. Sister Barton died at her home, White Station, near Memphis, at 11 P. M., Dec. 23, in the seventy-fifth year of her age. Her sickness was brief, and her death a shock to her children, nine in number, and widely scattered, and who had planned a family reunion for Christmas Day. Some of the children on the way to the reunion did not learn of the mother's death until they reached the family home. How sad! May the Lord comfort their sorrowing hearts. We hope soon to have a memoir of this elect lady.

The Epworth Era.

We have received a copy of the souvenir edition of the Epworth Era, the general organ of the League. It is on fine paper, beautifully printed and profusely illustrated, with a full amount of first-class matter, editorial and other, well adapted to the needs of the League. The Era has largely increased in circulation recently—having received 2000 new subscriptions since the middle of October. This excellent paper ought to have at least 50,000 subscribers. An energetic canvass on the part of pastors and League presidents would soon result in that number. We hope also that the League Reading Course will have a large circulation. We have not as yet seen a set of the books, but we are assured that it is first-class. The League movement in every department is worthy of our earnest support.

PERSONAL.

"Gideon" is well located at Duran, and "perfectly comfortable." The Advocates may look out for some good "copy" in the near future.

The address of Rev. R. S. Collier, now a member of the Louisiana Conference, is Lytle, Texas. His friends will please direct letters to him at that place.

Rev. G. W. Bachman, the "book merchant," has been laid up a few days, afflicted somewhat as Job was. But he writes hopefully, and will soon be himself again.

We learn with regret that Mrs. J. B. Randolph, wife of the pastor of our Second Church, Columbus, is dangerously ill. May a kind Providence spare her life, and restore her again to health.

Mr. J. R. Bingham, of Carrollton, Miss., who was sick and unable to attend the session of Conference at Tupelo, we learn with pleasure, is getting well. He was greatly missed by the brethren. No man among us is held in higher esteem.

Rev. H. B. Carre, president of Centenary College, spent the Christmas holidays with his mother in New Orleans. He honored our office with a call on Monday morning, and in the afternoon left for Jackson (La.) to resume his college duties.

The editor and family return hearty thanks to Mrs. W. W. Carre for kind remembrance on Christmas Day. The overflowing contents of the basket—the good things of life—were much enjoyed. Such tokens of good-will fill us with gratitude.

Rev. P. H. Fontaine, in the absence of the pastor, Rev. Wm. Schuhle, preached and administered the holy communion for the Dryades Street Church last Sunday morning. He will begin his work this week in his new charge, Covington station.

Rev. W. G. Evans is in the city working in the interest of the Conference Minutes. He has all the Conference matter, reports, etc., in hands of the printer. If the work is not out on time, it will not be his fault. We hope there will be no mishap.

Beloved brethren have honored our office with their presence since the session of Conference—some resident, others just passing through the city. Among them we name Revs. T. J. Upton, F. G. Hcutt, A. S. Lutz, W. D. Kleinschmidt, W. W. Drake, and R. H. Wynn.

Rev. R. H. Wynn preached for the Louisiana Avenue congregation Sunday morning, and at Algiers in the evening. Brother Wynn has spent ten years—the whole of his ministerial life—in the city. He goes to Homer, his new charge, with the best wishes of a host of friends.

We thank Rev. W. H. Huntley, presiding elder of the Vicksburg district, for kind and brotherly words. He has our prayers and best wishes for success in his new field—one hitherto untried by him. We doubt not he will fully meet expectations of his most ardent friends.

We extend thanks to Brother Hoffman, of the Bible House, 735 Baronne street, for a package of Christmas cards and books for children. We shall try to place them where they will do the most good. And we wish Brother Hoffman a happy and prosperous year in his good work.

Miss Mary B. Megginson, an intelligent and consecrated young lady of North Mississippi, will give us occasional notes from that part of our territory. Her notes will prove of profit and interest, and the brethren will welcome her to our columns, as we certainly do. Her address is Holly Springs, Miss.

Rev. Thos. Carter, professor of New Testament Greek in Vanderbilt University, after Conference at Alexandria, spent part of Christmas week with his father at Crowley, and the remainder in New Orleans. He was accompanied by his wife. Brother Carter is pleased with his position in the University.

Rev. J. W. Treadwell, who went to Texas last Fall from North Mississippi, has been appointed to Kosse circuit, and writes that he has met with a warm reception. The good people gave him a great pounding, have furnished the parsonage, and he is comfortable. We delight to hear of the well-being of our friends.

We sympathize deeply with our brother, Rev. J. J. Golden, and his wife, in the loss of their sweet little babe, who passed away on the morning of the nineteenth of December. May the Lord comfort their hearts. It is well with the child. Notwithstanding this affliction, Brother Golden writes that he will be on his new field of labor by the first of January.

Dr. F. N. Parker, after three years of labor at Carondelet Street Church, goes to the Baton Rouge district. After surveying the ground, he has decided to locate at Baton Rouge. He was in the city Sunday last, and, in the absence of the pastor, he preached for his old parishioners. Brother Parker will be greatly missed in the councils of New Orleans Methodism.

Rev. R. H. B. Gladney has had an auspicious beginning at Holly Springs. He preached his first sermon on Sunday, Dec. 21. The Reporter says: "It was an able discourse, and made quite a favorable impression on his congregation. The people of Holly Springs are highly pleased with Brother Gladney, and are rejoicing that he and his family have been sent to this station."

Rev. Richard Wilkinson, the newly appointed pastor of Rayne Memorial Church, this city, began his work with that important charge last Sunday. It was our pleasure to hear his opening sermon, a discourse well prepared and well adapted to the occasion. It was also well delivered, and well received by the congregation. We think the people are pleased, and we trust the year, now so well begun, will be one of blessing to the church and to the pastor.

ADVOCATE OFFER.

Magic White Soap, advertised in our columns, is manufactured in New Orleans by a responsible company, who can be relied on to do what is promised. The soap is what is claimed for it. There is none better on the market. A fair trial has been given it at the home of the editor, and the good wife, who knows what soap is, says "it is about the best she ever used." Our lady readers would do well to give this soap a trial. Send for a box of twenty bars—one dollar; charges paid by the manufacturer.

We make the following offer: We will furnish one box of this soap, and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for one year, for $2.50, to new subscribers. We make the same offer to all who will pay up back dues, and send $2.50 additional. Cash must accompany the order. Address

JNO. W. BOSWELL,
512 Camp St., New Orleans.

Artistic Monuments

Cost no more than plain ones in White Bronze. Marble is entirely out of date. Granite eventually crumbles back to Mother Earth. Besides, it is very expensive.

White Bronze is strictly everlasting. It can not crumble with the action of frost. Moss growth is an impossibility. It is more artistic than any stone. It has been adopted for nearly one hundred public monuments and by thousands of delighted customers in all parts of the country. We have designs from $4.00 to $4,000. The company ship them to any address. Send me a postal card, and I will call at your home with my designs.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

Conducted by N. A. MOTT, Yazoo City, Miss.

To Whom All Communications for This Department Must Be Sent.

A New Leaf.

Pressure for time has prevented us from writing for our Sunday-school column for the past month. With the opening of the new year we will turn over a new leaf, and will endeavor to make the column more useful during 1903 than it has been during the past. At times we have been discouraged, because we thought we were accomplishing nothing, but recently we have heard so many expressions of good-will that we feel encouraged to go on with the labor of love. Pardon this touch of nature. A sense of loneliness will despair, while among the tenderest memories of the human heart is the encouragement by friends.

We have endeavored to make the column both interesting and instructive. It is far from us to claim superior knowledge to our fellow-workers in the Sunday-schools of the three Conferences of Louisiana and Mississippi. It has been our aim to increase their interest, to enlist others in the cause of Sunday-schools, and to arouse all to action. Our church furnishes Sunday-school literature second to none in the world, and our Study Circle course is the acknowledged leader in teacher training. Our object is to lead others to these fountains of knowledge and of instruction in methods, and to enlist the energies of our workers in enlarging their sphere of influence.

We plead with our presiding elders, our pastors, our superintendents and officers, our teachers and our older pupils, to encourage every practical effort to teach better methods of work. We pray God's blessing upon your labors during the coming year, and ask you to unite with us in persistent, believing prayer for the conversion of our children.

The Oldest Sunday School.

We recently published an item about a Sunday-school in Virginia eighty-one years old, and asked for information about our own oldest Sunday-school in Louisiana and Mississippi. From Mrs. Dr. Farrar, now living at Kingston, near Natchez, Miss., we learn that a Sunday-school was established at Kingston, near Natchez, Miss., in 1826, and was continued without interruption until 1892, when it was discontinued because there were no children left in that neighborhood to teach. The superintendent was Mr. W. W. Foules, who was assisted by Mrs. E. K. Farrar. So far as we can learn, this was the first Sunday-school established in either Louisiana or Mississippi. But let us hear from other old schools.

The Natchez circuit, which included Kingston named above, was established in 1799 by Tobias Gibson, the first Methodist, if not the first Protestant, minister in the Southwest. Toe noted Lorenzo Dow also often preached there. Speaking of first things, the old Natchez circuit, which up to 1826 embraced Kingston and Washington, can boast its share. Jefferson College, the first college for boys in the Southwest, was established at Washington in 1802; the first academy for girls, Elizabeth Female Academy, was established at the same place in 1823; the Mississippi Conference was organized at the residence of Mr. Wm. Foster, near Natchez, in 1816; the church at Natchez was made a station in 1826—the first in the Southwest; and the Natchez Sunday-school Missionary Society was organized in 1835—the first of its kind in the South. For the above facts we are indebted to "A Centennial Retrospect"—a history of Methodism in Natchez, published by Rev. W. C. Black while he was pastor at Natchez in 1884.

The Sunday-school Board of the Mississippi Conference held its first anniversary at its recent session at Natchez. Dr. Hamill was at his best, and made a powerful address, holding the close attention of a crowded house for an hour and twenty minutes. The music was a feature of the occasion, and was led by a large choir of little children, who had been admirably trained by Mrs. Mary Babin and Mrs. E. M. Baker, both of whom are consecrated Sunday-school workers.

THE COMBINATION OIL CURE FOR CANCER.

From Oklahoma—Ramaina Well After Four Years—The Judge Tried to Dissuade Him.

STOUT, OKLA., SEPT. 4, 1901.
DR. D. M. BYE CO., DALLAS, TEX.

DEAR SIRS—Four years ago I had two cancers on my face—one on my ear and one on my nose. I heard of you and your Oil Treatment. When I got through with the first month's treatment, my ear was sound and well; and I sent for the second month's treatment, and before I got through with it I was sound and well. That has been four years ago. When I sent for the first treatment, my neighbor, ex-probate judge, went home and told his wife, "Crews will had better fix up his business for that doctor will sure kill him." Two years later the judge, J. C. Hutchett, had a cancer himself, and he came to me for your address, and he was cured sound and well. I will answer any and all that may write me in regard to the above statement, and I hope if anybody sees this that has a cancer, they will give you a trial. If you publish this I hope it may be a benefit to somebody.

Yours truly,
JOHN CRESWELL.

ANOTHER NOTICE.

Requests for special copies of the ADVOCATE come to us so often that they are burdensome, and we again remind our friends that in making such requests they must send FOUR CENTS for each copy. We can not afford to "send bill," as we are sometimes asked to do. Please, friends, bear these things in mind.

FOR OVER SIXTY YEARS

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Notes from the Brethren.

McNutt, Rev. W. D. McCullough: "We arrived here on the night of the seventeenth. Have a good parsonage, elegant people. I will do what I can for the ADVOCATE as soon as I can get out. Success to you."

Winona, Rev. W. W. Woollard: "We reached Winona safely last week, and had a good day last Sunday."

Crystal Springs, Rev. Robt. Selby: "I trust the coming year will bring you great prosperity in your special work, and that the work of the Lord may prosper in your hands." [We thank Bro. Selby for his kind words and prayers.]

Dr. N. F. Connelley, a very dear friend of the editor, and a true Christian, sends the following word from Dardanelle, Ark., which is quite complimentary to Rev. T. B. Clifford, who served that charge last year: "Dardanelle station paid everything in full for year just closed, with a surplus on preacher's salary, this being, perhaps, first time in history of the charge that the pastor's salary was overpaid. (Assessed, $900; paid, $912 85.) A petition was sent to the Bishop signed by the entire Board of Stewards as representing the church and town asking for Brother Clifford's return. He goes back to Mississippi. We are very sorry to lose him and his good wife."

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

MR. EDITOR: Since my return from Conference, greetings have been so cheering and the welcomes so hearty as to make the pastor and his family feel good, and to promise, if possible, better service. They have provided me; flour, meats, sugar, coffee, canned goods, lumber, etc. A nice note was found in the post office containing a check for $25. The stewards have met, organized and planned for systematic work and monthly payments, and assured the pastor that he need not give himself any concern about the salary. The president of the Board of Stewards stated for our encouragement that in the years of his experience as a steward he had never before found the collections so easy as last year. The first Sabbath of the new Conference year the usually large and appreciative congregations greeted us. We thank God and pray his richest blessings upon this excellent people.

A woman's discovery
FREE

By many years of constant study and experiments, I have perfected a simple, harmless vegetable remedy that will quickly cure all female diseases, as well as the piles. It is nature's own remedy, and will not only relieve, but will absolutely thoroughly and permanently cure the ailments peculiar to women, such as falling of the womb, leucorrhea (whites), displacements, ulcerations, granulations, painful or scanty periods, irregular menstruation and all the pelvic ills of women. It positively cures rectal ulcers, piles, hemorrhoids, tumors, itching, blind or bleeding piles in either sex. It cures promptly, privately, and permanently without the repugnant methods in general use by physicians. You can escape embarrassing examinations, avoid humiliating exposures, cheat the surgeon's knife out of baptism in your blood.

The treatment is so simple, mild and effectual that it will not interfere with your work or occupation. Thousands and thousands of letters are being received from grateful persons from all parts of the world who have been cured by the use of this remedy. The first package is free. Send for it—send to-day. I know that a fair trial of it will result in your becoming its enthusiastic advocate and friend. With it I will send literature of interest and value. Do not neglect this opportunity to get cured yourself and be in a position to advise ailing friends.

Consider well the above offer and act upon it at once. It is made in the sincere hope of aiding you and spreading the knowledge of a beneficent boon to sufferers. Earnestly, hopefully, faithfully, MRS. CORA B. MILLER, 46 Comstock Bldg., Kokomo, Ind.

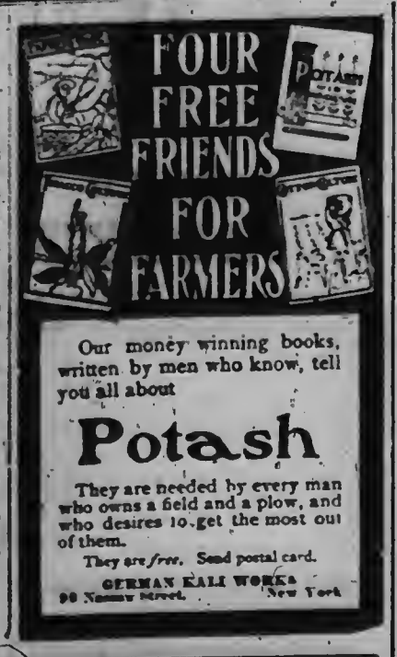
DROPSY CURED! Gives quick relief, removes all swelling in 15 to 25 days; effects a permanent cure in 30 to 60 days. Trial treatment given absolutely free to every sufferer. Write to Dr. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Specialists, Box G, Atlanta, Ga.

A Wonderful Invention.

It is interesting to note that fortunes are frequently made by the invention of articles of minor importance. Many of the most popular devices are those designed to benefit the people and meet ...ular conditions, and one of the most interesting of these that has ever been invented is the Dr. White Electric Comb, patented Jan. 1, '99. These wonderful combs positively cure dandruff, hair falling out, sick and nervous headaches and when used in connection with Dr. White's Electric Hair Brush are positively guaranteed to make straight hair curly in 25 days' time. Thousands of these electric combs have been sold in the various cities of the Union, and the demand is constantly increasing. Our agents are rapidly becoming rich selling these combs. They positively sell on sight. Send for sample. Men's size, 50; ladies', 35c—half price while we are introducing them. See Want Column of this paper. The D. White Electric Comb Co., Decatur, Ill.



Our money winning books, written by men who know, tell you all about

Potash

They are needed by every man who owns a field and a plow, and who desires to get the most out of them.

They are free. Send postal card.

OTHERS DISCUSS THEM | 200-EGG-PER-YEAR White Wyandottes | WE POSSESS THEM

Big Eggs From Big Hens With Big Records

THE KIND WE SELL will hatch stock that will pay for its keep, for we breed what we advertise—a great laying strain of WHITE WYANDOTTES—ideal birds of large size and great productiveness, and hardy to an amazing degree. They are standard-bred and beautiful; but what is more to you, they are utility-bred. The farmer, and most others, desire stock that will bring dollars, and not simply blue ribbons. Ours will do both, but our special point is to produce a big hen to lay eggs.

THE KIND YOU WANT are the very kind we have—STRONG HENS. They lay strong eggs, and vigorous chicks result. It is a patent fact that Southern-laid eggs are the best. There are no better than ours in the South. Our hens have laid as high as 242 eggs in a year, with no forcing feed. It's in the strain, bred there, and they will please you mighty well. They have not been weakened by line-breeding, but built up from the "fittest" in standard points and stamina we could raise or buy.

Mrs. B. I. Preston,

PURCHASING AGENT,

1535 Seventh St., New Orleans, La.

Purchasing for Country and City Residents Promptly Attended to.

WANTED.

A physician of good standing, good church worker, wants location where he can make living from the start. Willing to locate either in city or country. Address This Office, 513 Camp St.

TO THE LADIES.

Freedom from aches, good general and special health and healthy vigor, tend to render you happy, contented and attractive—to make life worth living and fit you for pleasure or duty.

What is the use of dragging languid, pain-racked, easily tired bodies to the opportunities and enjoyments? Why do many of you do it? Is it because you think there is no cure? Then you are very much mistaken. Women are made much alike—all are subject to or liable to the same diseases, pains, aches and nervousness. These ills come to many—may come to all.

G. F. P. has cured thousands of them, will cure the others if given a chance to do so.

"I had suffered for a year and three bottles has restored my health entirely. Physicians and the many female remedies used had no effect upon me whatever, but in G. F. P. I owe my life. You have my permission to publish this letter that other suffering women may know of this wonderful remedy and be cured. —Mrs. Carrie Richardson, Grace, Mich.

One of the nicest facts about G. F. P. is that it cures women's especial ills in the privacy of the home without offensive examinations or expensive treatment—there is no offended modesty and no wasted money.

G. F. P.—Gerstle's Female Panacea

is the best remedy in the world for the cure of all the diseases to which the female sex is peculiarly subject. It is not a new remedy, but on the contrary it is a very old one, being the prescription of a famous German physician who used it many years ago with such marvelous success that its formula has been sacredly preserved and handed down to the present generation as a female tonic that has stood the test of time and trial without a single failure being recorded against it.

This medicine is sold by nearly all medicine dealers at the uniform price of $1.00 a bottle or six bottles for $5.00, but in case you cannot get it from your dealer it will be sent to you at the above prices, all charges prepaid, if you send the money to

That's the condition of many sufferers from catarrh, especially in the morning. Great difficulty is experienced in clearing the head and throat.

No wonder catarrh causes headache, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, pollutes the breath, deranges the stomach and affects the appetite.

To cure catarrh, treatment must be constitutional—alterative and tonic.

"I was afflicted with catarrh. I took medicines of different kinds, giving each a fair trial; but gradually grew worse until I could hardly hear, taste or smell. I then concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after taking five bottles I was cured and have not had any return of the disease since." EUGENE FORBES, Lebanon, Kan.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
